Wait a minute... By Kerry Craig

For several years I have complained about the designation of certain Mondays as official holidays, especially when the real holiday is on a Sunday.

To those of us in a weekly newspaper, it just isn't fair. We must continue to toil while nearly everyone else has the day off.

Like most of us, all the thought I gave to these holidays was just that—a day off for some folks.

A letter to the editor this week caught my attention.

We have, it seems, reached the point where most of us think of holidays as a day off. We have forgotten, or just do not think about the reason the day became a holiday.

In an effort to give folks a day off, Congress changed the official observance of most holidays to the Monday following. That action didn't help us remember why there was a holiday in the first place.

This holds true for most holidays with the exception of July 4, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Thanks to Congress, the Supreme Court and an atheist, our school children don't really recognize Easter—or its true meaning. It has become spring break and, for the convenience of school officials and teachers, misses Easter by several days.

The holiday this week holds a very special significance to us all. Maybe some of us don't remember, first hand, the people we are honoring on Memorial Day but, we should be very aware of the reason for the special day.

If it were not for those we honor each year at this time, many of us might not be here. Or the world that we enjoy, with all our freedoms, might be just a dream—the good old times.

In our technologically advanced society, that hurries up to go faster, we merely think of Memorial Day as a day to go fishing, to mow the lawn, to take a nap, or the day for the Indy 500 and some big-time horse race.

Now I'm not against all those things. Not even against everyone else having time off.

In our great haste to do something, or nothing, we are forgetting those hundreds of thousands of our fellow countrymen who gave their lives to keep our great country free.

Sure, they're remembered. On Flander's Field, at military installations around the world, and by lots of politicians. Some of us pay a special tribute to those who died that we might live in freedom but, with the help of Congress moving the holidays around to give folks time off and schools more worried about calendars, lots of us don't.

It might be a good idea for congress to write a law making it unconstitutional for anyone to move holidays.

You are right in your letter Dawson, and I'm guilty, too.

Thank you for calling this to our attention. Maybe, just maybe, through the efforts of folks that think, and remember, we can return to the true values that made our world, as we know it, what it is.

Bringing up the pressure

After being halted almost all day Tuesday, water pressure was returned gradually by Water Department workers. The slow process of bringing the water system back into full operation was to allow the air in the water lines to be bled off to prevent damage to water lines.

The interruption of water service to the city, instead of affecting only a few blocks, reached throughout the city. It took almost 12 hours for service to be full restored to all customers.

In the picture above, Jack Davis, Jr., closely watches pressure gauges and pump speed as he began the lengthy process of restoring water service to the city. The halt of water service was to allow for the installation of valves to be used to bring the new water treatment plant into service in early July.

Water connection leaves Winters without water

City officials last week said that water would be turned off in a two-block wide section of Winters between Tinkle and Broadway Streets from Main to Jewel Streets. The interruption of water service was to allow for the installation of new valves to enable the new water treatment plant, which is nearing completion, to be brought into service next month.

Although plans called for the service to be interrupted to only a small section of the city, the affected area grew and grew until the entire city of Winters was without water Tuesday.

Water Department spokesmen said that plans had called for two or three valves to be closed for a couple of hours while the new valves were put into place. As workers shut off the initial valves, the water continued to flow and additional valves were closed.

The water still was running as workers continued to close valves and only stopped when water to the entire city was halted.

Already behind schedule, workers cut the major water lines and began installation of the valves. The next step was to pour concrete around the new valves to keep the big water lines from moving under pressure and coming apart.

The next step was to wait until the newly-poured concrete dried enough to set firmly. Just after 3 p.m. Tuesday after the first valves were turned to allow water back into the system—almost seven hours after the project began.

The lack of water was not without problems. Students at Winters High School and Elementary School were sent home early and work at Dry Manufacturing was halted.

While the lack of water was an inconvenience, it was one of the final steps toward the security of a water treatment plant to handle the demands of the Winters and the surrounding area for years to come.

