BRADY "BETTER SCHOOLS" MOVEMENT LAUNCHED—ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

BIGGEST MASS MEETING HELD IN BRADY IN YEARS ENDORSES PROGRAM OF PARENT-TEACHERS ASSOCIATION FOR BUILDING AND MAINTENANCE.

The largest and most enthusiastic mass meeting held in Brady in many years was had last night at the Methodist tabernacle, and at which the program of the Parent-Teachers association of Brady to build a first-class school building in Brady and to provide proper maintenance for the schools of Brady received enthusiastic endorsement, and was vouchsafed unanimous approval. The sentiment of the meeting was that Brady must build a school, not only for the present, but one for the future. The enthusiastic meeting, with its ringing endorsement of the plan of the Parent-Teachers association, was a fitting climax to the parade staged by the schools during the afternoon.

Under the leadership of its president, Mrs. Wm. C. Jones, the Brady Parent-Teachers association has developed into a powerful factor for the good of the Brady schools. The great work accomplished by the association the past year has enlisted the support and aroused the interest of every parent, and every citizen interested in Brady and its schools. It has been a year of accomplishment, and no one realizes this more than does the citizen who has kept informed upon our local school problems.

Perhaps no better illustration of the forceful leadership of Mrs. Jones, and the hearty co-operation given by members of the association, could have been had than in the parade staged at about 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. The Brady Band not being available for the occasion, the line of march was headed by the big truck of the Brady Fire department, whose siren announced the coming of the parade. Following in line were first the Brady high school students, followed by the sixth, fifth, fourth, third, second and primary students of the Central school, in the order named. The executive committee and members of the Parent-Teachers association followed in autos. Cecil Striegler acted as bugler for the parade, and the students gave yells and sang, "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You."

Banners were carried by various of the pupils, some of which read as follows:

- "Give Me a Chance,"
- "Vote for Better Schools,"
- "Would You Rob Me of My Birth Right,"
- "Which Side Are You On,"
- "Rochelle Is Trying to Get Our School's Goat."

The parade twice circled the fire boys incidentally to the announcement by megaphone of the meeting to be held at the tabernacle at night.

The Mass Meeting.
The Brady Band opened the mass meeting at the tabernacle with a splendid selection of musical numbers which won applause from the audience that reached upward of 500. All the seats were occupied, additional seats were secured, and then numbers left on account of being unable to secure seats.

Mrs. Jones briefly stated the object of the meeting, and then requested Wm. D. Cargill, secretary of the Brady Chamber of Commerce to read the statement prepared by the Brady school board upon the financial condition and status of the Brady schools at the present time. This statement appears alongside of this article, and should receive careful study and attention from the citizenship.

Bailey Jones presided over the meeting as chairman, and under his able and skillful direction, the meeting proceeded with dispatch, and interest was maintained right up to adjournment.

Following the reading of the statement, J. B. Smith, superintendent of the Brady schools, made an interesting address, in which he stressed the importance and absolute necessity of providing better facilities and ample funds for the maintenance of Brady's schools in order that their present splendid standing and rank might be maintained.

Mrs. Jones then gave the gist of the address which had been prepared by Sam McCollum, who was to have been the principal speaker of the evening, but who was unable to appear because of illness. In her remarks, Mrs. Jones stated that Mr. McCollum wished to emphasize the importance of building a school for the future—one that would not only meet the present-day needs, but one which would take care of our school needs for many years to come.

Mayor Lee Jones, former president of the Brady school board, responded to a call for an address by volunteering the information that he could not make an address, but that if he could talk to each one personally, he could tell some important facts concerning the Brady schools, and why a better school and ample funds behind them were an absolute necessity. He followed these remarks by making one of the most earnest and appealing addresses of the evening, and which had a profound effect upon the audience for the simple reason that everyone felt Mr. Jones was not talking for oratorical effect, but was conveying the ideas that came from his heart, and which had had their creation in the long and strenuous period he had served on the Brady school board.

