REFLECTIONS "REFLECTIONS" "REFLECTIONS"

BY RICHARD C. THOMAS

City police have put into motion a practice I have advocated for a good long time: The police are going to start cracking down on persons who follow the fire trucks and emergency vehicles, and are apparently going to begin issuing citations. There was some apparent beginning of that action at a small fire last week, and indications are that it will continue.

There are local ordinances prohibiting persons from interfering with firemen, either enroute to or at the scene of a fire; and indiscriminately following the fire trucks would come under that definition. There have been instances when traffic has been so heavy in the area of fires that second and third fire fighting vehicles could not reach the scene; I have personally seen it happen.

The situation has become so bad that when the fire alarm sounds, many people jump into their cars and take off after the trucks; volunteer firemen on the way to the fires have been run off the road, or their vehicles blocked so they have to park and walk a good distance before they can begin to fight fires. Many times I have observed that such situations have been excuses for "family" outings, when parents would grab the kids — some of them even toddlers — and follow the trucks to fires; it's been a sort of entertainment for some people. Not too many years ago, when a house burned here, about 3 o'clock in the morning, I observed an entire family, including very small children in night clothes — whom I knew lived clear across town from the fire — drive as close as they could to the fire, and then get out and walk, mama and papa holding the small kids by the hand, showing them the excitement . . . in a drizzle, at that!

If people will just stop and think about it, their unneeded and unwanted presence at a fire interferes with the firemen. Too many people around could cause someone to get hurt, or could be cause for higher property loss.

So I — along with the firemen and others who would like to see a change — will have no sympathy for anyone to whom the police issue citations. If they think it's good entertainment to follow the trucks and watch a fire, then let them pay for it!

Fire chasers to be cited by police

Acting Police Chief L.C. Foster says that the police department has begun issuing citations to persons following fire trucks to fires.

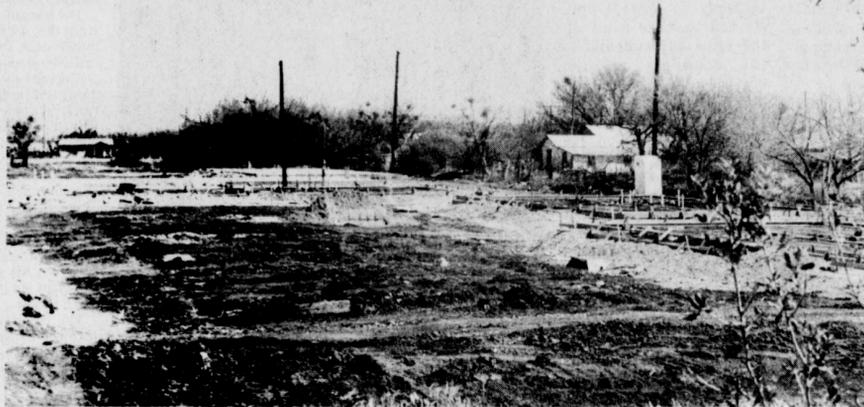

Foster said that police officers will contact drivers who come to the scene of a fire in efforts to cut down on the number of persons at the scene of a fire. The police had been asked by the fire department to begin rigidly enforcing the ordinance.

"The person who follows a fire truck not only creates a hazard on the streets, but often hinder volunteer firemen from getting to the scene of a fire and putting the fire out." It was said that "this in turn could increase the amount of property lost in a fire, and even more seriously, could endanger the life of someone who might be trapped in a burning building, the life of the fire fighter on even the spectator himself."

Dr. James E. Smith, Winters veterinarian, is a single candidate for Place 5 on the school board.

The contest for each place on the school board is a separate race.

City to propose water rate hike

When the Winters City Council meets in regular session April 6, one of the items to be considered will be a proposed ordinance that could increase both water and sewer rates in the city.

City Administrator Glenn Brown told The Enterprise that the proposed ordinance would not change the minimum rates. Increases would affect the larger amounts of water used and would increase slightly the sewage charge. Brown said that the increases will become necessary to generate revenue for the repayment of the revenue bonds sold to finance construction of the new dam and pipeline.

The city administrator said the proposed new rates were the result of work by the bond consultant, engineering consultants and the city administration. The proposed rates for residents of the city of Winters are:

—Three thousand gallon minimum rate to remain at $6.

—$1 for each one thousand gallons used over the minimum.

For persons who live outside the city limits but use city water the rate will remain the same for the minimum bill and will increase $1.50 for each one thousand gallons used over the minimum of three thousand gallons used.

—Rates for sewage would increase by one dollar from $2.50 to $3.50 per month inside the city limits and outside the city limits the rate would increase $2, from $5 to $7.

City Administrator Glenn Brown said that the rates are contained in a proposed ordinance that will be presented to the city council in their next regular meeting April 6.

Police crack down on DWI's

The Winters Police said that last weekend kept them rather busy with a number of arrests being made for driving while intoxicated and at least three minor traffic accidents being investigated.

