

County Wide School Music Program Sun.

Next Sunday afternoon, April 26, at 2 P. M. all of the school pupils of Dickens County are to meet at the Spur Stadium for a sing-song. The parents, trustees, teachers and as many others as like are invited to attend. There will be no admission charge. The event will be something new as never before in the history of the county have 2,000 or more school children sang the same songs at the same time.

Most of the songs to be featured in this sing-song will be of Texas as this is primarily a Centennial program. Eleven of the songs are of Texas and Cowboy numbers.

For two years the pupils of the county have been studying music, with much more progress than usual being made this year. We think you will be surprised at the way your children can sing.

Texas Spur to Sponsor Soft-ball League

Take Crippled Children to Clinics

Mrs. Madge D. Twaddell left Sunday for Dallas with a Dickens child, the child to enter a clinic for examination. The child is suffering a physical handicap and it is hoped to be able to get treatment for it.

Mrs. W. R. Weaver accompanied three children under the same classification to Amarillo Tuesday. The children are taken to clinics where they receive an examination free.

All these cases were submitted to the County Welfare Board. Part of their traveling expense was paid from the Crippled Children's Fund. At a meeting of the welfare board Saturday a committee was appointed to sponsor a ball game at Spur Monday afternoon at which time a free will offering was to be taken to help with this expense. Rain prevented the game.

It was also suggested at the Saturday meeting that each community sponsor a program, pie supper, box supper or something else and turn the funds over to the welfare board to assist these handicapped children. Community leaders are asked to plan these programs, contacting Mrs. Twaddell or Rev. Wm. L. Edwards, chairman of the finance committee. The newspapers at Spur will give publicity to these community meetings if informed in time. The cause is worthy and this method was thought better at this time than a direct donation campaign.

Remember if you want to enter a team in this league from your community or town please get in touch with the Texas Spur, Sam Clemmons, or Dr. Bob Alexander, all of Spur, as soon as possible, so that play may be started by the first week in May in order to get in a full season. A meeting of the managers will be called some time next week to approve the schedule and to complete arrangements.

THE PROPOSED CHANGE IN COMMISSIONER'S PRECINCTS

There has been much talk the last two or three weeks regarding the proposed change in Commissioner's Precincts in Dickens County. In fact the change has been discussed many times the last few years because of the present difference in size of the four precincts.

Since we have been assured that there will be no changes made this year, we will discuss the proposition further. The sole authority for changing precinct lines in the county is the Commissioners' Court. At this time there are a number of announced candidates for commissioner, including three of the present commissioners who are trying to succeed themselves. These candidates, that is, some of them, live almost on the line of the present precincts and if the proposed change were put into effect, they would be placed in another precinct entirely, which would be unfair to them and their friends who urged them to make the race.

In our opinion, the proposed change would provide for a more equitable distribution of the road work in the county, since the precincts would be almost equal in size, as the new lines, as proposed, would run north and south, east and west through the center of the county. But, if the change is to be made, in fairness to all, we agree with the present commissioners that the change should be made in a year when no county election is to be held, and made effective the next year, and give the voting public and candidates time to familiarize themselves with the new boundaries.

One point we would like to bring out is that there should be nothing secret about the proposed change. The public should be informed at all times regarding changes in government, and for some particular group to go about secretly planning and trying to make a change with the voters knowing very little about it, smacks of political trickery, a thing this county has been pretty free from the last few years. Too, so much of the time, there is a "nigger in the woodpile" when the public is not informed on a proposition that affects as many people as this change in precinct lines would. Publicity is an asset to worthwhile propositions.

TEXAS' NEED OF A SHORTER BALLOT

With many candidates already in the field and with new ones making their announcements almost daily, Texans are well aware of the fact that this is election year. And each recurring campaign directs attention in a forceful way to the need of a shorter ballot in Texas.

The ballot in Texas includes about 30 offices, the number varying as between one county and another.

Ten state offices are regularly filled by election: governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, state comptroller of public accounts, state treasurer, state superintendent of public instruction, commissioner of the general land office, commissioner of agriculture, railroad commissioner, justice of the supreme court, justice of the court of criminal appeals—all these are chosen by the electorate at a whole. This year, as in two elections out of three, a United States Senator is to be chosen, also there are two supreme court justices to elect instead of just one.

When the voter has made his selections for state office, there are the district races. Congressmen, justice of the court of Civil Appeals, district judge, district attorney, state senator, and State representative. Not all of these are chosen every year. In many districts, however, there is more than one district judge to be named and more than one legislator. In some counties, the work of the district attorney is done by the county attorney. As a general rule, however, there will be about six district offices to be filled.

