in these words: "The exploitive, which is a phenomenon of the north, emerging from the thick forest and extending over the open areas of the cold-temperate zone; and the productive, which originates in the south, and proceeds from sub-tropical oases, along sun-kissed sea shores and smiling valleys, on its westward way through the warm-temperate zone."

He then proceeded to show how, by means of the one-crop system, and during the reconstruction period the exploitive type of civilization fastened itself upon the south—a region, he declares naturally adapted to the productive type of civilization. The remedy he declared to be the breaking of the south from the bondage of the great financial powers, and closed with this glorious appeal to the representatives of the press of Texas:

"The civil war is a thing of the past, the dark ages of reconstruction are over. Like the Mediterranean basin, the Gulf country is now entering her renaissance era, and, like Italy of old, Texas is now taking the lead. The part played by the printed page in the Italian renaissance by the press of the state is easy to discern. You, ladies and gentlemen of the Texas Press association, are the litterati of this inspiring age. The pen is still mightier than the sword, what though the world is at war. I call upon you accordingly, and in full faith, to yield your weapons forcefully and skillfully, withal, against the phalanxes of financial exploitation in behalf of the productive activities of mankind."

Over in the Philippines the Carabao is the general beast of burden. For all kinds of hauling this short-legged, long-horned buffalo is used.

It is more than a mere coincidence that the principal brand used with the Red-Star-Green-T oils in the Philippines is a picture of this animal with its name "Carabao."

To the native of these islands the Carabao represents service, valuable service continuously performed in many ways. What the horse was to the Texas ranchman in the early days, the Carabao is to the Philippine native.

To Texaco products are pictured to the native by the Carabao, indicating the service and its character, the quality and its usefulness. The same quality and service are available for you in your town under the Red-Star-Green-T emblem of Texaco fame. Ask for them.
