Trash, meters discussed in townhall meeting

The Winters City Council held a town-hall type meeting Monday at the Community Center to give members of the business community and other residence an opportunity to provide input to the council on two items that will be considered by the council next week, parking meters and the renewal of the contract with Tony's Disposal Service.

Only eight persons showed up for the meeting that lasted about an hour, but those few readily expressed their feelings on the two topics of discussion.

The city council is expected to take action next week on the parking meters in the down town area by either ordering them removed or placed in full operation with parking ordinances fully enforced.

Nelan Bahlman, who operates Spill Furniture and Bahlman Cleaners said that he felt the meters were an important part of the city, that controlled parking would give shoppers an opportunity to park close to the businesses. Supermarket manager Buddy Miller said that he felt the meters needed to be updated and that the use of the meters would put a stop to all day parking.

J.W. Bahlman, owner of Bahlman Jewelers and owner of a new office complex under construction in the down town area, said that he had contacted two or three other merchants and all shared the feeling that parking must be controlled in some way, either do away with the meters and find another way to keep the parking spaces open or use the meters and enforce them reasonably, not radically.

Mayor W. Lee Colburn, in summation told the group that one way or the other, parking laws must be enforced without partiality.

Most of the discussion in the meeting centered around the pending renewal of the city sanitation contract. Tony Cantrell, owner of Tony's Disposal Service, had presented a contract proposal to the council several weeks ago that calls for increases in the charges for commercial refuse pick up.

Before answering questions from businessmen attending the meeting, Cantrell said that overall his proposed increase amounted to about $564 per month total. He said that during the summer a survey was conducted on the time required to pick up the trash from each business and based the proposed new charges on the time factor.

A new option was also proposed by the disposal service, that of trash containers, or dumpster-type service. Cantrell said that the use of the dumpsters would cost a bit more, but would reduce the number of pick ups required per week at any given business.

Both the major grocery stores were represented at the meeting and a number of questions and comments were made by both Buddy Miller of Piggly Wiggly and Elmer Phillips of Super D. Both of the grocery stores would be faced with large increases in the trash pick up fees.

Miller said that while the $24 per month his store has been paying was obviously too low, the proposed rates for grocery stores of $126 to $134 was too much.

The disposal service operator replied that he was not realizing any profit from the grocery stores, or any businesses for that matter, that most of his profit in the business in Winters came from the residential service. The residential service rates are not expected to change.

City Administrator Glenn Brown said that in the last year of operation of the city sanitation department, it cost some $40,000 over the revenues generated by that department to operate and that money did not include a bulldozer or front-end loader to work the landfill. Brown said that his initial recommendation of a sanitation contractor was based on the fact that an independant business could operate the service more economically than the city.

Nelan Bahlman, a former member of the city council, said that perhaps previous councils had passed the buck on increasing rates for the sanitation service to this council. He said that he had complete confidence in the mayor and the council and would be happy with whatever decision was made but, said, "The city needs to get back into this on their own."

Milton Gerhart, owner of Milton's Auto Parts, said he was in agreement with Bahlman about the city getting back into the sanitation business. He said he didn't mind the rates, whatever it costs to get it back.

Gerhart also said that the service offered by the contractor was not as frequent or punctual as that offered by the city before the contractor took over, that "we are seeing more cost and less service, kind of like the Post Office.

The city administrator said, "If we take it (sanitation service) back over, and I'm not proposing that, we could not offer the same six-day per week service the city once offerred. The overtime for the trash pick up and for landfill operation would be very expensive." The city administrator told the group that a big step was taken and the city has come a long way in moving to an independent contractor to handle the sanitation service.

In concluding the meeting, Mayor Lee Colburn said that the council would give the contract proposal very careful thought, and that the council would do what was best for the City of Winters and its residents.

The city council is expected to take action on both the sanitation contract and the parking meter issue in the regular meeting next week.

Voter registration deadline is Oct. 3

Eligible voters who have not registered to vote must do so by October 3 if they wish to cast their ballots in the November 2 general election.

"All that is involved is filling out an application card available at the county tax assessor/collector's office," said Joe Rothe with the county officials program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Rothe particularly encouraged high school seniors to register to vote. Those who are 17 years and 10 months of age are eligible to register and may exercise their right to vote on or after their 18th birthday. Some 188,000 high school seniors should be eligible to vote in Texas this fall.

"Everyone eligible to vote, but unable to do so on November 2 should apply with the county clerk's office to vote absentee," Rothe said. October 29 is the deadline for voting absentee in person while absentee ballots will be accepted in the mail as late as 7 p.m. November 2.

Any of the following conditions can qualify an individual to vote

1. Absence from the county of residence on election day.
2. Age 65 or older on election day.
3. Inability to appear at the authorized polling place on election day due to sickness, physical disability, or religious belief.
4. Service as an election clerk or poll watcher in an election precinct other than the precinct of residence.
5. Under certain circumstances, voters confined to jail may be eligible to vote absentee.

"Every Texas House, Senate, and Congressional seat is up for reelection this fall along with nearly every statewide office," Rothe said. "So it is especially important for all eligible voters to get to the polls on November 2. Only 24 percent of those eligible voted in the May 1 Texas primary, the lowest in 30 years for a gubernatorial primary election."

Voters must have their salmon-colored voter registration cards with them when they go to the polls to cast their ballot or to vote absentee.

Winters Blizzards tie Cisco Lobos, 21-21

After two weeks of lackluster football, the Blizzards came from behind to tie the game against Cisco last week in an exciting football game.

