Hey! We are starting to be like those big cities.

Sure, we have those requests from the utility companies for more money, rate increases they call it.

We have our traffic light down town. Here, though, that light is at the corner of Main and Dale streets. In the big cities, their lights are generally on the corners of Walk and Don't Walk.

All it takes to notice our progress is a drive through town. Without looking at your watch you can see the time. Without turning on the radio to see how hot it is somewhere else and without hunting a thermometer you can see the temperature—how hot it is here.

Why shucks, Abilene probably doesn't have more than two or three of those gadgets and look how big that city is.

Now talking about rate increases—those folks you would like to reach out and touch have put their quest for cash on the back burner, or maybe hold is a better term for the overall rate increase they were wanting.

There are some subtle little items that pop up now and then that net a few bucks more for phone company. Those items have names that sound like something the military would make up—acronyms they call them.

If the service provided by the communications utility would improve along with the requests for more money, perhaps their requests would be better justified.

Now the electricity folks are asking for more coins. They say it is needed to help pay for a new generating plant along with inflation.

Now I may sound a bit partial here, but I like to flip the switch and have a light come on as well as dial up someone across the continent and talk with them.

The electricity guys have a slight problem with uncle. The cost of equipment that is required by the government to make their generating plants non-polluting or something would account for a big piece of the pie.

The same thing happened with automobiles. To meet the federal requirements, the auto builders had to make their engines less responsive and less economical. They had to load them down with gee-whiz gadgetry that cost a bundle.

Not only all this but, they continue to force us to pay for super highways to drive slow on. They even had to invent a new kind of gasoline—no-lead.

Next thing you know, it'll be decaffeinated and have no sugar.

Now wait a minute...

Sunday crash

Jury finds Danny Harris guilty

A six-man, six-woman jury in 119th District Court in Ballinger found Danny Bruce Harris, 44, of Winters guilty of first degree murder in the October, 1983, shooting death of his wife after deliberating approximately 30 minutes Tuesday afternoon.

District Judge Curt Steib said that the punishment phase of the trial would begin Wednesday morning. During the selection of the jury on Monday, District Attorney Dick Alcala indicated that the state might seek a sentence of 50 years in prison.

Harris was arrested at his residence at 206 Alvera Street in Winters on the evening of October 20, 1983, after calling the Winters Funeral Home to advise them of his wife's death.

Evidence presented in the Tuesday trial showed that Janie Harris died as the result of a single .357 caliber gunshot wound to the face.

The woman's body was found lying inside her automobile. The vehicle was parked in front of the family home.

In presenting the case against Harris, the district attorney introduced a number of photographs of the blood-spattered automobile, two revolvers, the murder weapon and a .22 caliber revolver that was also found in the car.

Harris took the stand in his own defense Tuesday afternoon and, in the line of questioning, told the court that the shooting occurred about eight miles north of Winters and that he drove the family car to the residence before calling the funeral home. He said that he did not call for medical assistance or notify members of his wife's family about the shooting incident.

Defense attorneys Aubrey Stokes and Max Parker had attempted to convince the jurors that the fatal shot was fired in self-defense.

The Young Homemakers plan to raise another $1,500 and ask again for your support. Donations can be made to the Playground Equipment Fund at the Winters State Bank or you may contact Debbye Minzenmayer, 786-2191, Melody Herring, 754-4876, Kay Smith, 583-2520, Shelia Paschal, 723-2697, or any member of the Young Homemakers.

Infants become crime victims

At least three incidents of assault on children were investigated by officers in Runnels County over the past week end.

In a Ballinger incident, bond of $25,000 was set for an 18-year-old man in connection with the alleged rape of a 4-year-old girl. Held is Joe Jackson of Ballinger.

Sheriff Bill Baird said the incident was first reported to Ballinger Police. Baird also said that the incident occurred at a residence in Ballinger.

In a second incident reported to authorities, a Winters man was charged in connection with injuries to a six-month-old infant. The child sustained contusions to the face and head.

Industrial Golf Tourney "Best"

The Winters Country Club held its 18th Annual Industrial Golf Tournament this past week end and club officials say the turnout was the largest ever.

The winning team was sponsored by John's International and turned in the low score of 58 for the 18 holes.

Second place honors went to the team sponsored by West Dale Well Servicing, and the team sponsored by the Winters State Bank. Both teams carded identical 59s.

Officials of the Winters Country Club expressed their sincere appreciation to this year's sponsors for helping to make the meet the success it was.

and gifts from other city employees. Although he is retiring from the City of Winters, Whittenburg said he will remain in his position of Precinct 2 Constable where he will handle the duties on a full-time basis.

Ballinger hit by vandals

Ballinger authorities are investigating at least two separate incidents of vandalism that occurred over the week end.

Ballinger City Administrator Dennis Jones said that vandals struck both the city park and the sanitary landfill.

Jones said that damage to the park included restroom facilities that were broken or damaged and light fixtures that were broken. Jones said that the park has been hit by the vandals several times.

At the city's sanitary landfill, Jones said that vandals knocked down a fence and scattered refuse over a wide area.

The area had been cleaned last week and the vandals struck over the week end.

Ballinger Police officers were conducting an investigation into the incidents.

The city administrator said, "Not only is this sort of thing a nuisance, it is expensive—there's no call for any of it." Jones said that no dollar estimate of the damage had been made.

WTU files for 12% rate hike

West Texas Utilities confirmed a story in last week's Winters Enterprise by filing for an increase in its electric rates for retail customers.

Local WTU manager Gary Moore said the application was filed last Friday, a full year since WTU's last rate increase application, and is a system-wide request for higher rates. Simultaneous filings were made in all incorporated towns and with the Public Utility Commission of Texas at Austin for an increase in rural areas, unincorporated towns and in 21 municipalities which have ceded jurisdiction over electric rates.

The proposal would produce an annual increase in total revenue of $30,845,695. This amounts to an overall increase of 12.4 per cent.

Moore said the additional revenue is necessary to carry out WTU's current heavy construction program, which includes a new coal-fired power plant at Oklaunion, near Vernon.

"By the time these rates become effective, we will have spent $167 million on the Oklaunion Power station and related projects," Moore said. "Our last rate increase was not enough to carry us through this construction program, which is essential to continued reliable electric service to our customers."

