"REFLECTIONS," "REFLECTIONS," "REFLECTIONS,"

BY RICHARD C. THOMAS

Over there in the corner of the garden, next to the fence, defiantly challenging the rude Johnsongrass shoots, a late-rising bean sprout pokes through the soil's crust, to join companions who came along earlier. A few feet away, an okra plant already is big enough to lean two big leaves toward the traveling sun. Corn shoots, seemingly out of place, have joined the okra, and the two soon will be contesting for row-room.

Tomato plants across there are putting on buds, after having their protective tin-can and plastic milk carton shields removed a few days previous. In this late-planted garden, the radishes, already well-established, wrestle with one another for room to grow. Squash seed — or was it cucumbers planted in that spot? — have sprouted, and before long the plants will send out arms to sunbathe lazily on the rich soil.

Pepper plants and eggplants emphasize total intergration of the hemmed-in garden plot, looking as out of place in the same rows as the tomatoes as the corn does in the okra rows. The onions, though, by reason of their very nature, are shunned to single non-integrated rows over on the edge next to the bermuda grass, which doesn't seem to mind.

An old topknotted cardinal, daringly decked out in red — a refreshing sight in this area — argues as he jumps from limb to limb of the pecan tree which reaches out toward the garden. Pecan blooms fill out, as the leaves take on a more deep color, promising another good crop.

Alongside the road in the country, the buttercups splash their yellow and white against the tender green of the new grass, and the bluebonnets blanket an open spot where the mesquite has been cleared; the mesquites' color is deepening, as the new leaves begin their fast growth. They hesitated for a while, waiting to see if a late "Easter spell" would take a whack at them, and then they came out for good. Wild daisies have been sprinkled near the little ditches and draws, soaking up the sunshine following several days of drinking in the rain.

Rainwashed and sundried hills, sprinkled with cedar and mesquite and liveoak, and proudly boasting new grass, testify to spring on this bright morning, which dawned following a big moon. A pair of quail darts across the road as the car rounds a country corner, and a rabbit sits under the protection of the bottom strand of a barbed wire fence.

All this on a beautiful Easter morning! What additional evidence is needed of a Universal Intelligence, as Thoreau put it?

State highway 53 left its impression on truckers over the past

Annexation hearing May 4

The Winters city council in their Monday evening meeting agreed to set May 4, as the date for a public hearing on the proposed annexation of an area along highway 53 just west of the city. The area is the site of the proposed new Haliburton well cementing facility. The annexation was requested by Haliburton, who says construction is expected to begin soon.

In other action the council agreed to upgrade the city's health insurance plan for city employees. The new insurance program will be obtained through the Texas Municipal League who contracts with the Prudential insurance company for group insurance for about 200 member cities about the size of Winters. The new insurance program will offer the city employees increased medical and hospitalization benefits and increased life insurance benefits.

Also the council authorized the final payment for work in the air-

Long distance telephone service out for 5 hours

Officials of General Telephone said that long distance telephone service to Winters, Ballinger, Rowena, and Paint Rock was interrupted about 2 p. m. Thursday afternoon and was not completely restored until about 7 p. m. that evening. Public Relations spokesman Rob Rutherford said that a party or parties unknown drilling core samples along U.S. highway 67 between Miles and Rowena cut through a 50 pair telephone cable.

He said that the initial call to report project. That work resurfaced the runway and did work on the taxi ways at the airport. The council in its last meeting discussed a request from the contractor for final payment on the project. The council had initially agreed to spend $56,994.60 to patch the runway and taxi ways at the airport. The patching project had been okayed by the Texas Aeronautics Commission, but after work had begun it was learned that much more work was needed. The T.A.C. told the city that just patching the runway would not have been sufficient and the runway was rebuilt at an additional cost of about $10,300. The council had discussed the city's responsibility for the additional amount and agreed that the total of $67,295.40 should be paid to the contractor. The council members noted that Winters now had better airport facilities than most cities its size following the work last year.

week. The LaJet Oil Company tanker from Abilene (above) jack-knifed on the rain slick pavement last Thursday causing minor damage and minor injuries. The tank truck was on the way to Silver to pick up a load of crude oil when the accident occurred. This 18 wheeler dump truck (below) belonging to J. C. Harrell of Bronte was enroute to Winters with a load of gravel when the brakes malfunctioned at Poe's corner. Owner J.C. Harrell said that damage was heavy to the trailer but the driver was not injured.