Cisco scored first in the first quarter with a 30 yard pass play, but the Blizzards came right back on their next possession with a 57 yard run by Jeff Butts. The extra point was kicked by Ronnie Lujano and Winters led 7-6. Cisco then scored on a 1 yard quarter back sneak, but Jeff Butts blocked their extra point, leaving the score, 12-7 at the end first quarter play. Cisco kicked a 27-yard field goal just before the half to make the score 15-7 in Cisco's favor.

Winters kicked off to Cisco to start the second half, and Cisco, starting from their 20-yard line, drove the ball 80-yards for a touchdown. Ronnie Lujano blocked their 2-point conversion pass to keep the score 21-7. The Blizzards then came back to score on a 65-yard touchdown run by Dwight Hubbard. The Winters team went for the 2-point conversion, but missed, leaving the score at 21-13.

The Blizzards defense began giving up yardage very begrudgingly and held Cisco scoreless for the rest of the game. The defense had a good goal line stand in the third quarter as Cisco had first and goal from the five yard line, and could not punch it over. Winters scored once more late in the third quarter with a 6-yard pass from Jeff Butts to Kentt Billups. Jeff Butts then scored the two-point conversion, tying the score 21-21. Neither team could score in the fourth quarter, ending the game in a tie.

Dwight Hubbard finished the ball game with 147 yards rushing on 20 carries and 1 touchdown.

Jeff Butts gained 108 yards on 8 carries and scored 1 touchdown.

Kentt Billups caught two passes for 42 yards.

The Blizzards play Eastland in Winters this Friday night at 7:30. Eastland is the number one rated team in Class AA, so come on out and support your Blizzard team.

Fire destroys road equipment

Runnels County's recently purchased asphalt heater was totally destroyed by a fire last week south of Ballinger.

The $6000 piece of equipment was first used by the county to pave the road from the new Winters lake to F.M. 53 about three weeks ago. At least two paving jobs were completed by county crews using the heater in the Winters area before it was moved to the location near Ballinger.

County officials said that there were no injuries in the fire and that the heater was the only piece of equipment damaged.

The county commissioners have not indicated if the heater will be replaced or not.

Runnels County Court without a judge, again

Two days after the Runnels County Commissioners Court named him to preside in the absence of County Judge Bill Stultz, Paul Petty told the county officials that he was resigning due to personal reasons.

The position of acting county judge, created with the absence of Stultz, was first filled by former Concho County Judge Carl Peek who was hired to fill in for the ailing Judge Stultz. Peek conducted the activities and duties of the court for several weeks before returning to his home county.

During the time that Peek was serving as acting county judge, the validity of his actions was questioned by several persons including former District Attorney Royal Hart and District Judge Curt Steib. Both district court officials said that they could not use the findings of the acting judge in subsequent felony proceedings especially in the areas of driving while intoxicated. Royal Hart said that there were at least three different sets of guidelines regarding the appointment of an acting county judge and that any one of the three differed from the remaining two sets.

Not only were there several different sets of guidelines for appointing an acting county judge, the State Judicial Standards Commission maintained a separate theory on such an appointment. The Attorney General's office also took an even different stand.

While there were some similarities in the guidelines, there were apparently more differences. One of the main requirements mentioned by at least two sets of guidelines, the Judicial Standards Commission, and the Attorney General's office was that the acting judge meet the residency requirements of the elected judge, a resident of the county in which he

Runnels Co. DA named

Dick Alcalá was appointed last week by Governor Bill Clements to succeed Royal Hart as district attorney for Runnels, Concho, and Tom Green Counties.

Clements had earlier named Hart, who held the district attorney's office for 18 years, to replace State District Judge Earl Smith, who is now an associate justice on the Texas 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin.

Alcalá, who will serve until after the general election in November 1984, becomes the first Hispanic district attorney for the counties. Alcalá has been an assistant district attorney since 1980. Before his appointment as assistant district attorney, Alcalá practiced law for about a year in San Angelo. He previously was employed by the Texas Department of Human Resources.

This tiny cottontail rabbit found a happy home with a mother cat and her litter of kittens in a box on the back step of the Jon McNeill home in Wingate. Mrs. McNeill said she found the baby rabbit, its eyes not yet open, last week in a field and took it home to try to save it. Mrs. McNeill said the ten-year-old mother cat took an instant liking to the rabbit, and now treats it like one of the litter.

Gliddenes Struggle to the End

A suggestion of the kind of roads to be met with for the next four days was experienced by the motorists on the run from Columbus to Canton, over tortuous and hilly roads, following the main course of the decaying old Ohio Canal, which furnished an accident. A Deere touring car broke its steering arm and coasted off the road into the canal. The driver of the car put on his brakes with all force. Luckily, the bank sloped down to the water's edge where the machine left the road and kept going until all four wheels dropped down into the water.

A Pittsburg newspaper man, sitting beside the driver, tumbled over forward and lay stretched out along the front mud guard, his face in the water, until the driver yanked him back. He declared his jaw had been broken and wagged it vigorously to prove it. A driver of a Thomas car hitched a heavy rope to the Deere and tried to pull it out of the canal. The rope snapped and a second attempt had the same result. A block and tackle and several horses were sent for, while a runway for the car was dug in the bank. The driver said he was much obliged to the steering arm for breaking just when it did, as a few hundred yards farther, the banks of the canal were so steep the car would have turned turtle. Even though the crankcase was immersed, the battery box didn't get wet and he reached Canton about midnight.