The present water treatment plant was designed to treat about 700,000 gallons of water per day. For the past few years the old plant had been processing more than two times that amount, 1.5 million gallons per day, during peak usage periods.

The new water treatment plant, which cost in excess of one million dollars, will have a capacity to treat water well in excess of the present needs even during a hot, dry summer. The water treatment plant, along with the Winters-Elm Creek Reservoir gives Winters the security of a substantial water supply and the means to properly treat the water.

During the time that the city was without water Tuesday, fire protection was seriously compromised. The only water that would have been available for fighting fires would have been

Frank Davis receives scholarship from Winters Young Farmers

The Winters Young Farmers presented a $250 scholarship to Frank Davis Friday at the High School Awards Assembly. The chapter annually selects a graduating senior who will continue his education in an agriculture field. Funds for the scholarship are generated by various projects completed by the Young Farmers throughout the year. The award was presented by Dale Duggan, Chapter President and State Officer.

This year's recipient, Frank Davis, has been very involved in that in the tanks on the fire trucks.

Had there been a fire, the fire department would have to rely on water trucks to haul water from storage tanks. There were, however, no fires reported during the time the city was without water.

The restoration of water service to the city was not without its own complications. Both water tanks were empty as were the water mains, and, as expected, there was air in the water lines.

Lisa Howard could use some help for her heart

Why me?

Lisa Howard said she sometime gets angry and asks that question. But most of the time she just tries not to think about the congenital heart condition that will one day require a heart and lung transplant.

Lisa, 22, has Eisenmenger's Syndrome. Eight years, doctors said she wouldn't survive one year.

Lisa fooled the doctors, but the Howards must raise almost half the cost of the $185,000 operation before Lisa can join a donor waiting list.

"We just need help," Lisa's mother Viola Howard said. "It might be a week, it might be a year."

A fund to raise the $85,000 needed to put Lisa on the waiting list has been set up at the American National Bank in Abilene.

Lisa's condition is caused by a birth defect in which a heart valve that keeps blood from the lungs fails to close at birth or a few days after birth.

The valve is open before birth because the unborn child receives its oxygen from its mother.

The failed valve, a condition called "patent ductus arteriosus," can be closed surgically if found soon enough.

Eisenmenger's Syndrome leads to pulmonary hypertension. The right side of the heart receives too much blood and builds up pressure, while the left side receives too little.

The Lisa Howard Heart Fund was set up. Viola Howard said, because people at the Houston Transplant Center urged her to begin raising money now to be ready when the operation is

History Repeats Itself

Mary Stanfield, long-time English teacher in Winters Junior High, is now ready to retire as she has reached her goal of teaching three generations after 45 years in the classroom.

The three generations are Frances Hale, Mrs. Dewitt Bryan, her son Gary Bryan and his daughter Susan who is a seventh grader.

Miss Stanfield began her career teaching bookkeeping and typing at Bradshaw High School in 1942. Frances Hale, cousin to Dr. Z. I. Hale, was her student from then until she finished in 1945.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan live at Wilmeth and she is employed as a cook at the Senior Citizens Nursing Home. She recalls that "Miss Stanfield kept the quietest room in school."

When the Bradshaw school closed in 1947, Stanfield taught at Norton High School in her chosen field of English. After ten years she came to Winters where she has since taught in Junior High.

Gary Bryan was a student of hers in the seventh and eighth grades, 1962-64. He graduated from Winters High School in 1968. "In her class you got a grade in the old fashioned way - you earned it," said Gary.

She never had to send anyone to the principal's office, but sometimes wielded the "board of education" herself. "I was never late to class because she was consistent - I knew I wouldn't get off the hook one time and be punished the next," Gary remarked.

Gary still remembers a funny incident that happened in class during a discussion of the comparison of adjectives. A boy was comparing the adjective "ill", saying that the three forms were "ill, worse, and dead."

