County Faces Loss of Ambulance Service

Unless the Runnels County Commissioners' Court takes some kind of action, or some other local governmental entity steps in to assume responsibility, the whole of Runnels County stands to be without any type of ambulance service, emergency or otherwise, after June 1.

Two funeral homes in the county, who have been operating ambulance service, have formally announced that they will discontinue offering ambulance service effective June 1, 1977.

Spokesmen for the two funeral homes, Ted Meyer of Spill Funeral Home of Winters and Darrell Rains of Davis-Rains-Seale Funeral Home of Ballinger, met with the Commissioners' Court Tuesday morning and announced plans to discontinue ambulance service June 1. In a prepared statement, the funeral home representatives told the Court, "Due to past regulations and forthcoming rules set forth by the Federal Wage and Hour Board, and the increased personnel training being requested by regional Councils of Government (in compliance with State and Federal rules), along with the necessary updating of our emergency equipment and ambulances, we find that it has become necessary for the funeral homes of Runnels County, Spill Funeral Home of Winters and Davis-Rains-Seale Funeral Home of Ballinger, to discontinue offering ambulance service effective June 1, 1977."

It was recommended that the County assume responsibility for ambulance service for the people of the county, in one of several ways: Assign the ambulances to the two hospitals in the county, with the County to assist in financing the program; turn the service over to volunteer fire departments, with the County assuming financial responsibility; organize a volunteer ambulance service outside the hospitals and fire departments.

Ted Meyer of Spill Funeral Home of Winters told the commissioners they would "waste time expecting private companies to provide ambulance service," because of the requirements and huge expense, and low income. He said his company has been realizing a loss of up to $10,000 per year providing ambulance service for the people of Winters and the area.

The announcement and proposals practically laid the problem of ambulance service in the laps of the Commissioners' Court, according to observers.

Reaction by the four County Commissioners was immediate and wary. They indicated that they recognized the problem, and also that they had a responsibility to at least study the situation. Commissioner

Charles Bradshaw pointed out that it had been known for some time that the ambulance service problem eventually would be handed to the county to solve, but that nothing had been done. "We owe it to the people" of the county to do all that can be done to provide ambulance service.

Commissioner David Carroll said that the County "must protect and serve the people." Commissioners Pat Pritchard and Sallings expressed the same viewpoint.

Runnels County Judge John Purifoy said he thought "the funeral homes are just passing the buck to the County," and to expect the County to assume the responsibility was just "a bunch of foolishness."

Ted Meyer recommended that some type of cooperative effort between the county and the hospitals be explored. He said that if the ambulance service could be operated in conjunction with the hospitals, trained personnel already associated with the hospitals would be available, in addition to

AT COURT MEETING—Darrell Rains of Ballinger, and Ted Meyer of Winters, right, met with Runnels

County Commissioners Tuesday morning and announced plans made by their respective companies to discontinue ambulance service, effective June 1.

RR Decision Months Away

It will be about the middle of June before a decision is made on the application by Missouri Pacific Railroad to abandon the rail line of Abilene Southern Railway from Winters to Abilene. And after that, it probably will be many months before a final decision is made, it was learned this week.

Following the Winters hearings in mid-February, the applicants and protestants were given six weeks in which to submit written briefs to the Administrative Law Judge representing the Interstate Commerce Commission. Judge Robert Joyner was the presiding Law Judge for the hearing. The written briefs were submitted to the ICC April 4, it was understood, and it was learned that a decision would be announced within 120 days from that date.

Following announcement of the decision, expected in mid-June, both applicants and protestants will have opportunity for appeal, which will likely be the case, sources said.

The railroad company had applied for permission to abandon 39 miles of track from Winters to Abilene, and in later applications, applied for permission to operate 7.31 miles of the track which lies within an industrial area in Abilene.

The first session of the hearing on the application for abandonment was held last December, and then continued until February 15.

In arguments during the two sessions of the public hearing, the railroad claimed losses of $25,198 in 1974, $46,737 in 1976, and earnings of $1,481 during the first six months of 1976.

Protestants in the case, in summary, stated that one local shipper, Alderman-Cave Milling & Grain Co., has increased usage during the past three years; agricultural producers in the area would suffer serious economic loss if the railroad were abandoned; the Abilene & Southern Railway had lost substantial outbound tonnage of wheat and milo due to its failure to provide cars for loading at harvest time; and had lost tonnage by refusal to handle jumbo hopper cars.

