MONDAY IS FIRE-MEN'S BENEFIT NIGHT AT LYRIC

Brady citizens will have another chance to give concrete evidence of their appreciation and willingness to support the local fire department in their attendance at the Lyric show Monday night, the entire proceeds of which, outside of operating expenses, are to go into the firemen's treasury. Quite naturally the fireboys are interested in seeing a packed house—in fact, every citizen should constitute himself a committee of one to see that he, himself, his family, his neighbors and his friends, attend upon that occasion.

The bill for Monday night will be a 5-reel drama, "The Inferior Sex," in which Mildred Chaplin appears in the leading role. If you have any question or doubt as to which is meant by the "inferior sex," you should see the play for the answer. Suffice to say, you will be intensely interested in this interesting love story, and the remarkable plot that is unfolded.

To those who may not be familiar with the plan under which the fireboys take charge of the theatre Monday night, The Standard would repeat that the first Monday night show in each month is given as a firemen's benefit, for the purpose of providing funds for the operating expenses of the fire department. The fire boys have adopted this method as a means of providing the funds needed, and inasmuch as the organization has made itself one of the leading and most valuable institutions in the city, the citizens should, every one of them, feel called upon to give the fireboys their unstinted support.

The regular prices prevail at the show, that is: 25c is the maximum cost to any one person. In other words, all the fire boys ask of the citizens is that they contribute the amount of $3.00 per year to their support. In return, the fire boys offer a good show once a month and the services of one of the best-organized fire companies in the state.

By attending the show Monday night, you add to your own pleasure and, as well, to the safety of your property through the efficient protection afforded by the Brady Fire department.

PERMIT TO KILL DEER IN MASON COUNTY ISSUED

Austin, Tex., May 30.—Permit to kill deer in Mason county was given to a citizen of that county today by W. W. Boyd, state fish, game and oyster commissioner. The permit was given on an application and following a telegram from John T. Banks, county judge of Mason county, saying that wild deer are destroying the Mason county crops and it will be necessary for them to take drastic preventative measures.

Judge Banks said that "it has not rained here for some time and it is getting dry and I know from former experience that the deer in several different communities will depredate on the crops. In fact they will eat up some crops almost entirely if nothing is done."

Romance.

He had been reading knightly romances and grew dissatisfied with the present sordidness of the world. He believed it to be his duty to inject romance into the daily grind.

On a rainy, muddy day he sallied forth to perform some knightly errand. He beheld a bewitching princess about to step from her limousine upon the dirty pavement. Hastening forward, he read his fur coat under her dainty feet.

She looked at him in surprise. "Well, of all the damn fools," she exclaimed. —Smart Set.

TO HOLD IMPORTANT MASS MEETING TUESDAY—DECIDE REUNION DATES

BRADY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CALLS MEETING FOR 8:00 P. M. TO DECIDE REUNION DATES—WILL BOOST BRADY BAND—RENEW HIGHWAY MARKERS.

President Wilson D. Jordan of the Brady Chamber of Commerce has issued a call for a mass meeting to be held Tuesday evening at 8:00 o'clock at the courthouse for the purpose of deciding upon the dates for holding the Confederate reunion in Brady. Inasmuch as this event is to be one of the greatest ever staged for the old soldiers, it is deemed important that the dates for holding the same be set without further delay, and that all plans for the same be laid forth with so that the committees to be appointed will have plenty of time to do their work effectively. Brady is planning on making the reunion a grand and glorious occasion, first of all for the ex-Confederate veterans, and, next, for all the people of the Brady country.

In addition to setting the reunion dates and mapping out the plans of that occasion, there are a number of other matters of importance that will be brought before the meeting. Among them is the matter of getting the citizens behind a Brady band. This project has aroused great interest among the citizens, and the Chamber of Commerce has been assured that there is ample local talent available and ready to form a band, providing they can have the assurance that the citizens are ready to back them up in their efforts. Tentative proposals have been made, which assure the securing of a first-class instructor for the band, and with quite a number of former band members available, in addition to a large number of younger musicians, there is small question but what a first-class band can be had if the right kind of enthusiasm and support is assured by the citizens.

Still another matter of importance that will be brought up, concerns the highways through Brady. The value

TEMPLE FIRM BUYS SAN SABA FLOUR MILL —OPERATE THIS SUMMER

San Saba, Texas, May 28.—The San Saba flour mills, which have been idle for the last seven or eight years, have been sold to the Childress Grain Co., of Temple, and the new owners will take possession at once. President Childress announced Friday that the mills will be thoroughly overhauled and fully equipped with up-to-date milling machinery so as to be ready for operation this summer.

A spur track is being surveyed to the mills from the main line of the Santa Fe railroad here, and active work on this will start within the next week, according to present plans. This is one of the most important business movements that has taken place in San Saba since the war began in 1914.

WATER WORKS AGAIN SUPPLIES PUREST WATER

The Brady Water Works is again supplying the citizens of Brady with water that should analyze 99% pure, and citizens during the past week have had occasion to note the pure and sparkling qualities of the local supply. While there has been no particular complaint about the water in recent months, yet the sand used in the filter bed was found not to be working to the entire satisfaction of the board of trustees, who thereupon sought to remedy the trouble.

The result was the placing of an order for special sand to use in the filter bed, this sand being shipped from Red Wing, Minn. Although the carload of sand cost but $199, the $547 freight charges together with other incidental expense, made the total cost of the carload run well up towards $800. At that, the local company should have enough sand to operate the filter plant during the entire life of the same.

Following the cleaning out of the filter bed, and the placing of the new sand therein, all the water mains about the city were flushed and the stand pipe given a thorough cleaning about ten days ago, so that there should remain nothing to contaminate the water now being supplied. Brady has one of the best filter plants in the state, and Brady citizens are now getting full benefit of the splendid equipment.

Everett, for Fife, letting the Mercury sluggers down with 4 hits to their credit, while the Fife boys garnered 6 safeties off South Paw Beasley. Mercury hits, however came at opportune times and as a result Mercury won by a score of 3 to 2. Both pitchers had 8 strike-outs to their credit. Each hit one batter and Everett gave one base on balls. Features were hard hitting by both teams. Two lightning doubles by Mercury and catch of a line drive by O. Everett, short stop for Fife with bases full, doubling Donahoe on second and retiring the side. The same teams will play again at Mercury next Saturday and a good game is anticipated. A pretty, well dressed young lady asked me this as she was calling off her grocery list.

