Final payment made on new Winters City Lake

The Winters City Council authorized the final payment to the contractor for the construction of the Winters-Elm Creek Reservoir in their regular meeting Monday. The action marks the official end to the project which began just over two years ago.

Winters Mayor W. Lee Colburn signed a check in the amount of $230,000 to complete the project. That amount represents what City Administrator Glenn Brown called "retainage" to insure compliance on the project. The contractor on the project was Strain and Sons of Tye.

Following the action, the newly completed lake, park, pipeline, and all officially became property of the City of Winters.

In other action, the council gave approval to a zoning change on North Trinity Street as requested by Joe Kozelsky Sr. The change was from residential to commercial. Kozelsky told the council that he wanted to construct a 50 X 100 foot building to house his cabinet making business at that location.

Public hearings were set for Monday, August 1, on several annexation petitions. The petitions were submitted by Skip Sheppard for a new subdivision to be located east of the Penny Addition. The new housing area will be known as ShayLynn Dale with the main street in the subdivision to be named Hunter's Glenn.

A second petition for annexation was presented by Randall and Jean Boles who have purchased property in the new subdivision and are requesting that their property become part of the City of Winters.

Two other petitions for annexation were presented to the council including one from Mike McDonald, who is constructing a home just beyond the south end of Arlington Street. The other petition was from Sam Smith who owns property in the Reeves Addition. Smith's property is located behind the Shamrock Station on U.S. 83 south.

Persons interested in the proposed annexations to the city are invited to make their comments (See Winters page 8)

New streetlights approved

Ballinger Council to apply for funding for city park

The Ballinger City Council, in their routine Monday meeting gave approval to a plan that will reduce the cost of lighting the city's streets and at the same time provide more light in both the residential and business areas.

City Administrator Dennis Jones said that due to the new contract with West Texas Utilities, the cost of lighting the streets has increased considerably—costing about $3,000 per month.

The council approved allowing the electric utility to replace about 188 lights that are about 100 years old with new high-pressure sodium lights in residential areas. Jones said the replacement will be done at no cost to the city because of the age of the existing lights, and he said the new type lights will produce more light.

Also to be updated are about 76 lights in business areas that produce about twice the amount of light of the residential lights. The Ballinger official said that the cost of the brighter lights will be about

Public hearing set for use of federal funds

The Winters City Council will be seeking input from local citizens concerning the use of Community Development Block Grant Funds for 1983 when it holds a public hearing on Monday, August 1.

City Administrator Glenn Brown said that the area designated as a target area for the funds is in the northwest part of the city. Brown said that application was made for the funding last year but the grant was not received. He said, however, that it is in the best interest of the City of Winters to apply for the funds each year, and that there is no chance of receiving the funds if it is not applied for.

Residents are asked to present suggestions to the council for improvements in the targeted area that could be funded with the federal funds.

The public hearing is set for 6:00 p.m. Monday, August 1, in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

$2,700 and the cost will be recovered over a 6 to 7-month period.

The Ballinger Council also approved the application for funding to give the present City Park a face-lift. The application is for a 50/50 sharing of a $110,000 program that would provide new parking areas, cable fences to keep cars off the grass, the construction of hike and bike trails, landscaping, new picnic facilities, and general painting and fix-up in the park.

City Administrator Jones told the council that while the potential funding from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department would shared equally with the city, Ballinger's share could involve some "in-kind" payment.

Seven persons were nominated for membership on a newly created Airport Advisory Board. Jones said that those nominated had not been contacted to determine if they would serve on the board. The advisory board, made up of Ballinger residents who do not have financial interests in the airport, would serve in an advisory capacity to the city council.

The council named Mayor pro-tem Cecil Darby Jr. to serve as a member of the West Central Texas Council of Governments Advisory Committee to review and rank Community Development Block Grant applications at the regional level. Darby had volunteered to serve in the capacity.

Retail sales increase county wide

State Comptroller Bob Bullock sent checks last week totaling $35.1 million to 974 Texas cities that levy the one-percent city sales tax.

"Our payments to cities so far this year are still running about one percent behind last year," Bullock said in sending the July checks to the cities. "Texas was slow to enter the national recession and we are still lagging behind in the recovery. Most major Texas cities are beginning to show higher tax receipts than last year, but the border and oil and gas producing areas are still substantially behind."

