Growth of Winters Bank Reported, Directors Elected

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of The Winters State Bank last Thursday, Jan. 18, ten directors were re-elected, and in turn elected a chairman and other officers, and heard a report of the growth of the bank from the president.

Directors re-elected are J. W. Bahlman, Charles D. Hudson, W. F. Minzenmayer, Audra L. Mitchell, Gattis Neely, John W. Norman, Kirby Robinson, T. A. Smith, M. R. Williams and Fred Young.

At the organizational meeting of the directors, T. A. Smith, who has been serving as chairman of the board ten years, was named Chairman Emeritus, recognized for serving "with distinction" as chairman of the board.

Kirby Robinson was elected chairman of the board; Audra L. Mitchell, vice chairman; and Gattis Neely, secretary of the board.

Officers of the bank were elected, including Charles D. Hudson, president; Donal Lee Harrison, vice president; Estella Bredemeyer, vice president; Lanny Bahlman, cashier; Mary Beth Smith, assistant cashier; and Margaret Bell, assistant cashier.

Bank president Charles D. Hudson reported to the stockholders a sound growth for the bank in the last year, with deposits gaining approximately $2 million during the period. He contributed the growth to a sound, healthy economy, in spite of the drought conditions which curtailed agriculture.

Hudson said the directors, officers and employees of The Winters State Bank "will continue, with a great deal of energy, to provide every sound banking service, as in the past." With this attitude, "we will provide a stimulus for the continued financial growth of the bank's customers and the Winters area."

HANG IN THERE!—This is what can happen to a utility pole when hit by something like a big truck. Strength of the wires and cables on the pole is evident, because there is little support from the pole itself. This pole was hit sometime Saturday, Jan. 13, and has withstood winds and some ice. This picture was taken Jan. 14, and the pole was still standing—at S. Grant and Tinkle—Tuesday morning of this week.

City Election Called April 7

Winters Mayor Homer Hodge told The Enterprise Monday night he definitely "will not be a candidate" for re-election to office in the April 7 city election.

Alderman Alvin Scates, whose term of office also expires in April, said Tuesday morning he has made no decision.

Earl Roach, the other alderman whose term expires, is in a Fort Worth hospital where he underwent heart surgery last week. Close friends have indicated he will not run for re-election.

Winters City Council in a regular meeting Monday night, officially called the election for April 7. Deadline for filing will be March 7.

Mayor Hodge said Monday night he had served six years as an alderman, and has served as mayor for six years.

Mayor Hodge Named To UCRA Board

Winters Mayor Homer Hodge has been named to the board of directors of Upper Colorado River Authority. The appointment was made by Gov. Dolph Briscoe in the flurry of appointments before Briscoe left the office of governor.

The appointment is for six years, Hodge said Monday night. He has been Winters' mayor for six years.

A & M Specialist To Speak At Meeting

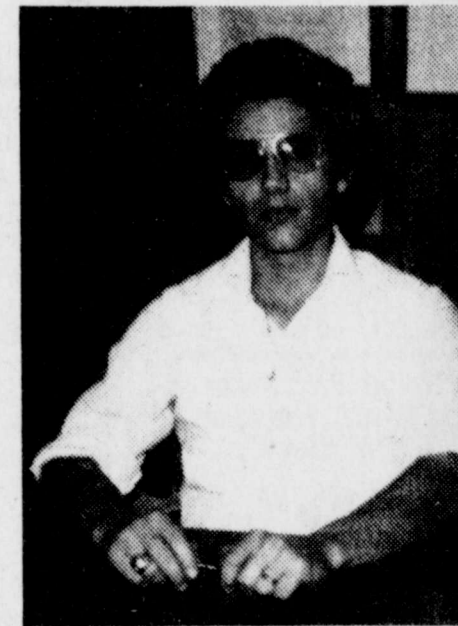

Runnels County Farmers Union will sponsor a special agricultural marketing program, presented by Dr. Ronald Knutson of Texas A&M University, Monday, Jan. 29, at 7 p.m. in the Ballinger Community Center.