"Well," I said to her, "Isn't that plume on your hat the highest part of your hat?"

"Yes, I suppose it is—but what's that got to do with this coffee?"

"That's the way with Gold Plume Coffee—its the highest thing in town in the way of coffee, when it comes to quality and flavor."

"As to the 'Gold' part—isn't it gold that makes us rich?"

"Well, I can say this—there isn't a richer flavored coffee in town than Gold Plume."

"You win," she said. "It's well named. Just for that I'll take two pounds."

"Disappointed, Hatton?"
"With everything in life generally,"
was the reply in a tone of ennui.
"Not including Miss Margery Jackson, of course?" insinuated Herbert McNab, a trace of mockery in his voice.
They were not as yet engaged, but as Herbert and all the social world of Bayside knew, the proud coquette had set the net for the wealthy young city broker. A week at Bayside would settle the affair, Herbert had told mutual friends, and confidentially
he stated he was sorry for it.

"What you want, Hatton, is something in life to interest you," he now said. "Dawdling the time away at clubs, soirees and summer resorts kills a fellow's vitality. Try something for a change."
"As what, for instance?" challenged
Hatton.

"Human interest, philanthropy—
why, say, the very thing! See here—look yonder."

Herbert pointed to a young girl who sat on one of the station benches.

"Looks to be in trouble," Hatton remarked.

"She is. Poor little thing!" said Herbert. "She has been trying to support a widowed mother by taking an art class at the seminary here. It seems she received a rush telegram an hour ago telling her that her mother was dangerously sick, and that if she hoped to see her again in life she must take the first train for Black-ton. She missed it by four minutes, no other train until eight o'clock this evening."

Herbert flashed out of view. Hatton stood studying the forlorn girl for a few moments. Then he went straight up to the bench.

"Excuse me, miss," he said, lifting his hat, "my friend just told me of your misfortune in missing your train."

"It is so heart-breaking!" she sobbed. "My mother is dying, and there is no way of reaching her before midnight."

"You cannot be over seventy-miles by a cross-country route," Hatton. "That is no task for my line. Come, miss, cheer up. We'll try to remedy your trouble."

As he pointed to his touring car the young girl at once understood him.

"You are so kind—so kind," she murmured, as Hatton helped her to a seat in the machine.

Good roads and fair weather made the first stage of the trip pleasant and comfortable.

"Do not delay to thank me," said
Hatton, as two hours later their auto stopped in front of the widow's home at Blackton. "Get to your mother at once, Miss Houston."

She had told him something of her life history during the trip. Her name was Louise Houston. An earnest-faced young man came out of the house while Hatton was getting his machine ready for the return trip.
He seized both hands of his sister's timely friend.

"I cannot find words to thank you,"
he said fervently. "You have saved my dear mother's life. She was sinking fast, and the delusion that someone had stolen Louise away from her,
the doctor said, was distracting her dangerously. She just smiled and sank into sister's arms like a happy child. The doctor says the crisis is past, and thank you and—bless you!"

At eight o'clock that evening fate willed that Hatton, passing an open window at the Jackson home, overheard these words:

"It's time you ceased trifling with your chances, Margery. Mr. Hatton will not stand your coquetry much longer."

"Oh, I can bring him to my feet
when I choose," was the confident reply of the imperious beauty to her maneuvering mamma.

Hatton turned on his heel, and Margery waited in vain for her expected caller that evening.

Hatton wrote a brief note to Margery the next morning. In a very formal manner he announced a prospective motor tour, and indicated that it would end with a resumption of business duties in the city.

That motor tour was not very extended. Hatton felt it his duty to learn how Louise's mother was getting along. He was actually glad when the auto broke down near Blackton.
He put up at the town hotel that night, and called at the Houston home the next day.

That was only the first of many pleasant hours spent with Louise.
There came the crowning moment in those two lives when wistful eyes met the love challenge of honest, earnest ones. It was at the gate of the little cottage, and Hatton said:
"Does your mother still worry over her old fear of your being stolen away?"

"Oh, no," replied Louise innocently.
"That was only a passing delusion."

"Suppose that some one should really steal you away?" suggested Hatton.

"Who would do that with poor little me?" inquired Louise.

Frank Hatton told the fluttering, blushing girl who would, the chance given. With her head resting on his broad, protecting shoulder, she whispered back lovingly:

"You do not need to steal me away, Frank. I would go anywhere in the world with you."

AMERICAN WOMEN—A EULOGY

Frenchman Pays Pretty and Deserved Tribute to the Sex as He Has Observed It.

American women are far and away
the prettiest, youthfulest and smartest (clothes and brains) women on earth. They can also be the sensiblist, kindest and helpfulest, the hardest-worked—no, I mean the hardest working—and they have no rivals for charitable enterprise.

They have a wonderful capacity for being excellent housekeepers, even though they may seem not to keep their houses more than a few minutes in the morning, before flying away, and an hour or two in the evening when they drop exhausted on a sofa. They are good mothers, good daughters and good sisters, and their husbands, who ought to know, proclaim to the whole world, to the earth and to the stars,
to the believing and the unbelieving, that they are incomparable wives. I am ready to testify that they are invaluable friends. But somehow the American woman has faults from which French women are free, and the latter frequently criticize her to the disgust of the uncompromising American man.

In England and France, and generally in all old countries, there is a providential excess of women, and men choose.

A Frenchman marries when he needs help; an American marries when he can afford it.—Ernest Dim-met, in Harper's Magazine.

MORE IN LIFE THAN WEALTH

Man Who Refuses to Let Money
Dominate Him Calls Forth Eulogy
From Rudyard Kipling.

Sooner or later you will see some man to whom the idea of wealth, as mere wealth, does not appeal, whom the methods of amassing wealth do not interest, and who will not accept money if you offer it to him at a certain price. At first you will be inclined to laugh at that man, and think that he is not smart in his ideas. I suggest you watch him closely, for he will presently demonstrate to you that wealth dominates everybody except the man who does not want money.

You may meet the man somewhere, but be sure that whenever or where-ever you meet him, as soon as it comes to a direct issue between you, his little finger will be thicker than your loins. You will find that you have no weapon in your armory with which you can attack him. If more wealth is necessary to you, for purposes not your own, use your left hand to acquire it, but keep your right hand for the proper work in life. If you employ both arms in that game, you will be in danger of stooping.—Rudyard Kipling.

Application Wins.

