Wait a minute... By Kerry Craig

Well, the little birds have left the nest.

Last Thursday, our two baby hummingbirds left the confines of their tiny nest on our front porch. They flew away, hopefully to return next year for a homecoming visit.

And, on the day the birds left, a new critter appeared - a June bug of gigantic size. This bug, about 10 times normal size was captured by the kids. We will update on our zoo later.

Our position on publishing public records, courthouse news. has been established for many years.

We understand that such news, if you can call it that, is really hot stuff as far as readers are concerned. It doesn't, however, come close to telling the whole story.

If so-and-so is arrested on charges of having wire cutters in his saddle bags, it is listed. If later it is determined that the wire cutters were, in fact, water pump pliers and charges were dismissed we just might never know.

Meanwhile, for most intents and purposes, good old so-and-so has been branded a villian because we didn't get all the story.

Sure, it might be interesting, to see who got married or divorced, had a baby, or even died, or received a speeding ticket for whatever speed.

I don't feel that names in such as this should be published. It is public record, open to anyone that wants to go open the docket books and read them. The same

Hospital board adopts budget, buys computer Members of the Board of Top 5 Business Products, of ment with Affiliates Health

Directors of North Runnels Hospital were busy in their regular meeting Monday. The board gave approval to the proposed budget for the 1988-89 fiscal year calling for expenditures in excess of $1 million, approved the purchase of a new computer system and adopted a smoking policy for the hospital.

The budget, as approved Monday, does not include any estimate on the tax rate to be used by the hospital district. Administrator Rita Mason said that it would be at least another month before the hospital sets its tax rate for the year.

She said that her office is waiting on the effective tax rate information that comes from the County Tax Assessor/Collector's office, as well as the land and mineral values before the estimate on the tax rate can be set.

The new budget calls for expenditures of $1,000,082 for the fiscal year. Added to that is a payment on the hospital district's bonded indebtedness in the amount of $43,145 to bring the total expected expenditures to $1.043.227. The hospital administrator's budget figures call for an anticipate income of $756,700 over the next year. That revenue will come from services rendered, not from the taxes the hospital collects over the next year.

The budgeted amounts for revenues and expenses leave a total of at least $286,527 to be for a Ricoh copier on a rental proposal of $290.87 per month.

A new smoking policy was adopted for the hospital. The policy was written after administration officials received letters from the U.S. Surgeon-General and the head of the Health Care Financial Administration, the administrators of the Medicare programs, suggesting that specific smoking areas be designated in the hospital.

Under the new policy, smoking is prohibited in all areas of North Runnels Hospital except the lobby, the employees' dining room, and the nurses lounge. Administrator Rita Mason said the new policy would become effective immediately.

In other business, the hospital plan as submitted by planner Mason and assistant ad-Lou Wright, RN/Paramedic.

Also approved was an agree-

Medical Staff by-laws were approved by the board. These by-laws were revised after the Medicare inspection last September and were re-written over the past year to meet current standards.

Also: approval of an agreement for consultation with Waco Cardiologists to over-read and intrepret EKG monitoring done at the local hospital.

Before handling routine items, the board approved new board adopted a new disaster contracts for Administrator Rita ministrator Clay Miller.

Runnels County 4-H Fashion Show

On Saturday, July 9, the Runnels County 4-H Fashion Show was held at the Carnegie Library in Ballinger. The Fashion Show is the achievement event that concludes 4-H clothing projects. Forty six 4-H'ers were involved in this activity, according to Patricia Ballinger. Hohensee, County Extension Agent-Home Economics. Mike Riley served as commentator for the evening. Recognition of the 26 leaders was given by Kendra McCown, of Miles. Jennifer gave Bickel acknowledgements for the is true for the fines collected in a court.

Now, I said all that to say all this.

In the past years, about eight of them, we have had access to a monthly activity report from our police department. Along with total numbers for the many different calls received, there was a summary of traffic citations issued, and for what.

