

Plainview Farmer Discusses Soil Con- servation Program

Cliff Day, dirt farmer of Plainview, nationally known, delivered an address to the Spur Rotary Club last Thursday noon discussing the program and soil conservation. Mr. Day was brought to Spur by the Dickens County Farm Association to present the farm program to the business men in order that the farmers' problems might be better understood.

After the introduction by County Agent G. J. Lane, Mr. Day discussed the need for soil conservation, the need of a definite unified farm program in the United States and in particular wind and water erosion in West Texas. He complimented Spur on having an agricultural experiment station and urged every one that was not familiar with the work of the Spur Station to learn more of what they were accomplishing especially in their study of conserving soil and water.

The speaker then discussed the program of the farmer, his need for a unified program and some of the plans now being tried. One plan was that the farmer needed a place where he could store his surplus products in years of plenty in a central location not too far removed so that in lean years he could purchase this surplus back at a reasonable price without having to pay heavy transportation costs and a large increase in the price of the product.

Mr. Day closed with statements asking for a better understanding between the merchant and the farmer. The two are interdependent and the prosperity of the farmer makes for prosperity of the merchant. Cooperation with the farmer by the merchant in solving the farm problem will in the end bring a solution. A unified program that will insure the farmer a reasonable price for his products is the aim of the farmers in organizing was the conclusion to the speaker's remarks.

Road Meeting Held At Clarendon

Quite a number of Turkey citizens are in Clarendon today in a road meeting, trying to work out definite plans on a highway from Clarendon to Turkey.

The Chamber of Commerce of that place invited all towns from Perryton to Spur to attend this meeting. The purpose of which is to formulate definite plans to present a petition to the State Highway Commission for improvement of this highway and the opening up of the gap between Turkey and Clarendon, the only gap on the road between Pampa and Del Rio that is not now open.

Highway enthusiasts from Perryton, Pampa, Matador, Roaring Springs, Spur and Turkey and other towns on the route are in attendance.

A number of Turkey citizens have worked for the past seven or eight years on the road north to Clarendon, connecting highway 18 at Turkey with highway 88 at Clarendon. It seems that every obstacle conceivable has been encountered on this project and with the cooperation of all the towns along the route it now seems that this can be put over.

The time for concerted effort on this project is now. Prospects are very favorable for the securing of this road, which will furnish employment for our people and no doubt the meeting at Clarendon today will bring results worthwhile.—Turkey Enterprise.

D. L. Granberry, Secretary of the Spur Chamber of Commerce helped plan the above meeting the chief purpose being to send delegations to Austin to urge the designation of this road. This route from the Oklahoma-Kansas line south through Spur, Jayton, Sweetwater, San Angelo, etc. is the shortest and straightest north and south route across Texas and some time in the future will be one of the leading routes to Mexico and Mexico City from the north because of this.

The court received an order from the Department of State in the form of a proclamation by Governor Jas. V. Allred restoring full citizenship to C. D. Davies, convicted on a felony charge in Dickens and Floyd courts and sent to the penitentiary for two years May 12, 1934. Davies was paroled June 11, 1935 and discharged April 1, 1936. W. R. Cammack, County Judge of Motley County, recommended the restoration of citizenship rights.

Other proceedings of the court are as follows:

Johannie Roan, on a plea of guilty was given a five year suspended sentence for horse theft.

R. C. Britton was given two years in the penitentiary for car theft by a jury. Motion for new trial was filed by defense attorneys.

POOLED TAG PAYMENTS TO BE MADE

Plans are now complete to begin the issuance and distribution of share due each producer who participated in the 1935 National Surveys representing the pro rata plus Cotton Tax-Exemption Certificate Pool.

In the course of this distribution it will be necessary to issue approximately 600,000 checks and, naturally, in the preparation of such a large number of checks it will take some time for the operation to be entirely completed as it is our understanding that the Disbursing Office at this time is equipped for the production of only 40,000 checks daily. It is entirely possible that the Disbursing Office may be unable to devote its full check writing capacity in the issuance of Pool checks.

In connection with this distribution we wish to call your attention to the fact that there will be a considerable number of checks issued in very small amounts. This has been occasioned principally by two things: (1) small poundage accounts resulting from the practice of transferring from one Pool to another and finally into this Pool, of certificates unsold by previous Pools; (2) within the scope of the Regulations no minimum was placed on the amount of certificates which might be pooled prior to the closing date of the Pool for surrenders, and producers, anticipating the repeal of the Bankhead Act, showed a tendency to pool all available surplus certificates, regardless of poundage totals.

Because of conditions as revealed in item 2 above, the Pool eventually received a supply of certificates far in excess of the current demand, and this, along with the repeal of the Bankhead Act before all cotton was tagged, resulted in the sale of only a comparatively small percentage of the total amount of certificates pooled.

Heretofore, upon liquidation of the Certificate Pools, in those cases where producers did not transfer their unsold equity into a succeeding Pool, the practice was to issue to such producers new certificates representing their unsold poundage. In view of the fact that the Act has been repealed, and that there is no further use for these certificates, no steps will be taken toward the issuance and return of the unsold poundage from this pool. However, there will be maintained in the files of the Department of Agriculture a complete record which will reveal the poundage remaining unsold on the part of any producer's account.

Canning Demonstration Has Good Crowds

Benefit Matinee For School Kiddies Saturday Morning

The Palace Theatre in cooperation with a group of interested citizens is staging a special school kiddies matinee next Saturday morning for the benefit of underprivileged children. Admission will be a tablet or a pencil or an eraser or anything else that a child needs for class work and study in the school room.

