SUCCESS CROWNS REUNION

Swelling Crowds Betoken Response to Brady's Invitation and Welcome--Today's Crowd Promises to be Record Breaker.

The first two days of the big U. C. V. reunion indicate a success beyond the most sanguine anticipations. Not only is the attendance fully up to expectations, but everything has progressed smoothly and everyone is enjoying the occasion to the fullest extent.

The first day's attendance has been conservatively estimated at 5,000 people, and yesterday's attendance exceeded this figure by a thousand or more. Today, the grand finale, is expected to bring something like 10,000 people, and indications early this morning point to a full realization of this expectation.

The opening of the reunion was marked by the bugle call assembling the veterans at the temporary headquarters on the west side of the square. Headed by the crack Ballinger band of sixteen pieces, the veterans paraded to the reunion grounds in Dutton grove on the north side of Brady creek. In the line of procession were the Daughters of Confederacy and merchants and citizens in decorated automobiles and floats. C. A. Trigg of the Jones Drug Co. is deserving of special mention for the especially attractive float with which his store was represented.

In an inspiring address Sam McCollum welcomed the veterans and visitors to Brady, and General H. R. McInnis, Brevet Brigadier General Commanding, of Llano, responded. Following dinner a splendid concert was given by the band, after which Gen. McInnis called the veterans to order and introduced Miss Nettie Bellamy, sponsor for the brigade, who extended greetings to the veterans in a neat speech. The feature number of the afternoon program was the annual address which was delivered by Judge T. C. Wilkerson of Brownwood. In his address Judge Wilkerson reviewed the history of the period just preceding the opening of the war between the states and followed with the full history of the four years' bloody strife, closing with a beautiful eulogy of the Southern soldier who struggled against such great odds, more for the defense of principles than with the hope of victory in the end. In closing his address Judge Wilkerson paid a glowing tribute to the Southern women of the war period. Judge Joe A. Adkins was on the program for an address, but was unable to be present, and the afternoon's program was brought to a close with a duet by Mrs. T. P. Doole of Eagle Lake and Miss Nettie Bellamy.

Probably the most interesting of the program was the entertainment at night provided by the Boy Scouts and the Camp Fire Girls. The former showed the excellent results of their few months' drill in pyramid building, wall scaling, first aid to injured and drills of various kinds, while the latter entertained with songs and an especially beautiful piece of staging in the song "Mammy Moon." Both the Boy Scouts and the Camp Fire Girls won the hearts of all, and their excellent work has aroused greater interest than ever in these two worthy movements.

The second day greetings from Ben McCulloch Camp were extended by Mrs. T. P. Marsden, Matron, following which memorial services were held by the Chaplain, and the roll of dead was responded to with fitting tributes to the dead by their comrades. A number of interesting addresses were had in the afternoon, and at night the U. D. C. had charge of the program. Readings by Mrs. Thos. Donnell and Miss St. Lawrence Martin were heartily enjoyed as was also the song by the quartette. The song, "Dear Delightful Women," sung by Bailey Jones, with the chorus of ladies costumed to represent the various walks of life, made a special hit and was thoroughly appreciated by all. Thornton Melton was accompanist for the entire program, and his playing added materially to the enjoyment. The Ballinger band also enlivened the scene by interspersing the program with selections.

Auto Ride for Veterans.

A special feature and a welcome surprise to the veterans was the auto ride Wednesday evening at 6:00 o'clock over the city arranged and carried out under the auspices of the Rochelle-Brady Motor Car Co., through its manager, H. E. Jones. The cars provided were all Chalmers or Dorts, of which this company is representative in this and adjoining counties, and there were fourteen automobiles in the line of parade. The veterans were carried about the principal sections of the residence district and the fresh breezes and the comfort of the ride made them thoroughly appreciate the thoughtfulness of the company.

Goat Roping.

Another feature that appealed to a large number of the citizens and visitors was the goat roping staged in the Dutton pasture on the south side of the creek. Some fourteen cowboy citizens contested for the prizes, first money being won by Jerry Wright, who roped and tied his goat in 18 1/2 seconds. Second money was received by Cleve Jones, whose time was 26 seconds. Among those contesting were Chas. White, Johnny White, Jerry Wright, Boy Crothers, Jamie Brook, Walter Weh-meyer, Claude Ledbetter, Bob McVey, Reckless Red, Cleve Jones. Another goat roping will be had today.

Amusements.

In the amusement line there is almost everything to entertain the visitor or to extract the nimble nickel. The minstrels, trapeze performers, contortionists and trained dogs of the Morgan Bros. shows have been pleasing large crowds, and in addition there are various other shows, including Wild West, moving picture and snake shows besides innumerable games of chance and skill. Besides the dancing at the platform, the dances given by the Brady boys in the Syndicate building are proving one of the features of the week's entertainment.

The Ball Games.

The ball games between the Fredericksburg Giants and Brady have been all that was promised or expected. The games have been clean, classy, well-played exhibitions, and the swelling attendance shows the interest with which they are being viewed. Fredericksburg won

Brady are completed. While the plans originally called for an expenditure of $1000 upon this feature alone, the committee has sought to make doubly sure of success upon this occasion, and have appropriated several hundred dollars additional in order that there be no possible chance of anyone going away hungry or disgruntled. When the reunion closes the committee desires that everyone leave singing the praises of Brady and her hospitality, and if anyone does otherwise it will be through no fault of the committee.

San Saba at the Reunion.

True to their promise, San Saba sent a big delegation to the reunion, between 30 and 40 auto loads arriving at about 10:30 o'clock this morning and with horns blowing and pennants flying in the breeze, paraded about the square and back to the reunion grounds.

Jewelers and Opticians

the first of the series by a score of 3 to 2 and yesterday Brady returned tables and in an evening exhibition won also by a score of 3 to 2. Both were hotly contested, every minute of the game being hard fought. Fredericksburg has a preponderance of weight, which makes the Brady team look like pigmies, and they understand the game from A to Z. They are possessed of a couple of pitchers that are fairly wonders, and a backstop who is a jewel. On their part, the Brady boys play a steady, scientific game, and with each inning appear to improve in form and confidence. As a result, yesterday's game was taken away from Fredericksburg when they had apparently snatched the victory in the early stages of the game. With each team having won a game, today's game is sure to be a thriller. Every man on each side is keyed up to playing his very best, and with Spiller in the box, the locals feel confident of trailing the Fredericksburg pennant in the dust.

The Barbecue.

Today brings the reunion to a climax. Preparations for the biggest barbecue ever had in Ground Arrangement. The arrangement of the reunion ground has come in for especial commendation. The speakers' platform is located in a shady grove convenient to the entrance. West of it, and fringing the grounds are the headquarters of the Boy Scouts, together with the tents of the Scouts, the matron and sponsor and the U. C. V. headquarters. The visitors and veterans are camped along the shady banks on the south side of Brady creek, while lining the north bank are the concessions, including refreshments and amusement stands. The larger shows occupy sites in the middle and on the north side of the grounds, while the dance platform is located at the east end, thus encompassing a large space of ground where the visitors may gather and commingle.

The Boy Scouts are lending valuable aid in directing the parking of cars to avoid unnecessary congestion.

Upon their part the citizens and business men of Brady have lent every encouragement to the success of the reunion, not only providing the funds, but agreeing to close their places of bus-suspended, today promises to bring together the entire citizenship, as well as visitors, to pay homage to the veterans.

ONION GAP SARINGS.

Elder Allen Closes Meeting With Six Confessions.

Rochelle, Texas, Aug. 1. Editor Brady Standard: Still dry and hot and every-one hauling water. I believe eight out of ten are out of stock water.

The series of meetings at the Gap conducted by Rev. Allen came to a close Sunday night. There were six new additions to the church, and two others taken back who had become cold. Bro. Allen did some good, old-time preaching that even a little child might understand. Those joining by baptism were Frankie, Floyd and Luther Ince, Richard Keel and sister and Vivian Reynolds. We hope these new babes in Christ will grow in grace and keep pace with God.

Among those attending baptizing Sunday from Brady were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bell and daughters, Misses Mary and Bernice, Uncle Joe and Aunt Jane Moore, Mrs. Bigham and Mrs. Nannie Cottrell, Mrs. Albert Baze, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McCartney and family.

Several of the Onion Gap people have been attending the series of meetings at Corn Creek this week. This meeting is being conducted by Bro. Green of Mason.

There have been a few of the Gap folks attending the series of meetings at Rochelle conducted by Bro. Billie Green of Abilene. He and the Mason brother will conduct a meeting at Placid next week.

Lewis Bratton and Mrs. J. K. Baze of Rochelle were at the baptizing Sunday.

Elder Turner and family leave this evening for the old Confederate reunion to camp until it is over. There would be several more such campers if it were not for the scarcity of water.

Mr. and Mrs. Crider of Five visited Mrs. Clint Bell Sunday. Messrs. Stewart and Hall visited the Ince home Monday.

The Sellman silo is being filled this week.

FAIRY.

Just the Thing for Diarrhoea.
"About two years ago I had a severe attack of diarrhoea which lasted over a week," writes W. C. Jones, Buford, N. D. "I became so weak that I could not stand upright. A druggist recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The first dose relieved me and within two days I was as well as ever." Many druggists recommend this remedy because they know that it is reliable. Obtainable everywhere.

Liver Trouble.

"I am bothered with liver trouble about twice a year," writes Joe Dingman, Webster City, Iowa. "I have pains in my side and back and an awful soreness in my stomach. I heard of Chamberlain's Tablets and tried them. By the time I had used half a bottle of them I was feeling fine and had no signs of pain." Obtainable everywhere.

COW CREEK NEWS.

Personal Happenings of the Creek Community.

Lohn, Texas, July 31. Editor Brady Standard: Mrs. E. W. Woods and children went to Lohn Thursday afternoon.

Miss Willie Mae Young was quite sick a few days this week. H. J. Garner and family returned home Saturday from Haskell county, where they visited relatives several weeks.

T. A. and Roy Wyres, S. T. Killingsworth and Frank Noack were Brady visitors Friday.

Mr. Garms, president of the Farmers union of this district, spent Thursday night with B. A. Cornils.

W. S. Young went to Lohn Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Sides are visiting relatives in Mason this week.

Misses Jeanette Shield of Millersview and Flossie Deen of Doole are the guests of Miss Lora Killingsworth this week.

Mrs. Roy Wyres visited her sister, Mrs. J. F. Moore, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Young called at the Killingsworth home Sunday afternoon.

The singing school is progressing nicely.

Mr. Neve and daughter, Miss Bertha, attended church at Lohn Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Mental Weldon visited Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cain a few days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Harrison spent Sunday at the J. F. Moore home.

H. J. Garner visited Percy Dutton Sunday.

LOST CREEK ECHOES.

Wheat Acreage to Be Large. Brady Has Flour Mill.

Voca, Texas, Aug. 1. Editor Brady Standard:

Although we have had about an inch rain the past week or two, we are still needing some more to make good grass.

The feed crops are already made, and are fairly good.

The cotton crops at present are good and don't seem to be needing any rain, although the weevil is heard from from every quarter, but they, as yet, have not done any considerable damage.

Mrs. Otto Armor of Eden is visiting relatives and old friends here for a few days. Roy Armor and wife of Callahan county accompanied her from Eden, coming in Mrs. Otto's car.

Messrs. W. F. Miller, H. S. Miller, Joe Lane and John Edmundson went to Fredericksburg last week, taking two four-horse wagon loads of wheat which they had made in to flour.

I am of the opinion that a considerable acreage of wheat will be planted this fall, judging from the talk that I have heard. A flour mill at Brady would encourage the acreage.

Master Henry Taff of Goldthwaite is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Henderson.

The peach crop in this section is good. Those owning large orchards are doing a good business with little expense in disposing of the crop.