The total amount rebated to cities in Runnels County is $14,392.33, an increase of 2.75 percent over the same period last year. Ballinger showed an increase of 4.37 percent and received a check in the amount of $6,367.06. Winters' check totaled $8,025.27 which is a decrease of .66 percent from the same period last year.

Houston received the largest check—$6.8 million—bringing the year's total to $75.8 million, down 9 percent from 1982.

The July checks were for taxes collected on sales made in May and reported to the Comptroller by the end of June.

Hot job

Winters firemen were called last Thursday to a drilling rig about five miles west of Winters. Workers said that apparently the rig hit a gas pocket and a fire erupted.

The blaze was extinguished by firemen short order, but not before heavy damage was done on the drilling floor. No dollar estimates were made on the damage and there were no injuries in the fire.

Winters man found innocent in retrial for manslaughter

In a dramatic turnaround, a state district court jury in Abilene acquitted Wendell Clayton Conway, 27, of Winters, of voluntary manslaughter charges last Thursday.

A jury in the same 42nd District Courtroom had convicted him of that charge and given him a 12½-year prison sentence in 1981, but the Texas Court of Appeals reversed the conviction and ordered a new trial for Conway.

In both trials, Conway contended that he shot Daniel Michael Ochoa, 23, in self-defense because the man had threatened to kill him (Conway) by use of Karate. Conway repeatedly said that Ochoa was barging into his house barefooted.

Assistant Criminal District Attorney Randy Dale argued that Conway had been aware of an affair between his wife and the dead man and that his wife's infidelity fueled the jealous rage that led to the shooting.

Conway admitted dragging Ochoa's body back inside his house, claiming he was trying to give him medical attention.

The Winters man could not be retried for murder because the earlier jury acquitted him of that more serious charge when it found him guilty of voluntary manslaughter.

The jury was instructed by Judge Don Lane to acquit Conway if the jurors believed he fired in self-defense, or if they were convinced he believed the use of deadly force was his only recourse to protect his property from burglary, robbery or criminal mischief.

The six-man, six-woman jury took only two hours to return with the acquittal.

Rep. Parker sets Runnels visits

State Representative Jim Parker has scheduled two stops in Runnels County next week. The first stop will be at the Winters Area Chamber of Commerce office at 10:00 a.m. Tuesday, July 26. The second stop will be Tuesday afternoon in the Ballinger Chamber of Commerce office at 2:00 p.m.

Parker said that he has scheduled visits in all cities in his district in order to visit with persons who have questions or concerns about the state government and the legislature.

All residents of Runnels County are invited to visit with Representative Parker when he makes his visits to the county.

Local option election set for August 4

The Runnels County Commissioners Court accepted a petition last Wednesday calling for a local option liquor election in Justice Precinct 1 of Runnels County.

The petition was presented to the commissioners during their regular meeting Tuesday of last week, but the acceptance of the petition and the calling of an election was delayed until the next day after Stephenville attorney Gary Lewellen questioned the validity and legality of the document.

The commissioners voted unanimously to call the election for August 4, after County Attorney Ken Granzin told the commissioners that he felt the petition was in accordance with the provisions of the law.

Lewellen, who said he represented an unnamed group of citizens opposed to the petition, which would give voters an opportunity to vote either for or against the legal sales of all alcoholic beverages for off-premises consumption, told the commissioners that if the petition were accepted and the election date set there was the possibility of a lawsuit against the county.

In the Wednesday session, attorney E.B. Underwood of Ballinger, told the county that the possibility of a suit also existed if the commissioners did not call the local option election as requested by the petition.

The commissioners court is required, by law, to call the election not less than 20, nor more than 30 days from the date of the presentation of the certified petition. The date for the election was set for August 4.

Best Ball Tournament scheduled

The Winters Country Club will be having a Best Ball Tournament on Thursday, July 21. Tee-off time will be 6 p.m., and a covered dish meal will be served following play.

Dust to dust

A construction crane began work last week demolishing the education building and fellowship hall at the First United Methodist Church in Winters to make room for a new one building.