Officers said the rash of accidents started with a collision at West Parsonage and Magnolia streets about 3:30 P.M. Saturday followed by a pickup and motorcycle crash at the intersection of highways 83 and 53 an hour later. There were no injuries in the crash, but the driver of the pickup was taken into custody on charges of driving while intoxicated and a passenger in the pickup was arrested for public intoxication. Damage in the accident was minor.

About 7 P.M. Saturday another accident was reported on West Dale. That accident was also a minor one but the driver of one of the vehicles involved was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

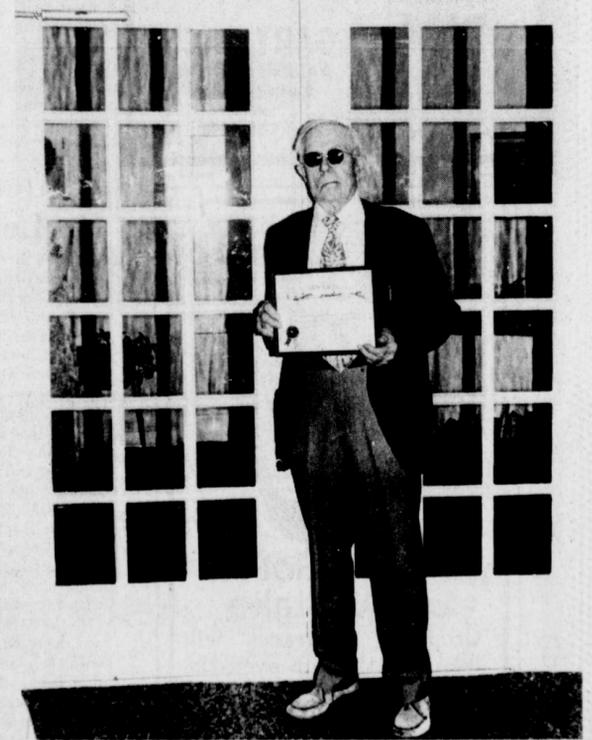

Police also said that two persons were arrested as the result of a fight that occurred at a feed pen near the airport. One of the men was charged with driving while intoxicated and the other man, said by police to be an illegal alien, was arrested for disorderly conduct. Police spokesman said the Immigration and Naturalization Service had been notified and it was anticipated the man would be deported to Mexico.

Fire destroys car, possessions

Winters volunteer firemen were called Sunday afternoon to a car fire at Lake Winters. The blaze totally destroyed a station wagon belonging to Russel Lawson, an employee of the Pool Company.

Pool Company spokesmen said that Lawson had just moved to Winters from Joplin, Missouri after taking a job with the Pool company. The Pool Company spokesman said that all of Lawson's possessions were in the car and were destroyed. A dog that was with Lawson at the time of the fire was not injured in the blaze.

Fire department spokesmen said the car was parked in high grass at the lake and an apparent back fire from the car set the grass on fire and the burning grass in turn caught the car on fire.

"In recognition..."

Grandsons of Winters residents set traditions at West Point

Three grandsons of Winters residents already have set a new tradition at West Point, the U. S. Army Military Academy, and a fourth has been toying with the idea of joining them.

All are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Winford Hogan of Clyde, and grandsons of Mrs. Faye Hogan and the late M. H. Hogan of Winters, and Mrs. and Mrs. J. W. Scott of Winters.

According to a West Point paper, Cadet Melvin Hogan, a freshman at the U. S. Military Academy, has a tough act to follow. His brother Mark is president of the West Point Class of 1981, and their brother Michael is president of the Class of 1982. Their younger brother, Mason, 16, still a high school student at Clyde, is considering following in his brothers' footsteps as a West Pointer.

Following are excerpts from the Point paper article:

Michael explained that his father, an Army Reserve lieutenant colonel, and mother instilled in him and his brothers the feeling that they should serve their country, and that's one reason they decided to attend West Point. Many other families who shared those feelings also have sent several of their members to the Military Academy.

The first documented case of brothers graduating from West Point is that of the de Russys: Rene, Class of 1812, and Lewis, Class of 1814.

Often it seems that once one family member is exposed to West Point, other members follow. So goes the saga of the Hogan brothers. When Mark arrived at the Military Academy, it was uncharted territory for the Hogans. Mark's grades in high school and participation in sports and the student council were helpful in preparing him for West Point. But they didn't fully equip him for cadet life, he said.

"The adjustment of being suddenly just another face in the crowd was the hardest thing for me to get used to," he explained.

After seeing Mark in cadet basic training, Michael was discouraged about going to West Point, he said. "Mark had changed and seemed to have lost his self confidence. But that returned after the summer was over," Michael said. Michael's interest in West Point was rekindled by another visit to the Military Academy.

"West Point turned out to be as I expected," Michael said. "There were some surprises. But if they told you everything, you'd never come."

Melvin was considering attending another college, but his brothers' experiences convinced him to apply to West Point. He had to make many of the same adjustments to the academy as his brothers.