DEEP CREEK MUSINGS.

Light Showers Give No Season For Planting Cane.

Mercury, Texas, Aug. 1. Editor Brady Standard:

The showers of late have been very light in these parts. No season for cane planting as yet.

The writer was told that Rev. Swinney, the Christian preacher, will begin a protracted meeting the 6th of August at the old Deep Creek arbor. Prof. Day of Placid will conduct the song service.

A large crowd from different communities and Prof. Mart Maxwell of Bowser all met at J. F. Powell's Sunday evening and had a fine singing. This is twice the young leader has been in our community of late. Some say Prof. Maxwell is hunting a school; some of our girls say he needs a cook. The third time is a charm. Prof.

Little Miss Ruthie Hester is sick at this writing. We hope for her recovery at once.

Melton Sansom is sick, and has been for several days, although some better now. W. J. Powell made a very pleasant visit to the J. C. Stoner home Sunday at Holt and reports that everything in the way of entertaining and melons, fruit and welcome reception was all enjoyed.

Quite a crowd of the Creek folks attended the Baptist conference at the Mercury Baptist church Saturday night. We understand that they called Rev. Springer as pastor for the coming year.

A singing was enjoyed by all the attendants at John Sansom's Sunday night.

Harl Teague is very busy this week working his cotton out for the last time. Mrs. Jim Cawyer, Mrs. Shumate and children came out from Mercury Saturday to Mrs. Hester's, and they all went and enjoyed a very pleasant day on the Colorado.

Misses Omie and Bettie Jones, also Mr. Teague, spent a nice time with Miss Beulah Rouse and her brother Friday evening. H. T. Wingfield and family of near Winchell have been welcome visitors among their kinsmen and friends this week. They made W. J. Powell's family a nice visit on their way home.

PEAR VALLEY WHISPERS.

Baptists Close Successful Meeting Sunday Night.

Pear Valley, Texas, Aug. 1. Editor Brady Standard:

Mrs. Frankie Watts and two children of Nolan county are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Thacker.

Fred Hodges of Wilson, Comanche county is spending a few days here. He is a former Pear Valley boy and has many friends here who will always be glad to welcome him into their midst.

Mr. and Mrs. Rush and daughter, Miss Lottie, of Lohn attended church here Sunday.

Misses Dora and Bessie Smith returned last Wednesday from Round Rock. Their cousin, Miss Lucile Smith, accompanied them home.

Quite a crowd of the Valley people are planning to attend the reunion.

Miss Bannister of Santa Anna is a welcome visitor here this week.

The Baptist meeting closed Sunday night. There were several professions and nine additions to the church. Rev. Nichols of Wellview did the preaching. His family came with him, also Mr. and Mrs. Davis and Miss Nettie Collins of Menard. They are all earnest church workers and did much good.

Jesse Peel and family went to Rochelle Saturday afternoon for a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Curry.

Ivy Edwards of Mertzson is spending a few days here, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Monty Haywood.

ONION GAP SAYINGS.

Cotton Stalk Small, But Well Loaded.
 Rochelle, Texas, July 25.
 Editor Brady Standard:
 I was so disappointed because we didn't get a rain last week I failed to send in my little mite. We got several little grass and cotton showers last week, but stock water is very scarce. Cotton was never heavier loaded than at present. Though the stalk is small we have a chance for a fair crop. The Christian meeting conducted by Bro. Allen is progressing nicely. Nice crowds are out and everyone seems to be taking an interest. There has been a great many of the Gap people attending the Holiness meeting at Placid. The Crochet Circle met with Mrs. Curtis Reynolds Thursday, the 13th. Lemonade and cake was served. Each and everyone claimed it was worth the going. The Circle will meet with Mrs. Clyde Eubank Thursday, the 27th. All you Gap ladies are welcome to join this circle. Everything is free but the transportation. See!
 The silos are most all reuffit, and the Pumphrey silo is being filled this week. Nearly everyone has their oats thrashed and maize in the shock. Maize is fairly good. Mr. Turner and family and several others are off tanking. Kid Jeffers went to Carlsbad Saturday to take his step-mother, who had been visiting he and Mrs. Jeffers the past few days. Joel Northcott returned to his home in Comanche Tuesday after spending several days on Calf Creek and San Saba visiting relatives and fishing. Mr. Jones and family visited in Angelo the past week, making the trip in their Ford. W. R. Pence visited Mrs. Jeffers Sunday night. He and Miss Hattie left this week for a visit on the coast. Mrs. Pence is visiting in Brownwood. Mr. and Mrs. Gressett were guests at the Huddlestone home Sunday evening, the 16th. C. M. Bell and daughters and Clint Bell and wife attended the picnic at Fife. Mr. Parker, the lively Placid merchant, and family motored over to church at the Gap Sunday and spent the day. Jim Bell and family were in attendance at church at the Gap Sunday. Mrs. C. M. Bell visited in Corn Creek Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Fort Davis visited Miss Ruby Brown Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Jud Bratton were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Finigan Sunday. They also attended church. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Davis of Corn Creek were guests at the Gressett home Sunday eve. Well, as I've been real busy noticing for the reunion I haven't figured who came up with the best letters, so I'll leave the vote to some one who has.

 Messrs. Newel and Fred Hammons left this week for Plainview and Post City, after a two weeks' vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hammons. Mrs. D. Starks of Floydada has been visiting relatives at Stacy this week. Mr. and Mrs. Will Curry of Paint Rock were guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Griffin Sunday. C. W. Hammons, O. S. Betsill and Wm. Hoga attended the Odd Fellows and Rebekah association at Bangs this week. Miss Ruth Farmer left this week after a very pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. M. Hammons. Miss Ruth will visit at Brownwood several days before returning to her home at Comanche. Mrs. Archie Johnson is visiting relatives and friends at Post this week. Stacy has had a number of showers the past week, but a general rain would be appreciated. Cotton is looking fine. The cloudy weather and cool nights keep it growing. Lester Cox and W. A. Brown were in Coleman Saturday. Mr. Brown went on to Brownwood, where he will visit Mrs. Brown a few days. Mrs. Brown is in the sanitarium at that place. Mr. and Mrs. John Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Norwood, Miss Lucy Cox and G. Moore of Gouldbusk were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Cox Sunday. O. D. Mann of Brady was in Stacy Monday. W. B. Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

PLACID BUDGET.

Placid Promises to Offset Fife Vote in "Run Off."
 Placid, Texas, Aug. 2.
 Editor Brady Standard:
 Tom Squires, an erstwhile Placidite, now residing in San Saba county, was a pleasant visitor in our village the past week. C. I. Turnell, Randall Jordan and Web Gray went to Dublin Monday. George Parker is building a silo on his place east of town. Messrs. Horace Carothers and Ennis Turnell, who have been visiting in Van Zandt county, returned home Monday. Prof. Mark Maxwell, who is teaching a singing class at Plainview, attended church here Saturday night. Miss Celia Gault, who has been attending school in Brownwood, returned home last week. Frank Wicker, O. H. Gault and J. C. Nichols represented Placid at the county seat last Saturday. Rev. F. L. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Nichols and a number of young people left Wednesday to attend the Holiness protracted meeting at Dublin. C. A. Turnell is building a porch on the front of his residence. W. O. Long and Charlie Gault worked on the Baptist church Monday, getting it ready for the meeting which begins Friday night. This immediate neighborhood has not had its share of the rain that has been falling over the country the last few weeks. We are therefore getting very dry, stock water is getting scarce and crops are suffering. The people of Placid have not lost interest in politics. They are going into the run-off primary and give Culberson a practically unanimous vote—a vote large enough to more than overcome the Colquitt majority at Fife. Of course if James Finlay gets hold of this it don't go.

CHAPERON FOR KATE
 By ELLIS GRAY.

It wasn't that Kate needed a chaperon, but this particular chaperon needed Kate to prove that she was indeed a chaperon. "I couldn't possibly go to the camp by myself, Kate," she said, "but it seems to me it would look quite all right for us both to go, and I'll be chaperon." "What will I be?" asked Kate cautiously. She sat before the dressing table, carefully tapping her freckles with a little nice pad of absorbent cotton dipped in witch-hazel and peroxide. Things were awfully slow at the hotel. One had to find some diversion for idle moments. Mrs. Cranston wrote letters. Not at a desk, but curled up in the wide-winged armchair, wrapped in a gray kimono lined with pumpkin-colored silk. Kate, with her smooth, dark hair combed sleekly back and her large, uncompromising gray eyes, always felt a thrill of expectancy when her cousin went forth after adventure. After four years of wealthy widowhood, she really seemed almost to listen for fate to call her to a new romance. "A good excuse, dear. And I shan't tell you even his name, my lonely lord of the woods. Isn't that a good name for you? We'll ride up the mountain tomorrow and pretend that you are studying research work or that we've lost our way." "What's his profession?" Kate never asked what a man looked like or how much he was worth. It was what he aimed at that interested her mostly. "Why, I don't know exactly. I know he's a consulting engineer, don't you know. They send him out first to look over a big project and estimate on it. I heard they were going to burrow through Bald Eagle knob—the railroad people, I mean." "Bald Eagle. Isn't that the other mountain over this way? Colonel Ames says if the road goes that way it ruins Amesville, and he's sunk every last cent into meeting the company's demands. Why, Win, they promised him it was going this way before he built that big concrete bridge." "Did they, really? Kate, you don't know beans about commercial diplomacy. The land along the Bald Knob ridge belongs to Senator Rhoades, and he's interested in the railroad. It doesn't matter about your nice colonel one bit—" "But won't it cost a lot more to build it that other way? Any real engineer would see that. I don't see how they would send out anybody twenty-four—" She stopped short, staring in front of her with sudden understanding. "I'll bet two cents it's Dandy Rhoades!" "Do you know him?" Winifred's eye brows raised in quick surprise. But Kate was standing up with widespread arms like a spread eagle. "Do I know him? Know blessed old Dandy? Rather. He's the senator's nephew, but his nose is straight and so are his views on life. I'll go with you now, Win." So it happened that the following day there rode into the camp up in the spruce woods two visitors, and Dandy Rhoades, flushed and a bit self-conscious, welcomed them. "Dandy, I wanted to come to you direct about this railroad surveying," Kate said. "And Win was kind enough to act as chaperon." Kate seated herself on a big log with Dandy beside her, deeply interested, one foot resting on the log, and the chaperon wandered over to the engineer's plank table under the tent fly. And somehow, Kate found out that eloquence flowed her way. Oh, how she pleaded the colonel's cause. It was the cause of right and fairness, too, not only to him, but to the railroad. "Can't you see it, Dandy?" she finished. And Dandy could and did. "Uncle Curtis hasn't put it to me raw like that. It's left for me to hand in my report as I think best. He probably thought I'd see what it meant to him to have it run this route, but I'll move camp tomorrow to Amesville on the other mountain. I didn't know Mrs. Cranston was your cousin. I used to sit and talk to her because she reminded me of you. And she laughs like you, too. I suppose she thinks I was a special type of moon-sick calf. We ought to explain." "If we do, 'ou'll have to write to mother, too." Kate looked up at him thoughtfully. "Do you think it's time, Dandy? How are the prospects? Won't your uncle throw you out if you turn down his railroad scheme?" "If he does, I'll go to the railroad and explain the whole thing and show them how much I saved them on the deal," Dandy laughed. "Didn't you even tell Mrs. Cranston we were engaged?" Kate shook her head. "Who's she talking to now over there by the table?" "That's the chief engineer of the U. B. & O. College mate of mine. She doesn't seem to miss us, Kate." "Chaperons must be adaptable to environment," answered Kate. "I think Win is a perfect pattern of an ideal one." She paused a second. "But I never thought she looked like me, dear. Did you ever tell her so?" "No, I didn't," replied Dandy steadily, "but I will now." (Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Wrong One.

