Winters Radio Expected By End of Year

Construction of a transmission tower for a new radio station which will serve the Winters area is expected to begin within the next few weeks. It will be located about two miles north of Winters.

Bo Johnson of Plainview, vice president and general manager of Winters Radio Corp., which will operate the station, said hopes are to have all construction completed and be on the air toward the end of the year.

The new 1000 watts station will broadcast during daytime only, at 1060 on the AM dial, with call letters KRWT, Johnson said.

was March 1.

However, if you still are not on the current voter rolls, you have until April 6 to get registered and get your new card, to be eligible to vote in the primaries May 6, according to Jack Farmer, Runnels County Tax Assessor-Collector, who keeps the rolls and issues the registration cards.

If you haven't received your new registration card, and are unsure if you're registered, call the local tax collector's office, 754-4941.

Farmer also reminded automobile owners who have not registered their vehicles that the last day of March is the deadline. Farmer said Runnels County car owners are behind schedule this year in getting their vehicles registered, perhaps because of the confusion caused by the new staggered registration dates.

To avoid long lines on the last day, Farmer suggested that car owners come in now and get their tag stickers.

Tournament Sunday Benefits Cancer Drive

A benefit best ball gold tournament, co-sponsored by the North Runnels Chapter and the Ballinger Chapter, American Cancer Society, will be held at the Ballinger Country Club Sunday, March 12, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Proceeds from entry fees will be divided between the two Cancer Society units.

Entry fee will be $5 for each golfer. Golf balls will be presented as prizes for the first, second and third place teams.

Betty Pinkerton of Winters is president of the North Runnels Chapter, ACS, and James Fowler of Ballinger is president of the Ballinger chapter.

Norton Lions Pancake Feed Saturday Night

Norton Lions Club will hold the annual pancake supper Saturday, March 11, in the Norton Community Center.

Serving will begin at 5:30. Tickets will be $1.50 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Proceeds from the pancake supper will be used by the club for various projects.

Group Plans Cancer Check

A cancer detection program has been planned March 20, at 7:30 p.m., in the student lounge of Winters High School.

The program is being sponsored by Alpha Phi Delta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, and the public is invited.

The Doctors' Wives organization of Abilene will conduct the program.

Supt. Graves Has Resigned

Bill Graves, Superintendent of Winters Independent School District, has submitted his resignation to the board of trustees of the school district, effective May 1.

The board will take official action on the resignation at the next regular meeting Tuesday night, March 14.

Supt. Graves has accepted a position as superintendent of school of Andrews, a Class AAA system.

At the next regular meeting of the school board, processes to secure a successor to Graves will begin, according to spokesmen for the board.

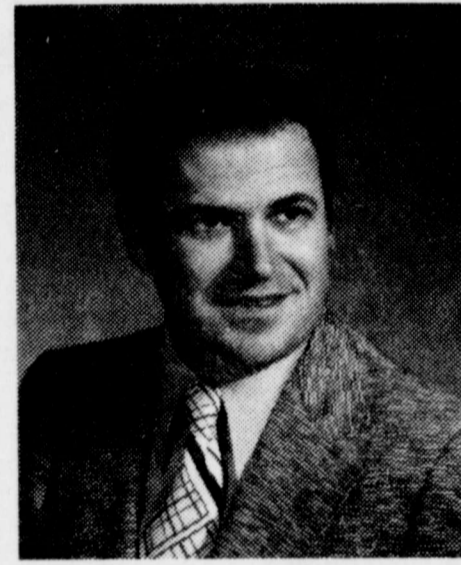

In submitting his resignation, Supt. Graves said his decision to leave Winters has been made with "tremendous regret." He said, "My wife and I have enjoyed our time in Winters. The people have been close friends, and we look upon the years here as the most pleasant and productive we have ever had."

Graves was employed in July, 1974, as superintendent of Winters Independent School District. During the four years he has been administrator of the district, many improvements have been made to the physical school plant, including the new school business office, the new bus barn, the addition to the sports field house, a special annex building for the special education program. In addition, extensive renovations have been made in the school cafeteria and kitchen.

Graves said the board has been able to make the improvements to the school plant without tax increases, using surplus funds which are budgeted for such purposes. At the same time, he said, it has been possible to keep the necessary surplus funds above the $100,000 level.

