TEXAS RANGER HALL OF FAME

Life is full of nice surprises and you can never tell where a telephone call or a written inquiry will lead you.

Sometime last year, or the year before, I had an interesting telephone conversation with a Mrs. Gray who called to inquire about some Moro, or Bluff Creek, history. Her husband had retired in Abilene and they bought a home in the country in that locale.

In the course of our conversation, I told her we were trying to gather some more facts on Ranger's Peak at Contant.

Mrs. Gray suggested that I write to Gaines de Graffenried at the Homer Garrison Museum in Waco. She thought that he might be able to furnish some information as he was a director of the Moody Texas Ranger Memorial Library located in the museum.

Mrs. Gray also asked if I had considered nominating one of the Rangers of our area for the Texas Ranger Hall of Fame. She thought Major Ellis Ringold Griffith (Major is a name not a title) should qualify.

Of course, I knew of him and his daughter Ella, Mrs. Marion Goble, lived in Winters at that time. And I agreed with her, but I was ashamed to tell her that I hadn't heard of the place.

Never one to waste an opportunity, and also wanting to save stamps, I added a paragraph onto my inquiry about Ranger's Peak, asking how we should proceed to nominate someone for that honor.

In the meantime, I found some information on the Texas Ranger Hall of Fame. The ground-breaking ceremony was held Aug. 4, 1973 in Waco when more than 2,000 people came to honor the Rangers and take part in the 150th anniversary ceremonies. The $300,000 Hall of Fame is located on the Brazos next to the Homer Garrison Museum. It is the official gathering place for Texas Rangers memorabilia.

An answer came to my letter in August saying that no additional data on Ranger Peak could be found, but thanking me for the copy of our history on the outpost that I had enclosed. Also there was an answer to my inquiry concerning Mr. Griffith.

"The executive Committee selects those Rangers to be enshrined in the Hall of Fame. You simply submit his name, service data, and achievements to the Commission, and they will make the final decision. You may address your suggestion for Mr. Griffith's honoring to the Texas Ranger Commemorative Commission in care of the Texas Ranger Hall of Fame; Box 1370; Waco 76703."

Realizing that this should be a project for the Runnels County Historical Commission, I presented it at our next meeting and it was unanimously endorsed. Since I'm secretary, all that remained for me to do was write the letter, which I did on October 28. It's contents follow:

Major Ellis Ringold Griffith was born on May 11, 1846, in Lauderdale County near Meridian, Miss. When he was a boy, his family settled near Ft. Smith, Ark.

He was only 15 years old when he enlisted at the beginning of the Civil War, and saw several battles when he was 16, before he was sent home because of his health. He had to leave northern Arkansas due to the carpetbaggers who shot and killed his brother, Ben. He first went to Missouri where he lived under the assumed name of "Mason."

Making his way to Texas, Major Griffith joined the Texas Rangers enlisting in Company "A" of the Frontier Battalion May 25, 1874.

While garrisoned in Comanche County, he met and married Priscilla Broughton. The Rangers were stationed near present Coleman. They kept watch on the mountain at Santa Anna for marauding Indians.

Mr. Griffith was in the Rangers for several years and had some harrowing experiences. He happened to be one of the men who rode in the prison vehicle which guarded and delivered John Wesley Hardin to Austin. The trial was held in Comanche the last week of September 1877. Once he accidentally shot himself in the leg when putting his pistol in the holster and had to be pulled on a stretcher behind a horse to Coleman, about fifty miles, for treatment. The bullet remained in his leg until his death.

In 1877, Major Griffith brought his family to the Bluff Creek Community, southwest of Abilene, in the edge of Taylor County, and remained there until his death. He and his wife and three of their four sons are buried in the Bluff Creek Cemetery, the fourth son is buried elsewhere.

The only living child, Ella Griffith Goble, now 90 years of age, still remembers those days of history. She has since moved to the Residential Retirement Center at 1102 North 19th St. in Abilene.

Time went by, as time always does, and we almost forgot about writing the letter, when bingo! Here came a certificate and a gold

In Six Months, RS&WCD Constructed 17 Waterways

During the past six months some seventeen waterways were constructed in the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District. According to Robert H. Fowler, Soil Conservation Technician with the Ballinger office of the Soil Conservation Service; fourteen of these waterways will be established to permanent grass cover. He indicated that the other three waterways were constructed on such gentle slopes to permit annual drilling to fibrous rooted grasses such as sorghums or winter small grains.