VFW observes 'Loyalty Day' next Friday

The program for members will begin at 8 p. m. led by Post Commander R. C. Kurtz and Auxiliary President Mary Kurtz. A game night will follow.

Pipeline is not PVC

The pipe used in the pipeline from the new lake site to the water treatment plant is not PVC pipe, as reported recently.

City officials said the pipe which will carry water from the lake is "asbestos cement," which provides much more strength and a longer life than would PVC.

Still more construction...

Steel framework is in place for the new paint department at John's International. The new construction is due to be completed by early summer with the new department operating by June.

City tables rural water rate action

North Runnels Water Supply Corp. operated at a loss of "about $20,000" last year, the Winters City Council was told Monday night, and if Winters raises the rates the city charges the water distribution system, "we can't pay for it."

Joe Vancil, president of the water corporation board and two other members of the board, met with the council to discuss a probable increase in water rates, only a few days after the council had announced an increase in rates to be charged Winters customers.

However, some of the rural system's monetary deficit could be attributed to the difference in the amount of water charged for by the city and the amount the system's customers were charged for, it was brought out during the meeting — a difference of about 30 percent.

Vancil said customers now tied into the rural water system are charged $16.50 minimum for the first 1,000 gallons, and $2 for each additional 1,000 gallons. If the city raises the rates charged the rural system, he said, "we must go up on our rates." He said the rural system probably would have to raise rates to "$18.50 for the first 1,000 gallons minimum, and $3 for each additional 1,000 gallons." If that happens, he said, "some customers will shut down," which would cause further decreases in the system's income. The rural distribution system now serves 587 meters. There are prospects that approximately 70 more customers will be added if and when planned extensions to the rural pipeline are completed, the council was told.

L. C. Foster named new Chief of Police

The Winters city council, in their regular meeting this week, named L. C. Foster to the post of police chief. Foster had been serving in the capacity of acting chief since the retirement of Luther "Doc" Smith last year.

City administrator Glenn Brown said that Foster was chosen from 6 applicants for the top law enforcement position in the city.

The new Chief of Police said that he expects no immediate changes in the department and pledged to give the residents of Winters the best police services possible.

BLUEBONNETS AND EASTER RABBITS

Taking a ride with a van load of fifteen people down into bluebonnet country seems like a harmless tour, especially when it's with a church group, but you can't trust them. Don't try to catch a nap even if you are sitting quietly on the back seat. When about half of them have cameras it is dangerous, for they will take pictures of you and have positive proof that you sleep with your mouth open. I have one of the photos in my possession and I'm looking for the other.

Our route took us by Eden, Menard and Junction to Fredericksburg and back by Mason and Brady. There were great patches of bluebonnets all along the roadside and we were constantly stopping the bus for a picture, but we were amazed at field after field solid with the thrifty blue and white flowers around Mason and Brady on our return.

A picnic lunch was spread at noon in the Lady Bird Johnson Park, three miles out of Fredericksburg and all were ready for it, even the two people who ate all the way there and back. I won't call any names but they were the ones who took my picture.

There was time for a tour of picturesque Fredericksburg and several visited the bakery to purchase loaves of fresh baked bread while others toured the Nimitz Museum to find that it is now "The Admiral Nimitz Center" — a different kind of museum sponsored by the State of Texas and by Admirers of Admiral Nimitz. It consists of four units: the steamboat hotel, the Nimitz Gallery of Combat Art, the Garden of Peace and the history walk of the Pacific War.

The Center is built around the famous old steamboat hotel, whose guests included such famous people as Robert E. Lee and Ulysses S. Grant. It is being restored to its pre-1900 appearance. Inside will be the museum of the Pacific War.

The hotel was built by Captain Charles H. Nimitz who spent his youth in the German merchant marine, before he settled in Fredericksburg. Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, the Captain's grandson spent his early years at the hotel, his father died before he was born.

The museum tells the story of Nimitz's life and career of service to the nation and recounts through its exhibits the inspiring story of the country's recovery from the shock of Pearl Harbor and the campaigns leading to our ultimate victory, several of the war relics exhibited are the last of their kind.

While in the museum I was handed an invitation to this year's annual Fredericksburg Easter Fires Pageant which is always presented the Saturday night before Easter LSunday at the Gillespie County Fair Grounds, about three miles out of town.