The old building was constructed in the mid-1920's and was all that remained of the old building. A new sanctuary was constructed several years ago on the site after the old one was torn down.

(Included in Captain John M. Elkins book, Indian Fighting on the Texas Frontier, is a story written by his wife, Emma Johnson Elkins, who came to West Texas with her parents when she was four years of age. She lived at Fort Phantom and was on her way to Fort Chadbourne when her parents learned that Major Stemm, paymaster, had been killed by the Indians, and they began their harassment of the settlers.)

Old Fort Phantom Hill and its Tragedies

By Mrs. Emma John Elkins (written in 1908)

The ruins of the old frontier forts have given rise to many speculations and arguments as to their history and foundation, and statements have been made, interspersed with poetry and romance, from which erroneous conclusions have been drawn. Few are now living who could give accurate account of these forts and these few in the course of a few more years will have passed away.

I was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, January 23, 1848, and came with my parents to Texas when four years of age, and my earliest recollections are of Fort Phantom Hill. I came there with my parents in 1852, and remained until the abandonment of the post in 1854. My father was ordnance sergeant, having charge of the artillery and ammunitions. I was very young, but remember quite distinctly particulars pertaining to the establishment of the fort, and hearing my parents talk of it, also helped to keep it fresh in my memory. Therefore I feel competent to give here a brief sketch of the fort. I have read different statements as to how it came by its singular name, all of which were erroneous. Different names were suggested but all disappeared when it was finally settled upon around a campfire.

On a bright moonlight night a group of officers, and party of men were encamped a short distance from the new post when one of the party seeing a tall white figure on the hill (probably an Indian with a white blanket around him) exclaimed: "A ghost!" Another said: "A phantom on the hill!"

"This," said one of the officers, "suggests a name; we will call the fort Phantom Hill." This name was unanimously adopted.

This fort was built on the west side of the Clear Fork of the Brazos River. The first commander was Colonel Abercrombie, but only for a short time. Inheriting a large estate and peerage in England, he resigned and went to that country. Colonel Waite assumed and held command until the fort was abandoned. It has been alleged and many believe the statement that at one time Colonel Robert E. Lee commanded that post, some even to this day insisting that he did. Colonel Lee never commanded at that fort; of this I am quite certain.

The northern Comanches being hostile toward the whites, made threats that no white person should settle west of Red River, threatening to sweep before them all attempting to do so. Seven companies of soldiers, five of infantry and two of cavalry, were stationed at the fort.

Preparations at once began for the reception of the Indians in case an attempt was made for the execution of their threats. A trench eight feet wide was cut around the garrison; the artillery was placed on a parapet in the center, ready to sweep the environments.

A few days after the completion of preparations, "To Arms!" was sounded early one morning. The soldiers were soon out in battle array. The whole tribe of Northern Comanches were coming in sight, the head chief, Buffalo Hump, in the lead, followed by his subordinates; then came the warriors, squaws and papooses, 2,500 in all. Seeing the preparations for their reception, it was too much for the noble red man and they passed on with scowls and angry looks going in a westerly direction.

In a short time they began coming in, in small squads, with "howdy-do's," handshaking, and friendly demonstrations, begging for everything they could see and stealing everything they could lay hands on when not being watched, and murdering anyone they caught out. It was about this time they waylaid and killed Lieutenant Harrison at Hanging Rock Spring. He was traveling with an escort and when nearing the spring he left the party, riding ahead, and was supposed to have been drinking from the spring when killed. The party found him dead and scalped on their arrival at the spring. Lt. Harrison had been commissioned but a short time and the sadness of this tragedy was rendered doubly sad from the fact that he was the only son, also the only child of the widowed mother.

When the gold fever was at its height many immigrants passed through that country on their way to California, many of whom never reached their destination. Of these was one Mr. Wilson and his three sons, the oldest son accompanied by his wife, and the other two small boys, aged 12 and 14 years. All went well until some distance had been traveled and while in camp they were attacked by Indians. The two elder Wilsons were killed and scalped; the young wife and two boys carried off, together with the teams and such supplies as the Indians could use or take with them.

