South Runnels County — Justice Precinct One

Local option petition certified, election to be called by commissioners

Justice Precinct One

The double-line almost exactly bisects Runnels County and represents the dividing line between Justice Precinct One and Justice Precinct Two.

The area below the double-line, J.P. Precinct One, is the area in which voters will be given the opportunity to vote on the legal sale of alcoholic beverage.

The petition calling for the election has been verified and the county commissioners are expected to set the election date between August 1 and August 11.

The only areas below the lines not affected are Miles and Rowena where voters have already legalized the sale of alcoholic beverages.

Voters in Justice Precinct One of Runnels County will have the opportunity to vote for or against the legal sales of alcoholic beverages next month according to the county clerk's office.

A completed petition, bearing 583 signatures calling for a local-option election for the southern half of Runnels County was returned to County Clerk Linda Bruchmiller last Thursday. The petition will be presented to the Runnels County Commissioners Court for certification next week.

Of the total of 583 signatures on the petition, 553 were certified as being registered voters in that portion of the county. The petition required the signatures of at least 481 registered voters in order for the election to be called.

The commissioners court will receive the certified petition when they meet in regular session next Tuesday and must, according to state law, set the election date not less than 20, nor more than 30 days after the certified petition is presented. The date for the local option election will be set between August first and August 11.

The area covered by the petition, Justice Precinct One, includes almost all of the southern half of the county. On a county map, a line drawn from the Coke County line to the Coleman County line, and through the Hatchel Community, would bisect the county and the area below the line, or south of the line would comprise Justice Precinct one. Voting boxes 1, 7, and 8 are in the area covered by the justice precinct.

There are only two areas in south Runnels County that will not be affected by the election. Miles and Rowena are already in an area where the sale of alcoholic beverage is legal.

At stake in such an election will be the legal sale of all alcoholic beverages, for off premises consumption only.

Two Winters men jailed for unauthorized use of car

Winters Police and Runnels County Sheriff's officers had two Winters men in custody in connection with the unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

A car, belonging to Bobby Dunn, was taken from the parking lot of a north-side grocery store Thursday evening about 9 p.m. and was recovered early Friday parked behind the A-1 Motel in south Winters. Police officers said that the keys had been left in the vehicle.

Both sheriff's deputies and police officers were called to investigate the incident and searched until Friday afternoon before taking two suspects into custody.

Police Chief L.C. Foster said that while he was on routine patrol late Friday he received a report of a fight in progress just west of Winters and that a vehicle, thought to have been occupied by the two wanted men, was at the scene.

Foster said that when he arrived he took one subject into custody and that the second man fled on foot and was taken into custody a short time later.

Police officers identified the two as 19-year-old Kevin Kendrick and 18-year-old Mark Gary Green, both of Winters. Officers said the two were transferred to the county jail Friday.

The vehicle that had been taken was recovered undamaged and returned to the owner after officers had taken fingerprints from the vehicle.

Grand Jury names three in indictments

Four indictments were returned last week by a 119th district grand jury according to District Attorney Dick Alcalá of San Angelo.

The district attorney said that three persons were named in the four indictments including two Winters men on charges of indecency with a child. The third person indicted was an Abilene man, Gene Kermit Appleton, who was charged with DWI, subsequent offense and failure to stop and render aid.

Juan Comacho Romero of Winters was indicted on the charge of indecency with a child in connection with an incident that occurred October 1, 1982.

Angel Romero, also of Winters, was indicted in connection with an April 24 charge of indecency with a child.

The district attorney said that both of the incidents occurred in Winters and that the two Romero men were unrelated and that the incidents were unrelated.

Gene Kermit Appleton's indictments stemmed from an April 9 accident on U.S. Highway 67 between Rowena and Ballinger. Alcalá said that a car driven by Appleton allegedly struck a car without stopping to see if anyone was injured. Officers said, however, there were no injuries in the accident.

Swimming lessons scheduled at pool

Swimming lessons for ages 4 and over have been scheduled at the Winters Municipal Swimming Pool, July 18-22, with one and possibly two classes held, depending on how many register for the classes.

The lessons will be held from 10 to 11 a.m., and possibly from 11 to 12 noon, according to Susan Blake, instructor. The five one-hour lessons will cost $15.00, and will be taught by Mrs. Blake and several life guards, with a limit of five students per instructor.

To register for the Beginner, Advanced Beginner, and Intermediate classes, call Susan Blake, 754-4746, or the city pool, 754-5617.

Charles Bahlman

The new owner of the Chevrolet dealership in Winters, Charles Bahlman, has taken over operation of the business.

Bahlman, a Winters native, just completed the purchase of the dealership from Roger (Spec) Robinson.

Winters City Council meets in Tuesday session

The Winters City Council was meeting Tuesday evening rather than Monday due to the July Fourth Holiday.

In the meeting, which was to begin at 6:00 p.m., the council agenda called for the presentation of a certificate of recognition for the Winters Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary's Three Lady Race Team. The ladies won the state championship recently at the state meeting of firefighters.

The council was also to discuss a grant application to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for 50 percent funding on new playground equipment for the city park. It is expected the council will call a public hearing on the proposal.

City Administrator Glenn Brown said that he would recommend the council suspend rates for 120 days for West Texas Utilities and then follow the ruling of the Public Utility Commission. WTU manger Gary Moore was expected to appear before the council to explain the electric utility's latest rate increase request.

The paving program for city streets for 1983 was also to be discussed. Several streets had been scheduled for paving last year and these along with some others are to be considered. The city administrator said that also several petitions requesting street paving, dating back to 1980, would be considered by the council.