We have also, in the past, carried stories about the amount of money turned over to the city or the county from fines collected in the local judge's office.

This week marked a first. In some 25 years as a journalist, I had not seen a censored police activity report-until now.

My copy of the monthly report had the portion relating to the number of tickets, warning tickets, and fines collected blanked out.

Now this is not a real big thing. It is, however, a curiosity. It is not a thing that lists names and offenses, it is only numbers, like how many speeding tickets, running stop signs and the like.

I do know our police officers have been working long, hard, and short handed this past month, and they deserve credit for that.

Whether the officers issue 10 or 110 tickets is not headline news. It only tells us how our police department is working.

That, along with amounts of fines collected, comes under the heading of the public's right to know-and has been addressed by the legislature.

Drasco Baptist to hold revival

Tamez was arrested Monday on the assault charges. The indecency charges were formally filed Tuesday afternoon, at the end of a two-week investigation. Members of the Runnels County Sheriff's Department and Winters Police officers were active in both investigations.

In other business, the hospital directors accepted the lowest and most advantagous bid submitted for a new computer system and software for use in the hospital. The low bid of $30,584, submitted by IBM/APS covers both the actual computer and the programs to handle the hospital's in-house accounting, payroll, accounts payable, word processing, medical records management, and DRG (Diagnostic Related Grouping) Paced program.

The two other bids for the computer were each more than twice the amount of the winning bid. Data Systems Management's bid was for $67,686 and the bid submitted by Health Care Management Systems was in excess of $85,000.

The board also approved a rental program for a new copy machine for the hospital's use.

evening. Special guests included: State Senator-Elect, Temple Dickson and his wife Katherine and Mr. Ken Cook, District 7 Extension Director.

Prior to the public show, the 4-H'ers competed in two rounds of judging: construction and appearance of the garment on the 4-H'ers. The results of the judging were announced at the conclusion of the show.

Champions in each age division and fashion category were: Junior Sportswear: Tammy Strube daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Strube of Hatchel; James Moeller son of Mr. and Mrs. David Moeller, of Miles.

There was one entry in the new Senior Consumer Buying Division: therefore, the champion in this division was Susan Bryan of Winters.

All champions received blue ribbons and sewing shears provided by Ballinger Tire & Service. These 4-H'ers will advance to district competition July 26 in San Angelo.

Several natural fiber cash awards were presented. Ballinger Co-op Gin provided $25 Savings Bonds to Lacy Binder (See 4-H Page 10) s fast as my saddle-horse.

"I had my provisions fixed up and got all in shape for an early morning start on one of these trips. When just before sundown, a posse of Indians came and camped in the valley near by. I knew if I waited until morning and they saw me leave alone some of them might follow me and try to get the mule I was riding, so I left that night about 10 o'clock and rode 18 or 20 miles and lay down to sleep until day.

"When I reached my camping place at Deer River, about 9 o'clock that next night, I made my coffee and broiled some meat. I preceeded to take a lunch, then after spreading my blankets preparatory to taking a nap, gave the mule a little corn on my saddle blanket, I had him tied the full length of my stake rope so he could graze within six or eight feet of where I was lying.

"The moon had just risen and it was a little cloudy, which made the moonlight flicker. The mule discovered an object about 30 steps off and gave a snort, walking back the length of his rope, looked right over where I was lying and quit eating his corn. He would walk back and forth, snorting every time he got to the end of his rope.

"Having seen smoke that evening just before sunset, a few miles from the road, I thought it might be Indians following me up to try to get my mule. I turned over on my pallet to spy out for them, fearing to get up which would give them a good shot at me.

"When I turned over and looked in the direction the mule was looking, I saw the object that was scaring the mule and was very sure it was an Indian; was sure I could see his bow and quiver hanging over his shoulder. I thought, as his bow was not strung and in a position for action, I would just lay still and watch him until he came close enough that I could make a sure shot.

