"REFLECTIONS" "REFLECTIONS" "REFLECTIONS"

BY RICHARD C. THOMAS

Those professed atheists who protest even the slightest mention of state or official and religious activities in the same breath are inconsistent in their protests. I've never heard one of them protest the use of our present calendar, the system now in general use in most parts of the world, calculated from the birth of Christ. To be consistent, they would have to reject that system — and all other systems based on religious beliefs. In that event, they would find themselves painted into a corner for lack of a moment in time upon which to pinpoint a start of their own calendar.

Oh, those poor trooped on, underpaid and overworked and starving Air Controllers! Why do they insist they get a mere $10,000 a year raise — why not make that $100,000?

Which brings to mind some rules of employment practices which were in force about 1858 (nah, I wouldn't like to return to that way of life!) and which I picked up from an exchange:

Company rules: "Store must be open from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m. the year round. Store must be swept; counter base and showcases dusted, lamps trimmed, filled and chimneys cleaned; pens made; doors and windows opened; a pail of water, also a bucket of coal brought in before breakfast (if there is time to do so and attend to customers who call).

"Store must not be opened on the Sabbath, unless necessary to do so, and then only for a few minutes.

"The employee who is in the habit of smoking Spanish cigars, being shaved at the barber shop, going to dances and other places of amusement, will surely give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and honesty.

"Each employee must pay not less than $5 per year to the church and must attend Sunday school regularly.

"Men employees are given one evening a week for courting and two if they go to prayer meeting.

"After fourteen hours of work in the store, the leisure hours should be spent mostly in reading."

Those rules may seem a little harsh to most of us, but I would wager that less time was wasted on incompetent help in those days.

There are many places about town where tree limbs are obscuring the "Yield" or "Stop" signs at intersections. And there are many intersections where brush and trees have been allowed to grow so that a driver must be in the middle of the intersection to observe cross traffic. Somebody's going to get hurt!

Wouldn't take much effort to clear away some of that brush.

Bulk fuel purchase saves city $400

The City of Winters recently began purchasing fuel in bulk for use in the city vehicles and already has seen a savings of $392. City administrator Glenn Brown said that the credit card purchases over the first five months of 1981 were averaged and compared with the first month of bulk purchasing. Brown said that the cost of oil, flat tires, and other services were also averaged and added to the bulk purchase price in order to compare the fuel cost dollar for dollar.

The city administrator had projected a savings of about $200 per month by purchasing fuel in bulk. Brown said he felt that the monthly difference would be slightly less when averaged for a full year.

The city began purchasing fuel in bulk the first of July. Before using the bulk purchasing, the city had used credit cards from major oil companies with service stations in the city. The present bulk purchase contract will extend through first of July, 1982.

WISD bonds get an 'A' rating

"The best possible rating we could get," is the way School Superintendent Tommy Lancaster described the 'A' rating given the $2.2 million in bonds to finance the refurbishing of the school buildings.

Several board members and school district officials took the bonds to New York City a couple of weeks ago to get the bonds rated, a necessary step in the sale of the bonds. The rating directly affects the interest rate on the bonds. The 'A' rating is the best in Runnels County and will result in savings of about $100,000 in interest to the school district, according to the district's financial advisor Pat McMillan.

"The best possible rating we could get..."—Supt. Tommy Lancaster

The school board had a Wednesday morning meeting scheduled to sell the bonds. The school superintendent said that after the bonds are sold, the school district will have access to the $2.2 million within about 30 days. Lancaster said that after the 30 day contest period, the school's architect can go to work on drawing the complete detailed specifications on the refurbishing project.

School officials say that bids for work could be opened as early as December or January, allowing about three months for the architect to complete the specifications.

The bonds are the result of work by the Citizens Advisory Committee and the mandate of the voters in the Winters Independent School District in a special bond election in earlier this summer.

Wingate school will begin on August 20

The 1981-82 school year for Wingate School will begin Thursday, August 20, according to Carroll Daily, superintendent.

