The higher bid on the road grader was accepted "due to the opinion it is the best deal for Runnels County and we feel that the grader will have a better trade-in value in the future."

The bid accepted on the car was for a Pontiac Catalina, from Byler Motor Co. of Ballinger, for $5,689. The lower bid was by Robinson Chevrolet Co. of Winters on an Impala for $4,995.95.

Water Rates Clarified

Spokesmen for the City of Winters this week clarified emergency changes which were made in the water rate ordinance at a regular meeting last week.

First reports were said to be in error regarding the minimum rates and the number of gallons of water allowed under the minimum rates. When the minutes of the meeting were permanently transcribed, the motion to amend the ordinance, as understood by a majority of the council at the meeting, reflected the wording which amended the regular ordinance.

The water rate schedule, which will be used during the emergency period, follows:

INSIDE CITY
First 3,000 gals.	$4.00
Next 4,000 gals.	.75 per 1,000
Next 1,000 gals.	.70 per 1,000
All over 8,000 gals.	5.00 per 1,000

OUTSIDE CITY
First 3,000 gals.	$10.00
Next 4,000 gals.	1.25 per 1,000
Next 1,000 gals.	.90 per 1,000
All over 8,000 gals.	5.00 per 1,000

The emergency measure was taken by the council at the meeting last week to cut down water consumption during the present dry period. Officials some time ago had asked that residents curtail water consumption, and voluntary reduction was noted during the first several days, and then consumption started to increase as the hot, dry weather continued. Councilmen felt that strict restrictions on the use of water, in the way of extra charges, would force curtailment. They explained that these emergency measures would be discontinued once the watershed of Winters City Lake receives rain enough to add water to the dwindling supply in the lake. Residents have been asked to not water lawns and gardens, and take other conservation measures. There has been mention that if the high cost of water called for in the emergency amendment to the water ordinance does not restrict water use, then some other type of forced conservation measures must be taken.

HOT!

Roy Rice, official Winters weather observer for the Weather Bureau, has reported extreme temperatures—from the bottom to the top of the thermometer—since he became the observer in 1968. The most extreme low point he has reported in those ten years was the minus 15 degrees he read in January about five years ago.

However, during the past few weeks, Rice has been reading from the top of the thermometer, and during the past two weeks or more, those temperatures have been at or above the 100 degree mark.

Through Monday of this week, Rice reports that the temperature has soared to above 100 degrees for 16 consecutive days—and Tuesday promised no change. The thermometer boiled to 107 for three days in a row—Saturday, Sunday and Monday—and past 100 degrees for many other consecutive days.

Rice said that 1978 has seen some sort of record for high temperatures. Through Monday of this week, there have been 23 days when the temperature went to 100 degrees or over. The first 100 degree day in 1978 for the local Weather Bureau thermometer was May 13. There were six days in June when the temperature hit 100 or more. Then, beginning July 3, the high for each day for 16 days has been over 100 degrees.

Rice takes the reading at 10 a.m. each day, reading the highs and lows for the previous 24 hours.

The local weather observer has records for the 10 or more years since he took over in Winters in 1968. In that year, there were at least nine days—in July—when the temperature hit 100 or more. For the following years, the number of days with 100 degrees are recorded:

1969—4 days (June)
1970—17 days
1971—6 days
1972—8 days
1973—3 days
1974—16 days
1975—2 days (August)
1976—1 day (August)
1977—15 days

er, third vice president; Rev. Fred Thomas, two-year director; Tommy Lancaster, one-year director; Bill Dinger, two-year director; Mike Meyer, two-year director; and Dr.

Tom Tribble, Tail Twister. W. Lee Colburn, secretary-treasurer, was not present for the picture. Jere Isabel is the Lions Club Sweetheart for 1978-79.

Accent On Health
Texas Department of Health
Fratil L. Duff, M.D., Commissioner

The line between rabies in animals and rabies in man is a fine one which is very rarely crossed.

But it can happen, says the Texas Department of Health. Consider this:

When 26-year-old Raul Medina Pantoja left his home in Guanajuato, Mexico, in late May, he didn't know he carried the rabies virus in his body.

He died on a Fort Bend County ranch in mid-June, still not knowing.

It took a Texas Department of Health Regional Laboratory at the Houston City Health Department to discover the death cause of the Mexican national.