Dr. Knutson specializes in agricultural policy and marketing. He has served as chief economist in the Agricultural Marketing Service of USDA and as administrator of the Farmer Cooperative Service. He has served on numerous commissions and studies and is author of more than 300 publications of agricultural policy and marketing. Currently, Dr. Knutson is Extension Economist in Agricultural Policy and Marketing with the Texas A&M Extension Service.

"That's twelve years of my active life," he said. "And I have so many other things which need my attention." Hodge said he has enjoyed the many years he has served on the council, as alderman and mayor, and has received much satisfaction. He also said that he will continue to offer his services whenever needed, to keep Winters growing.

Scates is completing his second term of office, four years.

To Tuesday noon, no person had announced for any of the offices.

Housing Authority Calls For Bids

Architects' plans have been completed, and financial backing has been approved, for twelve housing units in Winters, and the Housing Authority of the City of Winters has started advertising for bids for construction, it was announced this week by members of the housing authority board.

Bids for construction will be opened at a meeting of the board at 2 p.m., Feb. 15, in the community room of the Housing Authority building.

Members of the Housing Authority said six duplex units will be constructed, consisting of four one-bedroom units and eight two-bedroom units. Construction will be of brick.

Financing for the project, which has been more than a year on the drawing table, will be through long term loans from the Farmers Home Administration.

The project will be located on Broadway, about two blocks east of the City Hall and old light plant building.

Architects for the housing project are Boone and Pope of Abilene.

The Winters City Council Monday night approved an ordinance designating the intersection a 4-way stop area.

Wood St. and two blocks of South Cryer have for many years been included in the business loop system of FM 53, and carry fairly heavy traffic, it was explained. The Senior Citizens recreation center is located on the corner of Wood and Cryer.

Students Will Hear Talks On Dangers of Pet Diseases

Dangers of contracting diseases, especially rabies, from pets—and even wild animals—will be explained to students of Winters schools in meetings conducted by representatives of the Texas Department of Health, Public Health Region IV, next Wednesday, Jan. 31, George M. Beard, principal of the Elementary and Junior High Schools has announced.

The public health representatives, Dr. Catherine Tull, DVM, of Region IV, and Larry W. Paul, health technician with the department, will meet with the several classes and show slides and lecture on handling of pets, and the dangers of diseases. Dr. Tull is the director of zoonoses control with Region IV.

It has been reported that this area has had a high level of rabies cases during the past year or two, and the health department representatives will explain to the students the signs to watch for in pets, and action to be taken when animals are suspected of having the disease.

In addition to diseases among pets, the health agency representatives will also remind students that diseases can be contracted from wild animals, through trapping or other handling.

The series of talks with the students—the first was held Wednesday of this week—comes at a time of high interest locally in the control of animals in Winters and the community. An animal control officer has recently been employed by the City of Winters, and the control program is accelerating.

TRAPPING FOR SURVIVAL

Since the story about Leo Purcell, the Tuscola hunter finding profit and pleasure in trapping, came out recently in the Abilene Reporter-News there has been a flood of letters protesting such cruelty.

However, the latest letter to the editor defends trapping by citing the example of whitetail deer overpopulating their habitat in two years when hunting was made illegal. The deer became weak and suffered virus-induced tumors as a direct result of overcrowding in the competition for food.

In the article, Mr. Purcell said, "Without the assistance of trappers and hunters, the animals would become an ecological disaster. They would overpopulate and with overpopulation comes disease, malnutrition, starvation and often death."

I'm not here to argue the pros and cons of hunting as my only experience has been catching a rat in a trap when I lived on the farm. I was elated at my success but too chicken to remove the rat.

No one can give advice like those who haven't had the experience and my purpose is teaching the art of survival to anyone who might be stranded in a wilderness or on the desert, as was my friend, Goldie, whom I wrote about in ANGEL TO THE PAPA-GOS. All I know about trapping, I learned from her.

Goldie and Marion Tracy had come to the Arizona Papago Reservation in 1927 from their home in Whittier, California. When they learned that Joshua, Marion's brother, was ill, they hastily threw some clothing and a few household items in their Model T Ford and started

Black Spots On Cans Mean Sulfur--Not Harm

Black spots on the inside of cans mean sulfur is present, but the food is still safe, Mary K. Sweeten reports.

Certain foods do liberate sulfur, and that causes brown, black or blue spots on cans. Tomato sauce is one example.

