Postmaster O. C. Arthur stated Wednesday afternoon that one hundred and one packages of soldiers' baby bonds had been received at the local post office with several more yet to be received.

Sixty-two veterans had been waiting on at that time and certified as the owners of 559 bonds of $50 each which totaled $27,950. These had been certified to the Dallas office.

Veterans from McAadoo, Glenn, Dickens, Girard and Crosbyton have been served by the local office with several certified bonds being sent to the Dallas office each day.

According to available figures Dickens county veterans are to secure a total of 127,105 worth of the bonds and it is estimated that practically all of them would be cashed.

The average amount of bonds received in each package was nine, with the number of bonds per package running from 1 to 15.

It is certain that most of the veterans of Dickens county will find a ready use for the money and that most of it will be wisely spent or invested.

Highway 24 Partially Opened to Traffic

E. W. Mars, Resident Engineer of the State Highway Department, stated Tuesday that one mile of the new construction on Highway 24 west of Dickens had been opened to traffic. There are seven miles of the new road built this year and it is thought that the other six miles will be open in two weeks, there being some fencing along the Pitchfork Ranch yet to be finished.

The road was accepted by the state from the contractor Monday. The contract included culverts, bridges and grading of right of way through one of the worst parts of the county and eliminates the dangerous Pitchfork hills.

Report Confession In Pettijohn Case

Sheriff Johnny Koonsman told a Texas Spur reporter Wednesday afternoon that a confession had finally been secured in the Ben Pettijohn slaying. It will be remembered that Pettijohn was found slain in his liquor store at Guthrie on the morning of March 28th.

According to Mr. Koonsman, he and Ranger John Keller went to Roby Sunday and picked up Bob Pettijohn, carrying him to Lubbock where he was subjected to an intense questioning. After several hours of questioning Pettijohn in the presence of Koonsman, Keller and Sheriff George Humphreys of King County, told the following story:

On the night of the shooting Bob and Cobb Pettijohn, Jimmy Shores and his sister Ethel Shores went to Guthrie to collect some money that Ben Pettijohn owed the Shores man.

Entering the liquor store Shores went up to Pettijohn and demanded the $8 owing him. Pettijohn declared that Shores owed him nine dollars and that if anything he was owed a dollar after taking off the $8 Shores owed him. Shores called Pettijohn a liar and Pettijohn struck at Shores. Bob Pettijohn then grabbed Ben Pettijohn by the arm and as Ben struggled to get to his gun, Cobb Pettijohn pulled a pistol from his belt and shot Ben Pettijohn.

Bob Pettijohn has been held at Roby, Shores at Guthrie and Cobb Pettijohn at Lubbock until Sunday when they were all transferred to Lubbock for questioning.

Sheriff Koonsman stated that he did not go back to Lubbock Tuesday and had not found out whether any of the others had said anything or not.

Cobb and Bob Pettijohn are brothers, about 22 and 26 years old, respectively. Shores is about 22 years, and his sister is reported to be older. The state is expected to allege that she sat in a nearby automobile during the shooting.

The complaints were filed Monday with County Judge Ross K. Wideman who set bond at $5000 in each case.

Sheriff Humphreys of King county signed the complaints. The defendants waived examining trial.

PEOPLE MAKE THE TELEPHONE SYSTEM

Poles and wires and switchboards alone don't make a telephone system. You've got to have people.

You've got to have men and women and children that want to talk with each other. You've got to have operators sitting night and day before the switchboards. You need to have linemen willing to go out when the lines are down, and work with a 40-mile gale lashing sleet and snow into their faces.

It's folks that make a telephone system. When you figure out why service is better than it used to be, you find it's just people at work—men working problems out on American Telephone & Telegraph Company's staff, and inventors in Bell Laboratories, and the like.

The goal of the people who work for the Bell System is to furnish the people who use telephones with a service that is fast, and clear, and moderate in its cost to the user.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fireside, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts, a chauffeur, Evans, a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out and leave at the first opportunity. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. He pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambridge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambridge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambridge had witnessed an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. Arriving home late, Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Barry of how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. They now have a child. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work as a show girl at the Coconut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's home to induce Kelly to drop the charge. They quarreled, and later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambridge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

"I might talk to Winslow at the Hambridges," he thought, sleepily. "But I guess Peggy's right. Better see Jack first. I've got a date with Winslow at his office on Monday."

The hall clock struck three. Nevertheless, the Duke was up an hour before breakfast.

He shaved, and bathed, and tossed a few things into an over-night bag he'd seen in the closet. Emerging, he ran into Willetts.

"Breakfast for two," the Duke ordered. "Mrs. Rogers and I are taking the 9:27 to New York."

