

OPENING PROGRAM BRADY CHAUTAUQUA SATURDAY 3:00 P. M.

BRADY CHAUTAUQUA OPENS WITH FIVE-DAY DOUBLE PROGRAM SAT.

MUSICAL CONCERTS, QUARTETTES, VIOLIN SOLOS, LECTURES AND REPRODUCTION OF FAMOUS LOVE COMEDY, "PEG O' MY HEART" INCLUDED IN OFFERING.

The Brady Chautauqua will open its fourth annual program on next Saturday afternoon, 3:00 o'clock, at the Methodist tabernacle with a musical entertainment by the Metropolitan Symphony club, one of the most noted aggregations of its kind on the chautauqua platform. The opening number will be but one of ten exceptionally strong and interesting numbers, and everyone attending is assured of an enjoyable entertainment. The program Sunday by the Maryland Singers will be adapted to the spirit of the day, and is certain to be doubly interesting to all who love to hear the songs and melodies that will endure through all the ages, sung by this notable concert company.

Sponsors for the 1920 chautauqua are quite well pleased with prospects for a successful season. Eleven team of workers have thoroughly canvassed the city selling season tickets, and have succeeded in securing sales that practically assure meeting of the sum guaranteed the White & Myers Chautauqua system. Something like fifty additional tickets will have to be sold in order to meet incidental expenses, but it is felt certain that this number will be called for before the opening program. Inasmuch as the local committee secures greater benefit from tickets sold in advance of the opening number, everyone who intends going to the chautauqua should make their purchase of tickets at the earliest possible moment, and by all means prior to Saturday afternoon.

The lecture platform has been built at the tabernacle and everything is now in readiness for the event.

The following is the complete five days' program, together with prices of admission to each event:

SIX YEAR OLD SON OF A. T. EKLUND, MELVIN, INSTANTLY KILLED WED.

One of the saddest tragedies The Standard has chronicled is the death of little Raymond Eklund, six-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Eklund of Melvin, which occurred about noon on last Wednesday, May 26th. While riding on a wagon, the little fellow lost his balance and toppled to the ground, the wagon wheel passing over his body. It was thought his neck was broken, as death was instantaneous.

The little body was tenderly laid at rest in Melvin cemetery Thursday morning, services being conducted by the Rev. Otto Martinson. Attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Eklund and son, Leonard, of Brady; also Miss Ellen Jacobson and Fritz Jacobson, sister and brother of Mrs. Eklund, and Irvine Ake, a brother-in-law and his son, all of Rochelle.

Besides the grief-stricken parents, one brother and two sisters are left to mourn the untimely passing away of little Raymond.

MUSIC AND EXPRESSION.

Miss Pinkie Jones will teach Music and Expression in Brady. Summer term will embrace June and July.

Fall term will open September the first. Those interested may telephone 365.

A few 1919 press notices:

The program was devoted to the music of Romantic composers and was of unusual interest. The first number, Mendelssohn's Presto from concerto in g minor, was played by Miss Jones with Prof. Myer at the second piano. Miss Jones plays accurately and brilliantly. And, as was demonstrated later in her performance of "Hark, Hark The Lark"—Shubert-Liszt with delicacy and feeling.—Brownwood Bulletin.

"Miss Jones played the Concerto Etude by MacDowell, with fine control of touch and style. Worthy of special praise was the two piano pieces played by Miss Jones and Miss Crowder. This was a difficult arrangement from the symphonic poem "Danse Macabre" by Saint-Saens. The performers played with splendid ensemble, producing a brilliant effect.—Brownwood Bulletin.

ARTHUR THORNBLOOM HURT IN MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT SUNDAY—FOOT IS SMASHED

Driving at a rapid speed, and carrying a double load, a heavy motorcycle, driven by Arthur Thornbloom, with Hilary Tindel riding on the rumble seat, Sunday crashed into the front wheel of the A. L. Lang automobile, driven by Miss Lillie Lang, the impact hurling machine and riders a distance of some fifteen or twenty feet, where they crumpled up with Thornbloom pinned underneath the machine. The accident occurred about 5:30 in the afternoon at the street intersection by the Baptist parsonage. The motor-cyclist was driving north, and the automobile going west. As she approached the intersection, Miss Lang sounded her horn, having observed a motorcycle approaching. It chanced that two motorcycles were coming down the street, with Thornbloom slightly behind. The first machine cleared the intersection just ahead of the auto, but Thornbloom was not so fortunate, and was unable to check his speed in time to stop.

Thornbloom was found to be quite badly hurt, the pedal of the machine having mashed his foot, breaking one of the bones, besides which he suffered bruises and scratches about the hand and arm. Tindel received a cut on his leg. Miss Lang stopped, and with the assistance of bystanders, helped the injured men into her car and carried them to the sanitarium for treatment. It is thought a week or ten days will be required for Thornbloom to make a recovery. The Lang car sustained a bent spring and fender.