Because the Conffetti blew onto intersecting roads nearly a score of tourists got off the regular route and made long detours that added to their mileage. Among these was a Packard, of the Buffalo team, which arrived with a broken spring nearly an hour behind schedule. The driver said he made a detour of 50 miles over roads that were nearly impassable. His delay removed Buffalo from the clean slate list and left Pittsburg alone with a perfect score. Protests were entered in behalf of the other late arrivals, on the ground that the Conffetti car had started over a very bad wrong road and had returned to the regular route without removing the Conffetti wrongly spread.

While the motorists were being entertained by the Canton Automobile Club with a reception at the Courtland, Johnson with the Continental runabout, who had been arrested for speeding in Richmond, Indiana came in alone about midnight. He finished with the authorities and by the same kind of driving that caused his arrest caught up with the crowd. He was given a big welcome.

On the road from Canton to Pittsburg a stop was made at the birthplace of President F.J. Firestone of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., where the Glidden tourists received a handsome be-ribboned basket for each car containing food, fruit and cigars, also decorated stone bottles of milk, with the compliments of the company. The tourists had the experience of "bumping the bumps" for hours, and were told the bumps would extend almost to the Quaker City.

A Royal Tourist, of the Cleveland Auto Club, was fired upon twice near Darlington by a man who hid in the thicket. At first, it was thought a tire exploded, but upon investigation it was found that bullets had torn a big hole in the rear seat a few inches from the top and lodged in the cushion. The country was wild and hilly and no one was seen in the vicinity.

On the road to Bedford Springs was another bad day. The greatest strain was in long pulls up steep mountain roads of clay and rock and in making descents over sharp water breaks at intervals ranging from 25 to 100 yards. One climb was four miles in length. Among those to suffer was Mrs. John Cuneo, the only woman who had ever driven a car in the Glidden Tour, on whose Ranier a broken spring caused a penalty of three points.

The contestants were glad to rest in Bedford Springs on Sunday and ease their weary bodies. The Orrel Parker party had their fun at "Bed Springs" as they called it, although the people seemed to regard the dusty motorists as a gang of intruding tramps. The tourists retaliated by serenading until 1 a.m. with the entire range of Glidden Tour songs.

Through a blaze of heat and sun the tourists reached Baltimore in the afternoon after one of their best runs, although the roads still presented that admiral feature of "bumps."

Mrs. Cuneo had a narrow escape in the Blue Ridge Mountains when an exploding tire shot her Rainier across a ditch, through a fence and into a field. The big car struck a tree, broke a front axle and threw the passengers violently forward, but none was injured. The car was hauled to a blacksmith shop for repairs and Mrs. Cuneo said she would try to drive into Baltimore that night.

With all but one day of the tour completed, the tourists, riding from Baltimore, had good weather and fairly good roads, and toll gates about as frequent as houses along the way, no less than 35 in all with the total toll for each car amounting to an even $3.00 each from Malvern to Philadelphia. All the tolls had been paid for the tourists by a Philadelphia newspaper.

Philadelphia received the tourists handsomely. The North American building was decorated with an electric light "Welcome" display, that cost more than $1,000. Mayor Reyburn delivered an address of welcome and everybody was happy because tomorrow was the final day of the tour and all would be home.

Upon arrival in New York City the tourists, headed by Mrs. Cuneo, paraded North on Broadway to 59th Street, where the Glidden Tour for 1907 was officially terminated. With the accumulation of mud gathered in more than eight states it is doubtful that more disreputable vehicles were ever brought to New York. As a final application was a half-inch of chrome yellow Jersey dust, provided by Chairman Hower, who kept all the drivers close together during the run.

The Glidden Trophy remained in the custody of the Buffalo Automobile Club for the third year, winning over the Pittsburg team. Six other teams were eliminated early in the competition. For the Hower trophy for runabouts the 35 horsepower Stoddard-Dayton and the 30 horsepower White Streamer had perfect scores and were to run off the tie later.

In the Glidden contest 18 individual contestants came through the 1,575 mile journey without a mark against them. One of those, the 16 horsepower Reo, finished in such good condition that it was turned around and started on a nonstop dash to the Jamestown exposition.

At a final meeting of the tourists at the Hotel Astor that night, the awards were announced by Hower. For her pluck in driving a car throughout the tour, Mrs. Cuneo was presented a silver loving cup by her fellow tourists. Glidden, in a congratulatory speech, declared that the tour just ended was the most successful ever conducted.

The tour might be the most successful ever conducted up to the present, but Orrel was already planning the "Ideal Tour" for next year and it would be sponsored by the Automobile Club of America.

More Chamber Chatter -

As we enter the first days of Fall this week, our minds are on many present and future activities.

The Chamber Directors are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the much talked about Wheeler-Dealer Game. We really appreciate the way Winters' businesses responded to the advertising sales for the game board. We ran out of spaces before we got around to seeing everyone! You'd better get your order in now for the number of games you want - the initial order is expected to be an early sell-out! The cost of each game will be $10.95 plus tax. What a great Christmas gift for that "hard to buy for" person on your list!

Speaking of Christmas, the proceeds from the game sales are going to help pay for our new Christmas decorations (which have already arrived. Don't worry - as anxious as we are for you to see them, we'll wait a while before putting them up!)

The Annual Arts & Crafts Show is coming up on November 12 & 13. All the booths are booked up and Kay Colburn and her Ladies' Committee of the Chamber of Commerce are hard at work to make sure this year's event will be up to everyone's greatest expectations. And yes, we will be sponsoring another Stew Cook-Off - some of the best cooks in the country live in Winters, Texas! (Doesn't it tickle the tast buds, just thinking about that delicious stew and cornbread along with other goodies they'll be serving out of the kitchen at the Arts & Crafts Show?)

