Wait a minute...

By Kerry Craig

Well, America's football team now belongs to someone else. And Coach Tom is now faced with the proposition of finding another sideline on which to stand without emotion or facial expression.

Tom Landry's job with the Cowboys is no more. The brand new owner sent his brand new head-coach to follow up on new reports and to tell Tom he did not have a job anymore.

For those who are, or have been, loyal Cowboy fans for these many years, the transition to new owners and coaches has all the poise, grace and finesse of a train wreck.

Although Coach Landry was perhaps, overdue on retiring his less-than-subtle firing was rather sudden shock.

After all, he had been the only head coach the Cowboys ever had—since they were little buckaroos chasing the imaginary steellers that took their broncos back in '49, or some time.

To professional football, Landry was what Gordon Wood was to Schoolboy football—except for the past three years. He was more than just a coach, he was an institution. And those things just don't suddenly go away.

To steal a quote from former Cowboy fan Jack Cowan (he writes his column in the San Angelo paper), "The National Weather Service says an arctic cold front is headed toward Hell."

A lot of us thought that place would have to freeze over before Tom Landry would ever leave America's team before it was time.

Now, maybe, it was time. Perhaps the days of the Cowboy computer, the flex offense, the doomsday defense, the quarterback shuffle, and back-to-back Super Bowl wins are over. It might be a change was needed.

Even so, it was done in a rather frigid manner.

Professional football is different from schoolboy football just as Tom and Gordon are different.

There were a couple of school superintendents over in Brownwood in years past that set their sights on doing that kind of trick on Gordon. Things worked the other way, though.

Those head school guys woke up to the cold, hard fact that getting Gordon fired was just about as easy as moving Moro Mountain. It was one of those things you just didn't do.

They did it in Dallas, however.

The next edition of the Super Bowl could tell the story of whether owners and coaches make the team, or if players do.

Abilene man arrested on murder solicitation charges

An Abilene man is free on a reduced bond of $100,000 following his arrest last Wednesday on first degree felony charges of criminal solicitation to commit capital murder.

Roy Herring, 66, was arrested, without incident, at his home in the exclusive Tanglewood Drive area of Abilene and taken to Ballinger for arraignment and then placed in the Runnels County Jail.

The arrest climaxed a two-month investigation by state officers who had received information from an informant.

Herring is accused of attempting to hire the murder of Winters State Bank president Bobby Airhart and the bank's vice-president Dale Morrison.

Sources close to the investigation said that Herring had offered a "hit man" $10,000 each for the murder of the bank officials.

Originally jailed in lieu of $1 million bond, Herring was released after meeting the terms of a $100,000 bond set by Peace Justice Wilburn Davis in Ballinger.

Herring and the Winters bank are involved in a civil suit which seeks foreclosure on ranch property, owned by Herring, in Taylor, Coleman, and Runnels County. Winters State Bank is the lien holder on the property and had initiated foreclosure proceedings on the debt.

Herring had filed a counter-suit late last year in an attempt to prevent the repossession of the property. Investigators alleged that Herring had attempted to hire a "hit-man" after he filed the counter-suit.

If Herring is indicted by a grand jury and then convicted he could face a maximum sentence of life in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Herring was arrested by Runnels County Sheriff's officers along with state officers and Taylor County officers at his plush Abilene home.

Police apprehend one in burglary attempt

Winters police officers said that a 26 year-old man was taken into custody last week in connection with the burglary of a motor vehicle. Charged with burglary of a motor vehicle was Joe Angel Reyes of 300 Alvera. Bond was set at $5,000 on the charge.

According to the police department's incident report, James and Sarah Lee had just returned home when they saw a man run from behind their 1974 Ford pickup and crouch down in a clump of shrubbery.

The Lees checked their pickup to find that a Winchester .22 Magnum rifle was missing along with a compound bow.

The police report said that the suspect was then seen running down an alley.

Near where the man was said to have crouched down, officers said that a six-pack of beer was found along with the weapon and the compound bow. In another location, officers located several other containers of beer and a suit case belonging to the suspect.

Following a short search by Winters Police officers and Runnels County Sheriff's officers, Reyes was taken into custody and transported to the Runnels County Jail where he was being held in lieu of the $5,000 bond on the charge.

Police Chief Tim Dexter said that all of the stolen property was recovered by the investigating officers.

Short cut, cut short

What appeared to be a short cut to lunch Monday for a Winters man had an unexpected obstruction.

This late model Ford, driven by Kenneth Gray, smashed into, and under, a tank truck owned by Mac Oil Field.

Indications were that Gray attempted to take a short cut across a corner of the Mac Oil Field yard on and failed to notice the truck, which was pumping water to flush out another tank.

The force of the crash pushed the 30,000 pound plus truck sideways some eight inches and heavily damaged the car.