Two grasses which adapt well in waterways here are bermudagrass and kleingrass. These are warm season grasses which produce a protective cover fast if seeded (or sprigged) properly and enjoy a reasonably normal first growing season. A well prepared seedbed is essential in getting a good stand of grass. Use a disk edged card on March 9 naming Mrs. Goble as an honorary lifetime member of the Texas Ranger Hall of Fame.

Since I was going to Abilene that day it was convenient for me to visit Mrs. Goble and to notify the Abilene Reporter-News, who sent a photographer to take her picture. It was very rewarding to see her surprise and delight.

Along with the certificate came a letter from Clint Peoples, Chairman of the Executive Committee, thanking our committee for bringing the Griffith story to their attention and an invitation to visit them.

It is believed that there is enough stone in the Great Wall of China to build an eight-foot wall around the earth at the equator!

careful attention. More detailed technical information on waterways concerning soil suitability, seeding rates and planting depths of the various grasses is available at the local Soil Conservation Office.

Nursing Home

The Easter holidays this year were marked with several enjoyable occasions in our home.

Last Tuesday we had our annual Easter parade, with each resident modeling their hat of various styles and colors. Halley Sims played the background organ music of "The Easter Parade," and Grace McKelleb was at the piano playing for the rhythm band.

Our annual "April Fool" tacky party is planned for this week and we are looking forward to many strange characters dressed in funny costumes at this party.

Our newest resident is Mrs. Lula Allen from Wingate. We hope her stay with us can be a pleasant one.

We are going to be working with velvet scraps real soon, so if you have velvet of any kind please bring it to us.

Friday Last Day To Register Cars

Friday, March 31, will be the last day automobile owners may register their vehicles without stiff penalties.

The new registration system calls for a staggered registration of vehicles, so some owners may register for only a few months, after which they will have to re-register, while others may register their vehicles for more than a year.

Some car owners who have waited until near the deadline to register vehicles may have difficulty getting their tag stickers, especially in Winters and the north part of the county. The sub office of the County Tax Collector's office, in Winters, has been closed most of the time during the past two weeks. The office was closed Monday and Tuesday of this week, because of the death of the father of Mrs. Ellen Meyer, deputy collector in the Winters office. It was not known if the Winters office would be opened during the rest of the week to accommodate those who wish to register vehicles, without having to make the trip to Ballinger.

Also, otherwise qualified voters who have not received their voter registration must do so at least 30 days prior to the voting date, if they wish to participate in the May primaries.

Our deepest appreciation goes to those who sent cards, flowers, prepared food and offered prayers and other deeds of kindness. -The Family of Hilda Minzenmayer. 4-1tc.

An important letter to all consumers

If you have been reading your newspaper, you know that many American farmers are in serious trouble.

The prices they are being paid for some of the crops they grow have dropped far below the full cost of production.

Inflation has increased the cost of the things they must buy.

The result is that thousands of farmers are faced with the possibility of losing their farms and livelihoods.

This is not because the American farmer is inefficient. On the contrary, he has a history of innovation, ingenuity, and hard work. Each farmer feeds 56 people.

Each farmer creates 10 non-farm jobs.

And our farmers have increased their productivity at a rate more than four times that of American industry.

They have given us an abundance of food and fiber...at the world's lowest prices.

But today they are trapped by a complex combination of worldwide economic factors that they cannot cope with alone.

Our farmers need our support.

They need to know that we are seriously concerned about their problems.

They need to know that we will support solutions as they emerge.

They need to know that we understand agriculture is vitally important to all of us, and is the best answer we have for generating exports to help offset the oil we import.

There is no question that our farmers must succeed, because this nation must have a strong agriculture.

And we can have a strong agriculture if all of us give the farmer the support he has earned and deserves.

IF YOU WANT....

A NEW LOCAL water supply
UPDATED water and sewer systems
IMPROVED streets

A NEW LOCAL WATER SUPPLY is of the utmost importance. We need to plan carefully now to meet our expanding needs in the future.

Many of our older WATER AND SEWER LINES are either too small for present demand or simply beyond repair. Steps must be taken toward updating these systems to meet present and future demands.

Most of OUR CITY STREETS need immediate improvements. Many of these problems have been caused by leaks in our water lines. I feel that a paving project will go hand in hand with replacement of water lines.

DECISIONS will be made during the next two years that will affect all of us.

If you want these things, then I urge your continued support for me with your vote on

Senior Citizens Survey Now In Progress

A survey is now in progress all over Runnels County of all persons 60 years of age and over, and those who will be 60 years old this year, to provide an accurate count of older Americans in Runnels County, and to inform these persons of the senior citizens programs presently available to them.

