

Winters Woman Killed

Mrs. Gary Lange, 21, of Winters, was killed in a one-car accident on US 83 about 3 miles south of Winters shortly after midnight Wednesday of last week.

Her husband, Gary Lynn Lange, 25, was seriously injured, and was still in a coma in a San Angelo hospital the first of this week, according to information.

The wreck was not discovered until about 10 a.m. Thursday. The pickup apparently was northbound, and veered to the left into the ditch, jumped a small creek and collided headon into a concrete bridge embankment on the north side of the creek.

The wrecked pickup was in the creek bed and hidden from traffic by tall weeds and grass. According to information, Robert Pruser of Winters, driving a tractor on the highway, discovered the wreck Thursday morning.

J. C. Hodnett, Justice of the Peace of Precinct 2 at Winters, pronounced Mrs. Lange dead at the scene shortly after 10 a.m.

Lange was taken to North Runnels Hospital for treatment, and then transferred to a San Angelo hospital.

Services for Mrs. Lange were held at 10 a.m. Saturday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church at Rowena. Father Kevin Heyburn, pastor, and Father Andrew Marthaler, former pastor, officiated. Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery, directed by Allen Davis Funeral Home of Ballinger.

Pallbearers were Dennis Halfmann, Clifford Halfmann, Mark Multer, Nelson Lange, Howard Lange, Burnell Jost, Charles Frerich and Billy Halfmann.

Mrs. Lange was born Mary Joan Franke, Sept. 1, 1955, at Ballinger. She was a member of the Catholic Church and a 1974 graduate of St. Joseph's High School at Rowena. She married Gary Lynn Lange June 15, 1974, at Rowena. He is Winters salesman for Mrs. Baird's Bakery.

Survivors include her husband; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Franke of Rowena; three brothers, Michael of Rowena, Jerry and Timmy, both of San Angelo; and five sisters, Kay Halfmann and Mrs. J. A. Lange, both of Rowena, Pat Vancil of Hatchel, Helen Matschek of Ballinger and Monica Keyes of Salem, Va.

FATAL SCENE—Mrs. Gary Lynn Lange was killed when this pickup left the highway and crashed into a bridge abutment on US 83 about three miles south of Winters shortly after midnight last Wednesday night. Lange remained in intensive care in a San Angelo hospital the first of this week, suffering from injuries received in the accident.

Formal Opening Of Wingate Lions' Building Saturday

A building in Wingate which had stood vacant and unused for several years was given a new lease on life Saturday evening, as the Wingate Lions Club and visitors held their formal opening for the new home of the Lions Club.

One hundred four persons attended the ice cream supper which marked the formal opening of the club's home.

Tom Chapman, president of the Wingate Lions, presided at the formal opening, and Lions member Bill Cathey led the opening prayer.

The building was formerly owned by Cullen T. Wheat, and had not been in use for years. Members of the Lions Club donated time and money to completely remodel the building, inside and out, to make a home for the service club, which was organized several months ago. Some furniture and fixtures still are needed to complete furnishing the kitchen, including a cook stove. Wingate Lions Club members expressed thanks to those who donated the furniture and fixtures, and other items used in the remodeling.

Chapman is moving to Wall, and Pat Pritchard was elected president of the service club. Hollis Dean was named first vice president; David Smith, second vice president; and Raymond Lindsey, third vice president.

Among those from out of town attending the formal opening of the new Lions Club building were Judge and Mrs. John Purifoy of Ballinger, and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wood and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bishop of Winters.

Gospel Meeting At Wingate Church

H. L. Gipson of Amarillo will preach during a series of gospel meetings at the Wingate Church of Christ, beginning Sunday, September 5.

Leon Bahlman of San Angelo will lead the singing service.

Services will be held at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday, with evening services to begin at 7:30 during the week.

The public is invited.

Blizzards Meet Clyde Bulldogs Friday Night

The Winters High School Blizzards will do their part to open the 1976 football season Friday night, as they host the Clyde Bulldogs in a non-conference game on Blizzard Field. Kickoff at 8 p.m.

Fresh from two rousing scrimmage sessions, against Comanche two weeks ago and against Brady last Friday, the Blizzards are still smarting from the injuries they received—but Coach Jimmy Stubblefield, after watching the team in action against Brady, was cheerful and expectant.

The Winters squad has lost the services of Tye Rougas and Jeff Russell, first string quarterbacks, but Coach Stubblefield has brought up other signal callers to fill the notch, and expects them to take over without losing stride.