His companions didn't recall any animal bites the young man had suffered but were certain Pantoja had received none after reaching Texas.

This was the second death in Texas in two years attributed to rabies acquired in Mexico. Last year a San Antonio youth died of rabies transmitted by a dog bite suffered while visiting relatives in Mexico.

A great increase in animal rabies this year is causing concern among Texas Department of Health officials who believe the case numbers may reach the highest total in more than 10 years.

Dr. Charles R. Webb Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Disease Services of the Texas Department of Health, said the treatment of man is emphasized by the number of rabies cases in animals. Many Texans live in rural areas where rabies is endemic in wildlife, says Dr. Webb.

Through June, the TDH Laboratories confirmed 311 cases of rabies in animals, compared to 240 through the first six months of 1977.

With half a year still remaining, confirmed rabies cases are moving closer to the 389 confirmed rabies cases last year. The 1977 total was the highest since 1966 when 436 cases occurred in Texas.

Some of the largest outbreaks of rabies this year have been in the North Central sections of Texas and in the coastal plains west and southwest of Houston.

The skunk remains the major source of rabies in Texas, says William R. Bilderback, D.V.M., who heads the Zoonosis Control Division of the Bureau of Veterinary Public Health of TDH.

"More than 70 percent of rabies has occurred in skunks," said Dr. Bilderback. "Since skunks live in close proximity to man—particularly in rural areas and small towns—there is always the chance that a pet and a rabid skunk will make contact. Many pets have to be destroyed each year because of fights with skunks and other wild animals which have rabies," said Dr. Bilderback.

Foy V. McCasland, D.V.M., Chief of the Veterinary Public Health Bureau, said Texans are oriented towards the outdoors and take pets along on picnics, weekend outings and vacation. "This greatly increases the risks to the pets and to their owners," said Dr. McCasland.

The best precaution a pet-owning family can take is to have their cats and dogs vaccinated against rabies, said Dr. McCasland. This is especially true of farm and ranch families, since their pets are more likely to come in contact with wild animals. In some communities where rabies is a particular problem, special rabies clinics have been held.

People exposed to rabid animals may elect to take a long series of painful injections. The treatment may call for up to 23 injections.

In a recent Young County incident, 17 persons were treated with vaccine after a pet coyote puppy contracted rabies. In Uvalde County during June, nine persons exposed to rabies by a kitten, took the post exposure rabies prophylaxis.

And in the tragic case of Raul Medina Pantoja, who died of rabies, 10 close associates found it necessary to take the painful, 23-injection treatment to prevent them from contracting rabies from the human exposure.

REACT To Hold Regional Meet In San Angelo

Central West Texas REACT, Region II Council, will hold a regional meeting at 10 a.m. July 29 in the Goodfellow Recreation Camp, San Angelo.

Morning People vs. Night People

Most people can easily classify themselves as "morning people" or "evening people" based on their daily habits, reports Debby Johnson, a family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Each Person Should Accept Limitations

Accept limitations brought on by older age and adjust to these limitations for happy and full retirement years, advises a family life education specialist.

The Veterans Administration's compensation and pension program annually distributes some $8.1 billion to 5.5 million veterans of military service and survivors.

Pay attention to fats on labels and avoid foods with high fat content—this is probably the easiest means for weight-conscious people to keep nutrition up while losing weight, advises Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Growing older imposes some limitations on physical and mental abilities, Vivian Blair explains.

"An individual cannot alter their personal expectations until this admission is made. After this fact is accepted then an older adult can change from tennis to bowling or give up certain yard work," the specialist says.

Mrs. Blair is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Not only older adults, but every stage of human life requires adjusting.

For example, the very young child has to adjust to attending school.

The teen-ager has special problems he did not have before his teen years.

A young adult must adjust to new responsibilities of work and perhaps marriage.

Everyone has adjustments to make. Each individual must make these adjustments personally and no one can do this for him, Mrs. Blair adds.

English Girl Sees West Texas As It Is

What impresses a 15-year-old girl from Jolly Old England, who is visiting Texas—West Texas—for the first time? Among many things, the vastness of the state, and the weather. The girl was astounded to learn that West Texans think nothing of traveling 50 or even 100 miles for an evening of relaxation and "dining out." And the weather—while the visitor has been here, this area has experienced many days when the temperature failed to dip below 100 degrees.

