Wait a minute...

By Kerry Craig

We are losing another good friend to progress. There are a number of reasons for our loss.

Those reasons include ambition, dedication to duty, a desire to improve one's station in life and, there are other reasons.

Small communities, such as ours, often find it difficult to maintain a full-staffed police department, one that is well trained and totally dedicated.

Another problem that now faces these small communities is that they must, according to state law, employ currently certified police officers. There is no more hiring a new officer, paying for his certification school to meet state standards, and then losing him to a better paying position elsewhere.

Our council, after cutting the budget to the bone, will be faced with paying the price for a certified police officer, or trying to continue with an understaffed department.

Richard the Cop is going on to bigger and better things.

While we are losing a good police officer and having a good friend leave our community, we can only wish him the best in his new endeavor.

Talking about cops, there have been many arrests for possession of controlled substances lately. Not only around here but all over the place.

It is really surprising what some officials consider contraband, under the law. The amounts of stuff confiscated is staggering to the imagination.

In one area recently there were over 10 tons of illegal plants confiscated by authorities.

All this illegal plant product will soon be set on fire in an effort to stop the illegal trafficking of the pungent plant.

In talking about the government's concern about the increasing amounts of the illegal produce flooding the market, one high government official ordered the destruction of the substance.

Customs officials said that in the past month alone, over 10 tons of the smuggled plant was confiscated.

Fortunately, these big-time busts didn't happen in our county. They didn't even happen in our state. This occurred in Indonesia (that is somewhere in Asia, I think).

One can only speculate that these government officials are trying to simulate what officials here are doing in trying to shut down illegal drug traffic.

If the officials in our country had laws similar to Indonesia to enforce, it could have traumatic effects on nearly every kitchen around.

While our laws prohibit marijuana, cocaine, heroin, and the like, this country produces about 53,000 tons of garlic a year.

Now can you imagine garlic being an illegal substance?

There were a bunch of folks at the football game Friday. This week we stay at home. Then it is back on the road again. Hope we keep the large cheering section for those games away from home.

See you at the game.

Fund established to help youth

A special fund has been established at the Winters State Bank for Dustin Bates. The nine-year old boy was transferred, by air ambulance, Monday to a Houston hospital for treatment of a severe form of leukemia.

Dustin is the grandson of Troy and Billie Foster. Troy is a barber in Winters.

Donations may be left at the Winters State Bank or at any of a number of collection points being set up in Winters.

Blizzards defeat Indians in district

The Winters Blizzards soundly defeated the Jim Ned Indians in their first game in district 8-AA play.

The win over Jim Ned marked the first win for the Blizzards this season. It was the first time for the Indians to get on the score board this season.

Coach Dan Slaughter called the win a "sloppy win." The Blizzards offense was ragged at first and then, gradually, started putting things together to score the win.

Slaughter said, "When we got the ball the first time, on their turnover, we drove it down and scored. We looked good on that drive. I don't know whether we backed off and decided it was going to be easy, or what happened to us, but we just couldn't function well, we would move the offense in spurts but not consistently."

The Blizzards let two additional scoring opportunities slip by them during the first half of play in Tuscola. At one point the Blizzards got down inside the Indians' 20-yard line and a penalty pushed them back out and killed a chance at the end-zone.

Winters racked up more penalties in the game with Jim Ned than they had received in the entire season. Slaughter said, "We got some very crucial penalties in the ball game that hurt our offense bad." Winters was penalized nine times for about 90 yards in the game and the penalties nullified several good plays and at least one touchdown.

The coach said, "We're still self-destructing too much offensively, with the penalties and the fumbles and interceptions, they're just wiping us out. We're going to have to hang on to that football and get more consistent about moving it."

Slaughter said, in response to a question about the large number of penalties in the game, that "most of the penalties were for blocking incorrectly, a kid has a habit of running up and putting a shoulder into somebody and then when he gets through he pushes with his hands. Well, that is an illegal block when he pushes with his hands. We're hoping, maybe, we're going to get that straightened out."

Offensively, in the game, the standout players, according to the coach included Frank Davis with 23 carries for 113 yards. John Peter DeLa Cruz had 15 carries for 75 yards and had another 50 yards, including one touchdown, called back because of penalties. Chris Reeves racked up 65 yards on a running play right through the line. Other offensive players with outstanding performances included Eddie Trevino Kevin Halfmann and Scott Shifflett.

The Blizzards will host the Wall Hawks this Friday. The Hawks, according to Slaughter, look to be very similar to the Blizzards. Wall is coming off wins over Ozona and Cross Plains.

"It looks to me like it ought to be a very good match-up between the two of us," Slaughter said. "When you look at the film, they have got good size and good speed, it is just a game where, when you match personnel up, it looks very even all the way across."

In looking at Winters' district, Slaughter sized things up like this, "You have got to give your top three. Your first one would have to be Goldthwaite, then Bangs or San Saba is fighting for that second spot. Coleman and Wall look good for the third place along with Winters and Cross Plains and Jim Ned trailing in the district race."

The coach said this week's game could be a very important morale booster for both teams.