Academically, during Graves' tenure at Winters, the Title I program has been broadened, with the addition of two teachers for the math skills program, to improve students' abilities who have not mastered basic skills. Graves said the Title I reading program also has been doubled. He said the results of standardized tests indicate the Title I programs have been highly successful.

Graves came to Winters in 1974 from the Abilene school system.

To Preach At S'ide Baptist Church Sunday

The Rev. Melvin Byrd will preach at the Southside Baptist Church Sunday, March 12, in view of a call by the church.

The Rev. Mr. Byrd is pastor of the Nolan Baptist Church. He was reared in the Wingate-Shep area, and has pastored several churches in the Winters-Abilene area. He and his wife Beth have two daughters.

Sunday's service will begin at 10:50 a.m. A church called conference will be held immediately following the Sunday service.

New Football Coach Has Winning Record

Warren Bryan Bell, the athletic director and head football coach hired by the board of trustees last week, has a coaching philosophy including "the athletic program is a vital part of the total school curriculum," and "we as coaches must remember that the program is for the kids. A good football program has got to be built around three things: pride, character, and discipline."

With this philosophy, the new head coach comes to the Winters school system with a football coaching record of 58-23-1, for high school, and a junior high overall football record of 21-3.

Bell last week was named head football coach and director at Winters, effective immediately. He succeeds Jimmie Stubblefield, who recently resigned.

Thirty-four years old, Bell worked as head football, basketball and track coach, plus serving as athletic director at Charlotte, a Class A school located near San Antonio.

Stubblefield remains on the Winters faculty, and has not publicly announced future plans.

Hospital Aux To Sponsor Luncheon

The Auxiliary of North Runnels Hospital will host a salad luncheon Wednesday, March 15, in the dining room of the First United Methodist Church.

Serving will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Tickets will be $2 each, and may be purchased from any Auxiliary member or at the door.

Proceeds from the luncheon will be used in the hospital assistance projects of the organization.

While at Charlotte, Bell coached the football team to a district title in 1975, had a 5-5 record for 1976, to come back with a 9-1 record in 1977. Prior to Charlotte, he coached at Smyer High School, 1969 through 1973, winning one district title in 1971, and leaving with a record of 35-15-1.

Bell's total career basketball win-loss record has been 131-85, with his team at Smyer having a tie for district title in 1973, and a district title in 1977 at Charlotte, and co-champions in 1978.

NR Cancer Unit Plans Crusade

The annual Cancer Crusade will begin April 4. Mrs. Homer Hodge, chairperson for the Crusade committee, announced at a meeting of the North Runnels Unit of the American Cancer Society last week.

George Garrett will be chairman for the business section drive during the crusade. Block chairpersons for the Crusade have been named.

At the meeting last week, Mrs. Betty Pinkerton announced that the special events committee has been active. A plant sale is scheduled for April 7-8, and a golf day was discussed.

Chuck Steward, field representative of San Angelo, reported on the job placement issue, and on the mobile screening unit, and asked Mrs. Homer Hodge to be the district lay director of the area board for another year. He showed a film, Discoveries of Cancer Research.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodge attended the Area II Division public information session held in Austin Feb. 24.

MARCHERS—This group of Winters churchgoers braved a brisk, cold north wind Sunday morning, to take part in the "March To Church In March" program being sponsored by the Winters Ministerial Alliance. This group had parked their cars in downtown Winters, and were walking the two blocks to the First Baptist Church. Other groups also walked to church Sunday, and members of the Ministerial Alliance expect many others to join the parade in the three remaining Sundays in March, weather permitting.

Poe's Corner

BY CHARLES POE

Lucy Kittrell and Laura Kittrell Pace have received a University of Texas news release that the journal of their grandfather, Dr. Pleasant W. Kittrell, recently was donated to the Barker Texas History Center at the University of Texas by Mrs. Frances Kittrell of Dallas.

Mrs. Kittrell is the widow of William H. (Bill) Kittrell, grandson of the pioneer physician and brother of Lucy and Laura.

The leather-bound journal of the 19th century Texas physician contains handwritten diary and journal entries with comments on the Civil War, and on acquaintances of Dr. Kittrell, as well as his financial accounts. This is the second of Dr. Kittrell's journals to be added to the Barker collections.