"I always had a desire to kill an Indian, but just at this time I did not feel so much of the former bravery as I did when there was none in sight. There I lay and watched that object for the left, and walked up to the object and punched it with my six-shooter. I was much surprised, and very agreeably so, to find that it was a post oak stump

-NOTICE-NORTH RUNNELS WATER SUPPLY CORPORATION CUSTOMERS

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has adopted requirements that all public water systems notify their customers about lead exposure. This notifica tion is intended to educate and inform consumers on this issue in light of the fact that your drinking water may be a potential source of lead exposure. This is being done even though your water system is not in violation of the current standard. There are also other potential sources of lead contamination in the environment

The following specific language is required by EPA in this notice

The United States Environmental Protection Agency EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (PPM). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

The Average level of lead found in the water delivered to your home's service connection by North Runnels Water Supply Corporation is less than 0.020 parts per million which is below Health Department's 0.500 standard. All of North Runnels Water Supply Corporation water mains consist of PVC pipe

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water is not in violation of the current standard.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain; kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women. Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

1. if your home or water system has lead pipes, or

- 2. if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and -if the home is less than five years old or
- if you have soft or acidic water, or
- if water sits in the pipes for several hours

Ways to avoid potential lead exposure are to "flush' faucets before use and to use cold water for drinking and cooking. You may wish to have your home tap water tested for lead content by a competent laboratory. You may also wish to check to see of lead pipes, solder, or flux were used in your home plumbing.

Q. The first day my wife makes Boston Baked Beans they are delicious and moist. The second day they are dry. What's the solution? J. K.

Fallen, NV

A. Beans absorb moisture during storage. When reheating, add a little water or catsup to moisten the beans.

Q. A recent recipe called for plumped raisins. How do I do this?

S. W. Dickinson, ND A. Soak raisins in liquid to be used in recipe for 10 to 15 minutes before using them. Or, rinse, spread on cookie sheet, cover with aluminum foil and heat in 350 degree oven until they puff, about 5 minutes. Raisins benefit by plumping when used in short-cooking recipes.

Drought conditions cause fish losses

Drought conditions are causing fish die-offs in reservoirs and farm ponds over much of Texas.

Adequate rain to produce runoff for farm ponds has been lacking during much of 1988, said Billy Higginbotham, fisheries specialist with the Prairie View A&M University Extension Cooperative

General Situation

Area crops are looking great. Most everyone in the area has received from 2-5 inches of rain. Cotton ranges from just planted to first 1/3 grown square stage. Sorghum ranges from preboot to soft dough.

Our most serious insect pests in cotton include bollworms, overwintered boll weevils and cotton fleahoppers. Grain sorghum in the bloom and soft dough stage is experiencing some headworm problems now.

Grain Sorghum

We will need to watch for headworms beginning about a week after sorghum blooms. Many grain sorghum fields have already reached this stage and are having headworm problems.

Use the "beat bucket" technique to sample 100 heads per field. If you average 1.5-2 small headworms per 100 heads, its economical for you to treat dryland grain sorghum. For "seed" or irrigated grain sorthum the economic threshold is .7-1 small headworm per 100 heads. Some recommended insecticides include: Lannate®, Nudrin[®] or ethyl parathion.

Cotton

Cotton fleahoppers ranged from 0-12 fleahoppers per 100 terminals. Most of the fleahoppers we're finding now are adults indicating that they are migrating into fields from alternate hosts. From this point on, we'll be raising our own. The economic threshold is 15-20 fleahoppers per 100 terminals in combination with a 75% square set or less.

Boll Weevils Overwintered boll weevil trap catches remain extremely low, but weevil activity in the field is really increasing. These critters have gone to the squaring cotton and bypassed our sweetsmelling perfume in the traps. We've found up to 4 live weevils per 100 plant terminals. Early season weevil application may early season insecticide applications. If you are not timely with the applications, you would be better off not to spray!! It is that important. If possible, make your decision to commit to early season application if they are needed prior to the decisionmaking time. Then when it is time to spray, don't waste time.