Six persons will be working door-to-door in the Winters area, and will be identified by name tags and special identification. They are Mary Rodriguez, Anna Nunez, Mae Lacy, Geneva Emmert, Carrie Foster, and Addie Mae Young.

Questions will be asked from a four-page questionnaire.

Information will also be given on a nutrition program that will be available August 1 to persons 60 years of age and older.

"Portraits of Aging" a special 30-minute documentary about older Texans will be shown on NBC (KRBC-TV) at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, March 31.

The production is by the Governor's Committee on Aging of the State of Texas. Producer of the film is Miller Productions, Incorporated of Austin.

The telecast will be shown on all major city NBC affiliates throughout the state.

No commercials will be shown during "Portraits of Aging" because Levi Strauss and Company are sponsoring the documentary as a public service, according to the producers of the film.

The documentary is divided into six sections which focus on older Texans of different ethnic and social backgrounds.

The common thread which the people in this film share is the fact that they have all found ways of coping with growing older.

The people in the film are "real" people telling their own stories. They have a vital interest in living and enjoying life to the fullest during their later years.

Two local Abilene citizens are in the film telling their story of how one can cope with their problems in a positive way and learn to celebrate life in their later years.

"Myrtle Dean Parish and Ferd Killough are the two Abileneans in the film. Their story and the others in the film will inspire you," states the producer.

KRUEGER'S TAX PLAN—Congressman Bob Krueger of Texas talks about his Fair Share Tax Plan with two Texas factory workers. Krueger's plan calls for individuals making above average incomes to pay a certain amount of federal taxes regardless of exemptions for which they qualify. The thrust of the Krueger legislation is to eliminate the problem where the wealthiest sometimes pay no income tax at all, leaving the burden of funding government to middle income Americans.

U. S. Representative
Bob Krueger

As April 15 approaches, income tax becomes more and more a topic of conversation and concern. Everyone, it seems, is complaining about taxes.

But despite all the complaints we voice and hear, the problems of our present income tax is not simply that it exists. But rather that our system is so complicated and many times allows those with extraordinarily high income to escape taxation entirely while the rest without the benefit of tax accountants and lawyers and tax shelters must pay the assigned shares.

Certainly, each American should take advantage of the exemptions allowed. Most were designed to benefit individuals. For example, homeowners are allowed to deduct interest payments as a means of assisting home ownership. Another exemption allows long-term capital gains to be taxed at 50% rather than 100% in order to encourage long-term investments and avoid penalties for those whose profits take long periods of time to be realized.

However, it is sometimes difficult to justify what we owe to Uncle Sam when it is common knowledge that the richest among us pay no income tax and, in no way, compensate our government for the benefits they receive from doing business in this country.

My Fair Share Tax Plan would alleviate many of the discrepancies that the few take advantage of to further burden middle income Americans. Because when the wealthy do not pay their fair share, then our government must look to honest, hard-working Americans to fill in the gap. Most of us agree that taxes are necessary—necessary to fund the benefits we receive from government: a strong national defense, education for our children, home security against economic collapse, and so on. Yet we cannot continue to allow those who enjoy the majority of the benefits to pay the least amount of taxes.

My Fair Share Tax Plan would guarantee that every person making an above average yearly income to pay a predetermined percent in taxes. The plan is simple in concept and easily applicable.

It would require that every individual making an above average income—say $40,000 or more annually—pay a percent of income prescribed by law regardless of the exemptions he or she is allowed. As the income bracket increases so would the percent of income paid in taxes increase, no matter what exemptions are available.

This is not to say that individual's making excellent salaries or investing wisely would not be allowed to take their rightful exemptions, but rather this system would guarantee that these individuals would pay some taxes each year no matter how skillfully their accountants work to their advantage.

Middle Americans have long paid more than their fair share when it comes to income taxes. However, it is not middle America alone that enjoys the benefits offered by our government and paid for with out taxes. No longer should individuals making average incomes single-handedly carry the American tax burden. And no longer should the rich and powerful be allowed to shy away from their obligation to this country from which their success is derived.

President Carter has proposed a tax cut this year, and I will support a realistic one combined with a cut in government spending.

But what is really necessary to restore the confidence of the American people in our tax structure is to guarantee that our government will be funded by all the people. In our democracy, responsibility must be shared by all who enjoy the fruits of the American way of life.

Texas Department of Health
Fratris L. Duff, M.D., Commissioner

A genetic defect which causes mental retardation unless detected early in life will be the target for a future Texas Department of Health screening program.

