N. B. EMBRY GIN PARTIALLY DESTROYED BY FIERCE BLAZE MONDAY

FIRE ORIGINATED IN PRESS AND QUICKLY ENVELOPED ENTIRE PLANT—LOSS RUNS HEAVY—GIN PROBABLY INCAPACITATED FOR SEASON.

Fire which originated in the press at 2:40 Wednesday afternoon, partially destroyed the N. B. Embry gin here, with resultant heavy loss. The plant had just completed ginning a bale of cotton for Theo. Lyckman, and was starting on the remainder of his load, when the odor of smoke was detected. Mr. Embry opened one side of the press without finding the origin of the smoke, and then just as he started around to the other side of the press the entire press burst into flames. So rapidly did the flames spread that the entire plant appeared doomed by the time the fire boys arrived on the scene. Two lines of hose were laid, and with a splendid water pressure, the fire was under control in less than thirty minutes.

The loss, coming right at the opening of the ginning season, falls not only heavy upon Mr. Embry, but will serve to greatly retard the speeding up of ginning in Brady. The damage in the engine and boiler rooms will possibly be light, but the remainder of the gin plant is practically a total building of the gin in time to operate again this season extremely improbable. In fact, Mr. Embry states that he hardly expects to try to get the gin in shape for this season.

The gin plant had been thoroughly overhauled and improved during the summer months and was in splendid shape. It had been in operation only the past week or ten days, and had just started the ginning season in earnest. The plant carried $10,000 insurance.

Included in the loss was the bale of cotton just ginned for Mr. Lyckman.

The extremely dry weather and the inflammable nature of cotton, caused the blaze to spread with amazing rapidity. Mr. Embry attempted to get the plants water lines in operation, but found the first rusted fast, and twisted the valve off, rendering the plug useless. The same misfortune befell him in attempting to connect up with a second hydrant. The fire boys got to the scene in record time, but the flames had already burst through the roof, and the big vent pipes caused a stiff draft that fanned the flames and spread them to all parts of the building. Despite the great headway of the flames, the fire boys, with their two lines of hose, got in wonderfully effective work, and thirty minutes from the time the alarm was sounded, the fire was under control.

Luther Leddy, one of the acting fire boys, received a bad scalp wound during the fire, when he was struck by a falling piece of sheet iron, the sharp edge striking him on the head and cutting a deep gash. The wound bled profusely and required medical attention. Leddy was assisting the nozzleman on hose line No. 2 at the time of the accident, and the boys were playing a stream of water on the outside north end of the gin building. At the same time, the boys in charge of line No. 1 were throwing water on the inside of the building, and the force of their stream knocked the piece of iron off the side of the building directly onto the fire-boys in charge of No. 2. Buck Spears and Frank Ogden sustained burns on their arms in fighting the fire, and all the boys were thoroughly drenched and besmudged in fighting the blaze.

AIR COMPRESSOR AND COMPLETE PUMPING OUTFIT IS NOW ON HAND

MOTOR STILL TO BE SHIPPED FROM FAIRBANKS-MORSE PLANT AT BELOIT, WIS.—NEW PLANT AVAILABLE IN CASE OF EMERGENCY.

The city's new pumping plant, including the Sullivan two-stage air compressor, and all necessary equipment, arrived over the Santa Fe Wednesday afternoon, and is now being installed at the new well site. The 4 1/2-inch piping, together with all necessary equipment, is also at hand. In fact, the only piece of machinery lacking towards making Brady's new pumping plant ready for operation, is the big electric motor, which is to be shipped from the Fairbanks-Morse Co. plant at Beloit, Wis. No word has so far been had from this motor. In the meantime, however, the work of installation of the pumping plant is being completed, and everything will be in readiness by the time of the arrival of the motor.

In anticipation of the arrival of the new plant, the waterworks department had placed the concrete foundations for the air compressor, and which was, therefore, in readiness for the immediate placing of the air compressor following its being unloaded. Piping of the well and laying of the air line will also be accomplished without delay. By thus equipping the well, everything will be in readiness for the installation of the motor, following which the new well will be placed in service. Should the present water supply be exhausted before the motor arrives, the city can use the fire pump to operate the compressor, which assures the city's water supply being maintained. However, there is small likelihood of this step becoming necessary, as it is estimated the city still has about a month's water supply in the dam on Brady creek.

The dear old lady entered the chemist's shop and looked doubtfully at the youthful assistant behind the counter.
"I suppose," she said, "you are a properly qualified chemist?"
"Yes, madam."
"You have passed all your examinations?"
"Certainly."
"You've never poisoned any one by mistake?"
"Not to my knowledge."
She heaved a sigh of relief.
"Very well, then, you can give me a nickel's worth of cough drops!"

OTIS TURNEY REMODELING AND IMPROVING RESIDENT AND RENTAL PROPERTIES

Otis Turney is greatly improving his place of residence following its recent removal to the lot formerly occupied by the Claud Wood home. The interior of the home has been remodeled, repapered and re-decorated, and presents a most inviting appearance. In addition, Mr. Turney is adding a commodious sleeping porch, size 14x22 ft., which will add greatly to both the appearance and the comfort of the home.

Mr. Turney has also had his rent house moved from its location near the light plant to the lot formerly occupied by his residence, and which has the advantage of being located on top of the hill in one of the coolest and most pleasant sections of town. The house, when re-established, will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Golden.

TEXAS-MEERS OIL CO.'S SHULTZ WELL HAS OIL SHOWING FOLLOWING SHOT

Jeff Meers is here from Concho county this week and reports the Texas-Meers Oil Co.'s Shultz No. 1, as having had a showing of oil between 1373 and 1384 ft. The well was given a 20-quart nitro-glycerine shot Monday, with the result that it is showing up very nicely with oil of a very high gravity. Mr. Meers says he plans to let the well set for a week, and then if the oil is not showing up in greatly increased quantities, he plans to give it a 40-quart shot.

Mr. Meers is superintending the packing and removal of his household goods this week, and with his family expects to leave in a few days for San Angelo, where they will make their future home.

Tractor and Grader Building Some Fine Roads in Pre. 3.

Fife, Texas, August 22.

Editor Brady Standard:

We are having some of the driest hottest weather we have experienced in some time. Cotton is about all open and the gin is kept busy keeping up with the pickers. Cotton here will make from one-fourth to one-tenth of a bale per acre. Feed was good and is all gathered and saved for which we are duly thankful.

S. L. and B. Everett and families of Waco are visiting their brother, J. B. Everett here this week.

The Christian meeting conducted by Bro. J. B. Jones of Coleman closed Sunday night. Four persons were baptized and much good done by the masterful preaching of this good brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bradley were at Coleman Saturday and Sunday on a visit to relatives.

Commissioner Jim Priest is in this community this week with his big tractor and grader and is certainly doing some fine road work. We believe Pre. No. 3 has the best tractor and grader we have seen in the state, and Commissioner Priest is to be commended for being able to get it.

Bright Baldrige accompanied by Misses Dot McKeand, Trix and Luther Baldrige, attended the San Saba fair Thursday and Friday.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Tedder is very sick at this time, of summer complaint. We hope for its early recovery.