An inspector visiting a provisional school was much worried by the noise of the scholars in the next room. At last unable to bear it any longer, he opened the door and burst in upon the class.

Seeing one boy rather taller than the other, talking a great deal, he caught him by the collar, carried him to another room and banged him into a chair, saying:

"Now sit there and be quiet!"

A quarter of an hour later a small head appeared around the door, and a meek little voice said:

STATE FAIR OF TEXAS HAS LARGE INCREASE IN PREMIUMS

ALL AGRICULTURAL AND LIVE STOCK CLASSES ARE GREATLY BENEFITED

NEW PREMIUM LIST IS NOW READY FOR PERUSAL.

R. E. L. Knight, President.

R. E. L. Knight, president of the State Fair of Texas, announces that the most extensive and complete arrangements have been made with a view of making the 1916 State Fair at Dallas, which opens October 14, and continues to and through October 29, the largest, most interesting and most valuable agricultural and educational exposition ever held.

During the year just passed, the Fair management has conducted vast improvement enterprises at Fair Park—practically every department has felt the influence of the earnest desire to bring all details connected with the Fair right up to the minute; and, as a consequence, when the 1916 Fair opens next fall, every necessary equipment and facility for an epoch-making exposition will have been provided.

Premiums Largely Increased.

The State Fair of Texas is, essentially, an agricultural exposition; its purpose is to gather together and display annually a representative showing of the wonderful resources and possibilities of the great Southwest, and this in order that the peoples of other sections may have an increased appreciation of the marvelous fertility of Southwestern soils, and the incomparable advantages of our matchless Southwestern climate. It is obvious that this purpose can be best achieved by inducing and influencing a large majority of farmers of the section to bring displays of their products to Dallas, and with this end in view, the directors of the Fair have, this year, voted large increases in premiums for practically all classes of agricultural and live stock exhibits.

Many New Classifications Added.

In almost every division, and particularly in the sections devoted to agriculture and live stock, there will be found this year a number of interesting new classifications. In the poultry section, a classification for all kinds of pigeons has been devised, and a special building is now being constructed to house the large number of pigeon exhibits expected. The raising of pigeons for the market is becoming an important industry in the Southwest—of sufficient importance, in fact, to justify a good representation at the State Fair of Texas.

Premium List for 1916 Now Ready.

W. H. Stratton, secretary of the Fair Association, announces that the premium list for 1916 has just been issued and is now ready for general distribution. This is a book of 142 pages, handsomely printed on good paper, and is fittingly illustrated with photographic reproductions of portraits of the officers and directors of the Fair, and with scenes in Fair Park.

While the title of this work is simply "Premium List," the publication is, in fact, much more—as it contains a great deal of interesting and valuable information relative to the rules and regulations governing the different classes and, in fact, all necessary data relative to the aims and purposes of the Fair.

A feature of this book which will interest practically all Texans will be found in the front of the publication in the nature of a large folder, 40 inches long by 8 inches wide, upon which is illustrated a splendid panoramic view of a portion of the Fair Grounds. This is a late photograph and shows the grounds just as they are today. The reverse side of this folder presents a fine panoramic view of the present skyline of the city of Dallas. This is likewise a very recent photograph and glowingly depicts the wonderful growth which Dallas has attained in recent years.

In the back of the 1916 Premium List will be found a similar large folder presenting many of the amusements which are to be at the Fair this fall. The amusement program, as outlined by Secretary Stratton, is by far the largest and most expensive ever offered by the Fair management, and while both sides of this large folder have been utilized for the purpose, it has been found to be entirely impossible to present a large portion of the acts which have already been secured.

Mr. Stratton states that a sufficient number of Premium Lists have been published to take care of all demands, and that a copy will be mailed to any address upon receipt of request. There is no charge for this publication. Those who wish only the various folders can, for the asking, secure copies beautifully bound especially for free distribution to the people of Texas and the Southwest.

From the nature and extent of the preparatory work already concluded, it is easy to deduce that the 1916 State Fair of Texas, to be held in Dallas October 14 to 29, will be the largest in the history of Texas.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Ground is being broken this week for the handsome new residence of W. E. Campbell. The new home is to be located in the south part of town a couple of blocks east of the standpipe.

W. M. Murphy was one of the number who hit the bull's eye on the reunion grounds, and thereby dropped the nigger in the tub of water. Mr. Murphy just "laffed and laffed" and everyone "laffed" with him.

R. D. Dyer was about the busiest of all busy citizens during the first couple of days of the reunion, and ran errands, worked hard to accommodate the ladies, and made himself generally useful. Dick was a most imposing figure in his nifty black suit contrasted by his spanking new white shoes, and several of the young girls were heard to remark they were sorry he was married.

W. E. Campbell returned yesterday morning from Oklahoma where he has been the past eighteen days looking after cattle. He had about 1400 head on grass, but was able to ship only part of them to Kansas City market. He struck a very good market and sold at a satisfactory figure. He reports a fine rain in the vicinity of Muskogee, Okla., but stated other parts were quite dry.

ROCHELLE RUSTLINGS

From the Record:

Odie B. White made a business trip to Brady yesterday.

Hubbard Crump was over from Brady Sunday to visit home folks.

The farmers are busy cutting maize this week which, owing to the unusual drouth, is a little short. The high sloping land has produced the best.

Tom Sellman was painfully hurt one day last week by having a nail to perforate his hand. We are pleased to report him as doing nicely.

O. T. Jackson, the hustling insurance man of Brady, was in Rochelle Monday on business.

J. W. Martin was over from Brady Thursday.

June Coopender was over from Brady last Saturday.

Sam Woods and family returned Monday morning to their home at Brady, after spending Sunday at the Mrs. Grace Smith home.

The Pity of It.

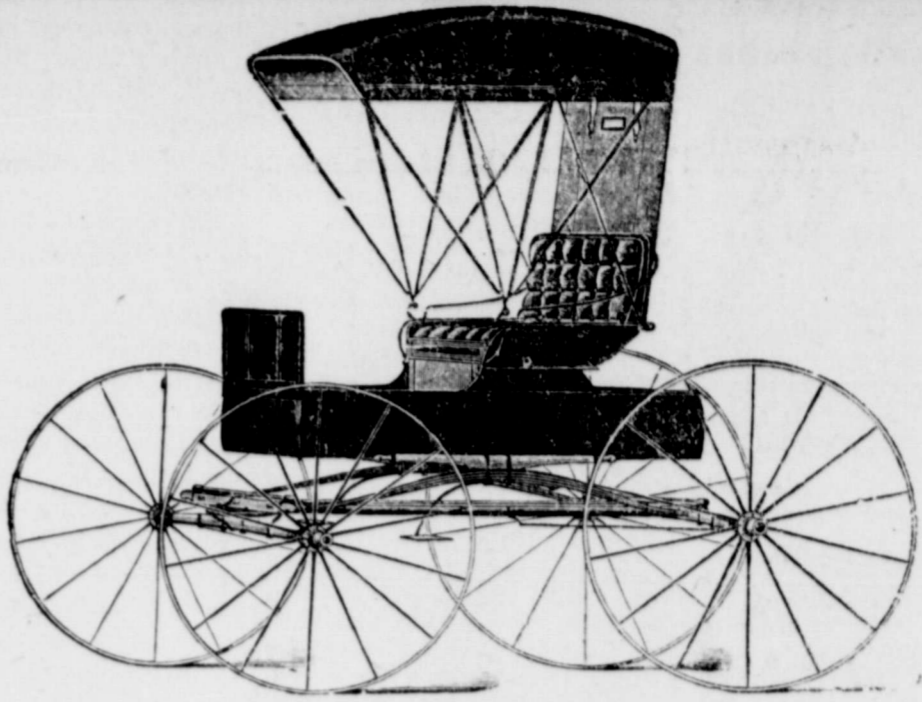

We learn from an exchange that an Englishman and a Scotsman who traveled to Egypt together paid a visit to the Pyramids.

The Englishman was lost in admiration, and asked his companion for his opinion.

The Scotsman shook his head sorrowfully.

"Ach, mon," he said with a sigh, "what a lot o' masonwork no to be bringin' in ony rent!"—Youth's Companion.

Their Style Too, Cannot be Beaten

Until we had sold a few and their cheap price had become known in showing them on our floors we have had people tell us they did not want quite that high priced buggy and would be invariably surprised when we named the price.

They not only look as well but are as good as the best buggy made while their price is from a half to a third lower. We will be glad to compare these buggies in price, style and finish with any other buggy, no matter where, and we want you to come in and look at them.

Saw German Submarine.

Dr. Jack Ragsdale filled his regular appointment as optometrist with B. L. Malone & Co. Wednesday, and while here gave an interesting account of his trip to Buffalo, N. Y., and Baltimore, Md., having attended the World's Optometry congress at the latter place. While in Baltimore, Dr. Ragsdale took advantage of an opportunity to glimpse the big German submarine which recently crossed the ocean from Germany to the U. S. with a valuable cargo of dye stuffs and chemicals. Following its arrival at port, the submarine was screened from view by a fencing of burlap. A couple of boys discovered a gap in the burlap wall and securing a row-boat, carried visitors who desired to see the submarine to the observation point at so much per trip. Dr. Ragsdale and Messrs. M. O. Curry and F. W. Greber of Brownwood were among the number who glimpsed the submarine, where she lay in the water alongside the interned ship, the Vaterland.

Mr. Greber was even more fortunate than his two companions in that he was enabled to interview the captain of the German submarine. The following account of the interview is reprinted from the Brownwood Bulletin:

"That Zeppelins may be expected to cross the Atlantic and reach America soon was the opinion expressed by Captain Koenig of the German merchant submarine Deutschland in conversation at Baltimore last week with F. W. Greber of this city.

Mr. Greber has just returned from a trip through the North and East, and was one of many thousands of people who viewed the wonderful German vessel and talked with her captain.

"Captain Koenig, says Mr. Greber, is very reticent, and with the exception of a few concise statements, said very little which could be construed as indicative of the plans of the Fatherland. The little captain, however, confidently hinted that the big Zeppelins may succeed in crossing the Atlantic soon, even as he had crossed underneath the water.

"Discussing his trip from Bremen to Baltimore the German captain said that for four days the Deutschland had lain on the bottom of the North Sea, the crew spending the time idly listening to Victrola music and playing games. Then the little vessel arose to the surface, the periscope showed that no enemies were near and the long trip across the ocean was begun.

"Mr. Greber says the Deutschland is much larger than ordinary submarines, and since she carries no offensive weapons easily passes muster as a merchant vessel.

"The big German ship, the Vaterland, was also seen by Mr. Greber while in the East. This ship, he says, has a hundred foot beam, and is 950 feet long—about as long as from the Brownwood National bank to the post office building."

Country Club Dance.
The following invitations were
received this week:

You are invited to attend
The Opening of the Country Club
Tuesday evening August first
nineteen sixteen
at eight thirty o'clock
Brady, Texas

The occasion was the formal opening of the new Brady Country club, and something like one hundred guests responded to the invitation. The new club house was adorned with flags and flowers, and the many lights cast their rays over a scene of merry and light-hearted folks. Miss Nettie Bellamy favored the visitors with a vocal selection, and responded to a hearty encore.
Dancing occupied the remainder of the evening and the cool
breezes of the great pecan grove
made the evening doubly enjoyable to those who tripped the "light fantastic toe." Punch was served throughout the evening, Mesdames C. T. White, W.
E. Campbell and H. B. Ogden presiding at the punch bowl.

The Brady Country club has a most ideal location on Brady creek, about one and one-half miles west of town, the site selected being in a grove of magnificent pecan trees. While the dance Tuesday was the first formal affair, the members have been enjoying a number of pleasant gatherings during the year, and many more are being planned. As a consequence the members are looking forward to a most pleasurable season.