No blame attaches to Miss Lang in the matter, as she is a most careful driver, and while the experience was most nerve-racking, she maintained her presence of mind and lent every possible assistance to relieve the distress of the unfortunate victims.

AVIATORS HAVE THRILLING ESCAPE FROM DEATH IN PLANE CRASH SUN.

BIG U. S. DeHAVILAND PLANE COMPLETELY WRECKED BY CRASHING INTO A TREE IN TOM JORDAN'S PASTURE—ESCAPE WITH MINOR INJURIES.

The big DeHaviland plane, part of the equipment of the Air Park Recruiting detachment, which spent Thursday, Friday and Saturday here while out on a recruiting jaunt, was completely wrecked about 10:00 o'clock Sunday morning when the plane attempted to take off on its return trip to Kelly Field at San Antonio. Lieut. T. J. Koenig, pilot, and First Lieut. R. O. Hunnam, observer, escaped death most miraculously; in fact, Koenig alone suffered a few minor bruises. Hunnam was thrown clear of the plane when it struck, landing in the tree top, from where he was enabled to drop down to the plane and make his descent to terra firma. Koenig was pinned in his seat by one of the broken plane cables, and had to be chopped free.

The accident is ascribed to the engine missing, which prevented the plane from rising. The plane had been parked in the E. B. Scarborough field, just west of the Coleman road,

BASE BALL LORE—KELLY FIELD WINS THREE—OR WHY WE COULDN'T WIN

Kelly Field base ball team won Thursday's game; also they won Friday's game; and, too, they won Saturday's game. They got all three, and we are glad they did, 'cause we'd a-been plumb ashamed of them if they hadn't. The Kelly Field team is a bunch of the same calibre as professionals, and we don't believe they would deny it. They can hit; they can sacrifice; they can pilfer bases; they can peg balls; they can make squeeze plays. At that, and with all their training, they come a long ways from making a first class exhibition of ball. Brady amateurs—a picked up and patched up team—made 8 scores off Kelly Field in the first game and 6 tallies in the second. That makes Brady show up mighty well, or the Kelly Field team mighty bad—whichever way you want to view it.

Brady team was strengthened by the addition of out-of-town players. At the same time it was badly weakened by lack of training and team work—so badly, in fact, that there is no doubt but what the team made a poorer showing than it might have, had only the regular team line-up been maintained.

Thursday's game was too ragged on both sides to mention. Beasley and Cox of Mercury furnished the battery for Brady and put up a good fight, but lacked support badly. Eller, a brother of the famous "Hod" Eller, the crack pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds and the only pitcher to win two games of the world series, was in the box for Kelly Field. J. A. Maxwell umpired the game and his decisions left no room for doubt. Score 14 to 8.

Friday's game was the star exhibition of the series. Hughes was in the box for Brady, with Cox catching. Hughes was somewhat wild to begin with, but soon warmed up and pitched spectacular ball, securing 14 strike-outs on the visitors. Brady tied the score 5 to 5 in the 3rd inning and maintained the tie up to the sixth inning, when the Kelly Field bunch got their wind and made the runs that won the game. The Brady bunch hit the ball frequently, but failed to place their hits safely. Final score, 12 to 6.

Saturday's game was so one-sided from the time the first man up swatted the first ball pitched by Beasley for a safe hit up to the time the game was called on account of rain in the 8th inning, as to be devoid of interest. Murchison caught part of the game, but hurt his arm, and Cox finished in his stead behind the bat. Score when game was called, 9 to 1.

This afternoon Brady has a game matched with Melvin team.

and about a mile from town. Upon taking off, the plane arose above the telephone wires, when the engine began missing, letting the plane drop simultaneously. Unable to find a safe landing place, Lt. Koenig attempted to force the plane to rise and clear Live Oak creek so as to land in the field on the other side. The plane was flying so low, however, that it struck a tree, tearing off one wing. Hunnam, seeing the danger of a fall into the pool of water some fifteen or twenty feet deep, kicked the rudder and forced the plane around, when it crashed into the forks of a big tree at the edge of the bluff overlooking the creek and just about fifteen feet from the water's edge.

Tom Jordan, who was in his field, was the only spectator. He hurried to the scene, and with an axe managed to extricate Koenig from his precarious position, the cable from the broken wing having become wrapped around the pilot's seat in such fashion as to securely fasten him in. The plane twice caught on fire, but the aviators managed to extinguish the blaze.

While both men preserved their presence of mind during the strenuous experience, they all but suffered a nervous breakdown temporarily when all danger was past. The accident was Lt. Hunnam's seventh fall, and one of his narrowest escapes.

So completely was the plane wrecked that no effort was made to salvage anything except the motor and a few other parts. Souvenir hunters completed the wrecking of the plane by carrying off with them various mementoes. The engine and salvaged parts will be shipped tonight by rail to Kelly Field.