Most of our people who are not busy picking cotton are busy cleaning out tanks and getting ready for that big rain that is coming next month.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is some or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will reach the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a powerful purgative, being gentle to the whole system. Worms will be thrown out of the system, and the child will be strong and healthy. Pleasant to take. One per dose.

Rain Needed, But Would Damage Cotton—Meeting Closed.

Pear Valley, Texas, August 22.

Editor Brady Standard:

After an absence of several weeks I will endeavor to come into view again.

Most everyone round in this community is now very busy picking cotton and trying to get hands, but as they are very scarce, some are having ill luck. It is very dry, but most everyone fears a rain would do more harm than good at present.

The great Methodist revival closed here last week, with many converts and a working congregation. Bro. Dunn is a very able preacher, and we were very glad to have him with us.

Bernese Dabee, who has been down with the fever, is up new and getting along fine.

Miss Verha Jones who underwent an operation at the Temple sanitarium returned home Sunday and everyone is thankful that she got along so well.

Mrs. T. A. King has been very sick lately, but hopes are she is better.

Extra Size 30x3 1/2 $16.65

Now $13.95

Firestone first made the low price of $13.95 on the Standard Non-Skid, May 2. Unusual purchasing power through big volume of business, and the great efficiency of its $7,000,000 Plant No. 2, manufacturing exclusively 30x3 1/2 size, made this possible. Now, the production of the Extra-Size 30x3 1/2 tire has been transferred to Plant No. 2. This permits the price reduction on this tire from $16.65 to $13.95. No such value has ever before been offered tire users. If your dealer hasn't the Extra-Size in stock ask for our Standard Non-Skid type at the same price. You will still be getting an unusual tire value.

CALF CREEK NEWS.

Mile Square of Pasture at Sid Espy's Burned Sunday Afternoon.

Brady, Texas, August 23.

Editor Brady Standard:

It is still dry and driest. Looks like we will never get a rain again. The tanks are all going dry and most all the farmers are sure blue, and when they meet, it is the drouth that they talk mostly.

Quite an excitement was created here Sunday afternoon when the grass in Mr. Sid Espy's pasture burned; about a mile long and a mile wide in places was burned. It is not known how it caught on fire.

Miss Myrtle Wright happened to the accident of cutting her foot on a broken bottle while in swimming in the Colorado river and came to stay with her sister until her foot is well. Then she will go back to her work in Lometa. We all hope her a speedy recovery.

Mr. Smith and daughter, Mr. Hadden Ratto and Mrs. Ratto and two sisters, Miss Gladys and Fanny Ratto from Holder, Texas, were visiting Mr. E. B. Smith and family last week. Miss Odell Smith returned home with them for a visit.

Mr. E. L. Bridge is on the sick list. Hope to report him much better next week.

Quite a few young folks gathered at the school house and enjoyed singing Sunday night.

The Methodist meeting will start at Calf Creek tonight. Everybody is invited to come.

Miss Zora Perry and Mr. Alvin Perry called on Miss Frances Kolb Sunday afternoon.

Mr. R. W. Cavin and family spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bridge Sunday.

Miss Lola Kolb spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Bernice Bridge.

Mr. O. A. Whipple came home Saturday from Hext and reported he had a fine school.

Mr. Monroe Wright spent the day Sunday with Mr. Claude Knight.

Mr. Jack Wood and Mr. Joe Jay from Nine, spent the afternoon Sunday with the Bridge family.

Miss Stella Traweck and Miss Cora Snider of Brady, visited the J. V. Ewing home from Saturday until Sunday afternoon. They all enjoyed a fishing trip and report a jolly good time.

Everyone Busy Picking Cotton—Personal Mention.

Brady, Texas, Aug. 22.

Editor Brady Standard:

Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay and Grandma Alcorn from Brady, visited W. A. Newton and family Sunday.

Miss Berl Reasoner has been staying with her grandmother the past two weeks.

Miss Willa Mae Dilliard is at Galveston on a pleasure trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Winstead and daughter, Bernice, returned from Brownwood Friday where they were visiting Mrs. Winstead's mother.

Mrs. Jimmie Newton and Mrs. Lena McShan were visitors at the Hilliard home Sunday evening.

Agnes Carroll spent Sunday with Ethyl Newton.

Everyone in this community is busy picking cotton.

DO YOU LOVE BOYS AND GIRLS? STUDENT AID ASSOCIATION ASKS FOR HELP

If you love boy and girl life, hopes and ambitions, won't you read the following story?

During the coming year, due to the short crops and small amount of cotton picking and other work, a number of worthy girls and boys of the State will need assistance if they are enabled to pursue their studies for at least forty students who are entirely without funds and dependent wholly upon their own labors and assistance of friends. A much larger number of other students will need one-third to one-half of their expenses met by friendly aid.

If these earnest, high-spirited boys and girls are to derive the full return of their labors and make the best of the educational opportunities offered them by the State and other institutions, their friends and those of the institutions should raise a large fund by October 1st.

To secure aid for the boys and girls of the State and who wish to push forward to the highest possible mark of efficiency and good citizenship is the purpose of the Student Aid association.

A number of people in many of the large cities are already contributing liberally to this fund, but more will be needed this year.

Who will be leaders of clubs for contributing or raising amounts for $10, $25, $50, $100 and up to $500, naming the institutions to whose aid fund your contribution is to go?

Have you a mother or any other loved one or friends whom you will honor by giving a scholarship to some girl or boy?

Yours for aid for Texas boy and girl students,

Corresponding Secretary Texas Student Aid Association, Temple, Tex.

SAYS HER TROUBLES HAVE COME TO END

Houston Woman Was So Weak She Could Hardly Raise Her Hand.

"I never felt better than I do right now, but when I began taking Tanlac I was in a run-down condition as a result of nine years' stomach trouble and I was despondent and discouraged, as I just didn't know what was going to become of me," said Mrs. Annie Cook, 1620 West St., Houston, Tex.

"Nothing I ate digested properly but would ferment and cause gas that gave me awful smothering spells so I could hardly get my breath, and sometimes felt like I was going to die. I was in such a weak and run-down condition I couldn't handle a broom, and the last spell of indigestion I had put me in bed for five days and during that time I could hardly raise my hand. I slept little and lost flesh until I was just a shadow of my former self. I was told that I had asthmatic indigestion and that there was no hope for me.

"I hadn't been taking Tanlac long before I realized that I had at last found the medicine I had been needing. Absolutely, the few bottles I have taken have done me more good than all the medicines and treatments I have tried in nine years put together. I eat anything I want now, and never have a trace of indigestion afterwards, sleep like a child and get up in the morning feeling fine. I have gained ten pounds in weight, too. I never dreamed that any medicine could make as big a change in anybody as Tanlac has made in me. It certainly has a power different from any other medicine I ever tried and I am a firm believer in it."

Tanlac is sold in Brady by Trigg Drug Co., in Mercury by J. T. Matlock, in Rochelle by C. W. Carr, and by leading druggists everywhere.

MRS. W. M. CAMPBELL GIVES SOME INTERESTING STATISTICS ON IMPERIAL VALLEY

Their many Brady and McCulloch county friends will be pleased to learn from the following letter that Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Campbell, former citizens of Waldrip community, and who have been making their home in Imperial Valley, California, the past year, are happy and prospering in their new home. Mrs. Campbell gives some interesting statistics as to land values and crop production in the Imperial Valley. Her letter follows:

Calipatria, California, Aug. 16. The Brady Standard.