Judge Joe A. Adkins was another impressive speaker. On account of physical weakness, Judge Adkins made his address while seated, and his arm-chair logic and appeal carried with it the interest and conviction that only a heart-to-heart talk can bring.

The Rev. S. C. Dunn concluded the speaking for the evening with a strong appeal in behalf of Brady schools and the school children, and the need of a citizenship united in purpose to give their children every possible advantage, which, of course, included the best in schools and schooling.

Following this there was a general discussion of the matter, in which Jas. T. Mann, Judge Evans J. Adkins, A. J. Ricks and Wilson D. Jordan took the leading part. Mr. Jordan called attention to the putting over of a $150,000 school bond issue by Plainview, and the fact that Plainview was providing maintenance for its six ward schools. Judge Evans Adkins emphasized the fact that Brady should profit by her experience in the past, viz: erection of buildings inadequate to care for the future growth of the city, and advocated the building of a school which should be ample for the needs of Brady for many years to come, and one to which we might point with pride in the future.

The consensus of opinion was that a bond election should be called, and that bonds should be voted ample to not only build a school building which should be both adequate and a credit to the city for years to come, but which should also provide amply for the maintenance of the schools. It was decided to place the entire matter in the hands of a committee, composed of representatives of both the Parent-Teachers association and the Brady school board, who were to meet this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Jas. T. Mann to decide upon the issue.

Another mass meeting will be called by Mrs. Jones at which the committee will make report.

STATEMENT OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES BRADY INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DIST.

To the People of Brady Independent School District:

It being the opinion of a majority of the School Board that a statement should be made and published by the board relative to the conditions now confronting our schools, we are publishing this statement for your consideration.

As the Board of Trustees for this Independent School District we are your representatives and servants. We are doing the best we can to maintain and upbuild the schools with the means at our disposal. Last year the State apportionment was $13.00 per capita for each child in the scholastic age. This year it will probably be about $9.00. Last year we had 764 scholastics—this year 681, so that we will receive nearly $4000 less from the State this year than we received last year. The total valuation of taxable property was raised last year to $3,259,000. This year it will probably not exceed $2,600,000, and will give us over $3,000 less than we had this year from that source, making a total loss of around $7,000 in our funds for the coming term from these two sources, besides some other losses we will sustain from other sources. We have reduced teachers salaries about as low as we think would be just under existing conditions, but the total reduction will not exceed $3,000.00, which will lack about $4,000.00 of bringing our disbursements within our receipts. We will carry over a balance at the end of this school year of perhaps $2,000 but that will not meet the deficiency in next year's receipts. Those of you who have not had occasion to study these matters may not understand why the school funds are not adequate now as in the past. Our taxable values have not increased in proportion to the demands of the schools. We must now have almost twice as many teachers as were required eight or ten years ago. In 1914 we had a superintendent and twelve teachers. We now have a superintendent and twenty-one teachers, and with this increase in the number of teachers, some of the grades have been at times so crowded that each child could remain in school only half of each day. In 1914 our grade teachers were paid from $55 to $65 per month, and high school teachers in proportion. This year we have been paying from $90 to $110 for grade teachers, and from $110 to $150 for high school teachers, which was as low as we could get competent and efficient teachers. As stated above, we have reduced these salaries, making a general reduction of about 15%, for the coming term, which is as low as we deem just and as low as we can get satisfactory teachers for, but our funds will be inadequate to pay these reduced salaries. Both school houses are poorly arranged and are badly needing repairs. The recent heavy rains flooded some of the rooms in the central school building. These repairs should be made soon, and they will cost a considerable sum of money. It is also our desire and purpose to provide a separate place for the Mexican children during the coming school term. The town badly needs a high school building, adequate not only for present needs but for future demands. The only way such a building can be provided will be through a bond issue, and the present tax rate of fifty cents is inadequate for present maintenance purposes to say nothing of providing a fund to pay interest on the bonds as it accrues and redeem the bonds at maturity.