The Chamber of Commerce will be sponsoring another Big Buck Contest (the season opens the same weekend as the Arts & Crafts Show, November 13). George Mostad is Chairman of the contest. Everyone will be required to pre-register this year for a fee of $5.00. A prize of $100.00 will be paid for the "white-tail" deer. The Boone and Crockett method of judging will be used.

The Chamber Directors decided the theme for the annual Christmas parade (December 4) will be "It's a Small World". Another Sno-Queen will be crowned at that time also. We would like to encourage businesses who would like to sponsor a contestant in this contest, to please contact the Chamber office.

October will be the month to elect six new Chamber of Commerce Directors for the coming two years. If you know of someone whose name you'd like to see on the ballot, please notify the Chamber office and it will be submitted to the Nominating Committee. We will need some first class and dedicated citizens to fill the shoes of the six retiring Directors (Randall Boles, Kay Colburn, Randall Conner, Bob Holloway, Royce McDorman and Ken Slimp).

It's really good to see Win-Tex (Cattle) Feeders open and in full swing again under the management of Vernon Hogg and son, Dwayne. Winters is very lucky to have an

The Winters Band Boosters would like to thank Mr. John Key for his time and effort he spent getting the band ready in the absence of Mr. Pace. We would like to wish Mr. Pace a speedy recovery.

Also, a big thanks goes out to the merchants of Winters who so generously gave for the Band Booster Cards. Your attitude and generosity was much appreciated and will help the Blizzard Band become the "Pride of West Texas".

Strake Talk

FROM YOUR NEXT LT. GOVERNOR

This may be my last column in this series. We began this column ten weeks ago, hoping it would be a success. And judging from the response of the readers, I would call it an unqualified success. The mail has been very favorable. The columns that drew the most response were those dealing with education of our children, the property tax issue, and the issue of Mr. Hobby raising funds for the ACLU to use in that organization's crusade against prayer in schools and in defense of pornographers.

I have made a point in these columns that Texans need a Lt. Governor who is in touch with the people he is supposed to serve. Mr. Hobby is clearly out of touch with the thinking of Texans, and, in my opinion ought to be retired.

Mr. Hobby's lack of understanding can be illustrated: Texans are overwhelmingly in favor of President Reagan's efforts to transfer power and responsibility back to the states. I agree that Texans can do a better job for Texas than Washington can. Mr. Hobby disagrees. The vast majority of Texans do not believe they ought to be forced to pay for the education of the children of illegal aliens. I have compassion for these children—but I must confess that I care more for Texans who are faced with the burden of supporting their own children in hard economic times. Mr. Hobby disagrees. Most Texans think our Right to Work law should be incorporated in the Texas constitution. I agree here, too. But Mr. Hobby disagrees and has fought the effort. The list goes on and on.

The problem with continuing my column is a simple one—money. We originally budgeted for ten columns, and we have now reached that point in our budget. If we are successful in raising more campaign funds, you are likely to see more columns. I hope so, for this seems to be a good way to get the issues to the people.

These columns are needed. Without them Mr. Hobby will clearly avoid the issues and seek to confuse us with 30-second TV commercials created by his image builders. If you would like to see these columns continue and would like to help in that regard, please send your contribution. If you can't make a contribution, I assure you that your opinion will be equally important. Please write to me at: Texans for Strake, 1213 W. 34th, Austin 78705. Let's keep in touch.

Getting ready for Christmas

Low-income Texans may qualify for ECI benefits

Low-income Texans faced with home energy cutoff for heating or cooling may qualify for payments from $3 million in federal funds set aside for energy crisis intervention (ECI), according to the Texas Department of Human Resources.

The money, made available to Texas counties, will be distributed to energy suppliers on behalf of eligible households.

One payment is allowed each household between October 1 and March 31. Another payment is allowed between April 1 and September 30. A maximum of $90 per period can be paid if the household applies and is found eligible.

Officials at DHR explained that once the fund is exhausted, no further payments can be made.

The department has negotiated contracts with local agencies to handle outreach, applications, eligibility determination, and payments to energy suppliers.

Qualification for ECI payments is limited to households with a total gross monthly income of less than $305.50 for a one-person household; $499.50 for a two-person household; $684.50 for three; $845.50 for four; $998.50 for five; and $1,166.50 for six.

At least one person in the household must be a U.S. citizen or a legally admitted alien. If a household's past due energy bill exceeds $90, and funds from other sources are not available, (Judge from Page 1) an acting or special county judge.

The problem will resolve itself in a couple of weeks, hopefully, when County Judge Bill Stultz returns to office. The judge is recovering from bypass surgery which forced his absence.

A check this week with the judge's office indicated that Stultz was well on the road to recovery and might possibly be able to return to his post for limited duties within two or three weeks.

the household might not qualify for ECI help. The goal of ECI, officials emphasized, is to maintain the flow of energy to the household.

High Blood Pressure

And Your Survival

Facts Checked By Experts At Smith Kline And French Laboratories

What Do the Numbers Mean?

When the doctor takes your blood pressure, he gets two numbers. The high number is called the systolic (sis-tah-lick) reading. This measures pressure in the blood vessels when the heart is pumping. The low figure is called the diastolic (di-uh-stah-lick) reading. It measures the pressure between pumps, when the heart is at rest.

Blood moving through the body causes pressure in the blood vessels. So, everybody has blood pressure. Blood pressure is different in different people. Your doctor can find out what is right for you.