Hamburger Supper set for Friday night

Directors of the Winters Area Chamber of Commerce will be cooking hamburgers Friday night before the Wall and Winters football game. A new Wingate delicacy, Homemade Potato Chiips, will be presented to delight the taste buds, and brownies will add the finishing touch to this connoisseur's meal.

All this can be enjoyed for $3.50 a ticket which can be purchased from any of the Chamber directors and at the Chamber Office. Serving time will be from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the School Cafeteria.

Proceeds from the Hamburger Supper will help to purchase a new copy machine for the Chamber Office.

Runnels County receives safety award

Runnels County has received the Texas Association of Counties Occupational Safety Award. The county award was announced at the TAC Biennial Conference in Austin by Mr. Tolly Moore, who serves as Chairman of the TAC Workers' Compensation Self-Insurance Fund.

Runnels County was one of only seventy of the state's 254 counties recognized for its achievement in reducing the number of employee's on-the-job injuries during 1985. In announcing the award, Chairman Moore stated that "Judge Michael Murchison and Commissioners Marvin Salling, Robert Virden, Gilbert Smith, and Johnnie Wilson are especially commended for this record, because it appropriately reflects these county leaders' concern for the safety and well-being of their employees."

Besides the savings in human resources, Mr. Moore also stressed that "A education in employee injuries reduces the cost that a county must pay for workers' compensation insurance, thereby saving the county and its taxpayers money."

According to the most recent complete cost figures available, Texas public and private employers paid over $1.5 billion for employee injuries in 1984.

The Texas Association of Counties began an aggressive safety campaign two years ago to aid counties in developing programs promoting safety consciousness among their employees. This is the first year for the awards by the association.

Citizens interested in viewing the award may see it on display in the Runnels County Courthouse.

Wait a minute...wins statewide honors

The weekly, front page column, "Wait a minute...", written by Enterprise editor Kerry Craig, recently won a statewide honor from the Texas division of the American Cancer Society.

The winning columns stemmed from the annual Great American Smoke-out campaign conducted annually by the American Cancer Society. In the columns Craig and Rev. Gary Turner, chairman of the North Runnels County Unit of the American Cancer Society, "argued" about the payoff of a steak dinner for giving up tobacco on the day of the smoke-out.

The award was in the opinions/columns division competition of weekly newspapers.

A total of 57 entries dealing with cancer were entered in the fifth annual Texas American Cancer Society Media Awards competition. Competing were daily and weekly newspapers, radio, television, and magazines.

The awards were presented Wednesday, October 1, at a special banquet in Austin.

A Feuding Background

Clay Miller, an eleven year resident of Winters, has long known that his grandparents and several uncles had been murdered in a bloody feud that killed seven people, but he didn't know the details until recently.

Charles, the youngest member of the family was 11 years old at the time and didn't talk about it much to Clay, his youngest son—Perhaps he had grown tired of telling the story. But a sister, Vernie Hall, researched information from newspapers, magazines and books. She passed it on to her brother.

The beginning of the McElroy-Miller feud was trivial. While Alexander Dayton "Date" Miller, Clay's grandfather, and his family were living near his sister, Fannie McElroy, in Bourbon County, Kansas, about 1880, the two quarreled and quit speaking to each other. Fannie's husband was named John and she had a stepson named George.

A few years later John McElroy moved to the Indian territory and took a farm at the creek agency, near Muskogee. Date Miller followed with his family and settled 30 miles east of Tulsa. The two families were still estranged. In the meantime, George McElroy married a half-breed creek woman and took an allotment in the northwest corner of the Creek nation.

When the Cherokee strip opened Date Miller made the run and took up a claim in the eastern part of Payne County, Oklahoma, about 1/4 mile from the Creek nation line, close to George McElroy's claim, and near the Lawson post office. The county was then infested with desperados who followed the windings of the timbered shores along the Cimarron River far into the Western part of Oklahoma.

Date Miller had two brothers, Bruce and Elbert, called "El", who rented a large tract of land adjoining and immediately south of George McElroy's farm. George's farm prospered. He was a cattleman and soon found his farm too small. The land east of his farm was worthless and his only outlet was southward. Bruce and El Miller refused to sell their lease and McElroy became incensed.

The old family quarrel which began in Kansas was renewed. Meddling neighbors added fuel to the fire by carrying stories.

One day it would be told that McElroy was going to whip the Millers the first time he met them. Then there was talk of shooting and both sides began carrying arms. The feud was now on in earnest.

On Sunday, April 16, 1894 the Millers were alerted that a posse of 14 men was out to get them. Bruce took his family to El's house where a gun battle started the next morning and continued for many hours. During the battle "Dutch John" Baldinger, the Miller's farm hand, was killed. Grandma Elizabeth Miller and Bruce's six year old son, Sherman, were wounded. On Tuesday, during a rain storm, the Millers escaped and traveled 30 miles to Grandman Elizabeth's old dugout near the Ingalls. Their homes were burned by the posse.

Posse members charged with the murder of Dutch John included: Dr. J. C. Bland, Charles Hovk, Hy Hovk, Tom Stufflebeam and Frank Sennett. Some of the leading lawmen of the area were also supposed to have been in the posse and claimed they led the attack on the Miller home because the believed Bruce was an outlaw and one of the Dalton-Doolin gang and they thought that Bill Dalton and Bill Doolin themselves were in the house.

