That planned new lake is dominating the talk around in several areas, except here.

If we don't look out, the folks in Coleman may flat steal it from us.

After all, the dam will be built in Coleman County but, the lake will be closer to Runnels County than most anywhere.

Ballinger has had some to do about the lake and so have Abilene and San Angelo. Coleman, however, is already trying to make plans to latch onto the lake.

Seriously though, this entire area will stand to benefit from Stacy Dam. Construction is expected to begin in the spring of 1987, two years from now.

The entire region could benefit from the giant lake and our folks here need to get in the line that is already forming. Abilene is much further away than we are and they are up towards the head of the line.

Sure, we have plenty of water here. We could benefit from the economic effects of the lake and what will develop around it.

My state rep is trying to get on shaky ground with me. He has agreed with Attorney General Jim on something.

In his update from Austin, the representative he says, "the attorney general has decided to publish the names of fathers delinquent on child support payments."

Mr. Parker continues by saying, "Child support has long been a serious problem in this state and it is amazing how many fathers, and a few mothers, simply ignore their obligation to support their offspring. Mattox's decision to publish names will certainly bring the harsh light of public awareness to an area that has long been overlooked."

I don't disagree with the issue itself. But I still have a question.

Why do many of the courts and the state's top lawyer continue to overlook other parts of a court decree? How about if the attorney general publishes the names of parents that have custody of offspring who deny the other parents the right to have a part in the lives of their children?

Recently a series of public hearings were conducted around the state to discuss the rights of visitation and how to deal with it. The attorney general has still not returned my calls asking why not enforce the decree of the courts completely, maybe he doesn't know.

Sales tax checks received by cities

State Comptroller Bob Bullock last Thursday sent checks totaling $56.8 million in local sales tax payments to the 1,003 cities that levy the onepercent city tax.

Winters received $7,066.62, down from last year's $9,115.67. Ballinger's check was for $9,076.26, also down from the $10,171.07 received last year. Miles received $916.87, up from last year's $815.50.

The checks represent taxes collected on sales made in May and reported to the Comptroller by June 20.

To date, Winters has received $66,459.64. Sales are running 4.66 percent behind here. Ballinger has received $183,976.09, and sales there are down 0.90 percent. Miles has received $5,162.26, up 21.39 percent from last year.

For May, sales were up compared to last year's in Brownwood, Early, Coleman, Buffalo Gap, Tuscola, and San Angelo, but down in Abilene

For the year, sales are running ahead in Brownwood, Abilene, Buffalo Gap, Tuscola, and San Angelo, but are behind in Early and Coleman.

WISD tax increase 10 percent below state average

State aid to local schools increased by $1 billion last year to a total of $4.6 billion. To pay for it, the special session of the legislature last summer enacted the largest tax bill in the state's history.

Not to be outdone, school trustees in the 1,068 local school districts levied the largest school property tax increase in history—$519 million—for a total tax bill of $4.1 billion.

Locally, the Winters Independent School District's tax levy was increased by 4 percent for 1984-85 as compared to a 14.3 percent increase for the average school district in Texas.

Some of the figures come from the latest issue of Bench Marks for 1985-86 School District Budgets in Texas, an annual publication of the Texas Research League, an Austinbased, educational corporation engated in governmental research. Other figures come from Winters ISD Business Manager Johnny Bob Smith.

School budgets adopted last year called for spending $3,103 per student for current operations. Winters School District's budget provided for $3,166 per student based on the 824.60 students in average daily attendance in 1983-84.

The Winters School administration said the ADA, average daily attendance, has risen steadily over the past three years. The 1982-83 school year had an ADA of 761.35 students, 1983-84 ADA was 824.60 and the past school year had an average daily attendance of 870.69 students.

Four of each five of these dollars were spent for salaries. Statewide, payroll expense averaged $2,487 per student, as compared to $1,879.84 in the Winters ISD. Payroll expense is a combination of salary levels and staffing patterns.

The average salary for classroom teachers paid by the Winters ISD in 1983-84 was $17,151. The average among all school districts in Texas was $20,117 per classroom teacher.

There was an average of one teacher for 16.1 students in the Winters school district compared to a statewide pupil-teacher ratio of 1 to 16.2. Because of small classes, especially at the high school level, and abbreviated teaching schedules, many classes have more than the average number of students. The new law requires no more than 22 students in kindergarten, first, or second grade classes next year.

School property tax rates in 1984-85 average $0.662 per $100 of market value (selling price). The school tax on a property selling for $100,000 was $622 in the average school district. Locally, the rate on market value in the Winters ISD was $0.88 or $880 on a property selling for $100,000.