Teachers will report at 8 a. m. Monday, August 17, for a local work day. On Tuesday and Wednesday, August 18 and 19, faculty members will attend the Region XV Small School In-Service workshop at Robert Lee. Registration for the workshop will be from 9 until 9 Tuesday, August 18.

School registration Aug. 17

Registration for new students in the Winters Public Schools will be held Monday, August 17 and Tuesday, August 18.

Students who are new to the Winters schools and in kindergarten through the eighth grade will register from 9 to 11 a. m. and from 1 to 4 p. m. at the Elementary/Junior High principal's office, with new principal, L. C. Housnel.

Students who will be in grades 9-12 and who did not attend Winters High School last year will register from 9 to 11 a. m. and from 1 to 4 p. m. in the High School principal's office.

Students who attended Winters High School last year and pre-registered in April do not need to report unless they desire to change their schedules, Principal Mike Grantham said.

All seventh and eighth grade students must contact the Junior High office next Monday or Tuesday, August 17 or 18 to register for the school year. Students must select either (1) athletics or P.E. and (2) either band, music, or speech. The individual schedules for the students will then be ready on Monday, August 31, the first day of school. All new students must come to the office to register. Others may call 754-4037

All parents with kindergarten-age children have been urged to register their children during the appointed times, and not wait until the first day of school, school administrators said.

School zones to be enforced

With school starting August 31, Winters Police Chief L.C. Foster said that the school speed zones will be rigidly enforced.

The police chief said that many youngsters will be going to school for the first time and may not pay as much attention to crossing streets.

Foster said that citations will be issued to drivers who do not observe the reduced speed limits

Teachers will report for in-service training Friday, August 21, and the first day of school for students will be Monday, August 31.

Season tickets now on sale

Reserved seat tickets for the five home games of the Winters Blizzards are now on sale at the school administration office.

School officials say that option holders have until Friday to renew their options for the reserved seats. All remaining reserved seat season tickets will go on sale to the general public Monday morning, August 17.

The reserved seat season tickets are $15 each. School officials said the tickets need to be picked up as soon as possible.

Missing Abilene child found safe Tuesday

A two year old Abilene child, missing since Monday evening was found just before noon Tuesday about three miles outside of Abilene along U.S. highway 277 by an Abilene woman who was driving along the highway.

The woman, Tammy Snow, took the child to the KTAB television studios a short distance from where the toddler was found.

Police spokesmen said Ms. Snow had learned of the missing child through the news media and as she drove to Abilene spotted the child walking toward the highway from a field.

The child, Dana Fry, is the daughter of former Winters residents Mr. and Mrs. Joe B. Fry of Abilene. She had disappeared from her home in a mobile home park in west Abilene about 7:15 p.m. Monday evening.

KTAB newsman Bob Bartlett said that as many as 600 persons had joined with police to search throughout the night Monday for the little girl.

Detective Captain Jack Dieken said the child had several bruises about the face along with some swelling and redness that could indicate she had possibly been struck in the face.

The detective said that the child was fully clothed but indications were that the child had not walked the distance between her home and where she was found. Police said their investigation would continue into the child's disappearance until the authorities could learn what happened.

KTAB newsman Bob Bartlett said that the parents and the little girl were reunited at the television station and met the woman who found the child in a live telecast on KTAB's "Noontab 32" with interviewer Natalie Powers within minutes of the time the little girl was found.

Driver injured

Jack Boehlein of Abilene was injured when the Halliburton cement truck he was driving overturned on US 83 eleven miles south of Winters early Sunday morning. He was enroute to an oil lease near Miles with a load of bulk cement. Halliburton spokesmen estimated $15,000 damage to truck-tractor, and minor damage to the trailer.

Both lanes of the highway were blocked until the vehicle could be set back on its wheels.