Add to this the lengthy array of county offices and the result is one to put dismay into the heart of even the most conscientious voter. However, the short ballot movement has made little progress in Texas, but is favored by practically all of those who have thoughtfully regarded the problems of state government.

A PRAYER FOR TEXAS (In Her Centennial Year)

Lord God of every race and every land,
In this great year of Texas' Jubilee,
We come, its people, reaching for Thy hand,
Acknowledging our constant need of Thee.
Look down upon us with approving eyes,
In all we do and say, may we be wise,
Because of Thy great bounty we are blessed Beyond all dreaming! Lord God may we see
Thy hand within the finest and the best
Flowering of a gracious century,
We bring Thee as our offerings of praise
The bright fruits of our past and present days.
Accept them, Lord, and may new beauty rise
Like smoking incense from our gathered store;
May Texas write her name against the skies
As splendidly as she has done before
Her lone star burning—her six flags unfurled,
Her voice a call of welcome to the world.

$1138 Cash Income For Resettlement Farmers Expected

Living expenses will be less than $20 a month in cash for the family buying one of the fertile well-equipped farms which have been authorized by the Resettlement Administration for 533 landless Texans. But $58 worth of home-grown products will be used each month, and the family's living standards will be more satisfactory than those of city families with cash incomes much higher.

The Resettlement family will room, and perhaps electric lights, the same as the city family. But it will also have what the city family does not—home grown hams in its pantry long shelves of home canned fruits and vegetables poultry and fresh eggs and butter of its own raising, and meanwhile, it will be acquiring ownership of its own home, at a cost no greater than tumble-down shack for living quarters.

A typical plan as worked out by Resettlement is for a 71-acre farm in the Harris county project announced last week. Out of its home-grown products, the family on this farm will eat 20 bushels of potatoes, and garden and orchard products valued at $75. It will use 25 bushels of home grown cotton seed for planting, and feed to livestock 500 bushels of home grown corn and seven tons of Sudan. The value of the 15-acre home pasture for the livestock is estimated at $70.

Livestock products used at home will include 200 pounds of butter, one calf, three pigs, 25 hens and 200 dozen eggs. Crop and livestock products used at home have a combined value of $695 per year, or $58 per month.

The family will need to put out only $225 in cash during the year, for living expenses—food, $60, clothing $75, supplies $10, furnishings and equipment $20, housing upkeep, $30, medical care $15, personal items $15. In addition, cash expenses for operating the farm will be $416. This covers feed, $36, fertilizer $35, containers for home grown food, $30, machinery repair, $20, hired labor $75, seed $35, veterinary $10, taxes $60, insurance $15, ginning $35. It will be noted that the item for automobile is charged by the Resettlement administration to necessary operating expenses, the administration not voting with those who advise the farmer to "take the tires off his car and put them under the bed."

Projects recently authorized include 200 farms in North Central Texas. Tenant farmers and rehabilitation clients recommended by county agents and county advisory prospective purchasers. Additional projects are under consideration.

Tom Hunter Again Candidate for Office

Dallas, April 18—Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls, twice a strong candidate for governor and runner-up in the close campaign two years ago today, entered the race for the governorship a third time in a formal announcement of his candidacy issued here.

Hunter, an aggressive campaigner, launched his campaign with a sharp arraignment of what he characterized as Governor James V. Allred's "callous neglect of the old people of Texas" with reference to the old age pension law. Terms Hunter applied were "shameful" and "outrageous".

The formal statement of announcement confined itself largely to a caustic review of Governor Allred's record, Hunter explaining that a forthcoming statement would take up specifically the principles and policies he will champion in his forthcoming campaign.

The announcement of his candidacy follows:

"A lead horse that never presses the collar can't guide the string, and by that old saying I am reminded of young Governor Jimmie. As an economic leader Jimmie Allred is a social laugh—except to the old folks. To them he is a heartache.

"This is not my opinion alone. Five weeks on the road checking sentiment from both those that supported me, and many who did not, conclusively shows that today the majority believes the election of Jaunty Jimmie was a mistake. It takes more than a personable young fellow forever off on some jaunt or other to guide the business of state government.

"From all sections I am told that the people now realize that the spending of an enormous slush fund in behalf of Allred during the closing days of the campaign two years ago took away from the friends of my program a victory they had won. The knowledge of that fact alone will, this time, galvanize my supporters into a statewide determined organization reinforced by recruits from former Allred voters who realize their error. I am, therefore, a candidate for governor."

With the entrance of Tom Hunter in the race this makes nine in the 1936 race for governor.