Blue Ribbon PICKLING POINTERS

Tips From Heinz Home Economists

The Biblical maxim "Reap what you sow" continues to have meaning as more and more U.S. families return to their backyards to raise some of their own food.

Among the most popular crops for backyard growing is squash, including flavorful and versatile zucchini. Often served sauteed, stewed, stuffed and baked, or fried, Italian squash also makes a delicious pickle.

ZUCCHINI PICKLES are among the many recipes featured in the updated HEINZ GUIDE TO SUCCESSFUL PICKLING, considered a valuable source by home pickling enthusiasts. The novice or "blue-ribbon" winner will enjoy the 51 recipes which have been created and tested by the Heinz Home Economists. And tips and suggestions are included for "blue-ribbon" results.

The Heinz GUIDE is free along with a folder of pickling recipes from State Fair Blue Ribbon winners. Send a large, self-addressed envelope, affixed with 40¢ postage to: PICKLING BOOKLETS, HEINZ U.S.A., P.O. BOX 28, D-117, PITTSBURGH, PA. 15230.

ZUCCHINI PICKLES

- 4 cups Heinz Distilled White or Apple Cider Flavored Distilled Vinegar
- 2 cups granulated sugar
- 1/4 cup pickling salt
- 2 teaspoons celery seed
- 2 teaspoons ground turmeric
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 5 pounds zucchini (5 to 6 inch), unpeeled, cut into 1/4-inch slices
- 1 quart thinly sliced onions (4-5 medium)

Combine first 6 ingredients in saucepan; bring to boil. Pour over zucchini and onions and let stand 1 hour; stir occasionally. In saucepot, bring mixture to a boil, then simmer 3 minutes. Continue simmering while quickly packing one clean, hot jar at a time. Fill to within 1/4 inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers vegetables. Cap each jar at once. Process 5 minutes in boiling-water bath. Makes 6-7 pints.

MAKING YOUR WORLD EASIER
DRYER
Rising energy costs are causing homeowners to take a good look at how they are using their appliances. According to the home economists at Whirlpool Corporation, energy costs can be reduced by following a few simple rules when using your dryer.
Here are some suggestions they offer to help make your dryer more energy efficient:
• Make sure not to overload your dryer. Sort the clothes into light and heavy fabrics and dry separately. With the correct cycle and temperature setting, you'll find drying loads of similar fabrics much faster than trying to dry everything at once.
• Try to prevent over drying. There's no need to spend hard earned dollars drying items that are already dry. Use the automatic cycle if your dryer has one. This gives the best drying in the shortest time.
• Remember to clean the lint screen after each dryer load. A buildup of lint lengthens drying time and as a result may use more energy.

INTS For Homeowners
An Effective Answer For Moth/Beetle Devastation
Two pests that ate their way through millions of acres of American trees, flowers and shrubs in 1981, are planning the same sort of voracious attack this year.
As many homeowners can sadly attest, the two marauders are the gypsy moth and the Japanese beetle. Last year, the gypsy moth was responsible for damage and defoliation of 11 million acres throughout the Northeast. The Japanese beetles feed on more than 275 different kinds of plants, many of them popular landscape and ornamental varieties.
Both pests were introduced into this country by accident and both have made the most of the opportunity. Until 1979, the gypsy moth averaged under a million acres a year. In 1980, the figure reached five million and it more than doubled last year. Horticulturists point out that trees can stand two years of defoliation but a third year may be fatal. Studies show that infestation areas are spreading widely.
Many gardening experts are attacking the problem with such aids as the new, highly effective Raid Gypsy Moth and Japanese Beetle
A new spray for gypsy moths and Japanese beetles attaches to garden hose for instant mixing and spraying without handling insecticides.
Killer. The environmentally safe formulation kills both insects on contact without harming trees, shrubs or flowers.
The spray features an innovative hose-end sprayer that attaches easily to garden hoses. When water is turned on, the concentrated insecticide automatically mixes with the water for instant spraying. This eliminates handling and mixing of insecticides. A built-in foam tracer shows consumers where they have sprayed to insure complete coverage.
The experts advise spraying in early morning or at sunset when gypsy moth caterpillars are in lower branches. Spraying should be done when air is calm and the temperature below 85 degrees.

'Look-alike' drugs can pose several problems

They look like real drugs, but that's where the similarity ends and the controversy begins.

Called "look-alike" or "counterfeit" drugs, the capsules and pills are sold through the mail or on the streets of Texas' larger cities.

The imitation drugs are almost indistinguishable in appearance from controlled substances that are widely abused. The look-alikes have the same size, shape, color and even imprinted letters and numbers resembling those of legitimate manufacturers of controlled substances.

But the Texas Medical Association says the difference is that the imitations usually contain large doses of non-prescription, over-the-counter ingredients such as caffeine, a stimulant; phenylpropanolamine, an appetite suppressant and nasal decongestant; and ephedrine, a decongestant.

Magazine advertisements for the look-alike drugs make claims such as "strongest body stimulants and appetite suppressants available without a prescription" and "100% legal - safe."

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration thinks differently. It has noted increased cases involving phenylpropanolamine at poison-control centers and has linked look-alike drugs to nine deaths nationwide.

The FDA has confiscated the drugs from several look-alike manufacturers on grounds that they are counterfeit drugs prohibited by the U.S. Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. In addition, the U.S. Postal Service has filed complaints charging the mail-order companies with misrepresenting the safety of their products.

The main problem is that only 13 states have passed laws to combat look-alike drugs. Texas is not among the 13. The American Medical Association, however, has developed model state legislation directed at banning the manufacture, sale and distribution of imitation controlled substances.