Grand jury to look into death of alien

Tom Green County Sheriff's officers say that the next session of the 51st. State District Grand Jury for Tom Green County will investigate the death of 26 year old Jorge Moran, a Mexican alien. Two men, Jose Concepcion Gonzales and Gabriel Alanis, are being held in the Tom Green County jail in lieu of $25,000 bond each on felony charges of failure to stop and render aid. Bond for the two men, also Mexican aliens, was set by Justice of the Peace Ruth Nicholson in San Angelo. The body of Jorge Moran was found along side a county road early Sunday, August 2. The two men held in connection with the death were taken into custody in Del

Rio later that day. Investigating officers said that Moran apparently died after a car backed over him on the San Angelo city farm about 3 a.m. on the morning his body was found. Officers said that the body was then carried to the county road east of Winters. Officers said that two other Mexican aliens in the car were not charged in connection with the death because they were asleep and not aware of the death until later that day. An autopsy indicated that Moran died as the result of a broken neck. Moran had been working on a ranch east of Winters for about five years and was a native of Zimipan Hidalgo, Mexico.

Bridge dedication to honor George Garrett

The dedication of the new Colorado River Bridge on U.S. 83 just south of Ballinger will honor the late George Garrett of Winters. Garrett was the resident engineer for the Texas Highway Department when the old steel-truss bridge was built and he supervised its construction.

The old steel-truss bridge is no longer there, it has been replaced by a new, wider structure that can more safely handle today's traffic on busy highway 83.

A memorial plaque, placed on the old bridge at it's completion, will be presented to Lura Lee Garrett in memory of her late husband. The plaque will be presented by D.R. Watson, present district engineer of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. Master of Ceremonies will be Rankin Pace of Winters, chairman of the Runnels County Historical Commission. The dedicatory prayer will be given by Ballinger Mayor Bud