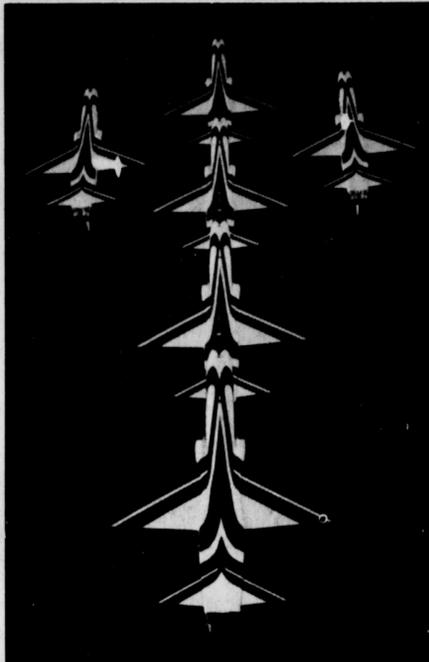

At Clyde High School, Melvin had been on the all-district second football squad, had played basketball and had been active in other activities while maintaining good grades. "There I never had to study hard and I had a 96 average," he said. "Here I study all the time just to get Cs."

Mark will graduate in May. He's had four active cadet years. In addition to being president of his class, he is brigade activities officer; teaches Sunday School at the Cadet Chapel, and is a member of the Baptist Student Union, the Chinese Club, the Student Council on United States Affairs, and the Brigade Championship basketball team. In the summer of 1979 he completed Ranger School at Fort Benning, Ga., and Eglin Air Force Base in Florida.

Michael, like Mark, was elected president of his class at the end of his sophomore year. He also finds time to participate in the Baptist Student Union, the Chinese, and the specially football team, averaging 10 plays per game. Michael said he's never regretted his decision to attend West Point and also wishes he could stay an additional year to participate in some activities he hasn't found time to fit into his schedule.

Michael said he would like to go to Airborne School this summer or after graduation. Like Mark, he said Infantry is the branch for him. "Infantry is the most demanding and challenging branch, and I look forward to graduation as a new challenge."

Melvin is one of the managers of the varsity football team. He has joined his brothers of the Baptist Student Union and the Chinese Club. Melvin hopes to emulate his brothers in another way soon, he said. "I'd like to be involved in being an upperclassman."

Silver Anniversary Open House at Dyess AFB set Saturday

"Support from the Big Country Area is one of the reasons that I am able to announce that the Air Force Thunderbirds Aerial Demonstration Team will once again appear at Dyess' open house on April 4," announced Colonel David L. Wyse, 96th Bombardment Wing commander.

The Thunderbirds will be the featured event at the 1981 Silver Anniversary Open House and Air Show. This will be their third appearance in as many years.

In addition to the Thunderbirds, the Army's Golden Knights famed parachute team will be performing at this year's open house. The eight-man team will lead off the day's events with some spectacular aerial aerobatics out of one of Dyess' own C-130 Hercules aircraft of the 463rd Tactical Airlift Wing.

And more than two dozen Air Force, Army and Navy aircraft will be on static display, including Dyess' own B-52D Stratofortress, KC-135A Stratotanker, C-130 Hercules, and T-37 "Tweet."

D. Pritchard to head Bike-A-Thon

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced that Donna Pritchard has been named to head the 1981 Spring Bike-A-Thon Campaign in Winters.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is the largest childhood cancer research center in the United States, and it is the first research center dedicated exclusively to the research and conquest of catastrophic diseases of children, such as cancer and other life-destroying diseases.

Damstrom said that "Scientists and physicians, working side by side at St. Jude, have succeeded in rewriting medical textbooks. When St. Jude accepted its first patient in 1962, the survival rate for children diagnosed with acute lymphocytic leukemia was less than 5 percent. Today, the disease-free survival figure for children in long term remission has grown to 50 percent. Cancer treatment procedures that originated at St. Jude are now being used to treat children throughout the United States and in other parts of the world. Such progress has brought worldwide acclaim to St. Jude."

"Children come to St. Jude for one purpose: A chance to live," Damstrom stated. "But no one has ever been charged for medical treatment. Yet medicines and treatments are extremely expensive. St. Jude has always been supported by the public,

REDISCOVERING AMERICA'S ECONOMIC GENIUS: MATTER OF REDEFINING GOVERNMENT'S ROLE

No country on the face of the earth possesses the economic potential or the industrial might of the United States. But for too many years, we have allowed government to define our economy's limits, shape its direction and decide on how best it should allocate its resources.

The Reagan Administration has taken some bold steps to break with this treadmill of government regulation, taxation and interference, which has brought our economy's productive capacity to almost a total standstill.

The package consists of four key elements: (1) an immediate, deep, and sustained reduction in the growth of Federal expenditures, (2) an across-the-board reduction in taxes for both individuals and business, (3) a reduction in costly, needless regulation, and (4) a moderate, predictable rate of growth in the Nation's money supply to slow inflationary pressures.