The paving program, if approved, would involve the use of county paving equipment with the city

Two take state crowns Runnels girls sweep through State Our Little Miss Pageant

Fourteen girls representing Runnels County participated in the recent Texas State Our Little Miss Pageant, held in Abilene June 27-July 2 at the Abilene Civic Center, bringing home honors to please and make any area proud to have such fine representatives.

Two, Jennifer Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Matthews of Winters, and Jill Connor, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Connor, also of Winters, topped off the pageant by bringing home state beauty crowns. Miss Matthews was named "Miss La Petite of Texas", and was also named in the top ten of the La Petite Universal Beauty segment. Jill, named "Ideal Miss Universal Beauty", was also the 3rd alternate Perfect Teen and received the Pro-Am Sweepstakes trophy for modeling in the 11 to 14 age group. Ms. Connor was awarded "Best Character Dance" in the Ideal Miss division.

Other Runnels County girls participating among 135 total entrants, were Amber Dawn Warren, Jennifer Hogue, Donna White, Michelle Wallace, Janya Jackson, and Connie Chaney, all of Ballinger; Christy McKinney of Norton; and Jennifer Harrison, Jackye Connor, J'Lynn Russell, Beverly Hamilton and Kayla Priddy, all of Winters.

Awards brought back home by these girls include:

Kayla Priddy — "Texas Best 8-year-old"

Michelle White, "Best 10-year-old"

Connie Chaney, "Best 11-year-old"

Michelle Wallace took "Best Tap Dance" in the Our Little Miss division.

Voted Miss Congeniality by her fellow pageant participants was Beverly Hamilton, who also received the award for "Best Candid Shot" in the 13 to 17 age group of the Miss Photogenic competition. Ms. Hamilton was also named in the top ten of the Ideal Miss Universal Beauty division, and was idently started by (you guessed it) fireworks. We were lucky here, there was only two of these grass fires that could have resulted in property damage, the rest were near the old lake and just burned dry grass.

In most of us, there is still a little bit of kid. We enjoy the spizz-bang of fire works — the colors of the sky rockets and Roman candles. Some of the hot noisemakers did get into the dry grass, accidentally, and the result was more noise and

Wait A Minute — By Kerry Craig

Well, the Fourth of July has come and gone, and for this area without incident — well almost.

There were those who just stayed near the TV and the air conditioner on the holiday that ended up hotter than a firecracker, and there were others who played golf, went to the pool or the lake, or to some July Fourth festivity somewhere.

Now, there were some firemen who had whatever it was they were doing interrupted several times over the holiday weekend to douse grass fires that were ac-

Memoirs of Indian Fighting On The Texas Frontier by Captain John M. Elkins, was written for him by Frank W. McCarty in 1929 and has long since been out of print, but Arnold Allcorn has an autographed copy which he loaned me. The information is a true picture of one man's experiences and conditions of the frontier. Elkins' story follows:

Foreward
 When I pause to take a retrospective view of my life, the active years of which were mostly spent in fighting Indians and rounding up outlaw bands, I feel that I have many things of paramount interest to say to the present, rising and coming generations. Fully realizing the solemn fact that my shadows have lengthened almost to the approaching end causes me to know that if ever I tell this story of my life experiences I must of necessity tell it now. Therefore, I have this volume presented to the public in my feeble days with no attempt to gain praise of myself for the present nor for the future, but I do for the sole purpose of planting the true history of The Texas Frontier to which I was an eye witness or closely related, and, so far as it is within my power to do, to perpetuate it in the minds and memories of the ones coming after me, so that they may have a clear understanding of the hardships and suffering endured not only by us men of the frontier but also by the women and children whose lives were constantly in danger of an attack from the massacring Red Man.

In my eighty-eighth year, I now live in Coleman County, West Texas, within two miles of old Fort Colorado. The little house in which I am spending my last days is built from the first lumber ever freighted into this county. When Coleman County was first organized in 1871, I had been passing through and fighting Indians across this section of the Country for about eighteen years. I am proud of the fact that the honor was bestowed upon me to be the one to drive the stob to locate the county site, which I did and that is the spot where it is now situated. I was the first Sheriff and Tax Collector of Coleman County, resigning that office soon, when Governor Davis appointed me Captain of this County's Ranging Company to range from the Red River to the Rio Grande. I have lived to see this section of the country developed from its virginal wilds to its present prosperity.

Captain John M. Elkins of Coleman County, Texas, noted Indian fighter and survivor of the company of frontiersmen who participated in the recapture of Cynthia Ann Parker in 1860.

To Arms Again
 In the year of 1853, my father came to what is now Parker County, Texas, which was yet unorganized and under the jurisdiction of Tarrant County. I was at this time a stripping boy of twelve years. However proud I may now be of the sacrificing hardships I endured and the services I rendered during my former life, likely, in my youthful innocence, could I have looked down the future and have seen what was in store for me, I would not now be engaged in writing this.

At this time all the wild tribes of Indians, except the Northern Comanches, were under a treaty with the United States Government, and were supposed to be confined to their respective reservations in Young County, near where the town of Graham is now located. The Tonkaway Tribe was allowed the privileges of citizens because they were harmless and had always been the true friends of the White Man. They were once a powerful tribe but because of the fact that they refused to join the other tribes in fighting against the white people, they were constantly in war with the other Indians; their tribe was now killed out until they were but few in number.

The Government had stationed troops in these reservations to protect the reserve tribes from the hostile attacks of the powerful Northern Comanches who outnumbered any other tribe of that time, and at the same time it was the duty of these troops to keep the Indians within the bounds of the reserves, except that occasionally they could apply for and be granted a furlough permitting them, while accompanied by guards, to hunt off their reservations on territory away from the settlements. But the restrictions of these furloughs were not adhered to and these reserve Indians, without being accompanied by guards, were allowed to roam at will over West Texas wherever they cared to go; they preferred to visit the settlements on these supposed hunting trips and constantly they did.