However, this condition is not harmful to the contents of the can, she says.

Mrs. Sweeten is a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Although the discoloration may occur in sealed cans during processing, a federal regulation prohibits the use out, thinking to bring Joshua home with them.

A bachelor, Joshua lived on his mining claim midpoint of the reservation. He had suffered a stroke and his heart was affected so badly he could not be moved, the doctor said.

A prospector all of his life, Joshua had put fortunes into the ground and was living on $25 a month inherited from the family estate. To augment his income, he had been doing some trapping and from his sickbed he taught Goldie and Marion how to bait and set traps for the purpose of catching wild animals. The Tracys had left their jobs and had no income.

The first week the Tracys worked hard but caught only one pelt, a coyote. After a month of little success, they learned the human scent must be kept from a spot at least six to eight feet across the trap. To accomplish this, nothing could be touched with the bare hands, so the trappers wore gloves. Neither could the knees touch the ground. Goldie weighed over 300 pounds and as there were no trousers large enough for her, she wore knee pads when kneeling.

Standing at a place outside the door, where Joshua could see her, Goldie did all the skinning of the carcasses under his direction. These pelts were sent to several firms in St. Louis, whose names she learned by studying advertisements and price lists sent to box holders.

Goldie found that pelts were paid for according to quality. Coyotes brought from two to six dollars; badgers, three dollars; lynx and bobcat, six dollars; skunks, seventy-five cents to one dollar; and kit foxes, two dollars a fur.

The Tracys were glad when they made enough money to buy some new traps. They used four sizes. The number one was for small game, number two for cats and foxes, number three for coyotes, and number four for lions.

They were delighted when they could catch a badger. It's squat body not only furnished grayish fur worth about three dollars, but provided several good meals and about six pounds of lard, which could not be told from hog lard. Although a little coarse, the meat was delicious when roasted with a few cloves of garlic.

Once while out hunting, the Tracys wound their way through cacti, prickly pear and shrubs to the mouth of a box canyon, between jagged walls of rock. Marion, thin and stoop-shouldered, parted the bushes and looked carefully at the ground. He was followed by Goldie who carried a bait bucket full of rabbit meat, pliers and some old newspapers. Several steel traps were slung over her arms. She looked for cactus thorns each time before setting her foot, encased in a size 13 man's shoe, on the ground.

"We're about half-way through, Goldie," said Marion. "We'll set the new traps above the water hole." He pushed through a desert hackberry bush and she followed right behind him.

A furry streak hurtled through the air from an overhanging rock and landed on Marion's back. He screamed in agony as the huge animal ripped him with its of possibly dangerous food containers.

Use of any food container that would transfer a harmful substance to the food in the can would be a violation of the Food Additives Amendment of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, Mrs. Sweeten explains.

Mrs. Barr will receive a bachelor of science degree.

claws. Goldie lunged at the cat, grabbed him by the throat and squeezed with her tremendous strength.

The powerful animal clawed her arms with his hind feet and ripped off her skirt, then her petticoat, and her stockings but she held on knowing the cat would kill her if she let go. After a seeming eternity, the powerful jaws went limp and the cat was dead.

Although the Tracys were badly hurt they knew that the pelts would spoil if left overnight. They finished checking the eight-mile trap line and managed to crawl back to their car and drive to their camp home carrying the animal Goldie had chok-

Keeping Marriage Strong

Though a happy marriage is still one of the most richly rewarding of all human experiences, it requires tolerance, understanding, faith, sharing and careful handling.

Although more than a million Americans sign a divorce decree each year--marriages are worth saving, a family life education specialist, Jenny Reinhardt, says.

While some separations are sensible and some divorces inevitable, a greater number of marriages could be revitalized, she continues.

Miss Reinhardt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Just as an adequate knowledge of physical "first aid" can save a victim from drowning, some knowledge of psychological "first aid" can often rescue an ailing marriage, the specialist adds.

Some suggestions for keeping a marriage strong include:

- Decide to make the marriage work.
- Those who enter marriage thinking they can get a divorce if things don't work out will probably get a divorce.
- Devote energies to repairing the marriage instead of replacing the marriage partner.
- Establish a dialogue.

A couple must discuss ideas, concerns, problems, hopes, pleasures and plans to maintain a relationship.