Unused scholarships, loans waiting to be used by students

There are thousands of unused college scholarships and loans for which students can and do qualify. The student's problem is to search out those which apply to him or her.

Student College Aid, a nationwide, computerized, scholarship locator service, with $500,000,000 of non-government awards in its data base, searches out scholarships and loans for students. Students contact the company for free information and personalized dataform. SCA mails this information to the students.

To use the service, students fill in the dataform as completely as possible. Information as to college major, religious affiliation, club membership, etc., is requested. This information is coded into the computer. The computer searches through thousands of sources and prints out those to which the student is eligible to apply. This printout is mailed to the student, who then contacts the funding sources.

Laundry Problems?

Your best pair of pants isn't looking so good, and you wonder why?

Most laundry problems are due to stains, lint and residue deposits often caused by the incorrect use of fabric softeners or wear damage to the fabric, says Becky Saunders, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The polling place is the heart of our democracy. Here, with a ballot, the people of Texas select the leaders of their government. As voters, they have the right to choose the men and women who make and enforce the laws of the State, levy the taxes, and decide how those taxes should be spent.

The voices, opinions, and influence of the voters of Texas are all recorded at the polls - with their vote. But their vote can be stolen, as surely as a thief can steal their property, through an act of criminal vote fraud or coercion. If our elections can be corrupted through fraud or coercion, the valuable freedom of choice we have will be lost.

For the month of October, 1982, the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council is focusing its statewide "Crime of the Month" on vote fraud and coercion. If you have information on this criminal activity, please call the anti-crime hotline at 1-800-252-TIPS (8477). Cash rewards are available for information leading to arrest and felony indictment of those who would, through fraud or coercion, attempt to set aside the voting process. Citizens do not have to reveal their name, just give their information, and they will be given a unique code number for identification purposes. Help your election officials protect your vote, call 1-800-252-TIPS today.

Report summer tips for Social Security purposes

Young people who worked at summer jobs in which tips comprised a substantial part of earnings should be aware of the importance of making sure all their earnings - including tips - are reported for Social Security purposes. Reporting tips can mean a significant difference in the amount of the Social Security check they will be eligible for if they should become disabled or for their young families if they should die at an early age.

Most young people probably don't realize that they qualify for Social Security disability and survivor benefits with credit for as little as 1 1/2 years of work. As they get older, the amount of credit for work needed to qualify for benefits increases. In general, people 31 and over need credit for at least 5 years of work out of the last 10 years to qualify for disability benefits. A worker reaching 62 this year needs credit for 7 1/2 years of work. Eventually all workers will need credit for 10 years of work to receive retirement benefits.

The amount of your Social Security check is based on your covered earnings. Thus, in the short term it becomes extremely important that the level of your earnings are as high as possible to assure maximum benefit protection. Over the long term, of course, you will have many opportunities to increase the level of your earnings and assure higher benefits.

Unlike regular earnings from which Social Security taxes are automatically deducted and reported by your employer, who pays an equal amount of tax, you are responsible for reporting your tips to your employer and paying the tax on them. The report should be made to the employer and paying the tax on them. The report should be made to the employer in writing by the 10th of the month after the month the tips were received. Employer may require reports more often. The employer reports the tips along with the wages for Social Security purposes.

Taxes must be paid on cash tips of $20 a month or more, charge tips, tips paid by check, and the share of the tips split with fellow employees. Not included are tips of less than $20 a month with one employer or tips other than cash, such as merchandise, passes, tickets, or the share of service charges as regular wages. Employees can get Form 4070, Employee's Report Of Tips, from any Internal Revenue Service office. Other tip reports in any form are acceptable if they contain the same information as Form 4070.

The Social Security office has a special leaflet, Social Security and Cash Tips, that can be helpful for reporting tips. Single copies are free at any Social Security office.

CJC to offer LVN training programs in Coleman, Ballinger

Cisco Junior College, in cooperation with the Texas Education Agency, Overall-Morris Hospital and Ballinger Memorial Hospital, will begin a program for Licensed Vocational Nursing training in Coleman and Ballinger beginning Feb. 4, 1983. Cisco Junior College also operates LVN programs in Cisco, Abilene and Graham.

The Vocational Nursing Program is accredited by the Board of Vocational Nurse Examiners. The twelve-month program includes both classroom and clinical instruction. The first four months consist of classroom instruction and clinical orientation, and the remainder of the year is spent primarily in supervised clinical experience in patient care, including medical, surgical, maternity, and child care. Classes will be held in Ballinger with clinical work in the Ballinger Memorial Hospital and Overall-Morris Hospital on a rotating basis.

Satisfactory completion of the program entitles the student to a certificate of completion from the college and qualifies him/her to take the State Board of Vocational Nurse Examiner's examination. Passing the state examination qualified the graduate as a Licensed Vocational Nurse.

A prospective student must be at least seventeen years of age and either be a high school graduate or furnish a GED equivalency. The applicant should make application in advance and must pass a pre-entrance exam and physical. Each applicant must also provide personal references and have an interview with the LVN Director. Employment opportunities for a Licensed Vocational Nurse are very good; the demand for LVN's far surpasses the supply.

Tuition for the twelve-month program is $150.00, payable $50.00 upon enrollment and $50.00 every three months thereafter. The student buys his/her uniforms (approximately $70.00), books (approximately $200.00 - $225.00), name pin ($3.00), graduation pin ($35.00), insurance ($12.50), and diploma fee ($10.00). The student also furnishes his/her own watch, scissors, and nurse shoes. For full information, interested persons (male or female) may contact Terry Frazier at 915/625-2135, or Mrs. Gwen McLarty at 915/365-2531.

