Wait a minute...

By Kerry Craig

Voters in the State of Texas will go to the polls next Tuesday, or at least they should go to the polls, to cast their votes in an election that could add a number of amendments to the Texas Constitution.

The saying "if you don't vote, don't gripe" apparently did not hold true the last time we voted on amendments to the Constitution. That was when the majority of those few that voted said yes to a proposal that created the county appraisal districts. We are still paying for that one.

Any number of sources including state congressmen, television, and news papers have tried to explain these amendments. So if you don't know what they are and what they mean, you have been out of touch with the state for the past month or so.

One of these amendments deals with garnishment of wages to enforce the payment of court-ordered child support payments. That is the only thing that could, by order of a court, that could be withheld from a person's wages or salary by his employer.

Such a thing can take a load off the state welfare system, that is one of the main reasons this proposal will be on the ballot next week.

Now those front page feature stories that showed up recently in Abilene overlooked something and so did all the television coverage around here. As a matter of fact so did the legislators in their explanations of this amendment.

The newspaper story, especially focused on fathers and what a bad lot they were for not paying up as ordered by the court. A nationwide television magazine last week had an attorney who was very uncomplimentary about these fathers who were no longer part of a family.

This is where the rub comes in — in none of these discussions is the other viewpoint considered. What about those fathers who are paying the price.

The divorced father has had his children replaced by a monthly payment. The court that ordered such a payment did so to benefit the children, but wait a minute.

It is just a little hard to swallow when child support payments receive such attention. This court order is enforced with the full might of the State of Texas, but how about enforcement of visitation. The divorced parent must, in order to even be with those children in many instances, resort

Blizzard Band tops in UIL

The Winters High School Blizzard Marching Band competed Tuesday, November 1, in the University Interscholastic League Music Region II South Zone Marching Contest. Hosted by the Abilene Independent School District and held in P.E. Shotwell Stadium, The 82-member Blizzard Band was awarded the coveted Division One Rating for its performance. This rating was from a unanimous decision by the three judges: Richard Crain of Houston; J.W. King of Plainview; and Tony Cline of Waco.

Winters Band Director Bailey McNulty stated, "This was truly an exciting day for our band. They obviously did a fine job during the show and have progressed greatly throughout this current football season."

McAnulty also said, "The judges were concerned about some of the areas of the band performance, but were very complimentary of its overall presentation."

Some of the judges' comments in their summaries were: (Richard Crain) "You did many things well today — but I would like to challenge you to be truly great!

You have the ingredients to be superb! Don't be classified with being pretty good — BE THE BEST!" (Tony Cline) "Good show; don't lose control — GOOD. Much pride evident." (J.W. King) "A very good band, well prepared, good presentation. You can further refine your playing and marching and become a great band."

Blizzards win 49 - 20

The Baird Bears put up a good fight last Friday until the fourth quarter when the Blizzards finally took control of the game. Winters led 14-12 at the half and could have very easily been behind by two touchdowns at that point if it were not for two very good defensive efforts that kept Baird out of the end-zone.

The win gives the Winters Blizzards an 8-1 season record and a 6-0 district record while the Baird Bears dropped to 3-5 on the year and 1-5 in district.

Kent Billups had a tremendous offensive night as he carried the ball 22 times for 242 yards and five touchdowns. Ronnie Lujano carried the ball 11 times for 109 yards and one touchdown. Ronnie also kicked three extra points.

Greg Guevara caught a pass from Bill Wheat for a two-point conversion and John Mesey ran a two-point conversion into the end-zone.

Eric Belk scored on a three-yard run for the final touchdown of the Sewer bids opened here

The Winters City Council, in a special called meeting Tuesday afternoon, opened twelve bids for the proposed construction of a complete new wastewater treatment plant.

Project engineer Billy Jacob, of Abilene, said the bids will be first tabulated by his firm and then submitted to the Texas Department of Water Resources for approval.

Jacob said that he hoped that the city could award the bids within the next 45 days and that construction on the project could begin in February of next year.

The project is calling for the construction of a complete new sewer treatment facility for Winters. The plant will be constructed just south of F.M. 53, east of Winters.

The project will be funded jointly by the City of Winters and with money from federal grants. The federal grants are expected to pay over 75 percent of the costs with the remaining approximately $80,000 coming from city funds.

Bid specifications call for completion of the project within 220 working days.

night. The Blizzards had a total of 414 yards of offense on the night and the only disappointing thing about the game was the Blizzard defense.

Crash probe under way

Investigators said Monday their investigation into the crash of a light plane that killed an Odessa pilot has been slowed by the disintegration of the aircraft.

A spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board said that the conditions of the crash site near the southeast Colorado town of Kim were also hampering the investigation.

The body of Richard "Buck" Kruse, 57, of Odessa was found in the wreckage of the Piper aircraft.