Winters Police Chief Tim Dexter, who investigated the accident, said that luckily there were no injuries to the occupants of the car or the operator of the tank truck who was standing beside the truck when it was knocked into him.

What's In San Angelo

We have heard of the man who traveled the world over looking for gold, and found it in his own back yard. This has proved true of the entertaining tours sponsored by the Winters Young Farmers. They found just what they were looking for this year in fun and recreation at nearby San Angelo.

Another plus feature was the leisurely departure from the Winters State Bank parking lot at 1 p.m. Those unable to leave then could join the tour at anytime and pay only for the portion they participated in.

The first step on the road was at Levi Strauss and Company Jeans Plant. The plant started on 29th Street and has been at its present location from 23 years. Jeans are made from the beginning to the finished product. Material is shipped in and unloaded by trailer—60 pairs of Levis are cut at once of one size. Each operator does one specific thing; pockets are put on, legs sewed together, brands put on, also buttons, brads, labels, sizes and other tags are added. The circular stitched pocket design is a registered trademark.

"We have quality check pants," said the production manager. Any article that doesn't meet specifications is thrown out and we start over.

Levi Strauss Factory at San Angelo—makes 80,000 pairs of Levis a week

About one-half of the workers wear ear plugs, the noise from the machines is too high. We have machines to lift the material and chairs to fit the people. We make 80,000 pairs of Levis a week; only the original old fashioned button fly kind. Our identification number is 552 and is found back of the waist button. We have 20,000 pairs ready to ship to Henderson, Nevada. They buy all of our production. The largest blue-jean we have ever made was a 50 by 36 and the smallest 27 by 27.

This plant has 385 operators and a total of 440 employees. With their quality program, "everybody helps somebody else," there is only a 2 percent turnover. Workers are paid according to their production and banners proudly display 100% production, 130% or more. When standards have been met for a certain length of time a person becomes a "president" and his or her picture is added to a group picture permanently.

Our next stop was at the Aeromotor Windmill Factory where Jim Lane, the owner and manager, was our guide. He was company kept the pump department.

Some of the more mature "Young Farmers" were ready to check in at our motel," Day's Inn, on Rio Concho Drive, and rest a little before a delicious dinner served in the Riverside Room at 6:30. Most of our group arrived in time to eat.

Those of the younger set found relaxation in the heated swimming pool and revived in time to take in the city attractions while others enjoyed a fast game of 88—played with two sets of dominos.

Tomorrow we would take a bus tour of some educational centers in the area.

FROM A GOLDFISH BOWL

BY PASTOR STEVE BYRNE

Monday afternoon I sat in front of the Word Processor, processing words, I suppose. The phone rang. It was my number-two-son calling from School.

I looked at my watch. 2:50. But I wasn't supposed to pick him up until 3:30. He had UIL story-telling practice after school that day.

"Dad, you need to come get me. They announced the ones who got picked to be on the UIL story-telling team. And they all went to Mrs. Lincycomb's room. I didn't get picked."

As I drove to school, all I thought about was how I was going to be a nurturing father to this poor, disappointed youngster. I went over all the nurturing things I could say to him in his deep anguish.

When I got to the appointed meeting place, Ryan was skipping down the sidewalk, his coat slung over his back (it was about 25 outside), carrying his book bag as if nothing had happened.

"How did school go today?"

Dad asked, expecting the dejection to be unleashed.

"Fine."

"Well, are you sad that you didn't get picked to be on the story-telling team?"

"No. Not really. Josh, John Morris, and Barrett made it. They are good friends. I guess more than anything, I'm just happy for them."

I've had to laugh at myself over that one. From early on, I had bought the American dream.

Where all people rejoice over the good fortune and achievement of the others. Where competition to be the best yields to caring and compassion.

Jesus called it the Church. And his vision remains a vision. We are not quite there yet. Actually, we don't appear to be close.

But sometimes we see it. Occasionally. In a second grader who would rather be happy for his friends than be dejected for himself.

"...and a little child shall lead them." (Isiah 11:6)

Letter to the Editor

I would like to offer my congratulations to the Wingate basketball team for an outstanding record this season. In my opinion these students do not receive the credit they are due. Some people in the community only criticize these students. I am proud of their accomplishments. I know that the team members devoted many hours of hard work to achieve this goal. These students deserve to be commended not criticized.

Dear Betty Crocker

Q. Cheese seems to mold faster than I can use it. How can I store it successfully?

Mrs. G. G. Newborn, GA

A. Wrap cheese tightly to store in refrigerator. If you have more cheese than you can readily use, cheese can be frozen. Cut into small pieces and package in moisture/vaporproof wrap. Thaw in refrigerator and use immediately.

Tip of the Week: Fresh shrimp, cooked or uncooked, is easy to clean. After peeling, use a small pointed knife to cut the length of the outside curvature. Remove the black sand vein and wash the shrimp.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is, currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. (The cost is only $55.00)

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.
