GOOD ROADS DELEGATES.

Thirty-Three Cars of Mason People Visit Fredericksburg.

Wednesday morning one of the largest crowds of enthusiastic Good Roads Boosters visited Fredericksburg where they received a most royal welcome. The Mason delegation was met by the band and everyone making the trip report the city of Fredericksburg had left nothing undone which could have made Mason's visit more pleasant.

The object of the trip was to meet good roads delegates from San Antonio, Kendall county and Gillespie county and discuss with them the building of good roads from San Antonio to Mason and join Menard and San Angelo. Much interest was manifested even though the San Antonio delegates were unable to reach Fredericksburg, on account of the bad road conditions existing on their route, until the Mason people had returned home.

Time and space prevents us giving the details of the entertainment which the Mason people received on this trip in the present issue, but our next issue will contain an account of the trip as enjoyed by one of Mason's most enthusiastic delegates.—Mason News.

MRS. P. A. RAINBOLT DEAD.

Old Resident Died Suddenly Saturday at Stacy.

Mrs. P. A. Rainbolt, Sr., died Saturday at 6:00 o'clock at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. K. B. Robbins, near Stacy, death being due to senile debility. She was only ill two or three days.

For the past several years Mrs. Rainbolt, together with her husband, has been making her home with her son, P. A. Rainbolt, of the Lohn community. Last week she went to Stacy for a visit with Mrs. Robbins and shortly after arrival became ill, growing steadily worse until the end came Saturday morning. She was 84 years of age, and had resided in this section of the State for many years, the family being numbered among the earliest settlers of Central West Texas.

Funeral services were held at Stacy Saturday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. M. Burrow, followed by interment in the cemetery at that place.

Surviving Mrs. Rainbolt are her husband, three sons and two daughters, as follows: John Rainbolt of this city, P. A. Rainbolt of Lohn, George Rainbolt of San Saba; Mrs. Becky Rogers of Tularosa, N. M., and Mrs. George Sapulver of Deming, N. M.

More Autos Coming.

H. E. Jones, manager of the Rochelle-Brady Motor Car Co., returned Saturday morning from Dallas, having gone up to drive out a Chalmers touring car which he had sold to C. W. Carr of Rochelle. Mr. Jones states that he encountered almost insurmountable road conditions, following the heavy rains of Wednesday and Thursday, covering 125 miles of the distance in heavy mud. The performance of the Chalmers under these conditions served to make Mr. Jones an even more ardent booster of this car than before, it having plowed right through the mud without the slightest trouble.

Mr. Jones states that a car load shipment of these cars left Kansas City Saturday afternoon and is expected to arrive here tomorrow, or by Saturday at the outside. His company also has a carload of Dorts which left Kansas City Sunday afternoon and is due here this week. Four of the six cars of the Dort shipment have been sold and deliveries will be made just as soon as they are received.

J. J. Coggin Dead.

J. J. Coggin, an old and highly respected citizen of McCulloch county, died at his home in the Voca community Friday night, following a short illness of pneumonia, with other complications. He had been seriously ill the past few days, and although he was of unusually robust physique for a man of his age, the complications of diseases weakened him to such an extent that he was unable to withstand the attack of pneumonia.

He was about 65 years of age at the time of death. He is survived by his wife and several children, all of whom are grown.

Funeral services and interment took place at Voca Saturday afternoon.

GREAT REVIVAL

Much Interest Being Manifested in Christian Meeting.

The revival meeting in progress at the Christian tabernacle the past week is attracting unusually large crowds at each service and a great amount of interest is being manifested.

The revival is being conducted by Rev. Arthur W. Jones of Dallas, assisted by Omar S. Jones of Marshall who is in charge of the song service. Rev. Jones is one of the best-known and most successful evangelists of the Christian denomination in the State, and his discourses are plain, logical and forceful, and he never fails to hold the entire attention of his audiences. Omar S. Jones is a gospel singer of State-wide reputation, and the music is one of the most enjoyable features of the services. His solo work is of the highest order and the songs he sings are especially well rendered.

