REFLECTIONS "REFLECTIONS" REFLECTIONS

BY RICHARD C. THOMAS

While gathering information for articles on the Winters Lake recently, the thought occurred that too many of us too much of the time take for granted those things which have been done to improve the community, or to make the community possible in the first place.

We see the lake dam, for example, and we read of the plans for the new lake, we see the streets, the roads, the public buildings, the schools, and other community improvements, but we give little thought to their beginnings... for all we know, these things, just like Topsy, just grew...

We forget there have been people — personalities — behind every one of these projects. These people have been the "They" spoken of when we all say, "They" ought to do something. The "Theys" saw the need for all these things, and instead of parroting the rest of us, they got busy and did something about them.

For instance, back in the late 1930s and early 1940s, when it became apparent that the Winters Lake north of town would no longer be adequate to supply the needs of Winters, "They" didn't sit on their hands and moan that "They" should do something about the water supply. They organized and pooled their talents, went to work, even to the point of self-sacrifice, and when they had finished handed a new Winters Lake to the town. The same thing happened just a few short years ago — when it became apparent that additional water supplies were needed. "They" jumped in to begin to do something about it, and "They" have been working hard since. And "They" are not crying now, nor have they backed off because of a setback in the project. "They" know there is no alternative, and "They" will continue to work for the rest of us. In fact, "Theys" never stop working.

In every community, there are more "non-Theys" than there are "Theys"—the ones content to sit around and watch the work done by someone else. But the "non-Theys" are always ready to criticize, you betcha. It's a natural human trait, everywhere, and the "Theys" are many times overworked and under-appreciated, because the rest of us just take it for granted that someone else will do what needs to be done. As the saying goes, there are those who make things happen, and those who wonder what happened!

Band Boosters plan meeting next Monday

All members of the boosters, and others interested in the Blizzard Band, have been urged to attend.

To nominate candidate for tax board

Winters City Council Monday night authorized Mayor W. Lee Colburn to name a nominee to fill a vacancy on the Runnels County Tax Appraisal Board.

The mayor is to choose a nominee and submit the name to the county board no later than Nov. 10. The vacancy on the board occurred when Joe Allcorn of Ballinger resigned to move to Hobbs, N. M.

Each political entity within the county may name a nominee, with the board empowered to pick a person to fill the vacancy.

Last plea

President Jimmy Carter emphasizes a point during his address to the crowd at the Abilene Municipal Airport Saturday. President Carter included Abilene on his itinerary at the last moment, as he made a last ditch fight for Texas' electoral votes two days before the election. Crowds at the Abilene airport were estimated upwards of 5,000.

Reagan carried Runnels County

Runnels County voters Tuesday followed the national trend in the presidential election, going for Ronald Reagan over President Jimmy Carter by a wide margin. With all county precincts except one reporting by 8:30 Tuesday night, Reagan had garnered 2064 votes to Carter's 1176 in the county.

Voting Precinct 3, in the Winters Community Center, had not reported by the early Wednesday morning press time, but indications were that voters in that precinct also favored Reagan in the presidential race. Discounting the unreported Prec. 3, the Wingate voting box was the only one in the county favoring Carter, according to the county election center in Ballinger.

County	2064	1176	32
Winters Box 4	178	170
Wingate	80	85

U. S. Representative Tom Loeffler (R) of the 21st Congressional District also was leading in Runnels County, with 2196 votes to Democrat challenger Sullivan' 894. Winters box 4 reported 197 for Loeffler and 137 for Sullivan, and Wingate 86 for Loeffler and 63 for Sullivan. No count was available from Winters Box 3.

November 11 designated holiday

Next Tuesday, November 11, Veterans Day, will be a national holiday, and also is one of the several holidays during the year suggested by the Winters Area Chamber of Commerce.

Most businesses, the bank, the post office, and all government offices will be closed all day on Veterans Day.