He thought the butler looked at him sharply.

As their train left Southampton, Peggy looked even shabbier in her cheap black dress and her little red beret. Her face was very white, for want of make-up or sleep. "It's funny," she said, awkwardly, "but I sort of feel that everything's going to be all right now."

"Why don't you and the boy move out here?"

"To stay, you mean?"

"Sure. I can square it with Willetts. Come along, the end of the week, Peggy. After all, it's where you belong, you know."

"I belong with Jack," she said. "And, anyway, has it struck you that the old man might come back unexpected? He's been mad six years. What's he going to do when he finds out about all this?"

"Well," Barry hazarded, "if we've got his son out—"

"He won't care," Peggy interrupted, her voice again hard and pitiful. "He never did."

"He smashed Jack's fiddle. Jack wanted to be a violinist. He could've been, too. But the old man found he was taking lessons. 'I don't want any jazz-banders in my family,' he snorted. 'You're going to take my place when I die.'"

"That started it. He'd always been hard on Jack. Bossy, the old man is. And you can't boss Jack. He got another fiddle. He was good on it, too. When he went up to Harvard, he used to play it at parties."

"When his father heard about that, he threatened to cut off Jack's allowance. So Jack stopped fiddling, and began to drink. And, one night when he was awful drunk, he wrote the old man's name on a check. He tried to get it back the next day, but the bank had turned it down, and the guy he'd given it to was sore, and had Jack arrested."

"Jack had sold his second fiddle to make good. He never got another one. The old man cut Jack loose. He came up to Boston, with a newspaper that printed the story in his hands. Cold as ice, he was. 'You've disgraced me,' he said, 'and you'll go on disgracing me, if I'll let you. I won't. You can go where you like and do what you please, but not with my name. If you ever use that again, you can starve.'"

Peggy turned to the window. Then, abruptly, "How are we going to get in to see him?" she asked. "You're his wife," Barry answered. "And you?"

"I'm his friend. And my name's Ridder."

Even Peggy's story didn't quite prepare the Duke for that meeting with his other self.

He'd rather expected to see one of those weaklings who find the world a vast conspiracy against them.

John Clarke Ridder, Jr., proved to be merely a frightened youngster. A slim, rather frail lad in his early twenties, with soft, dark hair, and large, dark eyes, and a peculiarly sensitive mouth. His hands were soft and sensitive, too, but there was nothing effeminate about the boy. "Gee, I'm glad to see you, Peg," he blurted. "I was getting a little bit worried."

Peggy's presence reassured him. Evidently, he counted on her, and felt safe while she was with him.

"Jack," she said, quietly and significantly, "I've brought your friend, Mr. Ridder. He's going to help us."

"That's great," he observed.

Fortunately for them, the guard had other things on his mind. He kept disappearing, and coming back, and looking away from them to a paper that someone had given him, and that seemed irritating. In a low voice, Peg outlined what had happened, and the conclusion that had been reached.

The boy turned to Barry.

Young, frightened, and soft, he could reason quickly, and talk straight.

"I don't understand," he said to the Duke. "If these people will do things for you, because they think you're Jack Ridder, why won't they do 'em for me, when they know I'm Jack Ridder?"

"Because they like me. They've never met you. And because my record's clear. I'm not accused of murder under circumstances that—well, they don't sound pretty, at first, do they?"

"They do not."

"And, of course, there's your mother."

The sensitive mouth tightened.

Barry gave him the letter he had shown Peggy.

The lad read it.

"The old man's got her buffaloed," he remarked; "same as he's got everybody else. O. K. I wouldn't have used my own name, anyway. Letting you use it's another thing, but Peggy thinks you're straight, and she's never been wrong yet. It's a queer game, but I'll sit in. What next?"

Barry was relieved. The guard had been showing his paper to a colleague. Quickly, he mapped out his plans—so far as he had any. "I've got a date with Peter Winslow on Monday. And I'm going to cable your mother—for money. We've got to have that. I hope to get a job pretty soon, and make my own way, but, just now, there's less than a hundred and fifty dollars in the kitty, and I'm going to give most of that to Peggy for current expenses. You'd better write your mother, too—the kind of letter you'd write in answer to that, if you were in my shoes. I'll bring you the stationery, and, of course, I'll mail your letter from Southampton. We'll have to smuggle it out of here, I suppose. Now, tell me exactly what happened the night before last."

The story differed very little from the one Barry had heard, but it was full of shrewd questions that hadn't occurred to him.

"Did you ever see Kelly?"

"No."

"He was enormous. Must have been six-foot-two in his stockings. I'm five-foot-five in mine. I'd've had to stand on a chair to hit him on top of the head."