PAINTERS—City Hall employees took it upon themselves to do the work of redecorating the business offices last week. When the photographer arrived, this "crew" had about completed the job of painting the walls, but willingly struck a pose for the camera. On the left, with the paint roller, is Mrs. E. Z. Moore. On the ladder with the brush is Mrs.

Walker Tatum, while Mrs. Alan Hart holds the paint pan. On the right is City Secretary Buford Baldwin, apparently points out a spot missed by the painters.

History Group To Tour

The August Havalak farm will be the last stop on a tour of the Spring Hill Community four miles southwest of Ballinger leaving the courthouse Sunday April 17 at 2 p.m.

Sponsored by the Runnels County Historical Commission, the tour will be led by Neuman Smith and Arnold Allcorn. All those interested in history are invited to attend.

Historic spots to be visited are an old Spring Hill farm, the W. C. "Boss" Wheelless barn and the Havalak farm where a number of bird houses made by Mr. Havalak are still on display. The blacksmith shop has an old world look with its many tools brought from Czechoslovakia more than one hundred years ago.

Wheelless was the earliest citizen to come to the Spring Hill area. Among the next settlers were the Clampits, Allisons, Sanduskys and the August Vogelsang family.

The first Spring Hill school was built in 1904 on the Vogelsang farm adjoining the Wheelless farm. These and many more historic facts will be related on the tour.

Toilet Training

Toilet training—a parental task dreaded by some and started too early by others—can cause family tension that could be avoided by help, patience and understanding, a family education specialist says.

"Problems are especially prone to occur when parents expect too much too soon of their youngsters.

"Children are not little adults—it takes time and maturity of certain muscles and their nervous system before children can gain control over their bowels or bladder," Mrs. Ilene Miller explains.

"To lighten the task of toilet training, two don'ts are recommended: don't start toilet training your child too soon, and don't take 'successes' or 'failures' too seriously.

"Instead, remain as relaxed and understanding as possible.

"Toilet training is another normal and important step in a youngster's development. He needs his parents' help and patience," she said.

Mrs. Miller is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Age Two for 'Starters'
Toilet training generally should not be attempted before a child's second birthday, the specialist said.

By age two, the child can walk by himself, has developed some regularity in bowel movements and can communicate his need to go to the toilet.

Child-Size Equipment Best
To facilitate toilet training, use child-size equipment.

A potty chair lets the child get on and off by himself and it lets a youngster's feet rest firmly on the floor.

If you plan to use a potty seat which fastens to a standard size toilet, provide a stool so the child will be able to reach the seat—and sit—comfortably.

Many families find that a sturdy stepping stool also helps their young sons reach the toilets easily.

Training Pants 'N Praise Help

Allowing a child to wear training pants rather than diapers encourages him to help himself. It is much easier to get one's training pants on and off when going to the bathroom.

Consistently praising the child for his successes and ignoring his failures promotes success, too, Mrs. Miller said.

Be accepting of an "accident." No matter how hard a child tries, there will be times when he will wet or dirty his clothing. Wet pants are likely to occur if a youngster gets excited, tired, ill or is overly engrossed in play, she explained.

"Also, help your youngster clean up after accidents rather than scolding or punishing him. Constantly shaming a child for wetting or dirtying himself will only make him feel inadequate and guilty.

"It will take time, muscle growth and practice before a child is completely toilet trained," the specialist added.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our thanks to everyone for their many gifts and prayers during our time of misfortune and sorrow. A special thanks to Ted Meyer and Dr. Rives and to Larry and Mona White for letting us stay in their home. We have received many anonymous gifts of money, clothes, food, and linens and would like to say thank you to everyone who sent these. God bless every one who has helped us during this trying time.

The loved ones of Leonard H. Alger and the Elby Miller family.

Encourage children to help with housework by designing hand "duster puppets" from old socks. Draw faces on several with marking pens. When dusting is done, the puppet can be laundered easily in detergent or soap suds, says Lynn Bourland, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Miss McCammon and Mr. Hord Will Marry

Miss Catherine McCammon, daughter of Lorena Pinson and the late V. J. McCammon, is engaged to Billy Ray Hord, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Hord of Winters.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Marble Falls High School. She attended the University of Texas at Austin and received a B.S. degree in elementary education from Tarleton State University.