This defect is congenital hypothyroidism which, ac-ording to some medical authorities, is probably the most common preventable cause of mental retardation. The Texas Department of Health has been authorized by the Texas Legislature to establish a program to detect hypothyroidism in newborn infants through laboratory blood screenings. Future funding will allow the Department to actively pursue this program.

Dr. Clift Price, Chief of the Bureau of Personal Health Services with TDH, said there is the possibility that federal funds could become available for initial phases of the program. "We may get funding under the National Genetics Act, which I understand covers a wide range of congenital disorders in newborns." If not, he said, it will be up to the next session of the Legislature.

"Hypothyroidism is seen in about one of every 5,000 births," said Dr. Price. "We already operate another testing program for phenylketonuria (PKU), which occurs in about one of 15,000 births. So you can see that hypothyroidism, or cretinism, is about three times as prevalent as PKU."

"Since the effects are so disastrous," said Dr. Price, "that is why emphasis is put on finding the condition so early in life."

No matter how alert a doctor may be, it is possible that the condition may not be discovered within the first three months of life without a blood test, said Dr. Price. By then, much damage can already be done to proper brain development.

"What we are talking about," said Dr. Price, "is the chemical absence of thyroid. Once the problem is detected the infant can be put on thyroid hormone. Dramatic effects can be seen in a short period of time."

Some of the clinical signs of hypothyroidism may be sluggishness in the infant. Dr. Price says the baby sleeps a lot, doesn't follow with its eyes, cries very little and may be constipated. He says the temperature may be low, the skin cool, and the heart beat slow. In addition, said Dr. Price, the eyes and face may appear to be swollen, the eyes appear dull and the tongue seems to be large. In fact, he said, the tongue can interfere with nursing.

"Because of the mother's thyroid, the baby is protected until birth, and there may be some thyroid stored in the infant's tissues. If not breast fed, the condition can be masked for a few weeks—or for a few weeks after going off breast milk," he said.

With its large birth rate—233,666 births last year—Texas can expect to have a large number of babies born with hypothyroidism.

In its testing program, Dr. Price said the Department laboratories can use the same cards on which blood specimens are collected now for the PKU program.

Several thousand PKU tests are done in private laboratories annually, but the Department's Laboratories last year did 190,103 screenings for PKU. With proper equipment and manpower, it could have done a like number of hypothyroidism screenings.

If the ratio of one case to each 5,000 births held up in Texas, this means the state lab could have had early detection last year of some 40 cases.

CONGRESS 21ST DISTRICT
WHERE I STAND

As a rancher and as a consumer of food and fiber products, I am concerned about imported beef and its effect on the beef market as a whole. In the fiscal year 1975-76, the U.S. imported more than 700,000 tons of beef and veal. At that same time ranchers were practically giving their stock away at prices well below the cost of production. This only adds to my questioning the sensibility of government regulations.

When I started ranching in Medina County, there were five commercial packing plants in the area. Now there is only one and it is barely hanging on. What happened? Government regulations and the people who enforce them — the bureaucrats — make it almost impossible for an independent packer to stay in business.

Yet the U.S. allows the importation of foreign beef — 700,000 tons of it — over which the USDA has no control. For all they know it could have been killed on a stump with a rusty axe. My point is, if USDA regulations are designed to protect the consumer, how can they be justified when so much of the meat on the market is not prepared under their coverage and is not marked as imported at the meat counter?

Government regulations threaten not only the farmer and rancher, they lessen our agricultural exports and thereby weaken our nation's economy by worsening our balance of trade.

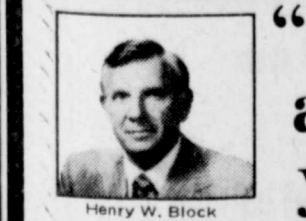

In addition to the aforementioned foreign beef imports, other non-agricultural imports — such as oil — have resulted in a negative trade balance every year but two since 1971.

If agriculture is that important to the U.S. international trade position, why are farmers facing their worst year since the depression?

As a congressman I will work to relieve the pressure on farmers and ranchers by eliminating senseless regulations such as those which inhibit the exportation of farm products, to change those regulations that permit imported beef to enjoy lower standards than those required by domestic beef and to lessen the flow of repetitive paperwork that now inundates small businessmen, farmers and ranchers.

Government regulations threaten the livelihood of those who produce the food for our tables and the clothes for our backs and endangers the health of our entire national economy.