The Millers later said they were old friends of the outlaws prior to their fugitive days and that they never refused lodge or feed them afterward but never joined their outlaw activities. The trial of the posse members lasted several days in Judge Parker's court in Ft. Smith and ended with acquittal of all. They then were re-arrested and charged with arson and attempt to murder Elizabeth Miller.

Bruce Miller had gone to Ingalls in the meantime, where he was running a butcher shop. On the night of February 26, 1895, he was shot through the heart. The only witness to the shooting who recognized the murderers was his nephew, Dorsey Miller, son of Date Miller.

The new trial of the posse proceeded and ended with the conviction of the charged men by Judge Parker who sentenced them to several years in prison. Date Miller and his family returned to their home near Lawson from testifying at the trial on the evening of October 11, 1895. The house consisted of two rooms and a long porch. In the yard was a dugout where the meals were prepared. At home were Date Miller and his wife, both aged 50, and the children, William, 19 years old; Dorsey, 22; Benjamin, 16; Bessie, 13; and Charles 11.

Here, the bloodiest chapter of the vendetta took place:

Suddenly, two Winchesters were thrust through the open door of the house and discharged almost at the same instant. A ball tore through the father's back. He sprang to his feet and died almost instantly. William was struck in the left side, another bullet hit him in the loin. Benjamin ran through the powder smoke and blew out the lamp.

The mother had just sat down to her supper, facing the entrance to the dugout. The assassins fired from the darkness and she died almost instantly—The pitcher of syrup in her hand was lying spilled in her plate when she was found. It is believed that the assassins intended to kill Dorsey instead of William, because he had witnessed Bruce's murder.

As soon as the lamp was blown out, Dorsey seized a Winchester and ran into the yard. The faint beat of horses' feet could be heard in the distance. A search the next day showed where four horses had been tied in a grove of trees about 200 yards from the house, and footprints leading to and from the house. The horses had been ridden away toward the creek country. Dorsey went at once for assistance.

The children at the house were alone with their dead parents until 2 o'clock in the morning. They stood helplessly by and watched their brother die.

No one was ever arrested for the crime. In 1897 the original posse members were released after appealing their sentence as by that time all the witnesses against them were either dead or afraid to testify.

There is mention in one newspaper of an O. L. Miller who was murdered in the spring of 1895, also an Ira L. Miller who was killed April 18, 1894. No proof could be found that they were related to Date, Bruce and El.

Clay recalled that Frank and Ben, his two living uncles, rode with Teddy Roosevelt in the Spanish-American War and fought with him in Cuba. They also appeared in Buffalo Bill's Wild West Shows. Ben's son is still living, the only cousin Clay has. In addition to his sister, Vernie, Clay has a brother Raymond of Las Cruces, New Mexico.

Perhaps his feuding background led Clay Miller to spend his time saving lives instead of wasting it. He was Assistant Administrator of the Woodville Hospital for 18 years before moving to Winters. He was Administrator of the North Runnels Hospital for 10 years and is now Assistant Administrator and X-Ray Technician.

The Millers have four children, Darla Tinsely, Arlington; Wayne Hensely, Teague; Jim Hensely, Houston; and Linda Graves, Austin.

The Sesquicentennial Steering Committee wants to thank everyone who helped with the Mexican Supper held Tuesday night along with the arrival of the Lone Star Wagon Train. Halloween will be the next Friday and we can all have a week to see them. The Senior Citizens Retirement Center has already entered the contest, so call in those scarecrows—it'll be fun.

A list of eating places and the seating capacity of each was compiled last week to be sent to schools who will be playing either football or basketball in Winters. This was done so that meals for the visiting groups could be arranged in advance of their visits. We were surprised to learn that there is a seating capacity total of 488 among seven restaurants and fast food establishments and another has picnic tables outside the building. Can you believe that we now have all these different types of food and eating places to choose from? Isn't it great for Winters! Especially since our favorite social pastime seems to be eating and eating and eating. Hamburger Supper Friday, October 3, German Fest, Sunday, Oct. 5 and Don't forget the Livestock Assoc. Barbeque Monday night October 6, Lord's Acre October 10 and the Literary and Service Clubs Turkey Dinner.

We want to welcome these new Chamber members we are so glad to have them. Casa Cabana, Gene and Dora Bernal, Skeet's Restaurant, Carl and Joyce Cain, and The Hitchin Post, Bill Hamilton, and Bill and Malia Hooten.

1986 has been a disappointing year for the economy in Texas, to say the least. But we still have lots of good things to be happy and proud about. Winters is a nice place to live, don't you think so?

October is National Energy Month

October has been officially designated National Energy Month by the United States Department of Energy. While consumers will see temporarily lower utility bills as air conditioners give way to autumn breezes and open windows, cold weather and heating bills are on the way for many Texans. Investments NOW in energy conservation will pay handsome dividends in lower utility bills and greater comfort this winter.

This month, the Public Utility Commission will be sponsoring the Texas Energy Challenge, a question and answer series on participating local radio stations. Listeners will be able to increase their awareness of state and national energy issues, as well as obtain useful information for conserving energy in their own homes and businesses. Conservation can be viewed as the "hidden" resource in the state's energy picture. To find out how Texans can invest now in their energy future, call toll-free ENERGY HOTLINE 1-800-643-SAVE.