Mexican dinner next Thursday at U-M Church

A Mexican dinner will be a featured part of a "Lord's Acre and Harvest Festival" program produced by the First United Methodist Church.

The Mexican dinner will be held next Thursday, Nov. 13, from 5 to 7:30 p. m., in the fellowship hall of the church. Cost of the dinner will be $3 for adults and $1.50 for children, and will include dessert.

The setback experienced by Winters on the proposed dam and water reservoir Monday "must be only temporary," Mayor Lee Colburn said Monday night. He reminded councilmen and others that too much work had been done to put the idea on the back burner and forget it. There are obstacles, he indicated, but we must not let them be insurmountable.

The big shock came Monday afternoon when construction bids for the dam and reservoir project were opened. The lowest amount bid was almost a million dollars more than had been allocated for the project. The original estimate, made many months ago, and the amount to be received through long-range loans and grants totaled a few hundred dollars less than $4 million; the lowest bid submitted Monday was about $900,000 more than that amount.

City officials and engineers laid the difference to the high rate of inflation. If the bids had been received about two years ago, it was said, the difference would have been much less — "inflation just ate us up."

Engineers said Monday they would make a new study of the plans and specifications, to determine what areas could be eliminated in order to meet the approximately $4 million the city will have available to pay for the project. Also, it was indicated, the city may be able to negotiate with prospective contractors to pare down the totals.

Continuing ed program being studied

Winters Independent School District and Western Texas College of Snyder are studying possibilities of providing a cooperative continuing education program for adults in the Winters area.

A survey is being made to determine the extent of the program, and to determine what most people in the area would be interested in under the program.

A questionnaire is printed elsewhere in this issue of The Enterprise and those interested are asked to complete the questions and mail the questionnaire to: WINTERS HIGH SCHOOL, P. O. box 125, Winters, Texas 79567, or bring it to the high school counselor's office.

Buddy Poppy sale scheduled for Saturday

The annual Buddy Poppy sale sponsored by Winters Post 9193, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be held Saturday, Nov. 8, in Winters.

Members of the Winters Boys Scout troop will sell the Buddy Poppies.

Ironically, the lowest bids for the pipeline, considered a separate project from the lake and dam, were about $70,000 below the original estimate.

In an aside, it was said that prospective bidders may be asked to examine again the terrain and soil structure of the lake and dam site. It is possible, it was suggested, that because there are outcroppings of rock in the vicinity, contractors had feared the same type of formations would be found at the dam site proper. Engineers indicated that this would not be the case, because the core samples taken had not indicated this type of rock and dirt formations.

Engineers will meet with the city council within a few days to once again go over the plans in an effort to find ways to reduce the total cost.

Mt. Carmel parsonage dedication

Mt. Carmel Catholic parish in Winters, under the leadership of the pastor, the Rev. Father Edward Kennedy, O.M.I., will celebrate the dedication of a new parsonage Thursday, Nov. 6, at 11:30 a. m.

The Most Rev. Bishop Joseph Fiorenza of San Angelo will be present to bless the new parsonage. More than 20 other priests from the West Texas area also will be present.

Following the dedication service, dinner will be served to the Bishop and visiting priests by the ladies of the church.

On Sunday, Nov. 16, an open house will be held at the new parsonage from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. for parishioners and the general public. All Winters ministers and members of all denominations will be invited to the open house.

The new home for the priest was begun in July. A brick construction, the home has two bedrooms, living and dining room, kitchen, large utility room, enclosed garage, as well as an office space. Bricks used for the parsonage were the same type which had been used for the church building, and members are now in the process of remodeling the parish hall, and to cover it with the same type brick.

Cancer Society rummage sale Nov. 6-7

The North Runnels Unit of the American Cancer Society will hold a rummage sale Thursday and Friday, Nov. 6 and 7, at 133 West Dale.

Persons wishing to donate items for the rummage sale are asked to call the Winters Area Chamber of Commerce office.