If the property were a homestead or owned by a senior citizen, the school tax would be less because of various exemptions. Open-space land that qualified would be valued on its productivity value rather than market value.

Revenue lost from exemptions totaled $780 million, which was $99.5 million more than the total for the previous year. To balance school budgets, the revenue loss from exemptions was imposed upon other taxpayers in the school district.

As compared to the billiondollar increase in state aid last year, only $129 million more state funds will be distributed to schools next year. Only 492 districts will get more; the other 576 districts will receive less. This strategy to equalize presupposes that local property taxes will remain about the same. However, the large property tax increase last year, the report concludes, substantially negated the equalization improvement that the legislature tried to achieve.

National Night Out set for August 13

People who are fed up with crime should make plans to join in the 1985 National "Night Out" scheduled for August 13. Neighborhoods across the country will light up against crime that evening starting at 8 p.m. Families and friends will sit on lawns or front porches of their homes and apartments to observe any suspicious activity in their neighborhoods and to serve as an extension of the eyes and ears of local law enforcement agencies. The project will highlight the value and importance of law enforcementcommunity crime prevention programs and crime watch efforts, notes a community development specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Winters ISD hires teachers

The Winters Independent School District Board of Trustees met in regular session July 9 for the consideration of personnel and other items of business. The board accepted the resignation of Coach Mack Lingo, a junior high coach. He and his wife Earlene have accepted positions with the Methodist Home in Waco.

Foy and Mary Sue Owens, who had been offered contracts after last month's board meeting, did not accept them; so their positions were declared open.

The men also voted to offer contracts to five teachers, at state base pay and subject to assignment: Shelly D. Salling, Dawn Bryan, Katherine Gonzales, and Jeanne Williams for the elementary school, and Dana Moore for the secondary school.

Gasoline bids for the coming school year were opened: Gene Wheat of Bob Loyd's had the low bid. The milk bid of Gandy's Dairies of Abilene was accepted. Winters State Bank was awarded the Depository Pledge Contract for two years. Lunch prices were to have been set at the meeting, but were not because all the necessary information from the state has not been received.

An Abilene architectural firm, Weatherl and Welch, was hired for consultation on the old gym. The board has been considering the best means of solving a problem with excessive condensation of moisture in the structure.

Travel and expense guidelines for the vocational and instructional staffs were set.

The five-year plan was approved, as was a pre-kindergarten program for four-yearolds. All qualified applicants for the pre-kindergarten must be identified by August 10.

A public hearing was scheduled on the use of Block Grant Funds, but no one came.

Budget amendments were on the agenda, but were not necessary at that time.

The August board meeting will be held in conjunction with a budget hearing on Monday, August 19.

The new budget was discussed, and the men spoke of holding back expenses as much as possible. The district has lost several million in ag values, and did not receive an increase in oil values; so evaluation is down, they learned.

-Board member Bryan was absent from the meeting.

Apply soon for prekindergarten

Winters Elementary School is currently taking applications for four-year-olds to attend a new pre-kindergarten class which is beginning this fall.

"It is imperative that all qualified applicants be identified by August 10," said L.C. Hounsel, Elementary Principal; so parents need to apply soon.

To be eligible for the class, a child must be four years old on or before September 1 and must either speak limited English or be from a low-income family.

The students will attend school one-half day. The classes are free of charge.

To enroll a child in the program, or for further information, call Mr. Hounsel at 754-4031 or 754-4037.

Crunch

Property damage was heavy but there were no injuries last week when this pick up, owned by B's Construction was in collision with a bob-tail truck from Waco.

The pick up was driven by Ronnie Marks, of Winters and the truck, which belonged to Esco LTD. of Waco, was driven by Donald Anderson of McGregor.

The accident occurred when the pick up turning left off the Bronte highway and the truck attempted to pass the pick up.

Warts caused by viruses, not toads

For almost as long as people have been getting warts, rumor has placed the blame on the low ly frog.

However, warts are caused by viruses, says the Texas Medical Association. The virus invades skin cells and causes them to multiply quickly, causing a lump on the skin. Warts are contagious and can be spread by direct contact with another person or indirectly.

Most warts disappear naturally. However, salicylic acid is effective against common and plantar warts.

People over 45 who develop warts should see a physician, as they may be skin cancer.

For the treatment of warts, doctors may prescribe more effective wart creams. If this fails, the doctor can remove the wart by scraping it, freezing it with liquid nitrogen, or by burning it with electricity.

A special thanks to Pastor Gary Turner, Pastor Steven Byrne, and the congregations of the Methodist and Lutheran churches, and all my friends and relatives who have all done so much for my family and myself. Everyone has been so thought-Without you, life itself would be difficult. May God richly bless all of you. With Love.