Program expansion for Serenity House

Abilene's Serenity House was recently recognized by the Texas Commission on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse. While ranking among the upper 16% of all Texas programs, Serenity House has announced the expansion of services offered by the organization.

Russ Brown, Executive Director, has just instituted a 24 hour Hotline, plus night classes for rehabilitation and treatment of addiction. "The night program is designed to meet the needs of those who might have schedule conflicts created by employment or school." The night program is handled by instructor Allen Stackhouse. He has been involved with Serenity House for almost two years and has experience in a California Adolescent Rehabilitation Program. Stackhouse says, "Our program provides parents who have no place to turn with a viable treatment solution to teenage alcoholism and drug abuse."

Inventory helps with insurance claims

Having an inventory of household items can save the stressful and frustrating job of having to piece together what was stolen or destroyed in a natural disaster. "People tend to remember conspicuous items, such as a chair, television or videotape recorder," says family economics specialist Dr. Marjorie Marman. "But most homes also have dozens of small items whose value adds up to a considerable loss." After a fire or theft, it may also be difficult to think clearly enough to remember everything that was lost or stolen, adds the Texas Agricultural Extension Service home economist.

WANTED: Correspondents To report community items of interest for the following areas:
Ballinger, Bronte, Norton, Blackwell, Rowena, Olfen, Glen Cove, Talpa Novice, Bradshaw, Ovalo, Tuscola, Shep, Wingate, ECCA Area.

Charles Stenholm

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm is currently accepting applications from young men and women in the 17th Congressional District, who are interested in attending one of the nation's service academies.

In the spring, Congressman Stenholm will have the opportunity to nominate area citizens to the four U.S. academies: the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colorado; the Military Academy in West Point, New York; the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland; or the Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Point, New York.

Persons interested in the possible nominations should contact the Congressman's Washington, D.C., office as soon as possible. The deadline for completed application files is December 1, 1986. To be eligible for an appointment, the applicant must meet certain requirements. The include: American citizenship; good SAT or ACT scores; out-standing high school record; leadership potential; and good physical condition, including excellent eyesight. There is a very limited number of waivers for non-pilot candidates whose eyesight is less than 20/20.

Aside from academic achievement, strong emphasis is placed on moral character, church and community involvement and extra-curricular activities and/or part-time employment. Applications must be single with no dependents, at least 17 years of age, but not past their 21st birthday upon admission into the academy on July 1, 1987.

Applications packages and additional information may be obtained from high school guidance counselors or by contacting Susan Goulart in Congressman Stenholm's office at (202) 225-6605 or by writing 1232 Longworth, Washington, D.C., 20515.

General Situation

Cotton is looking great now that we are back to cotton-growing weather. And the grain sorghum is doing very well with plenty of moisture and reasonable temperatures.

Our most serious insect problems now include boll weevils and bollworms in cotton and sorghum midge and greenbugs in grain sorghum.

Boll Weevil Activity Increases

Boll weevil activity has continued to increase over the past week. In many fields they have progressed to puncturing bolls as well as squares. As we scout fields now, it is important that we pick squares as well as bolls to determine the extent of the weevil activity. If 5-10% of the smallest bolls you're planning to take to the gin are punctured, you better plan on protecting those bolls from weevils for one or two applications.

Insecticides that would be appropriate for weevil control now include methyl parathion by air and Guthion or Penncap-M by ground rig. The labelled rate of all these products is 1 pint per acre.

How long are we going to keep this up? Well the weevils will probably keep this up until frost. You know weevils never watch their weight; they just eat and eat! We need to protect our boll crop until the bolls we're planning on stripping are at least the diameter of a quarter and are getting hard.

Usually bolls the diameter of a quarter will not be shed from the plant if punctured. However, they are still susceptible to weevil damage and some locks will be destroyed. Smaller bolls, which we probably do not have time to make anyway, are often completely shed by the plant if punctured by a weevil.

Boll maturation seems to have already slowed down considerably. We notice that it is taking longer than the usual 12-15 days for a boll to reach the diameter of a quarter. This simply means that boll protection from weevils may take longer and cost more than we originally thought. So making those youngest bolls may be even less cost-efficient than we thought.

Not-So-Good News...

Bollworm activity is not letting up. If those critters could read, they'd know that they are supposed to slow down in September. Eggs can still be found easily in some fields. Our egglays in the past week reached 138 eggs per 100 plant terminals. Often they are found in clusters of 4-5 eggs per leaf. And at least some of them are hatching. By the end of the week we were finding up to 50 small worms per 100 plant terminals.

We're also finding populations of large worms in the bottom of some plants. Most of these are what's left of one round of worms that went through during that two-week rainy spell. Most of them are much too large to be concerned with now.

So...you might want to give that crop another good scouting. If worms numbers are getting up to 15-20 in 100 terminals, we'd best not just ignore them!! We have lots of soft bolls that sure don't belong in worm tummies!!

If you do spray for bollworms, remember that a sizeable portion of that population may be budworms. It would be wise to add a synergist such as chlor-dimeform to pyrethroid applications or switch away from pyrethroids all together and try products such as Larvin, Bolstar, Curacron, or others.