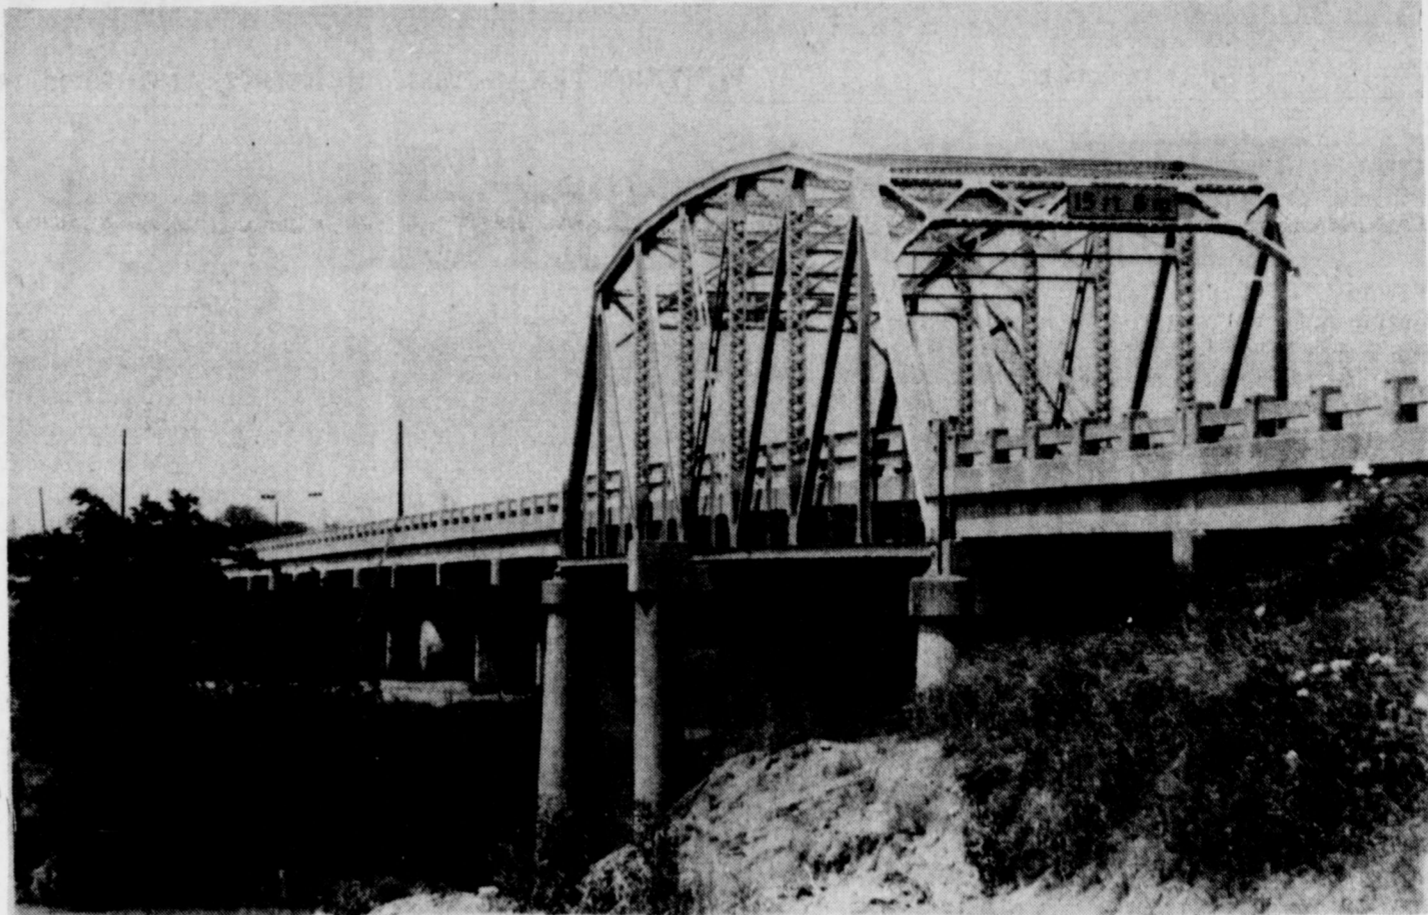

Everett. A number of officials from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation from Austin and from district offices will also be in attendance. A second plaque from the old bridge will be placed on a cement marker in the park adjacent to the new bridge.

The featured speaker for the dedication will be State Highway Commission chairman Sam Waldrop of Abilene.

Among the special guests attending will be Garrett's son, George Lee Garrett of Abilene, a research engineer with the highway department. The dedication ceremonies, which will be held in the park adjacent to the new bridge, will begin at 10:30 a.m. Thursday morning. The dedication is sponsored by the Runnels County Historical Commission, The Ballinger Chamber of Commerce, and the Ballinger City Council.

Old bridge

This old steel bridge which was on the Colorado River on the south edge of Ballinger has been replaced by a new bridge. The old bridge was engineered and built by the late George Garrett.

Police officer resigns, goes to Sheriff's force

City officials say that police officer Ed Enoksen has submitted his resignation effective August 15. Enoksen is leaving the Winters Police Department to assume a position as deputy sheriff-jailer for the Runnels County Sheriff's Department.

Enoksen had been with the Winters Police Department for several months prior to taking the position with the Sheriff's department. Enoksen will fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Rodney Irby who left the Sheriff's Department to go into private business. Irby's resignation also becomes effective August 15.

Car taken for test, not returned

Winters police said that a used car belonging to D & T Used Cars was taken for a test drive Saturday and not returned.

According to police reports, Dudley Thomas gave a middle aged man permission to take the car for a test drive and the man had not returned the vehicle by Monday morning. Police said that area law enforcement agencies had been notified of the theft of the vehicle, described as a 1974 Pontiac two-door with a blue top and white bottom.

Police said that the auto dealer did not know the man who took the car for the test drive and that the vehicle is considered stolen.

Bingo bill approved by House

A bill letting Texans play bingo legally but only under tight state and local control and only for church and charitable purposes gained House approval Monday.

A 105-23 vote sent the bill to the Senate, where less than two days remained in which to complete legislative action.

The measure carries out the voters' mandate, expressed in a 1980 constitutional amendment, for legalized bingo under rules and regulations imposed by the Legislature.