The recruiting detachment left Sunday morning on their return to Kelly Field, Brady having been the last stop on their itinerary. Two recruits for the air service were secured, one being R. D. Allison of San Saba. Lieuts. Koenig and Hunnam and their crew of wreckers completed the disposition of the plane wreck this morning and left in their auto to join the balance of the detachment at the aviation field.

BRADY, TEXAS, June 1, 1920.

HONEST INJUN.

If it takes a recruiting detachment of twenty-eight men, with brass band and base ball club accompaniment, one week and a 500 mile jaunt, to secure two air service recruits and put one airplane in the junk heap, how long did it take to recruit the U. S.'s present army of flyers? This is no puzzle—it is a problem.

A TEMPTATION.

The Texas Press association meets in Houston June 10, 11 and 12th, and Houston has prepared "some" program for the occasion—so much so, in fact, that the temptation is sure to prove too strong, and The Standard editor is bound to be numbered among the "missing from Brady" on these dates. Here is what Editor John E. Cooke, vice-president of the association, says about the meeting:

The Reporter man is just in receipt of the complete program showing the entertainment features which the city of Houston will stage for the members of the Texas Press association in their annual convention there June 10, 11 and 12th. The association is 42 years old, and it is safe to say that more elaborate entertainment was never planned for the newspaper men of Texas than this occasion will present. That member of the association who misses the Houston meeting will have something to regret for the remainder of his life. Here's what Sam Fore, president of the association, has to say about it in his Floresville Chronicle-Journal:

"If any member of the Texas Press association fails to attend the Houston meeting on June 10 to 12th, he is going to miss the time of his life. Judd Mortimer Lewis and a few of the other live wires of the Bayou City have arranged an entertainment program, the like of which was never before attempted by any city entertaining the convention. To be a little confidential, boys, they had arranged so much entertainment that Sam Harben was forced to make a special trip to Houston last Sunday and meet with the committee and re-arrange the program. He finally managed to get them to consent to give us enough time on the business session to open and close the meeting. Boys, don't miss it! Take our word for it."

And here's what Secretary Sam Harben, of the Richardson Echo, has to say about it:

"The complete program for the meeting of the Texas Press association in Houston, June 10-12th, is this week being mailed out to the members and reflects a grand and glorious time for all who attend this session. There will be more doing at this meeting of the association, in a genuine pleasure way, than ever handed out to any meeting at any time. The association has not met in Houston for 19 years. Houston is determined to show them what they have been missing. Ship channel rides, picnics, dinners, special train rides, inspection of state farms, of sugar factories, banquets, theatre parties, flying

LAST "QUANTRELL HELLION" IS FIGHTING LIFE'S BATTLE IN FORT WORTH HOSPITAL

The last of the "Quantrell Hellions" is fighting his last fight in the same soldierly manner that he went thru the campaigns of the Civil war, the Franco-Prussian war, in Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and South America. He is still game, and the light in his eyes bids defiance to the inevitable.

Captain William Wyeth James, age 72, occupies a bed at the entrance of the general ward at the City and County hospital, where he has been for some time. Here he greets his friends who drop in to see him almost daily. He is gradually becoming weaker, his friends say, but he has far from given up the fight.

Perhaps few characters in the history of the early days of the South have stories so interesting as those of Captain Frank James. He is a cousin of Jesse and Frank James, and served with Colonel Charles W. Quantrell during the Civil war. In 1862, when still a young chap he joined Quantrell, and the same month he was outlawed, for having killed eight Jayhawkers in a fight the year previous. Orders were issued to shoot or hang him as soon as caught, but he was never caught nor never surrendered until September 19, 1919, in Ft. Worth.

After the termination of the Civil war, he joined the James boys and was a member of the Ku-Klux Klan. Early in 1870 he went to London and with a party of young men joined a foreign legion in the Franco-Prussian war, serving until peace had been signed, before returning to England.

From England he joined a party that went to Australia and joined in the army in a war against the bushmen.

From Australia he went to New Zealand and joined in a war against the native Indians.

The early days of 1879 found him in South Africa, in the British army, under the command of Governor Johnsdorf. After the surrender of King Cartanago to General Roberts, Captain James left the service and went to South America. There, however, the fighting and the life was not to his liking, so he returned to the United States in 1880, landing at Galveston.

Since that time he has been making his home in Texas, and prior to the death of Frank James several years ago, the cousins spent many enjoyable vacations together in Texas.

From the writ of surrender, the following information is contained:

William Wyeth James, Confederate veteran, was born July 6, 1848. He joined Col. Charles William Quantrell at Independence, Mo., July, 1862, and served throughout the war. He was wounded three times, once in the head at Cane Hill, the left leg at Centralia, and in the left foot in a running fight in LaFayette county, Missouri, two or three months before the end of the war.

He took part in the Independence, Olinthe, Newtonia, Prairie Grove, Cane Hill, Fayette, Centralia, Little Blue Waverly and many other engagements.—Fort Worth Record.

