

FIREMAN OF THE YEAR—David Carroll, left, was awarded the "Fireman of the Year" plaque during the annual firemen's barbecue at the Community Center last Thursday night. Mayor Homer Hodge made the presentation.

Carroll is Runnels County Commissioner for Precinct 2. Fireman of the Year each year is named by secret ballot by members of the Winters Volunteer Fire Department.

No Increase In School Taxes

At a time when other school districts in this section of the state are faced with an increase in taxes, there will be no increase for Winters Independent School District.

Tax structure for the WISD for 1976 will remain the same for 1976 that it was for 1975, based on 90 percent of 100 percent valuation, with values compiled during the 1967 valuation program. Tax will be $1.10 per $100 valuation. The ISD has operated under this same tax structure for several years.

Income under this tax structure will be adequate to operate the schools without reducing educational benefits, Superintendent of Schools Bill Graves said, even with a slight increase in the budget for the next year.

Graves said the increase in oil valuation over the last year, and also the increase in local valuation will bring in an additional $50,000 without changing the tax structure.

Oil valuation climbed to $16,473,000 for 1976, from $12,049,280 for 1975, an increase of almost $4.5 million. Local valuation, result of new construction and economical growth, Graves said, rose to $21,936,810 in 1976 from $21,814,920 in 1975. Potential collections at $1.10 for total valuation on the 1976 tax roll would be $422,507.91, Graves said, with an estimated 95 percent collection, $401,382.51.

The school budget for 1976 has been increased about 3.5 percent over the preceding year—from $905,721 to $939,969 in 1976, the superintendent said.

Most significant of the increase has been the addition of extra "fees" which have been paid by individual students in past years. These extra fees were declared unlawful by the Attorney General some months ago, it was noted, and the total must now be borne by the school district. These fees include providing workbooks for students, rental on band instruments, and other special fees.

A reduced staff has allowed a reduction in the payroll account, from $522,149 in 1975 to about $520,000 in 1976, Graves said. This even in face of a significant increase in enrollment. The enrollment increase has been no cause for overcrowding conditions, however, he said.

Other areas of the budget have been increased, Graves said, such as costs of fuel and energy, which have been climbing during the past months.

The local district will provide about $422,507 of the total budget, with state and federal sources providing the remainder, it was pointed out.

Swine Flu Vaccine Program In October

The Enterprise was notified Tuesday that the State Health Department has set October 7 as a tentative date for public vaccination against the much-publicized swine flu, for the North Runnels area. The public will be notified upon confirmation of the date.

Rosemary Benny of Winters has been named coordinator for the local program.

A force of 40 volunteers to work on the program will be needed, in addition to at least six registered nurses and 10 LVNs. Local doctors will also work on the program, it was said.

Tentative plans are to hold the mass immunization program at the Winters Community Center.

According to information received, the program will be for everyone who desires to receive the vaccine. Senior citizens and the chronically ill will receive a bivalence vaccine, it was understood. Also, those receiving the vaccine will need to sign consent forms, it was stated.

Additional information will be published as it is received.

Blizzards Crippled... But Are Rarin' To Go

The 1976 Blizzard football squad was dealt a crippling but not fatal blow last Friday evening, when two quarterbackbacks received injuries which will keep them out of action, probably for the rest of the season.

In scrimmage play with the Comanche Indians, Jeff Russell received severe knee injuries, and Tye Rougas received shoulder injuries. It is probable that these injuries will sideline the two men.

Coach Jimmy Stubblefield said Tuesday that Marvin Moore, who had filled the down-under position some two years ago, but had been moved to quarterbacking, and another QB will be moved up to fill the injury-caused vacancies.

Stubblefield was very pleased with the action initiated by the Blizzard offense against Comanche in that pre-season practice session. He said this group did "the best job on offense since I've been here." The blocking was good, the coach said, and ball handling was good. Tackle Phil Colburn turned in the best job on hits for the evening, he said, in the blocking department.

In the scrimmage, HB Jimmy Chapman carried the ball 12 times for 60 yards, for a 5-yard average. Flent McNeill carried 16 times for 67 yards, 4.2 average; Marvin Moore, 11 times for 44 yards, 4-yard average; and Kent McNeill, 3 times for 17, 5.6 average.

On defense, the coach said a lot of mistakes were made, and the team has a long way to go before they will be ready for game action.

The Blizzards will travel to Brady Friday for a scrimmage session with the Bulldogs. The Freshman team will begin scrimmage action at 5 p.m.; the B team, at 6 p.m., with the varsity going at 8 p.m.

All band students and their parents are invited to attend.

BY CHARLSIE POE

By Charlsie Poe

Alaska is all scenery! There is no way to describe the vastness and grandeur of this state with its highest mountains, longest rivers, the many lakes and glaciers, and miles and miles of coastline and forests.

