SOUTH SIDE SQUARE

BRADY, TEXAS

SPEAKS FOR FERGUSON.

Hon. W. T. Bagby of Hallettsville Addresses Voters.

Hon. W. T. Bagby of Hallettsville spoke at the court house yesterday afternoon at 2:30 in the interest of the candidacy of J. E. Ferguson for governor. On account of many Brady and McCulloch county citizens being in attendance upon the picnic at Melvin, only a small crowd was present to hear Mr. Bagby's address, not more than fifty persons attending.

J. F. Tindel of this city, in a short talk, introduced the speaker. Mr. Bagby prefaced his address by giving his own record while serving in the state legislature, and said that he had offered an amendment to the Allison bill making it a crime to take more than a quart of intoxicating liquors into prohibition districts; that he had offered the amendment in good faith, but that the prohibition members of the house had refused to stand for it. The only plank in Mr. Ferguson's platform touched upon by the speaker was the tenant question. He ridiculed what he termed the "Political Toms" of Texas, and predicted the election of the Temple candidate by an overwhelming majority.

He spoke at Melvin yesterday morning at the picnic, returning to Brady via auto in time for his appointment here at 2:30. He left last night at 8:00 o'clock for Stephenville, where he is to speak today.

To Water and Light Customers.

MELVIN PICNIC.

Immense Crowd Attends Big Event Yesterday.

The people of the Melvin community were hosts yesterday to one of the biggest crowds ever assembled in that progressive little city, at the big W. O. W. picnic and barbecue.

The crowd is estimated at 1,000, people coming from all sections of this county as well as many parts of Concho, Menard and Mason counties.

The event is pronounced a decided success from every standpoint, and all are loud in praise of the hospitality of the Melvin folks.

A short program of speeches was carried out in the forenoon, Judge Harvey Walker of this city delivering the address of welcome in behalf of the Melvin Woodmen. Political speeches were made by Hon. W. T. Bagby of Hallettsville in behalf of Jas. E. Ferguson, Judge Harvey Walker for Tom Ball, Hon. Matt F. Allison in behalf of his candidacy for the legislature. Rev. T. P. Grant, secretary of the local Commercial club also delivered an able address in behalf of good roads. Practically all the candidates for county offices were present and put in good time with the voters.

Brady citizens attending the picnic probably numbered a hundred, and all state that it was one of the most enjoyable events which they had attended in many years.

Be sure and have your teeth examined by Drs. Lindley & Lindley. They charge you nothing for examination. Bring the children.

We commence on July 4th with reduced prices on all Palm Beach suits. We don't intend to carry a single suit over. We have a nice assortment in stock. Come and let us fit you and save money. Mann Bros.

In Temple Sanitarium.

Word was received here Wednesday morning that Judge J. A. Adkins, who left last Friday for a speaking tour of South Texas in the interest of the candidacy of J. E. Ferguson, is now confined in a sanitarium in Temple, and that he has undergone a slight operation.

The nature of the operation is not known here, but is thought by the judge's Brady friends to be of little or no importance, as he had complained of no trouble prior to his leaving last week.

Notice to Patrons.

To enable us to be more prompt in making deliveries our drivers will be instructed after this week to make no charges except for coupon books.

We want to give the best service possible and as we are crowded for time anyway, the drivers cannot possibly stop to make these charges and get around in time. Besides, a man handling ice as fast as they do with wet hands and clothing is in no shape to use a book and pencil. Then, they often forget to charge and check up short.

We have been having complaints about slow deliveries and our men say this is one of the main causes for this delay. The coupon book is the most satisfactory way and we have provided these books at an expense, and we hope that you will cooperate with us in this matter and either provide yourselves with coupon books or have the change ready for what ice you want.

Exalt the Rural Life.
How long, we wonder, will it be before this nation will wake up to the fact that its prosperity depends chiefly on the farmer and adopts a corresponding policy. Think of it, over 35 per cent of our total population are engaged in farming. The farms of this country are worth forty billion dollars and they produce annually, crops worth nine billion, yet how often do we hear of anything being done for the farmers. Have you ever seen a monument that was put up to a good farmer or a college founded to a good farmers wife? The statesman who gives thought to the betterment of farmers (except at election time) can almost be counted on your thumbs. Over 35 per cent of our people are farmers and yet there are only two farmers in the U. S. Senate and they are on the fancy order. Two per cent of the Senate to represent 35 per cent of the population. What is that but taxation without representation. There are only 18 representatives in Congress confess to being farmers, 18 out of 435, four per cent to the Legislature for 35 per cent. Why, there are 18 labor unionist in the House, 18 men to represent only two million wage earners and the same number to represent 35 million. Farmers, do you wonder that the farmer doesn't get a square deal.
There are ten members in Pres. Wilson's Cabinet, five of lower the cost of food stuff, you take that much from the actual producer. If any man needs protecting it is the man that produces the food. The high price is the only thing that will change the tide back to the farm.