WTU had requested an increase

City court fine receipts

Winters Municipal Judge J.C. Hodnett said that a total of $1,210 million has been turned over to the City of Winters for fines collected in his court during the month of May.

Hodnett said that the fines were levied on traffic violations, disorderly conduct charges, public intoxication charges, and other municipal court offenses.

The dollar-amount of fines collected so far this year, according to the judge, exceed the amounts collected during the same period last year.

Hodnett cited an increase in violations along with stepped up enforcement as the primary reasons for the increase in the money collected in fines.

identified as James Beckwith, of Winters.

Investigating officer Richard Hawkins said the car was stopped at the signal light when it was struck from behind by the pick up. Hawkins said that charges of driving while intoxicated were filed against the driver of the pick up.

Goodbye, Familiar Landmark

One by one I've seen the buildings of my childhood memories disappear, and although I've accepted the rule "that nothing in this world is permanent except change," it gives me pain each time a landmark is removed.

Those of us who watched helplessly while the old Abilene and Southern Depot was being eroded by wind and weather and ripped apart by vandals can't help but be glad the agony is over.

However, the memories linger and it is for those who have no knowledge of the excitement and progress brought by the advent of the railroad to one little city, and the hard work that went into its development, that I am recalling some of its history.

Winters was named in 1890, and the town began to grow about 1900, an early visitor recalled. There was a bumper cotton crop that year and the Murray Gin ran day and night. Every man who wanted to work helped build stores and residences. Main Street was the public road from Ballinger to Abilene. Dale Street was laid out and business houses built on both sides of the street. New houses sprang up here and there.

At last! A train!

Winters' first train speeds down the tracks in 1909. Winters is unique in that it never had a townsite or one designated as such. The first record from the Texas Land Office at Ballinger is of the J.W. Murray addition laid out October 30, 1899. It included the Winters State Bank and some land north and south. Murray West which included two blocks and Murray East were added in 1901. Murray East was a large addition which included the present Bahlman Jewelers.

Winters continued to grow and the Pierce and Spill additions were made in 1906. The following year the Dale West and School additions were annexed to the city. A record year was followed in 1908 with six additions including Dale, Quality Heights, Dale and Bright, Meeks, Spill Second; and the last, on December 16, was the large Armbrecht tract.

The tremendous growth was brought about by the farmers and ranchers who had moved in to take advantage of the fertile land that surrounded the little prairie town, and civic minded business men realized there must be a market outlet for the huge crops of cotton and grain with its single 2-8-2 engine, No. 20, pulled into town on July 4, 1909, the citizens turned out to meet it. The band played and a big picnic followed. A downpour of rain failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the crowd.

For many years the depot was an important part of the operation as passengers procured their tickets and

Waiting for the train

A large crowd of people waited for the arrival of the first train in Winters on July 4, 1909. After the train arrived, the townspeople celebrated with a picnic which continued during a downpour.

From an issue of The Winters Enterprise we read, "On June 1, 1908, Morgan Jones came to Winters and conferred with five members of the town's railroad committee. He proposed to build the road from Abilene for a cash bonus of $50,000, a 15 mile right-of-way, and adequate ground on which to build a depot."

In the file of papers concerning the railroad is an agreement made on August 26, 1908, between Morgan Jones and P.L. Meeks, chairman, whose name heads a list of 133 signatures on the petition.

The committee was called the "syndicate" and Mr. Jones was called the "contractor."

waiting for incoming or departing trains.

My first experience with the train and depot was in 1915 after we moved to Winters and took yearly trips to see my paternal grandparents, the G.W. Grahams, who lived at Aspermont. It was a two day trip as we had to spend the night in Abilene, an exciting experience for three small children, my sister, brother, and me.

During its first season, the train hauled between 40 and 50 thousand bales of cotton to local markets. Trips to Abilene on the colorful little train were a favorite pastime of many people.

Gradually through the years as good roads developed and cars became more popular, interest in the railroad declined, and passenger service was discontinued in 1941. The depot remained in use until J.C. Jarrels retired and it was later rented to cattle brokers. Since that time it has been vacant.

The sturdy depot has served well; 75 years is a good record for buildings as well as people.

Farm equipment safety
Farm safety training should be an annual activity because it can help prevent serious injury or even death, emphasizes a safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. New workers should be instructed on farm safety as soon as they are employed. Safety training should include the safe operation and servicing of all equipment with which a worker is or will be involved. Special attention should be given to these practices: keep all guards in place, permit no riders, stop the engine before working on equipment, and disconnect electrical power before servicing equipment.

Farm Bureau announces queen contest, talent find

The Runnels County Farm Bureau Queen Contests and Talent Find will be held on July 8 at the County office on Hutchings Avenue in Ballinger at 3 p.m. Three contests will be held: a junior queen contest, a senior queen contest, and a talent find. Junior queen contestants must be 13 years of age by contest time. Senior queen contestants must be between the ages of 16 and 21 by September 1, 1984, never have been married, and be the daughter or sister of a Farm Bureau member. Contestants will be judged on appearance, poise, and personality, as well as other qualities such as grace and charm. They will appear in formal wear. In addition, senior queens will be required to answer a question about Farm Bureau from a predetermined list. The talent find will be held at the same time as the queens contest. Participants, both male and female, must be between the ages of 16 and 21 by September 1, 1984. In addition, entrants must be members of Farm Bureau families and must also be amateurs. Entries may be singles or groups, and entries are limited to five minutes. If an accompanist is required, the entrant must make his own arrangements. Farm Bureau employees, dealers, service agents, and their families and past state winners are not eligible to enter the contest. A girl may enter both the talent find and queen contests. County winners and participants will receive gifts, and the talent find and senior winners will advance to district competition. District winners will receive $500 scholarships and will attend the State Farm Bureau Convention in November. State winners will receive $1,500 scholarships, and runners-up will receive $1,000 scholarships. Entry forms, rules, and copies of questions are available from the County Farm Bureau office in Ballinger. The deadline for entries is June 22.