When the lines of communication between a husband and wife become disconnected, they no longer send or receive important messages.

Couples must find methods that work for them and set aside time to communicate.

- Some ideas are:
 - leisurely walks to discuss events of the day
 - regular chats to make decisions and to discuss issues

—weekend leisure time for communication —commitment and willingness to share thoughts and feelings.

• Avoid "gunny sacking." Deal with emotions as they occur--storing up in a "sack" is non-productive for the individual and the couple.

Sooner or later the hurt, frustration, disappointment or sadness will come out into the open, and it is harder for a couple to work through large amounts than small amounts of emotion.

Make time and a commitment for sharing large, small, happy and sad experiences.

• Become aware of what one mate does that can influence the behavior of the other.

One mate's behavior can and does influence that of the other mate.
For instance, does one mate provide attention only when the other is sick, thereby reinforcing the positive reason for being sick?

The lesson is that during times of marital trouble, couples must take a long hard look at themselves.

They must ask themselves this question: "What am I doing (consciously or unconsciously) to contribute to my partner's depressions, moods or ailments?"

• Allow for separateness in the marriage. Let the individuals and marriage breathe.

A marriage needs enough separateness so the partners do not lose their true identity or individuality.

An effective, happy marriage has two whole people who are interacting. Both have their own interests.

They are not resentful or unhappy and enjoy being together as well as times of separateness.

Accent On Health

Texas Department of Health
Fratris L. Duff, M.D., Commissioner

The role played by heredity in the life of a newborn is accepted and understood, but the prominence of nutrition in the development and perpetuation of a new life still isn't clear to the general public.

Yet, proper nutrition for the mother during and after pregnancy can have a life-long effect on the mental and physical development of a child, says Dr. Raymond T. Moore, Commissioner of the Texas Department of Health.

Dr. Moore said nutrition from pregnancy through childhood and on into the later years of life will be discussed in Austin January 30-February 1 at the Sheraton Crest Hotel by a blue-ribbon group of speakers. The event is the "Food and Fitness—Nutrition Throughout the Life Cycle Conference" sponsored by the Texas Department of Health and Texas Public Health Association.

The importance of nutrition in every phase of the life cycle will be explored at the conference, said Dr. Moore. While nutrition of the expectant mother is important to the outcome of the pregnancy, nutritional patterns developed at an early age can follow a person throughout life and can to a large degree establish patterns of illness. Overnutrition can leave its marks on an individual just as clearly as undernutrition, said Dr. Moore.

Dr. C. R. Allen Jr., Director of the Chronic Disease Division of the Texas Department of Health, said the medical profession and nutritionists can pinpoint the dangers and the results from unwise eating habits.

"Obesity—gross overweight—is just one penalty that individuals pay, not only from eating the wrong, fattening foods but compounding the problem by continually eating too much," said Dr. Allen.

Medical authorities say that 4 to 5 percent of our population is pathologically obese. Additionally, said Dr. Allen, approximately 25 to 30 percent of Americans are distinctly overweight; that is, more than 20 percent above their ideal body weight."

Dr. Allen said obesity is a factor associated with heart diseases, strokes, diabetes, back pain and gall bladder trouble. And, he said, it is considered by many to be a factor in the development of certain types of cancer.

Dr. Allen noted that salt has been recognized as contributing to high blood pressure. "And," he added, "high blood pressure—or hypertension—is a contributing factor to heart disease, the number one killer of Americans; to stroke, the number three killer; and to kidney disease."

While proper diets are essential in helping control such diseases as diabetes and hypertension, proper nutrition is just as important for well people, said Dr. Allen.

"If we could get folks to cut down on sugar, salt and saturated fats, to eat in moderation, include plenty of fiber, and consume fruits and vegetables regularly, the results would be amazing," he said. "They could improve their chances of a long life free of illness by these healthy eating habits. Americans could do well if they would eat more poultry and fish which have less cholesterol."

Dr. Allen said there's nothing dramatic about eating the proper foods, "but it is very important to good health."

Changes In Food Stamp Program Cause Confusion

Some confusion has resulted from changes in the food stamp program that went into effect Jan. 1, regional officials of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) report.