There are a number of children in the grades that cannot buy these small necessities and through the courtesy of the Palace this method of supplying their needs was devised. It will be a kiddies show worth considerably more than the admission price, but that is not the purpose. The purpose is to collect these supplies in order that large numbers of children who are almost unable to even attend school have the necessary tools to work with in the school room. The school officials would be glad to furnish these supplies if they had them and often have in the past when they could ill afford to do so. Do your good turn next Saturday by leaving your donation at the theatre box office and your reward will be the satisfaction of a good deed well done.

Additional NYA School Aid For Dickens County

The County School Superintendent, Mrs. Madge D. Twaddell in her recent trip to Austin got the N. Y. A. quota on high school pupils in Dickens county raised from 34 to 68. This will mean much to the county. The needy high school students are to make application at once to the high school principal to which they are going or hope to go. The pupil must be between the ages of 16 and 25 and must need the job but do not have to be on relief. The $6.00 per child monthly will be enough to buy clothing and school supplies.

The N. Y. A. allotment was made on the basis of the scholastics. Spur gets 34, Patton Springs receives 14, McAdoo 11, Dickens 10. The jobs will be given out immediately. Applications must be made to the high school principals now.

Dickens County Officially Designated For Drouth Relief

Dickens County has been officially placed on the list of Drought Counties, but this designation does not change the classification of sorghums and millets.

Sorghum and millets are soil depleting crops if grazed, or harvested in any way; however, in the case of any farm for which the county committee finds that the reasonably expected production of soil depleting crop in 1936 is less than the normal production of such crops for such farm because of drought or other unfavorable weather conditions, emergency feed and forage crops such as sorghums and millets seeded after July 1, 1936 may be disregarded in 1936 in classifying the use of land on which grown.

Bull Dogs To Rotan Friday Night

The Spur Bull Dogs will leave Friday afternoon about 3 o'clock for their first game away from home at Rotan. The game will be called about eight o'clock and a large number of Spur fans plan to be present if the weather clears up.

Prospects of a victory for the Bull Dogs are much better this week than last. The kinks are being ironed out this week with considerable time being devoted daily to the development of a punter. The team showed a strong running offense last week and more time is being given to passes in order to develop this department and make it more effective. Coaches Wadzeck and Martin have been hampered by the weather but are optimistic over the Rotan game and look for the Spur speedsters to get away early in the game.

Rotan has a hefty squad with a good sprinkling of veterans. Coach Anthony Hunt's boys scored an easy victory over Anson in their opening game last Friday and are planning to repeat this week.

Coach Wadzeck plans to take 20 men on the trip. There seemed to be some doubt as to whether the pep squad would accompany the team for this early season game.

Jest Smilin' Around BY OLIVER PIERCE

I once seen a five-pound Pekinese dog all dressed up in harness, jerk the lead string from the hand of its master and dash up to a massive streamlined locomotive which had paused for a moment in its dignified flight across the continent and bark and yelp and screech at it as if the destinies of nations depended upon it instantly devouring the thousand ton bulk of steel. In its frantic frenzy in failin' to annoy it or even to attract attention except from a casual bystander or two, the little animal, eludin' the arm reachin' to chastise and save it, did not take note of its footing and bounded through an open manhole into the swirlin' sewage below, and the pampered pet disappeared forever from the ken of man, while the giant moved serenely on its unselfish service to mankind to live through the ages. . . . A strikin' parallel to that incident is the recent exhibition of a feller a-calin' the President of the United States a liar.

Last Grand Jury Instructs Sheriff On Marble Machines

The August Grand Jury issued the following statement relative to the operation of marble machines in this county:

To Johnnie Koonsman, Sheriff, Tax Assessor and Collector:

We, the Grand Jury for the August Term, 1936, of the District Court of Dickens County, Texas, having had brought to our attention the operation of marble machines over our county respectfully request you that you do not accept any taxes at any time hereafter on such machines or any other machines of such nature and that you advise the City Authorities over the County that we are now making the same request of them.

We further respectfully request that at the end of this year you advise all owners of such machines that they take them out and refuse to have them operated any more or refuse to let anyone else operate them, and that all machines that are not taken out of operation at said time be confiscated by you as is provided by law.

Grand Jury, August Term 1936
Dickens County, Texas
By F. F. Henry.

Sheriff Koonsman stated that the above should be sufficient warning to owners of said machines to comply with the request of the grand jury and that he would enforce the law on the machines after the expiration of the period allowed. There are approximately 40 marble machines in operation in the county at this time.

"The Green Pastures" A Different Picture

By Carlisle Jones

On the morning of January 9, 1936, the New York papers carried brief announcements that a new play by Marc Connelly, called "Green Pastures," now a Warner Bros. production which comes to the Palace Theatre Sunday and Monday, would be produced by Lawrence Rivers, Inc., and that Robert Edmond Jones would design the sets.

No commentator registered any obvious excitement over the news although several of them welcomed the return of Marc Connelly as an active Broadway playwright.

Early in February of the same year other brief items appeared in many papers to the effect that a new play, called "Green Pastures," would shortly be in rehearsal under Marc Connelly's direction and that it would open at the Mansfield Theatre on February 22.

Even so, slight interest was registered by the conductors of theatrical columns.

On February 16, the first small advertisements appeared. On February 21, it was announced that the opening had been postponed four days to February 26, and several large pictures and caricatures of Connelly were printed. The amount of speculative comment on the probable success of the whole idea was meagre, but most seasoned theatrical columnists, knowing that Connelly was an able playwright and a skilful director, refused to make any predictions.