An extensive air search began after Kruse did not arrive in Odessa from an October 8 flight from Buffalo, Wyoming. Authorities determined that Kruse never made a scheduled fuel stop at Pueblo.

Investigators from the Las Animas County Sheriff's Department located the wreckage after being notified by the U.S. Air Force that a pilot had spotted what appeared to be a fresh crash of a small aircraft.

The wreckage was found about 12 miles southwest of Kim which is just north of the New Mexico state line.

Funeral services for Kruse were held Tuesday in Odessa.

Indian Fighting on the Texas Frontier
 by Captain John M. Elkins

Our Answer To The Severe Raid Of Savagery

Early in the winter of 1860, one of the severest raids of our frontier through Young, Jack and the west part of Parker Counties, was made. The Indians killed the largest part of five families and stripped the country of horses wherever they went. The number of Indians in this raid was so great that a sufficient strength could not be organized to check them.

John Brown, a ranchman, was making a desperate ride for his home to elude a part of this band who were pursuing him, when his mare crashed into the protruding limbs of a fallen tree which was fatal to her rider. Mr. Brown was killed and scalped there where the accident occurred.

These same Indians then went on to Mr. Brown's house which was a two-story newly painted, white building. This was the only painted house in all the country—perhaps the first of its kind that the Indians had ever seen. They surrounded the house at a respectable distance, kneeling and bowing in performing many antics. The fourteen year old daughter of the man that had just been scalped was the only person in the house. She ran up the stairway to the upper story—put on a man's hat, shouldered a gun and began walking to and fro across the floor so that the Indians could see her through the open window.

The Indians saw the girl as she paraded there in the building. She had not misled them; they knew that it was merely a girl.

The Indians finally hollared: "Bully for little squaw—Bully for little squaw" then turned around, leaving without having done her any harm.

During this raid Mrs. Sherman was wounded then scalped alive. Not satisfied with this cruelty, the Indians picked up a paper of pins which they used on the person of this woman by driving each pin into her back. Mrs. Sherman received personal abuses too horrifying for references. I talked with her just before she died.

There are only a few of the many gruesome murders of this tragical raid which I could tell you of but I will hurry on.

It was at this time that the citizens again decided to follow them into their camps wherever they might be.

Wm. Brown and I, horseback and leading a pack mule, went to Weatherford—a distance of ten miles. There we packed our mule with flour, coffee, ammunition and other articles necessary for our campaign—these supplies were furnished us gratuitously by the merchants of that town. Then headed for Lovings Valley on the border of Parker and Jack Counties, which we were told would be the rendezvous.

On completing our journey to this place we met with about twenty-five men. Then moved our camp to the North of Palo Pinto County; here we were reinforced with about thirty other recruits from Palo Pinto. Among these recruits were some noted Indian fighters: Captain Ross Pollard, his son Tom Pollard, Captain Jack Currington, Lum Slaughter—in fact all were very experienced in Indian warfare.

Then we moved our camp into Young County, near Fort Belknap. There we were again reinforced until there were ninety-six of us in number which made it necessary that we now elect officers and regularly organize. Jack Currington was elected Captain and Ross Pollard first Lieutenant—two of as brave and cautious men, to our knowledge, as there was in the State of Texas.

Not nearly as many men volunteered for the service as there had been to volunteer always before, because of the many failures of expeditions in the past and the present rainy disagreeable weather.

Some might wonder if these ninety-six men would have actually followed an Indian trail that would lead them into a thousand or fifteen hundred warriors. I can answer that very emphatically now "yes, they would have followed any number where there was the slightest chance." The majority of these men had lost some of their families or a friend, who was killed or carried away. Or they had just looked upon the mangled corpse, the scalped and bloody forms of whole families the victims of the ones they hoped to meet. Yes, these ninety-six men, if they could get no other to go, would have gone fearlessly into the midst of the many.

In our need for more, it was proposed by some of the party that we invite young Captain Sul Ross to accompany us on our expedition which proposal was resented by a great number of our company. They believing that Captain Ross was a sympathizer of the Indians because his father had served as their agent for a number of years. But a letter was written and signed by Captain Currington and Lieutenant Pollard, asking him to join us.

Young Captain Ross, who was not stationed at Camp Cooper commanding a small ranging company, commissioned by Governor Houston, answered our letter by stating that he would meet us the next day at a certain point on the Indian trail—that he did, accompanied by Sergeant Spangler with seven U.S. soldiers.

The Capture of Cynthia Ann Parker

We followed the trail on in a westerly direction for about six days, traveling on an average of 25 miles each day. We crossed the Peace River and camped on its west bank. In spite of all that we could do our guns were soaked wet from the heavy rain that fell that night which caused us to lose considerable time by having to draw the loads and get them in order next morning before our chase could be continued further. Some of our horses had strayed and were lost.

