City and school board incumbents will face opponents on May 5

The race for city council will have at least six candidates running for the three open positions on the council. Candidates who have filed since the last edition of the Enterprise are incumbent Gene Bernal, James Spill and O.J. Murray. They will join Randy Loudermilk, Jim Lincycumb and Melinda Meyers, all of whom filed previously.

Garry Goff has filed for Place 3 on the WISD board. He will face incumbent Joe Bryan in the May 5 local election. Other incumbents, Gary Pinkerton, Place 4, and Charles Allcorn, Place 5, are unopposed at this point.

Deadline for filing to run in either the city or school election is close of business on Wednesday, March 21.

Incumbents Ronnie Poehls, Bill Cathey and Fred Watkins are the only candidates to have filed for seats on the North Runnels Hospital Board.

Candidates have until Wednesday, April 25, to file for a seat on the hospital board.

Precinct 2 Commissioner's race comes down to coin toss for run-off opponents

Runnels County saw some close races in last Tuesday's primary election, including one in which runoff places had to be determined by a coin toss.

In the balloting for County Commissioner, Precinct 2, Richard Hamilton and Ronald Presley polled identical totals of 159 votes to tie for second place behind front-runner Johnny Wilson. Wilson received 231 votes.

After a canvass of the votes failed to eliminate the deadlock, Hamilton and Presley went to a coin toss to determine the opponent in the second primary. Hamilton won the toss and will face Wilson on April 10.

The Precinct 4 Commissioner's race will also be determined in a runoff. Ricky Stone topped the voting with 389 ballots cast. He will face Paul Hite, who received 303 votes, in April. Eddie McNelly received 168 votes.

All JP races were decided without runoffs. Wilburn Davis defeated James Scrivener Jr. in Precinct #1 by a 475-206 count. Joyce Weems polled 420 votes to defeat J.C. Hodnett in Precinct #2; Hodnett had 329 votes. Lynn Bigler and Greg Lange had smaller margins of victory in their races. Bigler defeated Dorothy Granzin 196-139 in Precinct #6 and Lange beat A.W. Strube 153-103 in Precinct #7.

WHS School Board votes to close campuses

The Board of Trustees of the Winters Independent School District, meeting in regular session Tuesday, March 13, voted to close the campuses of the school district for the school year 1990-1991. Students will be unable to leave the campuses during school hours without special permission.

In other action the Board accepted recommendations of the textbook committee for adoption of textbooks; set March 27 as the date for hiring professional personnel for the WISD; established the date for the return of contracts by personnel; voted for a Board of Directors for the Region 15 Educational Service Center; selected Eckert, Story, Tinkler and Olipant, San Angelo, as CPA firm to audit the 1989-90 school year; and accepted a bid for school liability insurance.

First Baptist Church has special centennial services

Sunday, March 18, First Baptist Church, Winters, celebrated 100 years of ministry and service with special programs most of the day. A large crowd attended the special morning service with many out of town guests in attendance. Former pastors B. T. Shoemaker and L. L. Trott spoke to the congregation with Rev. Harry Grantz, former pastor now of Amarillo, delivered the morning service.

A catered noon meal was served at the Community Center with several present and former members sharing remembrances with those in attendance.

Children's and adult choirs presented a concert at 6 p.m. with an all church reception following in the church fellowship hall.

Winters City Council will meet in Activity Center beginning next month

The Winters City Council met in regular session Monday, March 19, and voted to change meeting locations effective the first meeting in April. The Council regularly meets on the first and third Mondays of the month at 6 p.m. Following a report by Councilman Steve Byrne and a motion made by Byne and seconded by Council Dawson McGuffin, the Council voted to move their meetings to the Activity Center for Senior Citizens, 601 Wood Street. Reason given for the change in location was to provide better accessibility to the handicapped and senior citizens.

Mr. Bobby Airhart, representing Winters State Bank, discussed with Council members the present investment of city funds. Council members have talked about joining Tex Pool, a group under the State Treasurer's office, for the investment of smaller government entities' money at higher interest rates than they normally receive from investing in short term Certificates of Deposits. Availability of the funds is another factor the Council is considering. According to Chuck MacIlvaine, City Administrator, the administration is looking at all options to maximize the return on the taxpayer's money to continue to hold taxes and water rates as low as possible. Mr. Airhart told members of the Council that the bank could not continue to pay 7 + % rates on CD's and break even or make any money, especially without the city's demand accounts.

City Administrator MacIlvaine told Council members Tex Pool is presently paying eight + % compounded daily and funds are available with 24 hours notice. The Council instructed Mayor Randy Springer and Administrator MacIlvaine to work out more details and bring back a report and recommendation for the next meeting.