Her fiance graduated from Winters High School. He is a candidate for December graduation from Tarleton State University where he will receive a B.S. degree in agriculture education. He is a member of Alpha Zeta.

A June 3 wedding is planned in Sherwood Baptist Church in Marble Falls.

Although the Declaration of Independence was signed on July 4, 1776, it did not reach the three existing New York newspapers at that time until July 11. The news did not reach the Boston newspapers until two weeks after the signing, July 18, 1776.

Ride a bicycle or walk once in awhile—it's low cost or no-cost transportation, and it's good for you, suggests Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Now Your Electric Service Bill Gives You Even More Information"

Fuel Adjustment Cost Will be Shown As A Separate Item.

The fuel charge you have been paying is now shown as a separate item on your bill from WTU. The money from this charge is used for ONLY ONE PURPOSE— TO PAY THE INCREASED PRICE OF FUELS needed to produce your electricity. None of this money is used for profits or for any other expenses.

Your electric service bill will be similar to the one shown here with base rate and fuel cost charges included among the separately listed items. We've prepared a line-by-line guide to explain these items in your bill.

If you need more detailed information, please contact your local WTU office.

WEST TEXAS UTILITIES COMPANY
An Equal Opportunity Employer

WTU
A Member of The Central and South West System

LINE ONE is the base rate portion of the monthly bill. It also shows amount of kilowatt hours used.

LINE TWO shows the fuel adjustment separately. The fuel adjustment has been part of the rate since 1959, but until now has been included as part of the base rate on your bill. The six-digit number shown (.017076) is the fuel adjustment factor. This factor reflects the difference between the price of fuel this month and the price in 1959.

This adjustment factor is then multiplied by the number of kilowatt hours used by you, the individual customer.
Example: .017076 x 562 = $9.60

LINE THREE shows any charges for other electric services, which on this bill includes a Guard-Lite.

LINE FOUR shows the amount of SALES TAX remitted to the STATE.

LINE FIVE indicates your total bill for electric service.

RARE SIGHT—This is not a tub in a public bath house, a sight familiar in early days, but is doing duty as a "salad bar" in the big new dining room of the Burger Hut on the Coleman highway. Bobby Mayo, owner of the Burger Hut, has decorated the new dining room with odds and ends from bygone eras—old pictures, papers, old furniture and booths, and other antique items. The doors, and two front windows of the new addition, originally were the double doors of the Main Drug Store, and two booths in the dining room were removed when Main Drug was remodeled many years ago. Mayo will celebrate his fifth anniversary at the Burger Hut with an open house Friday afternoon.

Bias Design In Fashion

Bias designs are "attention getters"—in garments or in fashion details, but there are strict rules for making them "work," Marlene Odle, a clothing specialist, says.

Bias plaids generally give the feeling of added width—but a bias or diagonal stripe can add width or height, depending on the width of the stripes. Homesewers should consider bias effect and placement carefully to ensure most flattering appearance, the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, added.

Combined with solid colors on a shirt, a bias design on a front band and pockets or yokes provides interesting accent details and eliminates matching.

However, too many bias garments in an ensemble give an unsettling effect, and the fabric design is lost in the confusion.

One common bias look is a chevron. This is stripes or prominent lines in plaids that form angles at seamlines. Garment pieces may be cut on the bias to form chevrons. Chevrons on a four-gored skirt pointing down in the front and back give the feeling of added width to the hipline. For many figure types, such as large hips, chevrons that point up at center front and back are more slenderizing, the specialist said.

To form chevrons on a four-gored skirt, place the pattern pieces on a single thickness of fabric. Match the notches on a common line. For perfect matching, draw lines on your pattern piece that correspond to the fabric design line. Then match the connecting pattern piece in like manner.

Slip baste the pieces together by turning one side of the seam down along the seam allowance. Baste from the top by hand catching a few threads at a time. Open the fabric and machine stitch the seam allowance. Press open.

Tenderized Meat

All meat tenderizers have been cleared for use in foods, after lengthy animal toxicity studies and clinical testing by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration, Mrs. Mary Sweeten, foods and nutrition specialist, says.

"Meat tenderizers are enzyme preparations from plant, bacteria or fungus which break down the muscle fibers. The tenderizers, of which papaya is one source, work best in a mildly acid medium, but are destroyed at cooking temperatures.