We make this statement of the facts regarding the situation to call it to your attention, so that you can think it over, discuss it, and arrive at ways and means of reaching a proper solution of the problem. A

THREE BOYS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Three Brady boys, Edwin Stanton, Perly Smith and Milton Day, had a thrilling experience Sunday afternoon at the Snearly swimming pool, in the city lake, when they narrowly escaped drowning after being carried over the dam by the flood waters of the creek. Stanton and Smith, both aged about 14 years, were the first to go over just about noon Sunday, when a rise in the creek created a current too swift for them to battle against. After going over the dam, they were caught in the whirl-pool at the bottom, formed by the swirling waters, and despite their frantic endeavors, the suction drew them back. Onlookers at first thought their outcry was made in play, but soon it was realized that they were practically exhausted. Leo Campbell jumped into the seething water to their aid, but was caught in the swirl, and only extricated himself by swimming on down-stream. John Zumwalt next went to the rescue, jumping in without even stopping to remove any of his clothing, and was successful in rescuing one of the boys, while the other was dragged out with a rope.

In the afternoon, Milton Day, while floating on his back, got too close to the dam, and before he realized the danger, or could swim out of the current, he, too, was carried over into the whirlpool below. Truman Joyce, who attempted his rescue, slipped into the water, and had an exciting time saving himself. With some degree of self-possession, youg Day managed to get a toe-hold on the concrete slab at the base of the dam, and then devoted his efforts to keeping his head out of water. Just as his strength had about failed him, a rope was gotten to him, and he also was pulled to safety.

vast majority of the children of Texas never finish high school, and a large of those who finish never go beyond and enter a college or university. We believe every citizen should stand for the education of the masses, for training the boys and girls of today in order that they may become educated, refined and cultured men and women, and, to this end, we believe a high school education in the best high school it is possible to build up and maintain should be placed within easy reach of every boy and girl. We are ready and willing to labor and co-operate with you to attain these ends. If the majority of you want to go ahead as at present without any effort to improve our school facilities and educational advantages, then we will do so and give you the best school it is possible for us to give you with the means at hand. We have been freely giving our time and efforts in behalf of our schools, and feel that it is our duty to lay the situation before you in order that you may consider and discuss it, and determine whether you desire to let conditions remain as at present, or try to improve upon them, and we respectfully ask that you give these things your earnest consideration, and we assure you that we are ready to labor and co-operate with you in any movement you may desire to undertake for the best interests and upbuilding of our public schools and the training and education of the children.

Respectfully submitted,
J. E. Brown, President,
A. J. Ricks, Vice-President,

C. OF C. OUTLINES PEPPY PROGRAM OF ACTIVITIES

At a meeting of the Program committee of the Brady Chamber of Commerce held Monday afternoon in the office of the secretary, the committee outlined a program of activities, which will give the citizenship of town and country splendid opportunity for constructive building and advancement, not only for the immediate future, but which will give opportunity for service for the next decade or more. In fact, the program outlined is the beginning of a movement which, when once under way, will grow like a snowball and develop into bigger and greater things the farther it is carried.

The program, as printed in another column on this page, covers a wide range of endeavors, and is one in which every citizen may take interest and part, to his own benefit. Further than that, this program merely marks the beginning of a course of undertakings which are certain to redound to the good of McCulloch county and to Brady.

Take for instance, the item to complete the building of the Mason road from the river to the county line. Everyone is agreed that this should have been done years ago; that Brady has annually lost enough business to pave this stretch of highway in first-class manner. Yet day after day, month after month and year after year, the matter has been delayed. Now is the time to do, and with the Chamber of Commerce actively directing the work, The Standard predicts it will be done.

The Program committee is giving earnest consideration to all matters of interest and benefit to city and country, and just as soon as one endeavor is achieved, others will be undertaken. The committee spent nearly two hours Monday afternoon considering matters of immediate importance which they would recommend to the body. The program outlined has their unqualified endorsement, and the carrying of the various projects to fulfillment will be undertaken at once.