The game with Clyde will be a fairly tough comeout for the Blizzards. Clyde is returning several starters from last season, and the Bulldogs are a mite bigger than the Blizzards. Clyde likes to pass, and has a passer who will take some stopping.

The Bulldogs, in 9-AA, had a 4-6 record for last season.

BRADY SCRIMMAGE

Coach Stubblefield expressed pleasure at the performance of the Blizzards in the scrimmage against Brady last Friday. The Brady Bulldogs are always a tough opponent, even in no-count scrimmage, but were unable to untrack against a determined Blizzard squad. The Bulldogs had made only 46 yards until the third play from the end, when they connected with an aerial. Brady marked up only 2 first downs, while Winters wrapped up 14 firsts, and 3 touchdowns. Brady was unable to cross the goal line until Coach Stubblefield sent in some of the younger boys.

In the scrimmage, the defensive unit looked much better than the previous week, Stubblefield said. In fact, both offense and defense had improved in the week between scrimmage sessions.

In the Brady scrimmage, yard-gained average was better than 6. Jimmy Chapman accounted for 103 yards in 18 carries, 5.7 average; Marvin Moore, 75 yards in 11 tries, for 6.8; and Flent McNeill, 31 yards in 4 for 7.8.

Enterprise Publication Date Changed

After many years as a "Friday" newspaper, The Winters Enterprise this week becomes a "Thursday" publication.

This means that The Enterprise will be datelined Thursday instead of Friday, and subscribers on city and rural delivery routes will receive the paper a day earlier each week. Post office boxholders will also receive their paper on Thursday. Newstand deliveries will remain the same.

The change in publication date has been made as a service to advertisers who wish to get their advertising messages to the public a day earlier, and for the convenience of subscribers.

At present, there will be no change in news and advertising deadlines.

Winters VFW Post Will Build

Ground was broken this week for a new home for Winters Post 9193, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The new building will be located immediately south of the present frame structure which has served as the post home for many years, on US 83 south of Winters.

Ted Meyer, commander of the Winters VFW post, said the building will be a Butler metal structure, 50x90, of harvest gold color.

Sparks Investments of San Angelo will do the construction work, and the building is expected to be completed sometime in October.

Ronnie Onken, a former Winters resident, associated with Sparks Investments, is the designer of the building.

The new VFW post home will have a game room, kitchen, meeting room, and rest rooms. Cost of construction will be $45,000, Meyer said.

Members of the VFW building committee are Ted Meyer, R. C. Kurtz, Donnie Oats, M. L. Guy, Allan Hart and Elby Miller.

GROUNDBREAKING—Members of the building committee of the Winters VFW post, the president of the VFW Auxiliary, and designer of the new post home, break ground for the new $45,000 building. With shovels are

Policy Outlined For Publication of Wedding Stories, Pics

Because of limited space and the costs involved, the following policy is in effect regarding publication of wedding stories and pictures in The Enterprise. This policy will also govern publication of articles on anniversaries and other similar events.

—Wedding information, along with pictures, must be received no later than Friday of the week prior to the week of publication. In most instances, this information and pictures are available prior to the wedding date. It is our desire to publish the story and pictures in the issue immediately following the event.

—Simple details only, and no pictures, will be published in the second issue following the event. No wedding or anniversary story will be published in the third issue following the event.

—Only the main facts of the events will be published, and no pictures will be printed, for weddings or anniversary celebrations which take place out of town, except for immediate former residents, such as students, whose parents still reside in the area. Pictures of nieces, nephews, grandchildren, and other relatives, who have never lived in the area will not be published. Only short notices of the events will be published, and then no later than the second issue following the event.

—We solicit pictures of local weddings and anniversary celebrations, and will hold the original picture for only one week following date of publication. We cannot return pictures by mail unless a stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies the picture.

—For weddings, we will publish only one picture. If an engagement picture is published, there will be no wedding picture published.

BY CHARLISIE POE

By Charlise Poe
Special Correspondent

Before leaving Fairbanks the Reporter-News tour group experienced the unique thrill of riding on the last of the Alaskan Stern-wheel river boats with the Binkley family, three generations of river captains, since the gold rush days.

Captain Jim Binkley is the second generation pilot of the riverboat "Discovery" which makes the daily four-hour tour of the Chena and Tanana (tan-a-now) Rivers. His wife and daughter assist with hostess duties and the couple's three sons also are licensed riverboat pilots.