"The Green Pastures" opened finally, on a blizzard night, before an audience which was prepared for almost anything except what was to happen. What was revealed was a story, so simply and effectively staged and acted and so reverently conceived and produced that members of the audience knew instinctively they were witnessing an event of tremendous importance in the history of the theater.

Critical opinion the next morning was more nearly unanimous than is customary. With only two dissenting opinions, "The Green Pastures" was hailed as a play of surpassing beauty and possessing great box office potentialities.

Bill Kinney was in Lubbock last Thursday attending the district meeting of funeral directors.

School Tax Collections

Last week in this paper we printed an article from the Spur School Board stating that legal means would be used after the first of October to collect delinquent school taxes. For several years the school district has shown a steady increase in delinquent taxes until the amount has reached the sum of $45,000.00 on a valuation of approximately million and a half dollars. There are various causes for this, a good many of them very valid and reasonable while there are others that could have paid this tax and not placed the burden on those who did pay. The district always needs every dime it can get and with this large amount on the books unpaid they are having to cut down on operation costs, eliminate many things that are absolutely necessary to maintain a first class school. This last was the chief reason the school authorities took the action they did.

Noted tax authorities, who have studied the situation in Texas, state that approximately 75 per cent of the delinquent taxes are collectible. Non-enforcement of collections has forced the school district to maintain high valuations and keep a high rate on the basis of low collections in an effort to secure the necessary money on which to operate. This has made for inequality and unfair to those who could and did pay their school taxes.

This taking of legal action to collect the tax is nothing new. Practically every school district within several hundred miles has taken the same step, because they were placed in the same dilemma as Spur and had to take action to keep up the standards of their school. We are glad to state that a large number whose taxes have been delinquent have contacted the tax assessor and collector and made arrangements to pay their back taxes before the matter was placed in other hands.

WHY "THEY HATE ROOSEVELT"

Woodrow Wilson once said that no one could hate a man he knew. Real hatred, he added, could be felt only for the unknown. If this be true, it is difficult to understand the gospel of hatred that has been spread over the land by President Roosevelt's opponents. Surely, the American people know him and his human qualities.

Discussing the psychology of those who proclaim that they "hate Roosevelt," the editor of the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times wrote recently that it is probably far from the truth to describe the character of the political assaults on President Roosevelt as expressions of "hatred." They are, in his opinion rather expressions of resentment.

"It would be quite impossible for reasoning people," he wrote, "to 'hate' a man of President Roosevelt's kindly character and unquestionably high American and humanitarian ideals. But nothing could be more certain than that any such man in the White House, who would undertake to translate the highest humanitarian ideals into legislative and administrative policies, would incur the bitterest resentment of all specially privileged interests, and that is exactly what President Roosevelt has earned and is now being subjected to."

"Of course, no one 'hates' Franklin D. Roosevelt, but many persons high in business, financial and political realms so desperately resent his success in placing the country back on the road to economic recovery, in spite of them, that the effect upon their actions is not materially different from actual hatred."

"Undeniably, certain manufacturers who have seen their earnings and profits grow by leaps and bounds under the stimulus of the Roosevelt New Deal, resent his success to a degree almost indistinguishable from hatred."

"Certainly some bankers, who have lost the fear of runs under the protection of the deposit guarantee system, are now in a mood of resentment. So are some capitalists the New Deal has enabled to earn sure dividends on guaranteed mortgages. Corporation executives who have seen their dividends rise to substantial levels from the deficits of a few years ago, now have it in for him and would destroy him politically if they could. That applies to many of them."

"Who can explain this paradox? Why do those benefitted most by the New Deal of President Roosevelt assume the nearest

THE CAPITAL ONLOOKER

By Charles E. Simons

Austin, Sept. 15—More efficient methods of collection and a general improvement in business conditions were responsible for the substantial increase in gasoline tax collections which reached a new all-time high during the fiscal year ending August 31, in the opinion of George H. Sheppard, comptroller of public accounts.

Increased travel because of the Centennial was a contributing factor but was not one of the primary causes, Mr. Sheppard said.

Total collections for the fiscal period were $41,193,960, an increase of $4,111,035 over the preceding year, which also broke all previous records. The percentage of increase in the fiscal year just closed over the previous year was 11 per cent, compared with an increase of 9.07 per cent in collections for 1934-35 over the 1933-34 fiscal year.

Since March of 1933, when the state inaugurated enforcement of the first of several revisions in the gasoline tax law, until August, 1936, the receipts from this source have shown material progress each month, with few exceptions. In March 1933 total receipts from the tax were $2,291,924 while for August, 1936, the income was $4,067,861, an increase of 78 per cent.

Only in two months of the last fiscal year, October and November, did gasoline tax receipts fall below the corresponding months for the previous accounting period and these decreases were only slight. Starting in December, collections experienced a steady rise.

The amount that can be attributed to Centennial travel cannot be

Admirers Shower Major With Gifts

Major Bowes of amateur fame and part of his famous collection of "range bonnets," gifts from his Texas admirers.

Hand made, hand engraved gongs are only part of the unique collection of gifts from admiring friends that have poured in to Major Edward Bowes, America's Number One honored citizen.

During the past two years, as radio listeners know, every Bowes broadcast has resulted in the Major being made an honorary something or other. He is the police chief and the fire marshal of more towns than probably any other man in the country. In Texas he is captain of the Texas Rangers besides being an honorary member of the Governor's staff, a member of the Texas Centennial and the possessor of an unusually fine collection of ten gallon Stetsons or range bonnets as they are called in the Lone Star State.