Composing the program committee are the following live-wire citizens: W. D. Crothers, C. A. Trigg, Lee Jones, G. R. White, Duke Mann, C. H. Vincent, Dr. J. W. Ragsdale.

JOHN W. GOODWIN OF BROWNWOOD APPOINTED ASSISTANT ATTY GEN'L

Austin, Texas, May 13.—Attorney General Walter A. Keeling today announced the promotion of John C. Wall to be First Assistant Attorney General, vice E. F. Smith, resigned, and the appointment of Judge John W. Goodwin of Brownwood and Frank Kemp of Vernon to be assistants in place of Smith and Tom L. Beauchamp, resigned. A third vacancy in the office is not to be filled at this time.

The new First Assistant Attorney General has been an assistant for several months and two years ago was an assistant for some time, this being his second service in the department. Judge Wall has resided in Fannin and Grayson counties and is regarded as a lawyer of ability.

Judge Goodwin was for sixteen years a District Judge and will handle the land litigation for the department. His appointment follows the precedent of other Attorney Generals in going to the West for the land assistant for the school lands are in that section of the State and the lawyers there are familiar with the land law.

Mr. Kemp comes from a county wherein much of the disputed Red River territory is situated and he is entirely familiar with the boundary controversy. He will be used in that litigation if the United States Supreme Court again opens the question by appointment of a committee to locate and designate the northern boundary line of Texas. At other times he will be used in the practice of the department.

BUILDING BRADY.

The Brady Standard editor has just returned from attending a meeting of the Texas Press association at Denton, Texas. He found there numbers of former Bradyites, friends of Bradyites, future Bradyites, and to their inquiries he gave reply by telling them that Brady and McCulloch county were coming into their own. They were building, boosting, and that old Dame Nature was again by their warm side and sponsoring the move. We boosted Brady and McCulloch county because we believe in them, and in their future progress and greatness. Even along the home-ward route we found opportunity and took occasion to boost for home—that's Brady and McCulloch county.

Consequently, upon our return to Brady it was indeed gratifying to learn that even during our five days' absence, Brady and McCulloch had remained in the band wagon of Progress and had made notable advancement towards the ultimate goal.

It is a great pleasure to be able to present to the world the constructive program offered by the program committee of the Brady Chamber of Commerce. It is a privilege to be able to write into the records the undeniable enthusiasm and unity of purpose that marked the launching of the "Better Schools" movement in Brady. It is a long step in the march of achievement. It means that we have boosted not in vain, for the home folks are making a record of accomplishment even as we boosted.

It is a great thing to be loyal to your home town and home community. It brings its own rewards. And no one can say too much good for any community, for there is good in every community if its citizens but develop the good and lend their assistance in the plans to materialize those things which opportunity presents.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF BUSINESS.

Handle the hardest job first each day. Easy ones are pleasures. Do not be afraid of criticism—criticize yourself often. Be glad and rejoice in the other fellow's success—study his methods. Do not be misled by dislikes. Acid ruins the finest fabrics. Be enthusiastic—it is contagious. Do not have the notion that success means simply money-making. Be fair, and do at least one decent act every day in the year. Honor the chief. There must be a head to everything. Have confidence in yourself and make yourself fit. Harmonize your work. Let sunshine radiate and penetrate.—Impressions.

Economy now thinks it has scored if the country is run as cheaply in peace as in war.—Buffalo Enquirer.

"Gold lasts and man's love for it," says Arthur Brisbane in the New York American. "A Philadelphia concern will try to salvage the steamship Lusitania, the great British passenger vessel sunk off the southern coast of Ireland in 1916 by a German submarine. In the Lusitania's iron body lie many skeletons, white and grinning. Powerful machinery lies idle, cartridges that will never explode in their boxes. Old and young men, women and children, their flesh long since gone to feed the darting fishes lie in the wreck. All there will be found and left. There is gold in the ship. One passenger had $75,000 worth of it. Another had $100,000 in the purser. Millions in gold were aboard. And to get that gold the expedition will go. The interest them. Skeletons; gold never!"