The natural increase of the population of Texas in 1934 was considerably above the national average, it was revealed in statistics released today by Director William L. Austin of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce.

There were 116,603 live births in Texas in 1934 compared with 59,731 deaths, giving a natural increase of 56,872 persons. The increase in 1933 was 49,002. The number of births for each 100 deaths is a good index of natural increase in population and in 1934 there were 195 births for each 100 deaths in Texas. During the same year in the United States as a whole there were 155 births for each 100 deaths.

Heart disease was the principal cause of death in Texas in 1934, causing 8,569 fatalities. Accidents caused 4,495 deaths; cancer 4,002; nephritis 3,504; and tuberculosis 3,020. Deaths of infants under one year old in 1934 totaled 8,381, which means that 72 out of every 1,000 infants born alive died before reaching one year of age.

NEW SERIAL YARN BY CHANNING POLLOCK

"Synthetic Gentleman" Reveals Author's Deep Insight.

Channing Pollock has written such dramatic masterpieces as "The Fool," "The Enemy," and "The House Beautiful." He wrote the lyric for "My Man," immortalized by Fanny Brice. But—"My only real talent," he has declared, "is for friendship. I know more bishops and burglars, chorus girls and capitalists, bootblacks and barons, than any other man in the universe."

And right there you have the explanation of the remarkable insight into both the upper and lower crusts of life that makes his new adventure novel, "Synthetic Gentleman," some of the grandest reading of this or any other year. It is the story of a second-story worker who broke into another man's house (while his own were drying by the fireplace) and found that in order to keep the girl he loved he had to go right on wearing the disguise of a gentleman.

Playwright, novelist, short story writer, essayist, poet, lecturer and lyricist of distinction, Channing Pollock, born in 1880 in Washington, D. C., has become one of the outstanding literary figures of the present day. It is with pride that this newspaper announces that his "Synthetic Gentleman" will appear in these columns in serial form. This bright, exciting story is guaranteed to keep anyone who begins it hanging on breathlessly to the very last chapter.

BLUEBONNET BLUE COLOR ACCLAIMED BY STYLE GROUPS

Bluebonnet Blue, new color created in honor of the Texas Centennial celebrations, is becoming the dominant color in spring and summer styles. It is being given wide recognition by manufacturers of women's clothing, fabrics and varied accessories, and is being received warmly by the public.

The style world, including fashion magazine editors, stylists and newspaper people, is enthusiastic over the new color which was approved recently by the Textile Color Card Association, U. S. Inc.

Over Braniff and TWA airlines, the rangerettes, hostesses of the Texas Centennial Exposition, which opens in Dallas June 6, carried Texas' tribute to the former vice president who played such an important part in annexation negotiations. The Centennial Roses were developed by A. F. Watkins, of Tyler, Texas.

At the present time manufacturers of wool, cotton, silk, and leather goods have adopted the color which also is being featured in the manufacture of jewelry, handbags, crepe paper, artificial flowers and feathers, belts, and men's ties. Sports dresses, evening dresses, children's hats and coats, handkerchiefs, gloves, stockings, scarfs, milliners, ribbon, beach accessories, and other articles are being made now in the popular color by recognized manufacturers of such lines of goods. There even is a new Bluebonnet Blue soap and a new Bluebonnet perfume.

One of the nation's leading manufacturers will feature the Texas color at a fashion clinic held in New York City this week and attended by 700 leading merchants and 150 members of the nation's fashion press

FOOLS and BEANS

FOOLS rush in, so they tell us, where angels fear to tread. But if it weren't for fools we'd be treading the same old paths much too often.

Much has been said of flying-fools, those daring aviators who blaze the airways for us, but perhaps too little note has been given to cooking-fools. They are culinary pioneers who dare to do things different with usually an unerring instinct for little niceties of flavor.

Combinations You'll Approve

Baked beans, for example—just plain baked beans—are hard to beat when properly baked. But if it weren't for some cooking fool, we'd be satisfied to go on just baking our beans the rest of our days.

Who, but a fool, would ever have thought to combine baked beans with cheese and nuts in a casserole dish; of making them into sandwiches in company with ham and pickle; or of cooking them with corned beef, carrots and tomatoes? These are some of the delicious dishes that we must thank fools for—because they had imagination and initiative.

Which one will you have? The casserole dish is the easiest, and it's good.