He explained it this way, "Now Miss Stanfield, if you were ill today, and you're worse tomorrow, you're bound to be dead the next day!"

Gary was born and lived in the Poe Community west of Winters, with the exception of four years spent at Wilmeth, until he was 35. He has been farming since 1969. He also hauls salt water and does custom combining.

In 1972 Gary and Cheryl Bloomer were married. Three years ago they built a new house five miles southeast of Winters where they now reside with their two daughters, Susan and Angela, a fifth grader.

Susan thinks that the country is a good place to be a kid. She is now enjoying Miss Stanfield as a teacher and shares the same opinion as that of her father and grandmother, saying, "She is the fairest teacher I've ever known - she treats everyone just the same."

Mary Stanfield, 45 year teacher, retires after teaching three generations

A native of Talpa, Mary Stanfield graduated from high school at the age of 15 in Bradshaw. As a valedictorian, she received a one year scholarship and then worked her way through college. She majored in English with a minor in education at Howard Payne, receiving her Bachelor of Arts degree.

As far back as she can remember she wanted to be a teacher, and soon entered the profession, fulfilling a life-long dream. "When just a child, I lined up my dolls and taught them," she said.

When she began teaching, Stanfield was paid $877.50 for a ten months term. Her take home pay each month was $67.43 and she paid $25 per month for room and board. Summer employment made up for salary lost during July and August.

Miss Stanfield earned her masters of education at Sul Ross in 1958, after she began teaching at Winters where she is closing out 30 years. She has remembered and followed the careers of her students throughout their lives, and is proud that many of them have done so well. Her motto is "Take the child where you find him and carry him as far as you can."

A highlight in her life was when the 1962 Glacier was dedicated to her. The seniors that year were the first group she had taught as eighth graders when she came to Winters. The Glacier was again dedicated to her in 1985.

In her time of teaching, Stanfield has served under 16 superintendents and has taught numbers of second generations. The first was Jerry Sneed in the seventh grade, her first year at Winters. He was the son of G. W. Sneed, who was a senior at Bradshaw in 1942-43. Sarah Parker is the only regular faculty member still teaching who was here when she came. She is also retiring.

From the time she started to school until now, Miss Stanfield has had 60 consecutive nine month terms of school each year. Schools and students have changed during her years of teaching and she regrets some of these changes. Children don't want to assume responsibility for themselves and their work. There is also less respect for authority than previously. Although teaching is often frustrating and exhausting, it has been rewarding. She has had many good students but there comes a time to retire. "The students need some new faces and new ideas; besides I have some plans for the future," Stanfield admits.

She loves to travel and she has seen 43 of the 50 states; her ambition is to see the other seven. She plans a visit to Alaska on her next trip. She loves her native land and has no desire to visit any other country.

Other hobbies include reading and working in the yard. Stanfield also plans to study genealogy. Her maternal grand-

Letter to the Editor

I feel someone needs to address the issue of Memorial Day observance as we know it today - or the lack thereof.

For the past two years the Winters Independent School District has conducted classes on Memorial Day. Is there not some way that the schedule could be adjusted so that the day we are to remember the individuals who gave their lives for this country can be observed by everyone. We have an obligation, not only to those who perished, but to the children of today, to insure that their heritage is preserved.

Even if you have not suffered personal losses through the tragedy of war, or a military incident, all those who have died in service - died for each of us.

To hold classes on Memorial Day simply for convenience sake is a deep shame. It serves to emphasize the apathy that has spread through this country in recent years. How do we expect to carry on this nation of ours if the generations to come don't understand the sacrifices that were made in order to obtain it?

Hopefully, next year, and in the years to come, things will be different, and for the better.