Southwest region FNS in Dallas, Tex., notes that its field offices in Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas are getting questions from grocers and their food stamp customers on several program revisions. There is some confusion stemming from food stamp usage where cash change, hot foods purchase, bottle deposits and "cents-off" coupons are concerned.

The agency has explained its regulations about each of those items. Up to 99 cents cash may now be given in change to food stamp customers. When the change due is more than 99 cents, unendorsed $1 food stamps will be given to the food stamp customer. Grocers are no longer to give due bills, credit slips or tokens to make change for food stamps. They are, however, required to honor all such due bills, credit slips and tokens given in change prior to Jan. 1.

Hot foods ready for immediate consumption may not be paid for with food stamps at retail stores. Authorized meal services for communal dining facilities for the elderly and institutions that serve meals to drug addicts and alcoholics are not affected by the 'hot foods' provision.

Deposits on containers, (such as milk bottles) may be paid for with food stamps when the containers hold items eligible for purchase with food stamps.

In the matter of cents-off coupons, they are to be redeemed for food stamp customers in the same manner as they are for cash customers. If cash customers are given cash, food stamp customers should receive cash for their cents-off coupon value is deducted from the cost of the item for cash customers, it should be deducted for food stamp customers.

Miles Rancher Gets Grazing Award

Robert L. Herring of Miles received the Excellence in Grazing Management Award, presented during the recent annual meeting of the Texas Section of the Society for Range Management in San Angelo.

Herring was among 45 ranchers who were selected statewide to receive the award for their understanding and contributions in the area of range management.

Herring, who ranches approximately five miles northwest of Miles, entered into a Great Plains Conservation Program contract with the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District and Soil Conservation Service about 10 years ago. Since then he has rootplowed and seeded about 3,000 acres of poor condition rangeland, developed additional watering facilities for livestock, fenced pastures to better distribute grazing and installed a rotation and deferment program to aid in maintaining forage production. Herring also retained better condition native pastures to winter his livestock. He believes that native pasture will winter livestock better but only if the seed source is available for the grasses to come back. Pastures where this was not evident were rootplowed and seeded. Wildlife was also considered in the operation and strips and select trees were left to provide food and cover.

All of this improvement has not left Herring with the ideal ranch and he has further plans on how to improve and develop his ranch to give him more production, efficiency and greater flexibility.

Power Shortage? Keep Frozen Foods Safe
 What to do with frozen foods during a power shortage. That's a question you should ask with the onset of winter weather.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) warns that if you lose power, keep the freezer closed as much as possible. Avoid opening the door. Use a freezer thermometer to keep track of how high the temperature gets inside the freezer. If temperatures climb above 44 degrees for more than four hours, food may be unsafe to eat.

After a power failure, when is it safe to refreeze foods stored in the freezer? USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service says that depends on the temperature at which the foods were held, how long they were held, and the type of food.

You may safely refreeze any foods except fish and combination dishes if they still contain ice crystals and have been held no longer than one or two days at refrigerator temperatures after thawing.

Never refreeze completely defrosted food. All thawed vegetables must be discarded. Thawed meat or poultry with any off-color or off-odor should be discarded.

As long as cold foods are held at temperatures 40 degrees or below, you can refrigerate them or use immediately.

Meat and other foods taste better when kept at a constant temperature. Fluctuating levels of coldness tend to dry out foods.

During cold weather, freezers may be able to maintain optimum temperatures of 10 degrees or below for a short time. So you may not lose any foods from

Poster Contest Winners

Catherine Carleton, second grader from St. Joseph School in Rowena, is the winner of the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District poster contest, according to Fred Perkins, district conservationist.

Catherine will be honored and receive an award for her grand champion poster at the San Angelo Area Awards banquet, March 22, in the Houston Harte University Ballroom at Angelo State University.

Catherine's award winning poster will also be sent to the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board at Temple to be considered for one of three trophies to be awarded in the State Region Two poster contest. Her poster was selected as winner from 65 posters entered in the contest from Runnels County schools.

power failure. Make sure food is safe to eat by keeping track of temperature.

Serve Fruits All Year Long
 You can make most all your favorite fruit cups, sauces, puddings, gelatins and fruity desserts this winter with processed fruits. You can serve fruits harvested and preserved at the peak of goodness year around by using frozen or canned fruits.