Although Parker County was at this time a frontier or border county, peace prevailed throughout the land. It seemed that at last the pioneers had accomplished the one great thing for which they had fought, bled and died; "Peace from the attacks of the savage Red Man." The people were happy and prosperous. With no Indian depredations, they were tilling the soil of the rich valleys and planting their crops. On rainy days they would search the hills for bee trees and take the honey to store for future use; cut wood from the post oak, black jack and cedar trees, which clothed the hills beautifully, to burn in the big fireplaces, to heat their log cabins and cook their meals. They thought that their dreams had at last come true; that the Red Man had been driven away and they were now free from his savage attacks and bloody massacres.

But in 1854 the settlers were surprised when they learned that Major Stemm, a United States officer, and his associate had been killed by the Kickapoo Indians. They knew that this signified the beginning of another bloody disturbance which was unexpected to them, and very soon after the killing of this official, the Indians began depredating upon the people.

For some months it was generally believed that the crimes committed so continuously, were traceable to the Northern Comanche Indian who had refused treaty with the U.S. Government. But after finding the Reservation Indians in possession of the property which had been stolen from where families had been murdered on several occasions, the people learned that the combined tribes of the reserve Indians were in fact, doing more harm than the free tribe.

Having no restraint in the reservations, the Indians were continually causing more trouble. The settlers fought them as best they could to protect their property. To avenge the lives of those of their tribes who had been killed by the pioneers, the Indians began massacring whole families; killing men, women and children everywhere.

Governor Houston realized the tragic condition of the affairs of the settlers. He authorized several counties to organize ranging companies consisting of twenty men each for frontier protection.

But after their organizations were complete, these few Rangers were not sufficient to check the mass of red warriors that were attacking settlements as they rode on toward Jacksboro with the intention of laying waste to that small town. Messengers or couriers were riding in haste from house to house through the thinly settled country around Weatherford and elsewhere, asking for help to ward off the approaching savages. It was then that the settlers threw their plows aside and took up their guns with a permanent grip once more. They realized that they must fight, and now, if they expected to build the new country into the land they had hoped for. With their accomplishments left to waste until the invading Indians were subdued, the settlers told their families farewell with no assurance that they could return, then hurried to Jacksboro to fight.

 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Texans have always understood the critical importance of quality education in maintaining a free and prosperous nation. In fact, the founders of the Republic of Texas cited the lack of a public education system as one of their grievances when they declared their independence from Mexico.

A recent report on the colleges chosen by National Merit Scholars tells the nation what we as Texans knew already — that the quality of higher education in Texas is outstanding.

National Merit Scholars are chosen from among the top one percent of high school students taking an annual examination. Of the 50 universities which count among their students the largest numbers of these exceptionally bright students, four are in Texas.

Rice University in Houston ranks third in the nation with 554 Merit Scholars. Texas A&M University in College Station ranks sixth, with 445 Merit Scholars. The University of Texas has 424 scholars, placing it eighth among universities nationally, and Baylor University includes 196 Merit Scholars among its students, giving it 22nd place.

In terms of entering freshman Merit Scholars, Texas universities also rank prominently. Among entering freshmen in 1982, Texas A&M tied with Princeton University for second, with 190 scholars. Rice University had 172 entering freshmen who were Merit Scholars, making it the fourth most popular choice. The University of Texas ranked eighth with 130 entering freshmen.

One of the most impressive aspects of these statistics is the significant increase in the number of Merit Scholars who have chosen Texas universities in the period since 1979. Texas schools had a combined total of 1,914 Merit Scholars this school year, a 40 percent increase from the 1,367 in 1979. The most dramatic increase has occurred at Texas A&M, where there was a 129.4 percent increase, from 194 in 1979 to 445 this year. The University of Texas showed a 117.4 percent increase, and Baylor University, an 81.5 percent jump.

These figures indicate two things to me: Texas universities are among the best in the nation, and their national

Women Find Success in Life Insurance Sales
 How would you like a career where your earnings potential is limitless? A career that lets you build a successful future for yourself and economic security for your family?

Women who are looking for a career where they can really get ahead, business experts say, should look into life insurance sales. One of the most rapidly growing industries of the 1980s, life insurance has already provided successful careers for more than 50,000 women in the U.S. With a career in life insurance, a growing clientele brings you a continuing source of income through new sales and service on existing business. Your compensation, in the form of commissions, is directly related to sales and service. Another plus for the woman with other responsibilities—you have the flexibility of establishing your own hours, setting your own schedule, being your own boss. There are no specific educational requirements for life underwriting. Previous job experience involving public contact is an asset but is not essential. For a person with enthusiasm, ambition and a desire to help others, a career in life insurance can be an ideal way to achieve

Many women have found that selling life insurance is a great way to build their bank accounts and help support their families. economic security. As many women report, it can also be fun—for the challenge stimulates energy and excitement, enables them to meet new people and go new places, and adds a new, exuberant dimension to their lives.

One organization, specifically created by women for women to help them get started in the life insurance business, is American Bankers' Women's World. This unique program provides training through an ongoing program of education, with a headquarters team of professional and hotline specialists to assist you from your first sales call all the way through your career path. reputation is increasing each year. In light of a recent report by the National Commission on Excellence in Education -- a report which was less than flattering to our nation's schools -- I find this testimony to the quality of Texas higher education to be a particular source of pride. Of course, the numbers of Merit Scholars attending our universities is only one measure. The thousands of well-trained, well-educated young men and women who are graduated from our universities each year are the real reward to our commitment to excellence in education. These are the young people on whom we will count in the future to fill the needs of our expanding business and industry and to make our communities better places to live. Each of our institutions of higher learning, and each of us as Texans, can be proud of the job we are doing to meet our needs for a new generation of educated, dedicated men and women to take our state into the 21st Century.