Ag Census results told

Preliminary reports of the 1982 Census of Agriculture show that the number of farms in Runnels County decreased from 941 to 866 since the 1978 census. All land in farms totaled 602,512 acres in 1982, an average of 696 acres per farm. The Census Bureau defines a farm as any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold or normally would have been sold. Land from which crops were harvested increased to 201,963 acres since 1978. The county's farmers sold $31 million in agricultural products according to preliminary reports from the 1982 Census of Agriculture. The 1982 sales figure represents an average of $35,824 for each of the county's farms. The census reports that $14 million or 45 per cent of total sales were for crops, while $17 million or 55 per cent of the total came from the sale of livestock, poultry, and their products. Preliminary data indicate that expenditures for feed for livestock and poultry were $3.4 million; total farm energy costs were $3.6 million; fertilizer costs were $940,000; and seed costs were $1.1 million. Of the total farms in the county, 200 had gross sales of $40,000 or more; 353 reported sales of less than $10,000. Farms operated as sole proprietorships represented 91 per cent of the total. In 1982, the average age of farm operators was 52.3 years. The proportion of operators reporting farming as their principal occupation remained essentially unchanged at 60 per cent since 1978. Data in the report for 1978 and 1982 are directly comparable for acreages and inventories. Dollar values have not been adjusted for changes in price levels. Preliminary reports can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Local girls are ASU graduates

Toni Cecile Hambricht received a Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in English, and Sarah Elizabeth Hearn received an Associate of Science in nursing degree with a major in nursing.

Horsemanship clinic planned

The Runnels County 4-H is sponsoring a Horsemanship Clinic for horse enthusiasts on June 21-23. This clinic will be held at the Ballinger Rodeo Arena on the Bronte Highway. Cost of the clinic will be about $20-$25 per student, which is a low cost for three days of training. The clinic is open to 4-H members, non-members, parents, and other adults. The class will be limited to 40 participants. Reservations will be taken on a first come, first served basis. Instructors for the clinic are Sam Jackson and Kelly Graves, from College Station. The clinic will begin on Thursday afternoon and conclude Saturday evening. It is designed to cover the basics of good horsemanship. Topics to be discussed and practiced include the use of hands and feet, leads and lead changes, stopping and backing, and several event clinics. Contact the County Extension office at 365-2219 before June 15 if you wish to participate.

Blackwell reporter

Savannah Thompson is the Enterprise's correspondent from the Blackwell community. She does a fine job reporting the news not only to our paper, but to three other papers as well. We are featuring our correspondents and writers in a series of articles.

Savannah Thompson: Blackwell's precise reporter

By Patsy Roach
As charming and gracious as the Southern city of the same name, Savannah Thompson is a veteran of 20 years in the newspaper business. She supplies the Abilene and San Angelo papers with weather data and some other news, and writes more extensively for the Bronte Enterprise and the Winters Enterprise.

We interviewed Savannah in her two-story white frame Blackwell home, which is surrounded by trees, vines, and greenery of various types and is kept neat and tidy, with scarcely a weed in sight. The inside of the house indicates the orderliness which is apparent in her writing: everything is organized for efficiency and ease of living. Savannah does not get around as well as she used to do, because of arthritis in her joints. She uses a walking cane most of the time, and her San Angelo doctor has restricted her driving somewhat for a while.

She is a 77 year old, smilingly confident lady with glasses and short curly grey hair. She was born January 21, 1907 in Pidcoke, Texas, a small community in Coryell County near Gatesville. Her parents were O.E. Patterson and the former Bertha Viola Raney.

Her family moved to Blackwell in 1914, and she attended Blackwell School through the eighth grade. Her father became ill that year, and she had to quit school and take over the task of feeding cattle on the ranch where her father worked.

In 1918, Savannah met a young foreman on the Whiteside Ranch east of Blackwell; Rocky Thompson was his name. They were married in the Methodist parsonage on Sunday afternoon, April 14, 1920, a very rainy day. They settled near the Oak Creek Lake and worked in the farming and ranching business.

They moved their house from the lake into town in October 1950. Savannah does not live in that same house, but in another one down the same street, now.

Rocky died on January 23, 1955, and she has lived alone ever since, in the same house except for a sojourn in the Leisure Lodge Nursing Home in Snyder. She had an 84-year-old friend who received food stamps monthly; and Savannah would take her to Sweetwater to buy groceries every month. It was on such a trip in the summer of 1977 that Savannah took a fall and hurt her right hip badly. Doctors did a total hip socket replacement on first one hip, then the other. Recuperation necessitated her stay in the nursing home.

While in the home, she bought a sewing machine and made quilts, and continued her writing since it proved impossible to find anyone to take her place. She obviously loves writing; it is one of her chief pastimes and a source of some income to supplement her Social Security. She began writing in 1960 when a neighbor who wrote for the Bronte paper moved away, having asked Savannah to take over the job. She writes and spells very well and takes special care to spell names correctly. Most of her work for the Abilene and San Angelo papers is called in on the phone, but she types her stories and columns for the Bronte paper and ours.

She goes to senior citizens meetings in Bronte and Sweetwater each month, and she attends the United Methodist Church in Blackwell.

Her hobbies are writing, working in her yard, canning, and quilting. She learned to quilt when she was a little girl; she and her mother made quilts. She has made several colorful string quilts and is working on a diamond quilt, a necktie quilt, and a nine-patch block quilt. She uses scraps of all kinds and hates to waste anything. Some of her quilts are gifts for family members.

Her yard is a cool green oasis in this excessively dry year. She has not watered her plants; yet they are thriving. Virginia creeper covers a fence and an old mulberry tree stump; wandering Jew surrounds another tree; honeysuckle accents several areas; and English ivy, irises, and ground cover grow in the shade. She has pecan trees, peach and apricot trees, a crape myrtle, and box elders. Red and yellow lantanas bloom in profusion near the sidewalk, and bridal wreath accents the front of the house.

Weather is interesting

Blackwell is having hot and dry weather. There is a good breeze blowing when not out in the sun, but still no rain in sight. The nights are hot as there are no breezes at night. Maybe we will get that rain, real soon now.

The gardens are not doing too good and some have plowed up their beans, due to the hot and dry weather, since water doesn't do much good at this time. The yards sure do look bad.

Several of our members attended the annual conference in Abilene last week, at least one service or one session. Bobby Barrett was our official delegate and attended all business sessions.