For 35 years, the Easter Fires Pageant has been presented by a cast of over 800, and blinds the history of the community and the local fable of the "Easter Bunny" with the religious facets of Easter for a most delightful entertainment.

The story begins in the year 1846 when John O. Meusebach, and other colonists from Germany, came to the hill country of Texas to found Fredericksburg. The story unfolds as select men, in order to live without fear among the Indians of the area, wisely decided to journey to the San Saba River, the winter camp of the fierce Comanches, Apaches, and Tonkawas, in the hopes of making a treaty of peace with them.

While the colonists and Indians are in meeting, other Indians are stationed on the hills surrounding Fredericksburg. They are to keep watch on the small community and transmit messages to each other by way of smoke signals. When word finally comes on the honesty of the colonists with their treaty of peace, the Indians are to burn their fires high as a sign that all is well.

Meanwhile, a pioneer mother, left alone with her children in a cabin, is distressed by her children's fright as they see the Indian signal fires on the hills. She remembers the story told her as a child in Germany; a tale that on a certain night, fairies came out to dance around fires on the hills. The legend tells that fairies set fire to the old wood to make room for growth of new timber, plants, and flowers, signifying that winter was over and spring would soon be there. (Today historians tell us that for centuries it was customary to set Easter Eve Fires ablaze on the hills of Germany). However, she realizes that her children would not understand about fairies on the wild Texas frontier. The mother weaves her own tale about the little rabbits her children had seen as they played in the woods. Because of Eastertime, the children are told that the "Easter Rabbit" was boiling eggs in large kettles over the fire. He was coloring them with dyes made of beautiful wild flowers, and if the children would go to sleep, they would find the eggs in their "Easter Nests" at the cabin door on Easter morning. Thus the story of the "Easter Bunny" and the Fredericksburg Easter Fires Pageant is born. Fredericksburg is an interesting place to visit.

Rural Water —

The city now charges the rural water system .70 cents per 1,000 gallons, and is planning to increase the rate to $1.35 per 1,000. According to city officials, it costs the city $1.53 per 1,000 to treat the water. By contract, the city can charge as much as $1.68 per 1,000 gallons, it was stated.

City officials had pointed out that increases in rates to Winters customers, along with rural customers, are necessary in order to retire the bonded indebtedness connected with construction of the new dam and reservoir, to provide a more adequate water supply for the entire area. Construction is now underway.

Vancil told the council that during the past year, the rural system had paid the city for 30 percent more water than it had charged customers for. He said the entire system had been checked for extensive leakage, but none could be located. He said that in checking with similar rural systems in other areas, it was learned that a "10 percent loss was considered acceptable." Vancil said it was finally determined that the main meter between the city's system and the rural system had been malfunctioning, causing the 30 percent difference. The meter has been changed, Vancil said, and the "loss" had dropped to about seven percent. The rural system owns and maintains the main meter.

Mayor W. Lee Colburn assured the representatives of the rural water distribution system that the city had no intentions of placing a heavier burden upon rural customers than is being borne by city customers, and that a belief that the City of Winters expected the rural consumers "to pay for the new dam" was a misconception. Every water consumer is being asked to share the costs involved, he said. It was also pointed out that only the Winters taxpayers and water consumers would be held accountable for the heavy debt necessary to build the new water supply reservoir.

North Runnels Water Supply Corp., a non-profit corporation, is funded through grants and long-term, low-interest loans from the Farmers Home Administration. The system also purchases some water from Ballinger.

The City Council took no action Monday night toward increasing rates to be charged the rural distribution system, but tabled the matter for further study and action at a later date.

Murder trial underway for Winters resident

Testimony got underway this week in Abilene in 42nd District Court in the murder trial of Wendell Clayton Conway. Conway, said by authorities to be a resident of Winters, formerly lived in Abilene and is accused of the September 23, 1980 shooting death of 23-year-old Daniel Michael Ochoa. The shooting incident occurred outside a residence on Abilene's north side.

Prosecutors said that Ochoa was shot in the yard of a residence and dragged back into that residence. Defense attorneys say that they plan to show that Conway shot Ochoa in self defense. Officers said that a .32 caliber weapon was used in the shooting.

The case is being heard by an eight man, four woman jury in Judge Don Lane's 42nd State District Court.

No bids so far for planned city office space

City Administrator Glenn Brown said Tuesday that his office has not been contacted by anyone seeking plans and specifications for the proposed office space to be constructed in the old light plant building next to city hall.