The Consumer Alert
 by Jim Mattox
 Attorney General

AUSTIN—It is important for all Texans to have access to the office of the Attorney General. Recognizing that need, a Telecommunications Device (TDD) for the Deaf has been installed in the Austin Office of my Consumer Protection Division. The TDD line is special equipment for the deaf, hearing-impaired and speech-impaired community and consists of typewriter keyboards for transmitting and receiving messages over normal telephone lines. These portable telecommunications are available in the 17 Regional Councils for the Deaf in Texas. Some state agencies in Austin also have the equipment, and it may be installed in private homes. When the receiving telecommunicator is not being manned by personnel, such as during hours when the Attorney General's office is closed, a recording device prints a hard-bound copy of the message, which will be responded to as soon as the office reopens. I feel it is particularly important that the device be available to help respond to the consumer problems of those persons with hearing and speech disabilities. These persons have not had an effective means of obtaining answers to questions of an urgent nature. Now, the Consumer Protection Division will be accessible directly by telephone to those persons. Depending on the response to this equipment in the office in Austin, it is anticipated that similar equipment will be installed in the Dallas, San Antonio and Houston Regional Offices where hundreds of consumer complaints are processed. All Texans in the deaf, hearing-impaired and speech impaired community are encouraged to use this equipment to contact my office with any questions they might have because it is only through this type of feedback that I can improve the ser-

Crime Of The Month
 Sometime during the night of July 9, 1982, three or more persons burglarized The Muller Automotive Parts Store located at 208 S. 8th St. in Ballinger, Tx. The persons tried to pry open the metal door on the South side of the building and failed. The persons then went to the rear of the building and entered through a wooden door that they forced open. The burglars took approximately $13,000.00 in cash and local checks. The burglars also took a gold Bulova brand accutron watch and a quantity of old coins dated 1854. The cash and checks were in three First National Bank of Ballinger bags that were green in color and one Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Ballinger bag that was brown in color. A wooden cash register that was taken in the burglary was later found on a dirt road off Highway 83, 6 miles north of Winters, Tx. All of the suspects involved in the burglary were wearing tennis shoes and were walking between the business and the 300 block of Sealy Ave. where their vehicle was parked. Runnels County Crimestoppers will pay $1000.00 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of any one or all of the persons involved in the Muller Automotive burglary. ## Hints for HOMEMAKERS

California brandy adds zest to Brandied Onion Soup.

Here's a culinary idea from a fabled land: California. The name of that state is believed to come from the description of a fabled island in a 15th century Spanish novel. Many people who've tasted these savory soups, made with California brandy and cheeses, say it's fabulous indeed.

1 (1 pound) can stewed tomatoes

Make 3 or 4 diagonal cuts in each frankfurter (or cut into generous slices). Add to soup and cook 5 minutes. Coarsely mash 1 cup of the beans. ## METRIC MEASURES

Helpful Information From The U.S. Metric Board

Q. Who decided the U.S. should go metric?

A. No one. Metric usage in the U.S. is voluntary but it is evolving gradually in several areas. Consumers are already using the metric system to buy many items in everyday use. These include photographic equipment, cigarettes, automobiles, pharmaceutical products, soft drinks, wine and distilled spirits.

The U.S. Metric Board is a government agency which does planning, research and coordination in connection with voluntary usage of the metric system.

Keep Cool With Applesauce Sherbet

Now's a good time for meals that are easy to prepare, and desserts that are cool, light and delicious.

The International Apple Institute would like to suggest a new and easy dessert idea. You can even prepare it the night before and it is very refreshing and tasty. You probably have the ingredients on hand right now.

APPLESAUCE SHERBERT
1 can (one pound) applesauce, smooth or chunky
3/4 cup light corn syrup
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
1/4 cup orange juice
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Combine the applesauce, a half cup of the corn syrup, salt, lemon juice, orange peel and orange juice in a bowl. Beat the remaining 1/4 cup of corn syrup gradually into the stiffly beaten egg whites and fold it into the applesauce mixture. Pour the entire mixture into a freezing tray and freeze until firm. It will make six to eight servings.

PRESENTED BY THE STATE BAR OF TEXAS

Q: Recently, I was stopped by a highway patrolman for speeding. My driver's license says I should have glasses on to drive a car. I was wearing contact lenses when the officer stopped me; he made me remove the contacts to prove I had them. Did he have the right to require that?

A: Under the law, the Department of Public Safety is authorized to issue driver's licenses which are restricted in various ways including requiring the use of corrective lenses while operating a motor vehicle. Peace officers are authorized to enforce the laws of the state of Texas. It is a reasonable request that a peace officer require the user of contact lenses to show the officer that such corrective lenses were in fact in use.

Q: I sold my car to a person who is paying me $25 a week until it is paid in full. At that time, I will sign title over to her. If she has a wreck or is involved in some wrongdoing, can I be held liable since the title to the car is still in my name?

A: Although your sale agreement may specify otherwise, the certificate of title still names you owner, and you are presumed to own the vehicle. Depending on the facts, you could be sued and found liable for negligent entrustment of your vehicle, say, if the buyer did not have a driver's license and you knew it. However, from your question it appears that you have surrendered custody and control and are merely a lien holder. Telephone the Motor Vehicle Division of the State Highway Department to discuss whether title should be changed while you are selling the car.