RESCUING A COMPETITOR.

F. E. Morris, in a communication published in The News recently, calls attention to an occurrence at Marion, Ohio, as an example of the sort of spirit which should prevail in business nowadays. According to the press account to which he refers, the Landon Dry Goods Company of Marion, having fallen upon evil times, was compelled to submit to bankruptcy proceedings, in the course of which its stock of goods was sold at auction. At the auction the entire stock was bid in by five Marion firms—all of them competitors of the Landon Company—and held for ten days until Charles Landon could get together resources for a reorganization of his former business. The five firms which did Mr. Landon this service made not a penny of profit out of the transaction and carried the whole matter out in the finest spirit of assisting a man temporarily in the stress of circumstance. Mr. Morris thinks that an admirable example of the highest type of generosity. Others will think so, too. Marion, Ohio, can never be looked upon as a one-man town as long as it produced men such as those who went to the aid of Mr. Landon.—Dallas News.

ANOTHER SLOSHING RAIN FALLS IN PARTS COUNTY

Old Jupiter Pluvius continues to run his rain cart with regularity and persistence over this section of these glorious United States. Saturday, shortly after noon another shower fell in Brady, and Sunday night between 12:00 and 1:00 o'clock a hard, dashing rain, accompanied by considerable wind, was had. Lohn reports considerable hail and in the Fairview community a number of windmills were blown down by the wind.

The heaviest of the rain fell in the north end of the county and over most of Brown county. The Clear Creek bridge on the Frisco near Brookesmith was washed out again, and the Frisco train Monday morning was delayed 12 hours before the track was again opened to traffic. Passengers on Sunday night's north-bound train, reported that shortly after leaving Brookesmith they ran into a rain and fine hail storm which fell in such sheets as to obscure the right-of-way. In fact, the deluge was so great that the train could barely creep along, and at times was brought to a standstill because the engineer could not see the track ahead.

A CONNECTICUT YANKEE IN KING ARTHUR'S COURT BILLED FIRST NEXT WEEK

If you want real thrills, real laughs, real cries, then see a "Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," which will be shown at the Lyric on Monday and Tuesday nights of next week. The prices of admission will be 25c and 50c, and you will have to agree when the show is over that it was worth several times the price.

Can you imagine a Yankee from the Nutmeg state in court before the King. Can you imagine his blunders his lack of knowledge of court etiquette, and yet the sang froid with which he "carries on" and "puts it over." You, perhaps, can imagine some of the funny stunts, but it took Mark Twain to picture them so you can really see them and feel them, and it took D. W. Griffith to produce the characters on the silver screen so that you can actually see the play and the players. It is one of the greatest films of the day—a picture of clean, snappy fun, singular situations and amusing plays.

Remember, the time and place—next Monday and Tuesday nights, the Lyric theatre. Mr. Levy is depending upon the liberal support of the citizens in order to maintain the class of pictures he is showing, and unless this support is given he faces two alternatives—the one, to close for the summer; the other, to discontinue the contracting of the better class of pictures for those which patronage justifies.

JESS BRADSHAW WOUNDED IN GUN SHOT ACCIDENT

Jess Bradshaw, well-known citizen of the Calf Creek community, was wounded in the right knee Sunday afternoon at his residence on the Carroll Gray place, through the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of Mr. Gray. The latter had just returned from a hunting for a dog which had been sucking eggs and while surrounded by a number of friends and neighbors, turned aside to unload the gun. In so doing the gun was accidentally discharged, the load going through the side of a barn and striking Bradshaw, who was just inside. The injured man was brought to the local sanitarium about 5:00 o'clock Sunday evening, and it is reported that he is improving nicely, with every indication that recovery will be complete.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood. Polly alone knows their secret. Marcus MacKenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their determined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie and a stranger, in which the former avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stranger sympathizes with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude.