The city council is advertising for bids for the construction of the office space to house the city administrator and the municipal judge offices. At the present time the administrator is using the council chambers as his office and municipal judge J. C. Hodnett is being forced to move from his present office. Hodnett is also a Runnels county justice of the peace and the county is expected to help in the cost of some of that office space.

Brown said that the office space is needed as soon as possible but so far no interest has been shown by contractors for the job.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
 U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
 142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

The recent death of General of the Army Omar Bradley marked the end of an era. He was the last of the great generals of World War II, a man who stood out among the ranks of many heroes.

On the occasion of his death, I was asked whether we will produce other heroes as great as he from today's military.

I pray daily that we will not have to, that we can maintain peace. That is the goal of our defense program -- to be strong enough that we don't have to go to war.

Neither the Soviet Union nor any other potential adversary will risk pushing us into an armed confrontation as long as they are convinced we are strong enough that their venture would be unsuccessful.

It is for that reason that I and others in Congress and in the Administration are working so hard to rebuild our national defense system. History has shown over and over again that he who does not prepare for war is most likely to have to fight one.

Yet, that is only part of the answer to the question I was asked. I do believe that in our armed services we find the stuff from which heroes are made. Those who work to keep the peace deserve as much respect and honor as those who win the battles when the peace is broken.

It is only fitting that we pay tribute to General Bradley and those others who have fought with valor. But we should also pay tribute to those who day-to-day, with little noise and, regrettably, sometimes less praise are our defensive bulwark.

The mechanic who keeps the planes in the air, and takes pride in his work.

The infantryman who drills and trains in the mud preparing for a mission everyone hopes he won't have to undertake.

The sailor, separated from his family for months at a time, who works a 60 or 70 hour week keeping his ship in working order.

When I visit our military bases, I find heroes everywhere, at all ranks. These fine men and women believe in what they are doing.

They are frustrated because they don't have the equipment they need, or the spare parts, or the fuel or ammunition for sufficient training exercises. They wonder if the American people understand their problems -- or their contributions. They read stories attacking the calibre of our military personnel, and they take personally these criticisms.

They are underpaid and overworked. But still they work, still they train, still they believe in their missions. That, to me, is true heroism.

After visiting with these fine Americans, I feel a renewed responsibility to make sure they have what they need to do their jobs. Man for man, we have the best military in the world. But we have not provided them with the wherewithal to do as good a job as they are capable of doing.

We have consistently failed to compensate them properly for the vital work they do. They are doing their part. We must do ours.

Horseman Aubrey Stokes reached for his rain gauge atop a gate post at his ranch west of San Angelo and poured out .30 from last Wednesday night's rain. "That makes over three inches for this week," he smiled, looking back at visitor Shelley V. Smith.

We then joined Stokes in a jeep tour of the ranch over and through fields of wheat, already heading out, to view prize quarter horses in every direction. Stoke's El Rancho Contento is home of the famous Chick Called Sue "expected to foal again any day now."

Smith, executive director of West Texas Rehab Centers, was out to check progress on a yearling colt called: "Wes Texan". The colt, to be sold in this summer, is "bred in the purple, from both the dam and the sire's side." Stoke has donated the animal to WTRC.

Well, the Stokes rain gauge was not the only one in West Texas that collected measurable moisture. There's mud in every direction across the Concho Valley. And down in the Texas Hill Country where I took my family for Easter and a first hand tour of the Bluebonnets and wildflowers, it looks like heaven.

Talked to Henry Clark at Del Rio. He said "this spell covered terrain all the way to the Rio Grande. I would say a general rain of around three inches would pretty well describe it."

Clark said the wheat "out around Mertzon was kneehigh and has a sweet taste to it. You know, it usually tastes bitter . . . this is the first time I ever remember it tasting sweet!"

Clarence Tucker who operates a stock farm in Taylor County was telling me last week wheat in the Abilene area is knee-high. And Bobby Sayles of Tuscola states: "This has got to be the best spring we have experienced in over 20 years."

Conda Richards in commenting about the good moisture in Runnels County the other day also asked for a reminder of the 2nd Chianina Production Sale, April 24 at Chadbourne Ranch near Bronte. Some 80 lots will be sold. Should be an outstanding sale and I'll see ya there.