THERE'S A LIVE WIRE REPORTER UP IN KANSAS —JUST READ HIS DOPE

You'll have to hand it to that reporter up in Kansas who got the jump on the Spring season fish-stories by putting the following two tales across in good Associated Press style. Just read 'em, and beat 'em if you can:

"Hutchison, Kans., May 27.—Electrical eccentricities occurring in Western Kansas on the heels of a severe dust storm have been investigated by S. D. Flora, state meteorologist. It was reported that:

Barbed wire fences became charged and one, in an authenticated instance, set fire to dry grass and caused a prairie fire.

A dog chained to a wire clothes line set up a prolonged howling and when its master tried to unsnap the chain he got such a shock as to reveal unmistakably the cause of the canine's woe.

"Balls of fire, according to cattlemen, formed on the tips of the cattle's horns. A Cheyenne county ranchman reported driving a bunch of cattle through the storm at night with the cattle furnishing a continuous display.

Automobiles on highways, in the western part of the state halted without explanation. Batteries in many instances were burned out and persons touching metal parts received shocks.

An electrician of Hutchinson got his automobile going as usual by letting a wire trail behind the car which grounded the charge.

Cooking utensils on stoves became so highly charged that housewives had to use flatiron holders or gloves to avoid a shock.

The theory advanced by the state meteorologist for the phenomena is that although there was no thunder or lightning accompanying the storm the immense amount of dust and sand in the air created static electricity.

'Mud Ball' Storm in Kans. Kills Cattle Smith Centre, Kans., May 27.—Now comes a "mud ball" storm in Kansas! Rain, falling through huge clouds of dust near here the other day formed large mudballs, some of them weighing in the neighborhood of five pounds. They froze after forming and when they struck the earth, missiles not to be reckoned lightly with.

MISS PINKIE JONES ONLY ONE OF CLASS OF FIVE
TO PLAY IN CONCERT

Miss Pinkie Jones, who announces that she will teach music and expression in Brady the next two months, has the honor of being the only pupil out of the graduating class in music at Howard Payne college to play in concert with the class instructor, Prof. Meyer. Also, Miss Jones was one of two members of the class playing in concert. The following very complimentary notices appeared in the Brownwood Bulletin:

"The commencement week recital at Howard Payne Chapel on Monday evening was attended by a large audience. In spite of the omission of certain numbers owing to illness the program was a distinct success. The Misses Kilgore and Burt entertained their listeners greatly with readings from Tarkington, Dorothy Dix and Eugene Field.

"The piano numbers were brilliant and interesting. Miss Jones played the Concert Etude by MacDowell with fine control of touch and style. The difficult Rondo-Capriccioso, Mendelssohn, was played with success, by Miss Pearl Davis, Miss Jewel Thomas played beautifully, with musicianly touch and expression, the Barcarolle by Liszt. Miss Josephine Gilliam displayed much natural grace and talent in "En Conrart," by Godard. Worthy of special praise was the two-piano piece played by Miss Jones and Miss Crowder. This was a difficult arrangement from the symphonic poem "Danse Macabre," by Saint-Saens. The performers played with splendid ensemble, producing a brilliant effect.

"The program closed with two beautifully rendered vocal duets sung by Miss Juel Ray and Miss Adele Ray.

Second Historical Recital.
"The second of a series of historical recitals presented by the diploma class in piano was given at Howard Payne Chapel on Saturday evening, April 12th.

"The program was devoted to the music of Romantic composers and was of unusual interest. The first number, Mendelssohn's Presto from concerto in g minor, was played by Miss Jones with Prof. Meyer at the second piano. Miss Jones played accurately and brilliantly, and, as was demonstrated later in her performance of "Hark, Hark, the Lark"—Shubert-Liszt, with delicate and feeling. Mendelssohn was further represented by the celebrated Rhondo Capriccioso played by Miss Davis. This number was given with vigor and appreciation of the composer's intentions. Miss Davis displays the essentials of a good technique.

"The greatest of the romantic school Chopin, was presented by a recitane, two valses and the polonaise in e sharp. Miss Everett deserves special mention for her graceful performance of the valse in g flat. She plays with a lovely touch. Miss Huddleston gave a reading of the Polonaise which was good and even brilliant at moments.

"The Schubert and Schumann numbers, the impromptu in b flat and the Ardante with variations for two pianos played by Miss Beakley and by the Misses Davis and Everett were excellent specimens of these composers' work. The entire program was a most praiseworthy effort.

"The third recital of this series will be devoted to the modern composers and will be given on Friday, April 25."

HER AUNT'S WILL

By JACK LAWTON.

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

Aunt Trimble leaned back in her chair and regarded her niece wrathfully.

"If you persist in your intention to marry this nobody," she said, "I will cut you out of my will and leave the money to charity. Was it to marry a poor clerk that I gave you education and accomplishments of the best?"