CHAPTER II.—Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, as she supposed, but practically living on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin.

CHAPTER III.—Polly learns from Evelyn that the strange stranger is Robert Percival. Evelyn charges Polly with a message to Bennett, telling him she can give him no more money, and urging him to be patient. She already bitterly regrets her infatuation with and marriage to the ignorant farmer.

CHAPTER IV.—Polly conveys her message, and Oscar makes threats. He insists Evelyn meet him that night. Polly has her father and Larry Bishop, a squatter who has suffered from the enmity of MacKenzie, take an oath to do him no injury.

Robert brushed off his clothes slowly. The farmer still lay on the ground. "Get up," ordered Percival scornfully, touching the prostrate man with the toe of his boot. "Get up and make off if you don't want me to lick you again."

Oscar rolled over and crawled slowly to his hands and knees.

CHAPTER V.—Evelyn unsuccessfully tries to get money from her mother with which to buy off Bennett and induce him to leave the country, giving her her freedom. She is easily ensnared of Marcus MacKenzie. At the arranged meeting that night Bennett threatens Evelyn with exposure unless she procures money for him.

CHAPTER VI.—Polly meets Robert Percival, and they are mutually attracted. Polly's feeling being something like adoration.

CHAPTER VII.—Overhearing a conversation between Polly and Robert Percival, Bennett, really caring nothing for Evelyn and fancying himself in love with Polly, waylays the girl when she leaves Percival and abuses and threatens her. Percival returns and threatens the farmer. He asks Polly in what way he can aid her and she begs him to help the squatters. Percival is rich and influential, though lacking the power of MacKenzie, but agrees to do his best. MacKenzie visits the Hopkins shack with an offer to the squatters through Hopkins to leave the vicinity, offering them a trifling sum of money. The offer is refused and MacKenzie threatens to burn their pitiful dwellings and leave them homeless.

CHAPTER VIII.—Polly visits Percival in the Robertson home in an effort to enlist his aid, and he is on the point of declaring his love for her, when the girl, in a panic, flees. MacKenzie asks Evelyn to be his wife, and she agrees to marry him after he has bought the Bennett farm and got rid of the squatters. Robert falls in an effort to secure the aid of his sister and Evelyn in a project to help the Silent City people.

CHAPTER IX.—Knowing Bennett's infatuation for Polly, Evelyn tries to induce the girl to promise to marry him, he having agreed to release Evelyn to secure Polly. In love with Percival, though secretly realizing that the girl refuses. Meeting Robert next day, he tells her he loves her, and she acknowledges a similar feeling for him. MacKenzie lays a trap for Hopkins and the latter is arrested.

CHAPTER X.—Polly goes to the Robertson home to enlist Percival's aid in freeing her father. MacKenzie jeers at her. He is also deaf to Robert's pleadings, and the latter, though assuring Polly of all the help he can give her, feels himself powerless.

She tried to drive out the fear of being discovered and think only of Jerry's happiness and Daddy's. To make her heart beat less fast, she tried earnestly to think of some words that Jesus would hear and understand. But even that desire was driven from her as two heavy bodies dropped upon the seat above her. Plainly she saw two pairs of men's boots near enough to touch her if she moved an inch forward.

Back against the side of the car she pushed her head, noiselessly drawing her thick curls over her shoulder to make more room. How intensely she wished they were in Auburn! If the train would only start ahead, she was sure she would lose the insane desire to open her mouth and scream.

Then a whistle from the engine, and as if the man at the throttle had heard the inward cry of her frightened young soul, the train began to move slowly. As it crossed the northern end of the town, one of the owners of the boots near her face grew exceedingly restless, and of a sudden he pushed his foot directly against her nose. Gently she shoved it away; and a low exclamation from above followed instantly.