Prospects favorable for industrial expansion

Winters' City Council is looking at plans to extend sewer lines to an area on the southwest edge of the city which is rapidly becoming an industrial site.

According to a spokesman for Halliburton, an oil field service company, that company is planning to move their center of operations from the present North Main location to a site on FM 53, west of Mansell Bros. farm machinery dealers. The company approached the council two weeks ago requesting that the city extend the sewer line from the present line just east of Mansell's to the proposed Halliburton site. It was stated that the oil field service company would cooperate with the city on the cost of the proposed project.

During the regular meeting of the council Monday night, it was also announced that Pool Co., also an oil field service company, had plans to move from their South Main location to a site further west of the Halliburton site, immediately west of the old Winters Gin site, which presently is the home of Briley Trucking.

Both proposed industrial sites will be located on the north side of FM 53, and because of their proximity to the city limits, both sites could be taken into the city limits, said councilmen.

Recently, an 8-inch sewer line was laid on the north side of FM 53, and run north to S. Arlington St. to complete a loop. This line is connected to service lines of Bishop & Sons Dirt Contractors, Inc., who recently completed construction of new office buildings and other buildings on the south side of FM 53. The service lines were tunneled under FM 53.

According to information released at Monday night's meeting, it was suggested that a 6-inch line be run from the present new 8-inch line north of FM 53 to the proposed Halliburton site, and then a 4-inch line continued on to the proposed Pool site.

The council will begin immediately a study of the proposals, concentrating on the cost of such a project. If the Pool and Halliburton sites are brought into the city limits, it was suggested, the resulting tax income would offset much of the cost of the sewer line project.

The new Bishop & Sons site already has been taken into the city limits, it was said.

Councilmen and others have been "more than enthused" over the prospects of adding new industrial sites in the Winters community. In addition to the proposed Halliburton and Pool sites, along with the Bishop site, there already are two industrial and business sites in that area, Mansell Bros., on the north side of the highway, and Dry Div., Wallace Murray Corp., general offices, on the south side of the highway.

In discussing the sewer proposals Monday night, several of the city officials recognized the value of adding industrial business sites along FM 53. There still are many choice sites for businesses in that section, and the addition of the area to the city limits would mean much to the city, it was stated. Several businesses already have been built on FM 53, east of the FM 53-US 83 intersection; some of them have been there several years. The new North Runnels Hospital and a doctor's clinic was built in the area just a few years ago. This area, along with the area west of the intersection, are ideal for many types of businesses, it was said.

Pennybacker's History of Austin

Is there anyone who remembers studying Pennybacker's Texas History in school? For eleven years, Percy V. Pennybacker was publisher, and after his death in 1899, his wife copyrighted the revised edition in 1900. The small book of 410 pages sold for 65 cents and was a standard for Texas History. But much has transpired in Texas since then.

As November 3 is Stephen F. Austin's birthday, and the first week in November has been set aside by Governor Clements to honor "The Father of Texas" it will be fun to see what Mr. Pennybacker says about him.

A short time before his death in 1821, Moses Austin received news that his petition had been granted, and that he was authorized to settle 300 families in Texas. His dying request was that his son should take up the work and carry out the plans he had cherished.

Stephen F. Austin needed no urging to undertake the task his father had left him. He was in New Orleans when he learned that his father had secured a grant of land. He hastened to Natchitoches to meet the Mexican Commissioner, Seguín, who had been sent to guide the elder Austin into Texas; here Austin heard the sad news of his father's death.

Seguín and Austin arrived in San Antonio August 12, 1821, and were cordially received by the Governor, who granted Austin permission to explore the country adjacent to the Colorado River and choose what lands he wished. Austin selected for his colony the region lying south of the San Antonio river, between the San Jacinto and Lavaca Rivers. This included some of the most fertile land in the province, and was the best choice he could have made. (An area from present day Houston, to Waco, Austin and Freeport.)