Captain Ross suggested that he and Sgt. Spangler go on ahead and for us to overtake them down the trail, which was agreeable with our officers.

We resumed our journey and before we had gone far we recognized a fresh trail of the Indians. We found a hackberry tree which they had cut down to get the berries and saw tracks around the hot ashes left from the campfire. When we had traveled farther we had failed to overtake Capt. Ross and Sgt. Spangler whom we should have joined some minutes before. Cpt. Currington grew anxious over this, and, thinking that perhaps Cpt. Ross and the others were mistakenly traveling the old trail which bore south, he detailed me with instructions to gallop my horse to the peak of a hill that stood to the south of us to scan over the country around; and if I espied our missing band, to signal to them by waving the blanket that was tied to my saddle, that we had picked up a fresh trail of the Indians. I dashed immediately on my errand.

When I reached the peak of the hill, I saw our command going at a full run. I wheeled my horse around, riding speedily after them. I overtook the rear guard of whom I inquired as to what the excitement was. I was told that they heard gun battle some distance on ahead.

We knew in reason that it was Cpt. Ross and Sgt. Spangler who had met in battle with the Indians. We hurried on to aid them but were too late.

About a mile farther on, we met Cpt. Ross who told us that he had engaged in a battle with the Indians; that he suddenly rode onto a hunting party, fortunately killing every one of them except a woman, a white woman and her half-breed baby.

All of the bad had been killed except one whom Sergeant Spangler was riding close on to. He pulled the trigger to shoot this only surviving one, when the cartridge failed to fire. On hearing the plea: "Me 'Merican". He noticed that the one who was fleeing from him in a struggling effort to evade death was a woman—a white woman with an infant wrapped in buffalo skin, in her arms.

This woman was, in fact, Cynthia Ann Parker who had been taken captive by the Indians twenty-one years previous to this time, at the massacre of Parker's Fort. We were indeed glad that Sergeant Spangler did not kill her.

On being questioned, she stated that her father was killed at the battle of some fort many years ago and that she and her brother were taken prisoners by the Indians; that her brother had died. She said that the recent raid that was so detrimental to the frontier was headed by her husband who was Chief Nacona; that on their return he had stopped by to join the hunting party when he was killed with the others by the men of Captain Ross and Sergeant Spangler.

This white woman also told us that she and the then deceased Chief Nacona had a son with the Indians. This son whom she spoke of was no less a personage than Quannah Parker who later became the noted chief of the Commanche Indians.

By stating that her brother had died, Cynthia Ann had been misinformed. Her brother, Boone Parker, had not died. In the year of 1861, he was found in Old Mexico by Colonel John R. Baylor who brought him to San Antonio, Texas, and afterwards he was stationed at Camp Colorado in Coleman County, acting as guide for Captain John Sowers.

Previous to this time Boone Parker was chief of a war band. While murdering on a ranch he bade his warriors not to harm a beautiful Spanish girl whom they found there because he told them that he wanted her for his wife. He married the girl. Some years later he was taken with small pox, and, according to custom of all tribes when on of their number is stricken with a contagious disease, the Indians abandoned their chief. His wife stayed with him and after nursing him back to health, persuaded him to return to Mexico with her, where he was found by Colonel Baylor.

We all camped together that night after the capture of Cynthia Ann Parker. Next morning Captain Ross and Sergeant Spangler turned back, taking Cynthia Ann, her child and two of our men who were sick.

Still Captain Currington was determined to follow the trail of the ones who had done frontier so much damage, whom he believed were not far away. He sent Tom Stockton with five men to spy, in an effort to ascertain the locality of the Indian Camp.

Stockton was gone several days. Entirely too long we thought to still remain alive. But when we were making preparations to journey on he reported back to the officers, telling that the camp was fifty or sixty miles further on; that there were many of them—ten to our one.

We considered the proposition that confronted us. Our horses were in a rundown, jaded condition on account of having endured the wet weather. We had hurried them under heavy loads over the rough, muddy roads and grass was scarce. Impossible it was, we concluded, to make such a trip at this time, and have any fighting strength in store to meet the Indians in battle. There were too many odds against us and we were weak.

The next morning we started our journey homeward, dividing our company into four parties. John Porter, Sheriff of Parker county was placed in command of the party with which I was to travel. We walked, leading our horses as they could not hold our weight under their present condition.

Our immediate band met in no conflict with the Indians on our return. Though Captain Currington and his band participated in a chase for some miles. There being only two horses in the Captain's company which were able to overtake the Indians. They were the horses of Tom Pollard and a man by the name of Gage. When these two men rode onto the Indians, Pollard was shot from his horse just after he had fired into them. Gage's gun snapped, failing to do damage to the enemy, but by his continual snapping of the trigger the Indians were delayed from attacking until the others of the party came to assist.