Others attending were: Reverend and Mrs. Weldon Tucker, Dr. and Mrs. John English, Bobby and Dona Sanderson, and Ike and Darlene Pate. Dr. English was the featured speaker for the annual memorial service held at the opening of the conference.

The Blackwell seniors have gotten back from their trip to Hawaii. It was reported that they all had a real good time and it was to Savannah. She said last winter was the worst she had ever seen, when every house in Blackwell had damage from the hard, prolonged freezes. She was without water for eight days, but did not complain about it when discussing it. She borrowed water from a neighbor and carried pails into the house.

Another damaging weather system for Blackwell was the hail-laced storm that hit there as well as in Winters on June 18, 1982, she said. All the north windows on her street were broken, and her own house sustained much damage. Leaves, tree limbs, and other debris were knee deep in her yard.

The next night another storm hurled a long tree limb up against the kitchen window, and she was standing in front of the window at the time, she said, but she added that would be the last time she stood near a window during a storm.

She does not go to a storm cellar during bad weather, preferring to stay in the house.

Healthier Popcorn With Safflower Oil

Popcorn lovers, take heart. Because you've seen all the publicity on reducing your cholesterol and saturated fat intake doesn't mean you can't enjoy non-buttered popcorn. Safflower oil, the highest oil in beneficial polyunsaturated fats and lowest in saturated fat, is used instead of butter in the following recipe. As with all vegetable oils, it is totally free of cholesterol. Onion and garlic powders, Italian seasoning, and a good sprinkling of Parmesan cheese make this healthier popcorn a real taste treat.

PARMESAN POPCORN
3 tablespoons safflower oil, divided
1/2 cup popcorn kernels (unpopped)
1 teaspoon Italian seasoning, crushed
1/2 teaspoon onion powder
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1/4 teaspoon salt (optional)
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

In a large heavy saucepan heat 1 tablespoon of the safflower oil until hot. Add popcorn kernels. Cover and shake pan over medium heat until all corn is popped; remove from heat. In a small saucepan combine Italian seasoning, onion and garlic powders, salt and remaining 2 tablespoons safflower oil. Stir over medium heat until hot, about 20 seconds. Pour over popcorn; stir to coat completely. Stir in cheese. YIELD: about 8 cups

General Situation

Our general situation is still dry. There have been several widely scattered showers but many fields still have insufficient moisture to get a cotton crop up. Grain sorghum is suffering some due to heat and drought but is holding up surprisingly well and is developing an extensive root system. Small grain harvest continues with dryland yields of 4 1/2 to 22 bushels/acre reported. Irrigated wheat yields range up to 90 bushels per acre.

The rains that came through Tuesday night brought varying amounts of moisture to the area. The storms also brought high winds and hail to some areas. Some farmers will be facing the task of replanting their cotton and some received extensive hail damage to their sorghum.

Weevil Magic

Boll weevil trap catches are exceptionally low this spring. Could it be magic? More likely, these low weevil numbers are a result of extreme cold temperatures early this past winter and the very dry conditions we've been experiencing for so long.

The absence of weevils now is a nice feeling and if we had the moisture to really make cotton, wouldn't we be on "Cloud 9?" Assuming that sufficient rain will come soon, these extremely low numbers of weevils simply mean that weevil populations can be expected to stay very low until late in the season, late July or August at the earliest.

Don't be deceived! Just because they aren't here now, don't think they won't show up! They will if we have any chance of a cotton crop. Those rascals have survived lots of freezes and lots of droughts before...

A Bright Note...

Most grain sorghum fields have a light infestation of corn leaf aphids and some fields have a few greenbugs. Considering moisture, who cares? Well, the lady beetles and the green lacewings do! Fields with aphid populations are crawling alive with beneficials and that's great! If they'll keep the pest numbers down, maybe the sorghum can hold on a little better a little longer.

For a refresher, let's review the difference between corn leaf aphids and greenbugs. Corn leaf aphids are the pale olive green critters you've seen in the whorl (center) of grain sorghum. These insects do feed on plant juices but are also excellent food for beneficials. So we like to keep them around for the "good guys" meal time.

Greenbugs are also aphids but are very pale green in color and usually occur on the undersides of the lower leaves. They inject a toxin as they feed and can cause leaf discoloration, leaf death, and reduced sorghum yields when heavier populations occur. So far our yield potential in sorghum wouldn't warrant greenbug control. But I have seen no serious infestations so far.

News of the Pest Management Program

We have the Pest Management Program in north Runnels County on hold. We're hoping for rain and making no plans to disband the program at this time. Your checks will be held and not deposited until it rains or until the Pest Management Steering Committee decides further action. For those of you who have not paid, we will notify you if and when scouting cranks up. We have your name on a special list.

The scouts and/or I will be in touch with you soon to locate fields.

Final Tidbit

It's been said that in Noah's day, when it rained all over the world for 40 days and 40 nights, around here we got 1/2-inch.

WHS Class Reunion set

The 1949 graduating class from Winters High School is planning their reunion for August 11 at the Kiva Inn in Abilene. They decided at their meeting five years ago to invite the classes of 1947, 1948, 1950, and 1951 to join them in their next reunion, as they felt all these students were part of their memories from Winters High School.

The reunion will be held in the River Oaks I Banquet Room at the Kiva Inn. Those planning the reunion decided against having it in Winters because of lack of accommodations and no suitable place to hold a dinner. Also, many of the people involved no longer have families to stay with in the Winters area.

The dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m., but a room will be designated for visiting prior to the dinner. Guests should inquire at the Inn for directions to this room.

Betty Wilson Smith, secretary of the class of 1949, said, "Our class is looking forward to having you join in this celebration and the more we have, the more fun it will be."

Those planning to attend should send a check or money order to Betty Smith in the amount of $15 for each person attending, to cover the cost of the meal. Her address is 906 Neely, Midland, Texas 79705, phone 915-686-2033.

Anyone traveling a long distance and wishing to stay at the Kiva Inn should call their toll-free number, 1-800-592-4466 to make reservations. They should identify themselves as attendees of the Winters High School reunion, as the Inn is reserving a block of rooms for the reunion guests, and may be full otherwise. They will be holding the rooms until July 28; so reservations should be made prior to that time.