Enjoyable Dances.

Probably the most enjoyable
of the features of reunion week is the series of dances given by the Brady boys in the Syndicate building beginning on Tuesday night. The dance hall is prettily decorated with flags, bunting and red, white and blue crepe.
Electric fans have been installed in convenient places and add materially to the enjoyment of the dances. The Glen Garden
colored orchestra of Fort Worth is furnishing music that is most inspiring and inviting to the dancers, and the brilliantly lighted hall with its gay crowds furnishes a most attractive picture.

Some thirty or forty couples have enjoyed the dancing the past two nights, visitors from Menard, San Saba, Brownwood and other points being guests of the Brady boys.

The series closes tonight, and an unusually large crowd is being anticipated, the number heretofore in attendance being augmented by visitors from several neighboring cities.

Inter Se.

The Inter Se club had a pleasant session on last Friday afternoon, Mrs. J. B. Granville entertaining for the members and guests. Present were Mesdames Claud Baker, Firman
Jackson, V. B. Deaton, L. A.
Williams, Sam McCollum; Misses Carrie Sessions, Lorena Dry, Minna Elliot, Mozelle Glenn,
Mina Damon of Dallas, Ruth and Flora Schaeg, Mabel Thompson,
Lessie Samuel, Margaret Mc-Ghee.

In the series of "42" Miss Ruth Schaeg received prize for high score, and Miss Minna Elliot received consolation.

The hostess served sherbet
and angel food cake.

No meeting will be held this week, but the club will be entertained on Friday afternoon of next week by Miss Flora Schaeg.

Five-Forty Club.

A very enjoyable afternoon is reported by members and guests of the Five-Forty club on last Friday afternoon, Mrs. J. D.
Branscum entertaining. Members present were Mesdames C.
P. Gray, Wm. Bauhof, Roy Wilkerson, J. E. Shropshire, J. F.
Schaeg, S. H. Mayo, A. B. Campbell, Jess Ballou, Walter Galle-
more. Guests were Mesdames
J. G. McCall, Dimmitt Wood, J.
M. Fuller, Alice Smith; Misses
Minnie Lee Gray of Llano, Sallie Nance.

Refreshments consisted of salad, pickles, sandwiches, iced
tea and mints.

No meeting will be had today,
but on next Friday afternoon
the club will meet with Mrs. Jess Ballou.

Five Hundred Club.

Mrs. G. R. White entertained
on Friday night for the members of the Five Hundred club,
the gentlemen being invited guests. A series of "500" was enjoyed at four tables, Mrs. W.
E. Campbell receiving ladies'
club prize, and Mr. J. R. Stone receiving gentlemen's prize.

The hostess served a salad
course.

Enjoying the evening with Mrs. White were Messrs. and Mesdames J. R. Stone, B. Simpson, W. E. Campbell, John Wall,
F. R. Wulff, J. S. Anderson, C.
T. White, J. G. McCall.

The club will meet again on Friday night of next week, Mrs.
J. G. McCall entertaining.

Entre Nous.

The Entre Nous met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Herbert L.
Wood for a very enjoyable series of "500," the following members being present: Mesdames W. E. Campbell, H. B.
Ogden; Misses Lucile Benham,
Minnie Jarvis Crothers, Mary
Brook. Guests were Mesdames
C. T. White, Bailey Jones; Miss
Eleanor Sampson of Fort Worth.

Club prize was received by Mrs. H. B. Ogden and Mrs.
White received guest prize.

The hostess served tea and sandwiches.

The club meets next Wednesday with Mrs. W. E. Campbell.

North Side Bible Class No. 1.

The North Side Bible Study
class No. 1 met last Friday afternoon with a good attendance,
considering the threatening
weather, at the home of Mrs. A.
W. Tipton, and a nice meeting is reported. No meeting will be held this week because of the reunion. On Friday afternoon of next week the class meets with Mrs. P. F. Middleton for a study of I Chronicles, from the 20th
chapter to the close.

Dodge School House.

I will preach at the Dodge school house next Sunday at 4
p. m.

I hope that everybody in the community will come to this service. I. T. MORRIS.

HAVE YOU WEAK LUNGS?

Do colds settle on your chest or in your bronchial tubes? Do coughs hang on, or are you subject to throat troubles?
Such troubles should have immediate treatment with the strengthening powers of Scott's Emulsion to guard against consumption which so easily follows.
Scott's Emulsion contains pure cod liver oil which peculiarly strengthens the respiratory tract and improves the quality of the blood; the glycerine in it soothes and heals the tender membranes of the throat.
Scott's is prescribed by the best specialists. You can get it at any drug store.

from Menard yesterday to attend the reunion dances.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hall of Bangs are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ball while attending
the reunion.

Messrs. Earl, Lawrence and Paul Hadlow were numbered among the Rochelle visitors to
the reunion.

Mrs. D. T. Benchoff, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. D. Ben-choff, were visitors here from Menard yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Moore and two children of Chillicothe, Texas, are here as guests of Mrs.
Moore's brothers, W. E. and P.
A. Campbell.

C. L. Knebel of Brownwood was here Wednesday attending the reunion. Mr. Knebel is engaged in the auto business in Brownwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Matthews and son, Norton, are here from Hext enjoying the reunion while guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ogden.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bowers
will leave today for the ranch at Hext, going from there to Austin for a visit with relatives.
Mrs. J. A. Bowers will accompany them.

George Vierling, Jr., is here
from the ranch in Kimble county to attend the reunion dances.
This is his first visit to Brady since leaving here four years or more ago.

Miss Mary Brook returned Sunday from a visit with friends
in Fort Worth and other places.
She was accompanied by Miss
Eleanor Sampson of Fort Worth,
who will be her guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jones and

What Would We Do Without Sugar?

CHICKERING SUGAR CANE

We are so used to sugar that we are likely to forget to give it its proper place. Right now if somebody asked you what sugar was good for you'd probably say—"Oh! to put in coffee and tea and for making candies and desserts." That's it—we all think of sugar as a sweetener and overlook its value as a food.

The chemists classify sugar as a hydrocarbon—that name may or may not be interesting to us, but what is interesting is their statement that it has, as a hydrocarbon, equal food value with the starchy foods and by digestion largely adds to the fatty tissues of the body.

Why do we eat sugar anyway? Your first answer might be, "Because it is sweet and tastes good." Of itself the answer would be correct, but the more important fact is that the body craves sugar because it needs it. And when the body craves something it gives us an appetite for it. So primarily that's why we like sugar and things made with sugar and not just because they are sweet.

In view of the fact that sugar has gone up so tremendously of late these facts

are interesting because we find that instead of the luxury sugar having gone up it is the FOOD sugar that has raised its price. Yet—even though the price is up we have to have our sweet food just the same.

Certainly the makers of that delicious beverage Coca-Cola must have discovered that sugar is up, because one of the principal ingredients in making Coca-Cola syrup is fine cane sugar. Think of it—they use an average of 40 tons of sugar a day—about 4 carloads. But unlike many manufacturers that company has itself borne the raise and so you and I pay just the same today for our bottle or glass of Coca-Cola that we've always paid. Incidentally, this phase of the situation is a good reminder of the benefits one gets from drinking a beverage as pure and good as Coca-Cola. Not only do we please our palates and derive wholesome refreshment from the drink but we also give our systems that bit of sugar sweetness that they crave and which is necessary to health and tissues. Is it any wonder then that Coca-Cola is so popular and so universally drunk that it has been called "the drink the nation drinks"?

TYPICAL COBAN SUGAR MILL

How He Ran.

It takes a member of an alien race sometimes to make an original definition. Here is a new superlative description for speech told at Marblehead the other day while the fog held the racing yachts at anchor.

A near race riot happened in a Southern town. The negroes gathered in one crowd and the whites in another. The whites fired their revolvers into the air and the negroes took to their heels. Next day a plantation owner said to one of his men:

"Sam, were you in that crowd that gathered last night?"

"Yassir."

"Did you run like the wind, Sam?"

"No, sir; I didn't run like the wind, 'deed I didn't. But I passed two other that was running like the wind."—Boston Record.

When You Have a Cold

Give it attention, avoid exposure, be regular and careful of your diet, also commence taking Dr. King's New Discovery. It contains Pine-Tar, Antiseptic Oils and Balsams. Is slightly laxative. Dr. King's New Discovery eases your cough, soothes your throat and bronchial tubes, checks your cold, starts to clear your head. In a short time you know your cold is better. It's the standard family cough syrup in use over forty years. Get a bottle at once. Keep it in the house as a cold insurance. Sold at your druggist.

Had Them All Beat.

The late Sir W. S. Gilbert of Savoy Opera fame met Liebling, the pianist, and the following interchange of courtesies occurred between them, says an exchange:

Liebling was introduced to Gilbert, and Gilbert said:

"Sir, I have heard Liszt—"

Liebling bowed his head in acknowledgment of what he supposed was the coming compliment.

"I have heard Henry Hertz," continued Gilbert. Liebling bowed still lower. "I have heard Paderewski." Liebling made a genuflection even unto the ground.

"Well, sir" continued Gilbert, in abrupt tones, "not one of them—not one of them, sir, perjured as profusely as you do."

Ambiguous.

It is said that a gravestone in this inscription:

... lies the body of Sam—

... who died suddenly

... expectedly, by being kicked

... death by a cow. Well done, and faithful servant!"

Couldn't Qualify.

Some years ago the commanding officer of a military station gave orders that no one should be allowed to step over the grass where the cow was pastured. The next day the general's wife, wishing to take a short cut started to walk from one path to another.

"No one to pass here, madam," said the sentry.

The lady drew herself up. "Do you know who I am?" she demanded.

"No, madam," replied the impassive soldier. "I do not know who you are. But I know you are not the General's cow, and nobody else is permitted to walk on this grass."—London Tit-Bits.

Wanted to Find Out.

"I knew a man once who was very much afraid he would be loved, not for himself, but for his advantages, so he put it to the test."

"How did he do that?"

"Wrote an anonymous letter to the girl he loved asking her to marry him."—Baltimore American.

A Doctor's Remedy for Coughs.

As a cure for coughs and colds Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey combines these remedies in just the right proportion to do the most good for summer colds. A trial will prove the value of this splendid cough medicine. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey soothes the irritation, stops your cough, kills the cold germs and does you a world of good. A 25c bottle will more than convince you—it will stop your cough. At druggists.

Full.

By one of those strange chances most of the lady passengers inside the motor bus seemed to be carrying infant, one or two of which were a little fractious. At one stopping place the harassed conductor was faced by two more ladies, each of whom carried the inevitable baby. But patience, tho a virtue, has its limits.

"Room on top, mum," he said sternly, as he held out a detaining arm; "the incubator's full."

PA JUDD SEES LIFE

By H. M. EGBERT.

"Now, I've heard enough of that talk, Pa Judd!" exclaimed Lucinda Judd, pushing back her spectacles and confronting her husband angrily across the table. "You ought to be ashamed to think of such things."

"Maybe I ought," admitted Mr. Judd. "But I was only soliloquizing, ma."

"You can ventriloquize all you want, pa. But this has got to stop. Wanting to see life at sixty, indeed! Ain't I life enough for you?"

"Yes, my dear, you are. But what I meant is this. We married when we were only children, and then the babies came so fast, and it wasn't until last year that our youngest left us and somehow I feel I wish I had my fling. Not a bad fling, you know, ma, but just cutting a sort of caper."

"Such as how?" demanded his wife ominously.

"Why, I'd like to run into New York and see the shows and put up at a hotel, and—"

"And some hussy'd get you, sure as fate, pa."

"Nobody's ever in my eyes but you, ma," answered Pa diplomatically. "No, my dear, but then there's Adam Green, who writes me regular every New Year. Fine big grocery store he has in Harlem, and I haven't seen him for twenty years. And Cy Harris, and—let me see—Jim Brathwaite, who's head of the packing department of Ebenezer Jeffrey's china store."