Ballinger Council accepts project bids

Firms from Abilene and Midland were low bidders Thursday as the City Council accepted bids for construction of a water treatment plant and pipeline projects.

Although the council did not award contracts Thursday morning, Ken Choffel, project engineer, said he would study all of the bids and would meet with the council later.

Contracts for the two projects probably will be awarded at the council's next regular meeting, November 7, said Dennis Jones, city administrator.

Four firms cast bids for the water treatment plant project, which includes remodeling and upgrading existing plant facilities. Bids ranged from $392,500 to $425,000. Decker Construction of Abilene entered the low bid. The pipeline project involves the construction of a raw water transmission pipeline that will run from a new lake to the existing main line near the treatment plant. About two miles of 14-inch pipe will be installed.

Eleven bids were submitted, with Permian Utility Construction of Midland low bidder. Bids ranged from $188,087 to $299,550.

The council was told that construction of the new dam will be completed in early 1984. The water treatment plant and pipeline construction is included in Phase II of the city's effort to improve water facilities. The dam and creation of a man-made lake are included in other phases of the project.

A buffet dinner was served at the brides parents home after the reception to 75 guests.

The couple opened gifts and left the reception in a white limosene. They were presented a dozen red roses and poured champagne. They left for Seattle and Victoria before flying to Maui for their honeymoon.

Sharon is the granddaughter of Mrs. Lucille Virden of Winters.

The bride attended Eastern Washington College and is presently a medic in the USAF stationed at Hickam Air Force Base in Hawaii.

The groom finished six years in the Air Force and is an LPN.

The couple will reside in Aiea, Hawaii.

Mrs. Earl Clower

Debra Lloyd, Earl Clower repeat vows

The early autumn wedding which united in marriage Debra Kay Lloyd and Earl Lee (Bud) Clower of Dallas was read Saturday morning, October 8, on the terrace of the Richardson Woman's Club.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Raymon W. Lloyd and the late Mr. Lloyd. Mr. Clower is the son of Mrs. Gloria West, and the late Mr. Billy Joe Clower.

The bride was given in marriage by her two brothers, Ken Lloyd of Lexington, Kentucky, and Rodney Lloyd of Houston. Mike Massa performed the double ring ceremony.

Wedding music was presented by David and Lori Morris, friends of the bride and groom. Music selections included "The Wedding Song," "Flesh of My Flesh," and "This is the Day That the Lord Had Made," accompanied by flute and piano. At the close of the ceremony, guests joined in singing praises to the Lord.

The bride was attired in an original white taffeta gown fashioned with a fitted bodice and off-the-shoulder puffed sleeves. A luffy pleated ruffle topped the sleeves and bodice. The full softly pleated skirt was edged with the pleated ruffle and extended to a short train. Her tiara of fresh flowers and greenery was adorned with satin and lace ribbons cascading down the back. She wore white pearls which once belonged to her grandmother. Her "something blue" was a hand made traditional blue garter. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and status, baby's breath, eucalyptus, and fig leaves, designed by her brother, Ken Lloyd.

Matron of honor was Karen Callihan of Dallas. Sharon Newman also of Dallas, served as maid of honor. They wore identical dresses of teal blue crepe de chine. The sleeveless bodice was styled with a front ruffled and long softly gathered skirt, with a raspberry-red cummerbund and rose at the waist. They carried baskets of fresh flowers of pink and white with accents of eucalyptus and greenery.

The groom wore a white tuxedo with a white satin cummerbund and ruffled shirt. He was attended by Bernie Lambert of Midland as best man, and Pat Patterson of Lubbock as groomsman. Mr. Patterson also served as usher. They wore black tuxedos with white ruffled shirts and black satin cummerbunds.

The couple repeated vows under a white lattice wedding arch adorned with white baby's breath and pink nasturtium and greenery.

A reception brunch was served following the ceremony at the Richardson Woman's Club. Members of the houseparty were Sherry Jackson, of Dallas and Vikki Lovv, of Austin. Also serving were the bride's nieces, Stacy and Lana, Lloyd of Houston, and Jennifer and Jill Johnson, of Dallas.

For her travelling ensemble, the bride chose a cranberry silk sweater and taupe raw silk skirt. The couple left for a wedding trip to Bella Vista, Arkansas.

Mrs. Clower is a graduate of Winters High School, Abilene Christian College, and recently of Texas Woman's University School of Nursing. She is currently employed by Parkland Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Clower graduated from Benjamin High School and Texas Tech University. He is employed by Frymire Engineering Company.

The couple will reside in Dallas.

International Christmas mailing dates

For those with relatives in the armed services stationed overseas, or who wish to mail holiday greetings and packages to others living in foreign countries, now is the time to be making your holiday mailings, according to Winters Postmaster Ann McDorman.

