DIRECTORS CHOSEN.

Y. M. B. L. Elects Officers and Directors Wednesday Night.

More than one hundred members were present on Wednesday night at the meeting of the Young Men's Business League, at which time a board of directors and a corps of capable officers were chosen to serve for the coming year.

Like the meeting held Monday night, at which time the league was organized, there was in evidence a spirit of harmony and oneness of purpose that was a source of much satisfaction to those who have been most active in the organization. A number of rousing speeches were heard calculated to spur the days in connection with the organization of the league, and predicted that there was no obstacle which could keep them from succeeding so long as the present spirit of unity and co-operation prevailed.

Following Judge Adkins, John E. Bonser, in a short speech, called attention of the league to the fact that neighboring cities were sending trade excursions into the territory which rightfully belonged to Brady, thereby diverting business to other points when, with little effort on the league's part, this trade could be held where it rightfully belongs.

W. D. Crothers spoke at length on the importance of the proposed Puget Sound-to-the-Gulf Highway, the adopted route of which passes through Brady, and

At a meeting of the city council held Tuesday night with all members present except Alderman Roddie, who is absent from the city, a motion was made and duly carried demanding of the West Texas Telephone Co. a modern telephone system, with satisfactory service within a reasonable length of time, otherwise steps would be taken to induce some other company to install a modern system. The city secretary was instructed to officially notify the telephone company or the action taken.

Further than the appointment of Judge Harvey Walker as a member of the city board of equalization to succeed D. F. Savage, resigned, and the allowing of accounts, the session was uneventful.

A motion providing for the appointment of a committee of three to nominate a board of directors to be composed of nine members was lost, and a substitute motion providing for the selection of fifteen names, nine of whom were to be elected by the body, carried. Chairman McCollum named the following to constitute the nominating committee: E. L. Ogden, J. B. Whiteman and S. M. Richardson.

While the committee was preparing its report Judge Joe Adkins was called upon for a speech and responded in his own inimitable manner. In his remarks he paid a high compliment to the young men of Brady for the aggressive spirit which was so much in evidence the past few

Who is there with rich warm blood in their veins who does not delight to view the scenes of a drama, comedy or story in pictures? And with the popular prices, 5 and 10 cents, set on such serial stories as "The Black Box" and "The Diamond From the Sky," recreation is low priced no one need deny themselves the pleasure.

Friday night there will be a fireman's attraction, "When the Firebell Rang," a comedy, "Fatty's Faithful Fido" and "In the Heart of the Woods."

"The Black Box," is packing the house and it is necessary to come early to get seats. It will feature Saturday night at 5 and 10 cents. There will also be a two reel drama, "Bubbling Waters" and the news of the day in pictures.

Can you doubt the evidence of this Brady citizen?

You can verify Brady endorsement. Read this:

H. A. Metcalf, stationary engineer, Brady, says: "About five years ago I was doing heavy lifting and the drinking water was none too good where I was living at the time. These two conditions brought on kidney complaint. At first I had a dull ache through my back, which gradually got so bad that I couldn't work. My kidneys didn't act regularly and the kidney secretions contained sediment. I used lots of kidney medicines, trying to get relief, but none helped me. I then read of Doan's Kidney Pills and made up my mind to try them. It wasn't long before my back was easier, my kidneys were acting regularly and I felt like a different man. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me."

A CONFESSION

Hopes Her Statement, Made Public, will Help Other Women.

Hines, Ala.—"I must confess," says Mrs. Eula Mae Reid, of this place, "that Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done me a great deal of good."

Before I commenced using Cardui, I would spit up everything I ate. I had a tired, sleepy feeling all the time, and was irregular. I could hardly drag around, and would have severe headaches continuously.

Since taking Cardui, I have entirely quit spitting up what I eat. Everything seems to digest all right, and I have gained 10 pounds in weight."

If you are a victim of any of the numerous ills so common to your sex, it is wrong to suffer.

For half a century, Cardui has been relieving just such ills, as is proven by the thousands of letters, similar to the above, which pour into our office, year by year.