I had a letter from a gentleman some time ago urging my support, and in that letter he gave his platform and one of the first things was, reduce the high cost of living. I understand that each class of people needs different laws but I hold up the subject of farmers, let the other class look out for themselves.
W. W. HENDERSON.
He'd Take The Same.
A Washington man celebrated the eighth birthday of a nephew of his by taking the lad to luncheon at a big hotel.
The youthful guest had not noticed that at the end of the luncheon, his uncle had tendered a $50 bill in payment thereof, but the boy did notice that when the waiter returned he brought with him a plate upon which was piled a huge mound of green backs and silver.
With a longing glance at the money, the boy leaned toward his uncle and said:
"If you please, Uncle Tom, I'll have a plate of that, too!"—Lippincott's.

them lawyers, two editors, one college professor, one manufacturer and one labor union, but not one farmer. What organized classes get and what the farmer doesn't get illustrates the fact that the active minority dominates things under a Democracy. A paternalistic government would know enough to look out for the farmers' account. The farmer is the goose that lays the golden eggs and a sensible and businesslike government would recognize this fact. In neglecting and penalizing the farmers, we are taxing the cost of living at its source.
The woods are full of reformers and uplifters but how many are preaching the doctrine of better things for the farmer, the man who digs the living out of the unwilling soil for the whole population.
We have laws forbidding women to work at night in factories or over eight hours in one day or over forty-eight hours in any week. We are getting laws forbidding women or girls to work at all unless they are paid a minimum wage of $8 per week, whether they are worth it or not, but who has heard of any law to limit the amount of work the women on the farm should do? Our statesmen seem to think that anything will do for the farmer, the price of food stuff is the only thing that will change this. I oppose anything that will tend to lower the cost of food stuff, every cent you

TRUTH TRIUMPHS.
Brady Citizens Testify for the Public Benefit.
A truthful statement of a Brady citizen, given in his own words, should convince the most skeptical about the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills. If you suffer from backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, urinary disorders or any form of kidney ills, use a tested kidney medicine.
A Brady citizen tells of Doan's Kidney Pills.
Could you demand more convincing proof of merit?
C. V. Glober, Brady, Texas, says: "For many years I was troubled by a dull ache in my back and across my kidneys. I consulted a doctor and he pronounced the complaint 'lumbago.' He gave me a prescription, but it brought no relief and I tried other remedies without help. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and procured a box. Before long I noticed that the trouble was beginning to leave me and after taking two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, I was cured. I haven't lost a day from work since."

"A CHILD OF GENIUS"

BRADY GIRL WINNING BRILLIANT NAME.

Miss Waldine Tauch the Subject of Lengthy Sketch in Sunday San Antonio Paper.

Miss Waldine Tauch of this city, who for the past several years has been studying sculpture under Pompeo Coppini in San Antonio, was the subject of a full page sketch in last Sunday's issue of the San Antonio Express. The article was profusely illustrated with scenes from the studio, showing some of the work of the young artist.

Miss Tauch is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tauch of this city, and is well known here. Her many Brady friends will be delighted to know that her work is attracting attention from artists throughout the country, and that a brilliant career is predicted for her by those who have watched her progress in her chosen life's work. The news of her success is especially gratifying to the members of the Ladies' Tuesday club of this city, as they were the first to recognize the talent possessed by Miss Tauch, and to make it possible for her to develop these talents.

In the belief that the item will be of interest to readers of The Standard, it is reproduced below in full:

San Antonio boasts a sculptress whose name bids fair to be enrolled amid those of the foremost American artists of the day. This is Waldine Tauch, a young girl whose work has for some time attracted much attention, so much so that she was, at an early age "adopted" by a woman's club, in order to further her education, and later, since having pursued her studies here, has shown such marvelous talent that she is already becoming known as "the girl sculptor," though not yet 20 years old.

Waldine Tauch is a pupil of Pompeo Coppini and has received her entire education in his studio. A glimpse into that sanctum shows work of all sorts in all stages of progress and almost as many of the pupil's as of the master's. Here, a tall swathed figure covered with wet cloths denotes where a statesman is being immortalized while there, a square looking blotch, when uncovered reveals a bas-relief which is destined to adorn some great building or a fountain for a public square. Moving about among them much at home with their wierd and mysterious uncouthness, is a little lithe figure in a big blue apron and flat soled shoes, with big braids of brown hair pinned close about a dainty head, and as she unwraps a hero from his wet bands, or draws out a bust to get better light, she chats brightly and unaffectedly of her work and of her teacher. "Oh yes," she says, "I owe it all to Mr. Coppini, and if I ever become one-tenth part of what he is I shall be proud and satisfied." And then she told all about her life, her first ambitions and aspirations with an enthusiasm which was only equalled by her lack of self-consciousness or affectation.