Sunday night brought the largest crowd which has assembled in Brady for some time, the capacity of the tabernacle not being sufficient to accommodate the audience, and many were forced to stand throughout the service. Three additions to the church have been received during the week.

The revival will continue through next week and possibly longer if sufficient interest is manifested. Two services are held daily—at 10:00 a. m. and 8:00 p. m., and a cordial invitation is extended the public to attend. A special invitation is extended to the singers to assist in the song service.

Enjoying Vacation.

J. M. Reynolds, pastor of the Baptist church, accompanied by Mrs. Reynolds and little son, Manley, left yesterday via the Santa Fe for Palacios, where they will spend three weeks at this popular coast resort for the benefit of Mr. Reynolds' health.

Rev. Reynolds suffered an attack of lagrippe several weeks ago, and for several days was confined to his room. Following the attack, he has been unable to recuperate his strength and has been almost unable to get about the past month or more, and his physicians advised a complete rest at some gulf coast resort for a few weeks.

At a conference of the members of the congregation Sunday it was unanimously voted to grant Bro. Reynolds a three week's leave of absence and as an expression of appreciation of his services to the church and of the love and esteem in which he is held by the membership a fund was raised to pay all expenses of Bro. Reynolds and wife while on their vacation trip.

The church membership of the Baptist congregation is hoping that Bro. Reynolds will return to Brady fully recovered in health and strength, and in this hope the entire citizenship of town and county joins with them.

They expect to return home about June 8th.

COMMUNITY CO-OPERATION

In company with Messrs. Sam McCollum, W. W. Jordan and D. W. Rowlett, a representative of The Standard had the pleasure of attending a meeting of the Home and School League at the Montgomery school building at Voca last Friday night.

Now, there is nothing so very unusual about Voca as a general proposition. A few years ago she had a reputation that was not of the most enviable kind perhaps. This reputation may have been earned—and again the community may have been slandered. Be that as it may, it is hard for The Standard man to believe that it was true, after attending the meeting of the Home and School League Friday night and meeting the good people of that community.

In the first place Voca has a school building that would be a credit to a town of even the size of Brady. It is of brick and concrete construction, two stories in height, the lower floor being cut up into class rooms, while the upstairs has been turned into a large auditorium, with a stage and comfortable seats, and is a model of beauty and convenience throughout. Each class room is equipped with all necessary maps, charts, globes, etc., and everything is at hand which assists the teacher in more forcibly impressing the lessons on the minds of the students. But we did not start out to talk of the school especially, although it is a subject worthy of all the praise which we could give it, but what we really wanted to call attention to was the Home and School League.

This League was organized some months ago and has as its purpose the social, moral and financial uplift of the entire citizenship of the community. Meetings are held fortnightly, at which time a regular program is rendered by the young people. The older members, too, take part in the program when called upon, and lend their presence and help at each session. Numbers on the program consist of vocal and instrumental solos, readings, etc., by the younger members and the meeting is brought to a close by an extemporaneous address on some subject of community interest by one of the progressive farmers of the neighborhood.

In this manner the good people of Voca are doing a great service for their community, in that they are creating a better spirit of co-operation among their citizens, and at the same time are giving their children training which will be of incalculable value to them in after life. The Home and School League has been a strong factor in promoting a closer spirit of fraternity among the people, and if not allowed to die will be an even greater factor in cementing together a community which has already come to be known as one of the most progressive in all respects of any in the entire county.

Other communities might follow their example with both pleasure and profit.

BRADY'S LAKE.

Brady can boast something that the average town does not have. But we hardly believe the average citizen wants to boast of this distinction.

