Lake incidents under investigation

Baird said Tuesday that a weekend incident that occurred at the new Winters Lake is still under investigation and that charges are expected to be filed.

Winters Police officers were called before 11:00 p.m. Saturday evening to the lake after a pickup

Runnels County Sheriff Bill had been reportedly pushed into the lake. Local officers arrived to find a large group of persons around the park and the boat ramp and contacted the sheriff's department for assistance.

Sheriff Baird said that a 1965 Ford pickup registered to Halley Sims of Winters was submerged in about 10-12 feet of water on the boat ramp at the lake. Reports indicated the pickup was driven by Daniel Ortiz of Winters.

Officers said that Ortiz was stopped in the park by several subjects and that a fight started. Ortiz told officers he fled from the subjects on foot and that the subjects then pushed the pickup into the lake.

Two officers from the Winters Police Department were called to the lake along with Sheriff Baird and three deputies, Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission Agent D.J. Goetz, and Texas Highway Patrol Trooper Scott Warren.

Several citations for consuming alcoholic beverages after hours were issued and a number of people were questioned in connection with the disturbance.

Baird said that his department, along with the Winters Police Department were continuing their investigation into the entire incident and that it was anticipated that either charges would be filed or the incident presented to the grand jury.

County warned of bogus checks

Merchants and businesses in Runnels County are asked to be on the alert for counterfeit cashier checks which have turned up in other counties.

The cashier checks are apparently all in the amount of $250 and made payable to Fred D. Smith, Fred D. Sanchez, or Fred D. Morelis.

According to law enforcement officials the phoney checks would be endorsed by either the First National Bank of Sonora, Texas or the Republic National Bank of Houston, Texas.

The Winters Police Department, along with the Ballinger Police Department, and the Runnels County Sheriff's Department are asking businesses to be on the look out for these documents.

If anyone attempts to pass any of these counterfeit cashier checks, please contact the nearest law enforcement agency.

Jury duty to be rescheduled

Jury duty scheduled for August 1 has been called off, according to District Clerk Loretta Michalewicz, and will be rescheduled at a later date. Those called for jury duty will not have to report.

But, will we be able to say such an incident will not happen again?

Members of the Winters City Council, the city administrator, our police officers along with county officials are aware of what happened. It is now up to the city officials to take steps to insure this will not happen again.

What happened reflects on the entire community and not just these apparent misfits who seem to have some kind of problem adapting to the standards of the community. The lake belongs to all of us. It was built to insure a water supply for our community and to provide a recreation area. The money to pay for the lake came from the taxpavers and those of us who use water from the lake. Later there will be user fees charged at the lake. None of the money spent on the project was intended to

Council o.k.'s Fluoridation of Winters water supply

The Winters City Council, meeting in regular session Monday, gave its approval to the proposed fluoridation of the city's water system.

Dr. Richard Everett of the Dental Division of the State Health Department met with the council to explain the program and the possibility of state funds to implement the program.

Dr Everett said that fluoride is most important when children's teeth are forming. He said also that there are some additional benefits to adults. Everett said that the chemical is added to the water systems in most of the major cities across the nation and that it was first used on military installations in the mid-1940's.

City Administrator Glenn Brown told the council that Winters was eligible to receive a grant that would pay the engineering fees for the program along with the cost of the fluoridation equipment and a two-year supply of fluoride. Additionally, Brown said, training would be provided for water department personnel on the operation of the equipment. The equipment required for the fluoridation would be similar to that now being used to chlorinate the city water.

Brown said that the cost to the City of Winters for the fluoride would be about $2,400 per year, once grant funds were no longer available.

The council agreed to seek funds to initiate the fluoridation pro-

In other action, the council accepted the highest bid for a 1980 model Ford automobile that had been used by the police department. A total of seven bids were received for the vehicle ranging from a low of $503 to the successful bid of Winters Body Shop in the amount of $856.

This was the second time the vehicle had been offered for sale by the city. The first time all bids were rejected by the council as being too low.

In other action the council discussed the 1983 paving program which would utilize county-owned paving equipment with materials furnished by the city in a

City receives dividend check from TML insurance

Winters City Adminstrator Glenn Brown said that the City of Winters has received a $5,287 dividend from the Texas Municipal League Workers' Compensation Joint Insurance Fund. The dividend represents the city's share of the Fund's annual excess contribution return which, this year, totaled $3,433,894.

According to Brown, the city is one of only 409 Texas cities to

The Fund is a unique legal arrangement wherin 635 participating members collectively provide workers' compensation insurance protection to their combined 88,000 municipal employees. Hawaii is truly a paradise - a dream come true, as the Magic Travelers learned when they took the tour July 2-14 with Dean and Lois Smith of Ballinger as escorts.