"And you want to leave me here?" demanded Mrs. Judd.

"Well, my dear, after I've explored the city a bit, maybe I'll write you to come on. We ought to have a little trip for once. But we can't both go there, knowing nothing of city ways. Why, it wouldn't be safe for a settled woman like you until I learned the ropes."

"There! That's enough, pa. You shan't go. How can I face my niece, Lizzie Spears, and you not here, and tell her you've gone off on a spree alone?"

"Lizzie? You ain't going to Lizzie's?"

"No, but Lizzie's coming here on a visit. Read that!" She pushed a letter across the table. "Wonder if she favors her ma or her pa. Pretty girl, her ma writes me, and she's been run down from overwork and is going to spend a month with us to recover. I'm going over to Watertown to fetch her next week."

"Let me go, ma."

"You'll stay here," answered his wife firmly.

Stay he did, while his wife departed on the three days of her little holiday. Pa Judd was under instructions to have the house as neat as a pin for their coming. But on that morning he received a letter from his wife, inclosing a hundred-dollar bill. He gasped as it fluttered out. His wife was the family banker, but—what was she sending him a hundred dollars for?

The letter informed him that she had had such a good time she had changed her mind and thought he ought to have his little holiday.

"But you'll have to get off tomorrow before noon," the letter ran, "because I've told Lizzie you're away, and it wouldn't look decent for you to go after she comes."

Pa Judd needed no second invitation. A few hours later saw him firmly established in New York, in an inexpensive hotel, which seemed to him, nevertheless, the height of magnificence.

He spent a happy evening wandering up and down Broadway, looking into the moving picture shows and staring in wonder, and with rather a guilty conscience, at the specimens of feminine beauty on the famous thoroughfare.

When he got back to the hotel he felt that he was seeing life at last. Next day he meant to look up his friends.

But the next morning he found a lady at his table, one of the most ravishing young women whom he had ever seen. She was dressed in the height of fashion, and she showed a marked inclination to be friendly to pa. Before the meal was over they were chatting like old friends, and he had told her the story of his life five times.

In this story, whose later versions varied from the earlier ones, Ma Judd always appeared as the angel by the hearth, for pa was sincerely fond of his wife; but pa gradually grew from a misunderstood youth, condemned to a life of servitude upon a farm, to a modest hero who had deliberately sworn the wicked world.

At lunch the lady was there again. Now it was her turn to confide to pa. She told him that she was a stenographer on a vacation and offered to show him some of the sights of the city.

Pa flushed. He did not know whether this was quite proper, but he did not want to confess his ignorance.

"I guess a bright young lady like you don't want to fuss round with an old feller like me," he said.

"I adore men of fifty," answered the young woman.

Pa, who knew that sixty lay a little, but yet irrecoverably behind him, flushed with pleasure. They took a car downtown to the aquarium.

"This is where the Four Hundred promenade on Sunday mornings," said the young lady.

"You don't say!" ejaculated pa, staring at the sea lion.

Afterward they saw the Brooklyn bridge and went up the Woolworth building. At every step Pa Judd's enthusiasm grew.

"I guess she mightn't feel that way," said the young lady, laughing. "What do you say to a little supper, Mr. Judd?"

This, pa felt sure, was wrong. In fact, he had often read of sirens who lured visitors into restaurants and there ran up bills for incredible sums—two dollars, or even more! Besides, he knew Ma Judd would never have sanctioned this. He resolved not to say one word about the events of that day to her. Yet he meekly accepted the young lady's suggestion and soon after he found himself seated at a table facing her and wondering at his situation. This was seeing life with a vengeance.

"How much money have you, Mr. Judd?" she asked abruptly, as the meal drew to an end.

Slowly and reluctantly Pa Judd produced his hundred dollar bill. Then he fished out eight seventy-five moneys.

"Why, you're a millionaire!" said the young lady. "I'll take this bill for a hundred and pay the waiter."

"Stop!" muttered Pa Judd. The young lady looked at him scornfully. "What do you mean?" she asked. "Do you think I am going to steal it?"

"No, but—but I thought I'd pay," faltered pa.

"My dear boy," said the young lady—and pa blushed with pleasure—"don't you know it is always the woman who pays?"

Pa, who had dimly heard words to that effect, suffered the young lady to take his hundred dollar bill and watched her pass quickly through the crowded room. Minutes passed. More minutes passed. The waiter was looking at pa. He thrust the bill under his nose. Pa glanced at it. It was for four dollars and twenty cents.

"Your friend's gone, sir," said the waiter, as pa looked up beseechingly into his face.

Pa staggered out of the restaurant. Early the next morning, having located Adam Green, and, after a lengthy conversation concerning earlier days, having succeeded in convincing him of his identity, Pa Judd touched Adam for fifteen dollars, much to Adam's disgust, paid his hotel bill, and took the homeward train.

He reached the little town with 90 cents in his pocket. The place had never looked so fresh and wholesome. Behind him lay the great city, with its abominations. Pa was cured—absolutely cured of his desire for adventure. And his brains were awfully with stories for home consumption.

Lucinda had told him nothing about any change, but he had taken it for granted that she would expect at least $75. He had not succeeded in harmonizing the various excuses over which he was meditating when he found that his legs had stopped in front of the house door. And there was Lucinda, fresh as a daisy, waiting to greet him.

"Well, you didn't stay long, pa," she said. "Are you glad to be home again?"

"You bet," answered pa fervently.

"Well, Lizzie's here," said his wife.

"Lizzie! Here's your uncle home. Come and kiss your Uncle Judd."

Before pa realized it a buxom young woman was in his arms, imprinting a kiss on either cheek. Pa stared and gulped. It was the young lady of the hotel—also of the restaurant!

Lucinda having vanished, pa looked at his niece with a mixture of emotions depicted on his face. Lizzie smiled.

And pa felt something slipped into his hand. He looked down at his hundred-dollar bill. He looked up into Lizzie's still smiling face.

"It's a plant?" he asked, moulting the words in his humiliation.

"Yes," nodded his niece, trying hard not to laugh. "But she doesn't know. She was anxious about you, uncle, and I had to go to New York, so I— I tracked you from the station. She thinks—she thinks I never got in a word with you."

"You're a good gal, Lizzie," said pa, with gratitude. "Say, though, would you mind kissing your uncle again? I'm mighty grateful that you didn't do it yesterday."

Boston Version.
Most Boston stories are built up around the conventional tradition of the inviolate classicism of our American Athens. But, like most traditions, this tradition of Boston culture has little to do with the actual facts of contemporary life. Modern Boston is fairly well caricatured in a rendering of the twenty-third Psalm, which a young Bostonian recently offered her public school teacher. She followed the familiar text until she reached the last verse, when she concluded with pious confidence: "Surely, good Mrs. Murphy shall follow me all the days of my life."—Harper's.

COUNTY CONVENTION

ENDORSES SENATOR CHAS. A. CULBERSON.

Delegates to State Convention Instructed to Vote for Walter C. Woodward.

The county convention met Saturday afternoon, J. E. Brown temporary chairman, and Messrs. Sam McCollum, J. J. Armor and John Winstead, comprising the credentials committee, reporting favorably upon the seating of the following delegates: Milburn, Amos Lawson; East Gansel, G. E. Coburn Whiteland, Dan Zimmerman Lost Creek, J. J. Armor; Waldrip and Fife, John R. Winstead Cow Boy, W. S. Lee; Lohn, N. J. Huie; Mercury, T. J. Beasley Placid, J. C. Nichols; Brady, D. J. G. McCall, Sam McCollum, C. C. Summers, J. E. Brown, Harvey Walker, Evans Adkins, J. E. Shropshire, Newt Bryson, T. P. Grant.

On motion, the chair appointed T. J. Beasley, W. S. Lee, J. E. Shropshire, J. J. Armor and John R. Winstead a committee to nominate delegates to the state convention. The committee reported the following for nomination as delegates to the state convention to meet at Houston August 8th: F. M. Newman, T. P. Grant, Joe A. Adkins.

The delegates were instructed to vote for Walter C. Woodward of Coleman for member of the State Executive committee from the 26th Senatorial district.

Resolutions endorsing Chas. A. Culberson were read and adopted as follows:

Whereas, the Hon. Chas. A. Culberson, present United States Senator from Texas, is now a candidate for re-election in the run-off primary to be held by the Democracy of Texas on August 26th; and, Whereas, Senator Culberson represented Texas faithfully and efficiently as attorney general for four years, and served as governor of this state for four years, and has served ably, honorably and efficiently as United States Senator for eighteen years; and,

Whereas, Senator Culberson has at all times been true to the principles of democracy and at all times at his post fighting and voting for democratic measures during the republican administrations before the democrats came into power, and since the election of Woodrow Wilson by the democrats to the presidency he has ably stood by the president in all things and has assisted in the enactment of the constructive legislation of the Wilson administration, and is an ardent supporter of the national administration in full sympathy and accord with Woodrow Wilson and his policies, and no man has ever yet challenged his democracy on account of any position he has ever taken or any vote he has ever cast in the United States senate; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the democracy of McCulloch county in county convention assembled, that we heartily endorse Senator Culberson and his loyal course and his record as a democrat, for his faithful and efficient service and his unwavering fidelity to the democracy of the state and nation, and we appeal to the democrats of McCulloch county and the state of Texas to stamp the seal of their approval upon his record of the past by returning him to the United States senate for another term on August 26th, and not to rebuke him now in the mature years of his life, after he has served so long and so faithfully and when every democrat of Texas knows he will always be found representing the principles of democracy and standing by and upholding the hands of the democratic administration and our democratic president with the same loyalty and fidelity that has always characterized his public service.

As Many a Brady Reader Knows Only Too Well. Many pains that pass as rheumatism are really due to weak kidneys - to the failure of the kidneys to drive off uric acid thoroughly. When you suffer aching, bad joints, backache, too, dizziness and some urinary disturbances, get Doan's Kidney Pills, the medicine that is publicly recommended by over 150,000 people in many different lands. Doan's Kidney Pills help weak kidneys to drive off uric acid, which is often the cause of the backache, rheumatism and lumbago. Brady people have learned their worth. Read this Brady resident's experience: Mrs. J. Coepender, Brady, says: "I was annoyed by kidney complaint for some years and the trouble was diagnosed as uric acid poisoning. I always felt heavy and depressed and had attacks of rheumatism. I was frequently very nervous. Doan's Kidney Pills reduced the uric acid in my system, the drowsiness, nervousness and rheumatic pains went away and I enjoyed much better health. I nearly always have Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from the Jones Drug Co., on hand and use them as needed." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy - get Doan's Kidney Pills - the same that Mrs. Coepender had. Foster-Milburn Co., Prop., Buffalo, N. Y.

What Would We Do Without Sugar?

We are so used to sugar that we are likely to forget to give it its proper place. Right now if somebody asked you what sugar was good for you'd probably say—"Oh! to put in coffee and tea and for making candies and demerits." That's it—we all think of sugar as a sweetener and overlook its value as a food.

The chemists classify sugar as a hydrocarbon—that name may or may not be interesting to you, but what is interesting is their statement that it has, as a hydrocarbon, equal food value with the starchy foods and by digestion largely adds to the fatty tissues of the body.

Why do we eat sugar anyway? Your first answer might be: "Because it is sweet and tastes good." Of itself the answer would be correct, but the more important fact is that the body craves sugar because it needs it. And when the body craves something it gives us an appetite for it. So primarily that's why we like sugar and things made with sugar and not just because they are sweet.

In view of the fact that sugar has gone up so tremendously of late these facts are interesting because we find that instead of the luxury sugar having gone up it is the FOOD sugar that has raised its price. Yet—even though the price is up we have to have our sweet food just the same.