Dear Editor:—I am enclosing money order for for which send us The Brady Standard for one year. You might think we have forgotten you and our old McCulloch county friends, but nevertheless we haven't.

We are still here in Imperial Valley, and we think we are doing fine, tho' the weather has been real warm so far. We are in the dairy business here with 60 cows milking now. Butter fat has increased in price—now 46c per lb.

The Valley shipped 10,654 cars of canteloupes this season; 2,000 cars of watermelons, and the winter lettuce crop promises to be also a big one.

Land values are all on the increase now and grape land leased at Brawley last week for $250.00 per acre, a year and canteloupe land leases at $30.00 per acre. Grape men have realized $600.00 per acre this year, with no expense of harvesting.

So you see the Valley will soon be back to pre-war basis.

Please start the paper with the issue of the 23rd of August. With best wishes to all our McCulloch county friends. We hope to make you all a visit next year.

Sincerely yours,
MRS. W. M. CAMPBELL,
Calipatria, California.

The following is the newspaper account of the leasing of the vineyard near Brawley:

New Record In Imperial Rents.

Brawley, Aug. 10.—Announcement is made today that W. S. Palmer has leased to San Joaquin Valley parties his grape vineyard four and a half miles northwest of Brawley in Number Eight for a period of five years at a figure not yet approached in rentals of any Imperial Valley land. For the first two years the land will bring $250 an acre each year and for the succeeding three years it is to bring $300 an acre each year.

Grape men insist that Palmer & Son have really leased at a low figure. They cite the fact that Cris Westgard has netted almost $1000 an acre from his vineyard this year, that Caldwell has netted around $600 an acre and they go on down the line and say that not a single vineyard has netted as little as $250 an acre, the

WRIST WATCH JOINS THE AUK AND DODO—NO SALE SAY JEWELERS

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Wrist watches, popularized by the World War, have joined the Dodo bird. In a few years they will be entirely extinct. Chicago jewelers called before the Cook County Tax Board of Review predicted. Even now they have no sale. Other facts brought out at the Board of Review hearings were: Diamonds are about to advance in price, after a drop of 20 per cent in value. There is a 10 per cent decline in the price for watches and silverware. Engagement rings show an alarming falling off at least 75 per cent. Lavallieres are being discarded for bar pins.

HONEST INJURY.

Brady has the best of everything—but many of these good things she has—still coming to her.

The Standard is in receipt of a copy of The American Salesman, the new monthly magazine for stockmen and farmers, published at San Antonio, and of which Jas. W. Turman of Brady is the founder and active vice-president. The American Salesman is designated as a trade magazine, and incidentally as an advertising medium for the stock men of the southwest. Each subscriber receives the privilege of getting a certain amount of advertising along with his subscription to the magazine, and the issue shows that this feature has appealed to a large number of the stockmen of this immediate section. That the magazine has already established wide-spread connections is evidenced by the fact that among the buyers is one located in Cuba. Mr. Turman states that their great aim is to obtain a circulation of 100,000, which would be certain to make the magazine a great power for the stockmen of the Southwest. Gus Shropshire, Brady young man, and son of J. E. Shropshire, is a stockholder and also assistant editor of the journal.

A BIG DELEGATION WANTED.

A big delegation of Brady and McCulloch county citizens should attend the Puget Sound to the Gulf annual highway meeting at Fredericksburg next Friday, September 2d. This is one of the greatest highways of the state, linking, as it does, the Pacific coast with the Gulf coast. Brady can indeed count herself fortunate in having been designated on this route. It is up to us to maintain the interest which is necessary to keep Brady as one of the leading points on this great continental system. Not only will the meeting be of importance and interest, but the citizens of Fredericksburg have planned an entertainment which will make the trip in reality a delightful outing, and pleasure trip. Arrange to leave your business for a couple days, and enjoy next Friday and Saturday as a guest of the hospitable folks of Fredericksburg.

JUST FOR EXAMPLE.

As an example of community cooperation, let us commend the citizens of Fredericksburg. Following receipt of notice in effect that the annual state convention of the Puget Sound to the Gulf highway would be held at Fredericksburg Friday, September 2nd, the Gillespie county chairman of the highway advised with the Fredericksburg Chamber of Commerce regarding the matter. The result was that the Chamber of Commerce not only arranged to take care of the meeting for Friday, but speedily got together and arranged to give a series of entertainments that would keep the visitors over another day. Following the business meeting, there will be a military band concert, dancing, barbecue, special entertainment for the ladies, and last, but not least, a big outing at the Enchanted Rock, a 160-acre solid granite dome over 500 feet high, located 16 miles north of Fredericksburg and at a site rich in Indian legends. It is here the barbecue will be served free on Saturday, September 3d. But the biggest feat of all was when the Chamber of Commerce promptly decided to build a road out to this Enchanted Rock, especially for the visitors to travel over. That's what we call action! That's community cooperation! That is going to make the visitors give Fredericksburg some mighty good advertising.

Then there is our neighbor, San Saba. Visitors at the San Saba fair were delighted beyond words to note that this enterprising little city has already laid a block of concrete pavement on the squares. That's setting an example for future street building in San Saba. Incidentally it is making neighbor cities and citizens sit up and take notice.

Brady and McCulloch county need better roads and street building than was ever before dreamed of. We need it now! And mark the prediction: It won't be many years before our citizens will be demanding that McCulloch county get in line with other counties and build permanent roads. Why not head the procession? Why not lead, rather than follow? Why not start the permanent building now?

"BUNK."

A newspaper trade publication last winter offered a prize of $100 for the best and biggest "bunk" book—the "bunk" consisting of free publicity offered for publication and made up into a scrap book. The publisher of a small paper in Missouri won the prize. His "bunk" book consisted of 29,471 inches of "bunk," gathered in six months time. As the larger the paper the more "bunk" submitted to it, it is not unreasonable to assume that the 29,471 inches represents not more than one-third of what some publications received in the same time. Figuring on the smaller paper, however, of eight pages of 120 inches each, the "bunk" it received would have completely filled more than twenty-nine of its issues—in other words it received in the six months enough free publicity to fill completely its twenty-six issues and have enough left over for three other issues in the next six months. And yet some of the folks wonder why newspaper publishers aren't gratified at the opportunity of publishing their propaganda that is of no interest except to the propagandist and the organization for which he is propagandizing.—Denton Record-Chronicle.

COLEMAN WINS TWO OUT OF THREE GAMES PLAYED—BRADY REMAINS CHAMPION

The results in the series of three games played between Coleman and Brady teams Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday are reported from Coleman as follows:

Tuesday—Coleman, 2, Brady 0.
Wednesday—Coleman 2, Brady 0.
Thursday—Brady 10, Coleman 2.

The first game is reported a well-played exhibition, with Robertson making a good showing for Brady on the mound. In Wednesday's game, Everett Wood pitched great ball and deserved to win. Yesterday Robertson pitched again and, as the score indicates, was exceedingly effective. Buck Bailey caught all three games.