After the murder of her husband and father, the Indians separated, going in different directions, one band taking the two boys, the other taking the young woman and going in the direction of New Mexico. The horrible treatment of this child-widow, for she was but 15 years old, is perhaps without parallel in the history of Indian depredations. After stripping the shoes from her feet she was beaten with whips and thongs, goaded with spears, driven over rocky hills and prairies, through cactus-covered plains, until her feet were bruised, blistered, torn and bleeding and full of thorns, and when no more could be endured, to seek fainting to the ground. Leaving her apparently dead, the savages would go on a short distance and camp. An Indian would go back and finding her able to walk, would drive her into camp. This was kept up for some time, but at last, becoming careless, they left her to come up with them. In her terrible extremity she knew no other course to pursue. At last feeling that she could no longer endure her suffering, and giving up all hope of relief, she decided to escape, preferring death to longer captivity.

One evening when the Indians had gone on as usual, leaving her almost exhausted, she dragged herself to a tree and secreting herself in the foliage, she resigned herself to her fate, as she now looked to death as her only source of relief. She had been hidden but a short time when she saw a party of Mexicans passing. She hailed them and one of them, riding under the tree, assisted her to a seat on his horse. She was taken to the little town of Ysleta where she was placed, more dead than alive, in the arms of the Mexican women. After the birth of her dead infant a long illness followed, and for many weeks she hovered near death, but was nursed back to health by the Mexican women and returned to her friends.

The two boys were purchased from the Indians a few months later. One of them was, for a while, at Fort Phantom Hill and was frequently at my father's house.

All this time Indians were coming in and camping around the Fort. Comanches, Kiowas, Kickapoos and other tribes, and they became a nuisance; crowding in to houses and prowling around until the commander had to send a squad of men to drive them out of the garrison.

It was during this period that two soldiers disappeared from the Fort. They said they were going out for a hunt but never returned, and were reported as deserters. Later, a party of men found where a large fire had been made a few miles from the Fort. In the ashes were charred human bones, some buckles and brass buttons. It was believed that the men had been captured by the Indians and burned at the stake.

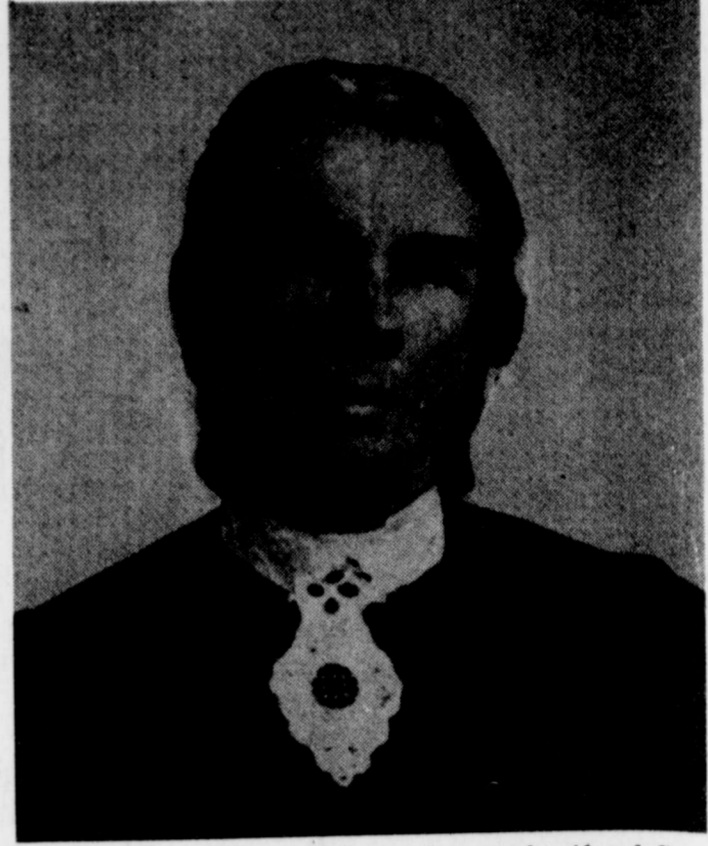

Freighters hauling Government supplies to the frontier forts were often attacked by Indians, murdered, and their teams carried off. In the summer of 1853, a Tonkaway Indian found a Mexican the Indians had left for dead, having shot him several times and scalped him; not a particle of his scalp was left. He was brought to the Fort hospital, recovered in a short time and resumed his work of freighting, but died a year later, owing to a cold settling in his wounds.