Jobs scarce in Alaska — DOL says stay at home

The Alaska Department of Labor has issued a warning urging job seekers not to look to Alaska for work this summer season. Commissioner of Labor, Edmund N. Orbeck, says "there are few jobs available in Alaska. The Alaskan Highway Gas Pipeline Project has not begun construction in the state. Based on the most recent information from the project sponsor and governmental agencies, no significant Gas Line hiring will take place until at least 1983."

Alaska's unemployment rate averaged 10 percent for the year which is higher than the national average of 7 percent," according to Orbeck. Alaska continues to have a high cost of living.

"This year the federal hiring situation, the cuts in public service jobs and high interest rates continue to impact Alaska jobs to a greater degree than nationally due to Alaska's limited employment base," the Commissioner said.

There remains an excessive pool of unskilled labor throughout the state. Semiskilled and skilled workers are available for the foreseeable future from those workers now residing in Alaska.

Job seekers should be warned of bogus advertisements offering high paying jobs or selling Alaska Job Kits for a certain dollar amount. This information is available for the cost of a postage stamp from the State of Alaska. Job seekers should not venture to Alaska looking for work unless they have a minimum of $2,000 and a return ticket home. Seek additional information before leaving home.

Wingate fire department adds new phone service

The Wingate Volunteer Fire Department has added new telephone equipment that will speed up the notification of firemen in the event of a fire. The service is being furnished to the department at no cost by the Taylor Telephone Cooperative.

Frank Antille, secretary-treasurer of Taylor Telephone Co-op, said that the system will ring 10 telephones when the emergency fire number is dialed and enable the 10 firemen to call other firemen and respond to the call more quickly. The system, designed by Amarillo telecommunications specialist Johnny Ricketts, will also be used in several other communities served by the Commissioner Brown warns of fire ants

The latest beautiful spring weather is bringing more children outdoors to play, but Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown warns parents to be cautious as the imported fire ants have spread into many new areas of the state and their venom can be fatal to some persons.

Brown cautioned everyone to "be careful and watch young children closely during the warm months."

Researchers at Texas A&M University found that 41 persons in a random sample in Bryan-College Station could die quickly if bitten. One per cent of the samples were to the imported fire ant venom.

Brown advised that homeowners who have imported fire ants on their property to use approved control chemicals. "MC-96, Amdro, and Dursban are relatively safe chemicals if they are used as prescribed on the label. These chemicals have been approved for use by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"For several years, the imported fire ant was considered only a farm problem, but now people are finding mounds in city parks, school yards, and in their own lawns. The infestation has spread from the Gulf coast into Central Texas and the Edwards Plateau. We are having reports from newly infested areas every day.

"I hope that people won't treat the imported fire ant lightly. We know more about this pest now than ever before. He's a tough customer to control and his bite is painful and dangerous," Brown said.

'Grain theft prevention' theme of Abilene seminar

The Texas Department of Agriculture will hold a seminar on Wednesday, April 29 to focus on grain theft prevention. The seminar will be held on the west side of the Taylor County Coliseum in Abilene from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The seminar will help inform those within the Texas grain industry on the many devices and methods used by unscrupulous operators to cheat grain elevator and feed mill owners. An actual scale manipulation device confiscated in a previous grain theft case will be displayed and demonstrated. Also, lists and pic-

April showers welcome here

1981 is continuing to look like a wet year for this area with over one and a half inches of moisture being recorded already this month. Weather observer Roy Rice said the official total was 1.57 for April bringing the years total to almost six inches.

Earlier this week thunderstorms threatened the Winters area but passed us by. Some severe weather was reported in neighboring counties, but none here. The forecasters say that more rain is expected this week and possibly the weekend.

Big'un....

This 22 pound yellowcat was caught on a rod and reel using 30 pound test line early last Tuesday in the rain by Jim Beazley, caretaker at the Winters Country Club. The big cat was taken from the creek that flows through the country club. Beazley said he was using "red horse" minnows for bait and it took quite some time to finally land the big catfish, the largest Beazley has ever latched onto with a rod and reel.

telephone co-op, including Tuscola, Buffalo Gap, Lawn, and Elm Valley at no cost to the fire departments.

Antille said that if a fireman's telephone is busy the special system will automatically break into the conversation with a beep tone to notify the persons on the phone of the emergency situation so the fireman can hang up his phone. The phone will then ring continuously until all firemen on the system have answered or until the person reporting the fire hangs up.