Passed by the Congress as a package, and in the manner recommended, these elements can bring growth back to the economy, make us competitive once again on world markets, and provide the incentives necessary for savings and investment in this country. Real and lasting jobs will spring up from the private sector, once again.

No one has said the budget reductions would be painless. The President has asked for cuts in the Federal budget totalling $48.6 billion.

The President's budget reform plan includes some 283 major cuts in programs all across the spectrum of Federal spending. In future years, spending reduction will continue. In the period between 1981 and 1986, Federal spending will be reduced by over $474 billion, if the President's program is followed by the Congress.

Though the reductions sound enormous, they will only be making the first dent in the overwhelming size of the Federal budget. Subtracting the reductions this year will still leave a 1982 budget totalling $695 billion, an increase of 6.1% over 1981.

As much as anything, this is a reflection of the enormous momentum in Federal spending that has been built up by years of inconsistent and contradictory budget planning. Slowing it down, first, then reversing this spending momentum is the President's objective, and it is one the Congress I believe will be working to adopt.

Spending cuts by themselves will not be enough to breathe life into a bedridden economy. Enormous and increasing Federal taxes on both business and individuals have bred confusion and contempt among taxpayers of every kind. The President's plan for economic recovery contemplates reducing both personal and business taxes. The purpose is to stimulate savings and investment by individuals and business, to pump capital into the productive parts of our society, and away from the non-productive parts like the Federal government. With increases in production, it is my firm belief we will see reduction in the upward pressure of prices which for so long have been a dark cloud hanging over savings and investment decisions by shopkeepers, potential home buyers — in fact, all Americans.

The third part of the President's plan is the elimination of needless, obstructive regulation, which not only ties the hands of business, but eventually costs us all in the form of higher prices for the goods and services we purchase. This is one area which deserves the most critical of reviews; it will be receiving it under the scrutiny of a task force headed by Vice President Bush.

The fourth important part of the President's recovery package is the close cooperation by the Federal Reserve System for a moderate policy of growth in the money supply. One of the prime engines to the inflation we have been experiencing has been the reckless policy of printing new dollars when there have not been enough on hand to pay the bills. Unfortunately, this has been accepted policy in the past.

We have mortgaged our future in the hope such shortsighted policies would not catch up with reality. As we are learning now, the day of reckoning always comes.

However comprehensive, however sound, no plan for economic recovery will work without the support of the American people. But it is here that I am most optimistic. Americans can and will sacrifice and do their fair share to meet a challenge as important as any foreign threat to our shores: this is the threat to our economic future.

Americans understand the difficult choices ahead. It is up to you to make certain the Congress does. Express your views. It will make a difference.

Poe's Corner

BY CHARLSE POE

A TASTE OF TEXAS HERITAGE

(Grace Roach is our guest writer for this week's column. She presented the following program for the Diversity Club's Texas Day observance held at the Z. I. Hale Museum recently and we wanted other to enjoy it, also.)

Texas is a state with a population of almost fifteen million people who reside in a total land area of 267,339 square miles. Our name derives from an Indian word "Tejas", meaning "friend", and our state motto is "Friendship."

One must travel 808 miles to get to El Paso from Texarkana, and 791 miles from Brownsville to Amarillo. So it is apparent that the magnitude of our state is such that we may all indulge in the taste of our choice. The first to mention might be the weather which is so unpredictable that people say "only fools and strangers predict the weather in Texas."

If our taste is for something to satisfy the appetite one can get out the trusty compass and go in any direction and chances are that before the gas tank is empty at least one desire has been fulfilled. Tasty steaks can be found in all parts of our great state, and if we are lucky, in most of our kitchens. We no longer need to travel to the coast for delectable seafood, although it might be found there in more abundance. Other typical Texas foods we might mention are homemade chili, pecan pie and country fried chicken.

If one's taste is for fishing, Texas is a literal paradise for this sport. There are approximately two hundred species of fresh water fish here, but only ten or twelve species are popular with anglers. About 250 kinds of salt water fish are found in the bays and outer gulf area of our state, but only fifteen of this number are popular for both game and commercial purposes. Anglers are at home on lakes, rivers and streams from the Gulf of Mexico to all other areas of our state, and many of those on limited time can be found at McGee's tank.

Texas is a haven for bird lovers and hunters. This may be partially due to the fact that there is a greater variety of birdlife here than in any other state in the union.

The wild animal life here is as varied as the state is vast. The Texas grizzly is now extinct and the buffalo and bighorn sheep have dwindled considerably. In spite of this, Texas still remains rich with wildlife, and with present conservation measures the future is bright for her outdoor citizens. Hunters can still find antelope, black bear, elk, and many varieties of deer.

The principal mountain ranges in the state rise in the Trans-Pecos Region. Parts of the Guadalupe Mountains tower to 8,751 feet. The circular range of Chisos Mountains in Big Bend National Park are noted as one of the most nearly perfect ranges in the world. In early days of Texas history these mountains were sites of favorite Indian homes, later providing overland mail routes, and notable cattle trails. Now they are popular with the tourists, archaeologists, and rock hunters.