Waldine Tauch was born in Schulerburg, Texas, of German parents, and from her very earliest infancy she has played with clay and moulded it into fanciful shapes, talking to them and "believing in them" with all her heart. Her mother had grown so used to it that she hardly noticed the child's little rows of figures, each year assuming more and more character, but

She says that her first remembrance of inspiration was when she was a tiny tot. At that time a young lady in the neighborhood received from her fiancé who had brought it from Germany, a most beautiful ivory figure of some classic deity, and the grace and beauty so appealed to her and called to her with such force that she could not forget it, and her whole being longed to make something like it herself. She got hold of a piece of chalk and painstakingly and carefully wrought, with knife and improvised tools, a figure which has since been pronounced a marvel for its workmanship and perfection.

This receiving so much praise from all the family and friends sealed her fate. She was determined to be a sculptress, though she did not know that was what she was going to be. She just felt the call to create, and she called it "making things."

About this time the family moved out to Menardville and here was a soft quality of adobe with which she busily pursued her work on a larger scale. During that time she made a bust of her brother, which bore a very decided likeness, and also one of George Washington which was strikingly lifelike, though made by the untutored fingers of a 10-year old child. "I laugh at these now," she says, "when I go home, for mamma still preserves them, but then I thought them wonderful," and wonderful they truly were for a little child. "I had such good parents," she says, "and they always encouraged me to go on, believing that some way would be provided for me to study."

When they moved to Brady, the little girl's fame had preceded her, and when they gave a county fair, she was invited to exhibit her work, which she did, entering quite an array of most marvelous figures and, wonder of wonders to her, she took the prize, though she was the youngest entrant and the only one entirely untaught. "This," she says, "gave me much encouragement and made me more ambitious. It is not always good for young artists to take prizes, for they sometimes get the idea that they know it all, and then their failure is sealed, for it must be work, work, work all the time, and never stop, never get to the end, if one wishes to succeed. Fortunately, my prizes did not turn my head, for I knew it meant only a little encouragement to go on."

The next year, when the county fair was in progress, Mrs. Henderson, the president of the Tuesday Club in Brady, who had charge of the butter and cream department, gave the young artist the commission of making a figure, the design to be her own, of a pound of butter for the exhibit. She eagerly undertook the work and says "It took me all morning to do that; the butter was soft and I had to work under ice water, but I got it made by noon, and it took the prize, and also brought me the delightful patronage of this lovely club of good women." The little figure in butter, of a woman churning, showed such originality and imagination, as well as such exquisite workmanship, that the Tuesday club decided to take the child up and try to educate her in sculpture, determining to at least give her one year's tuition under the best teaching which should start her on the way toward accomplishment. It was a small club and not wealthy, but they gave entertainments and used other womanly ways to raise the funds, and at last, when they were sure of their ground, they began to look around for the best place to send their pupil. They investigated the best colleges, but nothing seemed to give so much promise as study under Pompeo Coppini, who was at that time in Kentucky engaged on a commission of importance. They wrote him and he demanded to see some of her work, believing that the world was full of infant prodigies who, when it came to the "trying out" were weighed and found wanting, and his artistic temperament demanded proof before he would undertake a pupil.

The young lady was equally dictatorial and temperamental, and when she sent a specimen of her work she wrote on the outside in bold letters, "Be very careful with this."

When Mr. Coppini received the package he exclaimed, "Why, what is this—I wonder if I am receiving the Koh-i-noor?" Upon unwrapping the parcel he found an exquisite little figure of a lady leading a dog, the workmanship of which was so fine and the design so beautiful that he was "caught" at first sight. Miss Teuch still has this gem of art and exhibits it with much glee as the masterpiece of her infancy.

But the artistic temperament won out in the end. After waiting several months Mr. Coppini, still tem-

Exalt the Rural Life.
How long, we wonder, will it be before this nation will wake up to the fact that its prosperity depends chiefly on the farmer and adopts a corresponding policy. Think of it, over 35 per cent of our total population are engaged in farming. The farms of this country are worth forty billion dollars and they produce annually, crops worth nine billion, yet how often do we hear of anything being done for the farmers. Have you ever seen a monument that was put up to a good farmer or a college founded to a good farmer's wife? The statesman who gives thought to the betterment of farmers (except at election time) can almost be counted on your thumbs. Over 35 per cent of our people are farmers and yet there are only two farmers in the U. S. Senate and they are on the fancy order. Two per cent of the Senate to represent 35 per cent of the population. What is that but taxation without representation. There are only 18 representatives in Congress confess to being farmers, 18 out of 435, four per cent to the Legislature for 35 per cent. Why, there are 18 labor unionist in the House, 18 men to represent only two million wage earners and the same number to represent 35 million. Farmers, do you wonder that the farmer doesn't get a square deal.

There are ten members in Pres. Wilson's Cabinet, five of them lawyers, two editors, one college professor, one manufacturer and one labor union, but not one farmer. What organized classes get and what the farmer doesn't get illustrates the fact that the active minority dominate things under a Democracy. A paternalistic government would know enough to look out for the farmers' account. The farmer is the goose that lays the golden eggs and a sensible and businesslike government would recognize this fact. In neglecting and penalizing the farmers, we are taxing the cost of living at its source.