Annette Rample, of Southampton, England, arrived June 27 to spend a month with her friend, Vonda Webb, also 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Webb. The two girls had been pen pals for some years, and had formed a close friendship. This year, Annette took advantage of an opportunity to visit her Texas friend. She arrived in Texas—FW/D Airport—June 27, and began a whirlwind visit which will last until July 25, when she will board a Boeing 747 for England and home.

The differences in the customs and habits of the people of the two countries are quite noticeable to a 15-year-old. For one thing, the food is different—including the way it is cooked—and it is quieter here than in Southampton, which has over a million population. The weather—in her home country, the temperature, she says, is rarely over 84 degrees, and it rains "nearly every day"—quite a difference. Also in England, Annette said, the girls are not so sports minded as the Texas girls seem to be.

During her stay here, Annette has had an opportunity to visit Six Flags, Amarillo, Palo Duro Canyon and the "Texas" pageant, Abilene, San Angelo, Bronte, Sweetwater, and had plans to visit San Antonio, LBJ Country, Austin, Mexico, Carlsbad Caverns or Sonora Caverns, and Amistad Dam.

Annette saw the "real" Texas when she attended the Texas Cowboy Reunion rodeo at Stamford, and ate barbecue. She also has attended baseball games, a slumber party... and even went camping at Hords Creek Lake.

Annette's father is a construction worker, and she has one brother. This is her first trip to the U.S., although she has visited France.

The two girls—Annette and Vonda—are in corresponding grades in school;

Vonda will be a sophomore in Winters High School next fall.

When Annette boards the 747 next Tuesday for England and home, she will take something of Texas with her—at least a pair of jeans—and a lot of memories of an eventful summer. She also will be taking a memento of another section of the U.S.—the photographer presented her with two big ears of Iowa corn.

Poe's Corner

BY CHARLIE POE

The concluding installment of Rose Dryden's letter to her mother during the Civil War.

It is now early in April and the farther south the regi-ment went the warmer it was getting. After scouting and riding from place to place, they at last found themselves on the Rio Grande. Here Robert as senior surgeon was ordered to establish a general hospi-tal and here he remained in charge. But he had so much to attend to that he could not open his gallery, so he concluded to sell his outfit as groceries could not be had in the part of the country where he had left us and

Mrs. Cartwright had been very kind to us which I had written him.

He thought the best thing for him to do was to send a good lot up to her which he did. He sent over two hundred dollars worth. He now sold his fine trotting horse and with the money bought clothing for us. The provisions all came safely but the dry goods were lost. The provisions he sent to Mrs. Cartwright as a present. He had paid our board in advance before he left but fearing we might need things of the kind, he sent them to her knowing it was for the comfort of the family.

I was there five months when my little Bobby was born. He was just three weeks old when Robert came back. He had left the Rio Grande every one thought in a dying condition and men had been detailed to wait on him on the road. He had been nearly six weeks get-ting back for he was too sick to travel fast but he soon began to mend and Mrs. Cartwright thinking there would not be any presents coming for a long time, as she did not know how long he might be sick, told him he had better get some place to board but she never offered us one thing back.

Robert concluded to take us to San Antonio where he could have medical advice. His friends here all persuad-ed him to resign that as he was no longer able to do duty, so accordingly he sent in his resignation and while waiting for an answer, he borrowed some $5,000 in specie for which he was to pay interest.

He now started for Matamoras to get a stock of drugs intending to start the drug business. On arriving there found there were no drugs in the market so from there he went to Havana and bought what he thought would be a good stock. On his return he was detained at the mouth of the Rio Grande two months and it was the last of March when he got here.

Strange to say he just got back in time to save us from the flood that happened about that time. But he nearly lost his own life. After procuring a place to open his stock, he prepared to do so when he found that govern-ment agents were pressing all drugs for the use of the army and of course, giving only promises for payment.

Here was trouble again. What should he do? He owed for all the goods, or rather he owed the money that bought them. However, he is not one that sits down and grieves, he believes in ac-tion. He quietly boxed his goods that he had opened and turned them over to the gentleman he got the money from. But by this transaction he was now about 3 or 4 hundred dollars behind be-sides his expenses while away.

He had kept about $600 worth of perfumery which the government did not want. During this time he had made the acquaintance of a gentleman who had a stock of fancy groceries and other articles. They concluded to form a partnership and divide the profits. Robert in order not to draw what might be coming to him sold his mule and ambulance, paid the back board he owed and six months more in advance.