Insecticides recommended for early season weevil control include: Guthion[®], Vydate[®] methyl parathion, Penncap-M and others. Remember these materials will not kill bollworms. So scout your cotton closely for bollworms prior to applying one of these materials. Any time you treat cotton early season, remember than an increase in bollworm activity is possible and should be expected. We are experiencing up to 30 eggs per 100 plants now in many areas.

Following are the trap catches for the past several weeks.

Local Methodists have a vital for the United Methodist prointerest in proceedings of the grams of ministry. They are United Methodist Church's elected for life. South Central Jurisdictional intendent of the Fort Worth Conference to meet this week in

New Orleans, Louisiana. Will the Central Texas Conference become a new Episcopal Area with a bishop of its own for the first time in history? Who will be their new bishop?

An action to divide the initial assignment. Dallas/Fort worth Episcopal Area of the United Methodist Church into two separate areas has been made possible and vireligible to be assigned to either Fort Worth or Dallas as leader tually assured by recent legislation of the General Conference of a new Episcopal Area. He is Jurisdictional Committee on the a very popular favorite among clergy and lay members of the Episcopacy and by the same Central Texas Conference and in Jurisdiction's College of Bishops.

Final approval and action is a resolution requesting he be expected as the South Central Jurisdiction of the church meets July 13-16 for its 1988 quadrennial session. Approval will allow the Jurisdictional Conference to elect one extra bishop to be stationed in Fort Worth as leader of a new Episcopal Area (yet to be named).

It is the responsibility of the Jurisdictional Conference of the United Methodist Church to elect and station new bishops. There are five Jurisdictional Conferences within the continental United States.

The South Central Jurisdiction, which covers eight states and is composed of 17 Annual Conferences, is already scheduled to elect two bishops, and to replace Bishop Walter Underwood, who died last year, and one to replace Bishop John Wesley Hardt of Oklahoma who is retiring.

The office of bishop is a very powerful position and loaded with spiritual and temporal responsibilities. Bishops preside at the Annual Conferences, ordain and appoint ministers to pastoral charges to work beyond the local church, consecrate and appoint diaconal ministers and provide leadership and guidance

Winters Young Farmers hold meeting

Thirty-three persons were present at the Winters Young Farmers meeting to hear Billy Henderson of the Texas Department of Agricultural explain the Agricultural Hazard Communication Law. The purpose of the right-to-know law, as it is most commonly known, is to provide farmers and agricultural workers with important information about pesticides used on Texas crops, the health effects of these pesticides and ways to minimize pesticide exposure to themselves and their families. Agricultural employers will be required to maintain records on each crop they produce and

Ronald D. Castille

1988 Outstanding Disabled Vet of the Year Disabled American Veterans

Loss of leg fails to slow Philadelphia's crime fighter

He's hell on crime!" That's how one aide described Philadelphia District Attorney Ronald D. Castille, who has been selected as 1988's Outstanding Disabled Veteran of the Year by the million-member Disabled American Veterans (DAV).

Castille carries the same zeal and competence into his job as was ingrained in him as a young Marine Corps officer in Vietnam. "Then, I had to discipline Marines," says the DAV life member. "Now, I have to discipline civilans."

Castille oversees a staff of 240 attorneys who prosecute about 50,000 criminal cases each year. With is 1985 election to a fouryear term, he became the first Republican elected city-wide in 16 years. It was a major upset in Philadelphia politics, and just one of a series of uphill battles for Castille since losing his right

As a Marine Corps platoon commander, Castille was leading team assigned to remove casualties of another platoon that was pinned down by a Viet Cong battalion in a rice paddy near Duc Pho in Quang Ngai Province. A machine gun slug struck his upper right thigh, knocking him down. Patting a fistful of soft gray mud into his wound to slow the bleeding, he continued to direct the recovery program.

"Corporal Angel Mendez saw me and began coming toward me," Castille recalled. "He said, 'hold on, lieutenant, I'm coming,' I yelled, 'Stay there, Stay there,' he came over and pulled me back. As he pulled me up an embankment, he caught a round in his chest...Angel disobeyed orders."