The woods are full of reformers and uplifters but how many are preaching the doctrine of better things for the farmer, the man who digs the living out of the unwilling soil for the whole population.

We have laws forbidding women to work at night in factories or over eight hours in one day or over forty-eight hours in any week. We are getting laws forbidding women or girls to work at all unless they are paid a minimum wage of $8 per week, whether they are worth it or not, but who has heard of any law to limit the amount of work the women on the farm should do? Our statesmen seem to think that anything will do for the farmer, the price of food stuff is the only thing that will change this. I oppose anything that will tend to lower the cost of food stuff, every cent you lower the cost of food stuff, you take that much from the actual producer. If any man needs protecting it is the man that produces the food. The high price is the only thing that will change the tide back to the farm.

I had a letter from a gentleman some time ago urging my support, and in that letter he gave his platform and one of the first things was, reduce the high cost of living. I understand that each class of people needs different laws but I hold up the subject of farmers, let the other class look out for themselves.

He'd Take The Same.
A Washington man celebrated the eighth birthday of a nephew of his by taking the lad to luncheon at a big hotel.

"If you please, Uncle Tom, I'll have a plate of that, too!"—Lippincott's.

"A CHILD OF GENIUS"

BRADY GIRL WINNING BRILLIANT NAME.

Miss Waldine Tauch the Subject of Lengthy Sketch in Sunday San Antonio Paper.

Miss Waldine Tauch of this city, who for the past several years has been studying sculpture under Pompeo Coppini in San Antonio, was the subject of a full page sketch in last Sunday's issue of the San Antonio Express. The article was profusely illustrated with scenes from the studio, showing some of the work of the young artist.

Miss Tauch is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tauch of this city, and is well known here. Her many Brady friends will be delighted to know that her work is attracting attention from artists throughout the country, and that a brilliant career is predicted for her by those who have watched her progress in her chosen life's work. The news of her success is especially gratifying to the members of the Ladies' Tuesday club of this city, as they were the first to recognize the talent possessed by Miss Tauch, and to make it possible for her to develop these talents.

In the belief that the item will be of interest to readers of The Standard, it is reproduced below in full:

San Antonio boasts a sculptress whose name bids fair to be enrolled amid those of the foremost American artists of the day. This is Waldine Tauch, a young girl whose work has for some time attracted much attention, so much so that she was, at an early age "adopted" by a woman's club, in order to further her education, and help her, since having pursued her studies here, has shown such marvelous talent that she is already becoming known as "the girl sculptor," though not yet 20 years old.

Waldine Tauch is a pupil of Pompeo Coppini and has received her entire education in his studio. A glimpse into that sanctum shows work of all sorts in all stages of progress and almost as many of the pupil's as of the master's. Here, a tall swathed figure covered with wet cloths denotes where a statesman is being immortalized while there, a square looking blotch, when uncovered reveals a bas-relief which is destined to adorn some great building or a fountain for a public square. Moving about among them much at home with their wierd and mysterious uncouthness, is a little lithe figure in a big blue apron and flat soled shoes, with big braids of brown hair pinned close about a dainty head, and as she unwraps a hero from his wet bands, or draws out a bust to get better light, she chats brightly and unaffectedly of her work and of her teacher. "Oh yes," she says, "I owe it all to Mr. Coppini, and if I ever become one-tenth part of what he is I shall be proud and satisfied." And then she told all about her life, her first ambitions and aspirations with an enthusiasm which was only equalled by her lack of self-consciousness or affectation.

Waldine Tauch was born in Schulenburg, Texas, of German parents, and from her very earliest infancy she has played with clay and moulded it into fanciful shapes, talking to them and "believing in them" with all her heart. Her mother had grown so used to it that she hardly noticed the child's little rows of figures, each year assuming more and more character, but

She says that her first remembrance of inspiration was when she was a tiny tot. At that time a young lady in the neighborhood received from her fiance who had brought it from Germany, a most beautiful ivory figure of some classic deity, and the grace and beauty so appealed to her and called to her with such force that she could not forget it, and her whole being longed to make something like it herself. She got hold of a piece of chalk and painstakingly and carefully wrought, with knife and improvised tools, a figure which has since been pronounced a marvel for its workmanship and perfection.

This receiving so much praise from all the family and friends sealed her fate. She was determined to be a sculptress, though she did not know that was what she was going to be. She just felt the call to create, and she called it "making things."

About this time the family moved out to Menardville and here was a soft quality of adobe with which she busily pursued her work on a larger scale. During that time she made a bust of her brother, which bore a very decided likeness, and also one of George Washington which was strikingly lifelike, though made by the untutored fingers of a 10-year old child. "I laugh at these now," she says, "when I go home, for mamma still preserves them, but then I thought them wonderful," and wonderful they truly were for a little child. "I had such good parents," she says, "and they always encouraged me to go on, believing that some way would be provided for me to study."