Dawson McGuffin

Letter to the Editor

This letter is to inform the people of Winters of the kind of people that is making decisions at our PUBLIC Schools. On Tuesday, May 26, 1987, a decision was made to dismiss the PUBLIC Schools because of lack of water. I can understand that decision; but what I can't understand is the fact that when my 7 year old son asked Mr. Hounsel if he could use the phone he was told NO: I can't let every little kid use the phone we'll be here all day.

I want to inform Mr. Hounsel of a few things (1) I am a homeowner here in Winters that means I pay School Taxes on that phone you denied my son use of, and next time that anyone in my family needs to use a public school phone, there better not be anyone tell us we can't use the phone.

(2) Anyone that lets young children out of school early, and then tells the children not to leave the front of the school are nuts. Common sense would tell you that there would be some kids that are going to leave early. Common sense would tell you that from 8 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. that our children are your responsibility, we trust you with our children. You may have announced closing school early on radio and television stations, but I work from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. without access to a television, and you can't hear the radio. I hope next time something like this happens that someone with some compassion for our young children makes the decisions. By the way, the young children of Winters Elementary Schools are much more important than any teacher party.

We would like to thank Mrs. Ann McNulty for helping us find Ricky.

Cutting utility bills can be a breeze

Many Texans pride themselves on how long they can wait before turning on the air conditioning each year. Others, especially those who have moved here from northern climates, surrender early. But before the advent of mechanical cooling devices, millions of people survived hot Texas summers. The same natural cooling techniques are available today, and can help cut utility bills dramatically.

Ceiling, room and attic fans can help cut cooling costs, but there are also passive cooling methods that require no electricity at all. For example, cross ventilation may be effective for part of the cooling season. Wind creates areas of high and low pressure around a house. Air moves into a building through openings in the high pressure regions and exits at low pressure areas. Careful sizing and placement of air inlets and outlets can greatly enhance the cooling effects of cross ventilation. Open windows higher on the windward side of the house than on the leeward side for maximum air velocity and optimum cooling. Also, more air will circulate in the home if window openings are not directly opposite one another.

For more information about natural cooling and other energy saving ideas, call the Texas Public Utility Commission's toll-free Energy Hotline: 1-800-643-SAVE.

GOOD PSYCHOLOGY

Party planning can be hectic, so don't make it hard on yourself, psychologists advise. Pre-plan as much as possible. Invite guests to "bring their own." Keep recipes simple—the kind that are quick to make and can be stored in the refrigerator till just before company arrives. A pitcher of iced tea, for instance, is easily made from instant powder or a sweetened flavored iced tea mix and it's a favorite with most guests!

Social Security may contact Beneficiaries

From time to time, it becomes necessary for Social Security to contact a person getting benefits or an applicant. Such contacts may be made by mail, by phone, or in person.

People who have been on Social Security rolls for a while have become accustomed to receiving mail with the return address of their Social Security office. A mailing may be used to advise people of a change in the amount of their monthly check, to request information, or for some similar purpose. Applicants for benefits, or course, receive notices through the mail or the allowance or denial of their claim.

At times, a Social Security representative will contact a person by phone. This may be done to get information, such as a Social Security number to facilitate the processing of a claim.

And, occasionally, a Social Security representative may make a home visit. If a Social Security representative does visit your home, he or she will furnish proper identification; anyone claiming to be a Social Security representative who does not have proper identification should not be permitted to enter your home.

Moreover, if you have any questions about the identity of the person claiming to be a Social Security representative, or if you would simply want to verify that the person is who he or she claims to be, phone the Social Security office. A bona fide Social Security representative will not mind these precautions.

Also, remember that no Social Security representative will ever ask for money in return for a service. If someone claiming to be a Social Security representative does request payment, this, too, should be reported to the Social Security office.

For more information, contact the San Angelo Social Security Office located at 2214 Sherwood Way. The telephone number is 949-4608.

Texas Highways magazine honored

The Texas Historical Commission, the state agency for historic preservation, has announced the presentation of one of its most prestigious awards to Texas Highways magazine.