The ancient fable of the tortoise and the hare tells the whole story of success and failure. It was the constant application and unswerving determination of purpose that brought the tortoise in ahead of his fleet-footed antagonist in that quaint race described by Aesop.

Leo, the great pontiff, was an early riser in order that he might not lose a moment of time in the fulfillment of his great and sacred duties. Thomas Jefferson, though endowed by nature with a brilliant mind and surrounded by every environment conducive to success, knew the need and advantage of constant application. During his school days he held himself to a routine of 15 hours of work a day, and during all his career he was an exemplar and exponent of the thrift of time.—Boston Globe.

Coal as Congealed Gas.

Attention has been invited to an interesting explanation of the burning of coal. Coal, petroleum and illuminating gas are related to one another much as ice, water and steam. For this reason perfect combustion of liquid fuel is already a long step toward vaporization, just as ice is advanced toward steam, when turned into water. The volatile elements of coal are locked up in the solid form, or virtually frozen solid. It has been demonstrated how great an amount of heat must be taken from the so-called permanent gases to make them liquid, and how much more to make them solid. Yet nature has solidified gas into the form of coal, and solid coal, like solid ice, will dissolve into vapor only through the expenditure of heat.

True Friendship.

But what is a friend? Someone said
"It is another name for God," and he is right inasmuch as true friendship is almost divine. A true friend is one who unobtrusively, advises justly, assists readily, adventures boldly, takes all patiently, defends cou-rageously and remains a friend, unchangeably. What a great blessing is a friend with a breast so trusty that we may safely bury all our secrets in it, whose conscience we may fear less than our own, who can relieve our cares by his conversation, our doubts by his counsels, our sadness by his good humor, and whose very looks give comfort to us.—Exchange.

The grain did fairly well.

Cotton chopping is going at 50c an chopping and picking after the drop in cotton.

Our school closed last Friday, and patrons and children, with several visitors spent the day on the creek.
We had a fine dinner, barbecued goat and everything else to make out the dinner, and free lemonade.

ROYAL REVENGE ON MILTON

Great Poet's Book Publicly Burned by the Hangman When Charles II Came Back.

When the restoration of Charles II became imminent, Milton, who is possibly best known to the world as the author of "Paradise Lost," found himself in a position of peril, as many of his writings contained sentiments which Charles and his court could not be expected to tolerate.

In "The Iconoclast," and "Defensio pro Populo Anglicano," much was to be found that was inimical to the Restoration, and when he added "The Ready and Easy Way to Establish a Free Commonwealth," Milton was obliged to go into hiding. But the people were tired of the commonwealth, and so welcomed Charles home again. Though Milton escaped, his books did not, and the house of commons passed a resolution that his majesty be humbly moved to call in Milton's books and order them to be burned by the common hangman; and that the attorney general do proceed against them by indictment or otherwise.

On August 27, 1660, as many copies of the three offending books as could be found were publicly burned. Three days after an act was passed which relieved the poet from further necessity of concealment. In fact, the search had only been perfunctory and the chase had been purposely allowed to slacken.—Chicago Journal.

BRADY, TEXAS, June 3, 1921.

HONEST INJUN.

Monumental gall gets some folks and some measures by. For instance, the truck tax law!

HIGH FREIGHT RATES.

Exorbitant freight rates are doing as much, in our humble opinion, as anything to demoralize business and keep the price of living up. As a fair example, note that the car of sand ordered from Minnesota for use in the Brady filtration plants, cost in transportation charges, almost three times the original cost of the sand. The carload of sand was purchased for $199. The freight charges amounted to $547.

This same problem confronts the shippers of farm products and garden truck. Cabbage, which costs but a few cents a pound in South Texas early in the season, costs a small fortune when delivered to consumers in other parts of the state.

Now, still another obstacle is to be placed in the path of distribution, in the form of an exorbitant tax upon the truck. The truck is the link that connects the rural districts and the inland towns with shipping points. In many portions of the state the truck operates over unimproved roads; yet, despite all this, it is to be taxed virtually out of existence.

There is but one way to combat this great injustice, and that is a personal letter from every citizen direct to the legislators of this district. A public petition will serve no good, as anyone will sign a petition. (As witness the petition for an increased tax in Brady independent school district, signed by nearly 200 voters and approved at the polls by only 78 voters). But personal letters from every citizen interested in the repeal of this tax, will result in its repeal or amendment. Don't delay; do it today!

THE TRUCK TAX LAW.

No doubt the original intent of the Truck Tax law was good, inasmuch as it was intended to provide funds for the maintenance of the highways used by trucks. But, in fact, it has fallen far from the original ideal. It is an outlandish tax, an unreasonable tax and one whose provisions are burdensome to the last degree.

In addition to the annual license fee, already paid by all motor vehicles, this new law provides for a graduated scale of charges on the miles traveled by the truck, whether loaded or empty. These charges vary according to the capacity of the truck, as follows:

Capacity	License Fee
2,000 to 3,999 lbs.	1c
4,000 to 5,999 lbs.	2c
6,000 to 7,999 lbs.	3c
8,000 to 9,999 lbs.	5c
10,000 to 11,999 lbs.	8c

These charges apply to travel over all highways, whether improved or unimproved, and the fee is to be paid to the county clerk of the county in which the truck is operated. No charge is made for operating upon roads within the corporate limits of any town or city. This, then, involves a complicated set of bookkeeping. The man who operates a truck upon the highways of two or more counties, must keep a record of the number of miles traveled in each; from this he must (or may) deduct the number of miles traveled within the corporate limits of a city. Then, to add to his worries, there is a fine attached on overloads. For instance, if a 4-ton truck is loaded with 4 1/2 tons of merchandise, the operator may be fined in any sum not to exceed $200.

Still another chance to draw a fine is contained in a provision that the truck must not be operated beyond a certain speed limit, and that speed governors must be placed upon all trucks. This speed limit is as follows:

Max. Gross Wt. Truck and Load	Speed Limit Per Hour
4,000 lbs.	14 mi.
6,000 lbs. to 20,000 lbs.	10 mi.

Then there is contained in the same law, a schedule of charges for trailers and tractors, based upon the gross weight of the load carried, and varying according to whether the vehicle is equipped with pneumatic, solid or steel tires.

As stated at the beginning, no doubt the original intent of the law was good, but as it stands, it is playing directly into the hands of the railroad corporations, and virtually puts the large trucks out of existence. Inland towns will be made to suffer the brunt of this tax—and that applies whether they be located on a recognized highway or upon some country road.