When they moved to Brady, the little girl's fame had preceded her, and when they gave a county fair, she was invited to exhibit her work, which she did, entering quite an array of most marvelous figures and wonder of wonders to her, she took the prize, though she was the youngest entrant and the only one entirely untaught. "This," she says, "gave me much encouragement and made me more ambitious. It is not always good for young artists to take prizes, for they sometimes get the idea that they know it all, and then their failure is sealed, for it must be work, work, work all the time, and never stop, never get to the end, if one wishes to succeed. Fortunately, my prizes did not turn my head, for I knew it meant only a little encouragement to go on."

The next year, when the county fair was in progress, Mrs. Henderson, the president of the Tuesday Club in Brady, who had charge of the butter and cream department, gave the young artist the commission of making a figure, the design to be her own, of a pound of butter for the exhibit. She eagerly undertook the work and says "It took me all morning to do that; the butter was soft and I had to work under ice water, but I got it made by noon, and it took the prize, and also brought me the delightful patronage of this lovely club of good women."

The little figure in butter, of a woman churning, showed such originality and imagination, as well as such exquisite workmanship, that the Tuesday club decided to take the child up and try to educate her in sculpture, determining to at least give her one year's tuition under the best teaching which should start her on the way toward accomplishment. It was a small club and not wealthy, but they gave entertainments and used other womanly ways to raise the funds, and at last, when they were sure of their ground, they began to look around for the best place to send their pupil. They investigated the best colleges, but nothing seemed to give so much promise as study under Pompeo Coppini, who was at that time in Kentucky engaged on a commission of importance. They wrote him and he demanded to see some of her work, believing that the world was full of infant prodigies who, when it came to the "trying out" were weighed and found wanting, and his artistic temperament demanded proof before he would undertake a pupil.

When Mr. Coppini received the package he exclaimed, "Why, what is this—I wonder if I am receiving the Koh-i-noor?" Upon unwrapping the parcel he found an exquisite little figure of a lady leading a dog, the workmanship of which was so fine and the design so beautiful that he was "caught" at first sight. Miss Tauch still has this gem of art and exhibits it with much glee as the masterpiece of her infancy.

Mr. Coppini decided that she was "worth while," and the club that Mr. Coppini was a worthy instructor of their protegee, and all seemed smooth sailing, but suddenly the mother intervened with the fact that her daughter could not go away from home until she had gone to school more, and at least until she should be 18. But the artistic temperament won out in the end. After waiting several months Mr. Coppini, still tem-

Neither Ball nor Ferguson are in the lead in Grand Old McCulloch county this year. Prosperity will carry the county by an overwhelming majority.

With the bounteous water-melon crop now being marketed in Brady, we are expecting a big wail to go up from the village located over on the San Saba ditch to the south of us.

Why not take a little pride in the looks of your premises and cut the weeds? Your neighbor will like you better, and you will rise in your own estimation after the job is completed and you see how much better the place looks.

The Del Rio Herald says that because of the fact that they are now mailing the Herald in a hundred thousand dollar building, their subscribers need not think they do not need a dollar on subscription occasionally. We can't understand why the government should spend that much for a building in a desert place like Del Rio and ignore the good towns in civilized communities. Or, perhaps Callan means that the Herald is now published in hundred thousand dollar building.

CLAUDE CALLAN'S COLUMN "CRACKS AT THE CROWD"

From Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The child who wishes to amount to anything in the world should be taught to do something awful and then reform.

A real gentleman is a man who will not be forever reminding you of the little sum you borrowed from him.

During the sparking days a boy thinks he is having a difficult time winning his wife, but in years that follow he discovers that it was the easiest task in life.

If you never make an effort to borrow money from your friends you will never know how well you don't stand with them.

The father is hopeful that his son will break into congress, but as the lad's qualities begin to unfold the old gentelman thinks he will be pretty well satisfied if he doesn't break into jail.

Some people haven't any bad habits and they also haven't any good ones.

If you make some slight remark about the freak gown worn by a lady and it develops that she is the wife of the man you are talking to, your cue is to look like a fool.

In the Philippines a doctor cannot own a drug store. This is proper. It is bad enough to be sick at best, without having a lot of odds and ends of drugs worked off into you.

When a man's straw hat blows off he travels in two directions at once—toward the hat and toward hades.

We are willing to stand by whoever may be elected governor. If he doesn't believe it, all he need do is appoint us to some office in the capitol.

President Wilson says he was a failure as a lawyer. Many of those practicing law are the same, but they have not made the discovery. However, there is still a chance for the President to succeed. When he leaves the office in the spring of 1921 he will find that he is better known over the country than when he first commenced to practice law, and if he will move to Texas we will be willing to enter a partnership with him. He can manage the cases and we will be the witness.