Texas lakes are numerous and offer natural retreats from busy city life. Our lakes and state and national parks allow many people to enjoy vacations and see the beauties of our state at the same time. Lake Texoma is the largest body of water between the Great Lakes and the Gulf of Mexico.

Our rivers are worthy of note since they are indeed a part of our heritage. The Brazos, which means "Arms of God", is the longest river in Texas. And the Comal, only four miles long, is the shortest river in the entire nation.

Texas is synonymous with cattle, cowboys and cactus. This, however true, is misleading to an out of state traveler, for the state abounds in native plant life. From mesquite and scrub grass in West Texas to the stately wooded pine regions of East Texas. Over 5,000 different species of plant life call Texas their native home. Most famous is the state flower, the Bluebonnet. Our state tree, the Pecan, is one of the most productive trees we have and one of the most stately.

We have many cities of national renown. San Antonio, sometimes called "The Alamo City", is perhaps the most picturesque and houses much of our early history. It was once an Indian Village, then several years later a mission was founded in this location, named Mission San Antonio de Valero, later called the Alamo. It became the city of San Antonio in 1809. Many beautiful and historic missions stand today and are viewed with delight by scores of tourists.

The army's largest military base, Fort Sam Houston was founded here in 1878, and this is also the home of

In 1883 the state purchased the Alamo, and a part of the courtyard was bought in 1905. In 1936 money was appropriated to make it a part of the Texas Centennial Celebration, and the area was converted into a park.

Austin, the home of our state government, was first named Waterloo in 1838. It was later named Austin, in honor of Stephen F. Austin, incorporated in 1839 and construction begun on government buildings. It is the home of the University of Texas and the famous Texas Longhorn, Bevo.

Houston is the largest city in Texas and the sixth largest in the nation. It is an educational center, the home of NASA and a big part of our space program. It also claims the Astrodome and the Houston Oilers.

Dallas is the metropolis of a huge part of the Southwest. It is the home of the famous Dallas Cowboys, the State Fair of Texas, and has the distinction of housing the second largest Home Furnishing Market in the Nation.

Then - there is Six Flags over Texas located between Fort Worth and Dallas. It is the Southwest's most spectacular entertainment attraction. It has reached back 115 years into Texas' history and rustled its pages to give new life to the glory of our heritage.

Another place worthy of note is the Aquarena Springs in San Marcos, one of the oldest areas of civilization in the nation. Natural aquatic growth found on the bottom of the lake, where the Springs are located, are removed and sold throughout the world for aquariums and floral purposes.

Historical museums are too numerous to mention, but they too, house a lot of our heritage, and are increasing in number each year.

We can boast of Palo Duro Canyon in West Texas, where Indian tribes settled. Many years ago, and many thousands now view the show "Texas" throughout each summer.

Our caverns are a definite part of our heritage, the third largest one in the world being near our doorstep - The Longhorn Caverns located near Burnet.

Oil derricks dot the Texas sky in every direction and oil production is one of our most valuable industries.

The wearing apparel of Texans has gone through many changes. From the long cotton dresses, four or five petticoats, sun bonnets, corsets and bustles to finely tailored clothes from famous designers. But many of our friends in other states think the typical Texas garb consists of blue jeans, cowboy hats and boots.

This is a small taste of Texas. Big, busy, beautiful Texas! Aren't we glad we live here? Ya-al Come!

Tires underinflated by as little as five pounds can rob drivers of as much as a half gallon of gas out of every twenty.

ENTERTAINING IDEAS

Why Not Make a Popcorn Easter Wagon?

We all enjoy spring with its special symbols. Daffodils, crocuses and azaleas burst into bloom; Easter bunnies appear everywhere along with new spring wardrobes. Children especially relish a chance to enjoy sweet treats. Here's an edible Easter wagon sculptured from popcorn. We've used the easy pop-in-the-pan kind, then filled it with popcorn, raisins and colored coconut. . . everything is edible and delicious.

- 1 pan (5 oz.) Jiffy Pop® Popcorn
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup corn syrup
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 to 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup dry raisins
- 1 cup dry roasted peanuts
- 1 can (3-1/2 oz.) flaked coconut
- green vegetable dye

Prepare popcorn according to package directions. Save out two popped cups; pour remainder into large bowl or pan. Heat sugar, corn syrup and water in saucepan to 245°-250°F, or until a drop of syrup forms a hard ball in cold water. Save some syrup for attaching decorations; pour remaining syrup over popcorn and mix thoroughly with two large spoons.

The coated popcorn is now ready to form into a wagon. Grease the insides of a 5"x9" baking pan. Grease hands also. Pack the popcorn around the insides of baking pan to form a 1" thick shell. Form a handle by rolling popcorn into a rope, curving slightly. Allow popcorn to sit for 15 to 20 minutes. Meantime, follow directions on can for coloring coconut. Allow coconut to dry. Remove wagon from baking dish. Attach jelly rings for wheels. Place dyed coconut in bottom to resemble grass. Mix remaining popcorn, raisins and peanuts. Pour over coconut.