The magazine is honored with a Texas Award for Historic Preservation for its efforts in providing a historical perspective of the sesquicentennial celebration in 1986. In particular, the magazine featured a series of articles by Texas historian Joe Frantz, which covered the development of Texas from the earliest European contact through statehood. Numerous other vignettes and stories also appeared throughout the year that focused on the historical aspects of the sesquicentennial year, which marked the 150th anniversary of Texas' independence from Mexico.

The Texas Award for Historic Preservation is presented by the THC to recognize on behalf of the state of Texas, those individuals and organizations that have made significant contributions toward preserving Texas history, architecture, archeology, or culture. The agency's executive committee selects winners of the award. Since 1966, approximately 150 groups and individuals have been honored with the Texas Award for Historic Preservation.

Bob Bullock warns about tax returns

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Tuesday, May 19, warned that taxpayers would need a tax return the size of a bedsheet to report on 45 different sales tax rates that would be permitted under bills now pending in the Legislature.

"The simple old state, city and MTA taxes would look good compared to the new tax districts that these bills would create," Bullock said of legislators' proposals to authorize local sales taxes for everything from crime control districts to economic development zones.

And Bullock warned that the Legislature is apparently serious about these proposals as several of them have already passed either the House or Senate.

"The sales tax in the past has been as popular as any tax could ever be—if you can call any tax popular. But this is riding a good horse to death," he said.

"There's even one bill that sets eight different rates itself by permitting local options in increments of 1/8 cent," he said.

"A merchant would no longer tape a sales tax rate card to the cash register," Bullock said. "It would take a rate book as thick as the telephone directory to keep up with them."

Varying MTA tax rates around the state, coupled with hit-and-miss city sales tax jurisdictions, already give merchants eight rates to keep up with and that's enough, Bullock said, not to mention the fact that there already will be a potential for 31 different rates next January when new city/county sales taxes authorized by the last Legislature go into effect.

"Local governments might go broke just holding these elections," Bullock said, "and I know the Comptroller's office will go broke trying to account for them."

Athletic Medicine

by Dr. J. E. Adams, M.D.

The senior citizen and exercise

I was sitting around the office the other day pondering what topic to write about in the next sports medicine column. I was noninspired, and frankly, coming up with a blank. The phone rang, and I had a delightful conversation with a lady from Midland College. She was in charge of a new pilot program at the College devoted to exercise programs and the elderly. After our phone call, I had my topic!

You know, when we think about it, we all know people in their 60's who are old and also we know people in their 60's who are young. When I see these people in the clinic, I automatically consider their chronological age (how many years they have) and their metabolic age (what kind of shape their are in). Some people may be 60 and look 70 whereas others are 60 and look, act, and feel that they are 40. I tend to put these people into one of two groups—the elderly and the mature. Believe me, there is a lot of difference. Let me give you three examples.

—Dwayne is a 54 year old oilman who runs six to eight miles a day. He is most fastidious about his diet and usually avoids red meat. His dietary program is basically low fat, low salt. He is remarkable to me in two ways: (1) He has the physique of a 35 year old person. (2) He is the person who turned me on to sports medicine five years ago. Dwayne commonly participates in 10K runs and half marathons and is known as being very hard to beat.

—Bob is an Aggie in his late 50's who treadmills about 15 miles per week. My wife says he has "a cute butt". When is the last time you heard about a guy, almost 60 years old, who had a "bubble butt"? Bob's wife is his dietary architect. She watches his diet closer than I watch my 13 year old daughter. Mrs. Bob leans toward chicken (without the skin, not fried), turkey, and stinky ole fish. He is not allowed any salt either. This is basically a low fat, low salt, low cholesterol cardiac diet. I have seen Bob's lab work. He has the metabolism of a thirty year old. The amazing thing is that he had cancer (God and doctors cured it) and a heart attack (Bob and exercise cured it). He is doing great!