In fact it has become such a steady practice for the Texas admirers of the Major to express their admiration with a gift of a typical Texas hat, and so many orders were sent in to the Stetson factory in Philadelphia from dealers for "special hats for the Major" that the manufacturer sent a representative to New York with a head measuring machine, to insure a perfect fit for the ten gallon chapeaux intended to grace the Bowes' brow.

A Westerner himself Major Bowes knows his "John B's" and while they are too conspicuous for Broadway appearances, he keeps them carefully wrapped in cellophane at the top of his trophy cabinet in his New York office, against the time when he can head West and rough it a bit in the country he knows and loves so well.

to an attitude of hatred toward him? Why would they apparently rather lose money under an archaic system than make money under new conditions, based on equal rights and opportunities to all?

"But, isn't that the answer?—the fact that President Roosevelt denies the proprietary rights of special interests and stands militantly for equal rights and opportunities for all. Is there anything really mysterious about the psychology of the political 'hatred' the political reactionaries so copiously entertain for President Roosevelt?"

accurately calculated but comptroller's statisticians estimated it would represent the difference between the normal percentage of increase through the year and the amount of increase recorded for the Centennial months. They said, however, that even this difference could not definitely be attributed to Centennial traffic. In support of this conclusion they pointed to an increase of 16.6 per cent in collections in April over the same month in 1935, as compared to an increase of 15.1 per cent in June, the first month of the Centennial, over the same month last year.

July, 1936, collections were 21.5 per cent over the same month of 1935 but August collections dropped to 11.1 per cent, just slightly above the normal average increase. The percentage of increase in August, 1936, was 7.6 per cent less than the percentage of increase recorded for August, 1935.

That enforcement, rather than other factors, is the chief cause of the increase is borne out by collections of the cigarette tax division for the fiscal year, Sheppard said. The Comptroller's agents, released from court injunctions with which they literally had been plastered, collected $5,434,450 in cigarette taxes as compared to $4,302,542 the previous year, an increase of $1,131,908. Before high court decisions established the right of the comptroller to collect the tax on smokes purportedly purchased in interstate commerce the state lost hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The increase in the gasoline tax will enable the state to undertake some badly needed highway construction that has been delayed because of lack of funds. A major portion of the funds of the past few years has been needed to match federal aid, maintain existing highways and provide for other expenses, with a consequent slowing down of construction from purely state funds. The highway commission and its engineers now are working on the 1937 federal aid program and when it is completed will consider projects to be constructed from state funds only.

BULL DOGS DROP HARD FOUGHT OPENING GAME TO SNYDER

The Spur Bull Dogs were on the small end of the score in the opening game with Snyder but Coach Wadzeck's boys had plenty of fight and looked better for an opening game than any squad in the last three years. Snyder scored one in the first quarter and twice in the fourth to run the score to 21 to 0.

Receiving the opening kick off the Bull Dogs made two first downs and run the ball into Snyder territory before losing on downs. Snyder with Head and Smith alternating at carrying the mail scored from the 55 yard line after making a first down. Boren place kicked perfectly for the extra point.

The two teams fought on even breaks in the second and third quarters with Snyder having a slight advantage on offense. In the fourth period Cravy fumbled on the 30 yard line and Snyder recovered over the goal line for the second counter. Boren again placed the ball squarely between the uprights for the point.

Spur again received but fumbled on the second play and Snyder recovered on the 15 yard line. It took Smith, Head and Morrow three plays to go over for the final counter. Boren placed kicked for his third straight point.

J. B. Haralson ran the team in the first quarter and did a good job of it but had to leave in the third after the first play because of a leg injury. Haralson stepped off several good runs that netted first downs. His place was taken by Junior Martin, who is fast and gets off rapidly when carrying the ball. Martin lacks experience but appears to have what it takes and should with a little seasoning be the outstanding back of this year's squad. Harrell looks to be the best blocker on the team and did some good work a time or two carrying the ball. Pershing Lee was the best all around player Spur had on the field and his experience at end last year has helped develop him into a star player. Other linemen showing up well were Bumpus at center and Capt. "Red" Garner at guard.

Prospects for a winning team look much better than preseason indications showed. The squad is much faster all around than last years and has more pep. A little slow on calling signals the whole team was ready when the ball was snapped. Coach Wadzeck has done a nice piece of work with a green squad that is short on weight but looks as if they can go places despite their lack of weight.

Spur used the following players: Lee and Williams at ends, Wilhoit, Faulkner and B. Martin at tackles, Red Garner and Victor Arrington at guards, Murphy and Bumpus at center, J. B. Haralson, Harrell, Elton Garner, Cravy, Junior Martin and Billie Hahn as backs.

Snyder used Boren and Rogers at ends, Tate and Wollever at tackles, Rosson and J. Rogers at guards, Austry at center, Smith, Morrow, Moffett and Head as backs.

Spur School District to Collect Delinquent Taxes

Due to poor collections of taxes in the past it has become necessary for the Spur Independent School District to collect delinquent taxes so that the school may be operated. The Spur School Board has decided to make a contract with an out of town lawyer for the purpose of collecting these taxes.

The total delinquent taxes due the Spur School District are approximately $45,000.00. Obviously it is necessary for the district to make some arrangement for the collection of these taxes.