Cardui is successful because it is composed of ingredients which act specifically on the womanly constitution, and help build the weakened organs back to health and strength.

Cardui has helped others, and will help you, too. Get a bottle today. You won't regret it. Your druggist sells it.

MAKE MONEY FROM SEAWEED

Inhabitants of the Island of Guernsey Have "Farms" Regularly Allotted to Them.
The strangest "farms" are the seaweed farms of the Island of Guernsey. Held in common by all the farmers of the neighborhood, a "farmers' council" allots to each man making application a strip of the seashore, and all the seaweed that is cast up within these limits belongs to him.
Great bowlders mark the boundaries of the farms, which are from 200 to 600 yards of shore, and if any man gathers seaweed from any other man's farm or moves the bowlders to extend his boundaries the council takes his farm away from him and fines him besides. The seaweed harvest is at its height during the months of July and August, and all that a man need possess to gather it is a two-wheeled cart and one of the sturdy Guernsey ponies, a couple of long-handled pitchforks and a rake.
The seaweed or "varech," as the Guernsey people call it, is used as fertilizer on the inland farms, or is sold to manufacturing chemists, who extract iodine from it.
In the old days, but not now, the great Guernsey "harvest home," which was held usually in May, at the conclusion of the winter season, was the chief festival of that quaint island. The last load was piled upon the carts, and the men and women in holiday dress marched at the head of their carts with their ponies gayly bedecked, singing old sea songs and dancing to the sound of the women's tambourines. From village to village they went until darkness came, and then a huge bonfire was lighted on the seashore and the "varech" season was officially declared at an end.

Trade extension!

Don't kick! Don't knock! Hoist!! Explode if you want to, but don't fizz like a sick fire-cracker.

Two hundred and twenty-three members; every one a man, and every man a booster. That's the Brady Young Men's Business League.

A ladies' auxiliary to the Young Men's Business League might not be a bad idea. They've snap, pep and vim, and help like ginger when needed.

Governor "Jim" says: "I'd rather raise cotton in Texas at 4 cents a pound than be a dead dutchman across the waters." Good sense this, and deeper than it looks.

Judge Adkins says: "Boostin' is like religion; the more you do, the better you like it." He'd ought to know, for if ever there was a confirmed, dyed in the warp, all wool and a yard wide booster, Joe Adkins is it.

A lady who visited this city for a week, notes a difference in other towns. She writes, "But we can not expect to find every town like Brady." If we can send the San Antonio party away with this taste in their mouths, the big "loop line" is ours.

Trade extension means business. D'ye want it? It's the fellows who get out after it who get it. Money makes the mare go; isn't that the gospel according to saint dollar mark? Trade extension will bring the money. Then watch the old mare hump!

If it was a poker game, a keg of nails or a pretty woman, you'd butt in if you got a chance, wouldn't you? Yea, verily! well be a go-it, get your horns down and butt in. It's Brady against the world and the d—l get the hindmost.

Demanding the right to ship cotton to Germany without interference by Great Britain, citizens have addressed a letter to President Wilson through Congressman Keller of Memphis. In that letter the congressman said: "Many of our people here, and especially those engaged directly or indirectly in the cotton business, or affected by it, feel that the English order in council of last winter prohibiting the shipment of cotton to Germany is hurtful in the highest degree to the cotton interests." It is true that our people have shipped

Black Pepper and White Pepper Come from Same Plant

Many people think that there's a white pepper plant and a black pepper plant. There's not. The difference between the two peppers is entirely a matter of manufacture—or rather what part of the peppercorn is ground.

In making black pepper, the whole peppercorn or pod is ground up. In making white pepper the black, outside shell is removed and only the white part of the pod is ground up into pepper.

Some people prefer white pepper—some prefer black pepper. White pepper is used especially in making dishes where black pepper would mar the color, as in delicate, light sauces, etc. But there's one kind of pepper nobody wants; the kind of black pepper that's made by unscrupulous manufacturers by grinding a small proportion of whole peppercorns with a large proportion of the black shells which have been removed in the process of making white pepper. Yet such pepper is all pepper and therefore passes as pure pepper.