The Coleman Democrat-Voice announced that this series was for the championship of West Texas, and it is evident that the title has been retained by Brady, whose record is a total of 5 games won out of 9 games played with Coleman. Brady won 2 out of 3 games played in each of two series previously played with Coleman.

YOUTH BEARS NAME OF POPULAR MOTOR CAR—DODGE BROTHERS

Dodge Brothers Inc. is an institution, but Dodge Brothers is an individual.

Which, though it sounds somewhat involved and perhaps even enigmatic, is but a very simple and very truthful statement.

Fifteen months ago a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. George E. Brothers, Cleveland, O. Mr. Brothers, it happens, is a salesman for the Barnes Motor Co., Cleveland dealer for Dodge Brothers. He had been selling the Dodge Brothers car a long time and was exceedingly proud of it. He was also exceedingly proud of his son. So he decided on a simultaneous tribute to the two. The youngster was christened "Dodge."

Master Dodge Brothers is a very bright young gentleman and gives promise of achieving a renown quite in proportion with the weight of his name.

Miss Imogene Deaver, who has been a guest of her cousin, Miss Cleone Deaver, has returned to her home in Fort Worth.

Miss Cleone Deaver returned Monday from San Saba, where she had been a house guest of Miss Daisy Lee Taylor for the week.

E. J. Broad was a guest of his brothers, Edd and Howard Broad, coming down from Fort Worth Sunday and returning Tuesday night.

An Eye for Business.

Nellie, whose grandfather began life as a cabin boy and finished as a millionaire, was paid by her mother one cent a dozen for pins picked up from the carpet, to keep the boy from getting them.

"Nurse," said Nellie, as her stock of pennies increased, "do you know what I am going to do when I have five cents?"

"No," answered the nurse.

"I'm going to buy a paper of pins and scatter them over the floor, and then pick them up," replied the young financier who was barely five years old.

LYRIC THEATRE
TORE-OPEN NEXT
THURS., SEPT. 1

Manager Julius Levy announces the re-opening of the Lyric Theatre on next Thursday, September 1st. The theatre has been closed the past two months on account of light attendance, and in the meantime Mr. Levy has been arranging advance dates on a great number of big features and special films, with the result that he has a series of specially attractive films to offer patrons.

Mr. Levy announces that he will operate his theatre in manner comparable to those in the largest cities, providing attendance upon the shows justifies him in doing so. He expects shortly to install two new picture machines of the latest type and which will enable the showing of pictures without wait or interruption between reels. He also still has in contemplation the building of a modern theatre building in Brady, and for which purpose he some months ago purchased the Central Hotel lot on South Blackburn street. Just as soon as business and general conditions warrant, Mr. Levy expects to carry his building plans to completion.

An innovation incident to the re-opening of the theatre Thursday night, will be the introduction to the patrons of Miss Jennie Bannister, an experienced and accomplished organist, who will play music written especially for, and harmonizing with the film shown on the screen. Miss Bannister has, for a number of years played in some of the metropolitan theatres, and her playing will prove delightful to the audience.

Possibly no better attraction could have been selected for the opening night than the one to be presented, viz: Georges Carpentier, ring hero of the French nation, in an intriguing American society drama, entitled, "The Wonder Man." Then, there is a long list of feature attractions for the following weeks, including William Faversham in "The Man Who Lost Himself," which will be shown on Monday night, September 5th, at the Firemen's Benefit performance.

Other features already booked include: "Blind Wives," with an all-star cast on September 2nd. "Fighting Shepherds," featuring Anita Stewart on the 6th. "His Greatest Sacrifice," presenting William Farnum, the 9th. "The Valley of Doubt," an Alaskan picture with an all-star cast, the 12th. "Curtain," in which Katherine McDonald features, the 13th. "The Stealers," all-star cast, on the 15th.

"The Face at Your Window," a great Ku Klux Klan picture, the 16th. "Bare Knuckles," in which Wm. Russell plays the leading role, on the 17th. "Dangerous Business," featuring Constance Talmadge, on the 20th. "Slaves of Energy," with Pauline Frederick on the 22nd. "The Mountain Woman," Pearl White leading, on the 30th.

Two serials are also booked, the first "Branded Four," a society mystery, to begin on next Wednesday, the 7th, and the second, "The Whirlwind," an exciting and adventurous play, to begin Saturday, the 17th.

Other features will include the favorite Sunshine comedies, other Ku Klux Klan pictures, and plays in which favorite actors such as Tom Mix, Wm. Hart, Buck Jones and others will take part. Needless to say, there will be a variety of plays presented, and the list will include those which win favor from all the different classes attending the theatre. So whether you like comedy, dramas, problem plays, adventures or scenic wonders, you will be certain to find just what you like if you will watch and read the plays and dates as announced in the Lyric ads.

Mr. Paschal B. Melton and Miss Yrma Davenport, July 7.
Mr. Robert Parrish and Miss Minnie McCall, July 9.
Mr. Edwin Sayles and Miss Laura Baird, July 9.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Miss Emma Young was a Brady visitor from Rochelle this morning. Miss Young will again teach primary in the Waco schools the coming session, and states she is delighted with her work there. She intended going to school this summer, but was obliged to remain with her mother at Rochelle on account of the latter having sustained a broken foot. Mrs. Young is now doing nicely, and Miss Young will, therefore, be able to take up her school duties at the time of the school opening, on the 12th.

Friend D. C. Randals was in from the Waldrip community Wednesday, and was still wearing a happy smile over the successful manner in which the U. C. V. reunion was staged by the Brady citizens. Mr. Randals said there was an abundance to eat, every comfort was provided, and not a thing was lacking, and that he did not hear a single veteran make complaint about anything. As a matter of fact, all of the veterans were so highly pleased that they were ready to vote unanimously to return to Brady in 1922 had Brady but extended the invitation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Myers, accompanied by their little son, returned Monday from their marketing trip.

Mr. Grady Webb and Miss Eva Nichols, July 9.
Mr. O. L. Wooten and Miss Elizabeth Gay, July 16.
Estaban Martinez and Estanislada Vasquez, July 20.
Charlie Davila and Carmel Salenus, July 30.

during which they visited in Fort Worth, Dallas, St. Louis and Chicago. They report a very pleasant trip upon the whole, having experienced several refreshing rains while at market, which materially added to cooling the atmosphere and towards making their shopping more agreeable. They report having purchased a complete stock in all lines for both their Brady and their Eden stores, and the new goods are already arriving and being placed on display. After carefully noting business conditions in the various cities visited, Mr. Myers returned to Brady more satisfied with his location than ever. He states that in some of the larger cities, the merchants are just selling enough goods to barely pay their help and operating expenses and that they are virtually selling goods merely for the pleasure of being in business.

BEAUTY PARLOR OPENED AT BENHAM'S STORE BY MISS WILLIE LINDEMAN

A beauty parlor has been opened this week at the Benham millinery store by Miss Willie Lindeman of Brownwood, and promises to become a popular institution with the ladies of Brady. Miss Lindeman will specialize in massaging, shampooing and manicuring, and Brady ladies will find themselves delighted with the results obtained at her experienced hands. Mr. Benham is greatly interested in having the ladies try out this new departure, and if sufficient interest is taken in the matter, proposes to fit up a nicely appointed beauty parlor in connection with his store.