"Harry is not a nobody," Rhoda indignantly retorted, "he is a good man, and true. And he will not always be a clerk. His chosen business is one which promises steady advancement. But if it didn't," the girl added vehemently, "I'd marry him just the same."

"No doubt," muttered Aunt Trimble scornfully, "this Harry has not used his dark romantic eyes in vain. But if he were the man you think him to be, he would never accept the sacrifice you are making."

"Sacrifice!" cried the girl, the blue eyes gleaming. "Do you compare love for him with an old house no matter how grand and imposing? Why, I'd be happier in two rooms with my Harry, than mistress of all this estate."

"You shall have your wish then, ungrateful girl," the Aunt said bitterly; impulsively she tapped a bell at her side.

"Get Mr. Timmons, my lawyer on the phone," she commanded the maid who answered. "Tell him my business is immediately important. I wish to change my will."

A man's figure came quickly through the hall.

"I could not help hearing," said a grave voice, "what has just been said. Your voices carried, as I came up."

The young man turned a white face upon the girl, his eyes were tragic. "And Rhoda," he went on, "your aunt is right about my selfishness in allowing you to make this sacrifice, I—can't take you this way dear; I'm but a poor clerk after all, and I have not the courage to face those 'two rooms' of which you spoke, for your home. After all the luxury of your bringing up, in your heart, you would soon reproach me. But, neither can I give you up dear. Won't you wait Rhoda, until I see my way perhaps to better things? I exact no promise; you shall be free to choose, but—"

The old lady leaned forward, rustling in her silks.

"You hear your lover," she said sharply. "Even he at last realizes the barrier between. You can give him your promise of waiting, without being actually bound. Then, when Mr. Timmons arrives, I shall say that his presence is not needed. My will shall remain as it is, with you as sole legatee."

With burning cheeks the girl stood regarding them both—the trembling old aunt, the sorrowful lover.

"You may do as you wish with your will, Aunt Trimble," she said quietly. "And you, Harry, may renounce me if you will. I have no wish to wait for a more successful suitor—for that I suppose is what the 'waiting' amounts to." She left the room before either could reply.

The man bowed to the old woman in her chair and went sadly down the hall and out into the street. When he endeavored upon the following morning to see his sweetheart, and to make a further plea for her own interests, he was met by the discouraging announcement that Rhoda had secretly departed from her aunt's dwelling the night before, leaving only a brief message to the effect that she had gone away to "earn her living."

The aunt looked white and worn when Harry Amsden sought her out.

"Rhoda has left us completely in the dark as to her whereabouts," she said wearily, "but, she will come back."

Rhoda did not come back. Harry's own search for her was unavailing. The girl had apparently been lost among the many brave workers of whose lives she had heretofore known nothing.

Hopelessly, from time to time, the lover sought the stern old woman. An occasional communication came from Rhoda at various places. She was evidently using chance friends to mail her letters from different points. The messages told them merely that she was well and self-supporting. The last brought a slight clue, which Harry followed immediately to success.

Rhoda greeted him wan and joyous-eyed, from behind the head of a customer upon whom she had been trying various hats. But Harry did not leave his love, thereafter, until he brought her home with him as his wife.

He had telegraphed Aunt Trimble as soon as Rhoda had been found. Later he sent word of their marriage; but when the two ascended in some trepidation the steps of the stately old mansion, Mr. Timmons, the lawyer, met them at the door.

"Your Aunt Trimble went happily to sleep last night," he told them. "It is a sleep from which she will never awaken." And then Rhoda and her husband sat, still solemn in their wonder, in the old library. Mr. Timmons came to them.

Your aunt wished me to tell you without ceremony," he said solemnly, "of the changes in her will. She wanted it understood that the will was altered the day that Harry Amsden made his renunciation. The entire estate and fortune was bequeathed to him with a compliment in the wording: "Had I met in my youth a man like Harry Amsden," wrote your aunt, "I could not have lived my life single."

PERSONAL MENTION

J. D. Branscum is a business visitor in Fort Worth this week.

Miss Stella Traweck left Sunday night for C. I. A. at Denton, where she will attend the summer term of school.

Miss Beryl Bradley arrived Saturday from Sherman for a visit of a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Marion Deans.

Miss Birdie Hughes of Granger arrived the past week and is a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Lawrence, and family.

KEPT HER AWAKE

The Terrible Pains in Back and Sides. Cardui Gave Relief.

Marksville, La.—Mrs. Alice Johnson, of this place, writes: "For one year I suffered with an awful misery in my back and sides. My left side was hurting me all the time. The misery was something awful.

I could not do anything, not even sleep at night. It kept me awake most of the night. . . I took different medicines, but nothing did me any good or relieved me until I took Cardui. . .

I was not able to do any of my work for one year and I got worse all the time, was confined to my bed off and on. I got so bad with my back that when I stooped down I was not able to straighten up again. . . I decided I would try Cardui. . . By time I had taken the entire bottle I was feeling pretty good and could straighten up and my pains were nearly all gone.