Your guarantee of quality in the pepper you buy is to insist on White Swan Peppers.

White Swan Black Pepper is made only by grinding the whole pepper pods. White Swan White Pepper is the ground heart of the pod and nothing else. Your grocer sells these peppers that are "Better than the law requires"—insist.

much cotton to other neutral countries and some of this may have gotten into Germany. On the other hand, if our people could ship cotton to Germany its prices would soon become normal. The market reports show that cotton is bringing 31 cents in Germany, whereas it is selling for about 8 cents here." Cotton growers are fully aroused. They see their danger should cotton be declared a contraband of war.—Ft. Worth Record.

The wool man has the best of the cotton planter just now. Says an exchange: "No longer is it written that the wool buyer shall sit in the cool of the hotel porch, his feet cocked on the railing, enjoying expensive cigars, an occasional cold drink or a quiet game of solitaire while the wool raiser, with clip to sell, awaits his pleasure outside. The picture this year has been entirely reversed. No wool raiser has waited, hat in hand, in the hotel lobby, for the buyer to come down and make him an offer. Instead, the wool raiser has remained quietly at home and the buyer has been forced, if he did any business at all, to seek him out, coax, cajol and plead for the raiser to fix the price and then take it or leave it, just as he pleased. Last year the price ranged from 14 to 20 cents and was considered abnormally high for western wool. This year the price is above 23 cents with eager buyers.

TREASON, TREASON.

"Diogenes lived in a tub. He was happy, satisfied, and therefore wise."—Milwaukee News.

Yes, and a hog lives in a pen; he is satisfied, therefore happy; but will anyone say he is wise? Diogenes rolled in the sand; a hog wallows in the same, but prefers water with it. There are three phases of Diogenes' life: as a youth he was a spendthrift and a rake; later, a cynic, he lived in a tub and rolled in the sand. He has many disciples today, but they prefer a box car and roll on the grass. In later life they, too, may get "horse sense" and like Diogenes, become of some use in the world, for he became tutor and a member of the household in a rich man's home, where he spurned the kindness of a would be friend by adding insult. Maybe this sort of thing was a claim to wisdom 400 years before Christ, but in these days he would be regarded a mild type of idiot, too harmless to be sent to an asylum, too stingy to pay rent, too indolent to own a home, too lazy to dig a cave, and, been scooped in as a bum too dangerous an example for our boys to be at large. Maybe this is treason, but the thought occurs, do we, too, like Solomon in his old age, venerate false gods?

BRADY BEWARE! BEWARE!!

Trade extension is the object of boosting. Except in a city of wholesalers, extensive trips to sister cities is like fizz on a bottle of champagne to a town like this. If you want to drink the foam, and let the other fellows have the champagne, just fold your hands. A little more sleep, and a little more slumber and the work will be done. Read this:

"Quite a crowd of Coleman boosters were in Stacy last week. We think Brady had better show up, as we are in their county. While the majority of citizens trade at Brady, still a good many go to Coleman. We think everybody ought to patronize their own county."

What dye think of that? Coleman encroaching on the trade territory of Brady! Isn't it about time the business blood of Brady shut down its teeth hard, climbed into autos and visited every little community in McCulloch county and give encroachers a hoist with their own petard? This is a war for trade, and while not called upon to face bullets, it is nevertheless a fact that the bayonet of opposition is being buried into the very vitals of business that belongs to Brady. If this isn't war, what is? It's the fellows who go after business who get it!

BOOST, A LITTLE.

"If you see some feller tryin' For to make some project go, You can boost it up a trifle; That's your cue to let him know That you're not goin' to knock it, Just because it ain't your 'shout,' But you're going to boost a little, 'Cause he's got the 'best thing out.'"