Other business included the routine approval of payment of bills and the introduction of new police patrolman Patrick Coggins. Coggins is just out of the

Blood Services schedules blood drive here Tuesday

United Blood Services will be here Tuesday to accept voluntary blood donations. The blood drive will be in Room 203, North Runnels Hospital, from 3 to 7 p.m.

"There is absolutely no risk of getting AIDS or any infectious disease by donating blood," said Gary Karshner, Community Relations Representative of United Blood Services. Only sterile and disposable equipment is used during the donation process. Everything from swabs to blood bags to needles is used just once and then thrown away.

United Blood Service is a non-profit community blood provider and serves 21 hospitals throughout West and Central Texas.

Since blood cannot be manufactured or synthesized and red blood cells can only be stored for 42 days, a safe and adequate supply of blood must be available to meet the needs of area hospital patients. Currently, more than 1600 units of blood must be collected each month to meet area demands.

Blood used by patients in the United Blood Services system is freely provided by volunteer blood donors, so there is no charge for blood itself. United Blood Services charges a processing fee to recover the operational costs of the blood center, including collecting, testing, processing, storing and delivering the blood and blood components. Health insurance usually covers this fee.

Healthy people over 17 may donate blood. The State of Texas requires written consent of the parent or guardian for 17 year olds. Each donor receives a thorough pre-donation interview, including a careful review of medical history and a check of temperature, pulse, blood pressure and blood iron level. After the blood is collected, it is typed and tested for diseases which could be transmitted to the recipient. Should any of these tests indicate the need for medical attention, the donor is notified by mail.

The actual donation takes about 10 minutes. The donor relaxes in a comfortable chair while one unit (about a pint) is collected in a special container. Afterward, donors enjoy a light refreshment before returning to their normal routine.

Winters Rodeo Association will meet Tuesday

The Winters Rodeo Association will have a special meeting Tuesday, March 27, at 7 p.m., at the Peachtree Plaza Restaurant on Highway 153, Winters. The meeting has been called to give all members and interested parties an opportunity to participate in planning WRA activities for 1990. Anyone who loves horses and/or western activities is encouraged to attend.

One of the foremost topics on the agenda is the Eleventh Annual Winters Rodeo, which is

Centennial Sentinel

by Edna England
Publicity Chairman

The 100th anniversary of the Winters First Baptist Church was a great centennial celebration. Former pastors and members coming back home to join in the celebration and to reminisce of the days gone by had lots of beautiful memories of living in Winters.

The memorial day was climaxed by the First Baptist Church Choir presenting a gift of music to all the community with a wonderful concert. Songs of praise were offered to God for our heritage and then a challenge to our generation and to all generations to continue their praise to God.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall after the concert to end a day of visiting of friends and neighbors.

A mini-fashion show featuring fashion favorites from past decades were presented by the Winters Centennial Belles on Thursday at Ballinger High School as part of the Runnels County Ag Day. Rhuennell Poe and Billie Alderman coordinated the fashion show with Rhuennell being commentator.

Mrs. Poe wore a turn of the century heirloom dress; Mary Beth Drake modeled a dress worn a decade later as the bustle was replaced by the hemline being emphasized with ruffles. Kay Busher donned the traditional Sunday dress with a tight slim skirt, known as the hobble skirt, with a peplum to add fullness below the waist. Sandy Griffin displayed the style of swimsuit worn in the good ol' days. Bernie Faubion was dressed as a flapper of the Roaring 20s. Billie Alderman's wrapper dress looked as though she had ordered from the 1902 Sears Roebuck catalog for 98¢, with the postage 17¢. The 50s style of fashion of teenagers were worn by Angela Bryan with the poodle skirt, bobby socks and saddle oxfords. Susan Bryan wore the rolled-up jeans and white shirt worn with the shirt-tail outside with a scarf at the neck. Julie Springer looked like the typical girl of the late 60s and 70s with the mini skirt, boots and white lipstick. Cheryl Bryan was dressed as a modern lady with the floral dress with the return of the peplum and bow. Kay Colburn and Edna England were hostesses at the hospitality table at break time, dressed in old fashioned attire.

We want to thank each of these ladies and girls for their participation in promoting Winters' coming Centennial Celebration.

OIL BUSINESS

By Reg Boles

I'm at it again. The "Basics of the Oil Patch" continues. We've talked about spotting wells and acquiring leases, now we get down to the real labor. I will try to give you a good review of drilling an oil well in my usual "hit the high points" style. (I guess associating "style" with anything I write could be stretching it.)

We will be discussing "rotary" drilling only. About 90% of the wells drilled in this day and age are done utilizing rotary techniques. "Cable tool" drilling is another method that we will not discuss, but it was the pioneering method used to drill oil wells at the turn of the century. Rotary drilling is much more effective as opposed to the cable tool method, which involves dropping a heavy spear tool at the end of a line over and over to deepen the hole.