It is not the intention of the Spur School Board to work a hardship on anyone in the collection of such taxes, but it will be necessary for every one to make some arrangements for the payment of delinquent taxes they owe. Before the School Board enters into contract to collect delinquencies it wishes to give every one the opportunity of paying their delinquent taxes. Those who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity will please see Mr. H. P. Gibson, School Assessor and Collector, and pay their delinquent taxes before October 10, 1936. After this date the collection of delinquent taxes will be out of the hands of the School Officials entirely, and it will be necessary to deal with some outside concern. By paying delinquent taxes before October 10 no expense of court costs will be added.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bond and family are guests of his sister, Mr. and Mrs. Buel McDaniel and family this week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Black of Mule shoe, spent the week end with Mrs. Black's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Conaway.

SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS' The Gorgeous Hussy

NOVELIZED FROM THE METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PICTURE
by HALSEY RAINES

"What happened so far? When the brilliant Senator Randolph, indicates that he and Peggy O'Neal too much of a schoolgirl to be married, she accepts the hand of Bow Timberlake, a young naval lieutenant. Bow is killed in government service, and Peggy, trying to forget, immures herself in the presidential mansion of her friend and confidant, Andrew Jackson. Five years later, in 1823, Jackson is elected, Randolph finally confesses his love for Peggy, but Jackson, as his political antagonist, says such a marriage will mean desertion of his, and his principles. Peggy angrily storms out saying she will marry Randolph anyway."

Chapter Three

As the afternoon sun was waning Peggy stood in Randolph's living-room, a pleading look on her face. She had told him how she had lain awake all night, feeling that she could never come to the point of giving up the President's confidence and friendship. "You can work for him and for me both, if you will," she begged, pressing his hand. "You mean you offer yourself to me in exchange for my ideals," said Randolph grimly. "I offer myself to you," said Peggy, "to help guard the future of a new country, together." "A woman's right," replied Randolph slowly, "is to choose love before politics. A man's career, on the other hand, is his reason for being, his pride and his ambition." "I can't leave Uncle Andy now," cried Peggy. "I thought I could, but it's impossible." "Peggy," said Randolph, "you ask me to choose between you and my long devotion to the state of Virginia. Is that correct?" "If you insist on stating it that way, but —"

There is only one choice," Randolph cut in, an unearthly tone in his voice. "I choose Virginia!" Peggy wanted to reach out to appeal, but she knew she would fail. Nothing in the world could shake his decision, no matter how many people's lives it shattered. As she started for the door she turned back, threw her arms about him, gave him one final kiss. He stood motionless as a statue, while she left. A few nights later Peggy had joined an evening party on the Potomac. When moonlight bathed the river in its radiant glow, John Eaton found opportunity to detach her from the group on board the boat.

As the boat glided away the strains of "America" floated across the water. Peggy misty-eyed stood at the outer rail.

He took her hands, put an arm about her waist. Peggy looked at the outline of his strong, sensitive, likeable face, but at the same time the echo of Randolph's words rang in her ears. "I choose Virginia!" "John! John! John!" she whispered, thinking of that farewell scene. Eaton, having no suspicion she was calling on another "John," enfolded her in a sudden rush. "Then it's true," he cried joyously. "You do care for me —?" "Would it make you very happy, John Eaton?" asked Peggy, looking at him with a wave of tenderness. Peggy's marriage to the attractive young Secretary of War shocked Mrs. Beall's circle and gratified Andrew Jackson. Randolph, when he heard of it, attempted to keep his thoughts away from everything except matters of state. One night, bent over a pile of papers, he was not conscious of the presence of an intruder until a dark figure stood in the doorway of his living-room. Good evening, Senator," said the visitor, with a suave smile. Randolph stared at him several moments before recognition came. He had not seen Prof. La Roy Sunderland since that time when the palmetoist had incited the riot at the Franklin and was screaming, "I may not be exactly welcome," said Sunderland, "but I think you will change your attitude as you learn my business. My colleagues and I have worked for months in secret. The time has now arrived to strike, Jackson is wavering. A million men await only the word to dissolve the Union!" "Is this the way," replied Randolph with deadly calm, "that sincere principles can be twisted to spell blood and rebellion?" "I know in your heart you are with us," smiled Sunderland. "Tell this to your friends," cried Randolph, rising. "I will maintain the privileges of the sovereign state of Virginia with my life, but I'll be the first to shoot the blackguard who dares falsify my position and lead the nation into bloodshed! And I'll tell Andrew Jackson exactly where I stand!" Sunderland vanished as silently as he had come. But when Randolph stepped across the room to summon his butler a shot rang out from the garden. The senator crumpled and dropped to the floor. Peggy, worried about the mounting crest of opposition to Jackson, accepted the public report that Randolph was slightly indisposed and thought this explained his absence from the Senate. She herself attended the great Jefferson Birthday memorial celebration in Congress. The President was to give the chief address, and it was rumored that she was doubly startled to see him now. She did not dream (Randolph had kept it secret) that Sunderland was the assassin attacking her loved one. But ever since that night of terrible rioting he had been an object of loathing to her. "What are you doing here?" Rowdy asked him sharply. Sunderland ignored the question and turned to Peggy. "You're a woman of means, Mrs. Eaton," he said blandly. "I am poor. It was unwise for you to come here tonight. Surely your reputation in Washington will be worth a trivial consideration." Rowdy, with an exclamation of fury, seized him by the collar. The two men struggled furiously; it was like a nightmare to the watching girl. Sunderland dropped a pistol. Rowdy picked it up, Sunderland whipped out a knife, and as he flung himself at Rowdy the latter fired. The would-be blackmailer fell to the ground, dead. At the sound people began to come from all directions. Rowdy dashed off a note to shove Peggy within the waiting carriage, and make sure she was safely off, while he remained to face the consequences. When the gossipers of Washington found out Peggy had accompanied Rowdy on the night of the fatal shooting, wildly distorted rumors were circulated. It was said that she had gone to keep a love tryst with him, and that while both were under the influence of alcohol, Sunderland had been killed. Finally there came to the President's office John C. Calhoun and with him Horatio Peabody, Chairman of the Society for the Protection of Public Morals. Before he would permit either of them to speak Jackson insisted on the presence of Peggy and John Eaton. Peabody squirmed in his chair as he was asked to state specific facts of misconduct. He depended on the reports of others, he said. "By the Eternal!" cried Jackson. "I bin waitin' for this moment. Now git this, Mr. Peabody, and take it back to your people. Mrs. Margaret Eaton traveled to Warrenton under my express orders to visit the late John Randolph of Roanoke — God rest his loyal soul — an' Mr. Red-erick Dow escorted her there through the request of her own husband, Mr. Secretary Eaton!" When Peabody and Calhoun left, speechless, Peggy came forward and pressed Jackson's hand. "You've won a great victory for me, Uncle Andy," she said. "But there's just one sensible thing for me to do now." "What do you mean?" asked Jackson. "When they keep talking about me," said Peggy, "people forget the real issues of state. The one thing for me to do is 'git'!" Jackson looked at her quizzically. "Maybe you're right," he replied, "an' I got the answer. How would it suit you if I made John Minister to the Court of Spain?" Peggy stood at the rail of the sailing vessel, and beside her was John Eaton. One of the last things she saw was Rowdy, who had been pardoned by Jackson, and who had pressed Peggy's hand with a vigor that showed he could never really care for anyone else, hoping for this suit was. Andrew Jackson looked at Peggy earnestly as he paused to say good-by. "Maybe Spain'll git your party smile for a while," he said, "but your heart's stayin' right here with me, to help me keep goin' on. I reckon you're not half-hearted yet," answered Peggy. "There's a new tune," continued Jackson, "that I want you to hear. It's written by a friend of mine named Sam Smith. He's here this afternoon and I'm a-goin' to play him and the boys play it for you." As the boat glided across the straits of "America" floated across the water. Peggy misty-eyed stood at the outer rail. "Good-bye, John Randolph," she said to her, her gaze fixed on the distant Capitol. John Eaton stepped to her side, and she turned to him with one of the rare smiles which only she could command. "It is a pretty tune," she said. "Isn't it, John?"