"In the strong acid content of the stomach, the remaining enzyme from the tenderizer would be destroyed, and there is no evidence that these tenderizers remain in the intestine," she explained.

People have never had problems eating the natural enzyme which is also found in figs, pineapple and papaya, the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, pointed out.

Some tenderizing treatments are applied before meat is sold, while others are accomplished at home.

"One method of tenderizing is by mechanical treatment to cut or break connective tissues and muscle fibers. Before sale, thin steaks such as sirloin tip or round steak, may be put through a machine that scores the surface. The meat is then sold as cube steak, 'minute' steak or 'sandwich' steak. At home, round and flank steak can be made more tender by pounding them with a mallet or edge of plate.

"The other method of tenderizing meat is by treatment with liquid or powdered tenderizers. Meat is frequently treated with liquid tenderizer before sale. The tenderizer may be injected into the vascular system of the animal before slaughter and sold under a trade name. Or powdered meat tenderizers may be used at home," she said.

Green Up Your Lawn

With the spring season at hand, a few maintenance practices can get your lawn off to a good start.

A turfgrass specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service suggests three operations for a greener, better looking lawn—scalping, fertilizing and applying a weed killer.

"Scalping a lawn serves to revitalize it and promote spring and summer plant growth," points out Dr. Richard Duple.

"Begin the operation by lowering the blade of your lawnmower one-half inch below the normal setting. Then mow the lawn in two directions that are at right angles to each other. Remove the clippings after each mowing."

Duple also recommends keeping the lawnmower blade lowered until mid-summer.

"After scalping the lawn, apply a complete fertilizer (one containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium) to promote leaf and root growth," advises the Texas A&M University System specialist. "Use one pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn area. This is equal to 12 pounds of an 8-8-8 fertilizer or 8 pounds of a 12-4-8 fertilizer. Repeat the application in the fall."

For a dark green lawn, Duple suggests applying nitrogen every 60 days at the rate of one pound to 1,000 square feet. Monthly applications of iron chelate or iron sulfate during the spring and summer promote a healthy color in St. Augustine grass lawns.

"To keep crabgrass or other unsightly weeds from appearing, apply a pre-emergence herbicide (weed killer) containing benefin, dacthal or bensulide early in the spring," says Duple. "Combinations of herbicides with fertilizers are available and convenient to use but should only be used according to instructions on the label.

Deadline For Filing Sales Tax Reports

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has urged Texas retail merchants and other sales tax permit holders to put a big red circle around April 30 on their calendars.

That's the deadline for filing quarterly sales tax reports with the State Comptroller's Office.

"Failure to meet that deadline can result in penalties for the sales tax permit holder and a lot of additional work for my office," Bullock said.

Bullock urged sales tax permit holders to contact the nearest Comptroller's Field Office or call his toll-free tax information number, 1-800-252-5555 if they have any question about their returns.

Some 172,000 businesses file their sales tax reports on a quarterly basis, Bullock said.

Krueger's Kolumn

By Cong. Bob Krueger
71st Texas District

"New Legislation"

Within the past two weeks, I have introduced two new pieces of legislation which I think demonstrate the proper role of the federal government in the affairs of its citizens.

The first bill, the Agricultural Research Act of 1977, authorizes $838 million for agricultural research in 1978. I have long been a supporter of a federal commitment to agricultural research, and the government's efforts in fighting various forms of animal disease are testimony to the fact that agricultural research demonstrates a very good return on an invested dollar. An individual farmer or rancher lacks the necessary resources to pursue any form of agricultural research on a large scale; this is something that only the federal government is capable of doing because of its resources and ability to co-ordinate various research efforts around the country. During my four state tour of agricultural research facilities last fall, I saw first hand the need for a co-ordinated approach to solving the various problems that farmers and ranchers face.

A particularly encouraging aspect of the Agriculture Research Act is the fact that it commits sizeable resources to the research into brucellosis, a disease which affects cattle. Texas has one of the highest rates of brucellosis, and a federal commitment to solving this problem will be welcomed by everyone in the cattle business. The legislation has received strong support thus far, including that of the Secretary of Agriculture.