The best way to combat this law, which goes into effect July 1st, is to at once write your state senator and your state representatives asking him to work for either a repeal or an amendment of the law. A personal letter will be far more effective than a petition. Do it today!

Hundreds of inland towns and a vastly greater number of rural communities are dependent upon motor trucks to move their products, according to John G. Culbertson of Wichita Falls. Motor trucks are to them what the railroads are to the larger cities—their only adequate means of transportation. The law repealers are protesting against imposes an annual license fee of $30 to $120 on motor trucks ranging in capacity from 2,000 to 10,000 pounds. In addition, it imposes a mileage license fee of 1 to 8 cents per mile travel, the rate depending upon the carrying capacity of the truck. Motor truck owners as a general rule are appreciative of good roads, is the verdict of the Wichita Falls manufacturer. They are willing to pay their share of the cost and expense, proportionate to the benefits derived, but they have just cause to protest against the over-burden and discrimination manifest in the new truck law.—Fort Worth Record.

IT WORKS NICELY.

A woman arrived here Thursday and appeared on the streets with her tambourine, representing, as she said, the "Volunteers of America," presumably a rescue home. She struck a snag in short order, so to speak, and those on whom she was calling asked her for her authority to collect money from the public. Her explanation did not get her by and she was directed to call on the city authorities and get an o. k. on her proposition. She failed to get the o. k. and promised to leave on the first train out.

This was the second demand made on the public here this week for help of this character. A man spent a couple of days here earlier in the week, begging and playing his banjo on the streets. The authorities have resolved to put a ban on promiscuous begging by transients, and hereafter parties calling on the public for help should be referred to the authorities. Don't throw your money away, or contribute it towards keeping up dead beats.

Rescue homes are good things, no doubt and should be kept up; but those in charge of rescue homes will make a mistake if they send their representatives here without first giving them the proper credentials. This city need not suffer any remorse of conscience for fear it is not doing its duty in such matters. Let us remember that a systematic campaign for the Salvation Army was put on here and Ballinger went over the top, and is ready to go over the top again when the proposition is handed in the proper way, and not through promiscuous street begging in the hands of irresponsibles.—Ballinger Banner-Ledger.

AVERY IMPLEMENTS FOR THE HARVEST ARE THE BEST

Thomas Steel Reliable Self Dump Rake

This rake is made to meet the demand for a strong steel self-dumping rake, that will not break teeth. We use a first-class steel tooth, with a coil in it, near where it is fastened to the head.

There is a slot in the tooth fastening, and it makes the teeth perfectly loose and independent. They thus adapt themselves to uneven, rocky and rough ground.

The "Steel Reliable" rake has a hand lever for raising the teeth by hand, when you do not want to use the self-dumping device. It dumps very easily by hand. Teeth do not fall back stiffly, as on other rakes, jarring and straining the rake.

(To American) The frame and head are made of extra-heavy steel angles. Steel steam-burners, wood hulls are the very best metal wheels made.

CONDENSING SELF-FEED Horse-Power Hay Press

The most practical and perfectly constructed self-feed horse-power hay press on the market. It is an entire departure from all other self-feed presses. It is simple in construction, strong and powerful. Every movement is positive—no lost motion or wasted energy.

The pitman moves in perfect line with the baling chamber which admits of the use of a rigid connection between it and the plunger head, assuring square end bales. It is held in position by concave roller bearings which do away with friction and save it from wear. It moves back and forth with the steadiness and precision of the piston of a Corliss Engine.

The return stroke of the pitman throws the feed arm and absorbs the jerk or shock between the baling strokes which is so objectionable in other makes of self-feed presses. There is no jar to the power or team on the return of the plunger—this prolongs the life of the press and the team.

There was a splendid attendance of admiring relatives and friends and all are unanimous in declaring the program one of the most enjoyable had. Stowe-Allison.
An item of interest to the many friends of the bride here is contained in the news received announcing the marriage of Miss Dennie Joe Stowe of this city to Mr. R. D. Allison of San Saba, the marriage having been celebrated in San Antonio Wednesday, June 1st. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Lyles, Methodist minister of San Antonio.

The bride is a charming and attractive young lady, the daughter of Mrs. C. A. Stowe of this city, and during her several years' residence in Brady has endeared herself to a large circle of friends by her winning manner and sunny disposition. She has been an attendant of the Brady high school, where she was popular with classmates and teachers alike. With her mother and sisters, she left last week for San Antonio upon a visit. Mr. Allison is a son of F. R. Allison, head of the Allison Sand & Gravel Co. of San Saba, and has been associated with his father in that business. He is spoken of as a popular young man of exceptional business talent, and in his selection of a life's companion he is to be congratulated.

Morris-Mays.
A simple, home wedding, of interest to a host of friends, was celebrated Wednesday night at 8:00 o'clock, when Miss Mary Morris of this city became the bride of Mr. Gus Mays of Hall Valley. The marriage took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Duke Mann, the Rev. S. C. Dunn, officiating, and only the near relatives being in attendance. Following the ceremony, the happy couple departed amidst a shower of congratulations and good wishes for Hall, where they will make their home with his parents for the present.

Present at the wedding ceremony were Rev. and Mrs. I. T. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Duke Mann, and Miss Edith Morris, parents and sisters of the bride; Misses Mary Lee Mays of Brady, and Ora and Vista Mays of Hall, sisters of the groom; also Mr. and Mrs. Pierce of Hall.

The bride is the youngest daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. I. T. Morris, and spent a great part of her girlhood in this city, during which time she attended the Brady schools. Upon the removal of the family to Sabinal, she completed her high school course there, and then entered Southwestern University at Georgetown, taking a literary course, and, in addition, a special course in music and voice. Possessed of a wonderful voice, her talent has served to make her much in demand at church and social functions, where her beautiful singing has added greatly to the enjoyment of all. Added to her accomplishments, was a sweet, womanly grace that at once endeared her to all with whom she met.

Mr. Mays is a former Brady boy, having lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Mays, in Brady for about ten years, and during which time he met the lady of his choice, and the romance, so happily culminated, had its inception. For four years he served in the regular army as a member of the coast artillery corps, and being stationed in the Philippine Islands. Since receiving an honorable discharge about two years ago, he has engaged in farming on his father's place.

In common with their many friends, The Standard congratulates the happy couple, and trusts their pathway through life may be filled with roses and sunshine.

