Referendum To Sell Light Plant Nov. 8

A referendum in which voters of Winters will be given an opportunity to express their desires concerning sale of the Winters Municipal Light Plant will be held Nov. 8.

Winters City Council Monday night said that date—general election date—is the earliest time allowed for such voting, under provisions of the State Election Code. Had the election been called no later than July 13, it was explained, it could have been held August 13, the second Saturday in August.

The Council informed news media Monday night that all information regarding financial condition, and future operation of the light plant, would be released within the next few weeks so voters could be informed before election date.

The city has been negotiating with West Texas Utilities Co. for several months, with the prospect of selling the generating plant and distribution system to that utility company. Several proposals and counter-proposals have been made, it was understood, but no concrete offers have been given or received. Final sale price suggested and purchase price offered have not been released, but will be published within the near future, city officials said.

The City of Winters will also employ legal advisors and bond brokers to call in outstanding bonds on the municipally owned electric power plant, which was built about the time of World War II. Since that time, Winters has had two sources of electric power—the city plant and West Texas Utilities Co.

Mayor Hodge said all financial data will be available to the public within the next few weeks.

Special Nov. 8 Election To Fill Council

The vacant place on the City Council will be filled in a special election which has been called for November 8.

The vacancy was created by the recent resignation of Alderman Clifton Poe.

Any person interested in filing as a candidate for the place on the City Council may obtain filing papers at the City Hall. The alderman elected Nov. 8 will serve the remaining part of Poe's term, ending in April, 1978. Filing may be accomplished as late as 30 days prior to the date of the election.

Under Article 2.01B of the State Election Code, there are only four days in the year cities may hold elections: the third Saturday in January, the first Saturday in April; the second Saturday in August; and the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. An election must be officially called not more than 30 days nor less than 15 days prior to election date. The last date the special election for alderman could have been called, in order to fill the vacancy in August, would have been July 13.

BOTTOMS UP—Headlights were still on for a while on this car which was overturned on Wood Street Thursday night of last week. The car apparently was traveling east on Wood when it left the street, hit and broke off a utility pole, and then overturned in the yard of a private home. Luckily, there was no fire, although gasoline ran out of the car.

Electric power lines on the pole which was snapped off were shorted out against limbs of a tree, resulting in small fires in the top of the tree. A dangerous situation existed for a while, until power was cut on the lines, but no lines dropped to the ground. If some of the hot wires had dropped to the ground, there could have been a tragedy as there were many onlookers around the site of the wreck. Police removed the alleged driver, Albert Gonzales, from the overturned car, and he was taken to North Runnels Hospital. He received no injuries, and was booked for DWI, according to Chief of Police Doc Smith.

president, and directors Tommy Lancaster and Bud Davis, two years, and Randy Springer and Charles Steinberg, directors one year, were not present for the picture.

Mayor Authorized To Begin Water Talks With Sweetwater

In a regular meeting of the Winters City Council Monday night, the mayor was again authorized and urged to begin talks with officials of the City of Sweetwater regarding purchase of water from Sweetwater's Oak Creek Lake.

The Council also approved hiring a consulting engineering firm to make studies of the proposal to purchase water from Oak Creek Lake, and pipe it to the Winters water treatment plant.

Mayor Homer Hodge told the council some weeks ago he had talked with Sweetwater officials, and said negotiations were underway between Sweetwater and Spence Lake officials, whereby Sweetwater would purchase water from Spence, pipe it to Oak Creek, where it would be mixed with that water. It had been proposed that Winters negotiate to purchase water, and lay a pipeline to Winters to provide Winters and the North Runnels Rural Water Supply Corp. with adequate water.

This alternative has been chosen for study since the announcement in the spring that a Farmers Home Administration loan and grant to build a dam and reservoir would not be forthcoming, because, it was explained at that time, "Runnels County is in too good financial condition" to obtain such loans and grants.