On the west bank of the Clear Fork was the camping ground of the Delaware and Caddo Indians.

Those Indians, for honest, cleanliness, and intelligence, were far superior to any other tribes in Texas, owning their own property and having no desire to get possession of that of others. Jim Shaw, the Chief of the Delawares, was a man of more than ordinary intelligence for an Indian, and tried to emulate the white man in dress and manners, taking great pride in the personal appearance of his family. Jim Logan was also an intelligent man and kept his tribe under control, but after his death, many of them went on the warpath.

It was a source of great amusement to the people of the fort to go to the Delaware camp and witness their games and councils. A small fire was built, around which the chief and braves took a seat on the ground in a circle. A tomahawk pipe, filled with tobacco, was brought to the Chief by his squaw. Closing his eyes, and with a solemn look on his face, he would take one draw from the pipe, then hand it to the next. When the pipe had gone around the circle, they were ready for business. Programs for the next hunting expedition was arranged. Their principle, and what seemed to be their favorite games, was played with a moccasin and a leaden ball. As usual, taking their seats around a small fire, the moccasin was brought by a squaw and placed in the hand of the chief, who, putting his right hand in the moccasin, waved it in front of him three times, uttering some kind of incantation. This was continued until the circuit was made, then one brave would leap up with an unearthly yell and dart into the woods, keeping up a pandemonium of noises. The white people were always welcome in witnessing these plays and councils.

When Fort Phantom Hill was abandoned, my father was ordered to Fort Chadbourne, as it was his place to be stationed at headquarters. We were enroute to that place when Major Stemm, the paymaster, was murdered by Kickapoo Indians. When within 12 miles of our destination, and encamped in a gorge of the mountains which forms the chain in which Mountain Pass is situated, and just as the sun was setting, a rider appearing coming toward our camp, who proved to be Jim Shaw, the Delaware Chief, who brought us the tidings of the killing of Major Stemm. On information of the murder reaching Phantom Hill, the old chief mounted his horse, and started out alone in pursuit of us to warn us of danger. The chief remained at our camp that night, never closing his eyes to sleep, but sat up keeping watch. The next morning he bade us a kindly adieu and returned to his people.

Fort Phantom Hill was abandoned in February, 1853, the troops being ordered to the Rio Grande. The night following the departure of the troops every house was burned to the ground. I have been told by persons traveling through the country that the old chimneys are still standing and evidence still exists of the trench around the garrison, and the springs walled up with steps leading down to the water is still in a good state of preservation. Fort Phantom is situated in what is now Jones County, and one of the most fertile counties in the western part of the State.

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Project Help Centers

Whenever a home improvement project is planned, visit your hardware or home center where "how-to" booklet racks will likely have detailed guides and material lists. Typical subjects are home wiring, insulation, storage and furniture finishing. While there, browse a little for what's new—here are some to see.

Kitchen and bath washerless faucets with poly-tubing for easy connections.

Accessories for rain gutter systems called "Leafgo" and "Leaf Master" prevent accumulation of gutter and downspout-clogging debris.

Weatherizing gaskets for electrical wall switches and receptacles to seal out air and dust.

Lufkin 20' and 30' tapes with "write-on-wipe-off" blade finish so you won't forget the measurement.

For hand tool storage, "Peg Rail" with handy hooks provides the convenience of pegboard without its cutting and installing problems.

Air-stop adjustable height door thresholds offer another tool for saving energy, and install easily with a screwdriver.

Most topaz is white or blue. The famed golden variety is actually very rare.

POKIN' FUN
 By Doc Blakely

Being a writer has its drawbacks like any occupation. And a writer of humor is especially under pressure because people always expect you to be funny. If someone asks, "What is your profession?" and you answer, "I'm a writer," there is no comedy there. It's closer to tragedy... or poverty.

"What do you write?" is the next question.

"Words, mostly," I reply.

I've found that others have a sense of humor about their livelihood, too. A lady once told me she was a wild animal trainer. She taught in grammar school.