Certainly the makers of that delicious beverage Coca-Cola must have discovered that sugar is up, because one of the principal ingredients in making Coca-Cola syrup is fine cane sugar. Think of it—they use an average of 80 tons of sugar a day—about 4 carloads. But unlike many manufacturers that company has itself borne the raise and so you and I pay just the same today for our bottle or glass of Coca-Cola that we've always paid. Incidentally, this phase of the situation is a good reminder of the benefits one gets from drinking a beverage as pure and good as Coca-Cola. Not only do we please our palates and derive wholesome refreshment from the drink but we also give our systems that bit of sugar sweetness that they crave and which is necessary to health and tissues. Is it any wonder then that Coca-Cola is so popular and so universally drunk that it has been called "the drink the nation drinks"?

How He Ran.

It takes a member of an alien race sometimes to make an original definition. Here is a new superlative description for speech told at Marblehead the other day while the fog held the racing yachts at anchor.

A near race riot happened in a Southern town. The negroes gathered in one crowd and the whites in another. The whites fired their revolvers into the air and the negroes took to their heels. Next day a plantation owner said to one of his men:

"Sam, were you in that crowd that gathered last night?"

"Yassir."

"Did you run like the wind, Sam?"

"No, sir; I didn't run like the wind, 'deed I didn't. But I passed two other that was running like the wind."—Boston Record.

Had Them All Beat.

The late Sir W. S. Gilbert of Savoy Opera fame met Liebling, the pianist, and the following interchange of courtesies occurred between them, says an exchange:

Liebling was introduced to Gilbert, and Gilbert said:

"Sir, I have heard Liszt."

Liebling bowed his head in acknowledgment of what he supposed was the coming compliment.

"I have heard Henry Hertz," continued Gilbert. Liebling bowed still lower. "I have heard Paderewski." Liebling made a genuflection even unto the ground.

"Well, sir" continued Gilbert, in abrupt tones, "not one of them—not one of them, sir, per-spired as profusely as you do."

Some years ago the commanding officer of a military station gave orders that no one should be allowed to step over the grass where the cow was pastured. The next day the general's wife, wishing to take a short cut started to walk from one path to another.

"No one to pass here, madam," said the sentry.

The lady drew herself up. "Do you know who I am?" she demanded.

PA JUDD SEES LIFE

By H. M. EGBERT.

"Now, I've heard enough of that talk, Pa Judd!" exclaimed Lucinda Judd, pushing back her spectacles and confronting her husband angrily across the table. "You ought to be ashamed to think of such things."

"Maybe I ought," admitted Mr. Judd. "But I was only soliloquizing, ma."

"You can ventriloquize all you want, pa. But this has got to stop. Wanting to see life at sixty, indeed! Ain't I life enough for you?"

"Yes, my dear, you are. But what I meant is this. We married when we were only children, and then the babies came so fast, and it wasn't until last year that our youngest left us and somehow I feel I wish I'd had my fling. Not a bad fling, you know, ma, but just cutting a sort of caper."

"Such as how?" demanded his wife ominously.

"Why, I'd like to run into New York and see the shows and put up at a hotel, and—"

"And some hussy'd get you, sure as fate, pa."

"Nobody's ever in my eyes but you, ma," answered pa diplomatically. "No, my dear, but then there's Adam Green, who writes me regular every New Year. Fine big grocery store he has in Harlem, and I haven't seen him for twenty years. And Cy Harris. And—let me see—Jim Brathwaite, who's

"Your Friend's Gone, Sir."

head of the packing department of Ebenezer Jeffrey's china store."

"And you want to leave me here?" demanded Mrs. Judd.

"Well, my dear, after I've explored the city a bit, maybe I'll write you to come on. We ought to have a little trip for once. But we can't both go there, knowing nothing of city ways. Why, it wouldn't be safe for a settled woman like you until I learned the ropes."

"There! That's enough, pa. You shan't go. How can I face my niece, Lizzie Spears, and you not here, and tell her you've gone off on a spree alone?"

"Lizzie? You ain't going to Lizzie's?"

"No, but Lizzie's coming here on a visit. Read that!" She pushed a letter across the table. "Wonder if she favors her ma or her pa. Pretty girl, her ma writes me, and she's been run down from overwork and is going to spend a month with us to recover. I'm going over to Watertown to fetch her next week."

"Let me go, ma."

"You'll stay here," answered his wife firmly.

Stay he did, while his wife departed on the three days of her little holiday. Pa Judd was under instructions to have the house as neat as a pin for their coming. But on that morning he received a letter from his wife, enclosing a hundred-dollar bill. He gasped as it fluttered out. His wife was the family banker, but what was she sending him a hundred dollars for?

The letter informed him that she had had such a good time she had changed her mind and thought he ought to have his little holiday.

"But you'll have to get off tomorrow before noon," the letter ran, "because I've told Lizzie you're away, and it wouldn't look decent for you to go after she comes."

Pa Judd needed no second invitation. A few hours later saw him firmly established in New York, in an inexpensive hotel, which seemed to him, nevertheless, the height of magnificence.

He spent a happy evening wandering up and down Broadway, looking into the moving picture shows and staring in wonder, and with rather a guilty conscience, at the specimens of feminine beauty on the famous thoroughfare.

When he got back to the hotel he felt that he was seeing life at last. Next day he meant to look up his friends.

But the next morning he found a lady at his table, one of the most ravishing young women whom he had ever seen. She was dressed in the height of fashion, and she showed a marked inclination to be friendly to pa. Before the meal was over they were chatting like old friends, and he had told her the story of his life five times.

In this story, whose later versions varied from the earlier ones, Pa Judd always appeared as the angel by the hearth, for pa was sincerely fond of his wife; but pa gradually grew from a misunderstood youth, condemned to a life of servitude upon a farm, to a modest hero who had deliberately forsworn the wicked world.

At lunch the lady was there again. Now it was her turn to confide to pa. She told him that she was a stenographer on a vacation and offered to show him some of the sights of the city.

Pa flushed. He did not know whether this was quite proper, but he did not want to confess his ignorance.

"I guess a bright young lady like you don't want to fuss round with an old feller like me," he said.

"I adore men of fifty," answered the young woman.

Pa, who knew that sixty lay a little, but yet irrecoverably behind him, flushed with pleasure. They took a car downtown to the aquarium.

"This is where the Four Hundred promenade on Sunday mornings," said the young lady.

"You don't say!" ejaculated pa, staring at the sea lion.

Afterward they saw the Brooklyn bridge and went up the Woolworth building. At every step Pa Judd's enthusiasm grew.

"I guess she mightn't feel that way," said the young lady, laughing. "What do you say to a little supper, Mr. Judd?"

This, pa felt sure, was wrong. In fact, he had often read of sirens who lured visitors into restaurants and there ran up bills for incredible sums—two dollars, or even more! Besides, he knew Ma Judd would never have sanctioned this. He resolved not to say one word about the events of that day to her. Yet he meekly accepted the young lady's suggestion and soon after he found himself seated at a table facing her and wondering at his situation. This was seeing life with a vengeance.

"How much money have you, Mr. Judd?" she asked abruptly, as the meal drew to an end.

Slowly and reluctantly Pa Judd produced his hundred dollar bill. Then he fished out eight seventy-five more.

"Why, you're a millionaire!" said the young lady. "I'll take this bill for a hundred and pay the waiter."

"Stop!" muttered Pa Judd.

The young lady looked at him scornfully. "What do you mean?" she asked. "Do you think I am going to steal it?"

"No, but—but I thought I'd pay," faltered pa.

"My dear boy," said the young lady—and pa blushed with pleasure—"don't you know it is always the woman who pays?"

Pa, who had dimly heard words to that effect, suffered the young lady to take his hundred dollar bill and watched her pass quickly through the crowded room. Minutes passed. More minutes passed. The waiter was looking at pa. He thrust the bill under his nose. Pa glanced at it. It was for four dollars and twenty cents.

"Your friend's gone, sir," said the waiter, as pa looked up beseechingly into his face.

Pa staggered out of the restaurant. Early the next morning, having located Adam Green, and, after a lengthy conversation concerning earlier days, having succeeded in convincing him of his identity, Pa Judd touched Adam for fifteen dollars, much to Adam's disgust, paid his hotel bill, and took the homeward train.

He reached the little town with 90 cents in his pocket. The place had never looked so fresh and wholesome. Behind him lay the great city, with its abominations. Pa was cured—absolutely cured of his desire for adventure. And his brains were awash with stories for home consumption.

Lucinda had told him nothing about any change, but he had taken it for granted that she would expect at least $75. He had not succeeded in harmonizing the various excuses over which he was meditating when he found that his legs had stopped in front of the house door. And there was Lucinda, fresh as a daisy, waiting to greet him.

"Well, you didn't stay long, pa," she said. "Are you glad to be home again?"

"You bet," answered pa fervently.

"Well, Lizzie's here," said his wife. "Lizzie! Here's your uncle home. Come and kiss your Uncle Judd."

Before pa realized it a buxom young woman was in his arms, imprinting a kiss on either cheek. Pa stared and gulped. It was the young lady of the hotel—also of the restaurant!

Lucinda having vanished, pa looked at his niece with a mixture of emotions depicted on his face. Lizzie smiled.

And pa felt something slipped into his hand. He looked down at his hundred-dollar bill. He looked up into Lizzie's still smiling face.

"It's a plant?" he asked, mouthing the words in his humiliation.

"Yes," nodded his niece, trying hard not to laugh. "But she doesn't know. She was anxious about you, uncle, and I had to go to New York, so I—I tracked you from the station. She thinks—she thinks I never got in a word with you."

"You're a good gal, Lizzie," said pa, with gratitude. "Say, though, would you mind kissing your uncle again? I'm mighty grateful that you didn't do it yesterday."

Most Boston stories are built up around the conventional tradition of the inviolate classicism of our American Athens. But, like most traditions, this tradition of Boston culture has little to do with the actual facts of contemporary life. Modern Boston is fairly well caricatured in a rendering of the twenty-third Psalm, which a young Bostonian recently offered her public school teacher. She followed the familiar text until she reached the last verse, when she concluded with pious confidence: "Surely; good Mrs. Murphy shall follow me all the days of my life."—Harper's.

What Would We Do Without Sugar?

GATHERING SUGAR CANE

We are so used to sugar that we are likely to forget to give it its proper importance. Right now if somebody asked you what sugar was good for you'd probably say—"Oh! to put in coffee and tea and for making candies and desserts." That's it—we all think of sugar as a sweetener and overlook its value as a food.

HOW SUGAR CANE GROWS

The chemists classify sugar as a hydrocarbon—that name may or may not be interesting to us, but what is interesting is their statement that it has, as a hydrocarbon, equal food value with the starchy foods and by digestion largely adds to the fatty tissues of the body.

are interesting because we find that instead of the luxury sugar having gone up it is the FOOD sugar that has raised its price. Yet—even though the price is up we have to have our sweet food just the same.

TYNARLE COUNTY SUGAR MILL

Certainly the makers of that delicious beverage Coca-Cola must have discovered that sugar is up, because one of the principal ingredients in making Coca-Cola syrup is fine cane sugar. Think of it—they use an average of 80 tons of sugar a day—about 4 carloads. But unlike many manufacturers that company has itself borne the raise and so you and I pay just the same today for our bottle or glass of Coca-Cola that we've always paid. Incidentally, this phase of the situation is a good reminder of the benefits one gets from drinking a beverage as pure and good as Coca-Cola. Not only do we please our palates and derive wholesome refreshment from the drink but we also give our systems that bit of sugar sweetness that they crave and which is necessary to health and tissues. Is it any wonder then that Coca-Cola is so popular and so universally drunk that it has been called "the drink the nation drinks"?

How He Ran.