A physician by profession and a lawmaker by avocation, Dr. Kittrell came to Texas from Alabama in 1850, and settled near Huntsville. He was elected to the Texas Legislature in 1855 and 1857. During these two sessions, he served as chairman of the House Education Committee and was instrumental in drawing up the legislation intended to establish the University of Texas.

However, the organization of the university was delayed by the Civil War and Reconstruction period. Work was resumed toward establishing the university after the war and in 1886 Dr. Kittrell was appointed to the board of administrators for this purpose. Before he could finish this task, he died of yellow fever while tending the many victims of the disease during the epidemic of 1867.

The university was officially opened in 1883.

Dr. Kittrell was profoundly interested in educating the deaf, dumb and blind and advanced legislation establishing special schools for the afflicted.

Born in North Carolina, Dr. Kittrell graduated from the University of North Carolina and attended medical school in Pennsylvania. He later served in the state legislature of North Carolina and Alabama before moving to Texas.

In 1850, the year that Dr. Kittrell and his father-in-law, Dr. Langston Goree, set out with their families and slaves to settle new cotton lands in Texas, the Lone Star State was wild enough in almost any part.

It is typical of the Goree and Kittrell families that they sought a cultural center near which to establish their new homes. Both men were firm believers in education.

Their route led them past the San Jacinto County plantation home of the second governor of Texas, the Honorable George T. Wood.

As the caravan drew near his house, Governor Wood walked out of the forest near at hand with a long Kentucky rifle over his shoulder. He was dressed for hunting in a rather rough garb.

Dr. Kittrell's slaves were unable to associate the plain attire and long rifle with one who had been the "biggest man in the state." They expected to see a man dressed at least as well as their master, who wore cut-away coats, front flap trousers, a stock and standing collar, and a high hat.

The plantation which Dr. Kittrell bought lay 14 miles east of Huntsville and 12 miles west of Governor Wood's. After he had settled his slaves comfortably and had seen to the planting of the crops, he moved his family to Huntsville, where he bought a home and took up again his practice of medicine.

The Kittrells and Gorees had been friends and neighbors to General Sam Houston and his family for years. Mrs. Houston was a grad-

Purity of drinking water is something to which all subscribers to public water systems are entitled, but many water customers can't be sure what they're getting.

The reason? Many smaller public water systems are not submitting samples to the Texas Department of Health for analysis, even though they uate of the Judson Institute in Marion, Ala., of which Dr. Goree was business manager, and from which his daughter, Frances Goree Kittrell also graduated.

Dr. Kittrell was the physician for the Houston family, and the general was a frequent visitor in his home. To the young Kittrells he was never the "Raven," but only a kindly man who was fond of whittling. He made both Mrs. Goree and Mrs. Kittrell a little wooden barrel in which to put their sewing thread, which came in hanks or skeins.

Once when the children saw the old general coming to make a call, Norman, aged 14, rushed in the house and said, "Mother, yonder comes General Houston. Do I have to kiss him?" His mother replied that he would since General Houston kissed all children regardless of age.

Norman explained, "I don't mind kissing women and girls, but I'm too big to kiss men." Mrs. Kittrell sent him out to welcome the guest, and sure enough, he received a resounding smack.

To the credit of the Kittrell family, they did not turn against the old "Lion of Texas" as so many people did because he tried against their will to save his beloved state for the union.

Although they were on different sides politically, Dr. Kittrell and the General remained friends. Three days before he died, General Houston sent for Dr. Kittrell, who at that time was living on his plantation. A daughter, Lilla, was allowed to accompany her father.

As they walked into the old "Steamboat House" where the general lay, he raised his hand saying "My old friend, Dr. Kittrell, I am glad to see you. It will be our last meeting in this life. He then turned to Lilla and said, "Come, daughter, and kiss the old general. This is the last time you will ever see him."

are required to do so by federal and state law.

"The Safe Drinking Water Law, and the Interim Primary Drinking Water Regulations promulgated under the Act, make the submission of samples for bacteriological analysis from public water systems a requirement under federal law," said Mark V. Lowry, surveillance and technical assistance branch chief of the Water Hygiene Division. "In addition, the collection of such samples has been a requirement under state law since 1945."

The purpose in submitting and analyzing samples is to determine whether contamination is occurring in the distribution system. Such contamination may be the result of low or fluctuating pressure causing backflow or backsiphonage of contaminated water into the lines. There may also be improperly connected or constructed appliances which use water, cross-connections, line breaks, or other problems.