Here are three important "calendars" of suggested mailing dates to assure parcels and greetings will arrive on time:

Military Parcels

*PAL (Parcel Airlift Mail) is flown to the nearest port of embarkation -New York, Miami, San Francisco, or Seattle. Packages up to 30 pounds and 60 inches in combined length and girth may be sent by PAL for regular parcel post rates to the U.S. exit port or from the port of entry plus a fee for air service.

The air service fee is 30 cents for parcels weighing two pounds or less, 60 cents for 2-3 pounds, 90 cents for 3-4 pounds, and $1.20 for 4-30 pounds.

SAM (Space Available Mail) is transported by surface means in the 48 states and flown on a space available basis from the U.S. to the overseas destination or from the overseas destination to the U.S. Packages up to 15 pounds and 60 inches in combined length and girth may be sent by SAM for regular parcel post rates to the U.S. port of entry.

When mailed from a military post office outside the 48 contiguous states, the weight and size are not more than 70 pounds in weight and not more than 100 inches in length and girth combined.

short-term financial goals. Goals like obtaining financial security or saving for Christmas gifts, a downpayment, a new car or college tuition can be achieved by small actions over a long period of time. But families must plan their financial actions to achieve these goals.

Each year, thousands of people are scalded by tap water. Those most likely to be injured are preschoolers, the elderly and handicapped. Tap water scalds are usually more extensive than other burns because many occur in the bathtub or shower where larger portions of the body are exposed at one time to the hot water.

Small children and the elderly or handicapped may be unable to react quickly enough to get out of water that is too hot before it scalds, says the specialist. But hot water burns don't have to happen if homeowners will simply lower the temperature of water in their hot water heaters to a safe range, she adds.

Pre-Columbian Indians believed that earthquakes were caused by the creator shaking the earth to see if his handiwork was still around. The Indians would shout "Here I am," to reassure him.

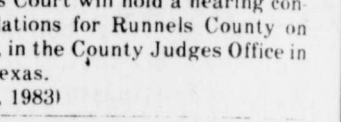

Tap water that's too hot can be hazardous to your health, says Dr. Mary Ann Heussner, a health education specialist with Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service.

Space heater use requires caution

With the arrival of cold weather, people with portable heaters perform the annual ritual of removing them from storage and setting them up.

Special care is needed in setting up and checking gas heaters because of the open flame and possibility of fire, says the Texas Medical Association.

Southern Union Gas Co. provided these safety tips for using gas space heaters:

*Check the air valve on the burner to make sure no lint or animal hair has accumulated there.

*Make sure the burner is not clogged. A clogged burner may produce carbon monoxide, a poisonous, odorless gas.

*When lighting the heater, follow the manufacturer's instructions to the letter. And strike the match before turning on the gas.

*Keep flammable items like drapes and furniture away from the heater. Additionally, for unvented heaters:

*Replace any radiants (the glowing parts) that are broken, chipped, or missing.

*Make sure there is adequate ventilation by leaving windows open slightly to prevent possible carbon monoxide buildup.

*Have the heater checked by a licensed heating contractor, plumber, or the local gas company if you are not sure of its safety.

For vented heaters, make sure the vent is not obstructed by a bird nest or other object.

The Texas Medical Association also encourages parents to keep children away from a gas space heater and to instruct them not to touch the controls. A barrier around the heater helps keep children and pets from bumping into it.

Ghosts and Goblins

Violent incidents that involve alcohol. They are stabbings, 75 percent; beatings, 69; sexual aggression toward children, 67; homicides, 64(70 on weekends); fights or assaults in the home, 56; shootings, 55; sexual aggression toward women, 30; and suicides, 30. Thompson notes that a high percentage of burns, home accidents, and chokings on food are also related to alcohol.

Thompson warns that alcohol abuse may complicate treatment of serious injuries. "The risks of anesthesia and surgery increase dramatically" for patients with alcoholism. He says this is particularly true for surgical patients certain unrecognized lung or heart problems.

In addition, alcohol abuse and delirium tremens may cause problems with nutrition and healing after the operation. He notes that the drunk patient in the emergency room poses difficult legal and moral questions with no clear answers.

"The 19-year-old combative boy who has 'had a few beers', for example, is not unusual on Friday night. he is not under arrest and has been involved in an accident. Does he have a head injury? Does he have the right to refuse X rays or other studies?" Thompson writes.

"What is the moral obligation at 3 a.m. to a patient who has hit the nurse and spit on the physician?"

On dealing with drunken drivers, Thompson says, "Tough laws of the Scandinavian type seem to have little long-term effect on death and injury, but weak enforcement and seldom-applied penalties contribute to the problem."

He suggests that vigorous enforcement, decriminalization of the offense, and "sure, swift civil penalties" would be more effective.