It takes a member of an alien race sometimes to make an original definition. Here is a new superlative description for speech told at Marblehead the other day while the fog held the racing yachts at anchor.

A near race riot happened in a Southern town. The negroes gathered in one crowd and the whites in another. The whites fired their revolvers into the air and the negroes took to their heels. Next day a plantation owner said to one of his men:

"Sam, were you in that crowd that gathered last night?"

"Yassir."

"Did you run like the wind, Sam?"

"No, sir; I didn't run like the wind, 'deed I didn't. But I passed two other that was running like the wind."—Boston Record.

Had Them All Beat.

The late Sir W. S. Gilbert of Savoy Opera fame met Liebling, the pianist, and the following interchange of courtesies occurred between them, says an exchange:

Liebling was introduced to Gilbert, and Gilbert said:

"Sir, I have heard Liszt—"

Liebling bowed his head in acknowledgment of what he supposed was the coming compliment.

"I have heard Henry Hertz," continued Gilbert. Liebling bowed still lower. "I have heard Paderewski." Liebling made a genuflection even unto the ground.

"Well, sir," continued Gilbert, in abrupt tones, "not one of them—not one of them, sir, perspired as profusely as you do."

Ambiguous.

It is said that a gravestone bears this inscription:

"Here lies the body of Samuel Holden, who died suddenly and unexpectedly, by being kicked to death by a cow. Well done, good and faithful servant!"—Exchange.

Couldn't Qualify.

Some years ago the commanding officer of a military station gave orders that no one should be allowed to step over the grass where the cow was pastured. The next day the general's wife, wishing to take a short cut started to walk from one path to another.

"No one to pass here, madam," said the sentry.

The lady drew herself up. "Do you know who I am?" she demanded.

"No, madam," replied the impassive soldier. "I do not know who you are. But I know you are not the General's cow, and nobody else is permitted to walk on this grass."—London Tit-Bits.

Wanted to Find Out.

"I knew a man once who was very much afraid he would be loved, not for himself, but for his advantages, so he put it to the test."

"How did he do that?"

"Wrote an anonymous letter to the girl he loved asking her to marry him."—Baltimore American.

Full.

By one of those strange chances most of the lady passengers inside the motor bus seemed to be carrying infant, one or two of which were a little fractious. At one stopping place the harrassed conductor was faced by two more ladies, each of whom carried the inevitable baby. But patience, tho a virtue, has its limits.

"Room on top, mum," he said sternly, as he held out a detaining arm; "the incubator's full."—Tit-Bits.

PA JUDD SEES LIFE

By H. M. EGBERT.

"Now, I've heard enough of that talk, Pa Judd!" exclaimed Lucinda Judd, pushing back her spectacles and confronting her husband angrily across the table. "You ought to be ashamed to think of such things."

"Maybe I ought," admitted Mr. Judd. "But I was only soliloquizing, ma."

"You can ventriloquize all you want, pa. But this has got to stop. Wanting to see life at sixty, indeed! Ain't I life enough for you?"

"Yes, my dear, you are. But what I meant is this. We married when we were only children, and then the babies came so fast, and it wasn't until last year that our youngest left us and somehow I feel I wish I'd had my fling. Not a bad fling, you know, ma, but just cutting a sort of caper."

"Such as how?" demanded his wife ominously.

"Why, I'd like to run into New York and see the shows and put up at a hotel, and—"

"And some hussy'd get you, sure as fate, pa."

"Nobody's ever in my eyes but you, ma," answered pa diplomatically. "No, my dear, but then there's Adam Green, who writes me regular every New Year. Fine big grocery store he has in Harlem, and I haven't seen him for twenty years. And Cy Harris. And—let me see—Jim Brathwaite, who's

"Your Friend's Gone, Sir."

head of the packing department of Ebenezer Jeffrey's china store."

"And you want to leave me here?" demanded Mrs. Judd.

"Well, my dear, after I've explored the city a bit, maybe I'll write you to come on. We ought to have a little trip for once. But we can't both go there, knowing nothing of city ways. Why, it wouldn't be safe for a settled woman like you until I learned the ropes."

"There! That's enough, pa. You shan't go. How can I face my niece, Lizzie Spears, and you not here, and tell her you've gone off on a spree alone?"

"Lizzie? You ain't going to Lizzie's?"

"No, but Lizzie's coming here on a visit. Read that!" She pushed a letter across the table. "Wonder if she favors her ma or her pa. Pretty girl, her ma writes me, and she's been run down from overwork and is going to spend a month with us to recover. I'm going over to Watertown to fetch her next week."

"Let me go, ma."

"You'll stay here," answered his wife firmly.

Stay he did, while his wife departed on the three days of her little holiday. Pa Judd was under instructions to have the house as neat as a pin for their coming. But on that morning he received a letter from his wife, inclosing a hundred-dollar bill. He gasped as it fluttered out. His wife was the family banker, but—what was she sending him a hundred dollars for?

The letter informed him that she had had such a good time she had changed her mind and thought he ought to have his little holiday.

"But you'll have to get off tomorrow before noon," the letter ran, "because I've told Lizzie you're away, and it wouldn't look decent for you to go after she comes."

Pa Judd needed no second invitation. A few hours later saw him firmly established in New York, in an inexpensive hotel, which seemed to him, nevertheless, the height of magnificence.

He spent a happy evening wandering up and down Broadway, looking into the moving picture shows and staring in wonder, and with rather a guilty conscience, at the specimens of feminine beauty on the famous thoroughfare.

When he got back to the hotel he felt that he was seeing life at last. Next day he meant to look up his friends.

But the next morning he found a lady at his table, one of the most ravishing young women whom he had ever seen. She was dressed in the height of fashion, and she showed a marked inclination to be friendly to pa. Before the meal was over they were chatting like old friends, and he had told her the story of his life five times.

In this story, whose later versions varied from the earlier ones, Ma Judd always appeared as the angel by the hearth, for pa was sincerely fond of his wife; but pa gradually grew from a misunderstood youth, condemned to a life of servitude upon a farm, to a modest hero who had deliberately sworn the wicked world.

At lunch the lady was there again. Now it was her turn to confide to pa. She told him that she was a stenographer on a vacation and offered to show him some of the sights of the city.

Pa flushed. He did not know whether this was quite proper, but he did not want to confess his ignorance.

"I guess a bright young lady like you don't want to fuss round with an old feller like me," he said.

"I adore men of fifty," answered the young woman.

Pa, who knew that sixty lay a little, but yet irrecoverably behind him, flushed with pleasure. They took a car downtown to the aquarium.

"This is where the Four Hundred promenade on Sunday mornings," said the young lady.

"You don't say!" ejaculated pa, staring at the sea lion.

Afterward they saw the Brooklyn bridge and went up the Woolworth building. At every step Pa Judd's enthusiasm grew.

"I guess she mightn't feel that way," said the young lady, laughing. "What do you say to a little supper, Mr. Judd?"

This, pa felt sure, was wrong. In fact, he had often read of sirens who lured visitors into restaurants and there ran up bills for incredible sums—two dollars, or even more! Besides, he knew Ma Judd would never have sanctioned this. He resolved not to say one word about the events of that day to her. Yet he meekly accepted the young lady's suggestion and soon after he found himself seated at a table facing her and wondering at his situation. This was seeing life with a vengeance.

"How much money have you, Mr. Judd?" she asked abruptly, as the meal drew to an end.

Slowly and reluctantly Pa Judd produced his hundred dollar bill. Then he fished out eight seventy-five more.

"Why, you're a millionaire!" said the young lady. "I'll take this bill for a hundred and pay the waiter."

"Stop!" muttered Pa Judd. The young lady looked at him scornfully. "What do you mean?" she asked. "Do you think I am going to steal it?"

"No, but—but I thought I'd pay," faltered pa.

"My dear boy," said the young lady—and pa blushed with pleasure—"don't you know it is always the woman who pays?"

Pa, who had dimly heard words to that effect, suffered the young lady to take his hundred dollar bill and watched her pass quickly through the crowded room. Minutes passed. More minutes passed. The waiter was looking at pa. He thrust the bill under his nose. Pa glanced at it. It was for four dollars and twenty cents.

"Your friend's gone, sir," said the waiter, as pa looked up beseechingly into his face.

Pa staggered out of the restaurant. Early the next morning, having located Adam Green, and, after a lengthy conversation concerning earlier days, having succeeded in convincing him of his identity, Pa Judd touched Adam for fifteen dollars, much to Adam's disgust, paid his hotel bill, and took the homeward train.

He reached the little town with 99 cents in his pocket. The place had never looked so fresh and wholesome. Behind him lay the great city, with its abominations. Pa was cured—absolutely cured of his desire for adventure. And his brains were awl with stories for home consumption.

Lucinda had told him nothing about any change, but he had taken it for granted that she would expect at least $75. He had not succeeded in harmonizing the various excuses over which he was meditating when he found that his legs had stopped in front of the house door. And there was Lucinda, fresh as a daisy, waiting to greet him.

"Well, you didn't stay long, pa," she said. "Are you glad to be home again?"

"You bet," answered pa fervently.

"Well, Lizzie's here," said his wife. "Lizzie! Here's your uncle home. Come and kiss your Uncle Judd."

Before pa realized it a buxom young woman was in his arms, imprinting a kiss on either cheek. Pa stared and gulped. It was the young lady of the hotel—also of the restaurant!

Lucinda having vanished, pa looked at his niece with a mixture of emotions depicted on his face. Lizzie smiled.

And pa felt something slipped into his hand. He looked down at his hundred-dollar bill. He looked up into Lizzie's still smiling face.

"It's a plant!" he asked, mouthing the words in his humiliation.

"Yes," nodded his niece, trying hard not to laugh. "But she doesn't know. She was anxious about you, uncle, and I had to go to New York, so I—I tracked you from the station. She thinks—she thinks I never got in a word with you."

"You're a good gal, Lizzie," said pa, with gratitude. "Say, though, would you mind kissing your uncle again? I'm mighty grateful that you didn't do it yesterday."

Boston Version.
Most Boston stories are built up around the conventional tradition of the inviolate classicism of our American Athens. But, like most traditions, this tradition of Boston culture has little to do with the actual facts of contemporary life. Modern Boston is fairly well caricatured in a rendering of the twenty-third Psalm, which a young Bostonian recently offered her public school teacher. She followed the familiar text until she reached the last verse, when she concluded with pious confidence: "Surely, good Mrs. Murphy shall follow me all the days of my life."—Harper's.

On motion, the chair appointed T. J. Beasley, W. S. Lee, J. E. Shropshire, J. J. Armor and John R. Winstead a committee to nominate delegates to the state convention.

The committee reported the following for nomination as delegates to the state convention to meet at Houston August 8th: F. M. Newman, T. P. Grant, Joe A. Adkins.

The delegates were instructed to vote for Walter C. Woodward of Coleman for member of the State Executive committee from the 26th Senatorial district.

Resolutions endorsing Chas. A. Culberson were read and adopted as follows:

Whereas, the Hon. Chas. A. Culberson, present United States Senator from Texas, is now a candidate for re-election in the run-off primary to be held by the Democracy of Texas on August 26th; and,

Whereas, Senator Culberson represented Texas faithfully and efficiently as attorney general for four years, and served as governor of this state for four years, and has served ably, honorably and efficiently as United States Senator for eighteen years; and,

Whereas, Senator Culberson has at all times been true to the principles of democracy and at all times at his post fighting and voting for democratic measures during the republican administrations before the democrats came into power, and since the election of Woodrow Wilson by the democrats to the presidency he has ably stood by the president in all things and has assisted in the enactment of the constructive legislation of the Wilson administration, and is an ardent supporter of the national administration in full sympathy and accord with Woodrow Wilson and his policies, and no man has ever yet challenged his democracy on account of any position he has ever taken or any vote he has ever cast in the United States senate; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the democracy of McCulloch county in county convention assembled, that we heartily endorse Senator Culberson and his loyal course and his record as a democrat, for his faithful and efficient service and his unwavering fidelity to the democracy of the state and nation, and we appeal to the democrats of McCulloch county and the state of Texas to stamp the seal of their approval upon his record of the past by returning him to the United States senate for another term on August 26th, and not to rebuke him now in the mature years of his life, after he has served so long and so faithfully and when every democrat of Texas knows he will always be found represent-

RHEUMATISM IS TORTURE. As Many a Brady Reader Knows Only Too Well.