Bean and Cheese Casserole: Dice four slices of bacon and fry crisp. Remove, drain off most of the fat, add one-fourth cup of pecans and brown gently. Add one-third cup diced cheese, the contents of one can of New England oven-baked beans, bacon dice and salt to taste. Pour into greased individual bakers. Cut two slices of bacon in halves and place a piece on top of each. Bake in the oven until the bacon is crisp. This serves four persons.*

How To Reduce Varicose Veins

Rub Gently Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

A Quarter of a Century

By BUD RUSSELL, Transfer Agent Texas Prison System

The shadows are falling in the East. I am not as young as I was when I took over the job as Assistant Agent for the Texas Prison System in 1908 when Captain John Luther asked me to take the oath of that office. I have transferred more than one hundred thousand prisoners in twenty-five years. I close my eyes and call to mind the first men I ever chained for transportation to prisons. Faces flow past my mind's eye so rapidly that their identity is lost in the swirling sea of memory. This torrent is not checked until I remember the faces of the eighteen men I delivered at the prison to-night. Time and space again become realities. But this mental review leaves me the desire to dam up the source of this river of faces; to strike the telling blow at the spawning place of crime in the hope that the hideous ruins of human lives will cause him to pause at the threshold and resolutely face the other way.

This is not a sermon. I have no text. I merely present facts as I have witnessed them and leave the moral to the reader. When you witness the blasted hopes of one hundred thousand men and women; when you see them deliberately tear down the temple of their future with the reckless abandon of a Sampson; when you watch with reluctance how the sower reaps the harvest of dishonesty, you need more than a vocabulary with which to express your emotion; some things cannot be told with mere words. I shall briefly outline certain observations of mine and let you arrive at your own conclusions.

When the last appeal has been denied and the sentence of the lower court has become final it is my duty to take into custody the convict and transport him safely to the penitentiary. The man I take into custody has abandoned active hope. He is at last face to face with what he most dreads a term of years behind prison walls or on a prison farm. His impassiveness is at his lowest ebb. I see him in his disgrace, fear, and shame. The men and women I have handled are emotionally naked. Gone is poise and subterfuge. Here are human beings in the raw. Nor are all the men basically the same. Some are stoical, some contemptuous some resentful but most of them are on the verge of tears inspired by mingled shame and fear. I know these men. I make it a practice to speak an encouraging word to fan the tiny spark of hope that smolders in the heart of even the man who is being strapped into the electric chair. In his mind there flashes the Hope and faith are the loaves and recollection of a last minute reprieve. fishes on which the multitudes may feast on late gathering of the twelve basketfuls left over. These chained men turn my words over and over in their minds as the miles are covered by my transfer truck, each man shaping his future around him in the light of his peculiar circumstances. I do not say this boastfully. Men have repeated my words to me in after years when precious freedom had been regained. It is greater than I am: it is human to err and divine to forgive. This is the secret of my having handled more than one hundred thousand men without having lost one. This practice, and not the gun I wear, has made this record possible. Eighteen men devoid of hope would attack me, and even if every bullet in my pistol went true, twelve of them would live to leave my dead body beside the road.

I have parted as gently as possible hundreds of weeping couples in keeping with my oath of office. Their every-day farewells, "I will be waiting for you," "Don't forget me, honey," or "Be sure to write me, dad," always call to mind the words of the crucified thief who uttered the classic line: "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." You say these men I handle are condemned? So was the man whose "Lord, remember me," will echo in the hearts of humanity until the end of time.

There was another thief who died on that day. He reviled and cursed the Master with his last breath, demanding that he release them if it were true that he was God. I have handled that man's prototype too. Hope was not dead in that man's heart nor is it dead in the breast of his prototypes. But this kind of hope is cold and selfish. For that type of man there really is no hope. He is impervious to reason. These men are the hardened criminals whose minds are centered on themselves. Human nature has not changed materially in two thousand years.

Let me select at random a face from this hoard of chained men. It is an intelligent face. Clear cut features indicate breeding and culture. Most of the accountants, bookkeepers, and men of that walk of life can be classified under this face. The reasons for their downfall are as multitudinous as their number, but the sum total is arrived at simply; intelligence cannot evade laws. The laws of God and the laws of man are inevitable since they function in harmony. The clever schemes of the foxiest mind in crime bear the same fruit as the same stupid plans of plainer brains; dreary years in a prison cell. Violent schemes often end in the electric chair.

Community schemes avail the wrong doers naught. It has been my grim duty to transport to prison mother and daughter, father, son, brother and brother, and combinations of these unions. Crime is no respecter of family ties; it will wreck the fairest home in the land. Mr. Kipling in his "Tomlinson" spoke truly "The sins you do two by two, you must pay for one by one."

Brawny, stalwart men have lifted weather-beaten faces to let me fit my chain in place. Toilers who took another's cow to slaughter, or who sold mortgaged property in nebulous hope of repayment before detection. Deceptive hope! Repayments or restitution do not excuse crime, as any lawyer will tell you. It is considered only in mitigation, and not as a defense. The mills grind all these men and women fine. There is no escape.