The name Alaska comes from the Aleut word, Alyeska, which means "The Great Land". But man has had a difficult time trying to explore this Icelandic paradise for here, also, are the lowest temperatures and the fewest people, not to mention the longest days in summer and the endless nights in winter.

"Breakup," the time of year when the snow melts, causes potholes to appear and frost heaves jump from the ground. This plays havoc with the highways and roadwork goes on constantly in the summer. But modern technology has helped with the airplane, trains, ships and ferries. Helicopters and two-way radios are indispensable in rescuing unlucky mountain climbers and others in distress.

Not everything in Alaska is on such a massive scale. Many wildflowers flourish on the roadsides and in the tundra. One of the most prevalent is the fire weed, a tall pink blossomed plant which gets its name from being the first plant to appear after a forest fire.

Alaska cotton is a grasslike plant which grows in marshy areas throughout the state. It has a strong fiber and natives weave it into cloth. The forget-me-not, Alaska's state flower, is blue with gold center. The red berries of the elderberry make a bright splash and the white blossoms of the Narcissus-flowered Anemone add their beauty.

Trees most often seen are the Sitka Spruce, hemlock, birch, poplar, aspen and several species of willow, which is the principal food of the moose. The trees are very tall except in places where there is permafrost-ground that stays frozen the year round.

The Alaskans are very friendly people and proudly welcomed their visitors this Bicentennial year. They have excellent information centers, housed in log cabins, where free maps, information and coffee were available. A small gift was presented to those who registered. At one point, each of the 40 people on the Reporter-News tour received a walrus lapel pin.

There were many unforgettable places and people on the tour, but perhaps the most exciting event since the gold rush days of 1898, is the discovery of one of the world's richest oil deposits on Prudhoe Bay, and the

ALASKA PIPELINE—The above picture of the Alaska pipeline was taken by Bill Holloway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Holloway of Winters. Holloway has been a pipe fitter on the project for one and a half years. He is at Camp Dietrich. Calvin Holloway's brother, Max Holloway of Alvord, has been on the pipeline for two years, as a welder. He also has charge of a camp. Charlsie Poe, Enterprise special correspondent, writes of the Alaska pipeline this week.

subsequent development of the trans-Alaska pipeline.

As the closest major city to these deposits, Fairbanks is experiencing a boom in population and economic activity. History repeats itself as the city was born as a result of gold discovered in a hand-dug shaft in 1902. The city, second largest in the state, is a mixture of log cabins that huddle against 10-story apartment houses, where trappers and miners rub shoulders with alert young business men.

Two miles out of Fairbanks, to the left of the Steese Highway, we saw the pipe storage yard and truck traffic control center for the trans-Alaska pipeline. There were some workers and trucks in the area and stacks of 48-inch pipe. Some of the pipes were wrapped with eight inches of fiberglass insulation. Our driver-guide pointed out a building that was well insulated, heated and built at a cost of $9,000. It was the modern version of the "old out house."

We traveled north and about ten miles out, before reaching the Fox Community, we turned left onto the Goldstream road where we could see the pipeline right-of-way.

The giant pipe gleamed like a silver ribbon coming down the mountainside, at times it was hidden from view underground, and in other places it was on trestles high in the air above the rivers and streams.

Because of varying soil conditions along its route, the pipeline is alternately buried and elevated. Where the warm oil would cause ice-rich soil to thaw and erode, for instance, the pipeline goes above ground. This is when the pipes must be wrapped for protection. Where the frozen ground is mostly well-drained gravel and thawing will not cause erosion, the line is buried.

When the line is finished it will have 12 pump stations and several large valves, placed at intervals to control the flow of oil. The entire system is designed for central computer control from Valdez (pronounced "Val-Deez") or independent local control at each pump station.

This summer more than 18,000 persons have been working on the pipeline project installing the pipe itself, building the pump stations and preparing the huge terminal and storage tanks at Valdez. At present, I believe the pipe has been laid as far as Delta.

These pipeline workers live in camps (19 of them) where room, board and laundry are furnished. A small commissary provides other needs. The average salary for welders and pipe-fitters, who are called journeymen, is $19.20 an hour. And their helpers average from $11 to $12 per hour.

The pipeline portion of the huge project is scheduled to be completed late this year. The 800-mile line will stretch all the way from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez, the closest year-round, ice free port. From Valdez, the oil will be shipped in marine tankers to terminals on the U.S. West Coast. The pipeline is designed for a maximum capacity of 2 million barrels of crude oil a day, and oil is expected to be flowing by the middle of next summer.

The Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., formed by eight oil companies to build and operate the pipeline, announced that the total cost of the project is expected to be $7 billion.