Brenda Niehues B. Niehues wins 4-H scholarship

Brenda Niehues of Norton, a Runnels County 4-H member, was named the recipient of a $1,000 scholarship at the 1984 State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University, June 5-6. The scholarship is provided by the Texas 4-H Foundation Memorial and Annual Fund.

Student loans readily available

Students and parents who have tried unsuccessfully to borrow money for college expenses may be surprised to learn that there is actually an abundance of long-term, low-interest money available for that purpose. The trick is to find a banker interested enough in making such loans to go through the paper work involved.

At least one West Texas banker says his bank is not only interested but is eager to process student loan applications. Jim Bullock, senior vice president and head of the consumer loan department of Texas American Bank of Amarillo says his department is "quite active in making student loans and would like to make even more."

Cooperating with the Texas Guaranteed Student Loan Program, he said the bank will lend qualified undergraduate students up to $2,500 per year and up to $12,500 total over the course of his or her college years. Graduate students may qualify for as much as $5,000 per year or up to $15,000 total in student loans.

No interest is charged on the loans until six months after the borrower ceases to be enrolled as at least a half-time student. Then repayment at 8% interest may be made over five to ten years, depending on the amount borrowed.

The amount of the loan for which a student may qualify depends on the cost of attending college, other financial aid which may be received and the family's financial condition. Determination of the amount of the loan and approval of the application are made by the financial aid officer of the college.

Bullock said that once the school completes its part of the application, the bank routinely processes it and arranges for the disbursement of the cash. The proceeds from the loans can be used at any Texas school, including vocational schools, or by any Texas resident attending an out-of-state school, he said.

Although all Texas banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions may make such loans with the Texas Guaranteed Student Loan Corporation insuring them against loss, apparently few are agreeable to handling the paper work or to lending money over such a long period of time at low interest rates.

Bullock said it is the policy of Texas American Bank of Amarillo to participate in such programs as a service to the community. He pointed out that the bank is an "open-door" lender and that no deposit relationship is required.

GTE changes outlined

Changes approved by the Federal Communications Commission on May 25, 1984 will affect General Telephone customers using interstate long-distance directory assistance, customers using AT&T to make long-distance calls, and businesses with more than one line.

An interstate directory assistance charge of 50 cents per call with a two-call allowance for each billing period was approved for AT&T, the nation's only provider of interstate directory assistance service. To obtain the two-call directory assistance allowance, the customer must make at least two interstate calls during each billing period. If the customer makes one or no interstate calls, the allowance would be one or zero respectively.

The FCC also ordered AT&T to reduce its interstate long-distance rates by approximately 6.1 percent.

At the same time, the FCC approved interstate end user access charges of $6 per line for businesses with more than one line.

All of the changes became effective May 25.

A gospel show will be presented Sunday from 10 a.m. to noon.

Convenience food quality

When comparing convenience foods versus homemade ones, remember that most home-prepared entrees contain a higher proportion of meat, poultry, fish and cheese, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist Bonnie L. Piernot.

The convenience counterpart usually has more starchy ingredients such as sauces, pasta, bread coating and topping. While it's difficult to define quality, the product label is your best guide to what's in the convenience package, says the home economist. The ingredients are listed in order of quantity. For example, if gravy is listed first, your money buys more gravy than meat. Labels can also help in defining nutrients and ingredients, but if you're concerned with controlling fats, sugar and salt, you will not always be able to determine the amount from the label, cautions Piernot.

Groups scheduled to perform include the Blueknight Express, Dallas; Texas Hoedown Cloggers, Fort Worth; Shoemakers, Grapevine; 14 year old Eric Tull, Fort Worth; Bluegrass Kinfolks, Buffalo Gap; Roy Thacker, Ranger; Concho Grass, San Angelo; Meadowlake Boys, Sherman; Double Mountain Boys, Lipan; and Ken Lomax and his Dancing Dolls.

There will be no charge for camping in the rough, but electrical hook-ups will cost $6. Food and soft drinks will be available on the camp grounds. No alcoholic beverages will be permitted. Abilene State Park, which is located southwest of Buffalo Gap, has a swimming pool available to festival-goers. The town itself has gas, groceries, and facilities available. Seating is limited; so guests are asked to bring lawn chairs. Tickets are priced as follows: Friday $4, Saturday $5, Sunday $5. A three-day ticket costs $12. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Farm Bureau favors vocational education

The Texas Farm Bureau told the Texas House Committee on Public Education Thursday that changing from the present method of funding vocational education would be "an unwise change."

The Governor's Select Committee on Public Education, headed by H. Ross Perot, proposes a change in the current method of line item funding for vocational education to a block grant method.

Joe Maley, assistant director for state affairs for the Texas Farm Bureau, told the Committee that the Farm Bureau is "vitaly concerned about maintaining an effective program for vocational education—particularly for vocational agriculture and home economics training."

1985 farm bill outlined

Texas and U.S. farmers face three basic issues as they decide their stand on the 1985 farm bill, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Dr. Bill Black identifies these as follows:

1. Do farmers want to rely on government payments or market rewards for income?
2. To what extent are farmers committed to the export market?
3. Do farmers want to maintain the middle-sized family farm?

"Those who want to rely on government payments for their income will support high target prices," says Black. "But high target prices stimulate production, so these farmers must also accept tighter production controls through acreage diversions. In addition, they would support farmer-owned reserves."

On the other hand, farmers who want to rely on market rewards for pay should support lower loan rates so that commercial sales to foreign buyers can continue. In this situation, prices would control production while expanded crop insurance would protect against natural disasters, Black points out.

"Many farmers believe expanded agricultural exports can resurrect this country's faltering agricultural economy," Black says. "If they are sincerely interested in the export market, they can't sell from an empty wagon."

Black also notes that a two-price plan may encourage export trade, where foreign sales would move out lower prices than prevail in the domestic market. Farmers who are not committed to the export market will support strict production controls and high loan rates, he adds.

"Perhaps the most critical choice farmers face in the mid 1980's has to do with the medium-sized family farmer," contends Black. "This is the traditional full-time farmer who relies on farm product sales for his income. He has little or no outside income and depends on his family for labor. He has suffered from recent hard times in agriculture."