PRO BRAND WHEAT 812 Northrup King's PRO Brand Wheat 812 is a short, stiff-strawed variety that produces excellent grain yields and exceptional winter pasture grazing. Ideal for most of Texas and Southern Oklahoma, 812 has superior plant vigor that promotes rapid regrowth. Growers have reported 812 to have been the best grazing wheat they had ever planted. Early-maturing 812 has a significantly wider leaf than most competitive varieties. Plus it has resistance to most currently known leaf and stem rusts and soil borne mosaic virus. The early maturity of 812 makes it a good variety for doublecropping ahead of soybeans or sorghum. PCNB Terra-Coat® LT-2* seed treatment has been applied to 812 wheat seed at 2 oz./bu. This fungicide is designed to control common smut or bunt plus damping off by Rhizoctonia. (*Registered trademark of Olin Corporation.) President called to stop purchases from Iran

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, Democrat-Texas, called on President Reagan today to immediately order a stop to all purchases from the government of Iran.

"It is obvious from the evidence we have collected," Hance said, "that the terrorists loyal to the Ayatollah Khomeini's government are behind the massacre of American troops in Lebanon." "Khomeini-supported terrorists took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979 and held more than 50 Americans hostage for 15 months; they bombed the U.S. Embassy in Beirut this year and killed 63 people, including 17 Americans; and terrorists attacked the U.S. Marine headquarters in Beirut, leaving more than 200 Americans dead.

"In addition to a very small portion of our oil needs, the U.S. buys millions of dollars worth of other products from the Ayatollah. I believe Americans would be willing to do without the yarns, hides, carpets, artwork, and fish they buy from Iran if they knew that this money supports terrorists intent on killing Americans.

"In August," Hance pointed out, "almost 300 million American dollars went to Iran in exchange for these products.

"How long is the Reagan Administration going to continue financing Khomeini's goons," the Lubbock Democrat asked. "It is not in the American tradition to do business with our enemies, and Khomeini is definitely an enemy. I know Americans would support the President if he ordered all imports from Iran stopped," Hance said.

Free Arbor Day Kits available

To help Texas teachers and organizations conduct Arbor Day programs, the Texas Forest Service is offering free program kits.

Each kit includes a loblolly pine seed packet with planting instructions, program aids for a local Arbor Day observance, suggested classroom activities for teachers, and a copy of Governor White's proclamation.

Quantities are limited. Only one kit per teacher, group, or organization will be distributed. Arbor Day, to be observed this year on January 20, 1984, in Texas, has been an annual celebration in Texas since 1889. The event is to promote a greater appreciation of the beauty and value of trees and forests. The 1984 official state observance will be held in Grand Prairie.

Program chairpersons and teachers should address requests for Arbor Day kits to the Texas Forest Service, College Station, Texas 77843.

Distribution, on a first-come, first-serve basis, will begin in mid-November.

Cooperatives help American Agriculture

The agriculture of America is the most efficient, most productive in the world and has helped bring about the high standard of living enjoyed by Americans. The family farm system is an integral factor in this productivity, with farmer-owned and controlled cooperatives playing a key role in making the family farm the highly productive system it has become.

This system depends upon the incentive for full output to give all Americans the abundant supply of wholesome food they enjoy on the supermarket shelves and on their tables on a year-round basis. Americans pay a lower share of their disposal net income for food than do the people of any other country in the world. This is due to the enormous efficiency of our magnificent agricultural plants managed by individual entrepreneurs known as family farmers.

Cooperative organizations make it possible for these family farmers to receive more dependable markets for their products and more dependable and lower cost supplies for their farm input. Hence, by helping to support and maintain a family farm system of agriculture, cooperatives are performing a great public service.

Farmer cooperatives have greatly benefited consumers also by taking the lead in furnishing quality products; in developing better packaging; in using more efficient distribution methods, all of which have helped to hold down prices of food and fiber products used by consumers.

By keeping the family farm in business, cooperatives have strengthened the local business communities and helped to continue the strong and healthy rural America so important to our economy.

Farmer cooperatives do provide a positive answer to the question, "Who will control agriculture—big

Telephone bills affected by AT&T breakup

by Janet Warren
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. split will touch not only the pocket-books of Southwestern Bell Telephone customers but telephone-users across the state, who could find a new charge on their bills as early as January 1.

Making up for long distance revenues the companies lose through the AT&T breakup-the issue that may result in an additional charge for consumers-is before the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Texas telephone companies, including Southwestern Bell, General Telephone Co. of the Southwest and Continental Telephone, recently proposed a $1 monthly addition to residential telephone bills and $3 a month surcharge on business telephones to help make up for the loss.

That charge, referred to as an "end-user" fee, would be paid by all local service customers, whether or not they make long distance calls.