I talked to the Rev. Clinton Eastman (Karlene's father) who has been serving as pipeline chaplain for the Baptist Home Mission Board. He said that 1400 men had already been shipped out from the camps he visits. They are Prospect Creek, Five Mile Camp, Old Man Camp and Pump Stations No. 5 and No. 6. He visits each camp for 24 hours where he holds services and talks with the men. He is then flown back to Fairbanks for the weekend. With only a skeleton crew left, he thinks his work will soon come to an end.

The pipeline is not the only point of interest at Fairbanks. We visited the University of Alaska which is advertised as the coldest college in America. The campus covers 2,500 acres and the university museum houses a complete display of Indian and Eskimo arts and crafts.

The University Musk Ox Farm was the most unusual sight where 90 of these peaceful, primitive beasts grazed over a 40-acre pasture. Looking like big, hairy cows, these animals grow on their hide a cashmere-like underwool called qiviut. (The only word I know of where u doesn't follow the q.)

Collecting qiviut begins in the spring and continues until June. A large bull will yield as much as six pounds of qiviut in a season. When the harvest is complete, the qiviut is shipped to Rhode Island to be spun into yarn. The yarn is then sent back to Alaska to be knitted into caps and other items.

Remnants of the last Ice Age, the musk ox are content in the coldest of weather, but in the summer they loll on the ground and seem to enjoy watching the tourists as much as tourists enjoy seeing them.

MRS. JAMES SINDON

WHERE I STAND By O. L. Rake

Dear Fellow Citizens:
Hopefully the following information will reveal to you exactly where I stand on two important issues.

I. Where I Stand on Campaign Financing

During my campaign I shall make every effort to adhere strictly to the letter and intent of the Texas Election laws as amended December 31, 1975. All contributions received and expenses incurred will be properly recorded and reported as required by law. In an attempt to abide by high ethical standards I have not used, nor do I intend to use any campaign contributions or loans for the personal livelihood of myself or my family. We will support ourselves, as we have always done, with our own resources and labor during the entire course of this campaign. (The same laws apply to my opponent concerning all expenses he incurs during his campaign.)

II. Where I stand on the Future of Law Enforcement in Runnels County:

I sincerely believe that for the next Sheriff to be accepted and effective in that important office he must be a person who has no ties with past administrations. I believe, as many of you do, that we need a new beginning and a clean start in our county law enforcement. Therefore, if I am elected I pledge to you, the citizens of Runnels County, that we will have this new start.

The 1,700 of you who voted against the current sheriff in the May Primary can be assured that he will not continue to be employed should I be elected. Similarly, the 1,300 persons who voted against the other candidate can also be assured that my election will effectively prevent him from once again being employed in the Sheriff's Department.

In Summary, I would like to re-pledge a vow I made several weeks ago, and again promise the people of Runnels County that if I am elected in November, the following provisions will be a reality in your Sheriff's Department:

- A. There will be honesty and integrity in all employees.
- B. There will be a high degree of personal morality in all employees.
- C. There will be fair and equal treatment of all persons.
- D. Every effort will be made to provide all areas of the County with effective law enforcement coverage at all times.
- E. The application of what knowledge and skills I possess by virtue of experience and education will be applied in an effort to develop the most professional and competent Sheriff's Department possible.
- F. Every effort will be made to develop a Sheriff's Department you can be proud of without any reservations.

Sincerely,
O. L. RAKE

Reddy's helpful tips for your Home Laundry

PLAN AHEAD

Sort clothes according to type of fabric, color-fastness, degree of soil and garment construction. You'll save both hot water and electricity by doing similar items together. Accumulate a full load before running your washer.

BE SELECTIVE

Choose the cycle that is precisely appropriate for the clothes you are washing. Is a "hot" temperature setting really necessary? Except for heavily soiled items, most loads will come clean in either a cold or warm wash. Look into cold wash detergents.

Use the least amount of detergent that will get your clothes clean — most loads require only an ounce or less! Overloading causes extra strain and wear on your equipment: check the manufacturer's recommendations for load weight. Balance your load by alternating small and large items.

FOR SAFETY SAKE

Be sure control is "off" before reaching into your washer. If one is necessary, use only a heavy duty extension cord. Be sure your washer is grounded. Keep dry cleaning agents, color remover and Fiberglas out of your washer. It's a good idea not to wash clothes containing cleaning fluids in your washer.

Can we learn from rabbits? Yes, says Prof. Robert F. Borgman. He observed that diets high in fats of almost any kind have produced gallstones in rabbits, and the stones disappeared when the animals ate less fat. The fact that rabbits on a low-fat diet didn't develop gallstones seems to point a lesson to human beings.