He now felt easy again when it seemed as if our bad luck would never leave us. They seized his perfumery as counterband. Here he had been too smart for them in a manner. He had paid them through the custom house. He got them all back again but in doing so was put to considerable expense. Now came the break-up of our government, a perfect reign of terror was in the whole state. Stores were broken into and things carried off by thieves calling themselves soldiers.

Fortunately for Robert, an old company that had be-longed to his regiment had got here and protected the little he had. But of course, he had to help to get rations. He gave them coffee and flour at the value of $200. This came hard on us again. His partner all the time was drawing on the store. He was consuming both his profit and his capital, so their stock could not increase much and now the time had come when Robert must draw on the store also. A count of stock was taken and Robert found he had as much capital as his friend. He had a small stock of drugs in connection with his old business.

He expects to draw out from his present partner in the Spring when he will be joined by one of our up-coun-try friends who has a large capital. As it is now, he is making a living but that is all. Everything is very high and money very scarce. You may judge how marketing is when a cabbage sells for $1.00 a head. Beef is cheap from 5 to 6 cents a pound but pork and bacon are very high. The house I have has a small garden, I cultivate all the vegetables I use. I have at present lettuce, radishes, a few cabbages, plenty of lima beans. I planted turnips almost too late however I use the tops for greens. I have onions and garlic, also plenty of chily to eat.

Up here in the country, the only school that I can put Cora to was the Convent. It is a long distance. Too far off for a little girl unless I had some one to go and come with her every day. So I put her in as a boarder, it comes very hard on us. To do so the rest of us have to go without much comforts. We are trying to get a house up town and then I shall take her. Up home the war being over, we can get our place but to try and sell it now, we could get nothing for it. But in the Spring when the migration begins, we want to sell and buy a house in San Antonio.

I always thought when the war was over that I would pay a visit to old Baltimore, but it has ended so badly for us that I fear it will be a long time.

When we get a home you and father must come to see us. If Robert can only keep up, a year will make a great difference in our circum-stances. If he should get down sick, then all is indeed lost.

Please excuse my many mistakes for I write with my baby on my lap. Goodbye dear Mother and Father— Yours Rosalia

Consumer Food News

Eggs, fresh vegetables and store "specials" are among this week's best buys at Texas grocery markets.

Also, fryer chickens, melons and canned meats, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clayatt, a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

This week's price-quality trends are the following: POULTRY—Eggs are currently "one of the least-expensive sources of high-quality protein. Fryer chickens have moderate prices in spite of heavy demand. Whole birds are the best value on a price-per-pound basis. Look for economy prices on new-crop turkeys (small to medium sizes).

FRESH VEGETABLES—Best buys include corn, squash (yellow and zucchini), cabbage, carrots, okra, purple hull and blackeye peas, dry yellow onions and cucumbers. Also, peppers, potatoes, and in some stores, broccoli and eggplant.

In buying corn, look for husks with bright green color and ears with plump kernels. Keep corn cool. GROCERY MARKET

AISLES—Look for features on canned and frozen grapefruit juice, canned tomatoes and tomato products, tuna fish, applesauce, cling peaches, pears and fruit cocktail. Frozen concentrated orange juice supplies are low. FRESH FRUITS—Best values include moderate prices on cantaloupe, watermelon and honeydew melons. In buying watermelon, make sure the lower side is yellowish rather than white or pale green.

Other values include peaches, plums, cherries, nectarines and grapes—although prices vary, quality is generally good. PORK—Supplies are light, as usual this time of year. Features include smoked ham, picnics, some bacon, sliced quarter loin, and rib and loin-end roasts.

BEEF—Prices are high. Best values include chuck cuts and liver. CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: Canned meats (12-ounce size) serve four economically.

Follow the "recommended use" guidelines for sunlamps. Ignoring these suggestions can result in severe sunburn and eye damage, warns Carla Shearer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Best "Feet" Forward

plant Callie bermudagrass during the summer or fall last year realizes that moisture is a definite requirement for establishment," points out Dorsett. "There were numerous reports of stand failure of Coastal and Callie. Non-irrigated planting during the hot, dry months is a large gamble and is often not successful. Spring still remains the best time to attempt dryland plantings."