Birthday Party.
A delightful birthday party was given last Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Otto Fahrenthold for little Miss Dorothy Fahrenthold and Master Kenneth Fahrenthold. Birthday cakes with candles, representing the ages of the two, 9 and 2, respectively, were had. Ice cream was served together with cake and other refreshments. Various games helped to pass off the afternoon rapidly, and quite a number of presents were presented. Mrs. G. L. Hollon and Mrs. W. N. Roberts assisted Mrs. Fahrenthold in entertaining the little folks.

Those attending were little Misses Dorothy Nell Hollon, Mildred Roberts, Henrietta Schill, Leona Schill, Virginia Baker, Mary Agnes Globber, Lorine Vierus, Mildred Renfro, Willie Mae Brown, Vera Blount, Dixie Keller, Evelyn Stobaugh, Gladys Bates, Edna Huddes, Nellie Belle Pense; Masters Hugh White Calvert, Harold Roberts, Cecil Schill, Otto Schill, Jr., Wm. Gray Kinman, A. J. Ricks, Jr.

Mrs. Roberts Entertains.
Mrs. Gibben Roberts entertained in delightful informal manner with "42" Wednesday afternoon at her home in the south part of town, which was charmingly decorated with spring-time blossoms.

Ice cream and cake was served to the following: Mesdames Edwin Broad, Wilson Jordan, C. P. Gray, T. Gray, Edd Broad, Ernest Snearely, Henry Tipton, Ave Collier, Julian Davis, F. M. Richards, Fred Spiller, George Henderson, Roy Wilkerson, Lee Vaughn; Misses Flora Schaez, Mozelle Glenn.

B.H.S. GRADUATES TO RECEIVE DEGREES AT STATE

(Special to The Brady Standard)

Austin, Texas, June 1.—Results of the excellent preparatory training given by the Brady public schools in past years have been demonstrated in the records of former students of those public schools who have completed their education at the University of Texas. Among those receiving degrees this year is Charles Herbert Marshall, who receives the degree of Electrical Engineer. In 1922 three additional names will be added to the long list of Brady students who have won degrees from the University, namely, Miss Jonnie Thompson, who will receive the Bachelor of Arts degree; Sabin W. Marshall, the Bachelor of Science degree in Electrical Engineering; and Stuart Harkrider, the Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering degree.

In scholarship, Brady students have attained unusual records. They have been numbered in the membership of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholarship fraternity. Also assistantships have been given as rewards for unusual ability shown in certain subjects to several Brady students. For the past two years Charles Herbert Marshall has held an assistantship in physics.

These students attribute their success in the University to the excellent preparatory training given them in the Brady schools. At this particular time they express their interest in the continued success of the schools in their home town, realizing that if their graduates are to continue to be fitted for pursuit of higher education in advanced institutions the Brady schools must maintain a high standard of excellence, and necessarily must be supported enthusiastically by their patrons.

RIFLE, GRIM RELIC OF EARLY-DAY SETTLER, NOW POSSESSION OF BRADY MAN

Jim Brown, well known Brady man, is the possessor of a grim relic of by-gone days, in the shape of a rifle, which was found last year in a cave on the Sellman ranch, alongside a skeleton fast crumbling to dust. The gruesome find was made by Will Rodgers, who was employed on the ranch, which is located down Brady creek. The rifle was leaned up against the wall of the cave, the ramrod having become encrusted so deeply with corrosion and erosion, as to be firmly embedded into the wall. Jim says he prizes the relic most highly, and has had many come to see the weapon.

KING UNHONORED AND UNSUNG

Milan of Serbia Probably the Greatest Profligate of Which There is Record.

More than one king has died in poverty and some have died in disgrace, but it remained for King Milan of Serbia to die without a throne, without a country, without a dollar and without a friend, hated by his countrymen, laughed at by all who met him, and despised by his own son and wife. He was born in 1854, and in 1898 we find him in Paris, a blase roue of fourteen, who got drunk, smoked cigars, associated with gamblers, street women and thieves, and already an avowed atheist and hater of virtue and decency. The death of his second cousin, Michael IV, put him on the throne. He married a beautiful girl of sixteen, who loved him and who bore him a son. All went well until she caught him making love to a middle-aged Austrian spy woman in a royal forest. After that he bared the cloven hoof, choked and insulted the queen, hated his son and began a career of drunkenness and wickedness that disgusted his subjects. He was forced to abdicate, and although later his son, then king, brought him back as commander in chief of the Serbian army, he returned this favor by attempting to kill his own child. He was ordered out of the country, and ended up as a hanger-on of low saloons and dives in Vienna, scorned even by the waiters and coarse women that frequented the places.

During the last half year Martha Dale had lived next door. Before she entered politics Dale had spent some time with her, but never had he been able to summon sufficient courage to broach matrimonial matters. About the time he had succeeded in mustering the required courage Martha got interested in politics, and now her would-be wooer had no opportunities. Several times he had succeeded in getting her into his roadster for a ride as far as her office, but that was too short a spin for proposing purposes. If he tried to drive slowly the traffic cops were sure to urge him to greater speed in order to keep the lanes clear.

FIRST HOUSE PILGRIMS BUILT

Plymouth Venerates Site of Structure Where Settlers Modeled Civil Form of Government.

Until they have gazed upon the Rock, visitors to Plymouth town decline, as a rule, to see anything else. Having performed that duty, they usually stroll or spin up Leyden street, which extends from a point conveniently near the Rock, to the foot of Burial hill, where the Pilgrim fort and watch tower used to frown down upon the Indians. Leyden street is New England's oldest thoroughfare. Once it was called, quite aptly, First street.

On one's way up Leyden street one must stop to look at the site of the first house which the Mayflower passengers erected in the wilderness. In this structure the settlers had their fling at the purest form of democracy.

Here, modeling their civil government upon the compact which had been drawn up in the cabin of the Mayflower while she was anchored in the harbor of Cape Cod, they discussed laws for their guidance, and elected Myles Standish, by majority vote, captain of the Plymouth home guard.

A True Philosopher.
A retired sea captain, who lived in Orlando, Me., was inordinately fond of his garden and very proud of its neat and well-kept appearance. One Sunday he returned from church and found five hogs busily engaged in wrecking his garden—the finest in all Orlando.

Leaning on the fence, he looked long and earnestly at the result of their depredations, and his wife shed a few tears. The passing neighbors paused to look, and many a furtive glance went to the face of the captain to see how he was taking it. At last he heaved a deep sigh and put his hand on his wife's arm.