CHAPTER XII

The next afternoon—around three o'clock—Harwood phoned. "The old man wants to see you. Here at his office. I'd come quick if I were you."

So Jack had told him. Or Evans.

"I'd be glad if you'd tell Willetts, and the rest," Barry had said to the chauffeur. "It'll save me introducing the subject." It would, too. He had dreaded his first few moments with Ridder—beginning his story with a pair of cold, calm eyes boring into him. They would be cold eyes; he felt sure of that.

And they were.

"The big chief" sat at his big desk in a big, richly-furnished office with a big door and a little one. The big double door opened into the reception room. Barry entered through that, and found himself facing Ridder and the smaller single door behind him.

Ridder was reading a radiogram, and he went on reading. A tall, thin man, with New England written all over him. A youngish man for his age, which might have been fifty. He wore gold-rimmed spectacles. His long, thin, absolutely straight nose was higher at the right end, and his right eye was longer and narrower than his left. He had a sharp chin, and a thin nose, and a broad forehead, with thin, graying, sandy hair. The kind of man who could say "Good morning" as though that ended the discussion.

"All right," Barry repeated to himself. "I'll take my medicine. It'll soon be over, anyway. He isn't going to give a damn what I do for his son. If I can say anything to make it easier for those two youngsters and Jack—wonder what's back of that little door."

He was still wondering when the big chief looked up.

"You're Gilbert?"

"Yes, sir."

"Alias Ridder, eh?"

"Yes, sir."

They were cold eyes. Very cold. Mostly to end the silence, Barry said, "I suppose your son told you."

"Nobody told me. I've known all about you for two months."

"You've known—"

"I heard my wife's talk with my son the day before we sailed. Through the door to my bedroom. I heard her invite him to Southampton. Next morning, I arranged with Willetts to give me a full report of his doings there."

"And—?"

Barry was thinking in monosyllables. "And, in his first letter, he mentioned your red hair."

Barry grinned.

"He also mentioned your taking a hundred dollar bill out of an envelope addressed to Mrs. Ridder."

The grin faded.

"You haven't made a move that I haven't known about."

He waited.

"Why didn't you have me arrested?"

"Because I knew that my son was in prison, accused of this murder. I read about that less than an hour after I'd satisfied myself that you weren't my son. Jay Rogers. I'd had a man following him all about Florida. The man's report agreed perfectly with the newspaper account of Jay Rogers."

"Still—"

"What was I to do? Sall? The doctor said that was out of the question. I wired Harwood Rogers didn't kill Kelly. Find out who did. Twenty-four hours later, I knew you were on the Globe, and why, and that you'd succeeded in interesting Winslow."

He wiped his glasses, and went on.

"I'd written a cable ordering your arrest. There didn't seem much sense in sending it. I was stuck in Bad Nauheim. My son was locked up in the Tombs. You seemed bent on getting him out. It was a chance. I telegraphed Harwood to give you every possible aid. I told him to raise your salary, and I signed a check for my wife to send you. She didn't know that you weren't her boy, and she didn't know I knew anything. Nobody knew. I kept my mouth shut, and the wires busy."