Not To Be Outdone

Spider mites are not to be outdone by weevils and worms!! Spider mites are increasing to damaging numbers in some fields. These have been noticed in fields in the Veribest area and along Mullins Crossing Road. Mites can be devastating pest so don't ignore them!!

Heavy infestations of spider mites can cause irreversible discoloration of leaves and extensive leaf loss causing:

- ★ low micronaire
- ★ reduced yield
- ★ stops fiber development
- ★ small boss (1/2-3/4" diameter) shed

In the past we've had fields that lost more than 50% of the leaves in spots and had red discoloration throughout the field. This interferes with photosynthesis causing the problems listed above.

Spider mites often begin on the edge of a field near a dusty road or next to maize fields that were infested. They infest leaves between the veins and squares at the base of the bracts causing either a red discoloration, brown discoloration or a yellow mottled discoloration. Eventually, they can damage the leaf to the point that an abscission layer is formed and the leaf sheds. Adult mites are barely visible as tiny specks moving on the leaves of bracts. Magnification is usually necessary to see the immature mites or the eggs. Spider mites have eight legs during most of their development; the eggs are perfect spheres that are transparent yellow or clear. Often a "colony" of spider mites will cover portions of a leaf or bract with a very fine webbing. This reduces insecticide penetration to the plant surface and the mites themselves.

Spider mites are very prolific so populations can increase and spread rapidly. If the top leaves are turning red between the veins and almost every leaf has mites under it, control is justified and necessary. Spot treatments are suggested in areas where the mites have not spread throughout the field; however, if infested areas are noticeable throughout the field, treat the entire field.

Recommended treatments include two applications of Azodrin 5 to 7 days apart by air OR one application of Comite in 20 gallons of water per acre by ground rig. Azodrin works faster but does not have the residual that Comite is supposed to have.

Have You Checked Your Wheat Today?

Lots of wheat and oats have been sowed in the past week. And, although I haven't checked any wheat yet, I understand that greenbugs are already moving into your wheat and causing some damage. We'll update you on this situation in the next newsletter but you might want to check your small grain soon!

If the small plants are averaging about 10 greenbugs per plant and damage is evident, control is needed. Very young wheat is very susceptible to serious injury from greenbugs. Control would be cheaper than replanting!

Final Tidbits

A small businessman from the old country kept his accounts payable in a cigar box, his accounts receivable on a spindle, and his cash in the cash register.

"I don't see how you can run your business this way," said his son. "How do you know what your profits are?"

"Son," replied the businessman. "When I got off the boat, I had only the pants I was wearing. Today your sister is an art teacher, your brother is a doctor and your are an accountant. I have a car, a home and a good business. Everything is paid for, so you add it all up, subtract the pants, and there's your profit!"

"A dirt farmer is a man who starts out with nothing, loses on everything he grows and comes out even at the end of the year. If any man aspires to the title of the dirt farmer, let him measure himself by this standard: he must have worn out two pairs of overalls growing cotton enough for one; he must regularly do half a day's work after the sun goes down; he must have the heart to plant in hope, cultivate in faith, and end in failure, and start all over with greater hope and stronger faith. This is a dirt farmer. Heaven help the family that depends on him for its support; heaven help the nation that does not have him to depend on for its support."

RRC levies fines for plugging penalties

Problems under Railroad Commission well plugging rules netted seven oil and gas operators a total of $16,500 in administrative penalties Monday, September 22.

Several of the operators failed to appear at Commission hearings called to examine plugging rule violations. The operators and penalties received included Ken Ellis Oil Company of Wichita Falls, $3,000 for an unplugged well on the Ancell "T" lease, Wilbarger County; Sundown Petroleum, Inc. of Midland $3,000 for a well on the M. Madera lease, Loving County; Fremont Energy corp. of Denver, Colorado, $3,000 for a well on the Delores Ranch lease, Webb County; Simmaron Exploration of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, $3,000 for a well on the Truman Dickerson lease, Eastland County; and U.S. Exploration Corporation of Ft. Worth, $6,000 for one well on the Hamon-Robertson lease, Coleman County, and one well on the Criswell lease, Eastland County.

In each of these cases, the well has been inactive and unplugged for at least two years.

Two companies agreed to pay administrative penalties for well plugging problems on leases they operate without admitting any violation of Commission rules. Quannah Drilling and Exploration, Inc. of Weatherford agreed to a $1,000 penalty for one well on the Brumbaugh lease, Parker County, and one well on the Hudson Lease, Bastrop County. American Crude Oil Production, Inc. of Houston agreed to a $500 penalty for a well on the Lacy lease in Reagan County.

To date in 1986, the Commission has levied more than $1.56 million in pollution and well plugging penalties, exceeding the $1.11 million assessed for such penalties last year.

County Child Welfare Board met

The Runnels County Child Welfare Board met at the First Presbyterian Church in Ballinger on Tuesday evening, September 16, 1986.

Staff members of the Department of Human Resources that were present included: Paula Moore, Vicki Hoffman, Linda Cowart, and Allan Bledsoe. Board members present were: J. Frank Nance, Nadene Bedford, Dorothy Tiggs, Don Shepherd, Modene Hail, Dean Watson, Diana Treadaway, Jane Alcorn, and Maxine Pritchard.