On the north side of the public square in front of the King buildings is a lake of considerable size. While not so very long or so very wide, it is very deep, and a large quantity of water is impounded therein with each succeeding rain. Of course this lake somewhat impedes traffic across that side of the square, but to those who complain of this fact it might be pointed out that the square has three other sides that can be used for traffic and allow the north side to be turned into a lake. This would furnish excellent opportunities for the busy merchant who hasn't the time to go to the river to do his fishing as he could fish in the lake and wait on his customers at the same time. Later in the summer motor boats could be placed on the lake for the enjoyment of the young people. A band stand might be constructed on the west bank of the lake and those who did not care for boating could enjoy the band concert—but we had forgotten that we had no band. Anyway, the bandstand could be used by the youngsters as a sort of lover's retreat.

The only objection we see to the building of the bandstand and the stocking of the lake is that there is a slight leak in the west bank, allowing a slow seepage to almost empty the lake during unusually long dry spells. This trouble, however, could be overcome with only a slight expenditure of money and time by increasing the height of the dam.

Of course, this lake is the property of the city—being on a city street—and these matters of stocking it with fish and stopping the leak in the bank is in the hands of the city council. We don't know whether the suggestions made will meet with their approval or not—but the whole thing is herewith referred to them, anyway.

McCulloch county reminds one now of a big rose garden. This is the land of flowers and sunshine. Come to McCulloch.

Mason is still looking Bradyward. Looking however, is all she can do. She can't get here through the mud. Let's build the Brady-Mason road.

Each succeeding rain brings to mind the subject of good roads. In certain sections of McCulloch county they bring to mind the subject of bad roads.

Free advice to road overseers: Hunt up those road drags which belong to your district and put them into use after these rains. If used they will put your roads in good condition with mighty little work.

TWO HABITS THAT ARE BAD

May at First Appear Insignificant, But Really Are Dangerous to the Health.

The practice of licking stamps and gummed envelope flaps, as well as that of sucking the end of the lead pencil, is very unsanitary indeed. As everyone should know, the glue used on stamps and envelope flaps is made of refuse products, consisting of the bones and hoofs of animals which may or may not have been diseased. The stamps and envelopes themselves are made of all sorts of rags, which, in the course of their transformation into paper, are handled by all sorts and conditions of people. We never know whether it is a clean or dirty pair of hands that has handled a stamp or envelope just before we purchase it.

There have even been cases of poisoning from the stamp-licking practice. Fortunately, they are rare, but it suffices to say that the ordinary sterilizing process in their making does not necessarily kill a form of germs that are poisonous. The safest plan is to moisten the gummed surfaces on a small wet sponge and take no risks.

Children should be carefully warned about the indiscriminate sucking and chewing of pencils. This seems to be a habit of childhood that is hard to overcome. The lead in a pencil is poisonous, and so is the point, and the wood furnishes a convenient lodging place for all sorts of germs.

PIES FOR THE ROYAL TABLE

English Cities Furnish Delicacies to Embellish the Banqueting Boards of Their Rulers.

Each year the city of Gloucester, England, presents the king with a pie. For many centuries, until the year 1834, Gloucester followed the custom of expressing its loyalty to the sovereign by sending him a lamprey pie. In that year the custom was, for some reason, suspended, but in 1893 it was revived, and has since been continued.

In 1897, the year of Queen Victoria's jubilee, it was felt that some special effort should be made to produce a pie that would be a pie indeed. The queen's pie was dispatched to her palace at Balmoral upon a gold dish, and was of a more than usually elaborate character. It weighed 20 pounds and was adorned with truffles, fine prawns on gold skewers, and aspic jelly. On the top was a representation of the royal crown and cushion, with a scepter to which were attached streamers of royal blue, and at the base were four golden lions.

Ancient custom requires that the town of Yarmouth annually furnish to the sheriff of Norwich a hundred nerings baked in 24 pies. The sheriff conveys them to the lord of the manor of East Clareton, who, in turn, sends them to the king.

Set a Mark in Life.