Says the Texarkana Four States Press: "The department of agriculture sends out advice on five ways to borrow money. If we only had one way that would work well, we would be supremely happy." Yes, but still it is best to have all five. That which will appeal to one man may have little effect upon another. The best plan would be to pass a law making it a penitentiary offense for any bank, banker or trust company to refuse to lend money without security to any applicant. One especially insulting banker, when we went to borrow $10 recently, told us to get some good man on the note, and then the beast added: "It doesn't make any difference whether you sign at all or not."

A nerve specialist says the world is being made an insane asylum by alcohol, high heels, and corsets. That may be true of the high heels and corsets—we never wore either—but it isn't true of alcohol. When we absorb a considerable quantity of it we become a great deal brighter. In fact our brain—and tongue—radiate so much light that it dazzles the people and they leave us. We would give anything in the world to find a man who, under the circumstances, would listen to us talk until we got through.

Don't ruin your health and looks by neglecting your teeth. Drs. Lindley & Lindley.

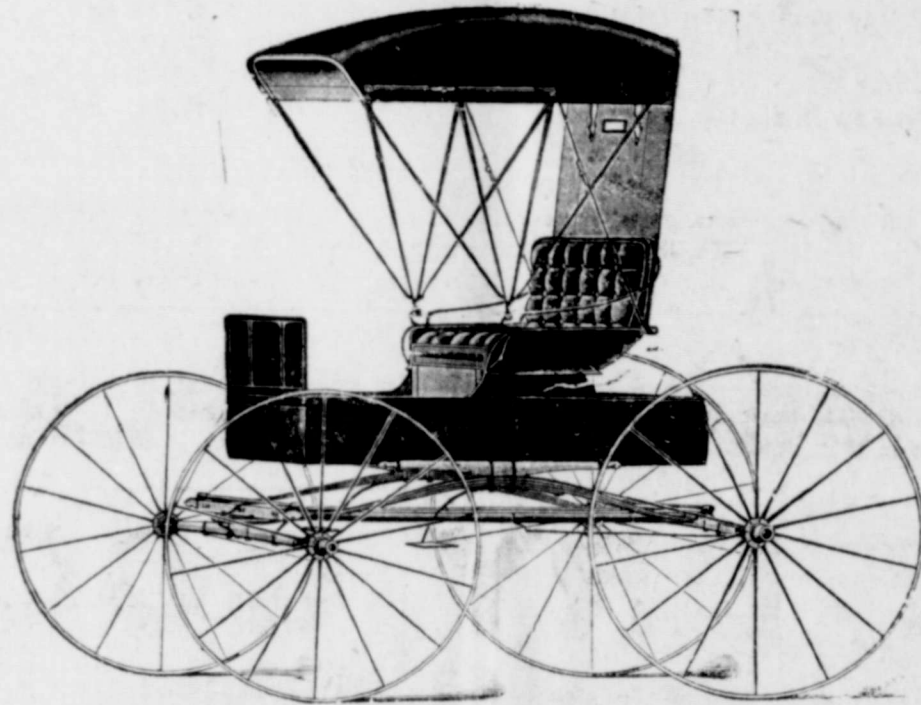

Headache and Nervousness Cured. "Chamberlain's Tablets are entitled to all the praise I can give them," writes Mrs. Richard Olp, Spencerport, N. Y. They have cured me of headache and nervousness and restored me to my normal health." For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

WHEN YOU ARE NERVOUS

you have the first symptom of a run-down system, and nervous people too often conceal their aches and pains and suffer in silence, while, if neglected, this condition often foreruns more serious trouble. If those so afflicted would stop taking medicine containing alcohol or drugs which menace the foundations of health, and just take the pure, strengthening nourishment in Scott's Emulsion, it would create new blood to pulsate through the organs, refresh their bodies and build up the whole nervous system. It is rich, sustaining nourishment, free from wices, alcohols or drugs. Shun substitutes.

Cured of Indigestion.
Mrs. Sadie P. Clawson, Indiana, Pa., was bothered with indigestion. "My stomach pained me night and day," she writes. "I would feel bloated and have headache and belching after eating. I also suffered from constipation. My daughter had used Chamberlain's Tablets and they did her so much good that she gave me a few doses of them and insisted on my trying them. They helped me as nothing else has done." For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

THEY FAILED

The Arthur Lesser Co.

CAME to us with so many letters of recommendation from other merchants as to what they had done for them and, assuring us that they could close out our stock in sixteen days, sounded so good to us that we turned over our stock to them for the purpose of closing it out for us in the mentioned time. A visit to our store will convince you of their failure. They sold out some of our staple goods in different lines. To illustrate: Sugar, Coffee, Flour, Meal, Bacon and Lard with other things in the grocery department. I could have done that with the cut prices of 22 pounds Sugar for $1.00, best Flour on the market $1.35 a sack, Canned Ham and Breakfast Bacon at 20c a pound, 50-pound can of Lard for $5.00.