A cordial invitation is extended by Miss Lindeman to visit her and learn of her methods and work.

Why the No. 2070
Excels

Built by Shaw-Walker.
Has no nuts, bolts or screws.
It's rigid.
The drawers open and close easily and smoothly.
The slide is progressive. It's a well-made, durable slide.
The drawers are 2 1/2 inches deep. This gives you eight or ten more inches filing space per four drawers than you secure in other low-priced files.
So this case gives you the essentials—rigidity, big capacity, easy operating drawers.
Of course, it's not as good a case as the No. 1070. Have to sacrifice somewhere. Lighter gauge of steel, steel hardware, and a slip-in follower block save money, yet detract little from the file's actual usefulness.
May be had in olive green or mahogany, with or without locks.

BUICK

The new Buick Four is a distinctively Buick creation in every feature of design and construction. It embodies those principles of construction that have characterized Buick automobiles for more than twenty years.

The engine is of the famed Buick Valve-in-Head type. The bore is 3 3/8"—the stroke, 4 3/4". Wheel base, 109", turning radius, 36 feet.

A Marvel carburetor with the new automatic heat control. Multiple disc clutch, the transmission and universal joint are of standard Buick construction—the universal joint being lubricated from the transmission.

The rear axle is the three-quarter floating type, with semi-elliptical type springs front and rear. The frame is a deep channel section, strongly reinforced with four cross members.

High pressure Alemite system. Delco equipment with Exide battery. All models have non-glare headlight lenses—all are complete with tire carrier and extra rim. Closed models are equipped with adjustable windshield visors, windshield cleaner, dome light, ventilating windshield, adjustable windows, and sun shade in rear window.

A Private Man.
The American wounded were being brought in from the second Marne battle and a fussy American woman in a khaki uniform and Sam Browne knelt over a stretcher and said, "Is this case an officer or only a man?" The brawny corporal who stood beside the stretcher gave her a grim laugh and said, "Well, lady, he ain't no officer, but he's been hit twice in the innards, both legs bursted, he's got two bullets in both arms, and we dropped him three times without his lettin' out a squeak, so I guess ye can call him a man."

OFFERINGS TO SAVAGE GODS

Human Sacrifices in Sacred Groves a Part of the Dreadful Old Druidical Religion.

The old Druid religion was a dreadful one in many aspects, and no phase of it was more evil than the ceremonies that were conducted in the sacred grove just outside the walls of Marseilles, France. The trees were oaks, and no human hand had laid an ax to the forest since the creation of it. As a result the underbrush had grown up and the trees themselves had so interlaced limbs and leaves that the interior of the grove was almost as dark as if it were perpetual night, as no ray of sun could penetrate to its heart. A slime-covered creek twisted about among the trees, its waters an inky blackness, and it is said that no four-footed animal could live in the grove or any bird perch on the trees.

Deep in the heart of the grove, reached only by a secret and twisted path, the Druid stones were set up, ghastly gray piles with flat tops, so that the bodies of the men, women and children to be sacrificed could be laid nude and helpless upon them. The priests, with stone knives, would disembowel the screaming victims or would slowly cut their throats, chanting prayers as the death gurgle echoed in the grim forest. There was not a tree in the depths of the forest that was not stained with the blood of human beings. Maidens were preferred to any other form of sacrifice, and the more beauty one had the more she was thought to be acceptable to the unnamed gods.

Status of Japanese Women.
Under Japanese law a woman, upon contracting marriage, becomes incompetent, like a minor, says Julian Street in McClure's. A wife cannot transfer her own real estate, bring an action at law, or even accept or reject a legacy or a gift, without the consent of her husband. According to the law of Japan a widow cannot succeed her husband as head of the family if she have a child who can take the succession. In matters of inheritance an elder sister gives place to a younger son.

In one respect the Japanese divorce laws are more enlightened than those of America. A husband and wife who agree in wishing a divorce may easily obtain it by stating the fact to the court.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Young Carlyle Wilburton Dale, or "Bill Dale," as he elects to be known, son of a wealthy coal operator, John K. Dale, arrives at the Halfway Switch, in eastern Tennessee, abandoning a life of idle ease—and incidentally a bride, Patricia Clavering, at the altar—determined to make his own way in life. He meets "Babe," Littleford, typical mountaineer girl. "By" Heck, a character of the hills, takes him to John Moreland's home. Moreland is chief of his "clan," which has an old feud with the Littlefords. He tells Dale of the killing of his brother, Moreland, years ago, owner of rich coal deposits, by a man named Carlyle. Moreland's description of "Carlyle" causes Dale to believe the man was his father.

CHAPTER II.—Dale arranges to make his home with the Moreland family, for whom he entertains a deep respect.

CHAPTER III.—Talking with "Babe" Littleford next day, Dale is ordered by "Black Adam" Ball, bully of the district, to leave "his girl" alone. Dale replies spiritedly, and they fight. Dale whips the bully, though badly used up. He arranges with John Moreland to develop David's coal deposits. Ben Littleford sends a challenge to John Moreland to meet him with his followers next day, in battle. Moreland agrees.

CHAPTER IV.—During the night all the guns belonging to the Littlefords and the Morelands mysteriously disappear.

CHAPTER V.—Dale arranges to go to Cincinnati to secure money for the mining of the coal. The two clans find their weapons, which the women had hidden, and line up for battle. "Babe," in an effort to stop the fighting, crosses to the Moreland side of the river, and is accidentally shot by her father and seriously wounded.

"You say David Moreland's mountain, Carlyle?" jerkily.

"Yes."

"And you—you learned about David Moreland?"

"Yes, Bill Dale folded his arms and stood there looking at his father with eyes that accused."

"You know who killed him?" old Dale muttered.

"I do, and it was a shame—a black shame."

"Yes, it was a shame. Nobody knows that half so well as I know it," said John K. Dale. His mouth quivered. He looked downward, looked up again.

"Son, you can never say or think worse things about me than I have said and thought about myself—because of that."

Dale the younger glanced toward the house. Robert McLaurin was coming slowly down the veranda steps. Mrs. Dale was nowhere in sight. She didn't want to see her son; she didn't even want him in the house. Bill Dale read it all in his friend's downcast countenance, and it was somehow a great disappointment.

"You'll need money if you're going to develop that coal property," Dale the elder was saying. "You haven't any money, and those mountain folk haven't any. I'll give you all that's needed. I'll send you mining machinery, and expert mining men; I'll—"

"You needn't," broke in the embittered Bill Dale. "I can get the necessary funds without difficulty. I'll pay the debt myself. You've had a great many years in which to try to make amends, and you haven't done anything. You might have helped the Morelands without their even knowing that it was you—especially as they seem to have known you by another name—and that's the only way you could have helped them. Here you have one reason why I cannot accept assistance from you; don't you see, father? The Morelands wouldn't have it, and I couldn't lie to them."

He motioned to McLaurin, who had halted on the lower veranda step in order that he might not overhear, and here all the time. Why not 'phone him from here?"

"I'll do that," Dale decided. "Look up my two friends for me, Bobby, will you?"