The second bill which I introduced recently is called the "Camp Safety Incentive Act." Although it may not be immediately evident how such a piece of legislation may be related to the question of agricultural research, I think it does demonstrate the way that the government should go about protecting the best interests of its people. The bill which I have introduced, in co-sponsorship with Congressman Anderson of Illinois, provides financial incentives to state governments to establish camp safety programs. The alternative legislation currently before the Congress calls for a system of regulations and inspections, which alone would cost millions of dollars a year. What my bill attempts to do is to apply money directly to the problem, encouraging states to act positively in the field of camp safety, rather than set up elaborate procedures for the government to shut down camps which are not in compliance with rules which they have not been encouraged to follow.

The accident rate at camps is roughly one-fifth that in schools. Such a statistic does not indicate any overwhelming need to draw the government further into regulating the lives of its citizenry.

These two bills, the Agriculture Research Act and the Camp Safety Incentive Act, place the role of the federal government in the proper perspective. In the case of massive research, where individual citizens cannot accomplish the desired goal on their own, government action is warranted. In the case of the Camp Safety Incentive Act, it is more appropriate to leave the solution to this problem to the individuals, or at least to the lower levels of government, as the bill I am offering does.

Flent McNeill Broke HH Record At Ballinger

Flent McNeill, Winters High School athlete, recorded the fastest time in the area for the 120-yard high hurdles with 14.1 time, and came back to run the intermediate hurdles in 40.5 for first place, at the invitational track meet in Ballinger Saturday.

The 14.1 time for McNeill's high hurdle running was a new Ballinger meet record.

Winters athletes totaled 22 points in Saturday's track and field action at Ballinger. Lake View was tops with 97 points.

Poe's Corner

BY CHARLISIE POE

Although it has been 20 years since J.U. Jernigan rescued five-year-old Richard Ray (Ricky) Simpson from drowning, he has a vivid recollection of the accident and has written down some of the details. He said that so many different stories had been circulated that he wanted people to know the true facts of how it happened.

Jernigan, a retired barber, is now 87 years old, blind and almost deaf. He has a lot of time to think and says saving the little boy was one good thing he did in his lifetime.

On Aug. 27, 1957, Jernigan and Charlie Gray had just arrived at the old Winters lake, two miles north of town, to start fishing. They had set their tackle bucket down when they noticed a boat out on the lake in trouble. They saw a man fall out of the little end of the boat and as it tilted it began filling with water. A large man and little boy were in the back of the boat and it started sinking. When it capsized the men got on each side of the boy and began swimming. It was about 5:15 p.m. Jernigan recalls saying to Gray, "They'll bring the boy out if they are good swimmers."

"Yes, but they're pretty far out—about 150 yards," Gray answered.

"The two men swam maybe 20 yards, carrying the boy between them before going down," Jernigan recalled. "When they hollered for help, I told Gray, who had a bad heart, I was going to try to save the boy."

Jernigan took off his shoes and dived into the water. When he was about 15 feet out one of the men turned the boy loose and shoved himself about ten feet away and went under. That was the last time Jernigan saw him. He got about half way out and the other man went under, but Jernigan could still see the boy's head.

He had difficulty rescuing the child as the last victim was trying to hold him up in the water with his legs.

When Jernigan pulled Ricky out of the water he was strangled and coughing. He tried to catch Ricky by the hair, but he had a fresh haircut and this was impossible. He held him with one hand and swam until he gave out. He then pulled Ricky over to him and told him to get on his back. Ricky was crying and grabbed Jernigan so tightly around the neck that he pulled him under, but he managed to keep from strangling. When he came up he told Ricky to catch him by the collar, which he did, but in his fright the boy kept climbing higher and higher until he was on Jernigan's head and pushed him under again.

Jernigan thought he would never make it, but he knew he had to, there was no one who could help—it was still a long way to the bank. If he went in a straight line he would have to swim all the way, so he turned to the west where the water was more shallow. Finally, he was able to touch mud with one foot and when he could tread mud with both feet he relaxed. The water was up to his chin, and Ricky climbed on top of his head still coughing and crying. Jernigan waded out to the bank.

In the meantime, Gray had talked to the three small boys on the bank who said the men were their fathers and they wanted to swim out to help them. Gray persuaded them they would only be drowned as they were very small. They boys were Charles, 11, and Kye, 9, both sons of Benjamin Nitsch and Andy, son of Emmett Simpson.

Jernigan knew all of them as he had cut their hair many times and he had been the one that cut Ricky's hair just two weeks before. They begged Jernigan to go back after their dads, but he said "I'm given out, but we'll get help right away."