—Lawson is 74 years old and just got married to a beautiful lady. He is active in sporting activities appropriate to his age. He plays a lot of golf and stays very active. We just arthroscoped one of his shoulders because it was hurting and limiting to his exercise activities. (I actually think he is trying to lower his handicap.) Because of his diet and activity level, he leads the life of a much younger man. He, by the way, had open heart surgery several years ago. He is excited about life.

It has been noted that many exercise related functions tend to decline with age. These changes may not be "normal". Habitual physical exercise usually begins to taper in early adulthood and to be nonexistent in the elderly. Could not these declining exercise related functions be due to the lack of physical activity seen in older people? I think so.

Cardiac function tends to decline with increasing age. The incidence of congestive heart failure, high blood pressure and peripheral vascular disease tend to increase with age. Proper exercise and diet will improve cardiac function and help congestive heart failure, high blood pressure, and peripheral vascular disease. Pulmonary function (breathing ability) also tends to fade with age. However, with exercise, lung ventilation seems to improve. This goes hand in hand with the improvement in the cardiac status. With age, the bones tend to lose mass and strength and the muscles atrophy or get smaller. Once again, exercise can reverse these untoward effects.

Dr. Herbert DeVries of USC in his text "Physiology of Exercise of Physical Education and Exercise" points out that it has been clearly shown that elderly exercises adapt physiologically to physical training in much the same manner as their younger counterparts. At the American Symposium for Sports Medicine held in Oklahoma City in 1983, a study was presented that involved nursing home residents who were placed on appropriate exercise programs for six weeks. At the termination of the study period all of the exercisers experienced strength gains, improvement in cardiopulmonary status and improvement in Mental Clarity and Function!

I realize that my readers over the last year have been served up an ample portion of the benefits of exercise, but it is so important to get this message across. If your Doctor had a pill that you could take that would improve the function of your heart, lungs, muscles, and bones, and in addition, would make you feel and look younger, wouldn't you want to take it? At any cost? My dear friends, please get an appropriate medically designed exercise program and start eating correctly. It is not too late. Only you can decide whether you want to be elderly or mature.

Gas production down in February

Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace announced that Texas oil and gas wells produced 435,553,877 Mcf (thousand cubic feet) of gas in February, compared to the January gas production total of 490,120,845 Mcf. February 1987 production was down 7.03 percent compared to February 1986.

Marketed gas production in February totaled 354,571,074 Mcf and reflected of 12.86 percent decrease from the January volume. In February 1986, the state produced 388,170,177 Mcf of gas in this category.

Marketed production is the gas left after liquid hydrocarbons have been separated on the lease from the "wet" gas that is usually produced at the wellhead. It also does not include gas that is used to fuel production-related equipment on the lease site, or gas that is otherwise not marketed.

Exports of Texas-produced gas in February totaled 195,936,638 Mcf and reflected at 19.79 percent increase from January. February 1986 exports of Texas-produced gas totaled 194,732,989 Mcf.

Texas gas production in February came from 193,416 oil wells and 45,648 gas wells.

Stenholm reports

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm personally delivered a letter to Department of Labor officials expressing his concerns about the new Immigration Bill's regulations on temporary agricultural workers.

Under the immigration laws passed in 1986, a program called H-2A was implemented to regulate the temporary hiring of aliens in the ag field. The H-2A provision was supposed to provide a workforce for labor needs not met by the American population. However, the proposed regulations announced by the department drastically limit the "seasonal and temporary" workers to a narrow definition that excludes most of the livestock industry.

Congressman Stenholm along with Congressman Larry Combest (R-Lubbock), wrote a letter this week to William E. Brock, Secretary of Labor, asking for a revision on the guidelines. The letter stated, "failure to revise certain sections will result in an H-2A program that will be unfair and unworkable for important sectors of the agriculture industry." The letter further stated that a revised ruling is needed because the Department of Agriculture's recent decision will exclude much of the ag industry's Seasonal Agricultural Workers (SAW) from the program. More than 20 other Members of Congress co-signed the letter.