"Never mind, Polly," he said. "You never can lay dirt to suit a hog."—Youth's Companion.

Coal Bad Cargo for Ships.
Coal is a bad cargo for ships, for soft coal heats if stacked deep, and frequently is fired by spontaneous combustion. In the open you can stack coal 20 feet deep without fear of its fring, but under cover not more than 15 or 16 feet.

The proof of this statement is shown by the fact that fires in cargoes of 500-1,000 tons of coal are only 1 per cent, while in cargoes over 2,000 they are actually nine times as numerous. When large cargoes are stored for long voyages, it is usual to bed iron pipes deep in the holds so as to be able to notice any dangerous rise of temperature.

The First Curb Market.
The first congress of the United States, while in session in Federal hall on Wall street, New York, in 1788-89, authorized and subsequently issued bonds (then called stock) amounting to 80 million dollars for the purpose of discharging debts incurred by the continental congress and the various colonies. This naturally led to orders for the purchase and sale of these bonds being sent to New York. These orders first came to merchants, attorneys and others, but later, as the transactions increased, some men began to give special attention to this business, becoming the first brokers in America.

Standardization.
"What Crimmon Gulch ought to do," remarked Cactus Joe, "is to send east and get a good singin' teacher." "You boys surely have enough to interest you without music." "Too much. There's no use of askin' men not to use their voices. Nobody can make an observation on any subject of general interest without startin' a quarrel. What we need is to have somethin' on hand that's cut an' dried an' set to music."

No Parking Here

By R. RAY BAKER

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Will you go for a ride, Martha?" Dale Long's invitation was answered with such a bewitching smile that he was almost convinced Martha Howe was going to accept. If she did it would be a big score in the game of love he had been playing for the last six months.

The trouble with the game of love was that it never appeared to develop beyond the solitary stage. Dale seemed to be playing it alone, although he was more than anxious to entice Martha into the play as an opponent or partner. The two are synonymous when used in connection with the game in question.

But Martha was a business woman of the first magnitude, if you care to classify her in sidereal terms. She was in the fire insurance business on her own account during working hours, and at other times she was campaigning for a sister politician in the approaching election. Get a girl mixed up in business and politics and when does a mere man get a look-in?

During the last half year Martha Dale had lived next door. Before she entered politics Dale had spent some time with her, but never had he been able to summon sufficient courage to broach matrimonial matters. About the time he had succeeded in mustering the required courage Martha got interested in politics, and now her would-be wooer had no opportunities.

Several times he had succeeded in getting her into his roadster for a ride as far as her office, but that was too short a spin for proposing purposes. If he tried to drive slowly the traffic cops were sure to urge him to greater speed in order to keep the lanes clear.

But today Dale felt reasonably sure of success, because it was Susan B. Anthony's birthday anniversary and he knew Martha, ardent suffragist that she was, had proclaimed it a holiday.

On the Third Trip Around the Block.

day as far as the insurance business was concerned. So Dale was careful to have his machine waiting, and to be tinkering in the hood, when Martha tripped down the steps of her home. But he was doomed to disappointment again.

"Thank you, Dale, but I can't. This is a holiday as far as business is concerned, but not in regard to politics. I've some lists to go over at the office, in the interest of Mrs. Slocum's candidacy; and what more fitting than the transaction of such matters on the anniversary of the woman who took the step that won us the vote? But I'll be glad to ride to my office with you, if you care to take me."

It was an ultimatum, and he could do nothing but yield to its terms. "I'll propose in a jiffy, even if it is only a three-minute ride," he told himself desperately.

But the chance didn't offer, because traffic was heavy, and he was obliged to attend strictly to the business of driving.

Other business offices paid no heed to Susan B. Anthony's birthday and cars lined the streets at every available parking place, and moving vehicles progressed in steady streams along the streets. There was an open space in front of the building where Martha's office was located, and Dale was about to drive into it when his eye caught the police sign:

"No Parking Here."

Dale swung back into the stream of cars and continued down the street.

"I'll have to park somewhere else nearby," he told Martha, and turned the next corner. There were two vacant spaces in the block, one on each side, but those formidable signs loomed up and warned drivers away. "Can't find a place," Dale remarked. "So I see," said Martha. "Why not drive around the block? Maybe some parked car will leave in the meantime."

But the situation was no more favorable as Dale and Martha again approached the latter's office.

"I'll stop and take a chance," he said, and the "no parking" space. "Better luck next time," he warned. "There's a policeman watching. Drive round the block." By this time Dale had come to the conclusion that the fates were with him. He decided it was his chance to pop the question which he had held back so long.

"Martha," he said, keeping his eye on his course through the crowded street, "I've been wanting for a long time to say something to you. You must have sensed how I felt—"

"Look out," she warned. "See that big machine—"

"Missed, but pretty close," he observed, then resumed:

"You must have sensed how I felt, because I couldn't hide it. How I have longed for an opportunity to have you—"

"You'll run over that old man!" she cried. "No, he's dodged back."

"How I have longed for the opportunity to have you alone just once," he resumed, turning a corner. "No place here to park; guess I'll have to keep going."

"You might let me out on the next corner," she suggested. "No, that won't do either. The policeman wouldn't stand for it with this heavy traffic."

"I have felt," Dale declared, "that I must find some way to speak to you; but you've been so busy with business and politics that I've never had time—Gee! that was a close shave. I almost forgot the semaphore, and it's red. There, the way's clear. Nope, every place is taken except that one, and it says 'no parking.' Martha, you could make me—"

Dale stopped talking right then, for he got caught in a maelstrom of automobiles and it required concentration to work his way out.

Starting on the third trip around the block Dale resumed:

"Martha, you could make me the happiest man in—Good night! The motor's stopped."

"What's the matter?" she inquired as he headed the car, under its momentum, for a space which was marked "No Parking Here."

"Out of gas, I guess," he returned, as the inside front wheel struck the curb. "I intended getting gas, and forgot it. Well, the cops caught me when I explain what's the trouble."

"I'm still a whole block from the office," she observed, but she still was smiling.

"I'll finish what I was saying—if I go to jail for it," Dale declared. "Martha, what I've been trying to say is that I love you and want you to marry me. Will you?"

A policeman could be seen approaching, his eye on the couple who sat in the car that was parked where "no parking" was permitted.