A former zoo attendant said he was fired for feeding the monkeys. He was feeding them to the lions.

This kid was employed by an explosives manufacturer. "Pretty dangerous work," I remarked, "are you still there?" He said, "Yes, but it isn't."

Every person would do well to develop a few choice lines about their own profession just to keep the conversation interesting. "I used to work in a factory but I lost my job because of professional jealousy," said a middleclass American, "I stood around with my hands in my pockets and too many of the guys mistook me for my supervisor."

Well, I believe that everyone in America should do some useful job, have to work hard for a living. If you believe that, write your congressman... should make him sweat... he may never have done that before.

If you work hard and use your head too, then things might really work out well. In visiting with an attractive woman at a reception one night, I remarked that she looked mighty young to be wearing such expensive clothes and jewelry. I said, "I'll bet you worked hard to be successful."

"Yes," she admitted, "I was formerly a practical nurse."

"Really," I joked, "How practical were you?"

"I married a rich patient," she whispered.

A lot of Americans think hypertension has easily identifiable symptoms. The fact is, however, hypertension (also called high blood pressure), usually has no symptoms and can go unrecognized for years before congestive heart disease, kidney failure, or stroke is the result. Because of this many people are unaware they have the disease. According to the American Heart Association, only 18 million of the 35 million Americans who have definite high blood pressure know it. This is a major reason regular check-ups are so important.

Doctors now have several new drugs to control high blood pressure. One in particular makes it easier for many people to remember to take their high blood pressure medication. Called Tenormin, it's from Stuart Pharmaceuticals and it can provide 24-hour blood pressure control with a single tablet daily, simplifying prescribing and enhancing compliance. One tablet per day reduces blood pressure smoothly and predictably with no tolerance reported even after long-term use.

West Texas Business

By Jerry Lackey

Although a number of economic indicators seem to be heralding a gradual business recovery across the nation, here in West Texas we are hoping the recession is bottoming out.

Our region has experienced heavy layoffs in recent months. In Sonora, for example, Halliburton Services laid off about 10 percent of its Sonora staff due to the sagging oil economy. Delta Drilling Co. of Tyler laid off eight employees at its Midland office.

Other West Texas cities are seeing layoffs as well. In Big Spring, Oilfield Industrial Lines laid off 86 employees in what company officials described as a manufacturing plan revision.

Texas Instruments let over 700 employees go in Abilene and Lubbock recently. An over supply of home computers on the market was the reason given.

The jobless rate in Odessa rose from 9.4 percent in April to 9.7 percent in May, an all time high for that city. A year ago in May the rate was 4.9 percent. In Midland, unemployment increased from 5.6 percent to 5.7 percent in May, according to preliminary figures released by the Texas Employment Commission. A year ago in May, Midland's figure stood at 4.8 percent.

The Abilene unemployment rate made a gradual drop to 5.0 percent in May from 5.2 percent recorded in both May 1982 and April 1983. San Angelo's unemployment figure remained the same in May as it was in April, standing at 5.1 percent, placing it fifth lowest in the state.

Keep in mind, our figures are based on May and does not take into account the summer student employment, either part-time or full-time.

Generally, West Texas main economic indicators are determined by agri-business. And those climates are judged by the condition of the land — if it has rained or not. Central Texas is in good shape despite hot July days. But west from Big Lake and Rankin, a drought is in progress unmatched by any dry spell since the seven years of the 1950's.

Tommy Owens, who ranches in Reagan and Upton counties, has made national TV telling the drought story of some 27 West Texas counties.

"The area is so dry that if a grasshopper had to cross the county, he'd better pack a sack lunch," adds Kent Powell of Rankin.

Agriculture continues to be an industry suffering not only regionally but nationally. Weak commodity prices, flagging exports of farm products and still-burdensome interest rates are expected to continue to afflict West Texas and U.S. farmers.

Hardest hit in the supply industry is the farm equipment makers, which entered 1983 operating at about 35 percent of capacity. Tractor sales plunged 25 percent last year, while combines fell about 43 percent.

Economic diversity has kept such cities as San Angelo from suffering serious recession woes. Other cities and towns in the 60 county area spans the coverage territory our magazine covers are not so lucky.