Then a strong, large hand lifted the velvet hangings; and before Polly could stir, a set of fingers took sharp hold of her face. In her frightened state she threw the hand off; and another ejaculation came to her ears. Then two hands came under and groped for a grip. She fought strenuously to get her place; but the person pulled her by main force.

Polly, as was almost fainting when Percival placed her on her feet. The silk dress, partly tucked in Daddy's boots and partly out, was covered with dust. In silent embarrassment she stooped and brushed it. Then she glanced up imploringly.

Robert, wax-white, was staring at her as if he could not believe his eyes; and MacKenzie, carried away by the rage within him, viciously clutched at her arm. Pollyop dragged herself away from the strong fingers.

"Don't touch me, you," she snapped hoarsely at him. "I'm goin' to Auburn to see my Daddy Hopkins."

Her voice was high-pitched and tensely toned. Her gaze sought one after another until it rested on Evelyn Robertson, huddled back in the corner of the seat.

"You can make him leave me be, ma'am," Polly went on. "I got a right to go to Auburn as well's any one else."

"You're a thief," Marcus thrust in grins. "A little thief. You're stealing a ride."

With all her fighting instinct roused, Polly squared herself. "Sure, I'm stealin' a ride," she retorted. "I couldn't ride honest; you wouldn't let me. My Daddy Hopkins—"

"It seems to me," interrupted Mrs. Robertson haughtily, "that she's stolen something else besides a ride. That dress you have on, Miss; where'd you get it?"

Polly's under lip dropped. It seemed as if a thousand hostile eyes were glaring at her.

"It's Evelyn's dress," went on the lady. "Take that coat off and let me see."

Before Robert could interfere, MacKenzie had grasped Pollyop by the shoulders and had stripped off the heavy coat. And there she stood, her bare young arms and sunburned neck exposed, her scarlet face hidden by a handful of curls. She was so overwhelmed with shame she could not say a word.

"Twice a thief," gritted MacKenzie. "I suppose you didn't give her this, Eve?"

With one long finger he pointed at the dress, but his eyes, sparkling with anger, were on Evelyn.

Never had Miss Robertson been in such a dilemma. Never had she felt so much like quietly fainting away.

"Did you?" demanded Marc, once more.

"No, no," denied the girl, trembling. "No, of course I didn't give it to her. Why should I?"

MacKenzie's sharp, "You'll land where your father is, you huzzy," brought Polly's flashing glance upon him. Untaught to deceive for her own advantage, she could not fathom Evelyn's direct falsehood. To lie for a daddy, to keep a squatter friend from prison—yes, she would have done that, but a dress! And Evelyn had given it to her, too! She turned her burning eyes upon the other girl, and there she read with sickening certainty that the gift of the robe must be buried in the grave with Oscar Bennett. If Jerry had not been tucked away back of the skirts of the two women, Polly would have made a dash for liberty, but she could not leave the baby. Would no one help her? Her eyes sought Robert's face, and as if he were awaking from a dream, he picked up the coat.

"I'll hand her over to the conductor," Marcus proceeded. "He'll know what to do with her," and he put out his hand to grasp her.

"No you won't," snapped Robert, moving in front of Pollyop. "I'll look after her myself, and if you folks want to stay friendly with me, just don't mention this." He held out the coat to Polly Hopkins. "Put it on," he ordered; and instantly she obeyed him.

What he was going to do with her, Pollyop did not know, but this thing she did realize: Jerry could not see Daddy Hopkins that day. She longed to be back in the shanty, to get away from MacKenzie's flashing eyes and the haughty stare of Mrs. Robertson. As for Evelyn, she despised the quivering girl with all her straightforward self.

Frowning, Robert stepped to the door and called the conductor; and when the official appeared, Polly shivered to her toes. The very sight of his uniform suggested trouble for her and Jerry.

"A friend of mine came down to see us off," said Robert distinctly, making a gesture toward her. "The train started before she could get off. Just let us stop at MacKenzie's, will you?"

He had a roll of bills in his fingers which he thrust into the officer's hand. Smilingly the man bowed and jerked the cord over his head.