But first we had to get there and we traveled by many means. On the way to the Dallas airport in a brand new streamlined coach, Dean introduced us to the 25 members of the group, but it took me almost until the tour was over to learn all the family connections.

My roommate, Vertis Plott, of San Angelo, helped me by introducing her sister, Sue Malecheck of San Angelo, who was traveling with her young granddaughter, Starla Solomon and cousin Vera Grogan. Starla was a tall 13, and had her own fun swimming and getting a suntan, and Vera was 86, but she kept up with everyone and never once said she was tired. If there had abeen a prize for having the oldest and youngest this group would have won it.

Two sisters of Abilene, Erna Baach and Amanda Russell, were traveling together. Virginia Hill, sister to Lois, was with the Smiths.

The combination that gave me trouble was Edith Hipp of Bronte, her Aunt Vera Jameson of Robert Lee, and niece Mildred Linsley of Dallas, who were roommates. Edith was related to both women, but there were not related to each other. Edith was also the sister of Melvin Tubb of Blackwell, who was traveling with his wife, Inez.

Other couples were Henry and Bea Bauer of Robert Lee, Norman and Dorothy Krug of San Angelo, Melvin and Rudeen Thorn of Blackwell, where Melvin is mayor. Two veteran travelers of Abilene, Edna Musgrave and Lucille Langford, were roommates.

were singles - Elmer Finch of Abilene and Emmett McCrohan of San Angelo, who really had a ball.

We spent the night at Rmada Inn and left for Hawaii the next morning on Western Airlines, co-sponsored by Adventure Travel. There is five hours difference in the time and after turning our watches back several times, I decided we were going to reach our destination before our departure.

Our group was met at the airport by Bob Evans -Charley's Hawaii Tours - and we acquired yet another sponsor. Bob took over, and bossed and petted us by turns from then on. We were bound to be the first chaperoned group on the islands. I called Bob "Charley". There was already more names than we could remember. It is now mandatory in most places that a local guide be employed for travel groups.

After an aloha greeting at the airport, complete with a fresh Plumeria blossom lei and kiss by a young man while someone took our pictures, Bob told us we must stay and identify our baggage for him and he would be responsible for it the rest of the time. We then transferred to the Sheraton-Waikiki Hotel for a five night stay.

The afternoon and evening were free for us to familiarize ourselves with the hotel facilities - all of our rooms had an ocean view with balconies where we could sit and enjoy the scenery. This included rows and rows of bodies stretched out below on the beach in various stages of baking - from tan to dark brown.

The incredible Sheraton-Waikiki was a resort city within itself with 30 shops, two pools and five restaurants, in addition to 1900 rooms and suites on about 30 floors, and beautifully decorated with fresh flowers in the foyer at all times. On each floor there was a central fixture with lighted bulb where the button was pressed to summon an elevator. Two walls were lined with elevators and it was fun to punch the button and make a dash for the first cage that appeared, often to find it already full.

After being unable to find the snack bar(they must have moved it in the night) I started to my room and met Edna. She said, "I'm lost." We decided that the best thing for us was a return to our rooms. We met Lucille heading the other way and asked her where she was going. "To the elevator", she replied. We turned her around and reached the 20th floor without incident. I then started in the wrong direction to my quarters. I was convinced that five days, and maybe five years, wouldn't be enough time to orient me.

Monday was the fourth of July and there was great expectancy as we walked across the street, through the Royal Hawaiian Arcade, to the Beachcomber Hotel for a complimentary breakfast and briefing of the opportunities ahead. After several cups of coffee most of us were in a mellow mood and bought boxes of pineapple to take home with us, also some airports pictures that had magically appeared on the tables, not to mention the optional tours made available.

All arrangements finished, we departed for a Honolulu city bus tour with Bob Evans and the driver entertaining us. But first, some general facts about the island of Oahu, "The Gathering Place", was once the common meeting ground for Hawaii's island kings. Since those ancient times, through tribal wars, arrival of missionaries, the rise and fall of monarchy, the island of Oahu has remained the gathering place, and 80% of the total population is on this island. Its tropical metropolis, Honolulu, is modern with soaring structures, broad thoroughfares, and music for all moods, yet the beauty and languor of Poleynisia suf-

There were more men than usual on the trip and two fuse the city. The Hawaiians make much of their history and culture. The spirit of 'aloha' is everywhere.