"With the complexity of modern-day plumbing systems and the constant building activities in urban areas, the list of possible avenues of contamination is endless," says Lowry. "Therefore, it is imperative that samples for bacteriological analysis be collected and submitted regularly as required by law."

Lowry says during calendar year 1977, the Texas Department of Health received and recorded more than 300,000 sample reports. These records indicate that more than 90 percent of the population of Texas that is served by public water systems is served by systems that submit bacteriological analysis samples regularly. "Many of the smaller systems, particularly those serving less than 3,300 persons, are not submitting samples," he said.

"This is despite the fact that samples are analyzed by this Department's laboratories at no charge to the water system. Since the records of all such analyses must be maintained by the water system officials for review by the customers, people wishing to determine the status of their local utility should contact the utility officials directly and ask to review the records," Lowry said.

Congress passed the Safe Drinking Water Act in 1974 which in effect gives the Environmental Protection Agency and states the responsibility of the new minimum drinking water standards, said Lowry.

"The interim regulations promulgated under the Act requires your water supplier to periodically sample and test the water pumped to your tap. If tests reveal that the national drinking water standards have been violated, then your supplier must take action to correct the situation," he said.

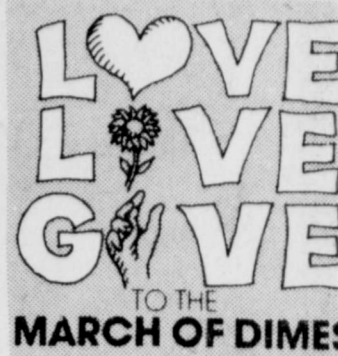

"When there are violations, the water supplier is required by the Act to notify the user and to announce the violation to the newspapers, radio and TV stations."

In the Interim Regulations, standards have been set for 10 chemicals, six pesticides, bacteria, radioactivity, and turbidity, or cloudiness. Most of these substances occur naturally in the environment and in the foods people eat. The regulations reflect the levels that can be safely consumed in water, taking into account the amounts of exposure from other sources.

Two substances, bacteria and the amount of nitrate found in the water, pose an immediate threat whenever they are exceeded.

"Coliform bacteria from human and animal wastes may be found in drinking water if it isn't treated properly, or if contamination is occurring in the distribution lines. Waterborne diseases such as typhoid, cholera, infectious hepatitis, and dysentery have been traced to improperly disinfected water or to cross connections," Lowry said. "Researchers report that excessive nitrates may pose an immediate threat to children under six months of age."

The proposed changes will reduce rates for extension telephones and 25 foot long cords; will restructure one-time charges for service connection, moves and changes, increasing some and reducing others; and will offer reduced monthly rates for one-party business and residence customers who provide their own primary telephone instrument. The proposed changes in rates, with some increasing and others decreasing, will reduce General's gross revenues from its Texas operations by $2,565.00.

Now Is Time To Determine Pasture Needs

Now is the time of year for stock farmers to determine their needs for temporary summer pastures.

According to Lloyd B. Harper, Soil Conservationist, with the Soil Conservation Service, the planting of sorghums for summer grazing is part of the year-round grazing program and can be adjusted up or down to meet the individual operators anticipated requirements.

The stockman or rancher must consider many factors

Vo-ag Students To Final Stockshow

The final stockshow of the year will be held in San Angelo this weekend, with several students taking entries. Doug and Lisa Bryan, Teresa Helm, Walker Walston, the Mikeeska Brothers, and Bill Brede Meyer will show lambs. Kathy Brede Meyer, Benny Boatright and Lee Evans will show barrows, and Teresa Helm and Kelly Blackerby will show three Semintols each.

The lambs and heifers will be judged on Thursday and the steers and barrows on Friday. Several Winters Vo-ag students had entries which placed in the Houston Stock Show this past week. Bill Brede Meyer showed the sixth place heavyweight, Southdown, which sold for $2 a pound, Doug Bryan had the 26th place heavyweight crossbred in the swine division, which sold for 65 cents a pound, James and Renee Blackwell had the third place lightweight crossbred which sold for $2 a pound and the first place medium weight Spotted Poland China which sold for $4 a pound.