Castille's eyes got watery as Mendez..but me."

Castille's 23rd birthday. Air Council, Youth Services Helicopters came for the wounded. He was the last man loaded on the last chopper to leave. A machine gun slug ripped through the floor, shattered, and struck his already wounded leg and lower body. The shock of the legislative chairman of both the second blast stopped his National and Pennsylvania kidneys. He almost bled to death District Attorneys Associations, before reaching Clark Air Base he testifies before Congress and Hospital in the Philippines two the State Legislature regarding days later.

the Philadelphia Navy Base Hospital before joining friends at the University of Virginia Law School. Receiving a law degree in 1971, he returned to Philadelphia because he "fell in love with the city."

He joined the district attorney's staff, and spent 11 years as a trial lawyer, two years as chief of the Career Criminal Unit, and nearly two years as deputy district attorney before seeking the top post in 1985. He began his fouryear term as Phildelphia district attorney in January 1986.

Actively involved in veterans' affairs, many regard Castille as the Vietnam veterans' spokesman in Philadelphia. He's often asked to speak at Memorial Day and Veterans Day ceremonies. In 1984, he and three other Vietnam vets began the Philadelphia Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund. Approximately $750,000 in private donations were raised to erect a monument at Penns Landing to honor 630 Philadelphians who died in Vietnam. Completed last year and dedicated on October 26, the

"I have very little sympathy for criminals," Castille says. But he's willing to give first offenders a chance. "If they take it, great. If they choose not to take it, they must face the responsibilities."

Shortly after taking office, Castille convened two grand juries-one to investigate operation of the city's abandoned housing abatement program, another to look into reconstruction of 61 homes destroyed in the 1985 MOVE incident. After an exhaustive examination, the grand jury last year returned seperate presentments in each case, recommending charges be filed against three men who were accused of stealing more than $700,000 in taxpayer funds.

Castille has also prosecuted city employees for loafing on the job at taxpayer's expense, and for taking payoffs for illegal trash removal.

In cooperation with federal, state, and local authorities, the district attorney's office has waged a successful campaign against organized crime. Castille related crimes has effectively decimated the leadership of organized crime in Philadelphia and South Jersey.

His office also is playing a leading role in the investigation and prosecution of Common Pleas Court judges taking bribes. Castille is one of the state's leading advocates for a system of judical merit selection to replace the present electoral process.

Often at odds with the mayor and other city officials, Castille's latest battle has been an attempt to stop city officials from releasing city prisoners because of a U.S. Court order that sets the city's jail population at 3,750. Castille claims the 3,750 figure is too low; that the city jails can house 4,300 prisoners without overcrowding.

The release of such prisoners causes a safety hazard for the citizens of Philadelphia, Castille claims, because some of those being released have prior convictions for selling drugs and for some violent crimes.

Loss of a leg hasn't hampered Castille's interest in sports. An excellent golfer, he often plays with the best in celebrity benefit tournaments. He swims regularly and loves deep sea fishing, an interest he developed while growing up in Florida. He's an expert alpine skier, something he learned during his Navy rehabilitation period. He later spent three winters in Vail, Colorado, qualifying as an instructor for handicapped skiers. He uses a single ski with two outrigger skis.

The son of a career Air Force pilot with service in two wars, Castille spent his early years at various military bases around from Itazuke High School in rock. Fukuoka, Japan in 1961.

Prior to his injury, Castille planned to make a career in the military. At Auburn University, he joined the U.S. Marine Corps Platoon Leaders Program. After graduation in 1966, he was commissioned a second lieutenant, serving in Vietnam with Company F, 2nd Battalion, 7th Marines, 1st Marine Division.

Sometimes prayer is a way to evaluate and gain perspective on life. It surely is MORE than that. But it is also AT LEAST that.