Bingo could be played only for fund raising by churches, veterans' groups and charitable organizations, including those collecting funds for medical research and treatment.

New baler line builds solid, stackable bales
 To build solid, square-cornered bales consistently, you need consistent control of the hay. And John Deere's new 327, 337 and 347 Balers give that control from the moment hay touches the pickup.
 First of all, we added two extra rows of teeth to help you take in all the hay in today's wider windrows. The 337 and 347 have 156 teeth. The 327 has 88. There's even an improved compressor that floats right with the pickup to give you consistent compression as you go over bumps and dips.
 Next, our floating tapered auger and adjustable feeder forks take over to keep material flowing evenly. Consistent control continues right up to the time our new knottor puts the finishing touch on the solid bales.
 Stop by today and start making solid, stackable bales with John Deere's solid new 14 x 18 balers.

Bucks and Billies...there's a difference!
Every few years I have to get on my soapbox and educate raisers on the right names of the products they produce. Having grown up in a family of registered Angora goat breeders, it is surprising and a little disconcerting to hear well-educated folks not refer to their animals correctly.

Last weekend at Junction while attending the largest Angora goat sale in the nation, I listened as goat people called Angora bucks "billies", and Angora does, "nannies". These terms are incorrect.

According to publications on the Angora goat, put out by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the male animal is correctly called a buck and the female a doe. The same is true of the promotional booklets on the Angora, published by the Angora Goat Breeders Association. Webster's New World Dictionary gives the definition of buck as "a male goat, rabbit, etc., the female is a doe."

Now for those who don't know by now, the colorful, straight-haired Spanish goat of our parts are referred to as "billies" and "nannies". Those terms are correct.

One of the most beautiful of domestic animals, the Angora goat has a history older than the written records of man. Mohair from Angora goats was used during the time of Moses, according to the Bible, and archaeologists have discovered that mohair was one of the first textile fibers used by man.

The first Angora goats were imported to the United States were two bucks and seven does, gifts from the Sultan of Turkey to Dr. James B. Davis of Columbia, South Carolina. By 1900 the Angora goat industry had grown to such an extent that a registry association was needed.

The American Angora Goat Breeders Association was organized then to keep records showing pedigrees of all purebred Angoras and to issue certificates of registration. Today, the United States, Turkey and South Africa raise nearly all the Angora goats in the world. Texas ranchmen have over 90 percent of the Angoras in this country, according to Fred Campbell, executive director of the Mohair Council of America.

The term "billy goat" and "nanny goat" are colloquialisms - according to Webster. They are used in "familiar conversation, friendly letters, or informal speeches," but they are "unsuited to formal speech or writing." And these terms are generally used, as I mentioned, in describing common or Spanish goats.

To my way of thinking, calling a purebred Angora a "billy" or a "nanny" is like calling a fine registered Quarter Horse a "nag".

Let's keep the high standards of purebred Angoras where it should be when we talk about bucks and does.

A Fearless Future

No one is exempt from crises, disappointments, sorrows and frustrations. But without being blithely optimistic, you can take things as they come. You can walk with courage because God walks with you. As St. Paul found out for himself, "If God is for us, who can be against us?"

Because God is your strength, you can face the future without fear.

God is our strength. He is a very present help in time of trouble. He is there when you need Him.

"God has the strength to forgive you," Dr. Oswald Hoffmann says in a recent Lutheran Hour broadcast, "He forgives you for the sake of his Son Jesus Christ. Trust in Him! Take the gift of forgiveness and face the future without fear with faith in the Lord."

History of a Grand Old Landmark

Recently, when we had a little problem at the museum, I went across the street to the Rock Hotel to use the telephone. Upon asking for Lorene Frazier, the owner, I learned that she had moved to Brownwood that day and the new owner was coming in from San Angelo the following day.

Since the proprietor would be new in town, I thought that he would appreciate knowing something of the history of the building.