Work for something not for nothing. It is not wise to live just for the fleeting moment or just for today. Without some aim, one's time and work go for naught. The years go by and he has nothing to show for them. If not advancing, we are falling back. If not keeping alive, growing to something better and higher, we are becoming weaker and of less worth. Even though we never reach the goal, we have made some advance in striving for it. A good aim, a real purpose in life, makes worth of character. All have not the same tastes. There is a wide field from which to choose what one will work for. And this is well. The one universal aim is the same, to live truer, better lives from day to day. A life without a purpose is like a ship without a rudder. Want of motive makes life dreary and monotonous. Nothing satisfies. "Better little talent and much purpose than much talent and little purpose." Aim for something worth while and keep your mark steadily in view. Life will mean much more to you. You will be more useful to the world, you will find more satisfaction in living.—Milwaukee Journal.

Had Had Enough of Beers.

Bill Pinkerton of the Chicago detective force was accosted on State street by an ex from Joliet, to whom he had shown some favors in former years. The ex, being temporarily flush with money, invited Bill to have lunch with him at one of the fashionable restaurants.

The ex offered the bill of fare to Bill, and the waiter, having taken his order, handed the French menu card to the ex. He looked at it a moment, puzzled at the strange hieroglyphics, and then turned to the waiter:

"Where are the pork and beans on this card?"

The waiter indicated the item.

"Well, bring me everything above and below that line."—Joliet Prison Post.

Primitive Weapons.

The bolo is a kind of large single-edged knife, of considerable length, resembling a machete. It is now used as an agricultural instrument or a weapon of war, as occasion demands, by some of the natives of the Philippine islands. The bolos is a missile weapon, consisting of two or more balls of stone or metal fastened to the ends of connected cords, and hurled so as to hopple or entangle cattle and large game. It is used by the Gauchos and Indians of South America. A similar weapon is used by some of the African tribes, and a small form by the Eskimos for catching birds.

Running and Abutting.

The boys hang the following joke on Leo Callan, our present assessor, which is really too good to be true. It seems that not long ago a man from up the McKavett way came in to protest against his real estate assessment and one of the things of which he particularly complained was assessing a goat at twenty-five dollars. He claimed that a goat was not real property in the legal sense of the word and should not be assessed.

Leo said that he could show him and they went in and consulted the rules and regulations. Finally Leo asked him, "Does your goat run loose on the road?"

"Well, sometimes," said the other wondering what the penalty was.

"Does he butt?"

"Yes," replied the owner, "he butts."

"Well," said Leo, "this rule says, 'tax all property running and abutting on the highway.' I guess that assessment will have to stand."—Menard Messenger.

SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months. I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles. Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me. At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing. I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health. If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years. At all druggists.

VALUABLE PRIZES.

Goodrich Announces $10,000 in Awards to 1916 Champions

Akron, O., May 20. (Special) Although Goodrich Silvertown Twin Cable Cord Tires are already the accepted tire of the racing driver, and are bought and paid for in every case, a generous recognition of the selection by outright purchase by drivers of racing cars of the Silvertown Twin Cable Cord Tires, for use in contests under no influence of money consideration for so doing, has just been announced by The B. F. Goodrich Company.

The American Automobile Association, the official association of car owners of this country, has prepared rules to govern the determination of the actual champion for the season of nineteen sixteen and will be the sole arbitrator regarding such award. The Silvertown Cord Tire is universally recognized as the type of construction insuring best results in speed contests and is almost universally used by racing drivers. There is no reason why the Goodrich Company should extend any award for the purpose of inducing the use of the Silvertown Twin Cable Cord Tire, and it does not, but gives outright without a string tied to it of any kind whatsoever, ten thousand dollars divided between the authoritatively determined champion, the second and third in order quite irrespective of the make or kind of tire that may be used by said winners.

BREAKING THE NEWS

By WAYNE GRAY.

"Now, Maxie, you know—"
"Don't call me Maxie." Max shook his big blond head wickedly at the offending one. "If ever a kid needed it taken out of him, you do, and for a nickel I'd do it myself."