Programs that will keep the middle-sized family farmer in business are strict payment limitations, limited government loans to family farmers, mandatory production controls, marketing quotas, elimination of the cash-tax accounting system and progressive taxation by farm size. These ideas have been talked about for a long time, says the economist.

"Two things will kill the middle-sized family farmer—unlimited income subsidies and payments geared to production," says Black. "These programs help big producers the most."

He said farmers' and ranchers' interest in education issues is based both on their roles as parents and property owners who share in the financing of public education.

Maley urged the Committee to consider what he called the positive aspects of vocational agriculture and home economics programs.

"Exceptional and exaggerated references to young people taking many days away from school to exhibit animals in livestock shows are unfair and have mistakenly discredited vocational agriculture programs," he said.

"The leadership and business skills that accrue from such programs are very important in the development of thousands of young men and women who have become very productive citizens," the TFB spokesman said.

The House committee heard testimony from various groups that are concerned about specific areas in educational reform.

Class of 1939 holds reunion

The Class of 1939 graduating from Winters High School met Saturday, June 9 at the Winters Country Club.

The day was enjoyed by visiting, a meal catered by Holloway's, and a program. Neuman Smith of Ballinger showed slides of rural schools which were in existence in early 1900 and some later, which were interesting to all as we saw the schools we attended in early years.

A business meeting was held and goodbyes were said until another class reunion which will be held in June 1986.

Classmates attending were Cleo Brown, Vera Lee Sneed, Walter Onken, and Leland Mills, all of Winters.

Also, Emma Jean Terry and Marvin Jones of San Angelo; Helen Wilson and Emily Mathis of San Antonio; Margaret Brandt of McGregor; R.L. Wood of Jacksonville; Mary Lee Heirman of Abilene; and Harlan Harman of Brownsboro, Alabama.

Visitors were Roy Terry, JoAnn Mills, Ben Brandt, Helen Onken, Kathryn Jones, Gwen Wood, Cecil Wood from Azle, and Mr. and Mrs. Neuman Smith of Ballinger.

Federal Reserve lawsuits filed

Senator John Melcher of Montana has announced his intervention in a lawsuit against the Federal Reserve Board. The suit is concerned with the Federal Open Market Committee, a group which regulates the supply of money in the United States.

Melcher contends that the committee, by controlling the money supply, "affects the value of U.S. currency, foreign exchange rates, interest rates, investment and employment throughout the U.S."

Melcher's main complaint is about the make-up of the committee and the lack of review of their decisions by any other governmental agency or branch.

According to a news release by Melcher's office, "The Federal Open Market Committee was established in the Glass-Steagall Act of 1935. Its 12 members are composed of the seven Federal Reserve Board of Governors, who are appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, with the remaining five members selected by the nation's 12 Federal Reserve Banks."

The latter five members were not appointed by the President, nor confirmed by the Senate, yet their

Cancer Crusade reaches goal

The North Runnels Unit of the American Cancer Society reached their goal of $7,945 in an effort to better their best in their fundraising campaigns.

A spokesperson said, "We want to express our thanks to so many people who had a part in this. There were so many involved it would be almost impossible to mention everyone. There were the business people of the town, the captains of the town and rural area, the crusaders who walked those many blocks, and the rural area had so many miles to cover.

"The Literary and Service Club donated so generously, and the Sub-Deb girls worked so hard on the street blockade. It really was a team effort, and we want each contributor to feel pride in a job well done. One day when we have a cure (and we will), we will all feel so very proud to have had a part," she concluded.

Saving Water in Laundering

Much of our household water use takes place in the laundry room. While doing laundry is one of those necessities of life, wasting water in the process is not.

Dana Craddock, Runnels County Extension home economist, has several suggestions for reducing the amount of water used for laundry:

Many washing machines use the same amount of water for a half-full load as for a full load. So loading your washer to its rated capacity is one of the best ways to save not only water, but energy and time.

Most washing machines use 40-60 gallons of water for a regular cycle, which is on the average about 12-18 gallons more than the permanent press cycle. Selecting the appropriate cycle for the type of clothes you are washing can be a water saver.

Newer washing machines have a variety of water-saving features built into their design. Make sure you are making full use of features such as setting the water level for different size loads.

Reducing the number of loads of laundry done can also conserve water. Encourage children to change into play clothes after school so that school clothes and play clothes can be worn several times between washings. Also make sure that clothes really need washing.

Items that need to be handwashed, such as hosiery or lingerie, should be accumulated so that several things can be washed at once.

Finally, think about water use when you select new laundry equipment. Water-saving features, such as a choice of water levels, should be considered in future purchase decisions.

Battling mesquite

Late spring and early summer is the time of the year to aerially apply liquid herbicides for controlling mesquite and associated brush species, provided growing conditions are good, notes a range brush and weed control specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Mesquite kill is highest when soil moisture is good and plants are growing vigorously with plenty of foliage. Also, soil temperature at 18 inches should be 75 degrees F. or above at spraying time.

Registered herbicides for mesquite control are 2,4,5-T; picloram (Grazon PC) and 2,4,5-T mixed one-to-one; and a one-to-one mix of dicamba (Banvel) and 2,4,5-T.

Whole grain bread claims

Health-conscious consumers often reach for breads that claim to have "natural whole grain goodness." However, the nutrition labels on these breads often reveal that they contain some whole wheat and whole rye flour, but unenriched, bleached wheat flour is the primary ingredient, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Mary K. Sweeten.

The protein content of these breads may be boosted with wheat gluten, soy flour and wheat solids. Molasses is often added to sweeten and the molasses or caramel coloring helps achieve a darker "whole grain" appearance. "These breads are not necessarily inferior to whole wheat breads," says Sweeten, "but the shopper should not be misled by claims or appearances."

Whole wheat bread must contain only whole wheat flour.

West Texas Business

By Jerry Lackey

The West Texas economy would show a major upturn with a good general rain, no doubt. However, some optimism is obvious in coffee shop circles as signs of slow recovery shows in the energy industry.

Particularly good news for the folks in the Permian Basin is the active rig counts on the increase. Odessa reports latest rig count at 322. That number is up from 257 for the same time last year.