Q: My husband and I are divorced. We have a 10-year old son who lives with me. My ex wants the boy to go and live with him, but my son wants to stay here with me. At what age may a child refuse to go with his father?

A: To change custody, the father must file a Motion to Modify, showing a material and substantial change in circumstances; that to retain Mother as Managing Conservator would be injurious to the child's welfare; and that Father as Managing Conservator would be a positive improvement.

A child may be allowed to testify to his preference, and this factor may be taken into consideration. However, the Judge alone will make the decision based on the standard of "the child's best interests."

Q: My son is divorced and his ex-wife has custody of their son. Should the mother remarry and her new husband adopt our grandchild, will we have any visitation rights?

A: State law provides for grandparent visitation if you will apply to the Court that has jurisdiction over the child. You will need to be appointed possessory conservators with specific visitation rights. With this appointment, you can continue seeing the child even if your son agrees to let him be adopted.

Send your questions to "You and the Law," State Bar of Texas, P.O. Box 12487, Austin, 78711. Answers may appear in columns in hypothetical terms; personal answers not possible.

Q: When my uncle died several years ago, his property was valued at $50,000. Several of us inherited under his will. If we sell the land now, what taxes will be due?

A: Federal estate tax would not be due on an estate worth $50,000. State inheritance tax may be due by each heir, however, depending on the number of beneficiaries and how closely related each was to your uncle.

Ordinary capital gains tax will be due by the present owners of the land, depending on the increase in value between date of death and date of sale.

Q: I belong to a homeowner's association that has many restrictions that seem to me unfair. Can I drop out of the association or will that allow the association to have a lien against my house?

A: Read the Bylaws of the homeowner's association and all other condominium project documents to see what remedies are available. To change restrictions, you probably must apply to the Board of Directors of the association. To get satisfaction, you may have to lobby with the other homeowners in the association to change the membership of the Board.

Usually, such an association includes all the unit owners. Read the con-

MRS. GREGORY ALAN CARNES

Saturday ceremony unites Miss Bredemeyer, Mr. Carnes

Kathryn Elizabeth Bredemeyer became the bride of Gregory Alan Carnes in a double-ring ceremony held Saturday, July 2 at St. John's Lutheran Church in Winters.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bredemeyer of Winters and Major and Mrs. A.D. Carnes of Arkadelphia, Arkansas.

The 7 p.m. ceremony was officiated by Rev. Lawrence Keene before an altar decorated with pink carnations and baby's breath. Two baskets of white gladioli were used at the steps of the altar. Fresh flowers, in shades of pink, adorned the organ, and white satin pew markers marked the families' pews. Brass candelabra accented each side of the altar.

Mrs. Wanda Stegemoe-ller, aunt of the bride, was organist, as Jerry Ellis, uncle of the groom, sang "The Pledge" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Registering guests was

Mrs. Troy Stegemoe-ller of Muleshoe.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white multi-tiered gown of silk organza, flowing into a chapel train. The gown, complete with Queen Anne neckline and a bodice of Italian Venice lace, was accented with tiny pearls. The illusion-fitted sleeves were trimmed with Venice lace and schiffli embroidery. Her chapel-length veil of illusion net was edged in lace, and fell from a Juliet cap of Venice lace and matching pearls.

She accented her outfit with a strand of pearls. For the traditional blue, the bride wore a blue garter made by Mrs. Earnest Brown, and the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Merle Ellis, loaned the bride a linen handkerchief and a 1960 penny, representing the year the bride was born. She carried a silk bouquet of camellias, stephanotis and pink rosebuds, cascading into camellias and stephanotis and trimmed in white floor-length satin streamers.

She chose a pink and gray linen suit for her going away outfit, accented by a white silk orchid, presented her by the groom.

FACTS & FIGURES

The federal excise tax on spirits is a heavy regressive tax burden on consumers and the industry. Together with state and local levies on spirits, excise taxes amount to 44 percent of the typical retail price of a bottle of spirits—25 percent federal, 19 percent state and local. Liquor is thus the most highly taxed consumer product.

Across the country, state and local revenue per gallon of spirits has risen by 121 percent since 1951, say the experts at the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States, Inc. (DISCUS), the trade association of the distilled spirits industry. The tax on distilled spirits remains the highest of all excise taxes.

Despite popular belief, spirits are not just the drink of the rich. It is estimated that roughly half of spirits users have incomes below $20,000.

EVEN WHEN YOU'RE AWAY...YOUR HOME KEEPS RUNNING

You may naturally expect your home to use less electricity while you're away for a week or more. The reduction may not be as great as you think, however. That's because there are many factors that can affect your usage: weather conditions, billing periods and even vacation preparation.

1. Very hot weather before you leave and after you return means increased use of air conditioning. This makes it difficult to compare your bill with a previous month of milder weather.
2. Hot weather causes your refrigerator freezer to run longer, particularly if your home air conditioning is turned off while you are away.
3. If the time you're away falls within two billing periods, the reduction you expect will be split between two bills.
4. If you didn't turn off your electric hot water heater before you left, it continued to keep your water hot 24 hours a day, even though you weren't there.
5. And don't forget... when getting ready for a vacation you often use more electricity than usual for cleaning, washing, drying, ironing, cooking and general preparations. The same is true about your return.

Check your meter.

If you learn to read your own meter, you can find out just how much electricity was used while you were gone. And, you'll see just how much energy you're using during the summer, the heaviest electricity consuming season, with your air conditioning operating most of the time.

Facts From Experts About Children's Teeth

How is your knowledge of tooth care? This test can help you tell.