Returning to New Orleans, Austin advertised for colonists. To each man over 21 he promised 640 acres, if married, 320 more; each child brought the father 160 while each slave brought his master 80. When a colonist built a structure for public use, he was given more land. Merchants and mechanics were given town lots on which to build their stores and shops. All immigrants were to be free of taxation for six years. Austin as leader of the colony was, on the fulfillment of his contract to settle 300 families, to receive immense grants of land. All colonists were required to become Roman Catholics, to swear to uphold the government of the Spanish King and to furnish evidence of good moral character. With the promise of so much good fortune, many immigrants were willing to follow Austin.

Austin, being poor, was not able to fit out a vessel for carrying to Texas the needed tools and provisions. J. L. Hawkins, a friend from New Orleans,

Air Force seeks OK on M-X power sources

The Air Force will seek Congressional approval to begin an estimated $202 million project to design and develop alternate power sources for the M-X missile system.

Known as the M-X Renewable Energy Systems (M-X/RES), the project is jointly sponsored by the Defense and Energy Departments. Its goal is to reduce U. S. dependence on fossil fuel by accelerating development of commercial versions of solar, wind, geothermal, and biomass (waste-to-energy) electrical generating plants.

If Congress approves, experts will assess, during 1981 and 1982, renewable energy resources available in the proposed M-X deployment areas. The project will also fund a design competition among approximately 25 contractors to develop systems which can provide the average 108 megawatts needed for all 4,600 M-X shelters and other support facilities.

Besides powering the M-X system, the proposed project will speed up development and demonstration of marketable systems for commercial use. Plans call for building prototypes of the most promising designs in mid-1982. Prototypes will be tested at Hill AFB, Utah; Nellis AFB, Nevada; and other suitable bases in the Southwest.

If successful, and approved by Congress, large-scale production for M-X use will start in 1984. Planners see the proposed system of small generating facilities, collocated with M-X protective structures and integrated into M-X operating base designs, as better suited to the desert environment. In addition, the system can reduce M-X's life-cycle costs and vulnerability to sabotage.

The successful renewable energy system can be used at other Air Force and Defense Department installations. Project designs will include how the system could be used commercially to help reduce U.S. dependence on imported oil for electrical power.

came to his assistance with the schooner, "Lively." The load of supplies arrived safely and were hidden to await the coming of the colonists. A band of Indians found and took possession of all the hidden stores. The second trip of the "Lively" with 18 immigrants on board was lost and no word ever received from her. Austin and other settlers, who came by land, were much inconvenienced by this loss, but they did not despair. They settled the fertile lands, and bravely began the work of changing Texas from a wilderness to the grand "Lone Star" State of our Union.

A footnote gives some idea of the hardships borne by the early Texas pioneers: "They were compelled to obtain their corn overland, and with much trouble from Sabine or Bexar. For months they were totally destitute of bread. Sugar and coffee were luxuries enjoyed only in remembrance. Their only meat was wild game. To range the country for buffaloes was dangerous on account of the Indians. The mustangs, or wild horses, fortunately, were abundant and fat, and it is estimated that over 100 of them were eaten during the first two years of the colony."

Due to a revolution in Mexico it was necessary for Austin to go to Mexico City and have his grant renewed. He found the government in such a disturbed condition that he was forced to stay there over a year. In 1823, he returned to Texas. He found his colony almost deserted, but with his homecoming, settlers returned, scores of new immigrants poured in, all was life and activity.

In the colony, Austin, as impressario, was in most respects, absolute ruler. Seldom does a man who has unlimited power govern with such mildness. Austin was well named "Father of his colony." Never marrying, he devoted himself to each and all of his colonists; they looked upon him as a true friend. Every child loved him, for he would take the little ones on his knee, and tell them stories of his adventures. But he knew how to be severe when duty demanded.

Having by 1825 introduced the 300 families called for in his contract, Austin asked to bring in 500 more; in 1827 he was ready for another hundred. In 1828 he obtained land for 300, making 1200 families he brought to Texas.