If you plan to use frozen fruit, serve them while they are icy cold. The texture of the fruit will be firmer—more like that of fresh fruits, say home economists with the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

To preserve the color of frozen fruits, thaw fruit in its sealed container, and serve as soon as thawed, says USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service.

Fruit packed with dry sugar thaws slightly faster than that packed in syrup. Both sugar and syrup packs thaw faster than unsweetened packs. Fruit will thaw faster if placed in a pan of cool water.

Cooking leftover fruit that has been thawed helps it keep better in your refrigerator for a few days.

Winters school winners were: 3rd grade, Mark Garcia, first place; Angela Ledford, second place; Gilbert Campos, third place.

Ballinger school winners were: Kindergarten, Deron Robinson, first place; 4th grade, Connie Robinson, first place; 6th grade, Julie Clifton, first place; Bret Burton, second place; Elaine Jorgenson, third place.

St. Joseph school winners were: 1st grade, Andrea Garcia, first place; Matthew Watts, second place; Lori Schaefer, third place; 2nd grade, Catherine Carleton, first place; Terry Franke, second place; Patrick Lange, third place; 3rd grade, Jeanne Lange, first place; John T. place. When cooking with frozen fruits, let them thaw until pieces can be separated. Usually the liquid from the frozen fruit is enough or more than needed for the recipe. Add water if needed to prevent scorching.

You can substitute frozen fruits for fresh fruits with no change in the recipe except for the added sugar already in frozen fruits. Frozen fruits are most often packed with dry sugar, usually one part of sugar to about three parts of fruit by weight.

You can serve canned fruits straight from the container. If you like, you can chill them in the refrigerator before serving. Usually, the most valuable nutrients are in the liquid, so use it too, either with the fruit or in fruit drinks or gelatins.

Extra heavy syrup in canned fruits means the fruit is packed in the sweetest, thickest sugar syrup used. Usually the heavier the syrup, the more costly the item. Canned fruits may also be packed in heavy or light syrups, in slightly sweetened water, water or their own juice. Read the label to buy the product you need.

The Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District board of directors expressed their appreciation to the young men and women of Runnels who entered the poster contest and consider all winners although all did not receive a ribbon.

Employees Should Get W-2's By Jan. 31

Employees who do not receive their Wage and Tax Statements by January 31, 1979, must still file by the tax deadline, the Internal Revenue Service said.

To avoid delay in mailing Wage and Tax Statements, employees should furnish his or her employer with a current address, according to IRS. If employees do not receive their statements by the end of January, they should contact their employer first. After February 15, 1979, they should contact their local IRS office.

Additional Wage and Tax Statement information is available in the free IRS Publication 15, "Circular E—Employer's Tax Guide," obtained from IRS District offices.

Wise Party Plan Buying

Wise party-plan buying starts with three guidelines, says a consumer information specialist.

Don't attend party-plan sales if you aren't interested. If interested, compare prices beforehand on similar merchandise elsewhere. Also, put off buying if unsure, says Claudia Kerbel.

Ms. Kerbel is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Many people have experienced the high pressure situation at a party-plan sales program when friends and neighbors are signing up for new jewelry, clothing, china and crystal or pots and pans," the specialist explains.

"It is difficult to resist buying. Guests know that free gifts received by the host or hostess from the salesperson depend on the number of products those attending buy."

"Many party-plan salespeople depend on such peer pressure among the guests to make their sales."

TURN DOWN PARTY
 People not interested in buying the merchandise should politely turn down invitations to sales parties, the specialist advises.

COMPARE BEFORE PARTY

If they are interested in buying, consumers should check the quality and cost of similar merchandise in retail stores before attending the party, Ms. Kerbel says.

If the merchandise at the party is overpriced or does not suit the consumer's needs, she should enjoy the party without feeling she has to buy the products.

PUT OFF BUYING
 If you are unsure about buying, say you want to think about it overnight.

Go home and talk it over. If you decide the merchandise is a good value and suitable, usually you can place orders the next day.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to say thank you to so many wonderful people for the serving of the family meal, the cards, flowers, and memorials at the loss of our dad. You are truly friends and neighbors to brave the ice and cold to do for others. May each of you be blessed in a special way. —The Family of Howell Bowen, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Bowen and Barbara, Mrs. Clara Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Howell (Butch) Bowen Jr., and Mike, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gartman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Rance Hord and family.