The 400-mile long Tanana, the famous "Ice Pool" River, is fed by glacier and is milky from silt and rock, but the silt is so fine that it doesn't bother the salmon, so we were told.

At every bend in the river we saw the colorful and adventurous past unfold. There were unique Indian fish wheels turning in the glacial waters, catching the all-important salmon to be dried and smoked for winter food. The salmon is a high source of protein for man as well as the Alaskan dogs.

When we passed the sled dogs in summer quarters they were asleep, but on the return trip they were all up and barking.

We saw the "bush pilots" own airport. These small planes are equipped with balloon tires, called tundra tires, and they can land easily. It seemed, in many instances, that the planes and boats are the only way to reach the camps on the river banks, but there were some cars and campers in evidence. The shore-line was almost solid with trees and those most often seen were white spruce, black spruce, willows and cottonwood.

The famous Cripple Creek, of gold rush fame, was pointed out with the information that at one time the mine had produced about 250 million dollars in gold, and still produces a small amount.

We went ashore and visited the camp of an Athapaskan Indian named Howard Luke. A bachelor, he had lived here for many years with his mother, until her death. He continues to live off the land, hunting, trapping and fishing. He was building a fish wheel with which he will scoop up the migrating salmon.

He had already been fishing successfully for many salmon were drying in the sun. They had been cleaned and split, leaving the fish attached at the tail, so that they could be slung over a rack and dried before being placed in a house to be smoked. The salmon have to be turned every two hours in hot weather to keep them from cooking in the hot sun.

Howard Luke had built a cache, and set it high on peeled logs, in which to store his winter supply of moose meat. He had nailed tin around the posts to further discourage bears and other animals from trying to climb up and destroy the food.

No part of the moose is wasted by the Indians. The brains are used to tan the moose skins and the antlers are used to comb and soften the pelts. Moose skins are used for the inside of gloves and seal skins for the back. They are attached to strings made from tendons and swung around the neck of the wearer.

The shank of the moose is placed high in the trees along the trail by squaws when the hunting is on. In case of necessity, when no game is available, the Indians go look for these shanks and use them to sustain life. The bone marrow and jelly from the hooves are boiled to make a nourishing broth. The fur from the shank is used to make runners for the dog sleds.

There were many Indian

After a train ride to McKinley Park, we were fortunate to have sunshine. This made it possible to see Mt. McKinley, the highest mountain in North America ... called Denali "The High One" by the Indians.

Our disappointment in seeing no bears among the animals on the wildlife tour was overcome by the dogsled demonstration. Rangers have learned that dogsleds are the most practical means of patrolling the parks in the wintertime. Cabins are built at intervals, about a days run apart, to provide shelter for both man and dog.

Anchorage was our last stop before returning home. We saw Earthquake Park where most of the signs of the shattering 1964 earthquake have been erased. After a winding drive along the shore of the scenic Turnagain Arm, we visited the Portage Glacier which discharges icebergs which float across the Glacier Lake. On our return drive to Anchorage we stopped at the Mount Alyeska Resort—but no rides were available on the chairlift to the mountain top for repairs were in progress. However, many shops and eating places engaged our attention.

The highlight of my trip was a visit with my niece and husband, Pam and Dwayne Williams and their three teenagers, Douglas, Kim and Marta. Dwayne is district manager for the Zales Jewelry stores in Alaska.

Pam took me on a drive to Matanuska Valley, the major agricultural area, where potatoes, cabbage, turnips, zucchini and alfalfa are grown. The growing season is only three months but crops develop quickly because of the long daylight hours, 70 lb. cabbage and 30 lb. turnips are not unusual. But tomatoes can only be grown in hothouses.

The Williams have been in Alaska seven years and enjoy salmon fishing in the summer. They have learned they must go when the fish are running. They like to ski in the winter, but have to be flown in to the ski resort.

Anchorage is built around Ship Creek and we stood at the dam to watch the salmon as they came to spawn or jump the fish ladder to streams beyond.

Each day of our trip seemed more interesting than the last!

Control White Grubs NOW!!!