"You'll make a fine big brother, I don't think so—maybe," Freddie flung back, but in a rebuking tone, even a grievous and disappointed tone. "Why don't you talk that way when Edie's around to listen and get acquainted with you?"

"It's a mighty good thing for Edith and me there's only one like you in the family. I don't mind kids and I know all about boys, but there's a limit. What time did they go?"

"About seven. I told him you was coming with your car at seven-thirty to take her out. You see, it was this way, Max: Edie'd been crying ever since she came home and the girls and mother fussed over her and told her it was all for the best and how nice you were and how they all liked you—you know the line they hand out. And Edie cried all the more. Then pretty soon mother asks her did you two have a fight and she says no, she don't want to hear your name—"
Max's face reddened. He lit a cigarette with unsteady fingers.

"Go ahead. What else," he said.
"Then the bell rings and it's the boss' son down where she's been working this last week and that's all. They went out to a show."

Freddie stopped short. Even at eleven one may understand things, and the look on Max Dittmar's face cut short any further confidences.

"I wouldn't care, Max," he added confidentially. "Girls is just girls, you know, and she's engaged to you."

"What's that got to do with it when she'll go out with another fellow." He turned quickly at the opening of the outer door, but it was only Kitty, Edith's younger sister.

"Now what's happened?" she laughed. "Edie eloped?"

"He's having the everlasting collywobbles because she went out with Jack Lewis."

"Mother wants you to go to the store, Freddie." Kit gave him a long, steady stare of infinite disapproval. As the door shut, she glanced at Max.
"Max, will you just listen to me a minute before mother comes in and the rest? Edie and I room together and we've been chums ever since we were toddlers, I guess. She's cried herself to sleep for three nights now. You don't mind if I tell you just the way it seems to me, do you? You're always seemed pretty big to us, Max, even before you asked Edie to marry you. Father'd give me an awful scolding if he knew I dared to open my mouth to you, but it's for Edie's sake. Do you mind?"

"I suppose she's in love with this kid or thinks she is," Max blurted out. "Go ahead. Don't mind me."

"She don't think she is. She knows it. So does he. But you see, you've got father and mother on your side, and Edie's sensible. Edie told me last night she didn't dare break the engagement. But she said she knew the minute Jack came into the office and spoke to her he was the right one."

Max stood listening, watching her face all animated and tender as she pleaded Edith's cause.

"Anyway, I don't think it's so wrong to break an engagement," Kit said earnestly. "Maybe by and by you'd find somebody you liked better, too—"

"Maybe I would," assented Max.
"Only we'll miss you awfully in the family." Kit's hazel eyes were full of regret. "Maybe I shouldn't have told you, but I want to get some sleep tonight. Mother'll be needing me to help with dinner. Good-by."

She held out her hand laughingly. Max stood up and laid his hands on her shoulders, looking down into her eyes searchingly.

"Say, listen, Kit. Would you throw me down like that for Jack Lewis? Do you think that's fair?"

Kit laughed, and drew back. "I don't know but what it is. I know I'd have thrown down Jack for you if it had been the other way."

Freddie opened the hall door from the dining-room, took one amazed look at the two figures in the parlor and moved stealthily back into the shadows.

"Gee," he said to himself thoughtfully, "he must like our family."

Serial Bonds.
The "serial bond method" of discharging the principal of a debt by partial payments, may be made clear by reference to Benjamin Franklin's famous recognition of it in his will, whereby he left to the cities of Boston and Philadelphia $5,000 each, contemplating the investment thereof for two centuries, the income in part to be loaned to young married artificers, who were to repay, "with yearly interest, one-tenth part of the principal." The sinking fund method of long-term bonds ordinarily provides only for the principal—not for the interest; a comparison between the sinking fund and serial bond methods as applied to a 50-year loan of $1,000,000 at 4 1/2 per cent, refunded or exchanged at the same rate, shows a difference in favor of the serial method of $425,000 for each million dollars, the interest, for which the sinking fund method does not provide, is the larger of the two items.