There is no substitute for good land preparation and weed control, he notes. A dry year makes proper land preparation pay off in dryland plantings. A seedbed that has been prepared a couple of months in advance will have settled down and absorbed moisture. Light diskings for weed control and smoothing help firm the seedbed.

The final planting should be made into a firm, smooth seedbed that is moist and weed-free. This type of dryland seedbed is best accomplished during the winter and early spring when moisture normally is adequate. Well prepared, moist seedbeds require little additional moisture for plant establishment.

"Remember that improved bermudagrasses have the same requirements for growth that other grasses have. They will respond to proper planting techniques. Shortcuts in planting can result in disappointing stands," emphasizes Dorsett.

Longer Life For Cut Flowers

Making cut flowers look good for the longest possible time is a challenge faced by many home gardeners.

Dr. William C. Welch, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, offers the following tips to help give longer life to cut flowers, whether homegrown or from your local florist:

"Belly" Flopper

1. Make certain the container is washed clean with soap and water before using.
2. Cut stems at a slant, using a sharp knife or shears.
3. Before cutting, select flowers that are not fully open; avoid cutting old flowers.
4. Remove foliage from the lower third of the stem; also remove all broken and bruised parts of the stem.

5. Cut flowers in early morning or late afternoon.
6. Wash flowers and foliage to remove dirt, sprays or dusts if possible.
7. Store cut flowers in a cool area or refrigerate until arranged.
8. On receiving bulk flowers from the florist, cut about one inch off the stem ends.

9. Do not place the flowers in a cool area during arrangement in direct sun, the night but away from near gas fires or oil burners. drafts. Whenever possible, place the

Improved Bermuda Grasses

With all the interest in improved bermudagrasses—like Callie bermudagrass—there is one fact that should be realized. The requirements for establishment and growth of these grasses are the same as for Coastal or Common bermuda.

"The improved bermudas are not miracle grasses," contends Don Dorsett, forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "They do not become established and produce without moisture and fertility."

All the research data that show high production when comparing bermudagrasses are based on heavy fertilizer applications. So fertility is usually not a limiting factor in the comparison, adds the forage specialist.

WILLIAM F. LOWE

W. F. Lowe Retired From Exxon Co.

William F. (Chilli) Lowe, with Exxon Company, USA, retired effective July 1. He had been assigned as an operator, lease, in the Ft. Chadbourne area, Midland District, Midcontinent Production Division of the company. Lowe joined the company at the Baytown refinery in 1945. He moved to Eunice, N.M., in 1950, and three years later was transferred to the Winters area. His hometown is Chillicothe. He is married to the former Maxine Colwell. They have one daughter, Mrs. Jimmy (Sandy) Hoppe, of San Angelo, and two grandchildren, Kimberly and Zane. Retirement plans are for Mr. and Mrs. Lowe to continue making their home in Winters.

A retirement dinner is being planned in his honor, at which time he will be presented retirement awards.

B. Boatright Named Lone Star Farmer

Benny Boatright of Winters was named Area IV Star Lone Star Farmer during the 50th Texas Future Farmers of America Convention in San Antonio July 12-14. Terry Gerhart, also of Winters, won second in state for the agricultural sales and service award. Boatright, 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Boatright, and a student in Winters High School. He raises breeding sheep and swine and shows barrows and lambs.

The Lone Star Farmer degree which 85 boys from 32 schools received last week is the highest degree offered by the state association. From each area's Lone Star Farmers, a top boy is selected, and it is from this group that one is chosen as the Star Lone Star Farmer. Jeffrey Howard of Ballinger won the $750 C. J. (Red) Davidson scholarship which was presented during the convention.

Rep. Nabers Wants To Return Money

Governor Dolph Briscoe this week said he is very interested in a proposal which could effectively reduce property taxes levied by Texas school districts. The proposal, as put forth by Representatives Jim Nugent of Kerrville and Lynn Nabers of Brownwood would dedicate one-fourth of the revenue from the State's general sales and use tax to reduce school ad valorem taxes throughout the state.

hope for a hearing early this week on their proposal. Nugent and Nabers explained that to be eligible to receive additional state funds, under their proposal, a school district must reduce the ad valorem taxes it levies for maintenance and operation purposes by $200 for each $220 it will receive. The maximum amount by which a school district would have to reduce its taxes would be 50 percent. The "new" state money, the two House members said, would be distributed to school districts on a per Average Daily Attendance (ADA) basis with the 1978 share being $220 per ADA.