Mayor Hodge said Winters probably could obtain water from Oak Creek for 55 cents per thousand, and that one-half million gallons of water a day could be obtained through a 12-inch line. With gravity flow from Oak Creek Lake, Hodge said, there would be minimal expense in pumping the water to the treatment plant in Winters. He also said Winters could possibly get the same type of financing for a pipeline that was almost assured from the State Water Development Board.

Mayor Hodge will begin serious talks with Sweetwater officials at once, he said, and engineers will be hired to make studies immediately.

Native of Africa Guest Speaker At Church Sunday

Rev. Samuel Solanke will be guest speaker for a "Missions Awareness Day" at the First United Methodist Church next Sunday, July 24. He will be available to talk with Sunday School classes and individuals at 9:30 a.m. He will be preacher for the 10:40 a.m. worship service. Covered dish lunch is to be served at noon for all the membership.

Rev. Solanke, a native of Nigeria, is a doctoral candidate at Perkins School of Theology, SMU. He is married and the father of four children. His family will join him in Dallas later this month. He received his Diploma in Religious Studies, and the B.A. degree from the University of Ibadan. He received the Master of Theology degree from Perkins.

He grew up as an African traditional believer, later changed to Islam and then was converted to Christianity. In May of this year Mr. Solanke was ordained an Elder in the United Methodist Church.

Poe's Corner

People were intensely patriotic during World War I and any question of a person's loyalty, fancied or otherwise, was instantly defended.

It was early on Saturday afternoon of April 27, 1918, when the usual crowd had gathered on the street corner at the Winters State Bank to discuss the war, crops and other subjects.

In the telephone office upstairs above the bank, Betty Rogers, now Mrs. Phelps, was busy at the switchboard when she heard a gun shot. She hurriedly took off her headphone and ran to the window just in time to see her father slump to the sidewalk.

"I ran downstairs and when I saw he was dead, someone took me home," Betty said, "but I don't remember who. I wanted to tell Mama before she got the news by telephone."

However when she reached home her younger sister, Rachel, had listened in on the party line and heard what had happened. Their mother was upstairs taking a nap, so Rachel woke her and brought her downstairs before she told her of the accident. Another daughter, Annie, was also at home. The stunned women tried to get in touch with other members of the family. One son, Sherman, was in the service. I. W. (Mick) had gone to Abilene to visit Lucille Jones, who later became his wife. J. B. was farming in Runnels County but Max and Ennis had returned to Williamson County. Kate was married and lived at Georgetown.

The body of James (Jim) Rogers was placed in a casket and brought home by friends and neighbors, "Who did everything then," said Mick Rogers. "They also dug the grave."

There was no funeral home. Spills kept "Coffins," as they were called, in the furniture store.

The body lay in state in the front bedroom until the next day. On Sunday afternoon, J. H. Baldridge, pastor of the Winters Methodist Church, conducted the services from the front porch while friends gathered in the yard.

The funeral procession followed Spill's horse drawn hearse to the Fairview Cemetery where Mr. Rogers was buried.

After the funeral was over, the grieving family tried to find out what had caused the shooting. Since Mr. Rogers was dead and W. H. Baker, who shot him, had gone to Killeen, there was only bystanders to supply any information. The story which they pieced together was something like this:

Mrs. Luther Owens was selling Liberty bonds and approached Baker to buy a bond. He told her he would like to buy one but he didn't have the money. Mr. Baker had several sons in the service, but he was afraid people would think he was a slacker and began to talk about it. Rogers assured him that if he didn't have the money people would understand. But Baker kept talking and one thing led to another until Rogers finally said, "Well, if the shoe fits you, wear it." Then Baker pulled his gun and shot him.

Lindsey Pratt told Mick Rogers that he heard Baker say, "I've shot the best friend I ever had."

Baker stayed in Killeen until his trial was held in January of 1919. At that time, he produced several witnesses who tried to give Rogers a bad name. Baker also said that Rogers was calling him a slacker.