Let's get started. Drilling an oil well requires a drilling rig. A drilling rig is simply an apparatus used to support the weight of the drill string, well casing, and various tools used during drilling. Rigs are rated by depth, which relates to the amount of weight it can support.

The rig must also have capabilities that allow it to drive the bit in a rotary fashion (thus the name-rotary drilling) by turning the drill pipe at the surface. Diesel engines commonly are utilized to provide the power to turn the "draw works" which, in turn, powers the rotary table that turns the drill pipe. The phrase "turning to the right" refers to this situation (when all things are going well).

Also included with the rig are various pieces of equipment that are utilized to circulate drilling "mud" from the surface, down the inside of the drill pipe to the bottom of the hole, and back up the "backside" (between drill pipe and hole) to the surface. Mud pumps (powered by those diesel engines), filtering equipment, and circulating lines and hoses are required for drilling operations. Drilling mud can be air, water, or (as in most cases) a mixture of water and special minerals (dirt-like substances like Barite, Bentonite, etc.) and, possibly, special additives. The mud is used to move cuttings out of the hole while drilling, lubricate the bit, aid drilling progress and provide a medium to control pressures encountered from formations as the well is drilled.

Additional equipment required will be the drill pipe, drill collars (heavy drill pipe), a drill bit and specialty tools as required for certain situations.

The process of drilling a well begins by hauling the rig to the location and "rigging up". A "rat hole" (shallow starter hole) may have been "spudded" (drilled) by a smaller rig prior to moving in the big rig. "Conductor pipe" or surface casing may have been set to protect the fresh water zones from contamination. Once all equipment is on location and ready to go, the engines are fired up and drilling begins. Along the way, strings of casing (intermediate strings) may be set to support the formation and/or to protect the drill string against high pressure or corrosive fluids. Also, bits are changed ("bit trips") as required to maximize drilling time. Also, drill stem tests (DST) may be performed at various depths to evaluate the productivity of a formation.

As the projected TD (total depth) of the well is neared, the geologist or mudlogger on site will advise the driller and company man (if you can find him) as to the requirements to properly engage the zone of interest. This may require additional drilling or it may not, but this is critical to the success of the well. The decision is based on the interpretation of drilling time (rate), cuttings and possibly DST's or just plain savvy.

Before the final "production string" of casing is set, logs are run (see January "Basics") to evaluate the zones and possibly determine the viability of the well. If the evaluation is negative, the well may be plugged and abandoned before the final casing string is set. Otherwise, the well is now ready for completion.

That is a good place to stop for now. Next month, we will pick up where we are leaving off and set casing, perforate and stimulate our new well. It is bound to be exciting! Besides, this well is guaranteed NOT to be a dry hole. Try getting that anywhere else.

I conducted a funeral not long ago. For one of those "silent saints." Not flashy. Not very vocal. But in word and deed, as faithful as a rock.

Most congregations and communities have a few of them. You probably know one or two "silent saints." They are there at worship most every time the assembly gathers. They are faithful members of a Sunday School class. They don't say a whole lot they are in an "intake mode." That's the way they are.

The "silent saint" raises his/her children, works a job, or performs whatever he/she is called to do in life with the same faith and integrity that is evidenced in worship. At first, it is easy to ignore such a person. You simply don't notice. But, day-in-and day-out, year-in and year-out, this seemingly silent witness is no more silent than a thunderstorm. As easy to ignore as the majesty of a West Texas sunset.

No one gets to be a "silent saint" overnight. It takes a lot of years and life has to inflict its pain on you, tempt you to be something you are not. You even have to fail from time to time. Yet, somehow, your faith gets you through. You cling to Christ. And that life-giving relationship sees you through the storm. I suspect it is virtually impossible to be a "silent saint" much before your 60th birthday.

This particular man found that he had a life-threatening disease a few years ago. When I made that first visit after the prognosis, I asked him if he was afraid to die. His reply was simple and sincere. "No. I always hoped to live 70 years. When I reached 3 score and ten I figured every day beyond that was a bonus gift from God. When He's ready, I am."

"Silent saints" don't occupy pulpits, as a rule. They don't write quasi-religious stuff in newspapers. But they are to the Church what mortar is to the brick structure the Church meets in.

The "silent saint" is the road sign which points the way, silently, unobtrusively. While we often don't even notice the road signs the way we do the gigantic bill-boards with all their flash and color, when we want to find our way home or to our destination, road signs are indispensable.

We need them all. Brick AND mortar. Road signs AND bill-boards.

Actually, "silent saints," in the end, are not so silent. Thank God for the thunder of silence!

Winters FFA students have successful stock show season

Winters FFA members have returned from a successful stock show tour throughout the state. Roy Shackelford, advisor for the chapter, supervised members at the San Antonio, Houston and San Angelo livestock shows. (Fort Worth was reported on in an earlier paper).