He was soon speaking to Newton Wheatley. He was brief in stating his wishes. To the question as to why he did not go to his father for funds—well, he had his reasons, and it was rather a private matter. Wheatley, of course, remembered the near-wedding.

The old iron man was silent for what seemed to Dale a very long time. Then his voice came over the wire with an almost ominous calm:

"Who besides you has seen this vein, Carlyle? Anybody that knows coal?"

"Yes, my father," Dale answered quickly. "He went over it years ago. Ask him about the coal in David Moreland's mountain. 'Phone him, and then 'phone me. I'm waiting at the Blaisdell."

Wheatley agreed a little reluctantly. Dale waited patiently for fifteen minutes. Then the clerk called him to the 'phone. He took up the receiver with boyish eagerness.

Wheatley began cordially: "Your father tells me it is a good proposition, Carlyle, so I'll let you have all the money you'll need. And if you want a good mining man, I know where you can lay your hands on one; also I can furnish you, at half the original cost, all the necessary machinery and accessories. You didn't know the old Luther-Wheatley company dickered in coal as well as iron; eh? Well, it did. Let me see you at three o'clock this afternoon—"

Dale was jubilant. Here was a rare stroke of good fortune. He went to McLaurin—who had not yet found John Moreland and Ben Littleford—and told him about it. McLaurin was almost as happy as Dale over it. A bellboy appeared like a Jack-in-the-box in the center of the floor. "Mistoh Cahlyle Dale! Mistoh Cahlyle Dale!" Dale wheeled. "Well?"

"Wanted immediately at Doctor Braemer's hospitable, suh!"

Dale shook hands with McLaurin and hurried toward the street. A few minutes later Doctor Braemer met him in the reception room.

"What's wrong, doctor?"

"The surgeon beckoned. 'Come with me.'"

He turned and led the way through a long corridor and to a sunny white room where Babe Littleford lay with a bandage about her temples. Ben Littleford was on his knees at his daughter's bedside; he was slowly wringing his big, rough hands and begging piteously to be forgiven.

Babe stared at him a trifle coldly. She had not yet seen the two men who stood in the doorway. Then she interrupted her father:

"You hush, pap, and go away. I'd told ye a hundred times about fightin' a-ben murder, and 'specially to us wimmenfolks, and you never would pay any 'tention to me. You hush, pap, and go away. Ef I die, I'll hush haf to die. And ef I die, I shore do want to die in peace. Go way, pap."

"But ye must live, Babe, honey!" Ben Littleford moaned. "Ef you was to die, what'd I do?"

"I don't know what ye'd do, pap," Babe said weakly. "You ought to thought of that afore, pap. It may be too late now. I want ye to go on and let me alone. Ef I die, I want to die in peace. The Lord knows I never got to live in peace!"

There was a worried look in her wonderful brown eyes, and the doctor saw it. He strode forward decisively and helped Littleford to his feet. The hillman wiped away a tear with his faded blue bandana, and hung his head. He had been made a broken man in one day.

"Go out to your friend Moreland," smiled the doctor, "and wait there for a little while."

Babe's father walked unsteadily out of the room. Dale went to Doctor Braemer and whispered, "Isn't she going to make it?" anxiously.

"Certainly she's going to make it," Braemer assured him. "Go on; she wants to see you."

Dale drew a chair up close to the white bed and sat down. Babe's eyes lighted at once, and she put a hand uncertainly toward him. Dale took the hand in his. He saw that it was a little pale under its delicate burn.

"Glad to see you, Babe," he told her softly. "Why do you think you're going to die, Babe?"

She smiled at him. "Why, I don't think I'm a-goin' to die," she said. "I know I'm a-goin' to live, Bill Dale. I feel like I could walk fifty miles right now!"

"But I heard you tell your father—"

"I was a-tryin' to skeer him out o' fightin' any more," she interrupted.

"And I believe I 'bout done it, don't you?"

Dale was relieved. "I do. Is there anything you want, Babe? If there is, I'll get it for you if it's in the universe."

"The universe?" she repeated inquiringly. "What's the universe, Bill Dale? Somethin' to eat?"

"The world, the sun, the moon, and the stars."

She smiled at him again. "No," she said, "the ain't nothin' I want, and ain't nothin' ye can do fo' me, I reckon."

"But I thought, as they sent for me—"

Babe Littleford's fingers held tightly to his. "It was me that sent fo' you."

She turned her face the other way. "I was so lonesome, Bill Dale!"

Robert McLaurin's wife, Patricia, visited Babe twice daily, and a friendship that was none the less warm for being unique sprang up quickly between them. Patricia declared to her husband that she was going to keep

"I Was a-Tryin' to Skeer Him Out o' Fightin' Any More," She Interrupted.

Babe—whom she was already calling by her proper name, the same being Elizabeth—and educate her. There was room in the bungalow, Patricia said; and she really needed company, because Bobby was away so much.

Babe accepted little Mrs. McLaurin's offer as soon as Bill Dale convinced her that she wouldn't be merely an object of charity. The hill pride's first law is that one must pay for what he gets—and it's probably the first law God laid down for old Adam in Eden. Ben Littleford seemed bewildered and blue when they told him of the arrangement, but he voiced no objection. Dale pressed upon him a loan of a hundred dollars, and ordered him to give it to his daughter, which he did. Elizabeth Littleford, of course, would need new clothing.

"I ain't even got any dresses at home," she whispered to Patricia, "but two."

Bill Dale was sure now that he loved Babe, and he was almost sure that she cared for him. But he was quite properly in no haste to come to an understanding. He had known all along that Babe would have to be educated! and a woman's tastes, he reasoned, might change with education. And he wanted her to have the opportunity of knowing other men of his class. If she couldn't love him with a lasting love, he didn't want her to love him at all.

"Oddy or not, he never thought of Jimmy Fayne."

CHAPTER VIII.

Major Bradley and Henderson Goff.

When Bill Dale, the expert mining man Hayes and the two mountaineers stepped from a short passenger train at the Halfway Switch, they were approached by the moonshiner, Heck, and a man whom Dale had never seen before. He was tall, and his bearing was erect and soldierlike, though he was every day of sixty years old. His eyes were blue and twinkling with everlasting good humor; his gray mustaches and imperial were exceedingly well cared for; his teeth were his own, and as white as a school-girl's, and they bore out his general air of neatness. He was, plainly, a Southerner of the old type.

"Who's that?" whispered Dale to John Moreland.

But Moreland didn't hear. He ran forward with his right hand outstretched, and so did Ben Littleford. Men could not have greeted a brother with more gladness, Dale thought.

"Hi, thar, Major Bradley!" the hillman cried. "And how d'ye come on today?"

"I am very well, gentlemen, thank you," said the major, smiling. "The trainmen gave us your message yesterday," he went on, still smiling, "and we were delighted to learn that the young woman was out of danger. I trust you are all in good health, gentlemen."

They assured him that they were. Moreland turned to introduce Bill Dale and the mining man. From the moment that Major Bradley gripped Dale's hand they were friends.