This news is reflected in several ways for the total West Texas business community as jobs are available and pay checks filter throughout our economy. Labor force is up in Midland (68,200) and Odessa (73,400).

"Gasoline prices have climbed in response to a firming of demand, and natural gas prices continue to advance," according to Douglas J. Manifold, an energy economist reporting in Texas Business. "Low crude oil prices, however, remain a hindrance to a full industry recovery."

"During the past 10 years, as U.S. oil producers, especially those in Texas, have come more and more under the influence of OPEC, the continuing erosion of real wellhead oil prices has resulted in a triple threat to the Texas economy. Lower prices discourage investment in new fields. This in turn reduces the number of jobs in the industry and adds to the state's unemployment problems."

So, it would appear that with good news there is always bad. I live for the day when the combination does not command the day. Of course, we are always ahead of the game when the "good" outweighs the "bad", but my luck has it the other way around.

Across the state, the economic growth is "cooling down" after record gains in various indicators of economic activity earlier this year.

"Personal income is expected to begin a decline this spring due to a scheduled $16 billion reduction in payments to farmers under the government's payment-in-kind program," predicts Deborah G. Jones, an economic analyst.

Retail sales overall for Texas are brisk as consumers are now spending more on goods that they put off buying during the long recession. However, that picture does not hold true for our region. With a lingering threat of drought which directly affects agri-business and indirectly affects everyone else, retail sales are based on purchase of necessities only. At the same time, because of the increased activities in energy, retail spending is not down overall.

Unemployment in our region and the state continues to be far below that of the previous year. San Angelo's latest figures show unemployment at 3.8 percent, down from 5.5 this time last year. Lubbock is 5.7 percent, down from 6.3 the previous year; Midland stands at 5 percent, down from 5.6; Odessa reports 5.3 percent now, compared to 8.7 this time last year; and Abilene is down to 4.5 percent from 5.6.

A number of new businesses have started up in West Texas. History recalls that many new businesses come into being during times of recession. Many do not make it while others grow into large companies in time. The latest contribution is a result of the high-tech industry.

We are living in the "information age" now. I have to keep reminding myself of this as I travel the region and see office buildings springing up in every direction. Most new businesses provide to clients a special service that was not a part of our culture two years ago. My business, Lackey Communications, Inc., was started four years ago to provide print communications through the media. We started West Texas Business two years ago and discovered such magazines were a national trend. Well, I don't know why I got off on that. I just thought it was a prime example as to what is happening in business today.

Texas in general is sustaining a moderate pace of new business openings. The U.S. averaged 5,000 more new businesses each month in 1983 than in 1982. Business borrowing is putting upward pressure on interest rates. The Federal Reserve notes that businesses are borrowing heavily to finance new equipment and the construction of new plants, according to Texas Business magazine research.

Would you say that the good news outweighs the bad, despite not getting a general rain?

Absher receives appointment

Gary V. Absher, recently interim postmaster in Winters, has been appointed the new Postmaster at Santa Anna, effective June 9, Sectional Center Manager/Postmaster Norman R. Adamson, Sr., of Waco, announced.

Absher, age 37, is a native of Roscoe and has served as Superintendent of Window Services in San Angelo for the past four years. He served the Winters office before the appointment of Benny Drye.

Postmaster selections are made on the basis of merit from a list of qualified candidates submitted to the Sectional Center Manager by a Review Committee. The Review Committee, composed of a Sectional Center Director from the same sectional center, a Postmaster from the same sectional center, and a Sectional Center Director from a different sectional center, review the applicants for the position and recommend to the Sectional Center Manager those candidates who best meet the position requirements. The Sectional Center Manager then selects and recommends to the Postmaster General the best qualified person for appointment to the vacancy.

Absher received an Associate Degree in Business from New Mexico Junior College and graduated from New Mexico Military Academy. He is active in the American Legion, Toastmasters, P.T.A., and is Coordinator of the Concho Valley Stamp Club.

He is a coach for the San Angelo Soccer Association and is a referee for the North Texas Soccer Association. He is a member of the Church of Christ. He and his wife Teresa have two sons: Dennis, age 14, and Toby, age 12.

The oath of office was administered on Thursday, June 7, at the Santa Anna Post Office.

Local boys serve at Boy Scout's Camp Tonkawa

Four local youths will be on the staff of the Boy Scout's Camp Tonkawa located 15 miles south of Abilene near the State Park. Scott Shifflett and Otto Cortez will work in the trading post, while James Carrillo and Richard Barnett will work in the kitchen.

Camp began June 10, but the staff began work last week training for their respective jobs.

About 90 Boy Scouts and their adult leaders from eight troops located in Aspermont, Eula, Sweetwater, and Abilene are attending the first week of camp. Activities include swimming, canoeing, rowing, lifesaving, archery, marksmanship, gun safety, camping, pioneering, campfire programs, and crafts. Each troop puts up its tents and camps under its own leadership.

The third week of camp, June 24-30, one troop is designated as "provisional," and Scouts may come without a leader, or come back for another week. Tex Wright of Santa Anna will serve as scoutmaster of the provisional troop this year.

The three weeks of Scout camp will be followed by Cub Scout Day Camp. The dates are July 9-12 and July 16-19. Jean Meers serves as Day Camp Director. The theme this year is "Under the Big Top."

Eagle Mountain, a training experience for youth troop leaders, will be held from July 7-14, on the Matthews Ranch in the historic area of Fort Griffin. Ronnie Cheek is scoutmaster for olds in the class and six 6-year-olds. The program is one of enrichment for the children that concentrates on listening and following directions.

Summer enrichment

Several field trips are planned including picking apricots and making preserves.

Fallacies & Facts

Fallacy: Most people believe that all those strips of rubber tread that lie beside roads and highways come from retread tires.

Fact: About half of the rubber on the road comes from new tires. Nearly all rubber on the road comes from truck tires and is caused by underinflation and tire abuse, not poor quality. The fact is that retread tires are a sensible, economical alternative to the high price of new tires—50 to 70 percent of the cost of a new tire. Retreading is the way airlines, truckers, taxi companies, the military and millions of cost-conscious motorists reduce their tire expenses. Because of retreading, nearly 50 million tires will be recycled this year. That means more than one and one-half billion pounds of rubber will not become part of our solid waste disposal problem.