I shall always praise Cardui. I continued taking it until I was strong and well." If you suffer from pains due to female complaints, Cardui may be just what you need. Thousands of women who once suffered in this way now praise Cardui for their present good health. Give it a trial.

Kindergarten Helps for Parents

This is No. 39 of a series of articles issued by the National Kindergarten Association. They will appear weekly in these columns.

By MRS. EDITH CLARK COWLES.

If there is no kindergarten near enough for the child to attend when he reaches the stage of development that should have more definite purpose than mere activity of body or handling of materials, the intelligent mother may guide his play in such manner as to supply in a measure the processes of development adopted by the trained kindergarten.

A table or trough containing sand has unlimited possibilities for the energetic child. At first there should be free handling of the sand (guarding always against the dangerous sport of throwing the sand at another child). Then simple forms that may be molded with damp sand, then impressions made on the surface of the sand with blocks, tart pan or other objects. Then drawing with the finger or a stick on the smoothed surface of sand. Later on as the child develops it may be suggested to him that he can build a house with blocks in the center and lay out grounds in the sand about it. Twigs and leaves make excellent trees; tiny sprigs help to make the garden. He may even have the beds laid off by shells. A small pan of water sunk in the sand will serve admirably as a lake. Clay can be modeled into people and animals and more blocks will make a barn or stable. The beauty of all this is that the child can do everything himself, and is most happy in the doing.

A wooden box divided once horizontally and once vertically makes a four-roomed house, which can be papered with wall paper samples and furnished with furniture constructed of cardboard. Books of instruction easily understood by most mothers, are usually furnished with the heavy quality of cover paper used for such handwork.

With a pair of blunt pointed scissors plain manila paper or colored paper can be cut into the most fascinating plants, animals, people and many inanimate objects. A cloth scrapbook, or one of heavy paper is easily made at home, into which these cut out objects may be pasted. This is delightful work for rainy days and needs little or no direction except in the use of the paste so as to avoid smearing or waste. A child soon learns to use paste daintily.

Children delight in stringing objects. With a large blunt needle and heavy thread they can string rose hips, or cranberries, acorns, acorn cups and many other natural objects. When these are not available colored wooden kindergarten beads, in the form of spheres, cubes and cylinders can be obtained and strung on shoestrings. These beads supplement blocks in teaching form and the knowledge of color and number.

Milton Bradley Company has a small booklet on bead stringing which applies equally to the stringing of other objects.

Most children develop early a love of numbers and take great delight in counting. When the desire to do this appears, it is well to meet it, but not to force it. The child may count or may string all the beads of one color, and of various colors, by ones, by twos and by threes, according to his age and ability.

A wise mother will not allow any of these exercises to continue indefinitely. As soon as the child appears bored or when a new way of doing the work in hand is not readily accepted, his attention should be diverted to some other form of play or work. There are so many little duties inside and outside of the house which an eager, willing child can assist the mother in performing, he may be kept happily employed, while unconsciously learning much that will be always useful to him.

Toward the close of a busy day, before early tea and bedtime, there comes the period properly known as the "children's hour," when father or mother tells or reads a story. All parents are not gifted story-tellers, but most of them may become, with a little effort, sufficiently adept to be entirely satisfactory to a lenient audience. If the mother begins early with very simple stories she can easily learn to tell these and later, with practice, master the more complex ones. A story told is much more satisfactory to the average little child than a story read.

As the child grows older there are nature study primers and readers which give charming accounts of the lives and habits of plants, insects, fish and animals.

Care should be taken that the books selected are scientifically accurate although simple.

Live pets serve to instill in the child respect for other life beside his own and to give him a sense of responsibility in providing for their care.

Few parents need to be told the value of individual gardening, and if no greater space can be provided, a window box will serve as a garden bed.

The intelligent parents realizes that the child is above all things else a self-active being. This abundant activity is a compelling force which must find an object upon which to spend itself. In other words, the child must be "up and doing." Let us, therefore, endeavor to always provide him with worthy objects upon which to expend that divinely provided energy.

Life lies before him and we wish him not only to obtain the best from life, but to contribute to life something worth while. He exerts influence as unconsciously as he breathes, and as parents it is our privilege to see that he becomes a conscious influence for good.

Every act of his is helping to form the life he is to lead, and it is our privilege to equip him for his journey with a strong, clean, healthy body, a well stocked mind, and a spirit which bids him serve his fellow man and thus "fulfill the law of God."

The following books will be found useful to mothers:

"Froebel's Mother Play, Mottoes and Commentaries," "Froebel's Mother Play, Songs and Music," "Letters to a Mother," Miss Susan E. Blow is the translator of the first two books and the author of the last one. D. Appleton & Co., New York, are the publishers.