"If you know some feller's failin's, Just forget 'em; 'cause you know That same feller's got some good points, Them's the ones you want to show; 'Cast your loaves out on the wafers, They'll come back, 's a sayin' true; Mebbe they will come back buttered, When some feller boosts for you."

MAKE IT A GALA DAY.

Mr. Chairman, ladies, gentlemen and children: Buy your dinner down town next Friday, put on a ribbon, meet the autos of the Highway Party, get the stony, kidney afflicted look off the other fellow's face and "smile, darn ye, smile" while you boost for Brady. Turn out the kids, deck them with ribbon, and don't leave them to do all the hollering. Do some yourself. Show them Brady is wide-awake.

CALOMEL SALIVATES AND MAKES YOU SICK

Acts Like Dynamite on a Sluggish Liver and You Lose a Day's Work.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a sponful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more bitiousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

Mrs. Stone Gives Luncheon.
Compilimentary to Miss Lillian Roberts, who is to be married August 9th to Mr. Edward Campbell, Mrs. J. R. Stone entertained with "500" and a luncheon on Thursday morning from 10 o'clock until 1:00, at her home in Doty addition.

This was one of the prettiest affairs of the season and the Stone home was very attractive in ferns and cut flowers; and in different rooms the color scheme of pink and white was carried out.

In the living room three tables were arranged for "500" and dainty hand-painted score cards, the work of the hostess, were passed. At the conclusion of ten interesting games the guests were invited into the dining room where two tables were laid for twelve and made beautiful with covers of cluny lace underlaid with pink. Tiny baskets made of pink tulle and ribbon, filled with pink and white mints, held the place cards, while the chair for the honoree was tied with an immense bow of white tulle.

In the center of each table large baskets filled with pink and white carnations were placed. Three elaborate courses were served carrying out the color scheme of pink and white with each course.

Miss Roberts was presented a hand embroidered negligee, while Mrs. J. G. McCall received for high score a pair of white silk hose.

The guests were: Mesdames

G. V. Gansel, J. G. McCall, J. S. Anderson, J. S. Wall, S. S. Graham, H. M. Brannum of Fort Worth, G. R. White, B. Simpson, Sam Moffatt; Misses Nellie Anderson of Brownwood and Ruth Campbell and the honoree.

Miss Roberts wore pink taffeta with hat to match.

Unique Vacation Trip.

A. R. Boyden was in the city a few hours Tuesday while enroute from Llano to Eden, and while in the city paid The Standard office a fraternal call. Mr. Boyden is a member of the editorial staff of the Austin American, his contributions to the paper being on political subjects. He is a fluent writer, and a young man of charming personality, a very pleasant conversationalist and a genteel gentleman with whom it is a pleasure to meet.

During the past session of the legislature he was assigned to cover the proceedings of the senate, and suffered a nervous breakdown about the close of the session. His physicians advised out-door life and Mr. Boyden is now "roughing it" in the hills of the Llano country, with occasional jaunts on horseback to other points. He is now on one of these trips and expects to go as far west as Eden, where he will ship his horse back to Llano and return there by rail.

ALAS FOR DAYS OF ROMANCE

One by One the Strongholds of the Novelist Are Being Wreathed From Him.

One by one the abodes of romance and mystery—likewise of discomfort and barbarism—get progressive and pass away. The latest place to join the procession appears to be Bangkok, capital of Siam, and home of the sacred white elephant.

Perhaps that elephant still trumpets from the royal gardens, but he soon will be transferred to a zoo and become a spectacle instead of a holy emblem. For Bangkok not only has installed an electric power station, but is using the surplus current of daylight hours to run rice mills. In the presence of that sort of "efficiency" old-time romance sickens and dies.

Its loss is not without compensation, to be sure. Electric fans, for example, must be handy to a place like Bangkok, whose average temperature throughout the year is about 81 degrees Fahrenheit. But what knight ever waited for an electric fan when rescuing his lady love from a mysterious zenana, and what fun is there in raiding a sultan's treasure that is guarded by common-place burglar alarms instead of by white cobras? Alas and alack! Romance has departed from Bangkok, and the geographical novelist is driven from one more stronghold of the imagination.