A negro once made a very apt remark. He told me, "Captain Russell, I is sho' of one thing, 'n that is this: 'Crime is lak a white man whut watches you' all steal his ham from the smoke house. He lets yo' all eat hit to de bone, and when yo' all smacks yo' lips in enjoyment, he ups and snatches the bone, and uses it fo' a club on yo' back. Yessuh, ole mar crime do hit just like that." That darky spoke a solemn truth. When you rest from illegal labors to enjoy the ill-gotten gain, inevitable laws take "de bone and use it fo' a club on yo' back."

Before the war my prisoners were mature men. Since the war I have transported an alarming number of mere boys. School kids too; that is why I am writing this article.

These youngsters have seen misleading pictures read fallacious books and convinced themselves that crime was a short cut to wealth and happiness. Poor misguided children! Crime is the road that leads to prison gates. Its fruits are misery suffering and death. Crime is like the forbidden fruit in the garden of Eden. Those who taste must surely die. Come with me to the prison graveyard beyond the prison walls. Row by row of concrete slabs silently proclaim the tragic end of Texas' inglorious dead. These mounds hold all that once was what you are now. These men who sleep so steeped in shame were once honest men, too. But the desire to gain something for nothing was nourished, and became a Frankenstein. This lonely grave was not its occupant's goal; he dreamed the same beautiful dreams that we all envision, but he let dishonesty, greed or lust lure him into the wilderness of crime where those who stray too far into the swamps are lost forever.

A library could be written on individual cases. One hundred thousand lives would fill one hundred thousand volumes. In event you have one in mind who has defied the law and "won", compare him with the one hundred thousand who have lost their all. And if such an exception lives in your midst, remember the game is not yet ended. He will lose as surely as all the rest have lost. The rule is universal, there is no exception: CRIME DOES NOT PAY!

Let it be said in behalf of women prisoners that in most instances their love for an undeserving man brought about their downfall. One-tenth of transported were white women. This one per cent of the prisoners I have is argument enough in behalf of womanhood. I may be a bit old fashioned, but I believe that the salvation of this country rests in the hands of women. God mothers, sweethearts and wives can do more to restore prosperity than all technocracy, technicians, financial genius, etc., that present conditions have developed. I have never chained a woman in my life. No woman has ever a cause to regret the confidence placed in her. Greece was at its zenith when the mothers whispered Greek ideals to babies. When the flower of womanhood faded, the stalk withered and died.

Another pertinent observation is that prior to the war, I transported Negroes at the ratio of two to one white man. Since the war, the ratio is reversed. I now handle two whites to one Negro. Perhaps this can be attributed to the fact that the white man was at the top and in position to tumble, and the Negro, at the bottom, was in position to climb.

We transfer agents are not good business men. I mean by that, we want to go out of business. It is costing the state much money to control crime. If each citizen will stop to review the inevitable consequences of crime, it will cease to be a problem. Prisoners will go the way of the dodo bird. I have seen a picture of this extinct creature. I concluded that he saw himself as others saw him and naturally became extinct. See criminals as I see them and the pictures will arouse emotion that will stand you in good stead, young man or young lady, in event you are tempted, and most of us are at some time in our lives.

Remember the hundred thousand men and women I have handled whose income reached staggering amounts. But in the end they died penniless and alone. It is heart rending to view these forgotten men and women in their last days. Thousands of faces swirl before my eyes, the faces of the damned, a sea of faces. Unhappy is the man or woman whose destination is the prison. Hope is locked from their hearts.

Ex-Governor Pat Neff recently introduced me to the students at Baylor University, and in his speech he said, "Bud Russell has handled more prisoners than any other man in the world." The next time he says anything about me I want him to remark, "Bud Russell is now handling less prisoners than any other transfer agent in the world." If all the young people of Texas had seen the one hundred thousand faces I have seen, this wish would become a reality. Crime not only does not pay, IT PILES UP A DEBT THAT WILL MAKE A SLAVE OF YOU FOREVER!

Former Spur Minister In Unusual Traffic Mishap

An Abernathy man officers said apparently was in his early 30's and is a grocer Tuesday night was arrested in Abernathy by W. E. Renfrow, member of the state highway patrol, and placed in Lubbock county jail after an unusual traffic mishap.