By G. T. Bohmalk
Bi-County Extension Entomologist

Runnels-Tom Green Counties

Now is the time to control white grubs in your yard. Many of the area yards and lawns are affected by this very injurious pest. If you suspect that your lawn has grubs, you should check several places in the yard. To do this, pick an area where the grass has an irregular yellowish patch. If this turf can be easily lifted from the soil, the grubs have probably eaten the roots off of the grass. You can also dig up some of the grass along the margin of the yellowish patch and check for the presence of the white grubs. These pests are seldom distributed evenly in your lawn, therefore, it is necessary to check several different locations. They will usually be found in the top three to six inches of the soil.

The white grub is the immature, larval stage of the May or June beetle. There are several different species which have become rather well adapted to live and flourish in the Texas turf grasses and lawns. These white grubs attack both Bermudagrass and St. Augustine or carpetgrass. On a farm or rural situation, they can also damage gardens, corn, and maize.

The white grub is a large "C" shaped grub with a tan or yellowish head. There are many spines or hairs covering the body. The adult beetle is usually about three-quarters of an inch long, tan to dark brown in color. These May or June beetles emerge from the lawns where they have spent the winter, just under the surface of the soil. In this area they emerge in early spring, usually late April or May. They can be found flying clumsily around bright lights and making a buzzing sound as they fly.

The life cycle of the June beetle or white grub usually takes one year but may take two years in this area. This makes control particularly difficult. The best time to control white grubs is when they are small. The grubs are in a susceptible stage now and the longer we wait to control them, the harder it will become. Insecticidal control is best accomplished by the use of granular insecticide washed thoroughly into the soil. This is an easier method than the use of spray formulations. Two chemicals are being used in this area to give satisfactory control. They are Dursban R and Diazinon R or Spectracide R. The use rate is given on the label. Wash these chemicals into the root-zone where it will be most effective. As with all pesticides, special care is required in their use. Keep all children, pets, and other animals off of treated area until chemical is washed thoroughly into the soil and allowed to dry.

Remember that this type of treatment will not show immediate results. It may take a month before control is noticed. White grubs are not very active in the spring, so now is the best time to control the insect and protect your lawn for this year and next.

CARD OF THANKS

My parents join me in expressing appreciation for kindness shown me during my stay in the hospital and since I have returned home. A special thanks to Dr. Rives and the nurses for the care given me and to friends for the flowers, visits and to Mr. and Mrs. Pat Gray. May God bless each of you. —Pam Hord. 26-1tp.

Health Tip OF THE WEEK

T. A. Smith R. Springer
In an injury emergency — call a doctor if possible, if not, get a trained first-aid. Keep the injured person lying down — cover to keep him warm. Don't move the injured person unless necessary to remove him from further danger. Moving can aggravate the injury — it is better for the untrained person to leave the injured alone.

Grandsons were pallbearers.

Boating Safety Outlined

Boating is a rapidly growing pastime for many families. Just the thought of being outdoors and skimming over that lake with the cool breezes whipping through your hair is enough to whet many an appetite for boating.

That thought will become a reality for many families this spring and summer. But for some of these it will also be a tragic experience, points out County Extension Agent C. T. Parker Jr.

For a fun-filled and safe outing with your family, the agent suggests these safety precautions:

1. Check your boat before launching it. The Texas Water Safety Act requires that all boats carry a Coast Guard approved flotation device for each passenger. Children under 12 are required to wear such a device. Power boats are also required to carry fire extinguishers. Inboards must have backfire flame arresters on the carburetor. Sailboats and power boats require proper lighting. All motorboats more than 16 feet long must carry a whistle, horn or other sounding device.
2. Take no chances with rough weather. Spring storms are especially unpredictable. If caught in a storm, don't life-saving devices, head into the wind and toward the nearest sheltered shore.

KRUEGER'S KOLUMN

By CONG. BOB KRUEGER
21st Texas District

The Mood of the 21st District and American Politics

Over the past several weeks I have had the opportunity to travel widely around our 50,000 square mile Congressional District, conferring with a wide variety of people. From Runnels County to San Antonio, I spoke with soil conservationists, early settlers, school teachers, and cattlemen. In San Antonio, I went door-to-door, a method I have found effective in polling the concerns of my constituents.

In many respects, the results of my informal surveying of the people I met are predictable. People want to see less government interference in their lives, whether it be in the form of price controls on products or regulations which infringe on the privacy and freedoms of the individual. Soil conservationists and cattlemen share the concern that people from the northeast do not adequately understand the nature of the problems they face, whether they be predator control or soil erosion.

The older citizens with whom I conferred expressed a sentiment familiar to us all: inflation is eating away at their livelihood, and their dollars seem to be worth less and less. In San Antonio, people are concerned about our country's energy policy and the need to control government deficit spending more strictly.