"Unless he was sitting in one."

"The body wasn't anywhere near a chair. It was up against the door to the hall. The paper says so. The Filipino got in through the dining room. I got out through the hall door. He saw me. How did I do that, if Kelly was lying against it?"

"I don't know."

"Two more things: The lights were burning full tilt when I left. I could see Kelly's shadow on the blinds as I passed the house on my way home. Were they still burning when the butler came in the next morning? And, if not, who turned 'em out?"

"What's the other item?"

"The other item's the crux of the whole business," Jack answered. "Mike rushed me out because the phone rang, and the fellow that rang it was coming over to talk to him. Did he come? If not, why not? And, if that fellow did come, isn't it likely that he's the guy that killed Kelly?"

CHAPTER IV

It was long after one o'clock when they walked out of the Tombs. She was all in now. Barry plucked on a taxi to take her "home" to the dingy boarding house where the disowned Ridders lived, in the upper Forties. In spite of her protests, Barry kept his word as to giving her most of that hundred and fifty. "It isn't mine," he declared.

"We'll eat together Monday, after I've talked to Winslow. I'll be around about six o'clock."

It was two now—a warmish Saturday afternoon. Nearly forty-eight hours before he could hope to find the attorney. Any inexpensive hotel would do. He registered at one a few blocks from Peggy's. "Barry Gilbert," he wrote.

From his new residence, Barry went to the Astor, and called Mrs. Ridder. The message read:

"Making good stop water-wagon and on track of a job stop friend of mine met in Florida locked up for murder didn't commit stop can you arrange credit here up to two thousand dollars stop won't use unless necessary for friend and will return every penny stop wire Peter Winslow lawyer for confirmation if desired stop this is my big chance to do something worth while stop writing details all's well don't hurry back love. John."

"I'll need that two thousand quick," Barry thought. "Winslow'll want a retainer, and there'll be a lot of other things." Larry wondered what to do with his forty-eight hours. "I'll stroll down to Kelly's place," he decided, "and give it the once-over."

From Sixth avenue, he turned into 16th street, and stopped before what the tabloids were calling "the scene of the murder." It was an old-fashioned red-brick house, with a bay window, and a heavy front door. A policeman stood guard, and a group of the curious loitered as near as they dared.

Remarkable; Barry thought, how people could stand staring at anything connected with a tragedy.

There was another little group at the corner, where workmen were putting in a new traffic light standard. Broken off short, its predecessor lay on the pavement. Having nothing better to do, Barry asked, "What's the excitement?"

"Taxi smash."

"When?"

"Just before two o'clock yesterday morning. Killed a woman. Crushed her right up against that post. Broke it off short. Don't seem possible."

No wonder the Judge was "upset." Curious, Barry thought, these two violent deaths within a few yards and a few hours of each other. Curious, too, that the Judge's stroll should have brought him so near the house in which Kelly lay murdered, but no more remarkable than the series of events that had involved Barry in the whole affair. "Life's full of coincidences," Barry mused. "It's only in fiction that people pay much attention to 'em. Winslow said the Judge went for a walk, and that's the simplest explanation of the whole matter."

He was at the attorney's office before ten o'clock on Monday morning. He was ushered into the pleasantly furnished corner room that was Peter's. The lawyer rose, as Barry entered, and came forward, one hand outstretched, and the other holding a newspaper. "The early bird, eh?"

"I'm not exactly looking for worms," Barry replied. "I want that position we were talking about, if I can get it, but, just now, I'm a lot more interested in this Kelly murder. You've read about that, I suppose."

Peter nodded.

"I saw the headlines after you left the Hambridges on Friday," he said. "I didn't bother about it much then. But, this morning, I found Saturday's Herald Tribune on my desk. And, of course, I'm always interested in murders."

"I know the boy who's accused of this crime," Barry said. "You do? That's exciting. Tell me about it."

Barry did, omitting only the detail of Ridder's identity.

"I met them in Florida," he related. "Rogers worked in a hotel there. I liked the girl even then. She'd been putting up such a game fight to make a man of her husband, and was succeeding so wonderfully. I suppose I'm the only friend they've got around here, and that's why she came to me."

Winslow listened sympathetically. "That sort of thing always gets me," he observed. "A woman tied up to some man who's not worthy of her, and in love with him."

"This boy's not so bad," Barry argued. "And it's a lead-pipe cinch that he didn't kill Kelly."

"Think so?"

"Dead sure."

"All right. Make me sure."

Barry tried.

"There was someone else coming when Jack left," he concluded. "If he came, he either found Kelly dead, in which case he'd've given the alarm, or he found Kelly alive, in which case, of course, Jack didn't kill him."