Employers Must File W-2 Forms With SSA

Employers must now file Forms W-2 and W-2P with the Social Security Administration, and not with the Internal Revenue Service, the IRS said. Deadline for filing these forms is by February 28, 1979.

Previously, Form W-2, "Annual Wage and Tax Statement," and W-2P, "Statement of Recipients of Periodic Annuities, Pensions, Retired Pay, or IRA Payments," were filed with the IRS. The 1978 W-2 and W-2P are considerably different than the 1977 W-2 and W-2P. It is important that the proper tax year W-2 and W-2P are used, the IRS said. Under the new procedure, the forms will be processed by the SSA, which will then furnish the IRS with all data (including income tax data) on the forms.

The change should reduce paperwork for employers because the forms will include Social Security coverage information as well as employee earnings information, with computations for quarterly wage coverage being determined on an annual basis, according to the IRS.

Also as part of this new Combined Annual Wage Reporting System, the IRS said, employers may report wage and tax information on paper, magnetic tape, or a variety of magnetic media. For reporting to SSA, employers must remember to attach Form W-3, "Transmittal of Income and Tax Statements," with Copies A of Forms W-2 and W-2P.

The IRS emphasized that employers should use the pre-addressed labels sent to them. The labels are included in the mailout of Publication 393, "Federal Employment Tax Forms." The labels should be affixed to the Form W-3, "Transmittal of Income and Tax Statements."

For additional information, IRS Publication 15, "Circular E—Employer's Tax Guide," is available free from local IRS offices.

Texas Congressman Tom Loeffler has been assigned to the prestigious and powerful Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

The committee has exceptionally broad jurisdiction over a number of areas, including energy, consumer protection, health, communications and transportation.

"Certainly, there is no larger problem facing the people of Texas and the nation than energy," said Loeffler, "and no other committee will have a greater impact in helping find ways to solve the energy needs of America.

"The recent gas shortage in Menard and the accelerating cost of transportation of coal for electric generation in San Antonio are two examples which point out the critical nature of these problems," he said, "and there is no other committee assignment which would have given me the ability to address these problems so directly.

"My background in the energy field should serve me well," noted Loeffler, who previously served as Deputy for Congressional Liaison at the Federal Energy Administration and as Senator John Tower's staff specialist on energy affairs.

In discussing the scope of jurisdiction of the committee, Loeffler said, "The oversight capabilities in the area of social and human concerns—consumer protection, health and the environment—speak for the almost total involvement of this committee in the lives of all

Rep. Nabers Chairs House Committee

State Rep. Lynn Nabers of Brownwood has been named chairman of the Criminal Jurisprudence Committee in the Texas House of Representatives, and a member of the Financial Institutions and Calendar Committees by Speaker of the House Bill Clayton.

Rep. Nabers will serve in these capacities during the next two years of the 66th Legislature.

An attorney by profession, Nabers is serving his sixth term in the House. He served on the Criminal Jurisprudence, House Administration, and Financial Institutions Committees last session.

The eleven-member Criminal Jurisprudence Committee has jurisdiction over all matters pertaining to criminal law, prohibitions, standards, penalties, and criminal procedure in the courts of Texas. This committee has jurisdiction over all matters pertaining to revision or amendment of the Penal Code, unless jurisdiction is assigned to some other standing committee.

The eleven-member committee on Financial Institutions has jurisdiction over all Americans. It will be a privilege and an honor to commit myself to the important work of this committee."

Loeffler was the single freshman Republican congressman to serve on the Executive Committee on Committees which has responsibility for assigning all committee seats for the GOP members.

matters pertaining to banking, savings and loan associations, credit unions, and the lending of money. This committee also has jurisdiction over the Banking Department of Texas, and the Finance Commission of Texas, and the Consumer Credit Commissioner of the State of Texas.

Credit-Facts On Getting It

Learn the facts on getting credit before applying—laws may differ from state to state, says Linda McCormack, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

For example, in Texas the creditor or credit application may ask about marital status, she explains.

This is legal in a community property state such as Texas.