"Mighty glad to know you, sir!" exclaimed the old lawyer. "I've been hearing a great deal about you, sir, over in the valley of the Doe. They seem to think there's nobody just like Bill Dale! It was Bill Dale this, and Bill Dale that; it was 'Here's where Bill Dale whipped Black Adam,' or 'Here's where Bill Dale was standing when such-and-such happened,' or 'Here's where Bill Dale crossed the fence!'"

"Hah-hah-hah!" slughishly laughed By Heck, who stood leaning on the muzzle of his rifle. "Bill Dale is all right, major; ye've shore got my word fo' that."

The others laughed. Then John Moreland said they'd better be moving, or they'd be late for dinner.

When they had put a hundred yards of David-Moreland's mountain behind them, the old Southerner tagged slyly at Dale's sleeve and whispered:

"Let us fall behind a little, if you please. I want to speak with you privately."

They began to lag, and soon there was a distance of several rods between them and the others.

"I heard through Addie Moreland," began Bradley, his friendly hand on the younger man's arm, "about you and what you're planning to do for the Morelands. I tell you, sir, I thanked heaven for your coming, and you may count on me to help in any way I can. The Morelands are quite friendly to me now, though up to the middle of last summer they didn't like me any too well because I made Ben Littleford's cabin my home when out here."

"It was a simple thing that brought us together, John Moreland's little nephew was lost in the woods and his mother was frantic. There are painters, you know, and wildcats, rattlers, and copperheads. I was fortunate enough to find the boy, and carried him home. That was all. They're a fine people, my boy, and so are the Littlefords. Good old English blood that somehow wandered off. There's no purer, cleaner blood in America, sir."

"And now—how are you getting along with your plans for the operation of the coal mine?"

"Excellently," answered Dale. "We have the necessary finance; a geared locomotive and cars and light steel rails have been bargained for."

"Good!" Bradley gave Dale a hearty slap on the shoulder.

"There's something else I wanted to say, Mr. Dale," he continued, his voice grave. "You're nearly certain to have a barrel of trouble with a shyster coal man named Henderson Goff. He's a villain, sir, if ever there was one! And he's quite the smoothest article I've ever seen. He can make you believe black is white, if only you'll listen to him long enough."

"Is he—has he been here recently?" Dale wanted to know.

"He's here now," answered the major. "He's been here for three days, and he's been working devilment fast. He was up here last summer, trying to buy the Moreland coal for a song; he knows all the people, you see. As soon as he landed here on this present trip, he found out about your intentions. Then, at night, he freed Adam Ball from his tobacco barn prison, and went home with him."

"Well, By Heck followed them and did some eavesdropping—poor By has his strong points!" the major went on. "Goff learned that Adam Ball's father knew about the coal vein long before David Moreland discovered it and got lawful possession of the mountain. Then Goff made the Balls believe that they were due a big share of the proceeds of the Moreland coal! It wasn't very hard to do, I guess. The Balls, this set, at least, were originally lowlanders; they took to the mountains, I understand, to keep from being forced to fight during the Civil war."

"Goff's idea," muttered Dale, "is to get the Balls to scare me into selling instead of developing, eh?"

"Exactly," nodded old Bradley. "Then he would settle with the Balls by giving them a dollar or two a day for digging coal; perhaps he would put them off until the mine was worked out for half of that, and then skip. Anyway, Goff would come out at the big end."

"I see," said Dale.

"If there's anything that I can do, at any time, you won't hesitate to let me know?" said the major.

"You may consider yourself attorney and legal adviser for the Moreland Coal company, of which I have the honor to be general manager," smiled Dale, "if you will."

Major Bradley's voice came happily. "My dear boy, I am glad to accept! And there shall be no charge for any service that I may render."

They were not long in reaching the green valley, which lay very beautiful and very peaceful in the warm light of the early July sun. The soft murmuring of the crystal river and the low, slow tinkling of the cowbells made music that was sweet and pleasing.

Suddenly John Moreland stopped, uttered a swearword under his breath, turned and went back to Dale.

"That's a man a-waitin' on us ahead thar, Bill," he drawled, "at ye shore want to watch like a hawk to keep him from a-stealin' the eyeteeth out o' yore head. His name is Henderson Goff, and he wants coal."

They went on. Soon they met a man who, in clothing and manner, made Dale think of stories he had heard and read of Mississippi river steamboat gamblers of the long ago. His eyes were black, and as keen as a pair of spear-points; his mustaches, too, were black, and they had sharp, upturned ends like those of a Memphis. The major had said that he was a smooth article; he certainly looked it.

He met John Moreland with an oily smile and thrust out his hand. But Moreland wouldn't see the hand.

"Anything ye've got to say about coal," he growled, "ye can say to Bill Dale thar," pointing with a calloused thumb. "Bill he's the high light o' the whole business; and when he opens his mouth, ye can cock yore head to one side and listen fo' gawspel."

Goff was delighted to meet Mr. Dale, of whom he had already heard. Dale had nothing whatever to say. They walked on toward the cabin of the Moreland chief, with Goff keeping up a running fire of talk concerning the scenery, the climate—anything but coal.

At John Moreland's gate, Goff nudged Dale with an elbow and whispered:

"Meet me at one o'clock down there where the big steamore lies across the river. I'll get something to tell you that will interest you."

He didn't wait for a reply, but turned away with By Heck. He went to the home of the Hecks ostensibly to have his fortune told—really, to get his dinner. The old woman didn't like him, but her inborn spirit of hospitality wouldn't permit her to refuse him a meal. She felt that she was almost even with him when, after shuffling and reading the cards, she told him that it would be wise for him to look out for a big, tall, grey-eyed young man with an oak tree in one hand and a couple of cliffs in the other.

Dale told Major Bradley and John Moreland of that which Goff had said to him at the gate. The major suggested forthwith that he go to meet the man; it couldn't possibly do any harm, and there was a chance that he would learn something of Goff's intentions.

So Dale went.

Goff was already there, waiting. He was sitting on a stone on the Moreland side of the river, whittling idly. When he saw Dale approaching, he smiled and nodded, rose and pocketed his knife.

"I want to make you an offer for that coal," he said at once.

"All right," Dale replied. "If your offer is big enough, it will be considered. But no shyster price is going to get that coal, Goff."

Goff frowned uneasily.

"You don't know coal, Mr. Dale. You don't know the business of mining—or I've got you sized up wrong. Thousands of men have gone busted trying to do things they weren't used to doing. There's a big chance, too, that the coal isn't what it looks to be on the surface. You'd better take a sure thing, and avoid a possibility of loss. I'll give you five thousand, spot cash, for that coal."

Dale shook his head. "You'll have to come heavier than that, y'know, if you get the Moreland coal."

"And an extra thousand for yourself!"

Dale laughed a low, queer laugh. "You amuse me, Goff," said he. "Seems to me you've missed your calling in life. What a peach of a king-villain you'd make in melodrama! You wouldn't have to act, either; you'd have to be just your natural self. And you make me mad, too, Goff. Because I'm on the square with the Morelands and everybody else—now, get that!"

The corners of the shyster coal man's mouth came down.

"Oh, hosh—don't pass me that virtue stuff. Every man has his price, high or low. You've got sour, and I've got mine. I'll give you five thousand, spot cash, if you'll persuade John Moreland to sell to me for five thousand, and nobody'll ever know you got a rakedown from me. It's all the coal is worth, that ten thousand. Well, yes?"