"Very ingenious," Peter remarked. "But what makes you think someone else was coming?"

"That's why Kelly fired Jack out."

"Who says so?"

"Jack—and Peggy."

"Not very conclusive," Peter objected.

"Who do you think did it?"

"I'm not concerned as to who did it," Peter declared. "Only as to who didn't."

"Jack didn't. You'd know that if you looked at him."

"I feel sorry for the girl. I'll go down to see Rogers. Somebody ought to've gone—long ago—to file an appearance. There shouldn't have been any preliminary hearings without proper representation."

"You'll take the case, then?"

"I suppose so. Now, how about that job I thought we might land at my brother's?"

"I certainly need it."

"Let's see if he's in."

METHODIST NEWS NOTES

Next Sunday is to be Patterson Day at our church. Rev. J. P. Patterson, a former pastor here, will return to preach for us at the eleven o'clock hour. Bro. Patterson is recognized as the star pulpiteer that has pastored this church. He is a preacher of rare ability and we are expecting a great congregation out to hear him. His many friends of this section will welcome his coming. Those who have not heard him have a treat in store.

Our church is this week being treated to a new coat of paint and it is surely helping the appearance of the church as well as preserving it. Mr. Henry Johns is doing the work and doing it well. If this is a sample of his work he is a real painter.

The ready response on the part of the people to finance this needed work is to be appreciated.

The church Centennial celebration to be held at the Stadium Sunday night should be participated in by everyone. Such an outstanding speaker deserves the hearing of all and the occasion is worthy. Let us attend the service with the history of a hundred years of moral struggle in our minds.

ALF. M. LANDON

FRANK KNOX

Alfred M. Landon, Governor of Kansas, and Frank Knox, newspaper man of Chicago, Republican nominees for President and Vice-President.

The following is the platform of the Republican Party adopted at the Cleveland Convention last week.

A summary of the platform follows: Constitutional Government and Free Enterprise

We pledge ourselves: 1. To maintain the American system of Constitutional and local self government, and to resist all attempts to impair the authority of the Supreme court of the United States, the final protector of the rights of our citizens against the arbitrary encroachments of the legislative and executive branches of government.

2. To preserve the American system of free enterprise, private competition, and equality of opportunity.

Re-Employment. The only permanent solution of the unemployment problem is the absorption of the unemployed by industry and agriculture. (To this end, the platform advocated abandonment of all New Deal restrictive, competitive and coercive policies—especially those which restrict production.)

Relief. To end confusion, partisanship, waste and incompetence, we pledge:

1. The return of responsibility for relief administration to non-political local agencies familiar with community problems.

2. Federal grants-in-aid to the states and territories while the need exists, upon compliance with these conditions: (a) a fair proportion of the total relief burden to be provided from the revenues of states and local governments; (b) all engaged in relief administration to be selected on the basis of merit and fitness; (c) adequate provision to be made for the encouragement of those persons who are trying to become self-supporting.

3. Undertaking of federal public works only on their merits and separate from the administration of relief.

4. A prompt determination of the facts concerning relief and unemployment.

Security.

We propose a system of old age security, based upon the following principles:

1. Pay-as-you-go.

2. Every American citizen over sixty-five should receive the supplementary payment necessary to provide a minimum income sufficient to protect him or her from want.

3. Each state and territory, upon complying with simple and general minimum standards, should receive from the federal government a graduated contribution in proportion to its own, up to a fixed maximum.

4. To make this program consistent with sound fiscal policy the federal revenues for this purpose must be provided from the proceeds of a direct tax widely distributed. All will be benefited and all should contribute.

We propose to encourage adoption by the states and territories of honest and practical measures for meeting the problems of unemployment insurance.

Labor.

We pledge ourselves to: Protect the right of labor to organize and to bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing without interference from any source. Prevent governmental job holders from exercising autocratic powers over labor.

Support the adoption of state laws and interstate compacts to abolish sweatshops and child labor, and to protect women and children with respect to maximum hours, minimum wages and working conditions. We believe that this can be done within the Constitution as it now stands.

Agriculture. Following the wreck of the restrictive and coercive AAA, the New Deal administration has taken to itself the principles of the Republican policy of soil conservation and land retirement. This action opens the way for a non-political and permanent solution. Such a solution cannot be had under a New Deal administration which misuses the program to serve partisan ends, to promote scarcity and to limit by coercive methods the farmer's control over his own farm.

Our paramount object is to protect and foster the family type of farm, traditional in American life, and to promote policies which will bring about an adjustment of agriculture to meet the needs of domestic and foreign markets. As an emergency measure, during the agricultural depression, federal benefit payments or grants-in-aid when administered within the means of the federal government are consistent with a balanced budget.