Most of the early history, I learned from the autobiography of Virginia Draper, Texas-born shop girl who now owns 16 exclusive dress shops in California and Arizona.

Virginia was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Heath who moved their family from Heathtown, in Panola County, to Winters late in 1905. Virginia was ten and her sister, Clifford, was four. Their brother, Wade, was born the next year.

The move was made after Mr. Heath had gone to West Texas prospecting and found just what he was looking for in the little town of Winters, population at the time about 1,000. It was a white two-room house, with a hall between the rooms, on an acre of ground. And he bought it for $1,500. He assured his wife that the house could be added on to. He also told her that Winters would soon have a railroad and that the town would prosper.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Heath found it difficult to adjust to the small house while the three extra rooms were being built. She called it "camping out". She missed the beautiful trees of East Texas and the sandstorms were hard for her to take, but she liked the higher, dry climate.

As soon as the necessary task of enlarging the home had been completed, Mr. Heath opened a general merchandise store in partnership with Ira Beard. In that day a store of this kind carried a combination of groceries and dry goods. The groceries were on one side and the dry goods on the other. Dry goods was a term used to describe all kinds of clothing. "In his store, my father carried piece goods, ribbons, laces, hosiery, hats, and the kinds of ladies' ready to wear that could be bought in those days," said Virginia Draper. "I also remember my father saying that he was glad they carried hosiery because I was very hard on stockings, and it was a great help that he could buy them wholesale."

Just as Mr. Heath had predicted, the Abilene and Southern Railroad Company built a railroad to Winters not long after they arrived. It was in 1909. And the station was a block from their home.

Mrs. Heath was an industrious woman and always looking for ways to improve her family's income. Since the railroad was only a block from their house, and they had an acre of land, she conceived the idea of building and operating a hotel on the property.

The hotel was two stories high. Because it was built of native stone, they called it the Rock Hotel. "We built it directly in front of our home, so we could use our house for the overflow guests. Because of its home environment and the wonderful meals my mother provided, the drummers, as the traveling salesmen were called, would try to make our hotel for weekends. In addition to our transient guests, we had a number of regular boarders. Consequently, our hotel was usually full, with the extra guests staying in our home in the rear. My mother believed in keeping her children busy and always found plenty of work for us to do in the hotel. Although we had plenty of hired help, there were extra things that had to be done, and since our help occasionally failed to show up, Clifford and I learned to most of the things that had to be done in running a hotel", Mrs. Draper recalled.

In 1912, the Heaths sold their store and hotel and moved to Ballinger, where Mr. Heath started his long career as a traveling salesman for a wholesale grocery firm.

The footprints of two of the Heath children remained in the cement on the corner of the sidewalk for many years.

The hotel was sold to S. L. Alexander, another pioneer family that moved to Rannels County in 1899 and to Winters in 1910. Mr. Alexander died with the flue in 1918, but the family retained possession of the property for many years, renting it to various individuals.

Marvin and Effie Pumphrey rented the hotel for two years and Mrs. Frank Pumphrey, the former Myrtle Alexander, asked them to buy the landmark property because she knew they would take care of it. (The Pumphreys are also a pioneer family. Marvin's father came to Rannels County in 1899).

The Pumphreys bought the hotel on December 4, 1944 and sold it on September 1, 1973 after Mrs. Pumphrey suffered a stroke. They sold to Beatrice Collins and she later sold to Loraine Frazier.

This concludes the history of the Rock Hotel up to now and we hope the new owner will have many happy and successful years in the grand old landmark building.

Seventeen local artists exhibit work at Z. I. Hale Museum

The work of 17 local artists made an outstanding display at the Z. I. Hale Museum Saturday and Sunday.

Pictures were displayed by veterans who had been painting all their lives, such as Bertie Belle McNeill, to the latest, Louis Wade, who just began about six months ago.

Other newcomers to the art scene are Mrs. Herman (Katy) Spill and Mrs. Mickey (Rounay) Crawford, who have been painting for a year. They each had two oils. Julia Sanchez displayed three native scenes.