Bats range in size from a wingspan of over five feet to one of under two inches.

This is Cowtown . . . for over a century the cattleman's capital and the hub of the real West. Fort Worth was the cowboy's opportunity of true grit before John Wayne made a movie on the subject and long before the Urban Cowboy movement was born.

This writer has been here since Sunday attending the 104th annual convention of Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association. And for me, its been like old home week. Back some 15 years ago, for nearly two years, I called Fort Worth home when I was associate editor and public relations person for The Cattleman magazine.

Many of my colleagues of that era are still with TSCRA. Don King, TSCRA secretary-general manager, was my boss back then.

Certainly the convention and its many speakers, vice president George Bush, Texas Governor Bill Clements and San Angeloan John Cargile (TSCRA president) have given some information to write home about. And you will be hearing some of that in this space for a couple of weeks.

However, for me the highlight of the whole meeting has to be the dedication of TSCRA's new home at 1301 W. Seventh Street. The multi-million dollar facility is most workable, beautiful and designed to handle any and all crisis for the 25,000-member cattle raiser organization and the huge monthly magazine in a unique way. Offices, conference rooms, library, museum, computer center and parking make the new home a place ranch folks can share with pride.

Just the same, as we toured, I possessed a little sinking feeling and loneliness for the building where I worked. The address of 410 East Weatherford, a few blocks away, holds so many memories for me. It was there that I observed a number of crisis within the cattle industry, the formation of the feeders division, the transition of The Cattleman and the very change of administration in TSCRA.

It was the final victory of those many problems which delivered us to this day. I realize that in years to come, the new building will gain its marks from challenges as well. Nonetheless, I did have to drive by the old building and park and visualize again the view from my office window on the second floor. That satisfied me.

The Tarrant County Convention Center is an asset to the city. Four years ago we gathered here to hear a keynote address from Ronald Reagan. His popularity was so great at that time, we like to never get him to the press room for interviews with the media. Some of us felt he would be the next President back then!

The Trade Show and western art show with some 150 booths has grown each year since its beginning at TSCRA Conventions. It in itself would keep an advertising-public relations man busy and has almost got this one talked to death. Each booth promotes new products for the livestock industry along with services and ideas to make the job on the range easier.

Besides getting an additional education, the trade fair, the convention and the trip to Fort Worth proved to be triple success. Seeing friends I made 15 years ago and meeting new ones gives us all a new lease on life. It inspires us to return home with new goals and challenges.

High pointer

Roy Walston, of Runnels County 4-H, was presented a gold watch by Dr. Gil Enghdal, Angelo State University professor, for being the high point individual in the Livestock Judging contest during the San Angelo Stock Show recently.

Water Supply Corp. elected directors

North Runnels Water Supply Corp., in the annual meeting last week, elected new directors for the coming year. Incumbent board members R. Q. Marks and Hudon White were re-elected to their seats, and Joe Bryan was elected to fill the seat being vacated by E. F. Albro.

Holdover directors include Morris Robinson, Wayne King, Leon Frerich, Cecil Tekell, Jack Franklin, and Joe Vancil.

John Wolfe of Abilene, representing the Farmers Home Administration, told the group that with the current Federal budget cuts there would be no grant money available for new projects.

Music students earn medals

Three Winters piano students of Susan Conner recently earned medals for scoring 90 or above on state music theory exams.

Bill Wheat scored 98 or above to earn a gold medal and Jim Lee earned a silver medal for scoring 95-97. These were Whitlock award winners, named for E. Clyde Whitlock of Fort Worth, in recognition of his services during his lifetime in establishing a credit plan for applied music in Texas schools.

Winner of the Primary award and also receiving a gold medal was Barbie Bradley who had to score 98 or above on her test.

These tests were administered by Abilene Music Teachers Association to Student Affiliate Members and sent to a state theory committee for official grading.

Other students who participated and will receive certificates of achievement were Deedra Blackshear, Robin Michaelis, Resa Porter and Shannon Rozmen.

Young Farmers meeting set for April 6

The Winters Young Farmers will have their regular monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 6, in the vocational agriculture building at Winters High School.

A program on the Runnels County Appraisal District, will be given with officials presenting an overview of the district, how it functions, and how the new appraisal methods will affect landowners in Runnels County.

Anyone interested is invited to attend the meeting.

Meetings scheduled for cotton producers

Runnels County cotton producers have been encouraged to attend at least one of three scheduled meetings to discuss the uniform planting date for the 1981 cotton crop, Allen E. Turner, county extension agent, said this week.

Meetings are scheduled for:
— April 6, 7:30 p. m., in the ODHS Hall, Rowena.
— April 8, 7:30 p. m., in Weatherby Hall, Miles.

— April 14, 7:30 p. m., Wingate Lions Building, Wingate.

Dr. Tom Fuchs, area entomologist, and Dr. Willis Gass, area agronomist, will lead discussions during these programs.

The programs are under the direction of the Runnels County Extension Crops Committee. David Workman is chairman of the committee.