Elder Albert Smith of 2001 Main street, pastor of the Church of Christ at Avenue G and Seventeenth street since removing to Lubbock from Spur 18 months ago, told officers the following story after he had figured in a mishap seven and one-half miles north of Lubbock and before he had been driven to West Texas hospital for treatment of a fractured clavicle and minor other injuries:

He Appeared Drunk

"I, accompanied by Virgil Long of Lubbock, was driving to Center school, eight miles northeast of Monroe, to preach. Someone drove into me from the rear and I thought it was someone I knew. Looking into a rear view mirror, I saw it was someone in a Chevrolet pickup and someone I did not know. He appeared drunk or crazed. He hit me again, and again, the third time causing my car to turn over. When I came into consciousness I saw the car up the road about 200 yards, stopped.

"I estimate I was chased anywhere from one and a half to two miles before I was overturned.

"Superintendent Hooten of the Shallowater high school picked me up and took me into Monroe, where I reported to officers. He said the man had come very near to colliding with him. The man drove in a decidedly erratic course and manner. Hooten later brought me back to my car and to the hospital."

Emergency Treatment

Hospital officials said the minister was not admitted, but was given emergency treatment there, later being dismissed.

Renfrow said he checked with Long, who had taken a license number in the chase and quickly found the suspect, who, he said, was almost "out". He said he virtually had to carry the man to Renfrow's automobile, that the man slept most of the way to Lubbock, and that the officer had to carry the man into the jail when he arrived.

Turkish Troops Shatter Treaty

Another World War treaty was shattered Friday when Turkey, following in the wake of Adolph Hitler marched her modern troops into the demilitarized Dardanelles at dawn.

The act, long predicted, was in direct violation of the treaty of Lausanne.

At the same time Italy forced the League of Nations to admit defeat in its six-weeks campaign to stop the fighting in Africa and rejected an appeal from her chief friend, France, for an armistice.

On the threshold apparently of a final and crushing victory over the Ethiopians, Premier Mussolini has brushed aside pleas that he call a halt.

As a result the league's committee of 13 gave up the peace task and called a meeting Monday of the League council to shoulder the problem.

Europe in the past 13 months has seen the violation of the treaties of Versailles, St. Germain, Locarno, Lausanne and what was formally recorded by the league as a violation of its covenant.

decided what to do about the Italo-Geneva, meanwhile, appeared un-Ethiopian crisis.

Premier Mussolini is intent upon smashing the Ethiopian government and make Italy's hold in Africa secure. Addis Ababa it is predicted will fall by Monday.

SPUR DEFEATS DICKENS IN SOFTBALL GAME 15-4

The Dickens softball team came down yesterday afternoon (Thursday) and played the Spur boys managed by Dr. Bob Alexander a game.

Dickens started off with a rush scoring four runs in the first inning while Spur was forced to wait until the second inning to start scoring. However, with three runs in the second, 3 in the third, eight in the fifth and another in the 6th Spur soon had the game under control.

Dickens threatened to score several times after the first but the good support of his fielders kept the Dickens boys from crossing the home plate.

Dickens lineup: Watson, c; Dobbs, 3; Sharp, 1; Bee, ss; Stanford, p; Bersert, rf; Street, sf; Binkley, 2; Green, lf; Byrd, p.

Spur lineup: Holly, 3; Sollis, ss; Clemmons, sf; Bingham, lf; Holly, 1; Wade, rf; Mayfield, 2; Mallory, cf; Alexander, p; Watson, c.

PINEAPPLE... Permeates our Menus

IN California, it's oranges. In New England, it's apples. In Hawaii, it's pineapples and more pineapples. The island women drink the juice unsweetened—except for the healthful sugar content which the sun has supplied. Whether or not it has anything to do with satiny brown skin, eyes that sparkle and bodies that are lithe and lovely to look at—that's their own secret.

Sunnier Days at Home
Here in climates where there is less sun, however, women are eating more and more pineapple and drinking more and more of its unsweetened juice which is put into cans at the moment when the sun has done its utmost to make it healthful and delicious.

At this season of the year, when our home-grown fruits are still a long ways off, it is well for the housewife who likes to introduce color, zest and healthful properties into her menus, to make the most of canned pineapple. Use it in entrées, in pastries and in desserts as well as in breakfast drinks.

Modern Recipes You'll Like
Baked Fruit Dessert: Cut three bananas in halves, then split them lengthwise and lay in the bottom of a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle over lemon juice, from half a lemon, and dot with two tablespoons butter. Sprinkle over about a third of a cup of crushed dried macaroon crumbs, pour over the contents of one No. 2 can of Hawaiian crushed pineapple, add two-thirds cup crushed dried macaroon crumbs, and bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for thirty minutes or until the bananas are soft. Serve cold with cream. This serves eight persons.