What can we do for our beloved Texas?

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS
 By Lyndell Williams
 TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

House Speaker Bill Clayton, cleared last week of Brilab charges of influence peddling, has indicated he will run again for Speaker.

Clayton said he will make a formal announcement of his candidacy sometime this week. Already the first person to serve an unprecedented three terms as Speaker, Clayton seeks a fourth term against State Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas.

A third candidate, Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, is a top member of Clayton's conservative team in the Legislature. Lewis held the faction together throughout Clayton's legal woes, and has said he will step down if Clayton runs. Observers are waiting now for Lewis to announce otherwise... or withdraw for Clayton.

"I am running. In face, I have already recontacted enough House members. We already have the election assured," Clayton said last week.

THE LEWIS FACTOR
 While Clayton struggled with Brilab, his legislative supporters rallied around the candidacy of Lewis, who did a superb job of preventing a splintering into lesser factions. Lewis reportedly maintained some 90-plus votes (76 votes needed to win), and stood stronger than other announced candidates who eventually pledged to him or Bryant.

A fourth candidate, Craig Washington, D-Houston, was named speaker pro tem by Clayton last week. Washington, a black who is generally graded among the ablest lawmakers, is a lawyer who aided Clayton's Brilab defense.

Should Clayton win when the Legislature convenes in January, he will owe much to the pair, particularly Lewis. Lewis will no doubt receive a committee plum for his stewardship, unless he challenges Clayton. The conservative lobby reportedly wanted Lewis to continue his bid, but may now have decided Clayton is not as tainted by Brilab as was expected.

THE BRYANT FACTOR
 Bryant is generally credited with a solid backing of about 35 votes. An outspoken and gutsy legislator, his hopes may be diminishing. After all, how could he defeat his nemesis Clayton if he could not overcome the surrogate Lewis?

For the first time, serious consideration of a replacement Speaker candidate for Bryant is being heard on the liberal side. If Bryant's strength has peaked, his cause may be better served if the leadership role is given to a more moderate candidate, such as Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, or Lynn Nabors, D-Brownwood.

And, too, many members are tired of the age-old feud between Clayton and Bryant which has bloodied the House on more than one occasion. Although Clayton and Bryant are the most skillful of legislators, fresh faces might be welcome in either camp. Clayton is touted now as a shoo-in, but anything can happen in the next two-and-a-half months.

MORE MEDICAID FLAK
 Board members of the Texas Department of Human Resources last week hired a private consulting firm to review bids submitted by two insurance companies for a $2 billion state Medicaid contract. The $100,000 consulting agreement with Touche-Ross Co. will apply to bids by Bradford National Corp., which was originally awarded the Medicaid program, and National Heritage Co., owned by Dallas multimillionaire H. Ross Perot. Perot has filed suit to prevent a final contract signing for Bradford in an attempt to keep the contract, now administered by National.

SPECIAL ELECTION
 Governor Bill Clements called for a special election Nov. 22 to fill the seat of State Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder, who resigned last month to serve on a health services state agency.

The special election has ired taxpayers in that district, since the winner will serve only until Jan. 12, when the Legislature convenes. At that time Representative-elect Larry Don Shaw will take his seat in the House, and the special election winner will go home.

Clements' move is seen as a ploy to give some Republican a chance to build name identification for a future race against Democrats. Some locals feel it's a big waste of tax money.

D. K. McMullen says he has not seen as many turkey and deer around Ozona as his neighbors believe are there. Yet, in other parts of the country, game observers report high population prospects for hunting season are indeed there and fat.

I was down on Copperas Creek in Kimble County cutting wood and saw a good looking bunch of wild turkey coming to water. And deer are around, but not as plentiful as other years.

John Dublin, who ranches near Eldorado and Barnhart, comments: "There is an acorn crop in liveoak country this fall but the acorns are not maturing and are falling to the ground as little green kernels. That happened a few years back and we lost some livestock as a result of their eating them."