The new number for reporting fires in Wingate is 743-2726. In Tuscola the fire number is 554-7715, in Lawn 583-2500, in Elm Valley 572-3980. The system is not in service in Buffalo Gap, but will be in a short time and that number will be 572-3260.

Heavy damage in Monday morning crash

Runnels County deputy Sheriff Johnny Wilson said that there were no injuries in a one pickup crash early Monday between Ballinger and Bronte. A pickup driven by Ronnie Denton, who lives near Oak Creek, ran off the roadway and crashed over a culvert resulting in heavy damage to the pickup but not injuring the driver. Denton told officers that he apparently went to sleep about 2:30 a.m. Monday and ran off the road.

Weekend quiet, police report

Winters police said that the past weekend was very quiet with no arrests being made. Officers said that the crackdown on alcohol related offenses was apparently showing some results. Officers said also that the number of routine calls for the week were down from the previous week.

In other police reports, an early Monday morning traffic accident resulted in heavy damage to one car and minor damage to a pickup and no injuries. Investigating officers said that a Ford Pinto driven by Michael New was in collision with a parked pickup owned by Ellis Moore in the 200 block of West Dale. The two occupants of the small car were not injured in the crash.

Jazz ensemble to appear in Taylor Coliseum

The Commodores, the United States Navy Band's jazz ensemble from Washington, D.C., will appear at Taylor County Coliseum in Abilene at 8:00 p.m., Wednesday, April 29.

The appearance will be their only West Texas concert on their spring tour and will benefit the West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

The Commodores were formed in 1969 and designated the official dance band of the United States Navy. It is composed of the top jazz and "Big Band" players in the Navy today, most of them career men with at least eight years of service. Included in this flexible organization is a vocalist and, of course, the various instrumentalists all of whom are bonafide soloists.

The twenty-piece ensemble has toured Europe and South America as well as the United States. It is the only service band to play at the Newport Jazz Festival, and is a member of the National Association of Jazz Educators.

Tickets for the April 29 Abilene concert are priced at $4.00 for adults and $2.00 for students.

NEWS OF HEALTH

Answers about Health and Medicines from the Proprietary Association.*

Q. Who decides which medicines shall be non-prescription and which prescription? How is that decision made?

A. The federal Food and Drug Administration decides, and it does so under specific instructions from the Congress. Each decision involves a safety judgment. If a useful medicine involves serious risk to the user, it must be dispensed on medical prescription. If the risk is less serious, and if clear labeling can instruct the consumer in safe use of the product, Congress endorses the consumer's right to self-medicate with safe and effective nonprescription medicines.

Safety Tips For Rider Mowers

Using your rider mower to whip your lawn into shape can be fun—but you should always remember that your machine's no toy. Here's some advice from the experts at the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute for making your mower as safe as it is practical.

1. Be alert at all times—for holes and other yard hazards, and for the safety of anyone passing by (especially when you're backing up).
2. With a riding mower, cut up and down slopes to diminish the chance of tipping over.
3. Whenever you dismount from the mower, make sure the engine is off and has stopped completely.

4. Mowing should be a solo act. A passenger could put you off balance—or distract you at a bad time.
5. Know your operator's manual. You can forget important safety practices from year to year.

With the help of these tips—and a little common sense—you can have the neatest (and safest) lawn in town.

By Jack Houston, The Director Teacher's Scotch Information Centre
The World's Biggest Pencil
 The biggest pencil in the world is in Scotland—or so claim the Scots. It must be admitted, though, that nobody could write with it. It is, in fact, a towering stone monument.

From a distance, especially from the sea, its tall slim shape looks exactly like a pencil, and it marks the place where the Scots defeated the Norwegians in the Battle of Largs in 1263.

The Norwegians, under King Haakon, made a bold attempt to capture the whole of Scotland. When their war galleys swooped down, Alexander, King of Scots, marched his army to meet them. The Norwegians attempted a landing but were beaten off. Then a great storm arose that swept the Norwegian fleet out into the Irish Sea. There was a great loss of life and what remained of the Norwegian army went home, reports Teacher's Scotch Information Centre. Today Norwegians and Scots are close friends, and many Norwegians make the trip to Largs to see The Pencil.

It's considered bad luck to point at the new moon.

The state of Florida is so named because Juan Ponce de Leon, Spanish explorer and first white man in what is now the United States, discovered it on Easter Sunday (in Spanish "Pascua Florida"), 1513.