Character witnesses for Mr. Rogers were Mack Mills, C. E. Bell and Will McElroy of Hatchel. A state witness from Killeen testified that Baker had at one time tried to kill him with a monkey wrench.

Mr. Baker, who was then an old man, was given two years in the penitentiary. After he served his term, Baker returned to Winters to live.

"People were afraid to talk about the war anymore," said Mick Rogers, "and there was very little talk about the shooting. Baker said that he and Mills couldn't live in the same county, so Mr. Mills left rather than have any trouble with him. Baker stayed around several years and finally moved to the Plains."

In speaking of those days, Mick Rogers said, "My father was a good father. We got up at 5 a.m. and were in the field by sunup, as was the custom, but he never kept us out of school to work. He encouraged us to go to school and tried to keep us there longer than we wanted to stay."

Three of Jim Rogers sons, Max, Ennis and J. B. moved to Winters in 1907 from Williamson County and began farming. In 1913, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers and the other six children followed them. The family lived in Winters two or three years until a new two story house was built on the farm in the location where Mick's home now stands, in what is known as the Dale Community.

Two of the sons returned to Williamson County but the others remained in Runnels. After Mr. Rogers death, Mrs. Rogers and the two girls at home moved to Ballinger, returned to the farm for awhile and finally moved to Winters.

Only three of the children are living, Mrs. Phelps, Rachel Seldon and I. W. (Mick). Four grandchildren live here, Bobby Rogers and Quida Nichols, Wilbur Phelps and B. Phelps.

Over six billion disposable diapers will be made in America this year—which will become 513 million pounds of waste paper and 129 million pounds of solid waste.

TEXAS 1876

May 21 — May 27

AUSTIN—A bill to create a state detective force has been introduced into the House. The force would include one captain, who would be paid $124 per month; eight sergeants, who would be paid $90 per month; and 100 men, each paid $80 per month. Members of the detective force would assist all peace officers throughout the state when called on to make arrests. The bill was referred to committee with instructions to report immediately.

WACO—Waco has shipped about 36,000 bales of cotton this season. More than a bale of cotton is often made to the acre on the river and creek bottoms and more than half a bale on the uplands. From 25 to 30 bushels of corn, from 30 to 50 bushels of barley or oats are the usual products of an acre.

FORT WORTH—There is reliable information that nine men were hung by a mob for horsestealing in Jack County last week and six in Erath. Two of those hanged in Jack County are said to have been innocent.

FORT WORTH—The Fort Worth "Democratic Weekly" editor calls on the Tarrant County Construction company to build a grain elevator in Fort Worth. If the railroad reaches Fort Worth by the time designated, a grain elevator is a prime necessity. It will be expensive and burdensome to handle the wheat that will be brought hither for sale and shipment without an elevator.

Men Discover Separates For Clothing Variety

Today's separates are the key to a man's wardrobe. Mrs. Becky Culp, area clothing specialist, points out. "Separates that interrelate through color, texture or weight add many different looks to one basic wardrobe," she explained.

Mrs. Culp is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

She noted that this approach to dressing leads to flexibility and economy—so compatible with today's lifestyles.

"Even the classic suit has a more relaxed look this season, often taking on a separates flair."

Although the Methodist team is younger and smaller than either of their opponents, determination was the key to their exhaustive victories.

Puckers Make Fashion News

Fashionable consumers will be "puckering up" with the next fabric style, Mrs. Becky Culp, area clothing specialist, reports. "Puckered fabrics are replacing gauzes and crinkles for that all-important surface interest," she added. Mrs. Culp is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. She said that puckered fabrics include seersucker and plisse. While the pucker in seersucker is permanently woven or knitted into the fabric, puckers in plisse are created by applying heat and chemicals. Some plisses may "de-pucker" if ironed, she noted.

"These two fabrics are most often light to medium weight. Fiber contents are usually popular cottons and cotton blends but may also be made in a variety of synthetics. Mix and match stripes, plaids, solids and ethnic prints combine well for versatile coordinated separates." Puckers are easy-care, no-iron fabrics. They're ideal for travel, pack exceptionally well and resist wrinkles during wear, the specialist said.