Besides some grass for livestock graze on across West Texas, Dublin says that he has the best crop of prickly pear apples in years. With an early frost behind us now, the apple crop may provide some added supplement for livestock and game this fall.

Some cotton harvest is underway in different parts of the Southwest Texas region. Alfred Multer of Olfen was stripping cotton the other day when I was in that direction. He said yield was running about four acres to a bale.

Certainly that is good considering the unusually dry spring and summer. Some dryland cotton in the Lowake area has taken seven acres to produce one bale.

Well, stock tanks appear to be full in just about every direction I travel these days. A dry strip all summer has been between Ballinger and Santa Ana and Brownwood. That terrain did an about-face in recent months.

Sutton County finally received some good moisture to set up for Winter.

Arrests clear Texas, Oklahoma cattle thefts

The arrest of three suspects in recent weeks will clear cattle and trailer thefts in eight Texas counties and six Oklahoma counties, says Don C. King, secretary-general manager of Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association. Headquartered in Fort Worth, TSCRA is a non-profit livestock organization with a 32-man law enforcement arm charged with the investigation of livestock and ranch equipment theft in Texas and Oklahoma.

Statements by the suspects are expected to clear up eight cattle, three trailer and saddle thefts in Texas and nine cattle, six trailer and saddle thefts in Oklahoma. More charges are forthcoming and more suspects are expected to be charged in the continuing investigation by state.

The same is true in Terrell County. Sid Harkins reports "things are looking better out there."

Speaking of Sanderson County, Rick Honaker, manager of Sanderson Wool Commission Company, said a recent sale was most successful.

"Offered for sale were 24,496 pounds of paint wool, paint-free wool, 137,809; fall lamb, 18,444 pounds; paint lamb, 6045 pounds; cross-bred lambs, 6,286 pounds; twelve months, 25,257 pounds; ten months, 9,399 pounds for a total of 227,736 pounds," he said.

The price range was from $1.5 1/2 to $1.23 3/4. For fall paint-free, $1.14 to $1.31 1/2; fall paint-free lambs' wool sold for $1.14 3/8. Fall paint lambs' wool sold for $1.11 per pound with ten months, $1.10 5/8 and twelve months clip bringing from $1. to $1.14 5/8.

Mr. and Mrs. Francisco Armendariz, Jr. of Winters announce the birth of their daughter, Amanda, born on October 18, 1980 at 4:00 p.m.

She was born in Shannon Hospital in San Angelo, and weighed 6 pounds, 5 1/2 ounces.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Francisco Armendariz, Sr. of Mexico, and Mrs. Sandra Uresti of Winters.

local police authorities and TSCRA field inspectors, King said.

A total market value has not been placed on the stolen livestock and goods, but the value could exceed $75,000, King added.

The string of thefts stretches from the Texas-New Mexico border to the Oklahoma-Arkansas border. At least 150 head of cattle, mostly stocker animals, have been accounted for and a portion have already been recovered. Most of the thefts have occurred since last August.

A Carson City, Texas, grand jury has returned an indictment of theft of livestock, under $10,000, against Stephen Paul Moffitt, 35, of Lubbock. The charge stems from the theft of 22 head of heifers and steers on or about October 1, 1980, from J. D. Shadid and Shawn O'Neal of Panhandle, Texas. The cattle were sold October 2 at an Abilene, Texas auction market in the suspect's name. Fifteen head of the cattle have been identified by brand and calfhood vaccination numbers. The owners have also made positive identification.

Moffitt, arrested in Randall County, Texas, October 16, is out on bond.

Also under arrest are Claude Larry Davis, 40, who lists his address as Lubbock and Antlers, Okla., and Rodney Charles Jones, 28, also of Lubbock.

Authorities suspected a link between the widespread thefts because of a similarity of theft methods. The suspects allegedly used rented pickups and stolen trailers from the vicinity of the cattle thefts. The trailers were abandoned after the cattle were sold.