Many pains that pass as rheumatism are really due to weak kidneys - to the failure of the kidneys to drive off uric acid thoroughly. When you suffer aching, bad joints, backache, too, dizziness and some urinary disturbances, get Doan's Kidney Pills, the medicine that is publicly recommended by over 150,000 people in many different lands. Doan's Kidney Pills help weak kidneys to drive out uric acid, which is often the cause of the backache, rheumatism and lumbago. Brady people have learned their worth. Read this Brady resident's experience:

Mrs. J. Coe, Brady, says: "I was annoyed by kidney complaint for some years and the trouble was diagnosed as uric acid poisoning. I always felt heavy and depressed and had attacks of rheumatism. I was frequently very nervous. Doan's Kidney Pills reduced the uric acid in my system, the drowsiness, nervousness and rheumatic pains went away and I enjoyed much better health. I nearly always have Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from the Jones Drug Co., on hand and use them as needed."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy - get Doan's Kidney Pills - the only one that Mrs. Coe's neighbor had. Jones Drug Co., Prop., Buffalo, N. Y.

TAKES THE PLACE OF DANGEROUS CALOMEL

New Discovery! Dodson's Liver Tone Acts Like Calomel But Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Harmless Liver Medicine for Men, Women, Children—Read Guarantee!

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes in contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated, or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

P. A. Campbell has added to the comfort and general good looks of his home in southwest Brady by the addition of cement walks within and without the yard.

Andrew Sneed, who has been employed with A. Steinhilber as auto machinist, was last Thursday pitched headlong into the auto pit at the shop, when his foot became entangled in a wire. Four broken ribs resulted from the fall, and while Sneed will be incapacitated for several weeks he is already up and about and is making an excellent recovery.

John Martin was plum disgusted with the ball game yesterday. He said they played eleven innings and Brady had run in only three scores. Why, they did better playing than that out in Sonora. He had seen 'em play many a game and they had never failed to run in thirty or forty tallies.

W. I. Myers, who has been spending the past five weeks engaged in the produce business at Temple, Santa Anna and other points, returned Wednesday, and announces that he will again be associated with Joe Myers in the grocery, confectionery, fruit and vegetable business. They expect to handle bananas in car-load lots, and will receive their first shipment within the next week or two. Mr. Myers, since leaving Brady, was married in Belton, and Mrs. Myers accompanied him upon his return to Brady.

Some Things About Wagons

First: It is impossible to make a good wagon unless good wood stock is used, and the wood must be dry, thoroughly seasoned. It is out of the question to get a number one wagon made out of number two wood stock. Neither can you expect the tires, skains and spokes to remain tight if the wood is not dry when it is put in the wagon for it will continue to dry and shrink. It is well to know that all the wagons on the market are not made of the best wood stock, neither is it always thoroughly seasoned. The process of seasoning is expensive and it takes a long time (from six months to four years) depending upon the size of the pieces.

The amount of ironing on a wagon is a big factor for strength and durability. Some of the wood parts need reinforcing to withstand the strain and wear. For example, some wagons use bolster and seaboard plates, three eighths of an inch thick. They are one-half of an inch on the Bain (3/4 size, farm style) and the bolster is ironed the full length underneath. There is a difference in the hound races and the hub bands. A wagon like the Bain weighs from twenty to fifty pounds more than other wagons because of the larger wood pieces and the heavier braces, which means, of course, that it is stronger and more durable. Two qualifications which are of vast importance in considering the value of a wagon.

The workmanship on a wagon is important. There is a difference in the different makes, but the ones in the first class do not differ in this respect to any material degree.

Now in detail: The first thing to consider is the wheels, and before the wheel, the hub. A farmer considers his wagon of value so long as the wheels stand up and he figures the wheel is good so long as the hub is good. So the hub is the heart of the wagon. There are two kinds of hubs generally used, oak and birch. The oak costs the most. It has been used for years and it has proved its worth. The birch does not show checks like the oak, but it has, to quite an extent, the tendency to rot, and this may develop in a few years. If so, the wheel is gone for the average farmer. Remember the oak lasts for twenty and thirty years, and even longer.

The Bain has oak hubs. It has oak spokes and oak felloes. The spokes are staggered, which gives a good foundation. The tires are put on in the old-fashioned way, and years of service prove it is the best way. The wheel is first measured and the tire is cut to fit the wheel, then welded, and heated red hot, put on the wheel immersed in water and the tire sets tight in cooling. It is on to stay. The next thing is the axle. It must, in its place, be as good as the wheel in its place. A wagon, like a chain, is no stronger than the weakest link. The Bain axle is hickory; nothing else is quite so good. Maple axles are not so expensive, neither are they as strong. The Bain axle is full size; in fact, over size, so is the skein. It is just this slightly larger axle and skein which stands the heavy load and rough roads and does not break. In the high grade wagon oak is used for the hounds, reach, bolsters and sandboards.

A running gear, one that is good, will wear out four or five boxes. That being the case, it is obvious that a wagon should be purchased largely on the showing of the gear and not the box. Still it is very important for a good wagon to have a good box for often times the cheap wagon will have quite a good box and the clever salesman will endeavor to sell the wagon by exploiting the box and many times gets away with it.

Look over the Bain box. We find a bottom with five sills (riveted at the ends to keep them from splitting) and reinforced for rear bolster, top box fasteners, and anti-spreader chains, patent end gates and bow staples. All cleats attached with rivets instead of nails, as commonly used by others.

On top of the box rests a solid pattern seat, roomy and comfortable and with handy hand holds on the ends.

There is not a more complete or better box built. At the Bain plant at Kenosha every wagon is set up before it is shipped out. The track is measured, the reach is put in, the bolster put on; the sideboards are placed on the bottom; in fact the wagon is set up complete. If anything is wrong it is found out at the factory, the place to find it. All parts for each wagon are numbered so that when the wagon is set up again it goes together easily and quickly and that is no small matter when business is rushing and time limited.

It only costs a few dollars more to buy a high grade wagon than it does a medium grade or a cheap one. There might be some excuse to invest in the cheaper article if the good wagon cost twice as much as the other, but when the difference is only a few dollars and ten or fifteen years in service, to say nothing of more or less trouble on the way, (loose tires, broken axles, etc.) it doesn't pay.

And now remember and ponder well, "IT TAKES THE BAIN TO STAND THE STRAIN."

TODAY'S GAME DECIDES

BRADY WINS SECOND OF PRESENT SERIES.

Fredericksburg Won First Game Wednesday, and Today's Decides Championship.

In a game that was full of thrills and heart-breaking periods, Brady yesterday wrested the decision from Fredericksburg when certain victory was apparently perched upon the banner of the visitors. The game lasted through 11 innings, and time and again the Brady rooters had their hopes raised high, only to have them dashed to earth when a runner died on base or an error permitted the opposing team to score. The game ended in the last half of the eleventh when, with no one out and with McCleary on second, L. Tipton drove a liner over right fielder's head, scoring McCleary with the winning run, the game standing 3 to 2 in Brady's favor.

Attendance Wednesday is estimated at between 400 and 500, while yesterday's game brought out a crowd of over 500.

First Game.

The game Wednesday was won by Fredericksburg in the sixth inning, when they brought in three scores. One man secured first base on account of being hit by a pitched ball, and with the aid of three bunched hits one error and one sacrifice hit the visitors gained a lead that Brady was unable to overcome. Baldrige was on the mound for Brady and was in fine form, striking out each of the visitors, with the exception of Montague, at least once, and having 13 strike-outs to his credit. Lee for the visitors also pitched a splendid game, striking out each Brady player, except Baldrige and L. Tipton, at least once, and having a total of 12 strike-outs to his credit.

Summary—Stolen bases, C. Yeager, 2; Henderson. Left on bases—Brady, 6; Fredericksburg 2. Two base hits—B. Tipton, W. Yeager. Struck Out—By Baldrige, 13; by Lee, 12. Passed ball—McCleary, 3. Hit by Pitcher—By Baldrige, 1; by Lee, 1. Base on Balls—Off Baldrige, 1; off Lee, 0. Umpire, Maxwell. Time of game, 1:55.

Second Game.

The second game was a battle royal between the pitchers. Had both pitchers been given errorless support, neither side would have scored until the eleventh inning, all the scores up to that time having resulted from errors. Fredericksburg got their first man across the plate in the fourth inning on Henderson's muff of a fly in right field. Brady tied the score in the seventh on Wright's wild throw. Fredericksburg got No. 2 in the eighth inning, when Roberts on first dropped a ball that had been fielded to him. McCleary was presented with a $6.00 purse in the ninth for lamming out a two-bagger, and C. Yeager set the Brady contingent wild by bringing in McCleary with a good clean hit, and incidentally the fans showered him with silver.

In the tenth B. Tipton raised the hopes of the fans when he hit a high fly to third who dropped the ball and allowed a runner to cross home plate, only to have the ball called a foul, and the runner sent back to second, Tipton fanning out.

In the last half of the eleventh McCleary clouted out a two-base hit. In attempting to assist the right fielder in fielding the ball, Ranslem in center field fell over a guard wire, striking his head against the radiator of an automobile and being knocked un-

THE NEW WAY TO SPELL ECONOMY—C-H-A-L-M-E-R-S

A cheap piece of machinery, like the boy with a little knowledge, is sometimes a dangerous thing.

Men are buying better and better lawn mowers, and reapers, and printing presses, and gasoline engines and pumps.

Why? Because they find it pays.

Probably there's no better example of this in the case of automobiles than Chalmers cars.

Figures show that over 75% of men who have bought Chalmers cars this year previously owned a $500, $600 or $800 car.

And the great big increase in Chalmers sales (792% in six months) has come from towns just like this.

In the old days Chalmers cars were sold for the most part in towns like New York and Chicago.

You can find Chalmers cars most any time of the day in most any block in such towns even now.

But in the smaller communities Chalmers cars are most numerous today. Because the people in towns like this were quickest to see the value, note the endurance, and observe the wonderful performance.

• Particularly of this 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers, which is, in our opinion, the most able car that ever came to this town.

Price $1,090 Detroit, a car well worth $1400.

conscious for about fifteen minutes. After considerable delay and while the fans saw the game being called a tie on account of approaching darkness, another player was put in center and L. Tipton rapped out another long drive to right field, bringing in McCleary with the winning run.

While both pitchers gave great exhibitions, Ransom had a little the best of it. Manley for the visitors was in great form up to about the sixth inning, allowing but one scratch hit and striking out the Brady batters almost at will. After that he began to slacken up and as the home team gained confidence they hit him freely, until along in the tenth and eleventh innings they hit him almost at will. Ransom for Brady did not pitch a spectacular game, but played good, even ball, never getting in such a hole but that he easily extricated himself, and as Manley began to wilt, Ransom appeared getting stronger.

Summary—Stolen bases—W. Yeager, Montague, 2; Yarbrough. Left on bases—Brady 5; Fredericksburg, 5. Two-base hits—McCleary, 2; Ransom; L. Tipton. Passed ball—McCleary 1. Struck out—By Ransom, 5; by Manley, 10. Hit by pitcher—Ransom, 2; Manley, 1. Base on balls—Off Ransom, 6; off Manley, 2. Umpire, Maxwell. Time of game—2:30.