"Two weeks ago, I learned that you'd accomplished nothing and that the date of the trial was set. I went to my doctor, and he said I could make the trip. After I'd booked passage Harwood cabled about the Morano clew. Then I told my wife everything, and came home."

"To deal with me?"

"Yes."

Apparently that was all. Ridder had made his statement, coldly, calmly, as a judge might have spoken in charging a jury. The charge over, he waited again—so long that the pause became unendurable. Barry was standing—like a prisoner in the dock. After a moment, he said: "What are you going to do?"

"Listen to your explanation."

"I haven't any."

"There's a police officer in the next room."

With cold, calm eyes, Ridder indicated the door behind him.

"In there," he said, rising and walking away.

Barry looked after him.

"Tough guy," Barry muttered quite audibly, quoting Peggy. His hand was on the knob now. "Tough guy—that bird."

Then he braced himself and opened the door.

It was dark in the next room. Quite dark, after the dazzling sunlight of Ridder's office.

Barry closed the door behind him and stood trying to accustom himself to the new dimness.

There was only one window here, and that heavily curtained. No way in or out, except that by which Barry had come. A smallish board room, this was, for staff meetings. Barry made out a long table, with chairs about it, and several file cabinets. Beside these, some one was waiting.

The "cop"?

Before Barry could answer his own question, the figure turned and came forward.

Patricia.

Patricia Hambidge, in a blue tailored ensemble.

Barry laughed.

"Pat!" he exclaimed. "I thought you were a policeman."

"No," she replied, grimly. "There's one outside, though. My father warned you about Mr. Ridder but I didn't think anybody could be as—as granite as that old man."

"You're tellin' me?" Barry grinned.

"We've been at him ever since he arrived—his son, Peggy, father and I, Peter Winslow, his own wife. We didn't expect friendship to count—not after the way his paper went after father. But we talked reason. Peter, with his wife sick at home—Peter said you couldn't've worked harder for your brother."

Then, Pat said, "I Love You."

"What was Ridder's answer to that?"

"He had to. This girl—meaning Peggy—this girl wouldn't've kept her mouth shut if she hadn't thought he was her own chance."

"Yes," Peter argued, "but he was really working."

"He was getting a good salary for doing it. And good clothes, and a good home, and servants he wasn't paying for. I'd've worked in his place."

"So my mother pleaded, too," Barry reminded himself, swiftly, with curious satisfaction. Then he grinned again at having thought of that old man's wife as his mother.

"I'd like to meet Mrs. Ridder," he said aloud. "I'd like to thank her and Winslow, of course, and all of you."

"It didn't do much good," Pat responded. "But Peter's going to take your case, and fight to a finish. He says he'll stay home from Europe, if necessary."

"I don't want to fight," Barry answered. "I'm not exactly eager to go to jail, but it looks as though I was booked for it. And I don't want to make any rumpus. That would only hurt Jack and Peggy. I want to wipe all this off the slate, and start fresh."

Pat nodded.

"I know. You kept saying, 'Let's have it over.'"

"You heard?"

"Of course. I listened shamelessly."

"Did it matter so much to you?" Barry asked.

And then was sorry he'd said it.

"We've all been long on eavesdropping," he added, quickly. "Old Ridder, your father—"

"We've all had good reason."

She was standing beside the long table.

"You asked if it mattered to me," she said. "Don't you know?"

"Why should it matter?"

"Don't you know that?"

"We've been good pals—" he began. She was staring at him fixedly.

"Don't talk nonsense," she commanded.

Barry sat next to her.

"Listen," he said. "You're a lady— she laid her hand on his arm. "I've only one question to ask," she declared, "and I count on your answering that honestly."

"You can."

"You said—to Ridder—I stayed, at first, because I was nuts about a girl."

"Yes."

"Was that true?"

"Yes."

"Who was she?"

"I told you a month ago."

CLUB NEWS

DEMONSTRATION GIVEN TO NEW CLUB

"Salads should be served at least once a day because of their food value in minerals and vitamins, their color and attractiveness," said Miss Pratt, county home demonstration agent in a meeting of Dickens women in the home of Mrs. John Gay Thursday afternoon.

CLUB HAS DEMONSTRATION

"A simple salad attractively served adds interest and food value to the meal and does not require any more time in preparation than any other food," Miss Pratt told at the home of Mrs. Sam Bachman.

"So often when we think of salad we think of individual servings on individual plates which take extra time to prepare and make more dishes to be washed. If we plan to serve a salad from a bowl or in a bowl to be passed at the table there is no extra work and the salad may be just as attractive," she said as she served a salad of mustard greens chopped hard boiled eggs and chopped bacon, the French dressing was made of bacon fat, vinegar and chopped onions.

Mrs. Floyd Barnett and Mrs. John Bachman of the Soldier Mound club were present and each led the group in a game.

Other visitors were Miss Allene Adams, Mrs. Joe Poindexter, Mrs. D. H. Gage, Mrs. Robert Gage, and Mrs. Loyce Copass.

NEW CLUBS ORGANIZED

Two new home demonstration clubs have been organized this past week by the home demonstration agent with the help of the Council Chairman and Secretary. The women in Dickens organized a club last Thursday with sixteen charter members. Mrs. John Gay was elected president.

Mrs. R. C. Alexander was elected president of the new club at Prairie Chapel organized Monday. Their list of officers will be completed at their meeting next week.

Instead of having yard achievement programs in these clubs in October they will have a program on planning yard improvement similar to those given in the clubs early in the year.

Several other clubs should be organized in the next few weeks.