Relatively "new" farmer now serving as YF president in Area IV

Dale Duggan, Area IV Young Farmers President, who began farming in 1979, admits that he knew little about the task when he began, but with the help of God, his in-laws, his wife, and the Winters Young Farmers, he is well on the way to becoming a successful farmer and businessman.

Duggan, who is a member of the Winters Young Farmers, served as chapter president in 1981-82.

He attended the 1981 National Educational Institute in Hershey, Pennsylvania, and also attended the 1982 National Educational Institute in San Antonio. He has been placed on the Board of Directors with the Runnels County Farm Bureau, and has been a Young Farmer member since February 1980.

A 1972 graduate of La Vega High School in Bellmead, he attended Ryder Technical Institute in Dallas, where he received a degree in Automotive and Diesel Technology. He worked for Ryder Truck Rental as a mechanic from 1973-77. In 1977, he became a Service Manager for Ryder in Ennis, where he worked until October, 1979.

After leaving the company, Dale moved with his family to his father-in-law's ranch, where he began working. In June of 1980, Duggan began leasing all the farm land and equipment. He is currently farming 1200 acres of wheat, oats, and milo. In conjunction with the farming, he also takes care of 1000 acres of his father-in-law's ranch land for the 100 mother cow and calf operation and 150 ewes.

Dale and his wife, Linda, have two children, Will and Katy.

Monroe Turner died July 14 in Abilene

CAPITOL UPDATE

by Jim Parker

Since the Select Committee on Public Education has begun their meetings, it might be best to postpone further discussion on different aspects of our educational system until the committee is ready to make recommendations. According to Ross Perot, chairman of the committee, meetings are going to be scheduled throughout the state and are planned through October. It is very apparent to me that a special session cannot be called until after that time.

Let me make you aware of some facts which were astounding to me and which were presented to the members of the Select Committee at their first meeting this week.

Fact No. 1: Russia is Number One in math and science education with Japan (whose entire educational system was revamped along the lines of the U.S. system after World War II) not far behind.

Fact No. 2: The U.S. is now ranked 15th.

Fact No. 3: Following 9th grade, most Japanese students have the same education as 90% of our high school seniors.

Fact No. 4: In the U.S. there is a 10% illiteracy rate among 17 year olds, and 40% among minority 17 year olds.

Fact No. 5: Paul Coperman was quoted in A Nation At Risk as saying: "For the first time in the history of this country the educational skills of this generation will not surpass, will not even approach, those of their parents."

I wonder if these facts are as surprising to you as they were to me. I do not envy the committee the monumental task before them.

Before closing for this week, let me tell you of some plans I have in the district. Prior to my election I heard many of you complain about having candidates visit your towns but never "darken your door" after election. I promised you that would not happen, and, therefore, have made plans to visit different areas in my district in order that each of you will have the opportunity to personally ask questions, express opinions, or voice concerns regarding any matters of interest to you. We would also be happy to try to help you with any problems you may have with any state or federal agencies. Tuesday, July 26th, is the date for my first scheduled visit. I plan to be at the Winters Chamber of Commerce office at 10:00 a.m. and the Ballinger Chamber of Commerce office at 2:00 p.m. to see those of you in that area. I hope you folks will come to share your views and opinions with me in order that I might be able to represent you effectively. See you there.

Ballinger—

Council heard two bids for the construction of a metal lounge for the airport. The building would provide shelter from the weather for persons at the airport.

The low bid was submitted by the Janson Construction Company of Rowena in the amount of $8,544. One other bid was heard, that from Lynn Homes of Ballinger in the amount of $9,690.

The council members voted to reject all bids for a crawler-type front-end loader tractor after the city administrator said that it felt it would be better for the city to consider the purchase of a larger dozer-type tractor, that the loader would just not be large enough to handle the work. The council agreed to advertise for bids on a dozer at a later date.

Dennis Jones, in his report to the council, said that the plans and specifications for the new city hall, to be built in the old Sante Fe Depot, should be ready for review by the council within two to three weeks. Following the approval of the plans the city would be ready to accept bids for the renovation of the historic building.