EATS ANYTHING SET BEFORE HIM

Eight Years Trouble Gone and Feels Fine Every Day Since Taking Tanlac.

"Since I commenced taking Tanlac all my troubles of eight years' standing have left me and I can do as big a day's work as any man," said J. Curry, a well-known flagman on the Key Route System who lives at 577 West Eleventh St., Oakland, Calif.

"I had the most sort of chronic indigestion," continued Mr. Curry. "I could hardly retain a thing on my stomach and had spells of belching and nausea almost every meal and a bad taste in my mouth nearly all the time. I was so badly constipated that I had to take a laxative nearly every day, was troubled with lumbago and was so nervous that at night I would roll and tumble from one side of the bed to the other without getting near enough sleep and when morning came I would be so tired I simply had to drag myself to work."

"I began taking Tanlac and will say right here it measures up to everything people say of it, for it has put me back in as fine health as I ever was. I eat anything set before me without the slightest bad after effects. I sleep like a log every night and all my other troubles are gone. I have more life and energy about me than I have had in years and can't praise Tanlac enough, for it is the most dependable medicine I ever heard of."

Tanlac is sold in Brady by Trigg Drug Co., in Mercury by J. T. Matlock and in Rochelle by C. W. Carr.

CITATION.

THE STATE OF TEXAS, To the Sheriff or any Constable of McCulloch County, Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon Albert Morris, and the heirs and unknown heirs of Albert Morris, by making publication of this citation in some newspaper published in McCulloch County, Texas, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest County where a newspaper is published, once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day of this citation, to be and appear before the District Court of McCulloch County, Texas, at the next regular term thereof, to be held at the Court House, in Brady, Texas, on the second Monday after the first Monday in September 1920, the same being the 20th day of September, A. D. 1920, then and there to answer the plaintiff's petition filed in a suit in said Court on the 8th day of May, A. D. 1920, wherein B. L. Hughes and S. W. Hughes are Plaintiffs and Albert Morris and the heirs and unknown heirs of Albert Morris are defendants, the file No. of said suit being No. 1929. The nature of plaintiff's demand and their cause of action is an action of trespass to try title for the tracts of land situate in McCulloch County, Texas, and being all of Lot No. 2 in Block No. 12 in the original town of Brady, Texas, commonly known as Fulcher donation to said town of Brady and being the same land conveyed to B. L. Hughes and S. W. Hughes by Emma O. Dawson et al by deed dated November 10, 1919, and plaintiffs plead statutes of limitation of three, five and ten years and pleads chain of title from plaintiff to themselves.

Herein Fail Not, but have you before said Court, on the said first day of the next term thereof, this Writ, with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Brady, Texas, this 10th day of May, A. D. 1920. P. A. CAMPBELL, Clerk of the District Court, McCulloch County, Texas.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING DECLARED TO BE BEST BY MILWAUKEE EXPERT

"Attainable Ideals in Newspaper Advertising" was the subject discussed by Benjamin Sherbow, before the advertising division of Milwaukee last week.

Mr. Sherbow pointed out that during 1919 business of the United States had invested in advertising to the extent of $800,000,000 of which at least $400,000,000 was for newspaper advertising.

He urged merchants to give to advertising the same intelligent study and planning that they give to buying and selling, and to make it as attractive as they make their stores and window displays.

"Much grief is due to the fact that things are done in a rush," said Mr. Sherbow. "There should be more careful planning ahead of time. It is unfair and unbusiness-like not to give newspapers more time for their part of the work."—Fourth Estate.

A cloth scrapbook, or one of heavy paper is easily made at home, into which these cut out objects may be pasted. This is delightful work for rainy days and needs little or no direction except in the use of the paste so as to avoid smearing or waste. A child soon learns to use paste daintily.

Children delight in stringing objects. With a large blunt needle and heavy thread they can string rose hips, or cranberries, acorns, acorn cups and many other natural objects. When these are not available colored wooden kindergarten beads, in the form of spheres, cubes and cylinders can be obtained and strung on shoestrings. These beads supply ment blocks in teaching form and the knowledge of color and number.

Milton Bradley Company has a small booklet on bead stringing which applies equally to the stringing of other objects.

Most children develop early a love of numbers and take great delight in counting. When the desire to do this appears, it is well to meet it, but not to force it. The child may count or may string all the beads of one color, and of various colors, by ones, by twos and by threes, according to his age and ability.

A wise mother will not allow any of these exercises to continue indefinitely. As soon as the child appears bored or when a new way of doing the work in hand is not readily accepted, his attention should be diverted to some other form of play or work. There are so many little duties inside and outside of the house which an eager, willing child can assist the mother in performing, he may be kept happily employed, while unconsciously learning much that will be always useful to him.

Toward the close of a busy day, before early tea and bedtime, there comes the period properly known as the "children's hour," when father or mother tells or reads a story. All parents are not gifted story-tellers, but most of them may become, with a little effort, sufficiently adept to be entirely satisfactory to a lenient audience. If the mother begins early with very simple stories she can easily learn to tell these and later, with practice, master the more complex ones. A story told is much more satisfactory to the average little child than a story read.

