Planters for Corn, Cotton, Milo Maize and Kaffir Corn

A planter is the least used machine on the farm, yet on which your bank account most closely depends. If too much seed is planted it is a waste of seed and a poor growth until the plants can be thinned, which if one has a large crop is pretty late sometimes. If too little seed is planted a poor stands results, and THAT MEANS A POOR HAR-VEST.

It is just as easy to get a good planter when buying one, and they cost no more. Get a planter that puts the seeds right where you want them and just the number you want put.

The Standard and New Casaday people have been making planters a long time now and they have found by experience the kinds of planters and attachments best adapted to the Texas Trade. Let us show you these planters.