We propose:

1. To facilitate economical production and increased consumption on a basis of abundance instead of scarcity.

2. A national land-use program, including the acquisition of abandoned and non-productive farm lands by voluntary sale or lease, subject to approval of the legislative and executive branches of the states concerned, and the devotion of such land to appropriate public use.

3. That an agricultural policy be pursued for the protection and restoration of the land resources, designed to bring about such a balance between soil-building and soil-depleting crops as will permanently insure productivity, with reasonable benefits to co-operating farmers on family-type farms, but so regulated as to eliminate the New Deal's destructive policy towards the dairy and live stock industries.

4. To extend experimental aid to farmers developing new crops suited to our soil and climate.

5. To promote the industrial use of farm products by applied science.

6. To protect the American farmer against importation of all live stock, dairy, and agricultural products, substitutes therefor, and derivatives therefrom, which will depress American farm prices.

7. To provide effective quarantine against imported livestock, dairy and other farm products from countries which do not impose health and sanitary regulations fully equal to those required of our own producers.

8. To provide for ample farm credit at rates as low as those enjoyed by other industries, including commodity and livestock loans, and preference in land loans to the farmer acquiring or refinancing a farm as a home.

9. To provide for decentralized, non-partisan control of the Farm Credit administration and the election by national farm loan associations of at least one-half of each board of directors of the federal loan banks, and thereby remove these institutions from politics.

10. To provide in the case of agricultural products of which there are exportable surpluses, the payment of reasonable benefits upon the domestically consumed portion of such crops in order to make the tariff effective. These payments are to be limited to the productive level of the family type farm.

11. To encourage and further develop co-operative marketing.

12. To furnish government assistance in disposing of surpluses in foreign trade by bargaining for foreign markets selectively by countries both as to exports and imports. We strenuously oppose so-called reciprocal treaties which trade off the American farmer.

13. To give every reasonable assistance to producers in areas suffering from temporary disaster, so that they may regain and maintain a self-supporting status.

Tariff.

We would keep on the free list all products not grown or produced in the United States in commercial quantities. As to all commodities that commercially compete with our farms, our forests, our mines, our fisheries, our oil wells, our labor and our industries, sufficient protection should be maintained at all times to defend the American farmer and the American wage earner from the destructive competition emanating from the subsidies of foreign governments and the imports from low-wage and depreciated-currency countries.

We will repeal the present reciprocal trade agreement law.

We will restore the principle of flexible tariff.

We will adjust tariffs with a view to promoting international trade, the stabilization of currencies, and the attainment of a proper balance between agriculture and industry.

We condemn the secret negotiation of reciprocal trade treaties without public hearing or legislative approval.

Monopolies.

We favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal laws, as well as the civil laws, against monopolies and trusts and their officials, and we demand the enactment of such additional legislation as is necessary to make it impossible for private monopoly to exist in the United States.

Regulation of Business.

We recognize the existence of a field within which governmental regulation is desirable and salutary. The authority to regulate should be vested in an independent tribunal acting under clear and specific laws establishing definite standards. Their determinations on law and facts should be subject to review by the courts. We favor federal regulation, within the Constitution, of the marketing of securities to protect investors. We favor also federal regulation of the interstate activities of public utilities.

Civil Service. We pledge ourselves to the merit system, virtually destroyed by New Deal spoilsmen. It should be restored, improved and extended.

Government Finance. We pledge ourselves to: Stop the folly of uncontrolled spending.

Balance the budget—not by increasing taxes but by cutting expenditures, drastically and immediately.

Rev' the federal tax system and co-ordinate it with state and local tax systems.

Use the taxing power for raising revenue and not for punitive or political purposes.

Money and Banking.

We advocate a sound currency to be preserved at all hazards. The first requisite to a sound and stable currency is a balanced budget. We oppose further devaluation of the dollar. We will restore to the congress the authority lodged with it by the Constitution to coin money and regulate the value thereof by repealing all the laws delegating this authority to the Executive.

National Defense. We favor an army and navy, including air forces, adequate for our National Defense.

We will co-operate with other nations in the limitation of armaments and control of traffic in arms.

Bill of Rights.

We pledge ourselves to preserve, protect and defend, against all intimidation and threat, freedom of religion, speech, press and radio; and the right of assembly and petition and immunity from unreasonable searches and seizures.

We offer the abiding security of a government of laws as against the autocratic perils of a government of men.

Furthermore.

1. We favor the construction by the federal government of head water storage basins to prevent floods, subject to the approval of the legislative and executive branches of the government of the states whose lands are concerned.