We covered the downtown area which included Chinatown, King Kamehameha's Statue, Iolani Palace. and the state capitol. Next year will be the 25th year of Hawaii's statehood. The Iolani Palace is the only throne room under the American flag where Hawaii's last two monarchs lived and ruled. There was no time to stop at the Ala Moana shopping center, largest in Hawaii with 157 stores, 22 cafes, and parking space for 7800 cars, but we made a mental note to return.

A stop was made at the Punchbowl National Cemetery, "Hill of Sacrifice", where 28,000 Korean and Vietnam war veterans of World War 2 are buried. It is open seven days a week, it overlooks the vast expanse of Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, and Waikiki. Bob said that on memorial day a fresh flower lei and a flag were placed on each grave. There are 25 sets of brothers buried behind Ernie Pyle's grave. It is called the Brothers' Row. The Hawaiians revere their dead. We noticed that fresh flowers were on the graves and flags flying for the

From Punchbowl we toured the residential area around Diamond Head. Bob said,"Ours is an outdoor society and even small apartments are expensive." We saw the exclusive Kahala area where land is owned by the state and can only be leased for a home. The Doris Duke estate is here and cost over five million dollars. One can stay at the Kahala hotel for $200 to $2000 per day and shop in the exclusive center that is all air conditioned. Many movie stars stay here. The East-West Center, established by the U.S. Congress in 1960, is a center for cultural and academic inter change between the peoples of Asia, the Pacific, and the United States and is adjacent to the University of Hawaii campus. The university has an enrollment of 34,000 and meets in old time world war buildings. There is no dress code because some are not able to buy the necessary clothing and may come to school barefoot but it is a very fine school and concentrates on educating the in-

Al, the bus driver, was quite an entertainer. He said he was 200% Hawaiian. "My dad is 100% and my mother is 100%. Doesn't that make me 200%?" He told us that it is now the mango season and the avocados were coming in. He saw a man crossing the street with a sock in his hand and said, "He must be borrowing some fruit. Over here we just borrow, we don't steal because we might get in trouble."

There was such a wealth of trees and flowers that one is overwhelmed but we began to remember some of them. There were four kinds of shower trees, the rainbow, yellow, coral and pink, the Royal palms and the Coconut palm. When we asked why the coconut palm had wide bands around the trunks, Al said they were 'wedding bands' but Bob explained they were to keep rats from crawling up and building nests in the top. Coconuts have to be removed from trees on the beaches as they fall and hit visitors on the head.

Diamond Head is an extinct volcano that bounds Waikiki Beach on the south . It got its name when the British sailors thought Olivine crystals found on its slopes were diamonds. The natives continue to call it by its world recognized name.

Al had a good voice and sang our favorite Hawaiian songs such as "Tiny Bubbles", "My Little Grass Shack", "Blue Hawaii", and "Pearly Shells". He also taught us the salute and favorite saying. 'A lift of the right hand with little finger sticking up and the words 'just hang loose.' We were to hear this over and over in the coming days.

Everyone should experience one luau, was the advice given us and we chose Germaine's about 25 miles out on a sandy beach. We were given a conch shell lei and a kiss by the natives who were our hosts for the evening. The first event was the parade of the islands with singing and dancing. Then the Imu ceremony where the pig is taken from the underground oven. The meat is cooked on a bed of hot rocks and stuffed with the same and literally falls to pieces. It was to hot to eat and the pig cooked the night before was the one served, so Bob said. About 1500 people were there for dinner which included a variety of local foods, even a little poi. Three choices of meats included steak teriyaki, chicken, and pork with a variety of salads and vegatables. The sand was deep and my shoes were soon filled. Dorothy Krug's bench toppled over in the loose sand and she got a bump on the head but was soon alright. The gentle trade winds began to blow a gale, but the performers bravely carried on. They know how to get audience participation, and at first had the men on the stage dancing. They asked the women to come up and kiss the performers. Then it was reversed and the men were to come and receive a kiss from each of the girl dancers. Our Emmett bravely did his part. He went up and kissed everyone of the dancers-he admitted it.

Trying to get the sand out of our shoes while swinging around the corners in the bus going home gave us an idea of what is meant by hanging loose and we soon learned this song:

Just hang loose! Just have fun sipping on a drink, lying in the sun. Don't try to fight it, there ain't no use Because, when you are in Hawaii, you just hang loose.

> Summertime At The Beach

The beach is likely to win many family polls for favorite summer spot. Help make it a happier place by practicing rules of safety nd common sense

· Swimming lessons should have top priority. Professional instruction usu ally works best. Never allow children to swim or play in water without adult supervision

· Be wary about overexposure to the sun during the first few weeks at the beach. Keep hats, robes and cotton sweaters handy for covering

• For first degree sunburn (reddened skin), keep out of the sun until the tenderness is gone

· Have children wear sandals to avoid sharp shells, broken glass or bottle tops hidden in the sand.