SOMETHING OF A PUZZLE

Question Concerning Femininity Which is Not At All Easy to Answer.

From a feminine source comes a question which is more easily answered at first than at second thought—a question, that is, which is not quite as simple as it seems. It is this:

"Does a woman wearing a veil see, when she looks in a mirror, what another person sees who looks at her through her veil?"

On consideration one realizes that the veiled woman looks through her veil at an image which is itself veiled, and therefore she apparently looks at herself through two veils instead of the one which is all that dims to the vision of the street observer. Then there is the further fact that in a mirror what is right becomes left, and vice versa, so that what one sees there is not a picture of oneself but of somebody who is like oneself only as one of a pair of gloves is like the other.

That, however, has nothing to do with the question as to the veils, and that is quite complicated enough to stand alone.

If your child is pale and sickly, picks at the nose, starts in the sleep and grinds the teeth while sleeping, it is a sure sign of worms. A remedy for these parasites will be found in WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE. It not only clears out the worms, but it restores health and cheerfulness. Price 25c per bottle. Sold by Central Drug Store.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

The pool hall operated by Harry Phares in the Ward building, on the southeast corner of the square, was this week moved to the Syndicate building adjoining the Anderson & Moffatt grocery. It is understood that the building vacated by the pool hall is to be occupied by a new dry goods firm within the next few weeks.

Street Superintendent Tom Bodenhammer and his force discovered a street in the vicinity of the Christian church this week, the existence of which was known to very few citizens of that section of the city because of the fact that it had been allowed to grow up in weeds and maquis shrubs. After two days work the street was converted into a first-class thoroughfare and is now a source of considerable pride to residents of that part of town. Other streets in the vicinity are being graded and rolled also.

The city board of equalization yesterday began the work of going over the list of property renditions for 1915 taxes. The work will likely require four or five days. The board is composed of Messrs. Walter Jordan, Harvey Walker, and Henry Miller.

Argument of the Brute.

Not long ago a gentleman was inveighing against the fair sex as the authors of nearly all the mischief in the world. He could not understand, he said, the purpose of woman's creation, unless intended as a torment to mankind. A lady present good-humoredly attempted a justification of her sex, and triumphantly demanded how it was, if woman was really so heartless, that she is always to be found watching at the sick man's bedside.

"Madam," replied the male disputant, "your remark is a confirmation of my argument. She is there for the pleasure of seeing man suffer."

Ancient Carriers of Messages.

It was the custom of the couriers of the middle ages to carry silver beads in their mouths to lessen thirst. In certain districts of India which are not traversed by railways the ancient couriers still survive and carry mails from village to village. In the jungle districts they carry bells about their necks to frighten away tigers. The American Indians had their swift runners, who carried messages in times of war between allied tribes or from the warriors in hostile territory to their native villages, and extraordinary tales are told of their swiftness and endurance.

The running messenger in Europe was succeeded by the mounted messenger, and as civilization progressed systems of couriers were established, which slowly evolved into the modern system of posts.

New Discoveries in Pompeii.

Most interesting ruins of Pompeii have been unearthed during the excavations which are being carried out by the Italian government. A magnificent home has been discovered, and all the frescoes and vaulting are in a perfect state. A staircase was found intact leading from the lower to the upper floor of the house. The surroundings of the house have also been explored, and several smaller houses have been brought to light finely adorned with pictures of exquisite coloring. A few of the houses have mosaic floors with pictures of scenes taken chiefly from the Trojan war. In addition to these, the bodies of several persons who must have been surprised in their houses by the disaster which destroyed the city have been found, and in several cases their garments are in a very good state of preservation.

Fleet Couriers.

The best runners in the middle ages were found among the couriers maintained by monarchs and cities. The runners of Tartary, England, Scotland, Italy and the Basque country all acquired reputations, and the stories of the times are replete with tales of their difficult exploits. The Turkish sultans, often ran from Constantinople to Adrianople and back a distance of 220 miles, in two days and nights.