Congressman Stenholm said, "It is vital to the future of agriculture that we provide an improved, workable H-2A program. Congress did not intend to force farmers and ranchers into the position where they must choose between going out of business or breaking the law."

"I understand and support the need to protect jobs for American workers, but in this area of agriculture, we need to make sure these producers have a workforce. Most of our citizens will not fill the labor void that these regulations would create in areas such as shearing lambs, milking cows and tending cattle, he said.

Just bait

Jim Blackshear said he was just warming up for the Bass Classic next week end when he landed this 8 pound 7 ounce bass at the Winters Lake. Jim said he was using a tube and waders when he caught the mess of fish all in one package.

In commenting on the fish, Jim said, "I caught him just north of the dam. I was practicing to see if I could catch some bait for the tournament."

water to the city, they had to begin slowly. Workers also had to open fire hydrants in various areas of the city to allow the air to escape.

If the pumps had been started and water forced into the lines, under pressure, the potential for damage to water lines and fixtures in homes and buildings was considerable.

By about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday water service had been restored to nearly every customer served by the City of Winters.

When the new water plant is ready to go into service, in early July, employees will have to turn two valves to get the plant on-line, and hopefully with no interruption of service.

City officials expressed their appreciation to the citizens of Winters for their understanding and patience during the day Tuesday. The officials said the inconvenience of being without water for several hours allowed steps to be taken to prevent an interruption of water service for an even longer period of time.

unavoidable. The operation may cost even more, Viola Howard said, if the Houston hospital is not ready in time for Lisa. The operation would then be performed in California and cost more, she said.

Viola Howard said Medicaid would not take care of the cost, and insurance would "not touch the first $85,000.

The heart and lung transplant operation Lisa needs "is not rare, but it is uncommon," said Dr. James Williams, a surgeon at Humana Hospital.

While heart transplants have become almost routine and increasingly successful, Williams said, not enough lung transplants have been performed to show similar success.

"Compared to the alternative," Williams said, the risky operation is an attractive choice. Ironically, salt—a food doctors advise most people to cut back on for health reasons—is one of Lisa's main weapons against her disease.

The disease causes high blood pressure of the lung, a condition not related to regular high blood pressure.

"There's nothing you can do for it," Lisa said. "I had to learn how to keep my red blood cells at a lower level."

"I eat a lot of salt," she said, "because salt kills red blood cells."

She avoids foods high in iron because iron helps build red blood cells.

The disease often leaves Lisa so exhausted, she will sleep as much as 23 hours a day for several days.

Lisa's condition was diagnosed in 1979 when she became exhausted and weak after participating in junior high physical education classes.

Lisa, who now avoids physical exertion, said the doctors didn't think then that she would live one year.

"She fooled them," Viola Howard said, but she can't fool them forever.

Lisa lives with her mother at 502 Jeanette Street in Abilene.

She likes to read, loves music, computers, she also loves to decorate cakes when she feels like it, and loves to get mail from anyone.

Lisa is the daughter of Jack and Viola Howard, her father, Jack, lives in Somerville, Texas. She has three brothers, Gynn of Plano, Texas, Don L. of Coleman and James Howard of Huntsville, Texas; one sister, Sandra (Howard) Franks, who at one time worked for The Winters Enterprise.

Lisa attended school in Winters for six years, then graduated from Jim Ned High School in Tuscola.

Donations can also be mailed to P.O. Box 7243, Abilene, Texas 79608.

Turtles give their young no care at all. The mother sea turtle digs a hole on a beach and lays her eggs, covers them with sand and then returns to the sea. The sun hatches the eggs.

Oil production rate continues at 100 percent

The Railroad Commission has continued the Texas oil production rate for June, 1987, at 100 percent of market demand.