As the child grows older there are nature study primers and readers which give charming accounts of the lives and habits of plants, insects, fish and animals.

Care should be taken that the books selected are scientifically accurate although simple.

Live pets serve to instill in the child respect for other life beside his own and to give him a sense of responsibility in providing for their care.

Few parents need to be told the value of individual gardening, and if no greater space can be provided, a window box will serve as a garden bed.

The intelligent parent realizes that the child is above all things else a self-active being. This abundant activity is a compelling force which must find an object upon which to spend itself. In other words, the child must be "up and doing." Let us, therefore, endeavor to always provide him with worthy objects upon which to expend that divinely provided energy.

Life lies before him and we wish him not only to obtain the best from life, but to contribute to life something worth while. He exerts influence as unconsciously as he breathes, and as parents it is our privilege to see that he becomes a conscious influence for good.

Every act of his is helping to form the life he is to lead, and it is one privilege to equip him for his journey with a strong, clean, healthy body, a well stocked mind, and a spirit which bids him serve his fellow man and thus "fulfill the law of God."

The following books will be found useful to mothers:
 "Froebel's Mother Play, Mottoes and Commentaries," "Froebel's Mother Play, Songs and Music," "Letters to a Mother," Miss Susan E. Blow is the translator of the first two books and the author of the last one. D. Appleton & Co., New York, are the publishers.

Eight Years Trouble Gone and Feels Fine Every Day Since Taking Tanlac.

"Since I commenced taking Tanlac all my troubles of eight years' standing have left me and I can do as big a day's work as any man," said J. Curry, a well-known flagman on the Key Route System who lives at 577 West Eleventh St., Oakland, Calif.

"I had the worst sort of chronic indigestion," continued Mr. Curry. "I could hardly retain a thing on my stomach and had spells of belching and nausea almost every meal and a bad taste in my mouth nearly all the time. I was so badly constipated that I had to take a laxative nearly every day, was troubled with lumbago and was so nervous that at night I would roll and tumble from one side of the bed to the other without getting near enough sleep and when morning came I would be so tired I simply had to drag myself to work."

"I began taking Tanlac and will say right here it measures up to everything people say of it, for it has put me back in as fine health as I ever was. I eat anything set before me without the slightest bad after effects. I sleep like a log every night and all my other troubles are gone. I have more life and energy about me than I have had in years and can't praise Tanlac enough, for it is the most dependable medicine I ever heard of."

Tanlac is sold in Brady by Trigg Drug Co., in Mercury by J. T. Matlock and in Rochelle by C. W. Carr.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING DECLARED TO BE BEST BY MILWAUKEE EXPERT

"Attainable Ideals in Newspaper Advertising" was the subject discussed by Benjamin Sherbow, before the advertising division of Milwaukee last week.

Mr. Sherbow pointed out that during 1919 business of the United States had invested in advertising to the extent of $800,000,000 of which at least $400,000,000 was for newspaper advertising.

He urged merchants to give to advertising the same intelligent study and planning that they give to buying and selling, and to make it as attractive as they make their stores and window displays.

"Much grief is due to the fact that things are done in a rush," said Mr. Sherbow. "There should be more careful planning ahead of time. It is unfair and unbusiness-like not to give newspapers more time for their part of the work."—Fourth Estate.

Mother O' Mine!

If I were hanged on the highest hill,
 Mother o' mine! O Mother o' mine!
 I know whose love would follow me still,
 Mother o' mine! O Mother o' mine!

If I were drowned in the deepest sea,
 Mother o' mine! O Mother o' mine!
 I know whose tears would come down to me,
 Mother o' mine! O Mother o' mine!

If I were damned of body and soul,
 Mother o' mine! O Mother o' mine!
 I know whose prayers would make me whole,
 Mother o' mine! O Mother o' mine!

"How We Cleared Our Summer Home of Rats," by Mrs. Perry

"When we opened our seaside home last May, it was alive with rats. They'd gnawed all the upholstery. We cleaned them out in a week with RAT-SNAP. I prefer this rat killer because it comes in cake form, no mixing. Saves dirtying hands and plates." Three sizes, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by O. D. Mann & Sons, and Trigg Drug Co.

COUNTY SCHOOL MEETING TO APPOINT TRUSTEES FOR COMMON SCHOOL DISTRICTS

There will be a special meeting of the County School Trustees in the office of the county superintendent on Monday, June 7th, at 2 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of appointing trustees of Common School districts where a vacancy occurs, and transacting such other business that may come before the board.

If there is a vacancy in your school board at present, please taken enough interest in your school to see that these vacancies are filled at this meeting. In all probability, this will be the last meeting of the board until August.

W. M. DEANS,
 Secretary to the Board.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the Child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.