The Board discussed plans for the 1986-87 year, emphasizing the needs of some of our area children. The Runnels County Child Welfare Board is organized to assist abused and neglected children in our area, educationally and financially, through community support and involvement. The Board plans to present programs in area schools related to the sexual abuse of children, allow area residents an opportunity to give memorials to the Board in order to benefit children, and conduct fund-raising activities to assist in off-setting expenses acquired by foster care and daily child care fees for needy children.

The Board expressed a great concern over the lack of foster homes and emergency shelter homes in the Runnels County area. As of this date only one foster home is located in Runnels County.

Persons interested in Foster Care, Emergency Home Care for children, or the general well-being of children are encouraged to contact the Department of Human Resources or one of the Runnels County Child Welfare Board Members.

The Board's next meeting will be Tuesday evening, October 21, 1986.

McBath didn't look much different lying in the coffin his daughter had provided for him with his money.

He had tried to hold on to every cent, so Ellen had plenty to spend when it came time for funeral arrangements. The coffin was a plain brown - $400 cheaper than the water-sealed gold one next to it in the display room.

Ellen said McBath would have wanted it that way.

You could have propped the old man up - chaise-lounge style, - in his casket and he'd have looked the same as he did sitting in her living room. The corpse was wearing a black, pinstriped suit as it rested eternally, the same one McBath rested in while setting in her solid green chair.

Before driving over to Ellen's, he'd get out of his pajamas and put on the suit. He had black, shiny shoes to match, and a black fedora with a black ribbon and a red feather. The bow tie was usually red, also.

For two hours, McBath would sit in the same chair looking dead, but well dressed. People didn't so much talk to him as they did at him. It was the same on the day of the funeral.

"You never took your medicine the way you were supposed to," Ellen would scold the remains. "You could have lived another 10 years. You just did this to get back at me."

McBath, as always, said nothing.

During his mortal years he thrived on the fussing. His own wife, Norma, had died a decade earlier. Being fussed over brought back some of the attention he used to get from her. At home he'd sit alone in his easy chair and listen to radio preachers threaten him. He seemed to appreciate that attention, also.

When McBath came driving up in his Pontiac, his daughter always reacted the same way. "My gosh, look at that. What'll you bet he hasn't taken his medicine?"

McBath would shuffle up the walk, somehow keeping his hands clasped together. He'd knock, even when the door was open and only a storm door barred his entrance.

"Come on in, don't just stand there," she'd say. But McBath would never be able to work the latch. Ellen would start cursing, then she'd unhook it for him.

McBath liked to light his pipe while Ellen fussed. It gave him something to do with his hands and face. After the pipe was lit and the first puff of smoke entered his lungs, he'd cough gently, lean to one side, and replace the lighter in his right coat pocket. The ritual was repeated with almost every puff.

Only about 25 people showed up for the funeral. Most were old men you could find any other time, poaching in the barber shop, or sitting in the shade on a bench at the courthouse.

They sat in a room full of folding chairs and talked about McBath as if he wasn't dead. "You're too tight for your own good," one of them said. "Yeah, has anybody checked his pockets?" The old men would laugh softly, then cough.

Ellen told them he wouldn't take his medicine. That he washed his dishes without soap. That it was a wonder he hadn't expired well before his 80th birthday, instead of just short of it.

His daughter wiped her eyes with Kleenex and talked of what she'd do with the inheritance money. It was owed to her, after all, for all the years of cleaning and fussing over a stubborn old man who never once even said thank you.

The old men agreed. "You did an awful lot for him," they kept saying. "You ought to take a trip to Europe with it."

"I just might do that," she told them. "There's nothing to stop me."

She didn't, though. She left the money in the bank and let it draw more interest for a few years. Then she died, leaving McBath's money to her own daughter, who promptly spent it.

McBath would not have wanted it that way.

B.A.S.A. SOCCER

By J. F. PSUTKA, M.D.

After the second week of soccer the enthusiasm is still paramount and the fans still come out to enjoy the sport. We have had tremendous support from the fans and the coaches. The weather has been very good, but still a little hot. We will all really appreciate it when the weather turns cooler. However, you must remember soccer is played in all kinds of weather except the exceptionally dangerous weather.

The games have been very well conducted and we have not had any severe problems at all. We must remember that soccer is a very emotional game and in many countries crowd control is a major problem. It is often dangerous being in a rambunctious crowd. So far we have not had any difficult situations. When and if we do have a problem, we expect the coach and the other parents of the team, to help correct and rectify the problem.

We did see our first evidence of overzealous play last weekend. Two players were cautioned, but each player observed the caution and played on without being ejected. Players must refrain from repeated dangerous play and once their coach has been warned and the players warned, he must not repeat the offense or ejection is imminent.

Outstanding Offensive players:

Jimmy Ripley QB good job throwing and running the option. Tommy Selby- 2 catches. Charles Brewer- excellent job blocking their nose guard.

Outstanding Defensive Players: The entire defensive unit. Jim Ned had only 1 first down all night.

Comment: "We came out and played a complete game. It was an outstanding team effort."