Chairman Mac Wallace and Commissioners Jim Nugent and John Sharp continued the top production allowable after reviewing oil companies' nominations to buy a total of 2,062,772 barrels of Texas oil per day. The June nomination total, an increase of 10,101 barrels daily when compared to May purchaser nominations, indicates market demand. June 1986 nominations totaled 2,232,793 barrels daily.

The commission first went to

SSgt. Allcorn in joint U.S.-Korea exercise

Air Force Staff Sergeant Richard A. Allcorn has participated in "Team Spirit '87," a Republic of Korea/United States Combined Forces Command-sponsored exercise held in South Korea.

"Team Spirit '87" was the twelfth in an annual series of combined/joint field training exercises, staged to increase the defensive posture of the Republic of Korea and U.S. combat and support forces.

The exercise involved forces stationed in South Korea, as well as U.S. forces from other locations within the Pacific Command and the continental United States.

Allcorn is the grandson of Joe D. Rowe of Talpa.

The Sergeant is an avionic communications specialist with the 1942 Tactical Fighter Group at Bergstrom Air Force Base, Texas.

He is the nephew of Kreag and Jo C. Kreager of Ballinger. Allcorn's wife, Barbara, is the daughter of Fran Carr of Bastrop, Texas.

He is a 1977 graduate of Ballinger High School.

the ceiling level for oil production in April of 1972. It applies to all fields in the state except those that are assigned lower legal rates of production so that reservoir pressures will not be depleted before the maximum amount of oil has been recovered.

Chairman Wallace also reported that the June nominations for the purchase of Texas gas totaled 21,213,412 Mcf/d (thousand cubic feet of gas per day). May nominations totaled 19,800,083 Mcf/d. June 1986 nominations amounted to 21,572,951 Mcf/d.

The next statewide oil and gas production allowable hearing will begin at 10:00 a.m. on Wednesday, June 17, at the Midland Hilton, in Midland.

Chairman Wallace reported that crude oil and petroleum products imported into the U. S. averaged 5,229,000 barrels per day for the four-week period ending April 24, 1987, an increase of 11,000 barrels per day from the same period a year ago.

May is better hearing month

May is National Better Speech and Hearing Month.

17.4 million Americans are hearing impaired. One-third of the American population 65 years of age or older have some type of hearing impairment.

Jay Holland, director of the Audiology Department at the West Texas Rehabilitation Center said, "Here at the Center, we are most concerned with the types of hearing impairments. Why are they a serious problem? How do the impairments affect the patient's life? And who are the qualified professionals to be sought for treatment?"

Hearing impairment can involve a loss of hearing or hearing sensitivity, usually when there is an inability to hear speech or sounds loudly enough.

It can involve an inability to understand or discriminate speech sounds. This occurs when speech or sounds appear loud enough, but they are distorted or not clearly understood.

Impairment of auditory perception is another type. Understanding the meaning of speech or sounds is impaired even though speech is loud enough and can be heard clearly.

Hearing impairment is a serious problem. If the ability to communicate is affected by hearing impairment, a person may become isolated from family, friends, and society. Emotional stability may be affected by making the impaired person feel left out of communicative situations.

"The WTRC is one of the largest providers of audiological services in the Southwest," Holland said. "Last year the center admitted 1,724 patients into the audiology department."

The Audiology Department is staffed by six licensed audiologists. They are qualified in the identification, assessment, habilitation, rehabilitation, and prevention of communication disorders associated with hearing impairment. The audiologists at the West Texas Rehabilitation Center specialize in the selection, fitting, and dispensing of appropriate hearing aids for all residents of the Southwest.

The department is committed to serve three primary objectives: To identify the individuals with potential hearing impairments. To assist the medical community in the diagnosis of hearing impairments. To furnish patients who have a hearing impairment with the communicative tools necessary to offset their impairment to the most favorable degree; and to help them gain insight into their disability and related problems.