"The Legislature currently is meeting in a special session to consider legislation and proposed constitutional amendments which would return a portion of the current and projected state surplus to the people of Texas," Governor Briscoe said. "I am extremely interested in any proposal which could result in a lowering of property taxes and particularly those levied by our Texas school districts." Nugent and Nabers have expressed

"The existence of the surplus in the State Treasury and the projected surplus has to mean that the State is taking too much money from the pockets of Texas taxpayers. In our opinion it is time to return part of that money to the taxpayers and we think our approach is most equitable," Nugent and Nabers said.

BRAGGING on AGRICULTURE with Glenn Bragg

Prussic Acid Poisoning of Livestock
Livestock producers in Runnels County are reminded that a prussic acid buildup may occur in certain plants that have been stressed by drought, followed by a rain that causes the formation of new growth, says Glenn Bragg, County Extension

Agent. Serious cattle losses have already occurred in certain areas of Texas and may occur here, if certain conditions develop. There are many plants containing the toxic principle that can poison livestock, however, the more common are Johnson grass, Sorghum, Sorghum Hybrids, and Sudan grass. The hydrocyanic acid is not found in appreciable quantities in healthy growing plants. The acid develops only when the normal growth of plants have been retarded or stopped by drought, bruising, trampling, wilting or following a frost, contends Bragg. Runnels County is suffering from drought and if a rain occurs, the resulting growth may become very dangerous, if eaten by animals or made into hay before the hydrocyanic acid is completely released. Prussic acid poisoning works rapidly and affected animals rarely survive more than 1 or 2 hours. In most acute cases, animals become affected within 10-15 minutes of eating toxic material and may die within 2 to 3 minutes. The following precautions may prevent losses:

1. Don't forget that wilted or new growth of certain plants may be dangerous.
2. Suspect material can be checked by the Texas A&M

Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Lab or a local veterinarian if he has the test material.
3. Animals that have been filled up on hay and are not hungry, are less apt to be poisoned.
4. If a field is suspected to contain poison plants, one or two less desirable animals could be turned on the pasture and watched for a few hours before the entire herd is released on the field.
5. Call a veterinarian immediately if cyanide poisoning is suspected. He can be prepared to bring an antidote for the poison. Speed is the most important factor in saving affected cattle.

Congressional Candidate Presents "Texas Viewpoint" In Meeting

Following is a letter presented by Nelson Wolff, Democratic nominee for Congress, Texas 21st District, to President Carter in a private meeting in the Oval Office at the White House July 11. In the letter, Nelson presents the Texas viewpoint on national issues and his intent to represent that viewpoint if elected from the 21st District:
"Dear President Carter, "I am writing this note in anticipation that our visit (Tuesday) will be brief due to the constraints on your time. "As the leader of our nation... you must set the direction of our country, inspire our people, and speak for the national interest instead of narrow special interests. Since the Great Depression the Democratic party has been the driving force behind the movement to guarantee all our citizens equal opportunity to participate in the benefits of our society, and has led the efforts to help those who cannot help themselves. In the process of seeking these worthy goals we have created a most unfortunate by-product, a welfare state with siffling regulations and (an) enlargement of the public sector at the expense of the private sector. Our people have been divided into groups who scratch and claw for their share of the government pie. We have seen a 260 percent increase in federal spending in the last decade with the devastating consequences of a large tax burden on our people, unrestrained deficit spending and rampant inflation. There is not a greater problem facing our country than the need to control inflation. Our domestic policy must curtail federal spending, reverse the trend toward more government regulation, and reduce the tax burden on our people. I look forward to serving in Congress and working with you to implement a national policy toward these goals. "Mr. President, it is inevitable that we will disagree on various issues for it will be my policy to vigorously work for and reflect the Texas viewpoint and in particular the viewpoint of the 21st Congressional District. I say this not in the sense of a parochial view but with the firm belief that the views of the 21st District will reflect the best interest of our nation. "May God continue to be your inspiration and help you to lead us through the difficult times we face. -Nelson W. Wolff."

Preliminary statistics show the proposal would have the following effect in Runnels County:

School District	Property Tax	"New" State Funds
Olfen CSD	50%	$3,260
Ballinger ISD	39%	22,532
Miles ISD	50%	27,647
Winters ISD	35%	15,389
Wingate ISD	13%	906