Ernestine Geistman, Dean Burns, Melba Emmert and Virgil Roberts added to the attractive display with still life pictures in oil. Virgil also contributed a water color called "Hidden Grapes."

Other long-time artists contributing were Bill Wilson, Elouise Chestnut and Maurine Davis. In addition to oils, Maurine had several "ink on glass" drawings. Her daughter, Cynthia Stone, added two pictures to the exhibit.

Perhaps the largest display was by Lamoine Helm of Wingate, who began studying art in 1977. She had seven oil paintings and two were of poppies, one impasto, and the other of pallet knife texture. She is also a newcomer to the area, having moved from Hamlin to Wingate in 1974 when she married B. J. Helm.

Those who seemed to love specialties were Pauline O'Neal, with her "Windmills," Dolly Airhart, "Trees," and Mary Margaret Leathers, water color sketches of old items such as "The Old Iron."

Another picture with a history was by the late Delbert Koehler of John

Collision

These two automobiles were involved in a two-car collision on West Hamilton Saturday afternoon. See story on this page.

Wrecks keep police busy

Winters police say that traffic accidents have been occurring on an average of one per day over the past week.

One person was injured in a two car crash Saturday afternoon in the 100 block of West Hamilton. Police said that Cindy McGallian received minor injuries when her parked vehicle was struck by a car driven by Thomas Allen Fields. Mrs. McGallian told officers that she had just gotten out of her car and was walking to a house when the accident occurred. The impact of the collision caused the parked car to hit the woman as she walked around it, the woman was then knocked into a support on a carport. Mrs. McGallian was rushed to North Runnels hospital by ambulance where she was treated and released with only minor injuries.

Officers were called Thursday afternoon to a minor accident on North Main where a pickup driven by Carson Easterly and a vehicle driven by Douglas Armand Meyers of San Angelo were in collision. The crash resulted in minor damage to both vehicles and no injuries.

Friday afternoon officers investigated another minor accident in the 500 block of South Main at Hamilton involving a late model auto driven by

Oil company name change announced this week

Walsh & Trant Petroleum Corporation, with offices in Tyler, Dallas and Winters, has announced a change in corporate name effective Aug. 1, 1981, to Watco Energy, Inc.

"This name change is being made to simplify and shorten the title as well as eliminate some of the confusion that we have encountered with another company with a similar name," company spokesmen said. The owners, officers and directors of Watco Energy, Inc., will be unchanged from the predecessor company, and the firm will continue to do business in the same areas and in the same manner as in the past.

Walsh & Trant Petroleum Corp. was chartered in May, 1974, as a jointly owned exploration and producing company by Mike Trant of Dallas and Paul J. Walsh of Tyler. The company operations began and still remain primarily in West Central Texas, though the company now holds leasehold and operating interests in Colorado, North Dakota, Utah and Wyoming.

FITNESS AT 50: WALK, DON'T RUN

A lot of Americans are on the run. Running for health, that is. And the sport's popularity attracts people of all ages.

But, warns Dr. Russell Pate, a world class distance runner, an exercise physiologist and a health and fitness consultant for the M&M/MARS Company, running should always be approached with a degree of caution by those 50 and older.

"Unless you are running regularly now," says the University of South Carolina professor, "you should never attempt to start running with the idea of getting into shape."

"Those 50 or over who are just starting out should make walking the centerpiece of an overall fitness plan," he stresses, "and then maybe graduate to jogging or running. There's no need to make a commitment to running, however, because brisk walking is excellent exercise too."

Many people who feel a need to get into shape are also people who harbor misconceptions about the food they eat, notes Dr. Pate. And often they blame candy and desserts for obesity.

"It's not what you eat, but how much you eat in relation to what you burn off that determines weight problems," he advises. "No matter what the activity, and no matter how old the individual, you need carbohydrates—particularly when exercising. A moderate consumption of sweets like candy, cake or ice cream within a well balanced diet is consistent with good health."