Their failing to close our stock left us where we have to continue the business

And we have arranged with the wholesale houses to replace the goods that were closed out. So we will continue business at the old stand at prices that makes it profitable for the cash buyer to trade with us. Some of our goods will be placed on bargain counters and sold at less prices than they were offered during the great advertised sale. Come and see what we have for sale and how we sell it. Let us save you money and help us make money.

Get prices on Shoes, Shelf Hardware and many things too numerous to mention

The man that put on the public sale didn't mention one-fourth of our goods in his advertising, saying he had been putting on sales for years in large cities and country stores, and we had the greatest variety he ever saw anywhere. You wouldn't buy from him that we might close out our stock and let us go free for a rest. Won't you come and trade some with us and help us to make ends meet? We have always done the best we could for the public under the financial pressure under which we have labored, and will ever do what we believe to be right between man and man.

Don't fail to see what we have for all on the Third and Fourth of July peramental, demanded that if she did not come by the first of June he "would have none of her," and Miss Tauch rose in her infant wrath and cried until her mother gave in, and forthwith she sallied forth to San Antonio to seek her fortune and fame.

This was three years ago. She became an inmate of Mr. Coppini's home and after the year which she had been promised by the club had elapsed, and their funds exhausted, the master was so much interested in his pupil that he has just kept her on as his own protegee. She is like a daughter in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Coppini, who are childless, and who treat her as their own child, loving her with an affection which she returns devotedly. She goes to her parents for visits, but her home is with her teacher and her art, and the big studio in the beautiful Coppini home seems a most natural environment for her. Here, amid the arms of skeletons and mannikins, she works and sings and dreams of future fame, though her little head is not at all turned and she is wonderfully practical and sensible.

One of her latest productions is a model for a fountain which has received the very highest encomiums from all who have seen it. This represents an Indian figure, majestic and dignified, with outthrust arms holding two Indian bowls of clay. The whole design is marked by a simplicity and dignity which is most striking and every detail is harmonious. The background shows reeds and base rocks, carrying out the primitive atmosphere of the idea most beautifully.

Another fascinating piece of work just completed is a bas-relief for a mantel, which Miss Tauch and her teacher both feel is a masterpiece. This piece is perhaps one of her very best and shows exquisite imagination and originality and adaptation of the idea to the purpose. It shows an ideal family scene gathered about a blazing fire, a mother with a crowing infant in her arms, the father leaning above the chair, and in the background an old darkey with a tray, smiling at the happiness of her loved white folks. It is an ideal home scene, one which would mark any fireside as a center of family affection and happiness.

Perhaps one of the most wonderful things Miss Tauch has done is a study from life of her sister, completed in two sittings, and which is so perfect that one might believe it had been the work of months. It is marvelous to see what grows from under her deft fingers, as they work so swiftly and so truly, the formless gray clay taking on meaning and expression under her magic that startles in unmistakable language beauty of thought, high ideals and artist's imagination. Here a light figure poised on tip-toed feet and with outstretched arms, is the very essence of hope and youth and speaks almost audibly of joy and high enterprise. While there a figure gradually taking form as one shrouded in trappings of woe and with head buried in folded, agonized arms, tells of agony and death, bereavement and despair. Between these two extremes of the scale of feeling Miss Tauch plays many strings and translates freely every phase of human emotions, the treble of joy, the deep notes of woe and the middle tones of joyous every-day life. It is wonderful and only true genius could so imagine, without the experience of life which is ordinarily demanded, to even know these phases of human feeling. But it comes to her by inspiration, young as she is and inexperienced of life. She knows them by the intuition of genius and gives them to her audience with the deft, light touch of her facile fingers mounting the plastic clay to her will and imagination. After this psychological part, though, comes what she calls the hard work. The designing and the moulding are but the conception of the beautiful idea, the casting and mechanical finishing are the throes of completion, and this, she says, is "work, hard work, but I like it, and when we can do ourselves we are so independent. That is one of the troubles here, we have no casters and do it all ourselves," and it is a source of pride to her that she helps Mr. Coppini with the casting of his work and is familiar with them and all the various periods of their progress toward completion. She treats with the utmost familiarity the great works, snatching wet cloths from them and pulling them around again while she talks. "Yes," she said, "that is one of our difficulties, that we have no workmen to cast for us, but that we can obviate by doing it ourselves, which makes us awfully independent, but our worst difficulty is getting someone to pose for us. Do you know you can hardly get a model in San Antonio, especially a female model?"

"Women and girls will go down the streets dressed so that every line is exposed and not draped much, either, and yet they shrink from posing in the privacy of this studio draped. We have a time of it, I can tell you. We have an old man figure—here he sits, and the different people that he is would make you laugh. Sometimes we dress him up like a woman, we drape him and pose him, poor creature, and twist his arms and legs into all sorts of postures to suit our purposes, from making him a female goddess to an heroic figure of a man, and then to do arms and legs and such things.