A child feels good about himself when he knows his parents are interested in what he is doing, Mrs. Ilene Miller, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says.

Dried herbs are four times more powerful than fresh ones, and powdered herbs are twice as powerful as dried ones, Marilyn Haggard, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says.

To remove the stale odor of cigarettes and ashes from the vacuum cleaner, spray the inside of a new bag with disinfectant, or saturate a piece of cotton with your favorite cologne and place inside the bag, suggests Mrs. Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Accidents-The Profit "Torpedo"
Farmers and ranchers not only have substantial investments in land, facilities, equipment and animals, but also invest a great deal of their time, energy, skill, mind, muscle and heart into their operations. However, profits can be torpedoed by bad weather, shortages of materials, lack of competent help, disease and rising costs. There is also concern about energy, the environment, taxes, credit and legislation. And needless to say, accidents add a tremendous burden of expense, time loss, and incapacity and waste of human skills and equipment, points out Parker, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Some of these difficulties, says the agent, can be worked out by the farmer or rancher, while with others, such as unfavorable weather, he can do little but live with what he gets. But one of the biggest "torpedoes" of profit—accidents—can be defused with a surprisingly modest investment of time, effort and money.

Making such an investment in safety can pay impressive dividends, contends the agent. Of course, it can help save lives and prevent a lot of suffering and disruption of family life. But it can also help keep people on the job—full time, undiminished, unimpaired. It can keep the cash flowing into more land, better equipment or even a nice vacation rather than to pay off medical or legal bills. In addition, it can keep insurance costs down.

A safe farm or ranch is also more attractive to competent labor, he adds. It is an unlikely candidate for visits by federal safety inspectors. And, if facilities and equipment are properly maintained for maximum safety, they'll perform at their most productive, efficient and economical best. Yes, safety is indeed a GOOD investment!

Special attention is directed to accident prevention on the farm and ranch during National Farm Safety Week July 25-31.

Rat Control Halts Livestock Disease Spread
Control your farm rat population and you may control some serious diseases affecting livestock, says C. T. Parker, Rannels County agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Besides the spread of livestock diseases, rats contaminate feed and cause numerous holes in farm buildings. Rat droppings in animal feed and grain are the most frequent method of disease transmission by rats. The farm rat problem warrants a well-planned rat control plan. He advises farmers to undertake a baiting program. Bait stations, located in barns, garages, grain bins, hog houses and machine sheds, should be supplemented by perimeter baiting on the outskirts of buildings.

A continual cleanup campaign combined with rat-proofed buildings should deny rats access to breeding and living areas.

If rats are visible during the daytime, the problem could well be serious. For every rat seen, hundreds are in hiding on the premises, says Parker.

Tiny built-in snaps in socks let them team up with their partner during laundry processes—and they are available in eight different styles, says Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In shopping for fresh corn, look for: corn in ice or refrigerator displays, even rows of fresh, tender, plump and milky kernels just firm enough to offer slight resistance to pressure—and green, fresh-looking husks, advises Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Young people today are less likely to take on work which they consider "meaningless, unsatisfying and authoritarian in nature," says Debby Johnson, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, quoting the report of a special task force to the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Krueger's Kolumn

A sense of community, of belonging to a particular time and place, is an element increasingly difficult to harness in today's world.

Last week, while traveling throughout the 21st District, I was struck by the pride and confidence so evident in the people who live in towns such as Ballinger, Robert Lee, Winters, Sterling City and, on a larger scale, San Angelo.

Fortunately, Congress each year allows breaks in its work schedule in Washington so congressmen can return to their home districts for extended work periods. It was during such a break last week that I was able to enjoy, not only the perspective of people in my district, but their hospitality as well.