Dale was of the type that goes pale with anger, and he was pale now. He clenched his hands.

"You can't insult me like that and get away with it, Goff," he clipped. "We're going to fight, Goff, and I'm going to put a Hecking on you that fifteen horses can't pull off. Get me?"

He threw aside his coat and rolled his sleeves to his elbows. Henderson Goff ran his right hand quickly to a rear trouser pocket and brought back a stub-nosed automatic pistol, which he turned threateningly toward Bill Dale.

"Go easy, friend," Goff said very complacently. "There's no use in getting sore. I want the coal, that's all. If I can't get it by fair means, I'll get it in another way. Oh, I don't mind telling you; one man's oath is as good in court as another man's. If you don't take me up at ten thousand, I'll give you so much trouble that you'll be glad to sell it to me later for half that amount. The Balls think they own a big interest in that coal! There's a lot of them, too, and they can keep you from working the mine. Well, I can't waste time in dickering with you. What do you say?"

"I say," and Dale smiled an odd little smile, "that your plan appears to be perfect, except that you've overlooked one or two important details. For instance, there's the law, y'know."

"The law—now don't go and fool yourself!" exclaimed Goff. "The state couldn't afford to keep a hundred men here, month in and month out, just to protect your little mine. My patience is about gone, Dale—for the last time, what do you say?"

CALF CREEK TAKES BALL GAME FROM EAST SWEDEN TEAM LAST SATURDAY

No longer can the ball team of East Sweden boast a percentage of 100, since the Calf Creek nine last Saturday took the game played at Dutton City park away from them by a score of 10 to 8. Taylor and Edwards composed the pitching staff of East Sweden and Walter Hurd, catching the game, while Calf Creek had El Hardrider and L. Bradshaw for hurlers and Pearson for catcher. Despite the big score the game was well played, considering that neither team had gotten in much practice. Edwards of East Sweden made an unassisted double, catching an infield fly, and then beating a runner to second sack.

ATHLETIC SHOW SATURDAY NIGHT AT DUTTON PARK

Lovers of red-blooded sport will be greatly interested in the announcement in this issue of the Athletic show to be staged Saturday night at the Dutton City Park. The big feature of the show will be Frank Starr, undefeated Middleweight wrestler, whose exhibition alone is guaranteed worth the price of admission. In addition there will be several good boxing matches, with a preliminary event between a husky colored boy, weight 186 pounds, and who will meet one of the local dusky glove artists.

Still another feature attraction will be Pearce Byrd of San Saba, weight 133 pounds, who offers to meet in a 10-round boxing bout, any comer within ten pounds of his own weight. The show throughout will be a good, clean exhibition of the manly sport and will be well worth attending. Special invitation is issued to the ladies to attend. Show starts promptly at 8:00 o'clock, and admission will be 50c and 75c.

G. A. RUDOLPH OF LOHN HAS WILLYS-KNIGHT AUTO STOLEN FRIDAY NIGHT, 19TH

G. A. Rudolph was in Brady last Saturday to report to local officers the theft of his Willys-Knight Overland auto, the car having been taken from his garage the night before, the thief making a clean get-away and leaving no traces. The car is described as a Model B-84, Engine No. 6,898; 1921 Seal No. 336,662; State License No. 95,838. The car was equipped with three Hydro-Torron tires and a fourth tire of the same make was mounted on the spare rim. Mr. Rudolph says that distinctive repair work showing on the car will enable him to readily identify the same. He is offering a $25 reward for recovery of the car, and an additional $25 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the thief.

Car Recovered at Colorado.

Since the above was written, Mr. Rudolph's car has been located at Colorado City, a message from Womack & Co. of that city to Sheriff Wall, sent at 11:03 yesterday morning reading:

"Who owns Willys-Knight Overland from that town, Engine No. 846,898."

While the number did not correspond, Mr. Wall immediately got in touch with the Colorado parties and learned that the number given was in error, but that the state highway number, 95,838, was still on the car. The seal number, however, had been thrown away.

The car was left in the Womack & Co. garage by a man described as being tall, slender and cross-eyed, and who was accompanied by a boy of about 18 years of age. They first tried to trade the car, but not being successful in making the desired trade, left the car in the garage, stating they would be back later. That was the last heard of them. A search of the car revealed a paper and a card, both of which bore Mr. Rudolph's name and address, and which resulted in the telegram being sent here.

Mr. Rudolph has already gone to Colorado City to recover his stolen property.

This makes a record of two out of three cars stolen in McCulloch county, which have been located, the first being the car of W. S. Shropshire. J. M. Roe lost a car a year or two ago of which no trace was ever found.

The Letters Well Mixed.

A certain American editor lost two subscribers by an act of his own carelessness; and this is how it came about. They wrote to ask his remedy for their respective troubles. Number One, a happy father of twins, wrote to inquire the best way to get them over their teething; and Number Two wanted to know how to protect his orchard from myriads of grasshoppers. The editor framed his answers upon the orthodox lines, but unfortunately transposed the inquirers' two names, with the result that Number One who was blessed with twins, read in his reply to his query, "Cover them carefully with straw and set fire to them, and the little pests' after jumping about in the flames for a few minutes, will speedily be settled." Number Two, plagued with grasshoppers, was told, "Give a little castor oil and rub their gums gently with a bone ring."

Brady's New Well.
When the world's greatest teacher grew weary,
And could leave the throng for a spell
He withdrew from a path often dreary
And sat down by the side of a well.

This oasis by life's desert byway,
The gift from a hand so benign,
Has sharpened and builded the highway
That leads thirsty souls towards Divine.

Thus Brady may say to the stranger
Whoever may come there to dwell,
Like the Humble Man born in a manger,
"Come rest with me here by the well."

No more shall Brady drink from the river,
Tho' filtered and pure it might be.
That well like good gifts from the Giver,
Is good enough plenty for thee.

It's better than gold, oil or glasses,
It's better than buildings of gold;
This good water shall bless all the classes—
Poor, rich, high and low, young and old.

Thanksgiving, joy bells should be ringing,
Down deep, like that well may you go,
Until hearts blend with hearts in their singing
The praises of God here below.

HIGH SCHOOL AND 7TH GRADE PUPILS TO REGISTER MONDAY AND TUES.

J. B. Smith, superintendent of the Brady schools, announces that on next Monday and Tuesday he will be at the high school building on the north side to register all pupils of both the high school and the 7th grades. Not only are the pupils requested to register on one of these days, but Mr. Smith earnestly desires that the parents accompany the pupils so that they may learn and understand just what their children will undertake to accomplish during the coming school year.

Mr. Smith will be at the school building from 9:00 o'clock until 11:00 each morning, and from 2:00 o'clock until 5:00 each afternoon. Following the completion of the registering for courses, Mr. Smith will work out the schedule of classes.

The institute for the teachers of the Brady schools will open a week from Monday, September 5th, being in session here from Monday until Friday. The Brady schools will open for the 1921-22 term the following Monday, September 12th. The faculty for the local schools has been completed, Miss Maggie McKeand of Fife being named to fill the remaining vacancy among the teachers of the grade school. Miss McKeand taught here part of the past year and her selection for the coming session will meet with general favor.