Shrimp and Pineapple Entrée: Peel eight uniform red tomatoes, cut a slice from the top of each tomato and scoop out the centers. Dust inside with salt, and chill. Meanwhile marinate the shrimp from a 5½-ounce can and also one-half cup chopped celery in French dressing. Combine with one cup of Hawaiian pineapple tidbits which have been drained of their juice. Season with salt and paprika. Add mayonnaise to hold together, and fill the tomato cases. Garnish the tops with more mayonnaise. This serves eight persons.

Pineapple Crescent Pastry: Cook together one cup of crushed Hawaiian pineapple, one-third cup sugar and a few grains of salt until thick; cool slightly. Sift together two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt and one tablespoon sugar. Cut in one-third cup shortening. Add three-fourths cup milk, roll out quite thin and cut in rounds. Put a teaspoonful of the pineapple on each round, fold over and pinch edges together. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, for twelve minutes. This makes sixteen pieces of pastry.*

part isn't the important part, is it? It never has lasted, it never will."

"Couldn't it?" the man asked, a dark flush on his face, his voice low.

"No, for it isn't the right, the wise and true part," Tony answered. "And for the rest, Larry, seriously, seriously, haven't you and Caroline a great deal in common? Haven't you two more in common than you and I ever could have had? You like dinners—chinchilla coats—"

"I despise dinners. I despise chinchilla coats!"

"If you two had a handsome apartment in San Francisco, entertained a good deal, were in on opera nights and polo meets—"

"What are you talking about?" the man asked almost roughly. "You're not—you're surely not trying to—trying to persuade me that Caroline and I are rightly married? I tell you it was one of those impulsive, stupid things that men and women only do when they have lost their bearings, when they've been under a heavy strain. A week later—we were in Paris then—we both seemed suddenly to wake up, to come back to our old point of view. We said then, 'We must make a go of this, we've drawn the attention of all our world to our marriage, we can't confess failure!' But from that moment to this we've never thought alike, we have nothing in common, we are only making each other miserable!"

Tony looked at him speculatively.

"I noticed the gray hair, Larry."

"That began when I was ill. Oh, Tony, if I could only go back the last eight months and have it all to live over again! It was so simple—so easy, just to bring Ruth's mother home and to come out here to you! But it seemed to be a time when I had to plunge madly ahead—dizzy with freedom, perhaps, feeling that now I could do anything, travel, buy a country place, have horses, do all the things that of late years hadn't interested her—"

"And within a few weeks Caroline and I were somehow engaged, and even then I wasn't taking it all seriously; even then I didn't realize that she was in earnest. We had said at first that of course we would wait the whole year—then she began to—well, and I did, too. I'm not blaming a cent at myself. We were there at the villa, with everything to settle, discuss, decide, and since we were going to be married some day, why not at once, and quietly, and not tell anyone for six or eight months?"

"Larry," Tony said seriously, "you don't have to tell me. Nobody knows better than I how easily one can do a thing in one mood and wonder about it in another."

It was the first touch of anything like sympathy, like tenderness she had shown him, and he grasped at it eagerly.

"Tony, only promise me this: that whatever the complications of the next year are, whatever Caroline and I decide to do, you'll be my friend. I may have your friendship, mayn't I, Tony? You and I may see each other, and talk things over, and go back to the old days when we used to go to lunch at one and talk until half-past three?"

"I don't like to remember those days!" Tony said, smiling. And in the silence Joe put his head in at the door and asked: "Do we eat in here?" and her talk with Larry was over. The door between the living room and the kitchen was opened, and Caroline and Joe began to set a table in by the fire.

"Any more talk of your going to New York, Tony?" Caroline asked.

"Not now, no."

"I got my coat there," Caroline said. "The divinest chinchilla you ever saw. I'll show it to you tomorrow."

Tony did not look at Larry.

"I remember you wanted one."

"Ready, Joe," Tony said. The salad was green and crisp in its bowl; the enchiladas smoking hot. Joe brought a great stack of brown toast to the table.

"Does anyone want coffee now? Nobody wants coffee until later, Joe," Tony said.

"Are you going to town tonight, Tony?"

"No. Not tonight."

"Staying with Brenda?"

"No." Tony, her face suddenly paling, but her eyes like sparkling blue stars, burst into joyous laughter and caught Joe around the neck as she passed his chair at the table. "Oh, Joe, darling, we'll have to tell them!" she said.

Larry shoved his chair back a little, facing them with a faintly knitted brow. Caroline's face was a study in hurt incredulity.

beautiful, my adorable, my glorious wife!" he said. "And she's going to Rio with me next month, aren't you, sweetheart?"