Before ending the meeting the council met in executive session for about 30 minutes to discuss the acquisition of property for the new Ballinger lake, which is now under construction.

Winters—

during the public hearings on August 1.

The Council deferred action on the Flouridation project for the city's water system and set a special meeting next Monday to discuss the plan.

The action was taken after it was learned that Dr. Richard Everett, who represents the State Health Department, would be unable to attend this week's meeting.

The council also tabled any action on the city's 1983 paving program until next Monday after about an hour's discussion on the program.

In other business the council gave routine approval to a corporate change in the ownership of company that operates the television cable franchise in Winters.

Routine items of business then closed out the regular meeting of the Winters City Council.

Retiring

Lillie Winchester, of Ballinger, has worked for Dry Manufacturing division in the Finish Department for 11 years and five months. She chose to take an early retirement, effective August 1.

Mrs. Winchester was honored with refreshments last week at the plant. Hal Dry was on hand for the reception to offer special thanks to Lillie for her years of dedication.

Welcome

Members of the Winters Area Chamber of Commerce were on hand for the re-opening of Flowers Etc. Friday.

The floral and gift store is now operated by Mary Ellen Moore who was congratulated by chamber president Dottie Loudermilk who presented the new business with a two-month membership in the chamber of commerce.

Frozen Macadamia Mousse Sumptuous Summer Sweet

Can you believe that the elegant looking dessert above is an absolute cinch to make? Basically all you need is a couple of egg whites, confectioners sugar, some flavoring and heavy cream. What gives the mousse its pizzaz, however, is adding a half-cup of sumptuous macadamia nuts from Hawaii. Their taste and texture give the mousse a special magic.

EASY FROZEN MACADAMIA MOUSSE

- 2 egg whites
- 1/2 cup confectioners sugar, divided
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 1 teaspoon rum flavoring
- 3/4 cup chopped macadamia nuts, divided

Beat egg whites with 1/4 cup of the sugar until stiff; set aside. DRYERS

Although the primary purpose of a clothes dryer is to dry clothes, according to home economists from Whirlpool Corporation, it can help you do some other things, too. You can remove creases from rumpled (but not soiled) garments by simply letting the dryer do the pressing.

The home economists advise that the following technique works great for woollens, velvet or corduroy:

- Spray the garment lightly with water, or put a damp, lint-free towel into the dryer along with the clothing.
- Set the dryer control for about 20 minutes.
- Select temperature setting according to the type of fabric.
- Remove items and place immediately on hangers. You can also use your dryer to "Air" draperies and bedding.
- The "Air" setting provides room temperature air to fluff bedding, pillows, rugs and to dust draperies and clothing. Use this setting also to dry items such as plastics, foam or sponge rubber that cannot withstand heat.

Crime Of The Month

Sometime during the night of July 9, 1982, three or more persons burglarized The Muller Automotive Parts Store located at 208 S. 8th St. in Ballinger, Tx. The persons tried to pry open the metal door on the South side of the building and failed. The persons then went to the rear of the building and entered through a wooden door that they forced open. The burglars took approximately $13,000.00 in cash and local checks. The burglars also took a gold Bulova brand accutron watch and a quantity of old coins dated 1854. The cash and checks were in three First National Bank of Ballinger bags that were green in color and one Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Ballinger bag that was brown in color. A wooden cash register that was taken in the burglary was later found on a dirt road off Highway 83, 6 miles north of Winters, Tx. All of the suspects involved in the burglary were wearing tennis shoes and were walking between the business and the 300 block of Sealy Ave. where their vehicle was parked.

Former Air Force members may be offered old jobs

Former Air Force members may be offered their old jobs back, according to Staff Sgt. Vicki Colbert, Air Force recruiter in Arlington.

The specialty skills needed by the Air Force are limited to particular career fields. People with Air Force experience are of great value to the Air Force and could return to their former job, with a choice of locations, based upon the needs of the particular base and manning at that base.

Certain jobs also offer incentive reenlistment bonuses, stated Colbert. Former members would retain their former rank provided they've been out less than three years. If they have been out two years or less they would receive half their time in grade which allows the individual a quicker opportunity for achievement.

All prior Air Force personnel interested should call (817) 261-2946 for further information.