LaRoss Hunt died Friday in Wichita Falls

Mrs. LaRoss Sheppard Hunt, 38, of Wichita Falls, a teacher and former Winters resident, died at 12:38 a.m. Friday at a Wichita Falls Hospital after suffering a heart attack.

Services were held at 11 a.m. Saturday at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Wichita Falls, directed by Hampton-Vaughn Funeral Home of Wichita Falls.

Graveside services were held at 2 p.m. Sunday at Bluff Creek Cemetery in south Taylor County, directed by Winters Funeral Home, with the Rev. Bob Holloway of First United Methodist Church officiating.

Born Sept. 10, 1944, in Winters, she married Michael Hunt. She had lived in Wichita Falls for several years.

Survivors include her husband; a daughter, Lara of the home; a son, Michael Jr. of the home; her mother and stepfather, Jo Olive Hancock and Carl Hancock, both of Winters; her father, Ross Sheppard of Wingate; her grandmother, Eula Saunders of Winters; and a brother, Skip Sheppard of Winters.

Help yourself to good mental health

A few simple steps can help one achieve and maintain good mental health. A cooperative and outgoing attitude will stimulate the same reaction in others, says Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Here are some general guidelines for consideration, she says.

1. The "easy does it" approach may be best. This approach gets the job done without overreacting to a challenge or problem. A level-headed approach to problems will encourage cooperation from others.

2. Learn to recognize and express your feelings. Pent-up feelings often result in depression and anger. Talking to a sensible friend may help you think more clearly and avoid irrational bursts of anger.

3. Don't brood. A simple change of pace may help solve problems which seem to have no solutions. Changing your approach is a positive way to deal with problems.

4. Proceed one step at a time. Large problems become smaller ones if they are dealt with one step at a time. Setting a reachable goal develops self-confidence and relieves frustration and tension, Shirer adds.

Mrs. Edgar Boelsche, vice chairman, gave a brief resume of highlights from the beginning up to the present. From its organization under the direction of Judge W.H. Rappy on August 26, 1962 with seven members the commission has grown to 27 active members and one associate member. A total of 48 historic markers have been placed in the county and many tours and programs have been sponsored.

March of Dimes national poster child named

Announcement was made by actor/singer John Schneider that Ben Hill of Paso Robles, Calif., has been named March of Dimes National Poster Child for 1983. The five-year-old youngster, son of Lindy and Ben Sr., was born with Spina Bifida (open spine) and Hydrocephalus (water on the brain).

Ben's legs are partially paralyzed, but he walks well with the aid of crutches and lower leg braces. Sporting his new toy "motorcycle" around his house, he loves to race with his two older sisters, Bonnie, 10, and Rebecca, 8.

Ben was born on March 31, 1977, and underwent a spinal closure within hours after birth. Within the next year, he had two additional operations to implant and revise his shunt. He is an outgoing, energetic little boy and loves to swim, play basketball and throw a football.

Ben and his sisters are avid sports enthusiasts and enjoy family camping trips.

FACTS & FIGURES

Some vitamins poisonous in large doses

Some vitamins can be poisonous if consumed in large amounts, says Dr. Cass Ryan-Crowe, a food and nutrition specialist.

Ryan-Crowe is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Fat-soluble vitamins are of particular concern because these nutrients are stored in the body when excess amounts are ingested, the specialist explains.

Therefore, if a megadose, or an amount several times the recommended daily allowance, is taken over a long period of time, toxic side effects may show up, she warns.

For example, vitamin A can cause hair loss, increased cranial pressure and pain in the extremities if overtaken, Ryan-Crowe points out.

In addition, vitamin D can cause anorexia, weakness, constipation and elevated serum calcium levels if doses exceed RDA, the specialist says.

Vitamin E in megadoses can cause weakness and fatigue as well as skin rashes and giddiness, she reports.

How's your attitude?

Attitude seems to be one of the key factors related to a good, long life, according to Judith L. Warren, family life education specialist-aging with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. More important than diet and heredity, it is one factor over which the individual has some control. People who are active and "well adjusted" are more likely to live longer and have more enjoyable lives, the specialist says.

Nursing Home News

These cool days have made us enjoy our activities with much enthusiasm. We usually have exercise and basketball on Friday, "Fun Time" and rhythm band on Tuesday, Arts & Crafts on Thursday, and one grooming session each week. We also have residents council once monthly, at this meeting we usually enjoy coffee and doughnuts. We always welcome volunteers and visitors who will come and help us with these many activities.

We have two new residents in our home. They are Hazel Jordan, and Bertha Gerhart. We hope their stay with us can be a pleasant one.

The Cub Scouts, along with their den mothers, came to our home last Monday and brought the program and a litter bag for each resident. These boys looked real sharp in their uniforms, and we enjoyed them.

Thanks to Mac Oil Field Company for the fruit salad they shared with us. It was enjoyed by all. So many kind deeds are shown to our residents by the people in our community.

Child's Play: Back-To-Basics Games Provide Learning And Hours Of Fun

With the resurgence of interest in back-to-basics children's toys, card games are stronger than ever. They're becoming particularly popular among families looking for value and educationally sound products for their children.

"We're returning to simpler, less expensive activities, based on educational principles using categorizing and sequencing skills that children need to organize themselves," says psychologist and child development consultant Susan Laber.

Ms. Laber, who has counseled some 10,000 families and children, says card games help facilitate the development of a child's cognitive, social and motor skills. "They support the process of companionship, competition and sharing in a good time. Team playing teaches new strategies and sportsmanship."