Workman explained that only three meetings would be held in Runnels County this year, since most people understand the program that has been very successful in holding down boll weevil populations. Also, most of the adjoining counties are coming into the program and there is more demand on the specialist's time during this critical time. Workman said the uniform delayed planting program has been a "tremendous success" in holding down losses to the cotton boll weevil. Cotton acreage has increased from 34,000 acres in 1978 to 68,000 acres in 1980, it was stated. Most people agree, Workman said that this increase is a direct result of the good cooperation by cotton farmers in adhering to uniform planting dates.

Jerry Ryan figures he's saving a lot of money by doing without an extension phone. But the fact is, he's paying an even higher price for not having one. Think about it. For much less than you'd expect, you can reach rather than run for your phone. Whether you're doing laundry, watching the tube or taking a snooze.

What's more, you know you've got a phone that's as reliable as the phone company. So call your General Telephone business office and ask for an extension phone. You'll sleep better.

"Dear Mr. President..."

This is the biggest problem facing families today-and here's what should be done about it...

"Inflation" and "gas prizes" are two of the problems suggested to President Reagan by Ouida Nichols' third grade class at Winters Elementary. These letters are part of the class' program in recognition of Save the Children Day 1981, a national event which focuses on the needs and rights of children around the world.

This is the fourth consecutive year Save the Children has asked youngsters to join a national letter-writing campaign. Last year, more than 20,000 letters from children in almost every state were presented at a hearing before the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Child and Human Development in Washington. The letters are being tallied and the leading concerns will be summarized in a Children's Agenda for Action.

Following are excerpts from those letters:

"...I hate air pollution and about the hunger. O.K.? Now my church gave us a little bowl that says put money in it because it's for the hungry. I like them but I wish that I could go there and help them and their mothers live. The world hunger is far away from Winters, Texas."
Your friend,
Bobby Joe DeLaCruz

"...Litter and pollution are the biggest problems that need to be solved. People should keep sacks in their cars and pickups. People could pick up litter. Bakeries should be careful. They should be careful not to throw trash out. It makes the earth ugly."
Your friend,
Christy Collins

"...Please catch the Atlanta murders and put them in jail."
Your friend,
Keith Brown

"...Inflation is the problem. My mother's telephone bill is too high."
Beatrice Aleman

"...Health Care in poor countries is the biggest problem. Please send people to make schools and to teach people to teach others. People over there need to learn to help themselves. They need to learn to dig wells for clean drinking water, to plant gardens, and to raise chickens and cows."
Your friend,
Greg Shifflett

"...Gas prizes is the problem. And here's what should be done about it. Lower the gas prizes. Then people will buy gas. Lower it to 95¢ a gallon. Drugs is making people die. And this is what should be done about it. Shut down the drug stores."
Your friend,
Simon Gonzales

"...Inflation. Prices of gas and food should go down. Now about health care. Send other doctors around other parts of the world. Teach people to dig wells, plant gardens, and raise chickens or rabbits. Now about litter and pollution! Don't throw out trash and don't pollute."
Your friend,
Michael Hicks

"...My father is a manager of Winn's Variety Store. Our bills are sky-high, and my father doesn't get paid much. Please help my family lead a better life. The earth should be clean. People litter in lakes, they should put trash in trashcans. Alcoholics are bad. They should teach children that you shouldn't drink it. There are too many divorces, people should love each other. In the world people are starving. Please help them too!"
Your friend,
Dawn Dinger

"...The problem is gas prices. Stop the people who kill children in Atlanta. Stop the people who rob the bank. Help the people who are old. They are so good and I like them."
Love,
Mary Rodriguez

"...I would like you put the prices on food lower because some families don't have jobs. Some are poor. They do not have enough money to buy these things. So please do it!!!"
A friend,
Jimmy J. Ripley

"...Too much alcohol and too much tobacco are the biggest problems facing families today. This problem could be solved by not selling too much alcohol. Then there will not be so many wrecks. School should teach the dangers of alcohol. People should save the money they spend on alcohol and tobacco to buy food."
Your friend,
Lisa Farias

"...I think you should stop littering. You could put up signs that say People who litter and the police catches them go to jail. On drugs in motels you should tell the owner to check the rooms. In Winters, Texas last week in the Winters paper it said they found some drugs that people had left."
Your friend,
Richard Bryan

"...Crime. Here's what should be done about it. We should get some new please man to help stop it."
Yours sincerely,
Don Patton

"...Inflation would be better if you would lower the prices on food like ham roset stake and other meats and bread and cereal and other things. Please lower prices to make a better life for other people Some people can't afford the prices."
Your Friend,
Lance Bellis

"...Inflation. The prices should be lowered. All I know of is to pray to God when you need rain for the crops or something else. Another problem is world hunger. Maybe you could send some people to other countries and show them how to plant gardens."
Sincerely
Julie Wheat