"This investigation, which is far from over, may be the biggest 'bust' TSCRA has worked on in 1980. Nine TSCRA inspectors were actively involved in breaking the theft ring. It could not have come about without the close coordination and mutual cooperation of the numerous county sheriff's departments, the Texas Rangers, the Texas Department of Public Safety and the Lubbock Police Department. TSCRA is particularly grateful to the invaluable assistance of Texas Ranger Jackie Peoples and Sgt. Doyle Nelson and Earl Rankin of the Lubbock Police," King said.

Another big aid to the investigation, King said, was the branding of the cattle by their owners. TSCRA handles the brand inspection duties of all Texas livestock auctions. It was through this network of field inspectors and brand inspectors that many of the cattle were traced back to brand records at the auction sales.

In Texas, theft of livestock under $10,000 is a third-degree felony punishable by confinement in the Texas Department of Corrections for any term not less than two years nor more than ten years. In addition, there may be a fine of not more than $5,000. If the value of the stolen property is $10,000 or more, the offense is a second-degree felony punishable by confinement in TDC for any term not less than two years nor more than ten years. And, there may be a fine of not more than $10,000.

Again in 1979, for the fourth straight year, Lone Star Gas did a better job of controlling distribution expenses than any of the other major intrastate gas utilities in Texas.*

These expenses include maintenance and repairs, leases on offices and facilities, supplies and many other items.

Controlling our expenses is one way we

Crews

So many of us are so deeply in debt and bills show up so often that any envelope that arrives with a window in it isn't worth looking into.

Those who came to our Crews get together Saturday night enjoyed a Thanksgiving meal of chicken and dressing and all the trimmings. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gerhart and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Faubion were the hosts. Afterwards a short business meeting was called. Our next meeting will be our Christmas party and games, and also a white elephant auction to raise money for the Rehab. So be looking for some good stuff that you no longer want.

Mr. O. Z. Foreman had eye surgery on the 20th and is recovering nicely.

Visitors in the Wilbert Alcorn home Friday night were Mr. and Mrs. John Denson and family of San Angelo, Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Patton of Ballinger, Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Mathis and Mark of Abilene. On Saturday night the Jerry Giles' of Brownwood came with Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Thomas and family of Liverpool, England present.

Having dinner Sunday with the Noble Faubions were Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Faubion of Ballinger, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Prater of San Angelo, and Mrs. Amantina Faubion, Rose Marie, Mellissa, and Claudette.

Rev. Wallace Roark of Brownwood was the speaker at Hopewell Baptist Church Sunday. Afterwards he had lunch with the Rodney Faubion family. The Theron Osbornes also were guests.

I spent Monday with my daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Villers in San Angelo.

Prussic acid poisoning in livestock

Frost has and will be hitting Runnels county before long, and this could lead to prussic acid poisoning in livestock grazing certain pasture grasses and forages, points out Allen Turner, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Although many plants contain the toxic material that causes poisoning, those causing the highest mortality in livestock when grazed after they have been frozen and wilted are Johnson and Sudan grasses and sorghum or hybrids of these.

The most dangerous time as far as the grazing of these plants is concerned is following frost when the plant material begins to wilt, emphasizes the Agent. Livestock should not be allowed access to the wilted material until it has dried completely. This usually takes three or four days of good sunlight. New plant growth usually becomes nontoxic and can be grazed within 10 days to two weeks following a rain.

As far as prussic acid poisoning is concerned, the poison acts rapidly and can kill animals within minutes. In most acute cases, animals become affected within 10 to 15 minutes after eating toxic material and can die in two to three minutes. Symptoms may include a brief period of stimulation followed by depression and paralysis. Signs of colic may be present. Stupor (loss of sensibility), difficult breathing and frequent convulsions may result. Death is caused by suffocation since oxygen remains in the blood and is not exchanged to the tissues. This also causes the blood to appear bright red.