"Get my keys out of the fishing tackle bucket, where I left them with my pocket knife," Jernigan told Gray. "Drive to that house nearest the lake and tell them to call the firemen."

Gray returned with Lee Ned Sellers, who lived at the lake, and he pulled Sompson out. The firemen were soon there and A.B. Spill and Rev. Henry Flathmann got Nitsch.

For more than an hour, volunteers applied artificial respiration and a resuscitator to the unconscious men, bit to no avail.

"Nitsch was under water about 30 minutes and Simpson about 15 or 20 minutes," Sheriff Don Atkins said.

"If they could have just reached Nitsch first, since he was the last to go under," said Jernigan, "Maybe they could have saved him." Also if the men could have had time to remove their shoes, they could have stayed afloat longer, Jernigan added.

In just a little while the lake was surrounded by carloads of spectators and someone took the boys home.

Jernigan also went home to rest. He had leg cramps all night and his back hurt him. When he had time to think it over, he wondered how he ever made it at all. Three years before he had broken his back at that same lake, after he fell about 20 feet, and had to be picked up and carried to the hospital. He had been swimming the year before at Lake Fort Phantom and almost drowned while putting out a trotline. He had been a good swimmer in his youth, but this was the first time had swam that far in 20 years.

While the firemen were trying to revive the drowning victims, a bystander said, "Did you swim all the way out there and back?"

"I sure did," Jernigan replied.

"I've been told the water was not over anyone's head out there anywhere," the man replied.

A fireman who had just come out of the water heard the remark. "If you don't think it's over your head, just go out there, it is over anyone's head, right at the edge or anywhere," he told him.

Jernigan said the last time he saw Ricky was 11 years ago. He was working in a Winters grocery store. He asked Ricky if he knew him and he said, "I sure do, you're the man who saved my life."

Nitsch, 38, was a farmer and welder of this area, while Simpson, 46, father of five children, was a longtime employee of Sims Oil Company.

Mrs. Nitsch has remained in Winters and has remarried. Her two sons are married and live elsewhere.

Mrs. Simpson continues to work at the Dry Division of Wallace Murray Manufacturing Company, where she has been employed for nearly 16 years.

Ricky is now living in Hermleigh and is employed by Furr's Grocery Store in Snyder. He and Brenda Evans, a Midland girl, have been married for four years, said Mrs. Simpson.

Mrs. Simpson said that no one ever mentions the tragedy anymore and her two boys were so small she doubts if they remember it, but Jernigan who lives with his wife at 205 Parsonage in the Housing Authority apartments lives in his memories of other years.

Mr. Jernigan was born in Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 14, 1889, and his parents moved to Oakall, Burnett County, when he was a small child. He lived in Baird when his first wife died and left him with a son, Gilbert, who lives at Cross Plains. He had two children and four grandchildren.

Jernigan was married to Mabel Anderson in 1937 at Baird, where he was night marshal for about two years.

The Jernigans moved to Winters in 1950, where he barbered until his retirement. They have a daughter, Betty, who is married to Jim Shook. They live in Wharton and have two small daughters.

WHAT WILL YOU NEED TO KEEP THE WHEELS OF PROGRESS TURNING IN YOUR COMMUNITY?

Communities that have built a strong, healthy economy know what they must have to keep the wheels of progress turning in the years ahead. Although each community is different, the basic requirements will be the same: A labor force known for its productivity. Municipal water supplies that can outlast a drought. A good transportation network. Diversification of industry, just to be on safer ground. Cultural and recreational attractions. Favorable tax structures. Strong leadership.

And energy to power assembly lines. Energy to heat, cool, process foods, lift, spin, dry, pump, drill, press, shape, compute or to use however industry needs it to create products that create jobs.

Meet the Changing Times.

The cheap and abundant energy available here in years past is one reason this area emerged from the recent recessions with one of the strongest economies you'll find in the nation. Few others have a business outlook as optimistic or an employment level as high.

The days of cheap energy are gone, of course. The cost of producing and distributing energy of almost every type has increased dramatically. This, with the demand that exists for energy, has forced a sharp increase in the prices that you and people everywhere are having to pay for it.

But the availability of an abundance of energy to keep the wheels of progress turning in this area still holds true.

You Can Have What You Need.