In spite of these concerns, complaints, and frustrations, however, our people still remain basically hopeful and optimistic. America has yet to face a challenge which it could not meet, and our people still are willing to rise to the challenges now before us.

Even the various political gyrations which we are now observing may be viewed as an effort to address our problems in a realistic, orderly fashion. No other country on earth approaches its problems in such an open and forthright manner. Although there may be temporary upheavals, and the political parties may verbally assault each other on the basis of their disagreements, there is an underlying sense that these public displays of outrage and temperance are but the flexing of the public's political and ethical muscle. There is something completely American about the purgings that take place within our political system every four years, an observation recently reinforced when Nelson Rockefeller and Barry Goldwater shared the stage at the Republican convention, and Hubert Humphrey and George Wallace shared the stage at the Democrat convention.

It is my judgment that America is in a great time of moral and political revival, and that this new hope and confidence will be reflected in our political system. As we in elected office seek to find solutions to the problems of inflation, spending, and our energy policy, we will be looking back to the American people for their wisdom and encouragement. After the November elections, the President will have a great opportunity to provide leadership and guidance to a people who recognize their problems and are ready to work on them. I look forward to that time with high expectations and confidence that we will be united as a country, in spite of our individual differences, working together for the common good.

The results of my informal survey tell me that the people of the 21st District share that confidence; although they are quick to cite the problems they find with their country and their government, they do so in the spirit of improving things, and with the belief that from constructive criticism come improvements that will help us face the challenges of the future.

Efforts Underway To Organize Campfire Girls

A survey is now underway in Winters to determine the desires of parents of young girls with regards to organization of a unit of Campfire Girls.

The organization, if formed, would fill the vacancy created by discontinuance of the Girl Scout program locally, it was learned.

A survey form has been distributed to parents of young girls in the community to find out if interest is high enough to form a Campfire Girls unit, and those making the survey have asked that all parents of young girls complete the forms as indicated.

At least 100 girls are needed to sign up for Campfire Girls for the organization to succeed, it was stated.

Registration with Campfire Girls is only $3 per girl, with a family rate of one-half price for all over three members in the same family, it was stated. Charter for a Campfire unit would be only $25 for the entire unit, plus 48 cents per registered person for insurance.

Ballinger Residents In Accident

Three Ballinger women received slight injuries in a two-car accident Friday morning at the intersection of US 83 and FM 53 on the south side of Winters. Two residents of Coleman involved in the accident were treated and released.

Mrs. Joe Hambricht, Mrs. Jim Hambricht, and Mrs. Wade Carter were passengers in a northbound car on US 83, when it collided with a westbound car on FM 53. Mr. and Mrs. Finis Bryan of Coleman were in the westbound car.

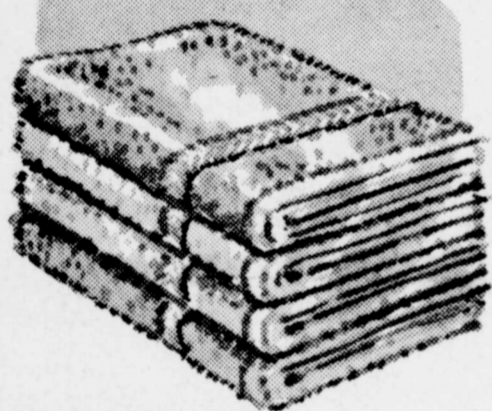

The three Ballinger women were taken by Spill ambulance to North Rannels Hospital, and then transferred to Ballinger Memorial Hospital.

Winters Chief of Police Luther (Doc) Smith, who investigated the accident, which occurred a few minutes after 9 a.m. Friday, said none of the Ballinger women was injured seriously.

AROUND THE 6-AA FOOTBALL LOOP

Getting used to the new UIL district assignments will be a little difficult this year, with some old friends and faces missing, and newcomers to the conference making their debut.

The new District 6-AA lineup includes Winters, Colorado City, Stamford, Coahoma, Ballinger, Wylie and Merkel.

Winters, Ballinger, Stamford and Coahoma are the only teams of the old so-called "Little Southwest Conference" remaining; Hamlin, Anson, and Haskell have been reassigned, although some of 6-AA's teams will meet some of them in non-conference games.

6-AAers will open the season this Friday night, in non-conference games. It'll be a prelude to a tough 10-week season.