TWO PEGGIES

By CONSTANCE MORTON.

Charlie Raycroft came down the steps of the clubhouse and unrolled his umbrella. A light shower was slanting down on the hurrying crowds who had been caught by the capricious April weather.

"By jove, there's Peggy!" he exclaimed, as a blue umbrella bobbed past him. "I'd know that umbrella anywhere by the white spot on it where I dropped the acid that day. Well, little sister, I'll catch up with you and we'll have lunch together!"

But "little sister" managed to keep half a block ahead of her big brother. "Peggy Raycroft, if ever I catch up with you, I'll bring you down to a sane walk," he panted as he hastened in her wake. "I'll have to call a taxi if I don't gain on her."

At last, in the shadow of a tall building, the blue umbrella stopped suddenly. Charlie leaped forward and clutched one of the points thereof.

"Peggy—Peggy!" he gasped.

"How dare you?" rasped a shrill voice, and the blue umbrella was lifted to show the grim-jawed countenance of a most unprepossessing female of uncertain years.

"I beg your pardon!" cried Charlie, in confusion.

But the lady was obdurate. With a crook of her finger she had summoned a blue-coated officer and requested that Charlie be arrested.

"He has followed me for blocks," she asserted, angrily. "He is trying to flirt with me."

The officers looked from Raycroft's fresh, good-looking countenance to the haggard one of the offended lady. He cast a sympathetic look at Charlie. Charlie tried to explain.

"I thought it was my sister's umbrella," he said with what composure he could muster in the face of the embarrassing situation. "And I followed it—the lady can testify that I addressed her as 'Peggy.' That is my sister's name."

"It happens to be my own name," said the lady, frostily. "Officer, do your duty!"

"You want to enter a complaint against him?"

"Yes! Such as he should be driven from the streets. A respectable woman is not safe from their odious attentions."

At that moment another was added to the little group. The newcomer was an exceedingly pretty girl.

"I beg your pardon," she said to no one in particular, "but I happened to witness the incident—and I'm quite sure that the man meant no harm. He appeared so surprised when he found that the lady under the umbrella was a stranger and—"

"How impertinent!" interrupted the scandalized Peggy.

"I don't mean to be," went on the girl quickly; "but you see, I, too, thought I recognized the umbrella as that belonging to my friend, Peggy Raycroft, and I was about to call out to her when—when this happened!"

"Peggy Raycroft?" repeated Peggy of the umbrella. "This umbrella was given to me by Margaret Raycroft—I used to be her governess—and—"

"Then you have heard of me!" interrupted Charlie in his turn, as he gave her his card. "I remember Peggy had several governesses while I was abroad; perhaps you are Miss Freeman—she was devoted to her."

"I am Margaret Freeman," admitted the lady, with a melting smile at the brother of her old pupil. "Officer, I believe we can get along without your services today!"

"If you will forgive me, Miss Freeman, you can best show it by having lunch with me," cried Charlie, gayly.

Charlie replaced his hat and, opening his umbrella, he accompanied Miss Freeman to a nearby fashionable hotel, where that victim of genteel poverty had a long-to-be-remembered hour of delight.

Honesty in War.

The French marshal Turenne was not only a great general, but a man of singular honesty of character as well. Many incidents which are related of him show his modesty, generosity and military ability. A little story of one of his German campaigns illustrates his rare scrupulousness, never in time of war.

The authorities of Frankfurt believed, from the movements of his army, that he intended passing through their territory. They sent a deputation to him which offered him a large sum of money if he would alter the direction of his march, and leave Frankfurt unmolested.

They were surprised in more ways than one by his answer. "Gentlemen," said he, "my conscience will not permit me to accept your money, or I have never intended to lead my army through your town."

Modern War Correspondent.

"Why do you send Sowersby as a war correspondent? He can't even stand the sight of blood."

"What's that got to do with his ability as a writer? The only time a war correspondent sees blood nowadays is when he cuts himself while shaving."