2. We favor equal opportunity for our colored citizens. We pledge our protection of their economic status and personal safety. We will do our best to further their employment in the gainfully occupied life of America, particularly in private industry, agriculture, emergency agencies and the civil service.

3. To our Indian population we pledge every effort on the part of the national government to ameliorate living conditions for them.

4. We pledge continuation of the Republican policy of adequate compensation and care for veterans disabled in the service of our country and for their widows, orphans and dependents.

5. We shall use every effort to collect the war debt due us from foreign countries amounting to $12,000,000,000—one-third of our national debt.

6. We are opposed to legislation which discriminates against women in federal and state employment.

Conclusion.

We assume the obligations and duties imposed upon Government by modern conditions. We affirm our unalterable conviction that, in the future as in the past, the fate of the nation will depend, not so much on the wisdom and power of government, as on the character and virtue, self-reliance, industry and thrift of the people and on their willingness to meet the responsibilities essential to the preservation of a free society.

In conclusion, the platform emphasized the fact that the great national crisis and the issues involved transcended party lines, and called for a united front, regardless of party.

Report on Boy Scouts While At Camp Post

The nine Boy Scouts of Troop 35, Spur, returned from a weeks camping trip spent at Camp Post, Saturday night. They reported a fine trip.

Three boys of the troop passed their first class requirements while in camp. The remainder of the boys lacked only a few tests of reaching their goals.

Troop 35 won second highest percentage of the eight troops represented at camp. They also won highest honors in tent inspection and belt honors.

In addition to the regular schedule the boys enjoyed a hike one day, covering fourteen miles of highway and canyon and plains tramping. A noon day lunch was eaten at a spring in a canyon, located by three boys sent out on that special mission. The trip was interesting, instructive as well as a little exciting. Two mountain boomers and a rattle snake were killed on the trip. The boys left camp at 9:00 a. m. returning at 2:00 p. m.

Schedule for the day was: reveille 6:30; First call, 6:45; mess call 7:00. After breakfast dish washing, tent cleaning for inspection followed, by taking of various tests for first and second class requirements, as used as a leisure period. Mess call 12:00. Dish washing followed. The canteen was opened. Only ten cents a day was allowed for the purchase of sweets regardless of appetite or purse. Rest period 1:45. Swimming 3:00.

The camp was located three and one-half miles west of Post on a 400 acre tract, a small portion of the old Carr ranch which originally covered most of Garza county and parts of adjoining counties. This tract of land was donated to the Boy Scout organization by the heirs before the property was divided and sold to other interests. The screened in porch of the old ranch house was used for a mess hall. Two-Draw lake where the swimming is done is located a mile east of Post. The boys made the trip each day in an open truck. Each boy had to have a "buddy" when in swimming as a precaution against drowning. When the life guard blew his whistle as he did at short intervals, each boy and his buddy joined hands and held them up high. If a signal hand went up immediate investigations began to find out the cause, whether from need of help or a case of disobedience. If the latter was the case the guilty boys were taken from the pool and not allowed to return for two days. After the swim was a return to camp and personal inspection. Then the gathering of wood for council or troop fire. After supper Flag and Council ceremonies were held, followed by a period in which the boys were free until Taps that being the end of a perfect day.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

It has been my pleasure to serve through a regular and two special sessions of the 44th Legislature with the Honorable Leonard Westfall, Representative of the 118th District. During these sessions I have had numerous conferences and discussions with him as to legislative policies, particularly with reference to equalizing the burdens of taxation. I am also familiar with his attitude toward questions affecting the public welfare generally.

I was impressed by Judge Westfall's interest in the average man and his desire to see everyone have a square deal in so much as the laws can give it to him. He certainly has the courage of his conviction and does not hesitate to take a stand which he thinks to be right. He is always ready to oppose what he thinks to be wrong. While we may have voted differently on some matters, I respected his sincerity of purpose. His vote in those cases may have been right and my vote wrong.

It is of utmost importance that the people elect to the Legislature men of CHARACTER, PATRIOTIC PURPOSE and SOUND JUDGMENT. To elect an incompetent, insincere or dishonest man is to besmirch the district he is supposed to represent, and it may jeopardize the best interest of the State. A misfit in the Legislature not only means that the particular district is practically without representation, but the Representative himself becomes an object of ridicule and derision in the house. The voter ought to bear these things in mind and look well to the kind of man they send to Austin.

I am not a candidate for reelection, but as a citizen of the State, am interested in its welfare, which so vitally hinges on the men we send to the Legislature. I would be willing to trust Representative Westfall to stand for the right things and to oppose the wrong. I am not seeking to inject myself into his campaign but am simply stating my opinion of the man formed through a TESTING PERIOD.