We just got back off vacation. Went to the mountains. Where it was nice and cool. Did a lot of fun things. Rested and read, too. A refreshing time.

One of the most enjoyable times we had was during our devotions at the end of the day. Normally we don't have devotions as a regular thing. With everybody going all different directions and coming in at different times, it is just hard to get everbody together at one time in the evening. But you know how that goes.

On vacation it is different. The family is together most of the day. And in the evenings we were kind of stuck with each other. No TV (maybe that is the key).

So we would gather around the tiny living room. I would read a short Bible verse. Then we would begin our prayers. I would start the prayer petitions by thanking God for various things and events that we had enjoyed. Then each member of the family would chime in with things that they were thankful for that had happened that day. Or whatever else was on their minds.

The prayers were anything but pious. We were ourselves, Perspective. Reconciliation. giving thanks for all kinds of shopping. Needing a restroom suddenly when there isn't one around can be a crisis of its own. But you know how that goes, too.

It was a laughing matter that evening. Like we were having a good chuckle with God and each other over a good story after it had happed. Which I guess we were. Sometimes we giggled, laughed and roared through the prayers. I think God was pleased. In fact, I think I heard Him chuckle once or twice too. Pretty much everything we had done that day got mentioned. Any by way of its mention, it was evaluated. By the time we closed with the Lord's Prayer, the day sort of came together. And we felt good about that vacation day. A couple of days, we had been tired at the beginning of the prayers. And hadn't felt like we had done much that day. By the end of the prayers a Spirit of contentment and reconciliation had pervaded the room. Attempts to recreate these devotions have not gone well since we returned. It is hard to turn off the TV in the middle of a good show. And there are night meetings, social commitments, etc. That is our Prayers at the end of the day. A time for evaluation. Maybe we would do well to //

Safety Awards presented

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is dedicated to safety in all its operations. One way of emphasizing safety is to reward those individuals who normally operate state vehicles in the course of their daily work without being involved in accidents.

The department maintains records, and each year safe drivers are recognized. The years do not have to be continuous. Recently, District 7, which encompasses 17 counties in this area, recognized 242 drivers for their record of no accidents during 1987. These awards, which totaled 2407 years, ranged from 1 year to 34 years of safe driving.

The awards program was held in San Angelo. Mr. Marc Yancey, Deputy Director, Planning & Policy from Austin spoke

The Veterans Administration has begun reviewing disability compensation claims of veterans exposed to radiation while on active duty, and their survivors, under new authority recently conferred by Congress.

Legislation signed by President Reagan May 20 authorized payments to veterans suffering from any of 13 types of cancer, and their survivors.

To qualify for the disability compensation the disease must be rated 10 percent or more disabling and the veteran must have been exposed in one of three active duty situations: participating in a test atmospheric detonation of a nuclear device; serving occupation duty in Hiroshima or Nagasaki, Japan, between August 6, 1945, and July 1, 1946; or exposure while a prisoner of war in Japan.

Claims involving the 13 cancers already on file with the VA are being reviewed for nal control measurers, centralized purchasing, and the laws governing purchasing. The assumed by the law to qualify Court Cost section will cover statutes regulating court costs, how they are administered, recent changes in the law, and the amount courts may keep from fees. Following lunch, the Cash Management discussion will focus on ways to save and generate money through timely deposits, how to aggregate money, and how to save on interest (for instance, in capital purchases). The session will be geared to real-world, everyday local government finance, and will feature specific, tangible instructions and suggestions which will be of help to officials both in more effective management of public dollars and in compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

Officials are encouraged by WCTCOG to take advantage of what promises to be an excellent training opportunity and occasion to build relationships with other areas officials. For registration information, contact Jim Compton at WCTCOG, (915) 672-8544.

VA Questions and Answers

Q. Is it true that husbands of female veterans are eligible for the same Veterans Administration benefits as wives and widows of male veterans?

A. Yes. A husband or widower has the same status as a wife or widow of a male veteran and is eligible to receive the same benefits if otherwise entitled.