8th grade Breezes run by Jim Ned

The Winters 8th grade Breezes defeated Jim Ned 45-0 Thursday to run their season record to 3-0. Their two year unscored on mark rises to nine games. This unscored upon mark propels our defensive unit to heights I'm not sure they even realize.

This game was truly a great offensive output. Our line opened gaping holes all night long and our backs just continually ran to daylight. Our linemen, Chris Matthews, Bodie Collins, Billy Waller, Billy Frank Belew, and Michael Ramon are the ones who really accounted for our scoring as a result of their blocking. Very seldom people realize how vital they are to the success of our offense. Usually all

Law-Method of Scoring
A goal is scored when the ball is wholly across the goal line. It cannot be thrown in, carried in or intentionally propelled in by hand or arm by the attacking side.

The team scoring the greater number of goals during the game is the winner. Equal number of goals is a draw and in our league, a tie is broken by a shootout in all ages except under 6 and under 8.

Wingate Elementary School news

The Wingate Elementary School has started the 1986-87 school year with a lot of excitement and expectation. The Lone Star Wagon Train stopped in Wingate last week to rest the horses and let the students see what travel was like in the days of their great-grandparents. The students were thrilled to see the teams of horses and to sit in the wagons, especially the wagon that carried the horseshoeing tools. The Wagon Master was patient in explaining and answering questions.

A lot of activities are in the planning stages for the months ahead. Coach Carla Derington is in the process of scheduling basketball games and tournaments. The students are motivated to make good grades so they can participate in all extra-curriculum activities.

The teachers and students want the parents, friends and people of the community to visit our school. Let us become acquainted with you. We want you to join us in our school endeavors and fun, giving us your personal support in school functions and growth as we progress through the 1986-87 school year.

Computer operation going strong

A venture that began some three years ago to focus on computers and farming is bearing fruit. The Year 2000 Computerized Farm Project at the Stiles Farm in Williamson County has brought together micro-computers, software packages, and farmers and ranchers in a unique learning environment that has put increased emphasis on management and decision-making, crucial factors for economic survival in today's agricultural industry. It also has involved the establishment of management information system for an actual farming operation, says an economist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service and Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Senate gives 'green light' to 65 MPH

A bill co-sponsored by U.S. Senator Phil Gramm to permit an increase in the speed limit to 65 miles per hour has won approval by the U.S. Senate.

Gramm, R-Texas, a longtime opponent of the 55 mph cap, pressed hard to allow state legislatures to increase the limit to 65 mph on interstate highways in rural areas.

"You can drive 55 miles per hour in Texas forever and still not get anywhere," he said. "And if you're driving 55 miles per hour in Texas, the likelihood is you are going to get run over."

The national 55 mph speed limit was imposed on states by the federal government during the energy crisis of the early 1970s.

During the Senate debate, however, Gramm pointed out that the gasoline shortage which prompted the original reduction in the speed limit "no longer exists."

The bill allows states "to look at the circumstances, to gauge the safety factors and to make a decision based on their own individual needs," Gramm said.

"I urge those who live in other parts of the country who want to preserve the 55 mile-an-hour speed limit to do that," he said. "But those of us who live where there are huge driving distances should be allowed to set a limit that made sense, that we can enforce, that will be respected."

The Senate passed the bill on a vote of 56 to 36. It must now be considered by the U.S. House of Representatives.

The right move at a critical time

The farm law's new cotton program is accomplishing its primary objectives and has dramatically reestablished U.S. cotton as a price-competitive industry at home and overseas, National Cotton Council economist Dean Ethridge told that organization's board of directors September 19.

Ethridge said projected U.S. cotton exports for 1986/87 are 6.5 million bales or nearly triple the amount for last year. Projected offtake is 13.3 million bales—up 59 percent from last season and 21 percent above the average of the past five years. He said prospects for a larger offtake conceivably could result in ending stocks of around six million bales as compared with 9.4 million bales last year.

The council economist said the cotton program has succeeded on three fronts: (1) it has moved cotton out of the government loan and into the market, (2) it has accelerated foreign production adjustments to lower world carryover stocks, and (3) it has helped maintain farm income.

Council President Lloyd Cline called the cotton program which emerged from the 1985 farm law "the right move at an extremely critical time."

"It's working just as our industry designed it to work," said the Lamesa, Texas, grower. "It's helping our farmers maintain income while making our cotton price-competitive at home and abroad."

The Council president, however, warned that if the program is to maintain its momentum it must be allowed to continue in its current form. Cline said the battle to retain the farm program without further changes could be as difficult as the one fought to achieve the original bill.

In another report, H. L. Hodges, Greenwood, Mississippi, president of Cotton Council International, told the board that the Council overseas' arm will expand trade servicing activities next year aimed at promoting U.S. cotton's competitiveness and maintaining or increasing its market share. The CCI president said three new activities—U.S. cotton seminars in key foreign markets, special market review trips, and the addition of foreign market consultants—will be undertaken in 1986/87.

Plans were also announced for a National Cotton Textile Conference in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. The meeting, sponsored by the National Cotton Council and the Cotton Foundation in cooperation with USDA, Cotton Incorporated and ATMI, will present the latest research findings on processing to the textile industry, according to Dr. Andrew Jordan, the Council's director of technical services.