Each year at the beginning of a new growing season, livestock producers are faced with livestock poisoning by spring forbs or weeds, says Joe Chapman, range conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service.

This year the problem may be magnified due to the heavy use of pastures during the winter. Spring rains could result in a quick production of forbs or weeds, Chapman said.

In heavily used pastures these may be the only forage available. In this type of situation livestock might consume sufficient amounts of plants to result in poisoning.

Livestock In Danger Of Weed Poisoning

One method which might aid in reducing the amount of forbs eaten is early deferment of pastures said Chapman. Continuous observation of poisonous plants can give a quick indication of whether animals are grazing the plants or avoiding them.

Some poisonous plants to watch for are: silverleaf, nightshade, threadleaf groundsel, mountain pink, curly dock, bitterweed and some milkvetches.

If you have a question concerning poisonous plants or identification of plants suspected of poisoning livestock contact your local Soil Conservation Service field office.

in planning the size of his summer pasture. The first factor to consider is the size of his herd for the coming year and will the herd increase or decrease and if so, at what time of the year?

The next factor to consider is the soil and weather conditions. How much underground moisture is available now and what is the prediction for moisture and temperature for the upcoming growing season? Will there be another killing frost before spring is here?

Other considerations should be given to the present conditions of rangeland and improved pastureland. If these conditions are poor, the ideal situation would be to plant sufficient forage sorghums to graze the entire herd during the summer months and deferring the rangeland so it can be grazed during the winter months. Deferment of the rangeland during the growing season improves the vigor of native grasses, helps promote natural revegetation, thus providing better soil protection.

Another factor to consider is your small grain. Will it be grazed or saved for harvesting grain and will small grain be planted again next fall for winter grazing supplement?

Another factor to consider is harvesting the forage sorghum for hay. Many stockmen find that hay, when forage is plentiful, can extend the growing season. Although harvesting hay costs more than grazing, the hay supplement fed during severe winters and drought periods can offset the cost.

These factors plus previous experience should give the stockmen an idea of how much forage production his operation will require. For more information on how to make a forage inventory and how to use it in developing a year round grazing plan, contact your local Soil Conservation Service office.

Pressure Canner "Scrub Up" Means Cleaning, Checking

A pressure canner "scrub up" for home canning operations means cleaning and checking all its parts—to help insure safety and high-quality food, advises a foods and nutrition specialist.
Home pressure canners destroy botulism spores in low-acid vegetables, and proper cleaning is one key to their success, says Frances Reasonover with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.
Clean Canner Itself
In washing the canner, remove any stains from aluminum canners with a paste of whiting and vinegar.
For porcelain-enamelled steel canners, use water instead of vinegar.
Be sure to clean the edges of kettle and cover thoroughly.
If necessary, scrub them with whiting and water, since dried food, dirt or scale from hard water on either edge may prevent a tight seal and allow steam to leak out.
Special cleaning also solves problems with odor or metallic taste.
For example, an aluminum or tinned-steel canner may have an odor after storage, and a new metal canner used also for cooking may give food a metallic or rusty taste.
To get rid of problem odor or taste, put one inch of water in the canner, add a handful of potato peels and any racks and pans with similar problems. Heat for 15 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Cool. Wash kettle, pans and racks in hot soapy water. Rinse and dry.
Clean Petcock, Safety Valve, Gauge
Be sure to clean the petcock so that during canning all the air can be driven out of the canner in 10 minutes. Clean the gauge to prevent incorrect pressure readings due to clogging. Clean the safety valve so it can work if pressure becomes too high.
Before canning—and throughout the canning season—clean the petcock and safety valve openings by drawing a string or narrow string of cloth through them.

Never use sharp tools that might nick and damage openings.
Occasionally remove the petcock and safety valve and soak them in vinegar for a short time.
Unscrew the ball-and-socket type of safety valve and clean them after each use. Occasionally clean the ball and its socket with silver polish.
Test Dial-Type Gauge For Accuracy
Correct canning pressure for a certain time span will destroy harmful bacteria, so pressure gauges must be accurate.
Check accuracy of a dial-type gauge either with a steam-gauge thermometer or an electric testing device.
Ask the local county Extension Office for information on where to have a gauge tested.
Test Canner For Pressure
Once the gauge passes the accuracy test, check the canner for pressure.
Using only water in the pressure canner, try bringing the pressure to 10 pounds.