1. The teeth most susceptible to decay are (a) incisors (b) canines (c) molars?
2. One of the first permanent teeth is (a) the 12-year molar (b) the six-year molar (c) the wisdom tooth?
3. The loss of a baby tooth is not important. (a) true (b) false?

ANSWERS: 1. (c) The most susceptible to decay of all teeth is the six-year molar. Over 25 percent of children ages six to seven have beginning cavities in one of them. 2. (b). 3. False. If a child loses a baby tooth before it's time, the whole shape of the jaw can be affected. One thing that can help your child keep his teeth is a fluoride toothpaste. In 1972, Aim, a leading therapeutic brand that carries the American Dental Association (ADA) seal of acceptance, became the first gel toothpaste to contain fluoride. Fluoride combines with the tooth enamel to help teeth resist cavity-producing acids. If you'd like to know more about taking care of your children's teeth, you can write for a free booklet called "A Parent's Guide to Hassle-Free Cavity Fighting." Write to "Parent's Guide," P.O. Congressional Comment —

By Charles W. Stenholm

It's been called the salvation of American agriculture, and a boon-doggle complicated enough to stump Rube Goldberg. It's been hailed as a money-saver, and assailed as the most expensive farm program in history. It's the Payment-In-Kind (PIK) program, and it has been the focus of agricultural policy since it was first proposed last fall.

At that time, it had become clear that something had to be done about the massive crop surpluses that were keeping farmers' prices low. Not only did these surpluses perpetuate the farm recession, they also made government price support costs skyrocket: from $4 billion in 1981 to $12 billion in 1982 to a projected $21 billion in 1983.

The Department of Agriculture designed and implemented PIK in a remarkably brief period. The program was not an initiative of the Congress, though many farm-state legislators welcomed PIK as "the only game in town." County ASCS workers burned the midnight oil to get the program details out and the paperwork done, and when the smoke cleared it turned out that far more farmers had decided to participate than anyone had thought likely. Producers who signed up for PIK agreed to take a large portion of their acreage out of production so surpluses would be drawn down; in return, they would receive surplus commodities from government- and producer-held stockpiles.

Response was heavy. The latest USDA projections estimate that U.S. cotton production could be reduced by almost a third from last year, U.S. wheat production by a fifth, and corn prices by two-fifths. These reductions are not expected to increase consumer food prices substantially, but they offer real hope of getting farm production back into balance and so are good news for most farmers.

But the heavy participation has caused another problem: Because the farmers who are entitled to PIK aren't necessarily the same ones who have the surplus grain, the government has had a hard time finding enough PIK commodities to go around. It has even required some farmers to "plant for PIK," that is, harvest their current crop, take a government-guaranteed price for it, and then sell it again on the open market.

PIK has caused some problems. After all, a program that helps raise grain farmers' prices will also have an adverse affect on livestock raisers and dairymen in the short run. Small agricultural businesses have also suffered from heavy PIK participation. Yet the program will likely achieve at least a "breathing space" for agriculture. And while farmers catch their breath, they should begin thinking about what comes next. Clearly, PIK is a short-term measure. Massive over-production and equally massive taxpayer costs mean that something has to change in agricultural policy. Now is the time to begin deciding the directions for the future — to go beyond PIK and achieve a coherent and workable food and fiber policy for the rest of the 20th century and beyond.

CAPITOL UPDATE

by Jim Parker

Being ever mindful that many reports have already been made concerning the Special Session relating to the public school system.

At this point, any definite date is mere speculation; however, Gov. White has expressed hope that the Select Committee on Public Education can begin meeting soon and, after carefully studying all areas of the educational system, be ready with recommendations for the Legislature later this year. Since the issue of education, and every aspect thereof, is a critical one and one which has not been addressed in its entirety for over 34 years, I would like to take the months prior to a called session to become fully aware of the needs, problems and views of my district regarding the school system in Texas. I will begin by addressing the issues regarding teacher pay and time spent for teaching and preparation.

I understand a teacher pay increase is important and will be one of the major issues of discussion for the Committee; however, I would like to explore other ideas such as merit pay, vacation time, time spent at school, etc., also.

I have heard complaints from opponents of a pay raise because they felt that since teachers worked only 10 months of the year, had six-hour days and had long vacations during the year, such as Christmas, spring break, etc., the public was paying more through taxes but was getting less in the way of better education for their children. They cite lower overall achievement scores compared to other countries as proof of their position.

On the other hand, the proponents for a pay increase felt the teaching profession was not able to attract future good teachers because the pay relative to other professions requiring a college degree was so much lower. The fact that there were only a handful of science and math teacher graduates in the entire state last year seems to back up this view.

Teachers, by State Board of Education policy, are required to teach a minimum of 175 days per year in the classroom with an additional number of days spent in in-service training. Other time is spent in parent-teacher conferences, PTA meetings, planning time, etc. They do not feel the general public is aware of the many additional hours required to plan lessons, grade papers or participate in school projects and some become downright hostile when it is suggested that they only work "six-hour days." Teachers say that, while they may be allowed to leave school at 4 p.m., many must stay later to prepare for the next day's work and most take work home with them. Also, teachers are not allowed an hour for lunch and must sit with and supervise students even during the short time they have.

Everyone, I think, will agree that some teachers are better than others and should be paid more. This is the reason for the much-touted merit pay suggestions we have all heard about recently. But, again, there are strong feelings from both sides on this issue.

Opponents feel that it would be impossible to reward the better teachers fairly. They believe that any merit money would go to the teachers who spend more time with supervisors and principals rather than those who may actually be spending extra time in school projects, planning, etc. They feel the merit pay system could not work until certain criteria are set-up and, to their way of thinking, no such method has been developed.