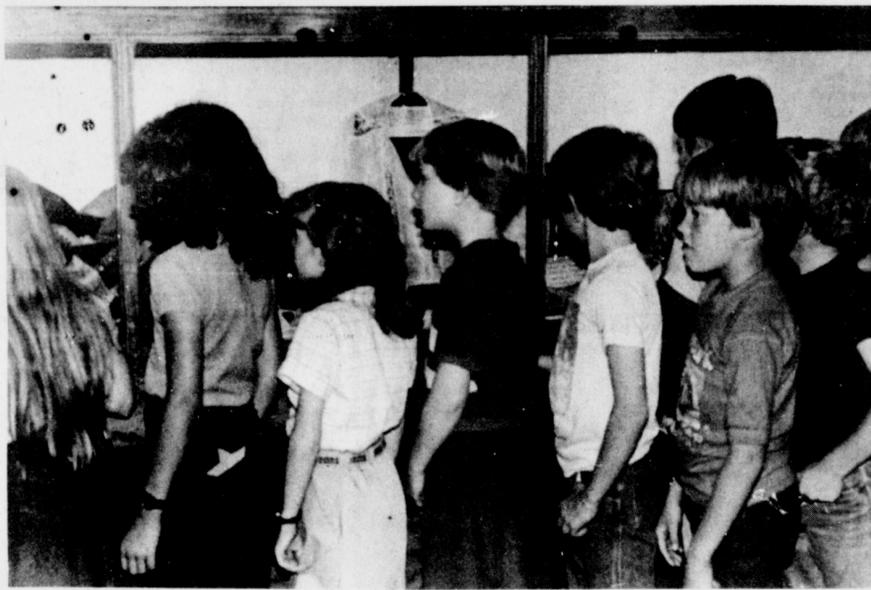

"...There are too many divorces. You should try to keep them together. Another problem is World hunger. We could send people to Africa and show them how to plant gardens and raise chickens."
Your Friend,
Tammie Hagle

"...Murders in Atlanta. You should have guards up and down the streets where black people live. And here's another problem - Drunk people. Here's what should be done. Shut down all the stores that sell beer, whiskey, and wine."
Your friend,
Dan Killough

"...Inflation and prices of food. People can't buy food because it is too high and the gas! What can you do? Please do something!"
Your friend,
Isabel Roman

"...Gas prices should be lowered every day. There should be no smoking. There is too much alcohol. Please stop drinking it."
Your friend,
Gilbert Jimenez

(Editor's note: Save the Children, the international child-assistance agency, has asked children all over the world to write the President on the theme: "This is the biggest problem facing families today-and here's what should be done about it." All letters will be presented at a children's day hearing with government leaders in Washington, D.C. on May 1st, Save the Children Day.)

City to enforce local pet ordinance

Winters' Animal Control Officer Dick Ryan has issued a reminder to pet owners in the city that there are a number of ordinances concerning the keeping of pets within the city limits.

Ryan, who assumed his duties last week, said that the ordinances will be enforced, and outlined some of the provisions of the statute:

- Pets kept within the city must be restrained at all times.
- Pets over three months of age must be vaccinated against rabies.
- Dogs and cats over the age of three months must wear a collar or harness with the rabies vaccination tag attached.

— Allowing a pet within the city to disturb the peace, comfort or property of residents of a neighborhood by sound, cry or other activity.

Failure to confine a dog or cat that has not been spayed during the stage of estrus.

Ryan said that persons violating the ordinance would first be notified in person of the infraction. The second violation will be an official notice of violation by mail and the third violation would result in the actual filing of charges. A person convicted of violating these ordinances could face a maximum fine of $200 and confinement for not more than 30 days, Ryan said.

Emergency courses to be offered

The Winters Unit of the Runnels County Emergency Service is planning training classes for E.M.T. or E.C.A. certification. According to Jack Davis of the emergency service, the classes are planned for the near future.

Persons interested in becoming emergency medical technicians or emergency care attendants should contact Davis at 754-4940 as soon as possible. Cost for the 100-hour course will be approximately $120 and the course will be instructed by the Emergency Medical Service of the San Angelo Fire Department.

home with 200 square feet of glass windows.

However, when the familiar window shade—a standard light-colored, opaque vinyl-coated shade—is pulled down, it blocks out 60 percent of this unwanted heat. The savings: a cool $100.

A three-foot-by-five-foot shade of this type costs around $12 and effectively deflects the sun's rays and their heat. More costly window coverings block out less sun. Draperies save one-third less—41 percent—and venetian blinds, only 31 percent.

Shades Block Out Sun's Rays Cut Cost of Air Conditioning

The blistering rays of the summer sun can penetrate glass windows. In fact, ten times as much as through the adjacent wall. The air conditioning needed to offset this heat buildup wastes energy and money. That's bad.

Pull down your window shades during the day. They deflect the sun to reduce heat buildup and help keep air conditioning costs from going through the roof.

Just how bad—and expensive—is revealed in a recent study by North Carolina State University.

It shows the cost of air conditioning needed to offset solar heat buildup—wasted energy—was an average of $166 for a typical