Heat illness risk is higher for children

During summer weather children playing outside run the risk of heat exhaustion.

Children run a higher risk for several reasons, says Dr. Mary Ann Heussner, a health education specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. Children are prone to heat illnesses because they have more skin surface for each pound they weigh than adults, so they ab-

Two items of interest this week, in light of earlier columns dealing with the subjects, are #1. the court decision on the "no pass, no play" rule, and #2, the Attorney General's decision to publish names of fathers delinquent in child support payments.

Item 1 is, of course, a continuation of the controversy generated by the education "reform" legislation known as H.B. 72. It required a public school student to pass all courses with a 70 to participate in extracurricular activities. A law suit was filed in a Houston court and this "no pass, no play" rule was declared unconstitutional on the grounds that it violated the equal protection and due process requirements of the Constitution.

The Texas Supreme Court, in an opinion rendered this week. has ruled that the "no pass, no play" rule is not unconstitutional and is in fact "good law." Opponents of the rule have already stated that the state court ruling will be appealed into Federal court. The only conclusion that can be gleaned from all of this activity is that somewhere one or more lawyers are wearing a smile and looking forward to economic security for awhile

After examining the scores turned in by the students taking the sample high school exit test. the "hard-liners" may be correct.

If our graduating seniors are, in fact, woefully inadequate academically, perhaps we need to totally eliminate extracurricular activities.

It seems that everytime one forms an opinion, based on the most recent factual data, something occurs that indicates that position is totally incorrect. Surely the truth of the matter and the best interests of the students lie somewhere in the middle ground, if only we can discover that middle ground. Time is bringing a better perspective to the issue.

Item 2 I find very interesting. Jim Mattox, the Attorney General, has decided to publish the names of fathers delinquent on child support payments. Child support has long been a serious problem in this state and it is amazing how many fathers, and a few mothers, simply ignore their obligation to support their offspring. Mattox's decision to publish names will certainly bring the harsh light of public awareness to an area that has long been overlooked.

We also received two-tenths of an inch of rain, while some others reported getting three-tenths, but again no hail, just another good yard and garden shower.

The electricity was off about 30 minutes, maybe a little longer, but that is all that has been reported around Blackwell. However, Oak Creek Lake was really damaged from the storm that hit there; people were really clearing away brush and limbs around their places. Not much pig to eat U.S. grain sorghum? The first lesson is to put it (grain sorghum) in his feed trough. The second is to teach Chinese hog producers the economics of high grain rations and the nutritional value of U.S. sorghum. Those lessons are being taught through sorghum promotion projects funded by U.S. grain sorghum farmers. The pigs are learning fast.

Sorghum has never been considered a livestock feed in China. A sorghum promotion team conducted educational seminars on the use of U.S. sorghum for Chinese pork producers last September. Since that time, tional Chinese ration. Three difswine feeding projects have ferent breeds were compared at

How do you teach a Chinese demonstrate the lessons taught in the seminars.

> The seminars were conducted jointly by the Sorghum Promotion Fund of the National Grain Sorghum Producers Association (NGSPA) and U.S. Feed Grains Council. Both organizations are financed by grain sorghum farmers through checkoff programs in Nebraska, Kansas and the Texas High Plains. The feeding trials, conducted by the Council, used grain sorghum furnished and shipped by Nebraska farmers through the Nebraska Grain Sorghum Board.

The trials compared corn and sorghum rations to the tradibeen conducted in China to the same time. The Landrace crosses had the highest growth rate followed by Duroc crosses with the Guangdong local breed showing the poorest grains.

The sorghum and corn rations produced definitely better feed conversions and average daily gains than the Chinese diet of garbage supplemented with green forages. In a second trial, sorghum diets showed better performance than corn, although the difference was not of major significance. Sorghum-fed pigs showed more fat in carcass analysis than other diets. That is unusual since sorghum normally produces slightly leaner pork.

In general, the feeding demonstrations have provided the Chinese a new method of pig production, using high energy diets to obtain maxium growth rates and feed conversions. The average time from weaning to market with this system required only four and one-half months, compared to one year for the traditional Chinese diet.

The trial also showed sorghum to be more insectresistant than corn. That quality is very important in China, where storage is inadequate or orimitive.

China has a billion people. The Chinese government officials admit they must increase livestock production rapidly in order to supply the growing demand for meat, milk and eggs.

The Chinese hog population has reached 300 million, the highest of any country in the world. The potential for U.S. sorghum sales is tremendous, but swine production management, nutrition, genetics and entire feeding systems must be developed. The U.S. Feed Grains Council is working to help bring this about. National Grain Sorghum Producers Association-supported by the sorghum checkoff boards of Texas, Nebraska and Kansasworks with the Council to teach the Chinese the value of U.S. grain sorghum.