"This is my husband," Tony said, under her breath, looking only at Joe, her arm about his neck, her words only for him. And so said, they sounded like a song.

"And we cook here, and garden here, and fool around here," Joe stated, beginning to serve the ham enthusiastically, as Tony, flushed and laughing, went around to her own place. "And perhaps angels in heaven have something on us for happiness, but we doubt it. I talked Tony into it just after we had word from you, but for various reasons we kept it quiet. They wanted her to finish up her work on the paper, and break some one else in."

"I can't still quite see the reason for the secrecy with us," Caroline observed nippingly, after a somewhat forced flurry of explanations and congratulations, and the evening was over, and the Bellamsy were going.

"And something tells me that I'll never be intimate with my sister-in-law," Tony observed, in reference to this parting shot, when they were gone.

"Something tells me that neither one enjoyed the evening," Joe said, happy with his pipe, his fireside, his wife, his peaceful Sunday evening. "Tony, did you and he have it out?"

"While I was getting dinner, yes. In a way, we did. And in a way I felt terribly sorry for him, Joe. You're so wise and you're so good, and you know everything, and every one adores you, and you're wonderful," Tony said simply. "But poor old Larry's still the big wooden Injun, handsome and clever and adored by the girls. He just can't believe that life is being mean to him."

"Joe, You're So Wise and You're So Good."

"Sit here on this thing."

She took the familiar red leather hassock at his knee; her eyes were fixed on his, her dark hair ruffled a little into a babyish aureole about her face. Joe put down his pipe, and they locked hands.

"Do you really love me, Tony?"

"Joe, so much that I can't pull out a weed or pick up a shell without needing you to praise me and see me and talk to me about it."

"There wasn't the least twinge tonight?"

"Nothing but pity for the poor fool girl who fell in love with a painted totem pole."

"Larry isn't a totem pole, you know."

"To me he is. I looked at him and I looked at you, Joe. You are so wise and quiet and good—" She stopped.

"Go on, wench. Your discourse displeases me no whit."

"Yes, but you know what I mean. You're so big that you can afford to be little, and fool around here making fires and playing with me. But Larry—did you notice that he spoke of his valet, Joe? He would have a valet!"

"However," Tony added in satisfaction, "I think he saw how happy we are; I think he did. Anyway, she did."

Joe's laugh—she loved it, and it was rather rare—broke out.

"They did, unless they've suddenly gone stone blind. You were rubbing it in all over the place! I never saw you look so pretty or heard you laugh so much. You let 'em have it right in the eye."

"Oh, Joe, I didn't!" Tony protested.

"Oh, Tony, you did!"

"I didn't mean to," Tony apologized, looking up penitently into his eyes. But her face was radiant. "The truth is, darling," she said, "that I had rather been dreading meeting Larry. I wasn't exactly conscious why, but in the background of my mind—my soul, all these months, there's been the feeling that I'd be glad to meet him—glad to—well, have it over!"

"And was it so awful?"

"Awful?" Her joyous laugh rang out. "Why, it was—it was flat!" she said. "For the last two years I haven't seen him, you know, and I have seen—I have had the friendship of a real man. And it was almost dizzying, it was almost bewildering to feel my old emotions slipping about and changing places, and to feel under it all 'Joe, Joe, Joe's mine and I'm Joe's forever and ever, and this handsome, important, serious man doesn't mean one thing to me!'"

She sat silent, staring into the fire for a long moment, her shoulder pressing in comradely fashion against his knee. "Joe," she said suddenly, "do you know I feel sorry for Larry?"

"I've always felt a little that way about him, I think."

"They were so stupefied," Tony mused, "that I didn't dare spring our real news on them."

"They'd think you were crazy, with this long trip ahead of you, and married only six months."

"Why crazy? There are hospitals and nurses in Rio, I should hope!" Tony said. "Caroline wanted a chinchilla coat. I want something else. That's all there is to it."

Outside the house a soft autumn wind sprang up, whined about the chimney. The dog stirred comfortably on the hearth; two logs fell together and sent up a fresh rush of flame; the lamp burned softly. Tony, her face bright with her own thoughts, stretched a hand up to her shoulder and felt Joe's fingers there.

"What of the way to the end? The end crowns all," she said.

Drop an unkind word, or careless,
in a minute it is gone
But there's half a hundred ripples circling on and on.
They keep spreading, spreading from the center as they go
And there no way to stop them, once you've started them to flow.

Drop a word of cheer and kindness, in a minute you forget
But there's gladness still a-swelling and there's joy a-circling yet,
And you've rolled a wave of comfort, whose sweet music can be heard Over miles and miles of water, just by dropping a kind word.