Yours very truly,

COURTNEY GRAY,
Representative 125th District.

DICKENS COUNTY AGAIN HONORED

The Honorable William McCraw, candidate for re-election as Attorney General of Texas, comes to Dickens County for a Centennial religious address at the Charles A. Jones Memorial Stadium next Sunday evening. The Attorney General's address will be non-political, but, it will give West Texans of this section opportunity to see and hear the dynamic young politician from Dallas that has made quite a record his first year and a half in a state office. The record is good enough for the political forecasters to predict that McCraw will be a candidate for governor in 1938.

Mr. McCraw has a knack at staying before the public through the press. That alone is an indication of a certain ability in these days. Then there is his record as head of the State's legal department in a period that would test the legal ability of the best lawyer in the state.

The people of this section, with favorable weather, will be able to count their time well spent if they hear the attorney general. He is a forceful speaker and will bring an informing message that will be both pleasing and educational.

This is another instance where the Charles A. Jones Memorial Stadium will prove a boon and blessing to Dickens County as it has so many times since its completion a little over a year ago.

The baby bonds to the veterans of the World War began arriving in Dickens County Monday. The good they will do depends upon the individual receiving them, but we know that many a youngster will receive new clothing and have a fuller dinner pail as the result of Daddy receiving his "bonus."

LANDON AND KNOX

The Republican Party jumped half way over the fence last week when they nominated Landon to head the Republican ticket in the November election. Instead of staying with the "time honored Republican principles" they adopted a half way liberal policy that has characterized the Democratic Party for the past three and a half years in an effort to appeal to the popular element that elected Roosevelt and Garner.

The selection of a man unknown in national politics without anything in particular to recommend him as a state man may attract a few voters since most of the Republican leaders are too well known. The Republicans then reversed themselves and selected for the second place on the ticket a much better known and much better informed man than Landon, Frank Knox, newspaper publisher of Chicago. Their chances of electing a president, as poor as they are, might have been some better with Knox at the head of the ticket.

The Republican press practically nominated Landon because he made "good copy". President Roosevelt outsmarted them though by swinging through the Southwest with his famous smile the same week of the Convention and if there is a nationwide tour by the two leading Presidential candidates, the popular appeal of the two will be easily seen by the crowds they draw wherever they go.

IT'S YOU

If you'd like to live in the kind of a town,
Like the kind of a town you'd like,
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip,
And take a long, long hike.
You'll only find what you've left behind,
There's nothing that's really new;
You knock yourself when you knock your town—
It isn't the town, it's you.
Real towns are not made by men who're afraid,
Lest someone else gets ahead.
If everyone worked and nobody shirked,
A town can be raised from the dead.
And if while you make your personal stake,
Your neighbor can make one too,
Your town will soon be what you want to see—
It isn't the town, it's you.

CLOTHING DEMONSTRATOR REVATES STORY

"I have become clothing demonstrator because I wanted to know have attractive clothing sufficient for my needs. I wanted to choose and plan my own wardrobe as well as to make and mind it," said Clara Rich, clothing demonstrator for the McAdoo 4-H club, in her achievement program Monday.

"I have made two school dresses, one sport dress, and a slip. I have kept my clothing in good condition and arranged my closet more conveniently so as to have more adequate storage space. I have learned that the care of clothing is far more important than the quantity. Nothing is more satisfactory than to know that one's clothing is ready for wear. Besides keeping my own in good condition I have helped mother in keeping the families clothing in proper place and ready to wear."

I have kept a record of my clothing for the year and have spent $65.86. I graduated from high school this year and have needed more clothes," said Clara.

All of the sixteen girls in the club equipped a sewing box; 12 made clothing plans for the year; 16 made slips or pajamas; only 8 have had their school dresses checked to the agent; 8 have repaired at least two garments each; and 8 have put their dresser drawers in order.

CLOTHING DEMONSTRATOR REPORTS ON WORK

"I have made a red pique sports dress including shirt, blouse and jacket, the blouse is of striped pique, a batiste dress, and a slip in my clothing work as demonstrator for the Dumont 4-H club girls," says Edna Earle Thomas.

"I have enjoyed keeping a record of my clothing expenses this year. My total expenses have been $23.20 for clothing since September 1935.

"Since I am keeping the folded underwear and accessories in my dresser drawer in order it is much easier for me to dress for I know where everything is. I share the clothes closet with the rest of the family. It has a hanging rod and shelves for hanging our clothes and for hats."

Eleven of the 14 girls in the club equipped sewing boxes, nine made a clothing plan for a year, six completed slips and three made school dresses.