The creditor may also ask:—whether the applicant is "married," "unmarried," or "separated" when applying for a joint account or an account secured by property—for information about the applicant's spouse

A creditor, however, must not ask the applicant's sex, race, national origin or religion unless he/she is applying for a real estate loan to buy a residence, the specialist continues.

In this case, the creditor may ask for voluntary disclosure of sex, marital status, race and national origin.

This information helps federal agencies enforce anti-discrimination laws, she explains.

In applying for credit, a creditor should not ask:—about the applicant's plans for having or raising children

—whether the applicant receives alimony, child support, or separate maintenance payments unless the creditor first tells her that she does not have to disclose such income unless she wants to rely on it to get credit

In deciding whether to give the applicant credit, a creditor must not:

—consider applicant's sex, marital status, race, national origin or religion

—consider age (unless the applicant is too young to sign contracts)

—consider whether a telephone is listed in the applicant's name (although he may consider whether there is a telephone in the home)

—consider the race of the people who live in the neighborhood where the applicant wants to buy or improve a house with borrowed money

In addition, the creditor must inform the applicant whether the application was accepted or rejected within 30 days or filing it, Mrs. McCormack reports.

The creditor must give specific reasons for the rejection immediately or give specific reasons if the applicant makes a request within 60 days.

Special note to women about their credit histories: if married, divorced, separated or widowed, make a special point to call or visit the local credit bureau to make sure all relevant information normally carried by the credit bureau is in a credit file under your name, the specialist recommends.

CONSUMER FOOD NEWS

Poultry, root vegetables and some processed foods are among budget buys at Texas grocery markets this week, according to Gwendolyn Clyatt.

Mrs. Clyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Current price and quality trends are the following: POULTRY—Attractive prices appear on fryer chickens (whole and parts) and chicken frankfurters. Turkeys, 10 pounds and up, are available.

FRESH VEGETABLES—Best values include carrots, turnips, rutabagas, dry onions, potatoes, cabbage and broccoli. All stocks of sweet potatoes now are kiln dried, making them better "keepers."

FRESH FRUITS—For economy, fruits "by-the-bag" are usually the best values. Consider apples, oranges and tangelos—along with grapefruit. Check for values on bananas, pears and pineapples.

ALONG GROCERY MARKET AISLES—Feature items include canned tomatoes and tomato products, canned peaches and fruit cocktail and canned tuna fish. Dry beans are a special feature in some markets.

FROZEN FOODS—Corn may be a feature.

RED MEAT OUTLOOK—Cattle and hog prices will stay at current high levels at least through the first half of 1979, according to most predictions. This forecast is based on smaller supplies of red meat, less hog production than expected and continued strong consumer demand for beef and pork.

BEEF—Chuck cuts (roasts and steaks) are in the spotlight—and there are some features on ground beef with soy protein, sirloin steak, round and rib steaks and liver.

PORK—Best buys are Boston butt roasts, end chops, liver, rib and loin-end roasts, bacon and frankfurters.

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: Canned mushrooms add economical nutrition to menus.

Before buying firewood, know the type of wood and price per cord, advises Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Several sewing machine companies have conversion kits or other model features specifically designed for the visually and/or physically handicapped homesewers, reports Becky Culp, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Workers Can Still Make 1978 IRA Contributions

Qualified workers may make 1978 contributions to Individual Retirement Savings Arrangements (IRAs) until Monday, April 16, 1979, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Most taxpayers who have Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs) no longer will be required to file an annual information return or schedule supporting an IRA deduction on Form 1040, according to the new provisions in the Revenue Act of 1978. Only those individuals who owe excess contribution taxes, premature distribution taxes, or taxes on certain accumulations in IRA accounts or annuities will file revised Form 5329, "Return for Individual Retirement Arrangement Taxes."

Since penalties are assessed for excessive contributions, this 3½ month period allows taxpayers to closely calculate and contribute the correct percentage of income, and still be able to deduct it from their 1978 taxable income.

IRAs are taxpayer-initiated retirement plans set up by workers not covered by qualified pension or retirement plans where they are employed. IRAs also are available to non-working spouses of eligible workers.

Many banks, insurance companies, credit unions, and other financial institutions can provide additional information on setting up and maintaining IRAs. In