"Poor old man," she said smiling at the ridiculous creature who sat in a chair dressed in full dress and a high silk hat.

"Let's put him in the picture; I think he deserves it." And so she did, and the "man of many moods" appears in the illustration standing guard over her while she works "from life."

She is a busy little body with her studies and her assistance to her beloved teacher, the very embodiment of youth and hope. She will succeed in the utmost sense of that word, for she has ambition, inspiration, imagination and originality, but best of all, application and "sticktuitiveness," with a vast appreciation of the immensity of her art and the necessity for always striving. Already she has accomplished what it would take some pupils years to achieve and what they would consider perfection, but she says it is "only the beginning," and with such characteristics it is certain that the name of Waldine Tauch, chiseled in marble or cast in the bronze of statuary, will in years to come stand for greatness.

She has already been called by many connoisseurs who have seen her work, the "new Elizabeth Ney," but she says, seriously, "I am not that yet, but I hope to be some day."

Perhaps Miss Tauch's strongest point is her talent for portraiture, that most elusive and difficult of arts, and one in which she is peculiarly gifted, for she moulds into the clay the personality of her model in a way that makes a speaking likeness. One of these portrait busts, which is of special merit, is of Mrs. Sara Wood of Los Angeles, Cal., widow of the late Col. George Wood, who spent some time in San Antonio last year the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Kirkpatrick, and sat for Miss Tauch during the time. The likeness is perfect, and the workmanship and technique perhaps the young artist's best. And here again she showed a clever little quirk of her clever little brain when she queried, "Do you know that elder people are much easier to do well than younger ones? There is more to go on, for there is more written there, more lines actually drawn in the face, lines which make for character and personality, easy to portray and which the faces of those who have not 'lived' do not possess. It is as if one tried the difference in reading and translating a page written full of history and one that is white and blank, there is beauty in both, but more of meaning in the former."

The studio of Pompeo Coppini is in itself an inspiration, looking out from the side of the lovely hill where his magnificent home is located. This home, built after the model of a Venetian palace, is one of the most beautiful and handsome in the city, and is ideal for the education and inspiration of artistry. Mr. Coppini's own best work has been done here and the very words speak of achievement.

Mr. Coppini is proud of his protegee, and says of her that he has every confidence in her ability to make good.

"I do not want her flattered," he went on, "for that is the death knell of success, but I do want her encouraged. She needs and should have the interest and the encouragement of all Texas. They should give her orders and place her work for her. She is the daughter of Texas and she will reflect credit on her native State, and the people of Texas must help. I consider her a ward of the people. At the meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs in Abilene she was adopted as the special charge of the first district and these good women are watching her career with interest and pride. They have pledged themselves to aid her, and it is certain that their influence and good will will be of material benefit to her. Again I say, I do not want her flattered, but I want her to have the help, the pride and the encouragement of her own people first and that of the wider world will come later as a natural consequence. She must have commissions given her in order for her to feel her own power. As long as she does work as a pupil she feels dependent upon her teacher, but if she receives orders she will find her own feet and learn to depend on herself.

"For this to be accomplished the people must lend their encouragement and that means financial success. As the old darkey said of the people he found in the North, 'They all calls me mister, but they don't give nothin'; won't even give me a job.'"

"Flattery is not means where with to pursue a difficult career and work must be the test of both her merit and of its worth to her fellows."

Keep Up The Cultivation.

It is probable that there are more corn crops ruined each year by the custom of "laying by" too early than by any other errors of cultivation. A corn crop should never be "laid by" until it is made and it is never made until the grain is well hardened. It is too often the custom to give the corn its last working about the time it shows a disposition to tassle. Under conditions of normal moisture after this time the plant usually makes a fair yield despite the lack of continued cultivation, but when the weather remains dry after this time the yield is materially reduced. Frequently one more cultivation after this period will double the yield. With the season that has prevailed over the greater part of Texas this year, late cultivation will be found particularly beneficial. The constant rains that prevailed in the earlier stages of the plants growth are more than apt to be followed by dry weather. Since there was an abundance of moisture while the corn was forming its roots, these roots are largely near the surface and in times of dry weather will not be able to supply the plant with moisture. To combat with this anticipated dry weather, deeper rooting and deeper mulch must be established, it should be done as early as possible so as to cause the least injury to the plant. In deepening the mulch there is necessarily going to be root injury; and care should be taken to make the consequent shock to the plant as slight as possible. Therefore, following the rains it would be well to deepen the mulch only on one side of the row, after the lapse of a week, this process can be repeated on the other side thus giving time for the repair of the root damage.

After once establishing the deeper mulch and forcing deeper rooting, this condition should be maintained by frequent cultivation until the corn is at least well into the roasting ear stage. What has been said of corn is equally applicable to all other cultivated crops but the necessity of establishing this deeper mulch is not quite so pressing as with corn. Don't make an attempt to make your crop with a given number of workings. Work it whenever and as long as conditions warrant and only "lay it by" when it is made.