Natural gas, for example. Lone Star's pipeline system now extends into basins that contain 50% of the remaining onshore gas reserves in the United States. And this puts us in an excellent position to buy enough new gas reserves to last all of our customers for many decades.

Securing these reserves will be essential to the future of the communities served by Lone Star. Because gas not only meets your energy requirements directly, but indirectly as the primary fuel for generating most of the electric power you use.

The new gas will cost more, and Lone Star will have to recover the actual cost of it on a timely basis. A bargain, even so? Yes. Because these long-term supplies will help your community build job security through business growth.

And that's a bargain in anybody's economy.

Take 'Behavior Guidelines' Shopping With Children

Young children can behave well in public with patient, encouraging guidance of their parents, but it takes time—and repeated experiences—for a youngster to learn how he is expected to behave in different places and situations, Mrs. Ilene Miller, a family life education specialist, says.

To prevent frayed nerves, threats, tears or temper tantrums during shopping, she suggests several guidelines that go beyond telling a child to "be good."

Mrs. Miller is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

She says that a "be good" type of guidance does not tell the child much.

"A youngster needs to know what he can do—and when he has behaved appropriately.

"First, try to plan shopping trips for a time when the child is not tired or hungry," she advised.

"Remind your child before you enter the store what is expected of him. For example, explain that there is to be no running up and down the aisles, that he is to sit in the cart or help you push the cart while you are in the grocery store.

"Also, give the child a job while you are shopping. For instance, your youngster could look for some familiar items such as milk, eggs or apples as both of you make your rounds up and down the store aisles."

On misbehavior, Mrs. Miller cautioned against pleading, threatening or bribing tactics.

"If your youngster runs off, drops or breaks something, simply pick the child up and calmly put him in the cart or take his hand and guide him in the direction you want to go. It is not necessary to plead with the child. Just take the initiative and move the child without losing your temper.

"Also, instead of bribing your little one with a soft drink, candy or some other sweet, be firm. Without yelling, let your child know in a firm, quiet voice that he is not going to get chewing gum, candy or other such items.

"Finally, tell your child you will have to take him to the car or take him home if he continues to misbehave—then follow through with your promise. It may be inconvenient, but the experience will probably teach your child a very valuable lesson. He will learn quickly that when his parents say something, they mean it."

Mrs. Miller said repeated experiences, praise and encouragement—and consistent parental behavior—are the keys to helping children learn appropriate behavior in public.

Krueger Urges Improved Auto Research Efforts

Congressman Bob Krueger of Texas has endorsed federally-supported efforts to develop a clean and efficient alternative to the present internal combustion engine in automobiles.

Krueger predicted prompt Congressional approval of the "Automotive Transport Research and Development Act of 1977," which he has introduced in co-sponsorship with other Members of Congress. President Carter has indicated he will sign the measure.

The legislation establishes a five-year program to research, develop, and demonstrate economically feasible engines and advanced ground propulsion systems that would improve energy efficiency, meet environmental and safety standards, and reduce American dependence on foreign oil.

"I have consistently worked to reduce our dependence on foreign sources of energy," the Texas Congressman said. "Since existing internal combustion engines used in most cars today consume more than forty percent of all oil used in the United States, research in this area is certainly needed.

"The bill is basically an energy conservation measure," Krueger continued. "To this date, little work has been done on the development of engines that could meet both fuel economy and air quality standards."

The legislation was referred to the House Science and Technology Committee, of which Krueger is a Member.

It will take twice the normal annual flow of the Colorado River to fill Lake Powell.

extra personnel. Several other counties and cities are operating under this system, he said, with the county underwriting the cost of operation over and above the ambulance fee charges made.

Meyer said his company makes about 150 ambulance calls per year, and the total charges for those calls does not meet expenses. He said charges are $15 within the city, and $20 outside the city, plus so much per mile. Thus, even with an increase in call charges, it would be practically impossible for private enterprise to succeed, and meet all present and expected regulations surrounding the ambulance service field.

Meyer also pointed out that Spill's present equipment is adequate at this time, but when "trade-in time comes, it must be replaced with approved equipment."

In the prepared statement, the two funeral homes told the Commissioners' Court: "We are two of the very few funeral homes in the state (which) have been able to continue to offer ambulance service. It is now evident and will be necessary for our county government to seek a solution to provide this vital service to the citizens of Runnels County the way they would do any need that is this vital.