Also, the companies propose to boost long-distance rates for calls within certain regional boundaries by 10 percent. But long-distance carriers, such as MCI and AT&T, will be asked to make up for the bulk of the revenue loss in "access charges" since they can't function without the local systems.

That agreement represents a compromise among the telephone companies, who have been pushing slightly different plans with end-user fees running twice as high as now proposed.

The telephone companies, who have enjoyed a share of long-distance revenues reaped by Southwestern Bell, say they will need to make up for the loss as Bell leaves the long-distance business. The companies say the funds have helped support local service.

"We honestly couldn't live without those revenues. We couldn't meet our bills," said Southwestern Bell spokesman Dale Johnson. The divestiture will take away some $870 million in revenue from that company next year, Johnson said, which must be made up with access charges and end-user fees. Other telephone companies expect to lose millions of dollars as well.

So they want the new charges to begin January 1 as the divestiture-related loss begins. But the utility commission will have the final say on when and if the charges are levied.

CAPITOL UPDATE
by Jim Parker

This week I would like to take the opportunity to discuss with you, and perhaps elicit some response, what I perceive to be a fairly significant issue currently under consideration by a House of Representatives' interim committee. The issue, county ordinance-making authority, sounds rather dry at first blush but has far reaching ramifications. The theory behind the current movement is to allow county judges and county precinct commissioners, serving as a commissioners' court, to pass "ordinances" to control activities that take place outside an incorporated municipality. The purposed limits of such ordinance-making authority run the scale from simply setting standards for streets and drainage in non-city subdivisions to the ability to pass "barking dog" ordinances and county-wide leash laws. The feeling is, and might be correct in some parts of the state, that some entity should be empowered to regulate activities in more rural areas where no authority now exists. A typical, often cited example is the rapid urban build up around the lakes in Travis County where currently it is questionable whether or not anyone has authority to regulate street size and condition, drainage capabilities, sewage disposal and general building standards. I have no doubt that there may be some necessity for regulation in some specific areas of our state; however, I am also reminded that "from the tiny acorn the mighty oak grew." I would hope that the majority of the people of our state share my view that we already have too many laws and that we probably should be very, very careful about opening yet another "Pandora's box" of regulations. The current trend, both in Austin and Washington, is to attempt to cure all problems, real or imagined, with additional legislation. I am just now finding out, and really hating to admit it, that a goodly number of laws that I helped pass in the 68th Session that were supposed to cure problems, effectively created two or more new problems at least as important as the one for which the cure was formulated. At a recent committee hearing on this subject in the Rio Grande Valley, I appeared to be the only member, out of 12 present, who had any serious reservations concerning county ordinance-making authority and that surprised and disappointed me.

I know that the concept of county ordinance-making authority is probably not a "burning issue" with any reader of this column, but I see it as being one of the potentially major issues of the next legislative session that could have a tremendous impact on you as one of my employers and I think you should have the idea firmly planted in your mind so that when it does become an issue you will hopefully have had a little bit of a head start in your thinking, and be better prepared to tell me how you want the matter dealt with.

Labor Union membership

U.S. News and World Report, September 17, 1983, reported that labor union membership had decreased from 19.6 million in 1976 to an estimated 18 million in 1983. "Union membership, at its lowest point since 1966, now accounts to just 20 percent of the non-farm work force, vs. 28 percent in 1965."

USDA purchases announced

During the first six months of 1983, USDA purchased 11,422 million pounds of milk equivalent in the form of butter, cheese, non-fat dry milk, evaporated milk, and Mozarella cheese. During the first six months of 1982, USDA purchased 9,577 million pounds of milk equivalent on the same basis. These figures reveal that the purchase during the first six months of 1983 is up 19.26 percent compared to the first six months of 1982.

Cotton show to be held in December

Runnels County cotton producers will have an opportunity to "show off" their cotton at the upcoming area cotton show to be held December 6th and 7th at the Abilene Civic Center, Abilene. This is the first ever area show of its kind in the state or nation and will highlight cotton in all of its phases from production to consumer utilization.

For farmers to enter, they must select a plant from their field and then harvest 13.1 feet of row from that field. This sample will be ginned at the Chillicothe Research and Experiment Station. A readout will be obtained on micronaire, grade, staple length, uniformity ratio, and fiber strength.

These quality factors plus yield percent turnout and the actual cotton plant are then rated on a scale of 1 to 100 points, with 100 being the best that the entries can score. Entries can come from a single field, or if there are several varieties in the field each variety can be harvested, a plant chosen and be considered a separate entry. You will be able to enter as much as you'd like.

Entries can come from a thirty county area in a line from Wichita Falls to San Angelo. Approximately 2 million acres of cotton will be represented. The winner of the 1983 show will receive 1 ton of certified cotton seed, courtesy of G & P Seed Company, Aquilla, Texas. Plaques and ribbons will also be awarded to winners in certain categories.