"We're right there now, sir," said he.

"Thanks," replied Robert. "Thanks," and "Come," he said to Pollyop. Jerry! Daddy Hopkins' baby, went through her mind. Wee Jerry asleep under the cross seat!

"Wait a bit, mister," she faltered, "wait till I get the baby. I were takin' him up to see his daddy, so he wouldn't die." Her lip trembled as she looked at Mrs. Robertson. "Get up, please, ma'm," she begged. "He's under there, where you're sittin'!"

Mrs. Robertson and Evelyn rose immediately; and Polly pulled the shawl-bewrapped Jerry into full view. In another instant Robert had snatched up the child and pushed Polly out of the door. He turned about and looked back at the other three, a dreadful expression on his face.

"If you stick your finger in this, Marc," he said huskily, "you can say goodby to me for good." And he followed Polly out of the train as it came to a stop.

MacKenzie's point was on the east side of the lake, about opposite the Hopkins shanty, and when Robert had helped Polly out of the train and had seen it pull away north, he stood a moment considering how best to get her back home. He could not make the girl tramp back to Ithaca and then across the head of the lake to the Silent City.

"Stay here with the child," he said curtly. "I'll be back in a minute."

Polly watched him dully as he strode away. When he returned, he had in his hand a large key with which he unfastened a boathouse on the shore. Almost before Pollyop sensed what was happening, she was

"Stay Here With the Child," He Said Curtly. "I'll Be Back in a Minute."

In the stern of a boat with Jerry crouched down beside her, and Robert's strong arms were sending the craft swiftly across the lake. Not a word had been said between them until they drew up under the willow trees near Jeremiah's shack.

"Get out," exclaimed Robert, holding the boat that it might not tip.

Pollyop scrambled to the bow, bringing Jerry with her, the beautiful dress now hanging in limp folds around her feet. Very pale, Robert lifted her, almost fainting, from the boat, and picking Jerry up in his arms, walked ahead to the shanty.

In the terrible moment that Polly bent under his dark gaze, she felt she must tell him the truth. How could she let him go away thinking her twice a thief, besides believing Oscar Bennett had been her man?

TOGGENBURG MILK GOATS EXHIBITED IN BRADY MONDAY BY MARION M. TERRY

An exhibit of unusual interest on the streets of Brady was that in which Marion M. Terry of Richland Springs yesterday morning showed some of his famous Toggenburg milk goats here. Mr. Terry recently moved to Richland Springs from Blackwell, Texas, and is now located on the old Terry homestead four miles north of Richland. Considerable interest was shown in the exhibit by citizens of Brady. Mr. Terry explained these goats were originally from Australia, and, unlike other commonly raised in this section, do not have mohair, therefore do not have to be sheared. His flock now consists of 100 head. The nannies, said Mr. Terry, give from one to one and a half gallons milk per day and tests have shown that two-thirds of the milk is butter fat. He has none of this bunch for sale at present time but would be glad to furnish these goats to any person or persons suffering from tuberculosis, or otherwise undernourished. The milk from this source is highly recommended by medical men to be the most healthful diet for infants, for tuberculosis sufferers or for any other case of this kind, yet known. One of the billies in the exhibit weighed 200 pounds and the nannies also were very large. Mr. Terry said the goats had a rapid increase, a litter twice a year and usually twins were born. Besides the Toggenburg, he also handles the Saanan and Swiss breeds of goats.

Mr. Terry says he is not handling these goats purely for the financial end of the business, but has a desire to get the milk goats established and recognized in this section. He was for twelve years a show man, traveling with his own company over the entire state of Texas and a great part of the United States, therefore enjoys a wide acquaintance. For the past five years, however, he has engaged in building up his herd of milk goats, and has been furnishing them regularly to hospitals, sanitariums and to the public in general and states the demand has been exceptionally good during this time. Anyone interested in the milk goat has an invitation to call on Mr. Terry and inspect his bunch.