"Dale," said Martha, placing a small gloved hand over one of his, "I like your business methods. I'm a business woman and can appreciate them. It's true we haven't had much time together lately, and I've wished we might. You ask me in a very businesslike manner to marry you, and I'll answer the same way. 'Yes.' Now, I'll have to get out and leave you and walk to the office. I'll wait and help you explain to the policeman if you wish. And the election will soon be over, Dale, and then we'll have more time."

"Never mind the policeman," he returned, a happy light shining in his eyes. "I guess I won't get pinched." As a matter of fact, he didn't care much whether he was or not.

SUNFLOWERS AS BEAN POLES

Gardeners Have Ingenious Method of Decreasing the Cost of Raising Popular Vegetable.

The high cost of wood has at last affected even the humble bean pole. While the cost of bean poles may seem to be a mere trifle, one has but to consider the scores used in large fields and note the price of even soft woods to see that the total can be a great item in overhead. To beat this gardeners have tried out with success the giant Russian sunflower. They planted two or three seeds with each hill of climbing beans, and thinned to leave one sunflower plant to each hill.

Up this live "pole" the beans twined and ascended. The gardener kept all leaves off the sunflower except several at the very top. They made excellent poles, yielded a crop of their own, and were cheap. Low cost and the convenience with which they are provided, are big advantages of the sunflower bean pole.

Of course, the sunflower isn't the first makeshift bean pole. Throughout those farming regions of America where wood is scarce, climbing beans for decades have been planted almost wholly in the corn. There are western farmers who don't know what you mean when you speak of "pole" beans. They call them "cornstalk" beans, because of the universal use of the makeshift pole.

First Porcelain Money.

The Oriental use of porcelain for coinage began with Siamese porcelain tokens in use from the middle of the Eighteenth century until 1871, when they were forbidden. The majority of these pieces were issued in Bangkok, largely by gambling houses. There are at least 890 known kinds. They occur in a great variety of shapes, colors and values. The denominations are on the reverse, and are generally in blue. The native name of this currency is "Pi." The inscriptions are usually in Chinese, as the gambling houses were usually owned and operated by Chinese.

A. W. KELLER BOOSTING SWEET CLOVER AS MOST VALUABLE FORAGE CROP

A. W. Keller, who, for the past couple years has been greatly interested in getting the farmers of McCulloch county to grow sweet clover, calls attention to the recent press report, in which the experiments at A. & M. college with sweet clover were reported. The news item reads as follows:

"The purpose of the field day, Superintendent McDowell explained, is to promote co-operation between the staff at the farm, the county agents and farmers. Effort is being made to acquaint all of the farmers of this section with the work being done here so that they may profit by the experiment.

"Sweet clover is being grown successfully, as was shown by a large patch of this crop. North Texas soil is well adapted to sweet clover, and this can be made an important feature of every farm in North Texas, it was said. The value of the sweet clover does not end with the season in which it is planted, as was shown by another plot, and the volunteer crop is valuable. Where sweet clover was planted last year, oats were planted this year. The oat crop is making good, with a probable yield of forty-five bushels to the acre, while beneath it there is a good growth of clover which will furnish pasturage when the oats have been harvested."

Mr. Keller states that he can vouch for everything contained in the above paragraph as being true. Not only can two crops be successfully grown on the same land—the clover following the oat crop—but the clover is a most valuable forage crop. Mr. Keller's patch has already grown to a height of three feet. Further than that, the clover blooms have a most delicious and refreshing perfume, and honey bees gather the finest kind of honey from the blossoms.

MRS. SUTTON COULD HARDLY USE HER HANDS

"Tanlac was just what I needed, and I'm glad to give it the highest praise," said Mrs. N. E. Sutton, 2529 Prospect Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

"For about two years I had rheumatism in my knees and ankles so bad I could hardly hobble around to do my housework, and my shoulders hurt so bad I could scarcely use my hands at all. I was so nervous I couldn't sleep and just suffered all the time.

"Although I tried a number of medicines I just kept getting worse. I heard so much about Tanlac I decided to get a bottle, and it certainly was the right medicine for me. I have taken two bottles now, and can get around and do all my housework with ease. In fact, I feel just fine and I sleep well, too. Tanlac is so good I wish every sufferer could know about it."

Tanlac is sold in Brady by Trigg Drug Co., in Mercury by J. T. Matlock, in Rochelle by C. W. Carr, and by leading druggists everywhere.

R. L. RICHTER COMING "BACK HOME" FROM THE GOLDEN WEST, HE WRITES

The Standard editor is in receipt of the following letter from R. L. Richter, erstwhile Waldrip citizen, who, a year ago, listened to the lure of the golden west, and, with his family, journeyed to California seeking the end of the rainbow. Now, Mr. Richter is again turning his face back to Old McCulloch, and while he will make the trip by easy stages, stopping enroute to view the grandeur of America's greatest natural scenery, yet, from his letter, it is evident that he is looking forward to the day when he again sets foot on McCulloch county soil.

Here is what Friend Richter writes from El Centro, Calif., under date of May 27th:

"I wish you would please discontinue sending The Standard to me at this place, as we intend to leave here in a few days for home, and will see you in person when I get there and order it sent to me at Lohn, or Waldrip, Texas.

"We intend to start west from here to San Diego, and from there up the coast to Los Angeles, where we intend to visit some old friends. From there we intend to go east to the Grand Canyon, Arizona, and intend to get a view of the canyon from the bottom.

"My brother-in-law, E. B. Bray, is here on a visit and will come back home with us. The weather is getting hot here now but has been rather cool till the last few days. It is very dry here; has not rained since the middle of last September.

"Times are very hard; money is scarce and work is scarce; also hands are plentiful.

"Well, I will tell you all about our trip when I get back; will also be able to show you a great many views of places of interest."

Brady's Mistake.

Yes, I think the result of Saturday's tax election, was one of the biggest mistakes we have made since the town was incorporated and the Brady Independent School District No. 1 was organized, because it means going backwards in school affairs, and that means everything else pertaining to the advancement of Brady. Good schools will bring in more people than any one thing we can do, and it makes all other civic improvements look like a farce, and our talk to prospectors about coming to Brady seem empty, which it is. I am ashamed because all other towns I hear of have voted the tax, and we can claim the distinction of being the first to turn it down.

I served on the board eight years, and watched the school grow from being on probation with 12 units credit, to affiliation with all colleges of the south and 22½ units credit. We labored hard and sacrificed our time, to push it up, and while there were many things needed, our main hope was that the people would respond to the call. The ladies wanted a kindergarten, which we had been deferring until we could arrange for it. The High school needs a business course; our primary grade has been on half time for some time, and the 7th grade was very congested, with about 75 pupils. In fact, people had moved to Brady for the school until our preparation when the district was laid out was inadequate for our present needs.