Members present were Mrs. Geo. Pierce, Mrs. Roy Dunavant, and Mrs. J. P. Legg, a new member.

Associated Country Womens Conference

By Clara Pratt

To be associated with the 7,300 farm women from nearly every state in the Union and from 23 foreign nations in the six-day Triennial Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World is a privilege I'll never forget. I count it an honor to represent Dickens County home demonstration club women. I do appreciate their sending me.

The conference opened at noon June 1 in Constitution Hall with more than 4,000 women in attendance. In one brief day, the first of the conference, the rural homemakers heard the President of the United States, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull, and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, and attended a garden party at the White House which broke all attendance records for such affairs at the Executive Mansion when more than 6,000 women attended. Secretary of State Hull and Mr. Wallace brought greetings to the group followed by Mrs. Roosevelt when she expressed surprise that so many farm women of America could leave their homes for ten days to two weeks to attend the conference at this time.

West Texas people will be glad to know that President Roosevelt requested the chorus to sing "Home on the Range" at the lawn party and said he hoped the song will be as popular with the people of New York and Chicago as on the Plains of West Texas.

"I congratulate you on this fine gathering which has exceeded our hopes both in numbers and in the scope of territory represented. We, citizens of the United States, are proud to present to you, the representatives of many other nations, a cross-section of the farm women of our country. We are glad to have you visit the United States and as a result of this friendly meeting, the farm life of every nation is bound to march forward with increasing efficiency and increasingly high standards," was Mr. Roosevelt's closing statement.

Miss Grace Frysinger, Senior Home Economist of the Department of Agriculture, was general chairman of the United States groups participating in the conference. She called the meeting to order and introduced the president of the organization, Mrs. Alfred Watts of Canada.

The nations represented besides our own were England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Australia, Burma, Palestine, East Africa, South Africa, New Zealand, Holland, Rhodesia, Sweden, Switzerland, Latvia, Norway, Denmark, Ceylon, Canada, Japan, China, France and Germany. All of the nearly 150 foreign women were dressed in native costumes, some of them, Mrs. K. Vaithianarhan of Ceylon in her bright orange toga, and Mrs. Olga Kulitan from Latvia in her varicolored shawl, for example, were quite conspicuous in their bright colors. For the most part the dresses for the foreign delegates resembled very much those of the women of America. The American women were well dressed and the great majority of them showed they know how to assemble clothes to make a becoming and appropriate wardrobe.

Each of the affiliated groups brought written reports of their achievements of the last three years. These reports were read by the delegates from the respective countries and all were read in good English. That shows that the foreign delegates were well educated. These reports show that the foreign rural women are doing exactly the same type of work the rural women of the United States are doing in Extension Service work. The only difference is that in our country the work is sponsored by the government and in the foreign countries the women have to manage for it themselves.

The theme of the whole conference was for more friendly relations between the nations looking toward World Peace.

"A very great deal of good is expected to come from this conference," said Mrs. Alfred Watt, white haired president of the Associated Country Women of the World. "Women are in Washington for the Conference who have made great sacrifice to come. Many must forego luxuries for years to come. They have had long and laborious saving and preparation."

"Each woman present at the Conference goes back to a different part of the world, to a home and community where she belongs and in which her words carry weight. She has been for ten days or longer in the company of other countrywomen from other countries. Is it not reasonable to presume that in an overwhelming number of the world's countryside there will soon be a new view of the foreigners? Prejudices, misunderstandings, ignorance, all the fertile breeders of hostility, have been dispelled in the friendly and informed atmosphere of the conference. It would be incredible that there should not be a great increase in international good will among country folk," said Mrs. Watt.

Warning that "war keeps you poor", Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt,

How To Reduce Varicose Veins

Rub Gently Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you should quickly notice an improvement. Continue to apply Emerald Oil until the veins and bunches are reduced.

Moore's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful penetrator and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed. It has brought much comfort to worried people all over the country.

veteran peace and suffrage leader, called upon the farm women gathered at a record-breaking banquet of the Associated Country Women to become "peace fanatics". The banquet, at which simple cotton dresses far outnumbered gowns of silk and satin, was the largest ever served in the nation's capital. Fifteen hundred women filled the ballrooms of the Willard Hotel and overflowed to the floor below.

The International Conference of farm women, largest ever assembled was brought to a close just at sundown Friday, June 5, with colorful ceremonies on the bank of the Potomac River near the Lincoln Memorial. As the sun sank, spokesmen for the countrywomen of three nations predicted that each delegate would carry home to her community fresh inspiration for rural living and a richer appreciation of what country women in other lands are doing and thinking.