Proponents of merit pay believe there is simply not enough money to pay all teachers a substantial increase and feel that those who are willing to spend more time, get advanced degrees and generally improve their teaching by showing an increase in achievement scores should receive additional pay over those who plod along doing the same thing year after year.

Having discussed the views of both proponents and opponents of increased teacher salaries, I would now like to know how my people feel about the ideas I have mentioned.

I hope you will let me hear from you soon.

Railroad Commission to require drilling permit fee

The Railroad Commission has proposed for public comment a new rule that requires a non-refundable $100 fee for new or materially amended permits to drill for oil and gas in the state.

The proposed new rule is the result of recent legislation enacted by the Texas Legislature. That legislation requires the $100 fee and authorized the Railroad Commission to deposit the money into a special fund for plugging abandoned wells. The funds can also be used for general enforcement of state pollution prevention laws involving oil and gas operations.

Comments on the proposed rules will be taken for 30 days after publication in the Texas Register, and then the proposed rule will be presented to the Commission for final consideration.

The new law will also require some procedural changes in the way drilling permits are handled at the RRC. For example, applicants must file a drilling permit application (RRC Form W-1) and the fee with the Commission's headquarters in Austin rather than with the respective RRC district office. However, applicants must still send a copy of the application to the district office.

The RRC will no longer authorize "verbal" drilling permits, but will allow an applicant to expedite processing of a permit application by "walking" it through the review process in Austin.

By law, the fee requirement is effective Sept. 1, 1983.

The Commission has sent a full explanation of the drilling permit application changes to all oil and gas operators in the state.

To answer questions, the Commission has established a toll-free telephone number (1-800-772-0091) for calls placed in Texas.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

Rising prices at the pump and fuel shortages are creating an ever-growing demand for motorcycles. Inflation, too, is making the commuting public more aware of the relatively lower cost of motorcycles versus the automobile.

People are more aware of gas prices and are becoming more practical in their buying. They know motorcycles are a cheaper mode of transportation.

Depending on size, weight and engine capacity, motorcycles can get up to 200 miles per gallon. The average mileage for a large, comfortable, comparatively quiet touring road bike—like the Suzuki GS 1000N—is 40 to 50 miles per gallon.

It would seem a motorcycle can help a lot of people get around the problem of spiraling gas prices.

GOOD PSYCHOLOGY

Even little children often have big worries in their relations with their parents. A child may get extremely upset about breaking the news of a "bad" report card, or arriving home with friends at a time when mother wants only "peace and quiet."

To help children with their problems, the Children's Protection Society of West Germany suggests an intriguing resource: a "worry telephone." Children can call without telling their names. A supportive adult is there to listen, make suggestions, offer comfort, or even approach parents if the child asks her to.

FACTS & FIGURES

In a recent poll, about half the people responding thought the profit margins of U.S. industry was 37 percent or higher and that "fair" profit margins would be 20 percent or more. Actually, even major companies only realize about 10 percent.

Over the past decade, the prices on products from one major company, Du Pont, have been rising a lot more slowly than the Consumer Price Index. Consumer prices in 1978 were 88 percent higher than in 1968, but Du Pont's domestic prices were only 37 percent higher.

Continued generation of profits is how business serves the interests of the public. Nearly half of all pretax dollars earned as profits are paid to federal, state and local governments in corporate income taxes.

Earl and Pat Cooper carried a surprise covered dish dinner to his folks, Mr. and Mrs. Corbet Cooper on Sunday.

Richard, Brenda, Dodie and Gina Chambliss of Hawley came Saturday to see the Earl Coopers, then they ate out to celebrate Brenda's birthday.

Many more happy birthdays, Brenda.

Mrs. Marie McCreight and family, the Richard Denny's sister, spent a couple of days with the Denny's. On Saturday, Jewel and Richard spent fishing at Del Rio, with no fish.

Spending Sunday with Margie and Walter Jacob were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Droll, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jacob and Mary Beth, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Zandt and family, and Mrs. Louise Mickalewicz and Brenda Jacob.

Gary Hill and son, Chance, of Eastland, spent several days here with his folks, the Robert Hills.

Mr. and Mrs. Kat Grissom and Mr. and Mrs. John Sims and family attended an outing on the Mr. and Mrs. Jodie Ford farm east near Hamlin, with about 75 attending at his private lake. Children of Kat and Adline's who also attended were Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Grissom and Stacy of Winters, Mr. and Mrs. Von Boyd and family of Abilene, Mr. and Mrs. John Sims and children of Crews, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Grissom and family of Fort Worth, and Mr. and Mrs. William Grissom and family of Hamlin.

All enjoyed barbecue and fish, etc., and swimming. The night was finished with beautiful fireworks.

Mrs. Corra Petrie, Mrs. Hzel Mae and Russell Bragg attended the United Methodist Church in Coleman Sunday and ate out afterwards.

What is H<sub>2</sub>S?

A large number of oilfield workers participated in a seminar sponsored by Pool Well Servicing Company last week dealing with H<sub>2</sub>S or Hydrogen sulphide gas.

About 300 persons from around the county and even Abilene and San Angelo came to learn how to identify the poisonous gas and how to use breathing equipment when it might become necessary to work around the hazardous gas.

There are only a very few wells in this area that produce any of the gas and those are in the northwestern part of Coleman County.

Hints for Homemakers TIPS TO HELP YOU

Save Energy

Just touch the inside of a regular aluminum storm door on a cold day, and you'll feel how much heat is lost through a standard metal door. Valuable heat flows around the metal and through the hollow core.