"We find that ambulance service is no longer compatible with the funeral service and the public now anticipates that well-trained personnel will handle any emergency situation and they expect efficient ambulance service whenever the need occurs. We regret that this decision has been forced upon us but we have faith that our County Judge and County Commissioners will respond to see that proper equipment and trained technicians are provided for the citizens of our county.

"We assure you that the management and personnel of Spill Funeral Home and Davis-Rains-Seale Funeral Home will in any way assist our elected officials in working out a satisfactory solution to this vital problem in our area."

Commissioners Tuesday indicated that probably a committee, made up of commissioners, funeral home personnel, and perhaps others, would be appointed to study the situation and arrive at some kind of recommendation for solution.

Krueger Urges Incentives For Camp Safety

Congressman Bob Krueger of Texas has called on the House to adopt legislation which would provide financial incentives for states to set up youth camp safety programs.

Krueger is cosponsoring the "Camp Safety Incentive Act" as an alternative to bills now pending before Congress that would impose federal enforcement on states failing to establish federally approved camp safety programs.

The legislation would provide $22.5 million in grants over a three year period to assist states in setting up camp safety programs. States would not be required to establish such programs, however.

The bill calls for providing the same amount of money as the proposal which would focus on camp inspections. "The financial incentive approach," Krueger said, "would provide money directly where it is most needed: to states establishing safety programs for youth camps. The regulatory approach could cost up to six million dollars a year merely to inspect the camps."

Krueger said that statistics do not indicate that costly regulation is warranted, noting that the injury rate in camps is one-fifth that in schools.

"What is worse," Krueger said, "is that we may find ourselves in the ironic situation of producing a situation that is actually more dangerous to some children than if there were no federal support of camp safety. Camps closed down by government inspectors may force many children to remain in the inner city, where safety conditions may actually be worse."

The Camp Safety Incentive Act was offered by John Anderson of Illinois last year in the House, but was defeated by six votes.

Magnesium Essential For Cells

Magnesium—essential for all living cells and controlled by the kidneys—serves as a catalyst for many biologic reactions, Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist says.

"The recommended daily dietary allowance of magnesium is 400 milligrams for men and 300 milligrams for women. During pregnancy and lactation the need increases to 450 milligrams," she added.

Miss Haggard is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Dairy products furnish about 22 percent of the total intake of magnesium in the United States. Another 18 percent comes from flour and cereal products, the specialist said.

"Other good sources of magnesium are dry beans and peas, soybeans, nuts and green leaf vegetables,"

Consumer Food News

Many Texas grocery markets are offering specials on beef—as prices remain stable-to-slightly higher in general, Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, reports.

Most-often featured cuts—which offer a savings—are chuck roasts and steaks, round, sirloin, rib and T-bone steaks, boneless roasts and ground beef, she said.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Pork specials also are available—with emphasis on loin roasts, quarter-loins cut into chops, Boston butt roasts, smoked picnics, bacon, sausage and liver.

At poultry counters, turkey prices are stable and fryer chickens are in good supply—offering one of the best protein choices, price-wise, Mrs. Clyatt said.

She advised consumers to buy fryers now—if home freezer space is available—for the cookout season later.

At fresh vegetable counters, potato prices are relatively low—while carrots, broccoli, mustard, collards, head lettuce and turnips and greens have economical prices. Onions, however, show a price increase due to a reduced supply.

At fruit counters, grapefruit and oranges are the highlight—with medium-to-small sizes the lower priced. Also, pineapples are "specialized" at some markets.

Along grocery market aisles, features are scattered, but they generally include budget buys on canned green beans, sauerkraut, corn and tomato products. Most commonly repeated items in advertisements are tuna fish, saltine crackers, pasta products, fruit cocktail and pears.

Frozen food features show pot pies in the spotlight.

Consumer watchwords: In buying bacon, consumers may find a new "back window" on packages—or a full slice of bacon in a "front window"—to meet required packaging standards, which demand all bacon packages have a transparent area at Cranberry juice concentrate probably will be used as a replacement for red dyes in food colorings. It gives a satisfactory coloring for pie fillings, says Mrs. Sally Coble, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Functionality" is the latest key work from the furniture industry, reports Mrs. Pat Seaman, area housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Making a habit of using a sewing machine "doodle pad" will save sewing time by insuring that the machine is threaded and adjusted properly before beginning to sew.