Winters To Observe Industrial Week

"A Salute To Winters' Industries" will be the theme of the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored observance of Texas Industrial Week, April 1-7, with special recognition and industrial exhibits open to the public.

The exhibits, of products manufactured in Winters, and of service companies, will be in the showroom of Robinson Chevrolet Co. for three days, April 6, 7 and 8.

This year, in addition to strictly manufacturing industries, those companies specializing in oil field service are being considered industrial concerns, and are being included and recognized.

Members of the North Runnels Hospital Auxiliary will act as hostesses in the exhibit building, and will serve coffee and cookies. The Ladies Committee of the Winters Chamber of Commerce will be in charge of assigning booths to individual exhibitors. The exhibit building will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily during the three-day observance.

As of the first of the week, the following concerns were scheduled to have exhibits on display, in the form of examples of their products or their service: Alderman-Cave Milling & Grain Co.; Bishop & Sons Dirt Contractors; Dry Division, Wallace Murray Corp.; Bob Black Oil Field Trucking; Halliburton's; John's International; Mac Oil Field Co.; Pool Co.; Kozelsky Cabinet Shop; Winters Welding Works; and Connor Knives. More were expected to join the ranks of exhibitors before the opening day of the observance.

C-C Ladies Committee Picks Year's Project

The Ladies Committee of the Winters Chamber of Commerce has chosen beautification of the Bicentennial Star as a project for the year. The star, located beneath the water tower on North Main, was constructed by George Davis and presented to the people of Winters during the Bicentennial celebration in 1976.

A circular curb has been placed around the star by Jimmy Guevara, who donated the materials and labor. Tentative plans are to sterilize the soil inside the circle, and fill it with colored rock or crushed brick. Bluebonnets will be planted outside the circle, and the committee hopes to plant trees and place several benches in the area, if enough civic interest is shown, they said.

Any donations of materials, labor or money would be greatly appreciated, the committee said. Interested persons may contact Edna England at 754-5210, or donations may be left at the chamber office.

Dr. James Nevins Gets SC Award

Dr. James B. Nevins of San Angelo was presented the 1978 Outstanding Conservation Rancher Award by the Ballinger Lions Club, at their meeting last Thursday.

Dr. Nevins, superintendent of the San Angelo Independent School District, is a former superintendent of Winters Independent School District.

This marked the 28th year for the Ballinger Lions Club to make the presentation to the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District's Outstanding Conservation Rancher.

He will be a special guest of the Runnels S&WCD at the area awards banquet to be held Thursday night, March 30, on the campus of Angelo State University where he will be presented a certificate of achievement.

Dr. Nevins owns and operates a 2,025 acre ranch in the northeast part of Runnels County. He became a district cooperater in May, 1959, at which time he began a program of range improvement. To speed up his conservation program he entered into a Great Plains Conservation Program contract with the Soil Conservation Service in September, 1967.

His main objectives were to improve his rangeland by converting old cropland to grass, control brush by root plowing and seeding grasses such as Sideoats Grama, K. R. Bluestem, Caucasion Bluestem and Kleingrass. In carrying out all of his operations, consideration was given to wildlife by leaving strips and motts of brush for cover and as food for animals.

Following the establishment of the grasses, he added a modified short duration grazing system to his management practices to help utilize his grasses better.

In 1975 Dr. Nevins received the excellence in grazing award from the Texas Section of the Society of Range Management for his excellent grazing program.

$180,000 Allocated For CSA Emergency Assistance

More than $180,000 has been allocated by the Community Services Administration to assist low-income and elderly individuals and families in 31 Texas counties, 14 of which are located in the 21st district, Cong. Bob Krueger's office announced.

The monies, awarded through an emergency energy assistance program, will aid persons who have encountered severe hardships during an emergency situation. An emergency situation is defined as a blizzard, flood or fire or where the price of the heating fuel or energy has risen more than 20 percent over the past year.

The heaviest concentration of these funds will be in Krueger's district. Effective immediately, the program will continue through the end of April, 1978.

"We have experienced one of the roughest winters in recent years. It hit especially hard in Texas," Krueger said. "Funds of this sort can be used to purchase blankets, warm clothing, firewood and other necessities which will help many to survive."

The counties in the 21st district which are included in the program are Concho, Tom Green, Llano, Mason, Reeves, Pecos, Jeff Davis, Brewster, Glasscock, Upton, Real, Bexar, Comal and Runnels.

"This is the type of program the government should be backing—one of direct, tangible results to the people," Krueger said. "Of-