Marketing figures reflect this trend back to the basics in children's games. From traditional games played with 52 cards to contemporary games like UNO, the country's number one-selling card game, they are designed to utilize a child's ability to organize.

Ms. Laber offers some tips for playing card games with children:

- Make sure the child understands the directions. Run through several practice games so the child can see why you're playing the way you are.
- Share scorekeeping tasks. This will give the child practice with arithmetic.

- Take turns dealing, or award the deal to the winner of the preceding hand. Encourage sharing responsibility.
- Encourage the child to progress in his or her strategy. Children need to know that persevering and continuing to try will bring positive results.
- Don't play too long. Be alert to the sign that the child's attention is wandering.
- Let the child know it was fun to play with him or her and don't let too much time elapse before you play again.

In the event of a child's catastrophic response to losing, Ms. Laber says to continue playing with the other players and then talk to the unhappy child individually.

"It is important to let the child know you understand his or her frustration. But do not reward the behavior and do not interrupt play.

"Cards are old friends we grew up with," Ms. Laber adds. "Now, with a little update, games like UNO supplement the traditional games and add a new dimension to our children's educational development."

Record turnout for WT Industrial Tour

Optimism is running very high for the future economic growth of West Texas following a highly successful Industrial Tour to greater New York City. Sponsored annually by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, the 1982 Tour set several records in spite of a sluggish national economy.

West Texas tour participants hosted 189 representatives of manufacturing and distribution companies during three luncheons Sept. 21-23, according to Gary L. Bowling of Fort Worth, Tour Chairman. "This was a record turnout of industrial representatives," continued Bowling, Vice President of Industrial Development for the Fort Worth National Bank.

Twenty-three West Texas cities were represented on the tour by sixty-seven participants, also a record for the tour. Although tangible results from such tours are generally long-range, tour officials were extremely encouraged by the interest shown by the companies represented at the luncheons.

Communities represented on the tour included Abilene, Amarillo, Arlington, Bedford, Big Spring, Borger, Cleburne, Decatur, Dumas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Graham, Lubbock, Midland, Mineral Wells, Odessa, Plainview, San Angelo, Sunray, Waco and Wichita Falls.

Reports from Washington

A LAME-DUCK SESSION

For only the tenth time in almost half a century, Congress is scheduled to return after the November elections to complete unfinished business. This special type of session is known as a "lame-duck," because it will include both Members who have been re-elected and those who have voluntarily retired or who have been defeated in the election.

There are both problems and promise inherent in a lame-duck session. Some express concern over the passage of legislation by Members who have already been rejected by the voters. Others express the hope that constructive action on tough issues can be taken because the heat of political battles will have passed.

Our past experiences with lame-duck sessions indicate both the potential problems and the promise that such a session can hold.

The first three special sessions occurred during World War II when Congress met almost continually. In 1948, Congress met for two hours on the last day of the calendar year to approve several minor bills, extend the life of the Hoover Commission on the Organization of the Executive Branch, and swear in new members. In addition, the House Un-American Activities Committee continued its investigation of alleged communist espionage in the federal government.

Following the 1950 elections, President Truman sent a "must" agenda to the 81st Congress. His list included supplemental defense appropriations, an excess profits tax, aid to Yugoslavia, a three-month extension of federal rent controls and statehood for Hawaii and Alaska. During this marathon session, which ended only hours before the 82nd Congress convened, 46 bills were enacted into law. The President's entire program was adopted with the exception of the statehood bills, which were blocked by Senate filibuster.

In 1954, only the Senate returned to hold what some called a "censure session" to continue investigation into the conduct of Senator Joseph P. McCarthy. By a 67-22 roll-call vote the Senate voted on December 2 to "condemn" the Senator for his behavior. It then adjourned.

President Richard Nixon criticized the lame-duck Congress he called in 1970 as one that had "seemingly lost the capacity to decide and the will to act." Filibusters and intense controversy contributed to inaction on the President's request for trade legislation and welfare reform. Despite its unwillingness to act on those two issues, Congress did clear several major appropriations bills, approved foreign aid to Cambodia, provided interim funding for the supersonic transport plane (SST) and repealed the Tonkin Gulf Resolution. The session ended January 2.

In 1974, the 93rd Congress cleared a mass-transit bill, the Labor-Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriations bill, a foreign aid package, and approved the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller as Vice President.

As a freshman legislator, I participated in the 1980 lame-duck session which began November 12 and ended December 16. During this session, we finally approved a budget and ten regular appropriations bills were passed, although one was eventually vetoed.

President Reagan has called for a lame-duck session this year in the interest of fiscal responsibility and I fully concur with his decision. Since none of the 13 annual appropriations bills has been approved to date, we shall operate for a short period under a blanket continuing appropriations resolution, which will for the most part merely allow the government to continue to function at existing (FY 1982) levels.

The Continuing Resolution will set artificial levels for Federal spending. For example, the Congress has already agreed in its budget resolution to increase spending for our national security and to decrease spending for certain domestic programs which are no longer viable. The Continuing Resolution, however, will not reflect the budget decisions which have already been made, but will instead adopt last year's spending levels on a wholesale basis.

Attempting to run the government without specific appropriations decisions is both bad economics and bad management. The Congress must demonstrate that we can impose necessary fiscal discipline on government spending and we must make funding decisions which reflect vital national priorities. To do this, we must pass the 13 regular appropriations bills. It is too bad that we could not manage to take care of the Nation's business in the time allotted to us in regular session. Since we could not, the President is quite correct in calling a special session. Let us hope that in that session lame ducks can learn to soar.