Hot, in a hurry

Winters firemen quickly extinguished a gasoline fire last Tuesday evening at the Wes-T-Go convenience store after a customer attempted to drive away without removing the gas nozzle from his car.

A store attendant said that customer had paid for the fuel, and was leaving when the accident occurred. Damage was confined to the pump and to paint on the awning and its support. Store officials said that the pump was replaced within a few days and was back in operation.

Kidnapping trial to begin Friday

Testimony is due to begin at 9 a.m. Friday morning in 119th. District Court in Ballinger in the kidnapping trial of 24-year-old Martin Martinez of Winters.

The jury selection for the trial was completed Monday.

Martinez is accused in the March 27 kidnapping attempt at the Crown Burger in Ballinger.

Spokesmen in the Runnels County Sheriff's Department said that a man broke into the hamburger stand and attempted to drag a 16-year-old girl from the store.

Martinez was arrested in South Winters by officers who stopped a vehicle fitting the description of the one that fled the scene of the incident in Ballinger.

Potential waste site to be checked in Garza County

John E. Simek, Chairman of the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority, announced last week that the Authority has obtained an option to explore a 175-acre tract of land in Garza County, located approximately two miles south of Calgary, Texas.

The Authority will begin drilling within a few days to determine underlying geological formations and ground water conditions. Preliminary archaeological, wildlife, and plant surveys will also be performed on the site. Purchase of the land will depend on the results of the site exploration work.

Three of the five sites failed to meet the strict technical criteria established by the Authority. The other potential site is located in Dimmit County, three miles south of Asherton, Texas. The Authority is continuing its search for other suitable sites.

The Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority is a state agency which was created in 1981 to develop a site for the disposal of low-level radioactive wastes generated in Texas. Low-level radioactive waste includes materials contaminated with radioactivity from hospitals, laboratories, and other industries which handle or process radioactive materials, but does not include spent fuel from nuclear power plants.

The Garza County site will be the fifth tract of land which the Authority has examined in detail.

CREDIT CARD GUIDELINES

For many Texans credit cards are an every day convenience. But credit cards can be a major headache when they are used improperly or when the card company's computer makes an error in your bill.

The best advice for credit card users is to keep a copy of each receipt and compare receipts with charges when you receive your bill. If you find an error, you should attempt to settle the dispute as soon as possible.

If you have a complaint about your bill, the company may not close your account prior to doing the above and sending you a written explanation of your account. You will have at least 10 days from the time you receive the explanation to pay the disputed amount. After that time, the company can declare your account delinquent and report that information to third parties. However, the law says the company must also report that the bill is in dispute, and must give the consumer written notice if the delinquency is reported to third parties.

If the dispute is later resolved, the creditor must notify the same parties of the resolution.

If your credit card company allows you to pay the full balance without payment of a finance charge, the company must give you at least 14 days from the date the bill is mailed to pay that bill.

FOR MORE HELP

If you feel that you have been treated unfairly by a credit card company after following the procedures outlined above, you may contact my Consumer Protection Division for assistance. There are Consumer Protection offices in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Lubbock, McAllen, and San Antonio. The Attorney General's office is the people's law firm. We're here to help you.

Winters receives sales tax check

The City of Winters has received a check for $8,560.12 representing a return of the one per cent tax on sales made in April and reported to State Comptroller Bob Bullock by May 20. Last year in June, Winters received $9,268.85.

Ballinger's check was for $13,014.31, up considerably from last year's $7,303.27. Miles did not receive a check during June this year or last.

Ballinger's sales are running 9.78 per cent ahead of last year's; Winters' are 0.84 per cent ahead.

For the month, Brownwood, Robert Lee, Coleman, Eden, San Angelo, Abilene, and Tuscola received larger checks than they did last year. Early, Bronte, Buffalo Gap, and Santa Anna received less.

On a yearly basis, sales are better this year than last in Brownwood, Early, Bronte, Buffalo Gap, Robert Lee, Coleman, Eden, Ballinger, Winters, Abilene, Tuscola, and San Angelo. Santa Anna's sales have dropped from last year's.

988 Texas cities collect the local sales tax along with four transit authorities.

Bullock said the city checks totaled $52 million. "So far this year, we've sent these cities a little over $400 million, which is more than 13 per cent better than what they had gotten by this time last year," Bullock said.

COMPLAINTS

Brucellosis declining in Texas

Texas livestock producers continue to make progress in their efforts to control brucellosis, Robert Bartlett, Canton, chairman, Texas Animal Health Commission, reports.

Bartlett noted that infection rates throughout the state are continuing to decline, and calfhood vaccinations are continuing to increase. Under the brucellosis program, this state is divided into a Class B Area and a Class C Area. The Class B Area is in the western half of the state containing 141 counties, and the Class C Area is the eastern half of the state containing 113 counties.

"In the Class B Area, where brucellosis is less of a problem than in Class C, there are only 144 infected herds out of a total of 59,272 herds. That represents only 24 per cent herd infection rate. This is the lowest herd infection rate since the inception of the Class B and Class C areas back in 1980," Bartlett said.

In the Class C Area, the herd infection rate is 1.68 percent of the 102,625 herds in Class C, 1,729 are under quarantine, Bartlett noted, as of February records.

Calfhood vaccinations continue to increase statewide. Compared to the first six months of fiscal year 1983, this fiscal year shows a 30 percent increase in calfhood vaccinations, Bartlett said. A total of 769,514 calves had been vaccinated in the first six months of fiscal year 1984 compared to 591,497 in the first six months of fiscal year 1983.

For all of 1983, slightly more than 1 million calves were vaccinated. "In the first six months of fiscal year 1984, producers have vaccinated three-fourths as many calves as they did in all of 1983," Bartlett said.

Special attention is being paid to a 33-county area of the state in which about half of the state's known infection of brucellosis is located. It includes 32 counties in East Texas and one county in South Texas. "In that area, there have been almost as many calves vaccinated in the first six months of fiscal year 1984 than there were in all of fiscal year 1983," Bartlett said. Figures show that in the first six months of fiscal year 1984 a total of 238,127 calves have been vaccinated in the 33-county area compared to 267,135 in all of fiscal year 1983.