Jordan also said the boll weevil eradication effort in the Southeast and Far West continues to be an economic and technical success. He said every dollar invested in the program by a typical Carolina grower has returned nearly $2.50. He further noted that only 35 weevils were caught in the eradicated South Carolina zone, while none was found in North Carolina. Jordan said eradication efforts started in the southern desert valley of California, Arizona and Mexico in 1985 already have reduced weevil populations on the U.S. side by 98 percent from pre-program levels.

An update on agency regulatory efforts in cotton dust standards for oil mills, formaldehyde regulation in textile mills, and textile/apparel flammability was outlined to the board by Dr. Phil Wakelyn, Council manager of environmental/safety technology.

The Council's efforts to help moderate new sodbuster land regulations which could adversely affect growers in Mississippi and Texas were explained by John Maguire, the Council's Washington operations director. He also reported on the current state of agriculture credit legislation.

Dr. Arlie Bowling, executive director of the Cotton Foundation, reported that corporate funding of the foundation's 23 special projects now totals $1 million. The research and educational projects are funded by cotton supplier firms in addition to their Foundation membership contributions.

Preliminary reports also were given to the board on the new five-month pilot cotton information network, which began September 1. Joe Wyrick, Council manager of information systems, said 150 cotton industry members are currently participating in the program. He said participants will have access to an electronic mail exchange, information retrieval function, and telecommunication link with USDA. The project is aided by a $53,000 grant to The Foundation from American Cyanamid Company.

Farm Credit Banks file suit

Texas' largest source of agricultural loans, the Farm Credit Banks in Austin, announced today it has filed suit against its Washington, D.C. regulator, the Farm Credit Administration (FCA) and the newly created Farm Credit System Capital Corporation. The suit challenges the lawfulness of regulations issued recently by FCA governing the Capital Corporation's power to transfer funds from financially strong Farm Credit System districts to others throughout the U.S. that are financially weak.

The Texas Farm Credit Banks, made up of the Federal Land Bank, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and the Bank for Cooperatives, are strong financially. Joint plaintiffs in the suit are three other healthy Farm Credit banks in Springfield, Massachusetts. The Springfield district banks have farm loans in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Jersey and New York.

The complaint, filed in the United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts, alleges that the regulations issued by FCA on June 12, 1986, do not comply with the Farm Credit Amendments Act of 1985.

The Banks are challenging the regulations as written because they do not properly take the continuing viability of contributing banks into account.

The intent of this law, according to James A. Rogers, Chief executive officer of the Farm Credit Banks of Texas, is to use system capital to help weak banks regain viability but not to the extent that the ability of the strong Farm Credit banks to make credit available to eligible borrowers on reasonable and competitive terms is threatened.

The FCA regulations allow assessment of all of the district's unallocated retained earnings—a total of $310 million. Stockholder investment in the lending cooperatives, which can be as high as 10 percent of an individual loan, is protected by law from assessment. In addition to the $310 million in unallocated retained earnings, the Texas Farm Credit district has $287 million in member stock and participation certificates for a total net worth of almost $600 million. The district also has $146 million in loan loss reserves.

The complaint seeks a judgment declaring the regulations unlawful and permanent injunction against their enforcement.

The Texas District, comprised of 44 Federal Land Bank Associations and 28 Production Credit Associations, in addition to the three banks, has almost $4 billion in loans outstanding to 50,000 farmers, ranchers, aquatic harvesters and 150 agricultural and rural utility cooperatives.

New law requires signs on commercial vehicles

DPS License and Weight Service officers report encountering truckers unaware of a recently-enacted law.

S.B. 332, which became effective January 1, requires the name of the owner, operator or lessee of commercial vehicles with three, or more, axles to be displayed on both sides of the vehicles.

All truck-tractors are also included in the statute which mandates lettering of a two-inch minimum height.

Failure to comply is a Class C misdemeanor offense punishable by a maximum fine of $200.

Public utility and farm vehicles and trucks hauling timber in its natural state on the first movement are exempt from the statute.

Please send in your current club or organization name, mailing address, meeting date, telephone number, and name of your contact person.

This will be a new listing and you must turn in your club or organization information to be included. We will not be using any of the older lists.

*****
During the August and September meeting of the Board of Directors of the Ballinger Chamber of Commerce the Chamber has new dates to begin and end their year. As always, the fiscal year ended March 31 and begin April. Bylaws require to change or amend the Issue must pass with a majority vote in two (2) consecutive Board meetings. No opposition was noted during the two monthly meetings.

Chamber Executive, Don Bethany, noted several reasons for the change.

— We are now in sequence with West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

— We will be able to report an accurate Financial Statement and Budget during our annual meeting. In the past, the Annual meeting was held in the middle of March, the year end March 31, and providing the President performed his duties as Chairman of the Texas State Festival of Ethnic Cultures and Arts and Crafts Show in April. We in essence did not complete our year until April with the Texas State Festival of Ethnic Cultures and Arts and Crafts Show you could not have proper report and budget prepared.

— Also, most businesses operate on a calendar year. This will in effect move our elections back a few months. Our banquet will be in February this year instead of March.

The Farm Credit System is the largest single agricultural lender in the U.S., providing about one-third of the nation's total agricultural credit.