A new kind of storm door helps block heat flow. A high-density polyurethane barrier separates the inner and outer metal surfaces of the door, while foam insulation fills the core. Heat can't get through as easily, so it stays in your home. And, in the summer, it helps keep heat outside.

A new kind of door keeps heat inside a home in the winter, and outside a home in the summer.

It's a door that's built to last. It has a solid, foam-filled construction, heavy-duty handle and closure, and five self-lubricating hinges. Nonrusting materials are used throughout, and the screen is made of fiberglass.

Not only does such a Thermal Barrier Storm Door, available through JCPenney catalog, save energy, it is also convenient—it features quick-change window clips, an adjustable door closer, and it's pre-drilled and pre-hung for easy installation. A key lock outside and a dead bolt inside make for extra security.

This kind of door can also qualify you for a federal energy income tax credit. It could be your doorway to saving money.

Wait—

colored lights — the approach of the fire trucks.

It's interesting to note that even though fireworks are illegal in the City of Winters many were discharged with safety, but outside of the confines of the city boundaries where the fireworks are not controlled there were a few fires. Now, the propriety of exploding may very well be at issue here but, there seems to be a slight bit of irony — where it is illegal the firecracker was handled safely.

We all know we were very fortunate in that we had only a few fires around here. Just look at Abilene, they had more fires caused by fireworks in a few hours than we had here throughout the entire weekend.

This is not to say that we should entirely ban these forms of celebration from our communities. There needs to be some way to let those who enjoy such activity do so, and those who do not like the noise and lights not have to. Such a solution could be like building a better mousetrap.

In the meantime, while we are waiting on that solution, the use of firecrackers should be more closely supervised and in areas where they are permitted.

The amount of supervision should depend on the age of those participating and with a little "kid" in most all of us, the amount of supervision might not necessarily depend on the age of those using the fireworks. It might also prevent injury or property damage. And those fire fighters (and reporters) would not be called and have to leave the comforting air conditioner to go to a hot fire on a hot holiday.

Council—

providing the materials for paving. The city officials say that by using this method of paving, more streets can be surfaced for less money.

The contract with Jack Davis Sr. for police and fire department dispatching is again up for renewal and will be discussed by the council.

Also on the agenda is the consideration of annexation petitions and the setting of the first public hearing on proposed annexation. The city administrator said that he anticipated tabling the item because some of the necessary documents were not ready for presentation to the council.

Among other items to be considered by the council is consideration of change order number 3 for the Winters-Elm Creek Reservoir which includes some paperwork changes, and additional work on the raw water storage pond, maintenance. Brown said that final acceptance and final payment of $12,000 on the project will probably be made in the July 18 meeting of the council.

The council will be asked to consider making an application to the state for funds for the flouridation of city water. The state money, if granted, would help pay for equipment, training of personnel, and the chemical for the first year of the program.

The council will also be asked to consider giving support to the Texas Municipal League in regard to cable television deregulation. The city administrator said that, according to the TML, there is a bill pending before the U.S. Congress that would completely deregulate cable television within five years. Brown said this could adversely affect cities with cable television, and that the TML would be opposed to such deregulation.

Public Utility Commission of Texas

Consumer Update

Texas telephone customers soon will experience major changes in the way their telephone services are provided, and how much they must pay for these services.

New regulatory philosophies and technological advances have created a more competitive environment in the telecommunications industry, with numerous companies emerging to offer alternatives to traditional services, especially long distance services.

Most of the changes stem from new rulings by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) and the antitrust agreement between the U.S. Justice Department and American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (AT&T).

Some of the changes we expect have not been finalized yet. But because these changes ultimately will affect every telephone utility ratepayer in Texas, the Public Utility Commission began an investigation and review of the FCC rulings and the antitrust agreement in May 1983.

For nearly 50 years, the offering of basic telephone service at an affordable price to everyone who wanted it (known as universal service) has been a national goal. The current high level of universal service in Texas and the United States is due largely to a traditional pricing approach where part of the cost of accessing basic telephone service is paid by long distance users.

Today AT&T operating companies (including Southwestern Bell), AT&T's Long Lines Division, and independent phone companies provide local and long distance services in a single network.

Through this structure, some costs of providing local phone services are covered by the sharing of long distance revenues.

Local phone companies operate facilities enabling their customers to call across town or across the country. Local or in-state calls are handled by the local phone companies. Out-of-state calls are handled by the AT&T Long Lines Division and local companies, with these costs shared by the local and long distance companies.

Money collected for long distance is used to support basic service. The money is collected through an internal process known as the Bell System's "Division of Revenues." The internal revenues transfer was developed at a time when AT&T operated as a monopoly and provided most local and long distance services.

One result of the antitrust agreement between AT&T and the Justice Department is that Southwestern Bell and other local operating companies will lose the long distance revenues from the "Division of Revenues" arrangement.

Fore...

In spite of very hot temperatures there was a good turnout for the holiday tournament at the Winters Country Club.

To add to the discomfort of hot temperatures, the wind did not help some of the golfers but when it was finished some good scores were turned in.

Southwestern Bell will not be permitted to offer long distance type service statewide as it does now. They will compensate for this revenue loss at least in part by charging to connect long distance carriers to the local telephone network. Billing for this process will be known as an access charge.

Southwestern Bell is expected to use changes brought on by FCC rulings and the coming divestiture of AT&T as partial justification for a record rate increase it will seek from the PUC. In reviewing this and other requests, the Commission will work to protect the interests of the ratepaying public, and to explain any changes to the public as they occur.

We'll take a closer look at access charges in our next report.

Consumer Update is prepared and distributed by the Public Information Office of the Texas Public Utility Commission. Our address is 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757.