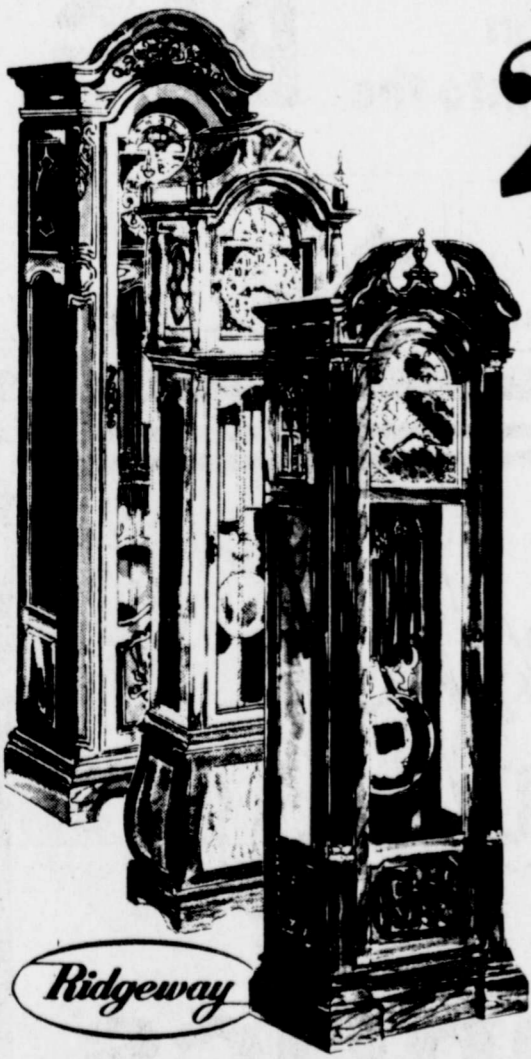

The type of cotton plant to select is of great importance. Select one that is strippable, not bushy. It needs to have good tight bolls and be storm proof. Also, it

Wait —

It is just a little hard to swallow when child support payments receive such attention. This court order is enforced with the full might of the State of Texas, but how about enforcement of visitation. The divorced parent must, in order to even be with those children in many instances, resort to his own back pocket to hire legal counsel, pay filing fees, and then stand before a court to try to get equal treatment in that court.

The state has, in the past, provided assistance in enforcing one side of the issue. The money part.

If our great state is going to get further involved in family matters, let it at least do it fairly. The amendment carries the number 6 on the ballot. If it gets approval from the voters, one can hope the legislators will take another step and give some support to those of us who get the feeling that we must 'pay admission' to just be with our children for a very short time each month.

If you are wondering how I will vote, I'll tell you. I will vote for the amendment and will continue to campaign for equal rights for that segment of our society who, instead of having their children, have to make payments.

Blizzards — which had shut out three opponents this year, gave up three touchdowns and 277 yards of offense, 200 yards of which was in passing.

The Blizzards take their 6-0 district record to Albany this Friday for the district championship game. Albany is 5-1 in district, just one game behind the Blizzards.

Its an important game for both teams. In Winters wins, they will be the District 9-AA Champions and will get into the state playoffs.

If Albany loses, they will be knocked out of any playoff spot. However, if Albany wins the district will most likely end in a three-way tie. This could mean that Winters might not even get into the playoffs. That would be decided by a coin toss.

Winters has not won their district in 20 years. The last district winner was the 1962-63 team. Everyone needs to come out and support the Blizzards on to the district championship.

63-Year-Old Lowake man killed in crash

One man was killed and two injured in a two-vehicle collision which occurred at 9:40 a.m. Thursday, October 27, in Concho County.

Arnold Joseph Schraer, 63, of Lowake, was pronounced dead at the scene at 10:41 a.m. by Peace Justice Tek Brushenhan of Concho County. His body was taken from the scene, on U.S. Highway 83 and FM Road 765 12 miles north of Eden, to Day-Loveless Funeral Home in Eden.

Schraer's son, Eugene Arnold, 40, of Rowena, was admitted to Shannon West Texas Memorial Hospital's intensive care unit with internal injuries and a broken left leg. A report on Schraer's condition was withheld Thursday afternoon pending notification of family members, according to a hospital spokesman.

Eddie Dean Lord, 22, of San Saba, was admitted to St. John's Hospital Thursday morning with contusions and abrasions.

Department of Public Safety reports indicated Arnold and Eugene Schraer were northbound in a pickup on U.S.

83. Lord was east-bound in a pickup on FM Road 765. The two vehicles collided at the intersection. Lord's pickup burst into flames and he was pulled from the truck by an unidentified woman.

The accident was investigated by DPS troopers Tom Barkley and Scott Warren, both of Runnels County, trooper

Ronnie Sanders of Concho County and Concho County Sheriff Don Kirby.