Button batteries a hazard to children

Progress is not without its hazards - especially to small children.

The so-called "button" batteries, which power everything from electronic wrist watches to hand calculators and toys, are being swallowed accidentially by an increasing number of small children, says Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Each year, between 500 and 800 button batteries are swallowed because of improper handling. In the case of toddlers, sheer fascination with something so small makes it a candidate for a taste test," she adds.

Many batteries make it non-stop through the body's digestive system and little harm results. But those which aren't passed and remain in the body are a threat to health and even life, Shirer says.

Leakage of alkaline electrolytes from a battery can cause chemical burns and internal bleeding, she notes. Young children can become very ill and some deaths have been recorded.

Shirer recommends treating button batteries like you would old medicine when it comes to disposal. Wrap and discard them where they are not likely to be found by little hands.

checks can do much to keep a family together and ease the financial burden following the loss of the breadwinner. The average payment is $377 for an aged widow and $914 for a younger widow with two or more children. Benefits are taxfree and increase automatically to keep pace with the rising cost of living. Those eligible for payments include:

1. Unmarried children - who are under 18 (or under 19 if full-time high school students) or who were severely disabled before age 22 and who continue to be disabled.

2. Widow or widower who is 60 or older (50 if disabled) or is caring for a child under 16 or disabled, who is also entitled to benefits. A surviving divorced spouse is eligible, but the marriage for an individual 60 or older (50 if disabled) must have lasted at least 10 years.

Dependent parent who is 62 or older.

Before benefits are payable, the worker must have earned enough Social Security work credit to be insurd. In the case of payments to children and a surviving mother or father, as little as 11/2 years of credits are needed.

In addition to monthly checks, a one-time lumpsum death payment of $255 is made. It is usually paid to the surviving spouse who either was living with the deceased or is eligible for monthly benefits.

If a worker in your family has died, contact any Social Security office to see if benefits can be paid. Among proofs generally required are

Congressional Comment -By Charles W. Stenholm

The plight of 10-monthold Ashley Bailey of Clyde, Tx., who at this writing is waiting for a liver transplant that will save her life, has drawn state and national attention to the problems faced by the parents of children such as Ashley and to the inability of the current system of organ procurement to keep pace with advancing medical technology. While life-saving transplants - whether of livers or kidneys or hearts - have attracted more public attention, the questions they raise are only the tip of the iceberg as medical technology swiftly moves us into a sea filled with unknowns in the health care field.

Last week in this column, I discussed my own personal decision to assist Ashley's family in making the public aware of her desperate need for a transplant. Even when you know you cannot help every child needing a transplant, you have the responsibility to help that child that you can.

In working with Ashley's case, more questions than answers seemed to arise. Top on the list is a more workable organ procurement system, coupled with a massive public awareness program. Other questions are not limited to transplants alone, but expand into the areas of ethics, resource limitations and public policy, among other things. It would be impossible to give each of these areas the proper attention in just one column, so for the next few weeks several fo the major issues will be examin-

I will consider questions such as: Who will live and who will die? Who decides, and on what grounds? Does society have an ethical obligation to ensure equitable access to health care for all? If so, how is that obligation balanced by individual obligations to take reasonable steps to provide for such care? When are medical decisions better left solely in the hands of the physician? What rights do the patient and the patient's family and friends have to be a part of the decisionmaking process?

What, in fact, is death

and what group - state

or federal lawmakers

are responsible for the final definition? Today, for almost any lifethreatening condition, some intervention is capable of delaying the moment of death. The frequency of dramatic breakthroughs in medical care - insulin, antibiotics, resuscitation, chemotherapy, dialysis, and transplantation, to name but a few - has made it possible to retard and even to reverse many conditions that were until recently regarded as fatal. Matters that were once the province of fate have now become a matter of human choice, a development that has pro-plications. Finally, we cannot ignore the reality of financial resources and the role that limited resources play in medical issues. As one physician asked, "Do we concentrate limited public resources strictly found ethical and legal im-

on the 'greatest good for the greatest number' type of research? Do we spend more on prolonging the life of elderly people or transfer those resources to newborns, infants and small children? Who makes those decisions?" Like you, I begin to feel overwhelmed by this list of questions which at times seem unanswer able, but which technology will not allow to be brushed aside. Medical concerns that at one time were essentially private ones, now have been pushed into the public sphere. Answers and public policy must be achieved, difficult though they may be.

In next week's column, I will look more specific ally at one area of the medical technology dilem-