In Winters, for instance, I was able to view firsthand the role that my district congressional office had been able to play in helping Winters retain rail service in the face of a threatened shutdown of service from Winters to Abilene. Although I had prepared testimony supporting farmers who need rail service to ship agricultural goods to market, being in Winters and having people there express gratitude that the railroad line remained open meant far more to me than anything that could be said in an official ruling by the Interstate Commerce Committee, on which I sit.

That victory, though based on hard data showing Winters as a vibrant and growing agricultural community deserving of continued rail service, is also a tribute to the stamina and concern for their community of the people of Winters.

I witnessed the same concern for community in other towns, and was particularly gratified in visiting Bronte and Robert Lee to find that each has recently acquired the services of new Utility costs may cause mortgage foreclosures to increase by 50 percent, according to Mrs. Sue Young, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The meshing of the widely varying cultures of West Texans and of the Vietnamese doctors is testimony to the fact that the people of the 21st District have great capacity for growth, culturally and geographically. I received other significant input, including the story one farmer told me of trying to exchange four bushels of wheat for two pounds of coffee, and still coming up short. Receiving information pertaining to agriculture has been essential as I deal with agricultural legislation and with leaders such as Bob Strauss, foreign trades expert, who pledged in a recent meeting with me to give greater priority to finding export markets for American farm products. I ended my trip with stops in Bronte and Robert Lee where friends had prepared 11 freezers of homemade ice cream, a commodity one seldom encounters in Washington, D.C. That evening, on the eve of a demanding work schedule this week in Washington, is one I will remember for many years.

THE ANGELS

Trimming outside fat from meats before grilling will eliminate some of the flaming of coals that burns the outside of meat, says Marilyn Haggard, foods and nutrition specialist, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

O'Connor's Column

Summer Kitchen Escape Plan

Summertime "kitchen escape" tactics are easy—and still allow for nutritious menus, says Mrs. Juanita O'Connor, county extension agent.

Following is a 10-point "kitchen escape" plan:

1. Prepare gelatin desserts—they're easy to prepare and to eat.
2. Use the outdoor grill for the entire meal including vegetables and breads.
3. Serve one-dish meals such as casseroles—and round out the menu with a cool salad and packaged bread.
4. Plan menus that cook in the oven at one temperature—this eliminates the extra heat of surface burners.
5. If you have a microwave oven—use it!
6. Prepare your main dish in a slow cooker. Serve vegetables and salads that don't require cooking and last minute preparations.

7. Serve cold meat salads as a main dish for a change.
8. Do baking in the early part of the day while temperatures are still relatively cool.
9. Serve fresh fruits in season for dessert.
10. Eat out—you deserve a break!

Melon Time... Which Will You Choose?
 What do you think of when you hear the word "melon?" Do you envision relaxing under some cool shade tree with an ice cold watermelon? If cantaloups (muakmelon), casaba, crenshaw, honey balls, honey dews and Persians didn't come to mind, then take another look at the melon family.

Watermelons are only one of many melons in plentiful supply in this region, now. They reach their summer peak in July and August, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

No matter what the size, shape or color, selecting melons for quality and flavor is a challenge to the skill of even the most experienced buyer. USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service says that, although no absolute formula exists there are several factors you can use in judging a melon.

Look for three major signs that are good indications of maturity in cantaloups. The stem should be gone, leaving a smooth, symmetrical, shallow basin called a "slip". The netting or veining should be thick, coarse, and corky, standing out in bold relief. A yellowish-buff, yellowish gray, or pale yellow skin color should be present.

A casaba is a pumpkin-shaped melon with a tendency to be pointed at the stem end. Shallow, irregular furrows run the length of the gold-yellow rind on a ripe melon. A slight softening at the blossom end is another indication of maturity in the casaba. It has no odor or aroma.

The crenshaw is easy to identify by its round blossom end and pointed stem end. The rind is smooth with only very shallow lengthwise furrowing. Look for pale orange to golden-yellow fruit whose surface yields slightly to moderate pressure. It should also have a pleasant aroma.

The large, bluntly oval, smooth-rind melon known as "honey dew" shows its ripeness when the rind becomes creamy white to creamy yellow and the flesh a cool, pale green. The soft, velvety feel and a slight softening at the blossom end are also indicators of maturity.