To prevent prussic acid poisoning in livestock, Turner outlines these steps:

1. Allow plant material affected by frost to dry thoroughly before grazing. This may require a week or more of good sunlight.

2. Feed animals hay or a supplement before turning them in on plants that may contain prussic acid. Animals that are not hungry will not be affected as seriously by toxic material since their intake will be limited.

3. Remove all animals from the pasture if one in the herd shows any signs of poisoning.

Independence, Mo. along with her daughter, Thais Phelps of McAllen were out to see Mrs. Effie Deitz on Wednesday. Mrs. Phelps and Mrs. Davis also came again on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Batts of Ballinger, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hambricht of Winters and Mrs. Hazel Mae Bragg spent the day Saturday with Mrs. Corra Petrie. On Sunday Corra and Hazel Mae and Russell ate out after attending services in Winters.

Mr. and Mrs. Von Byrd and children of Abilene spent the weekend with Kat and Adline Grissom. The Marvin Hoelschers came on Sunday. The Grissoms ate supper in Ballinger Tuesday night with Marvin and Mae.

The Ronald Hills and girls of Sweetwater spent Sunday in the Roberts' home.

Wingate Sew & Sew met recently

Gifts were exchanged and quilting was done.

Present were Flossie Kirkland, Vida Talley, Grace Smith, Fay Pinegar, Mayola Cathey, Mildred Patton, Madlin King, Ethel Polk, Mabel Hancock, Melba Vick, Nellie Adcock, Lorene Kinard, Jo Lindsey, Edna Rogers, Marie Bradford and the hostesses.

mediately if an animal appears to be poisoned. An antidote to treat affected animals is highly efficient if given early. This product is available from veterinarians.

5. Have suspect plant material checked by the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratories at College Station or Amarillo. Local veterinarians will be happy to submit samples for you.

The overall key to preventing prussic acid poisoning in livestock is to be aware of plant materials that may cause poisoning and then to keep cattle from grazing such plants until a safe period has passed, points out Turner.

Blizzards host Hamlin

The Winters Blizzards, following an idle week, will play their last home game of the 1980 season Friday, hosting the Hamlin Pied Pipers on Blizzard Field. Kickoff at 7:30.

The Pipers have stepped out front in District 8-AA, and now own a 6-1 district record. They beat Baird, erstwhile leaders, last week to gain the top rung of the ladder. Rotan is close behind with a 5-1 record for district. However, Rotan beat Hamlin 20-12 earlier in the season.

With only two games left in the season, the Blizzards hold a 3-2 district record, and a 0-2 record for non-conference play. Hamlin lost to Stamford in the opener, and then beat Haskell 26-14, for a 1-1 non-conference record.

The Pied Pipers have piled up 227 points in conference play, as Winters has chalked 46. Hamlin has allowed opponents 63 points, while Winters has allowed 75 points.

Records for the two teams are: Winters 12, Ballinger 15 Winters 6, Roscoe 21

Drug, alcohol abuse classes at WHS

A three-week program on drug and alcohol abuse, under the auspices of the Nolan, Runnels and Coke Counties Council on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, has been in progress in Winters High School.

Tom Watson, counselor for the three-county project, has been the instructor or lecturer for the program, which has included all high school classes.

The classes have been focused on "driving while impaired," actually driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, or combinations of both. The first class emphasized the nationwide teenage problem of drinking and driving among students from age 15 through age 19. The second class or lecture covered the medical consequences of alcohol and drug abuse. The third class dealt with the legal dimensions and consequences of driving while under the influence of drugs and alcohol.

Watson used pamphlets and films and slide presentations, with question and answer periods. Watson said he felt these classes should become a regular part of the school curriculum, and perhaps would prevent some of the incidents which are occurring among teenage drivers especially. The program is a pilot program for this region, and evaluations were given by teachers and school counselors, as well as by the students.