CLUB ORGANIZED AT PRAIRIE CHAPEL

The women of Prairie Chapel community organized a home demonstration club Monday afternoon when they met in the home of Mrs. R. C. Alexander for a salad demonstration given by the home demonstration agent, Miss Clara Pratt.

Mrs. R. C. Alexander was elected president; Mrs. Peyton Legg, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Bill Middleton, Council member. The other officers will be elected at the next meeting.

SALADS MAY BE VARIED

"Lettuce is the most popular vegetable used in salads serving both as a garnish and as a part of the salad but it is not the only vegetable available for salads. There is an endless combination of fruits, vegetables, meats and fish that we might serve a salad every day in the year and then not use the same salad twice," Miss Pratt told the Soldier Mound home demonstration club women in a salad demonstration given in the home of Mrs. Foster Jones Thursday afternoon.

The salads were prepared and served showing table service as well as the preparation of salads. One of the salads served was a three-in-one salad plate that makes a complete meal.

Visitors were Mrs. Don Perrin and Mrs. Albert Power.

Members present were Mrs. Ollie Hindman, Mrs. W. H. Condron, Mrs. I. E. Abernathy, Mrs. Floyd Barnett and Mrs. Foster Jones.—Reporter

A DISCUSSION ON HEALTH PROGRAM

"Why condition the air; is a more important essential to the body than any one thing," said Miss Elizabeth Williams in discussing air conditioners in our homes, or be made from a simple device or else purchase one at a small cost, in the Twin Wells home demonstration club Monday, August 24, when the club met at the home of Elizabeth Williams.

Mrs. Tom Gilmore gave an article on the Trappers as the member with the playlet, Shadows, was absent. Miss Pratt was present and gave a brief outline of the play. She also gave some important notes about the exhibit that to be had in October.

Those present were Mrs. Della Merriman, Mrs. Tom Gilmore, Mrs. C. C. McCombs, Miss Pratt, Mrs. L. Williams and Elizabeth Williams.—Reporter.

TWIN WELLS HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

Club studies sketches of authors. "It is well that we should look on the moral side of an author as well as the religious view of his life," related Mrs. Tom Gilmore as she gave a brief out line of the book, "Green Light." In the Twin Wells home demonstration club when the club met in the home of Mrs. C. C. McCombs, September 8.

Owing to a part of the program we didn't have and to make the program more interesting each member present gave a sketch of serial they had recently read, also gave name of author.

Mrs. Duncan was a visitor. The club will meet with Mrs. Tom Gilmore September 18th. Members present were Mrs. Tom Gilmore, Mrs. Della Merriman, Mrs. C. C. McCombs, Mrs. C. F. Watters, Mrs. Ellis and Elizabeth Williams.—Reporter.

MAKES PICKLES OF CURED CUCUMBERS

"The cucumbers I had in brine have finished curing and have been freshened and made into pickles reports Mrs. Floyd Barnett, home food supply cooperator in the Soldier Mound home demonstration club.

"To tell when the cucumbers have completely cured I cut through several and if they are a clear olive green to the center they are cured. If a pale green streak is in the center they should be left in the brine longer."

"When cured I freshen the cucumbers in clear water for 24 hours changing the water several times. After freshening or processing as it is called, the drained cucumbers were put in cold 4½ grain vinegar and after a week or ten days were ready to use as sour pickles. For very sour pickles they may be drained and covered with fresh vinegar and sealed."

"We like sweet pickle rings. I take the sour pickles and slice them into fourth inch rings and for a gallon of rings add ten cup sugar, adding a third of the sugar at twelve hour intervals. The vinegar in the rings makes sufficient syrup with sugar to cover the rings when they are put in jars and sealed. If all the sugar is added at once the pickles will swivel. A bag of spices may be added to the syrup but removed when the rings are packed in the jars."

"The ends of the sliced cucumbers and the odd shaped ones are ground and made into cucumber relish," added Mrs. Barnett.

23 YEARS AGO

Taken from the files of The Texas Spur, published 23 years ago this week. Oran McClure, editor and publisher.

Lumber was being hauled from Spur for a new rural high school to be built at Midway. The New Hope, Amity and Liberty schools were co-operating on the project. The building was to be completed in time for the opening of the 1913-14 term.

Ed Hulse was in town and reported that he would harvest approximately 40 bushels to the acre from his extensive peanut crop. The editor made this observation: "We long ago concluded by observation that the farmer who only farmed cotton would continually have his nose to the grindstone while the diversified farmer would prosper."

Spur schools showed an increase in enrollment of one third.

H. F. Clay was in from Dickens purchasing materials for the construction of a new modern hotel at that place.

L. C. Arrington reported the completion of a new residence on his farm in the Steel Hill community. He also reported harvesting 1,000 bushels of maize on a 25 acre farm in the afton country.

Cotton was selling in Spur 13.25 per pound.

G. L. Barber and his road crew were building a road east of town which when completed was to be one of the finest in the country.

E. R. Rorie was in town and reported good rains on the C. D. Copeland place.

Dr. Morris reports the birth of an eleven pound boy last week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Thomas of several miles north of Spur.

J. C. Stephens of the Afton community, passed through Spur Tuesday on his return home from Jones county where he has been several days visiting his daughter.

Mrs. J. B. Morrison and children returned from Canada where they spent a month or two with her parents, Sam Owens and wife.

Otho L. Hale, a prominent citizen and business man of Afton was in Spur Monday and spent several hours here on business.

C. A. Jones of Afton, was in town this week looking for cotton pickers.