The talk about paying out too much for teachers' salaries, is folly. We had six teachers to quit last year before school opened, because other places offered more money, and if they mean by that we should have hired the cheapest teachers we could get, I do not care to even discuss it further, for with the present general knowledge of school affairs, we all know it requires more training and better efficiency to become a teacher. Just a few years ago, a man could go off and take one course of "medical lectures" from just any old school and come back and practice among the people. But how is it now? What does a fellow have to have to ply his trade? The same applies to all other professions. So it is useless to argue about the salary question.

Now, I will agree that the school board is due to be cussed some, for you know the pay is great, and nearly every man you meet wants to try his hand—until you gently put your hand on his shoulder, and say, "Here, Bill, we want you to act as a member on the school board"—then his business lays rolling, and he has not got the time or don't want to be bothered with it. But somebody has got to serve, and it is as much one man's duty as another. Then, if I was not another to do now: 1st, to raise valuations until the small property owners will stand the advance or until equalization is out of the question; 2, cut the term down to our funds; 3rd, go into the red—and I had rather see the school stop than that. Can we hope to see Brady grow in this way? Will prospectors want to come in and build homes, and increase valuations? Will business be better for doctor, lawyer, merchant, banker, or any one else? A man here now who is building a nice home, came here for the school, but he says he is afraid he made a mistake, since Saturday's election. I am very sorry it happened, and everybody else who wants to see Brady grow will be before it is over.

RED CROSS HEALTH INFORMATION.

Exercise.

Are you officially dead? That's a fair question for every woman who works. And these days the army of business women is constantly increasing.

Mortality statistics are impartial and no respecter of persons and these statistics as compiled by one of the larger life insurance companies show the average lives of their woman policy holders in office work to be just 26 years. She loses just half her life, while the average housekeeper lives to be 53 years old.

If life after 26 years of age appeals to you, Miss Business Woman, you'd better be above the average.

Do you sleep in the open air? Have you and the sleeping porch gotten acquainted?

Do you know the pleasure of a hike regularly after work?

Have you an interest in a little flower garden in the back yard?

Do you know how to swim?

Do you keep your windows in the habit of staying open at night?

For indoor workers good bottom is just a question of proper and sufficient exercise, and you don't have to be an athlete to get it. Fresh air and exercise make strong constitutions and a strong constitution laughs at disease. Learn to take an interest in sports and you will find some kind that will fit your inclination and the limits of your time and purse.

Better start out now as the summer season sends its invitation to the great outdoors and get the habit. If you don't you may not have the chance someday.

LOCAL BRIEFS

The many friends of Mrs. Frank Champion are delighted to know that she is convalescing rapidly from her recent illness, and expects soon to have regained her strength.

E. B. Ramsay is remodeling the building on the west side of his planing mill for occupancy by the Williams' Gun Repair shop, which is being moved to that location.

Leonard Wilder, who has been making his home here the past three weeks, is now in charge of E. B. Ramsay's books. Mr. Wilder has just completed a thorough bookkeeping course at Dallas. He is a son of J. W. Wilder of Thorndale, and a former Brady citizen.

A. J. (Doc) Garey, who has held the position of chief operator at the local Western Union office since last fall, has been transferred to Palestine, effective June 1st. Mr. Garey is succeeded here by H. M. Tomlinson of Hamilton, Texas, who was checked in Wednesday. Miss Elizabeth Souther will continue as assistant operator.

W. F. Roberts, Jr., was in Brady from Lohn on one of his infrequent visits Tuesday. Will says that since the opening of the Lohn State bank, he has been kept mighty close at home by his duties as cashier. That he is holding down the position most efficiently is demonstrated by the splendid showing made by the bank in their recent statement.

W. J. Finigan, old-time McCulloch county citizen, and a brother of the late H. E. Finigan of Fife, is spending a few days here this week visiting relatives and friends, and renewing acquaintance with many of his friends of the early days. It has been something like 23 or 24 years since Mr. Finigan claimed McCulloch county as his home. During the past year or so he has been making his home with Ed Finigan and family in the San Angelo country.

The season's first offering of watermelons and roasting ears was made Tuesday evening on the square, when a truck loaded with these two commodities drew attention and a lively trade from the citizens about town. The truck load of products came from near Kelly Field at San Antonio, and while the watermelons might have been considered luxuries at $1.50 to $1.75, the roasting ears were reasonable priced, being sold at 40c the dozen.

Frank Duckworth, sheriff of Tom Green county, arrived in Brady Tuesday, being enroute to San Antonio, where he placed a patient in an asylum. He was accompanied on the trip to Brady by his parents, "Uncle John" and Mrs. Duckworth, who stopped over here for a visit with his sister, Mrs. Joe Souther, and relatives. Upon returning to San Angelo yesterday, the Duckworths were accompanied by Mrs. Souther and granddaughter, Lula Belle Ogden, who will visit there for a week or two.

Several times each year Mrs. August F. Behrens remembers The Standard editor with a beautiful bouquet of flowers from her greenhouses north of the Fair grounds. This week, the editorial sanctum is adorned with a fragrant bouquet of beautiful multi-colored sweet peas and the attractive dahlias. Mrs. Behrens has more than doubled the capacity of her greenhouses during the past year or so, and now ranks as one of the leading florists in this section, her plants, cut flowers and bulbs being greatly in demand at all seasons of the year.

Friends of the family are glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hanson and family back to citizenship in Brady, they having moved their household effects here from Ranger Tuesday, and will again occupy their home day postoffice within 50 miles of Brady

MERCHANDISE THAT MUST MAKE GOOD

Throughout the history of merchandising there has always been on the markets merchandise without a Trade Mark or without any means of identification. Or goods no manufacturer stood back of to make good if they proved unsatisfactory. That kind of merchandise no one can afford to invest in, because it is too expensive in the long run.

But on the other hand it is real economy to buy merchandise that is guaranteed and backed up by the store that sells it and the manufacturer that makes it.

We only handle merchandise that has stood the test of competition and won the approval of the general public by merits of service, and when you buy Men's Furnishings from us we want you to compare the service they give with other merchandise in proportion to the price you pay for them and if you are not satisfied you will do us a personal favor to let us know it.

SOME OF THE WELL-KNOWN MERCHANDISE THAT WE HANDLE AND STAND BACK OF IS—