Texas farmers will be voting in a statewide referendum in August to see if they want to expand this type of work. If farmers approve, up to one cent per hundred pounds will be invested in the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board (TGSPB) promotion efforts.

The TGSPB assessment is voluntary in that farmers have the option of participating or not. Refunds are paid promptly to those who request them. Currently, a 19-county area in the Texas High Plains is supporting the sorghum promotion work. Farmers in other Texas counties will receive ballots after July 20 to vote on the proposition to expand the checkoff statewide. The ballots must be postmarked for return by August 15. Texas farmers can call toll-free 1-800-692-4169 for referendum information.

No risk of AIDS in blood donation

The Texas Medical Association says that because of precautions taken, there is no AIDS risk in giving blood and there appears to be virtually no risk in receiving blood and blood products.

Of the 30 million units of blood transfused during the past three years, only 15 cases of AIDS have been linked to transfusion of whole blood, the TMA says.

AIDS is acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

presented award

The Coalition For Peace Through Strength recently presented Congressman Charles Stenholm with the National Security Leadership Award in recognition of his leading role on a variety of defense and foreign policy issues.

The Coalition of Peace Through Strength is a bipartisan alliance of pro-defense leaders including 241 members of the U.S. House and Senate and 162 national organizations. The American Security Council Foundation serves as the educational coordinator of the Coalition for Peace Through Strength.

John M. Fisher, American Security Council Foundation President, said, "It was with great pride and satisfaction that the members of the U.S. Congressional Advisory Board saw this National Security Leadership Award presented to Congressman Stenholm. He has always been in the forefront of those Members of Congress who knows that a strong America is a secure America. He knows that weakness only invites aggression and that only a national strategy of peace through strength will insure this nation's security.'

The award was presented to Congressman Stenholm by Rear Adm. Robert H. Spiro (USN Ret.), the Executive Director of Reserve Officer's Association.

Charles Stenholm Constructing farm ponds

According to the Soil Conservation Service, Runnels County has approximately 1,250 manmade ponds. These ponds were constructed primarily to collect and store water for livestock; however many side benefits are realized by the landowner and others who have access to these ponds.

Some benefits directly related to the use of the land are erosion control, better grazing management, lawn and garden irrigation, fish production, field spraying, and fire protection.

These ponds also attract many kinds of wildlife for the hunter- waterfowl, turkey, dove and deer. For the trapper, raccoon, opossum, fox and bobcat are possible visitors to the pond. Of course the fisherman, with a little advance management, can enjoy catching fish such as perch, crappie, bass and catfish.

The surrounding areas of some ponds have been devel oped into attractive places for picnics, games and camp sites. The larger ponds may provide for swimming and boating.

Recent rains have replenished the water levels in most of the county ponds and should offer encouragement to those who have been considering a pond to go ahead with plans to construct

Two types of farm ponds are commonly constructed. The em bankment type uses a dam to store water but is infrequently used now since most of the desirable sites have been used.

The damless or excavated type pond, as the name implies, stores water in a pit below the normal ground level and is the easiest to build. The soil from the excavated pond in some sites may be placed to impound more

In planning to construct a pond, one must consider several things. First, the site must have impervious subsoils such as fine, textured clays to the planned depth of the pond. Most farm ponds are located in a depression or draw, but in some cases. clay material can only be found on a hill side. There it would be necessary to divert runoff water to the pond with terraces.

Second, another necessity is enough drainage area above the proposed site to keep the pond supplied with runoff water. As a general guide in Runnels County, it takes about 35 acres of drainage area to supply one acre-foot of pond storage.

Third, the drainage area should be rangeland or pastureland with a good grass cover. If cultivated land is near the pond site and contributes to the runoff, it is recommended a grass filter strip be planted above the entry way to the pond. Its purpose .- to remove silt from the water before it enters the pond.

The excavated pond most commonly constructed in Run nels County approximates 4,000 cubic yards in volume. A conical pond with 142 foot top diameter, 3.5 to 1 slide slopes, 30 foot bot tom diameter, 16 feet deep, and a volume of 3,928 cubic yards will provide a store of 2.44 acrefeet of water. The surface area of the pit would be 0.36 acre; but in selecting a site one should plan for at least an area of 1.25 acres to accommodate placing of the excavated material. This particular pond should have a runoff drainage of at least 85

The Ballinger Field Office of the Soil Conservation Service, cooperating with the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District, can provide technical assistance in the survey and design of farm ponds.