The honey ball melon is a smaller, round, slightly and irregularly netted version of the honey dew. Use the same buying tips for this melon as for the honey dew.

The Persian melon becomes available in fair supply in August, primarily from California. It resembles the cantaloup, but is more nearly round, has finer netting and is about the same size as the honey dew. Look for a thick, fine-textured orange-colored flesh. The same factors of quality and ripeness listed for cantaloups apply to these melons also.

Pickled Peaches

3 quarts sugar
 2 quarts vinegar
 7-2 inch pieces stick cinnamon
 2 tablespoons cloves, whole
 16 pounds (about 11 quarts) peaches, small or medium size

Combine sugar, vinegar, stick cinnamon, and cloves. (Cloves may be put in a clean cloth, tied with a string, and removed after cooking, if not desired in packed product.) Bring to a boil and let simmer covered, about 30 minutes.

Add peaches to the boiling sirup, enough for 2 or 3 quarts at a time, and heat for about 5 minutes. Pack hot peaches into clean, hot jars. Continue heating in sirup and packing peaches into jars. Add 1 piece of stick cinnamon and 2 to 3 whole cloves (if desired) to each jar. Cover peaches with boiling sirup.

Wash peaches and remove skins; dipping the fruit in boiling water for 1 minute, then quickly in cold water makes peeling easier. To prevent pitted peaches from darkening during preparation, immediately put them into cold water containing 2 tablespoons each of salt and vinegar per gallon. Drain just before using.

Western Auto Store Burglarized Last Week

For the second time within a few months, Western Auto Associate Store in Winters, was burglarized last week, although few things were taken in this breakin, according to police.

Someone broke the bottom half of a glass door at the rear of the store, and entered the building. Two CB radios and a watch were reported taken in this breakin, police said. Entry was made sometime during Tuesday night of last week, it was said.

Police said it was believed this was an amateur job, because so few things were taken. Some months ago, the store was burglarized, and a number of guns were taken. Most of the articles taken in that breakin were eventually recovered.

New Patrolman

Winters City Council Monday night approved employment of Winford Reel as a probationary patrolman in the Winters Police Department.

Reel will fill the vacancy created by the recent resignation of Wesley McGallion. The new patrolman will train for several months, and then will attend an approved law enforcement school to gain certification.

Parents Should Prepare Child For First School

A new school year brings lots of challenges for first graders—and their parents, Mrs. Ilene Miller, a family life education specialist, says.

"Perhaps for the first time in his life, the child comes in contact with many other people. He soon discovers that his classmates do not always think or act like he does," she said.

Mrs. Miller is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Each child has to find his place in this new, larger social setting which is quite different from his home. By practicing social skills developed during the pre-school years, the youngster learns to make and keep friends, to work cooperatively and to share with classmates. He also learns to follow his teacher's instructions as he discovers new subject matter."

Parents play an important role in their child's transition from the home setting to the school routine, she pointed out.

"Before school begins, mothers and fathers should help their children learn what changes to expect. Talk with the child about the new routine and activities he will be participating in, such as class, lunch and restroom breaks, and recess.

"Take the child to visit the school and to meet his teacher, if possible. Help him become familiar with the school building and where his classroom, the playground and restrooms are located," she advised.

And don't forget the "emotional" side of starting school, Mrs. Miller cautioned.

"Parents should talk with the child about how he may feel when he starts to school. It isn't unusual for a youngster to feel lonesome, afraid, sad or angry as he starts to school. The child may be afraid of the people he does not know well and may miss his parents.

"The child also may become angry at his parents for letting him go to school to face all of these new experiences alone. But whatever the child is feeling needs to be acknowledged and discussed," she said.

And it is also important that parents acknowledge their own feelings about being separated from the child. Parents help a child when they listen attentively to what he has to say. The child feels good if he knows his mother and father are interested in his experiences, she said.