At the two week long San Antonio show, Shackelford supervised students in the Jr. Steer, Limousin Heifer, Sheep, Simmental Heifer and Swine shows. During the first week, Nathan Smith exhibited a 3rd place light weight Maine-Anjou steer. Russell Parramore exhibited a middle weight Limousin steer and Ben Barker exhibited a heavy weight Hereford steer. Robyn Parramore had a 4th place Limousin Heifer, while Russell Parramore had an 11th place Limousin Heifer. Page Bishop participated in the Jr. Sheep show with a heavy weight Medium-wool lamb, a light weight Fine-wool lamb and a middle weight Finewool Cross lamb. The week was highlighted by the cattle exhibitors winning 2nd place

After a short week of rest and relaxation, the members loaded their trim chutes, show boxes, equipment and five steers and five heifers, and headed for the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo. Eight members participated in the Jr. Steer Show, Jr. Heifer Show and Calf Scramble. Ed Bredemeyer Jr. exhibited a 3rd place medium weight Short-horn steer. Misti Pritchard participated in the Jr. Swine Show. Ed Bredemeyer Jr and Page Bishop participated in the Calf Scramble during a rodeo performance. Each caught a calf and received $800 to purchase a heifer to exhibit in the 1991 show.

The last show of the year was at San Angelo. Members participated in the Jr. Rabbit, Jr. Steer, Jr. Heifer and Livestock Judging contests. Tiffany Donica and John Austin participated in the Jr. Rabbit show during the first week of the show. Ed Bredemeyer Jr. exhibited an 8th place light weight Cross Steer and a 4th place Angus Heifer. A visit to Stiles Computer Training Center

Jeff Johnson, manager, Stiles demonstration farm

In the afternoon we toured the Stiles farm at Thrall and Jeff Johnson, the manager, told us the history of the farm. The 3,300 acre farm was originally owned by James E. Stiles and upon his death it passed to his two sons. They had no heirs and set it up in 1961 as a demonstration farm, under a board of directors from A&M, but the farm is self supporting.

The farm completely surrounds the town of Thrall. Most of the farm is heavy, clay soil and 2,200 acres are being cultivated. Cotton is the best money crop, but it is rotated with sorghum and corn which doesn't do well. Cattle, hogs and catfish are the other money crops.

There are seven employees: two people do all the tillage, one works the fish and cattle. At present there are 300 head of cattle and hogs are hauled to Mississippi. Cotton is stripped and goes all the way to the gin. Fire ants have been a problem but are controlled.

The farm is a non-profit organization and a 47 acre field is used for demonstration work. They have some projects called "Gee Whiz" projects that haven't worked out but their computer school in Farm and Ranch Management proved most successful and helps pay Johnson's salary.

Fish are sold at the farm and Johnson showed us how to dress one, also to tell the difference in a male and female fish. He said that males had fat heads. Susan Conner remarked she always knew that.

While turning the bus around, after seeing some of the sights, it slid on a grassy knoll and had to be pushed. All of the Aggies and Red Raiders cooperated in this project.

Arriving at Manor House in College Station on schedule we visited with relatives in the evening on our free time. The Hays met a granddaughter and husband; Mary M. Leathers had her daughter and three children to visit from Sugar Land; Brandon Poe, a freshman Aggie, was my guest.

Plans for the next day were for a number of tours including part of the 5,000 acres of the Texas A&M campus.

Thank You

Sunday night when the wind was blowing so hard, there was a grass fire on our farm. We want to thank the members of the Winters Volunteer Fire Department for putting out that fire. They are to be commended for their hard work, expertise, and their caring. Also thank you to Novice, Lawn and Tuscola Fire Departments, Calcoite Dirt Contractors, the County for their water truck and the many other outside volunteers.

Just think-this could have been your home. Please support your volunteer fire department. The people of this community have something to be very proud of in their volunteer fire department.

Abilene rig crew training school to re-open in April

The Texas Engineering Extension Service, a part of the Texas A&M University System, has announced that the school for training drilling rig crews will re-open in April at the same Abilene site.

A 25-day course will be open April 2 and will graduate on May 4. The course will be for new and established rig hands, and it will be designed to improve efficiency and safety techniques of those involved in drilling for oil and gas. A complete functioning drilling rig will be utilized for the course, as will some classroom instruction.

Other courses are being scheduled at the West Texas Regional Training Center in Abilene. A Loss Prevention Course is scheduled for April and May (3 courses-2 days each) and it has drawn interest primarily from the collateral, appraisal, and adjuster groups. Tool & Equipment Testing courses and Cementing & Well Testing courses are also being planned.

Aggie Land: Here we come

Several Years ago the Winters Young Farmers adopted the goal of touring Texas Agriculture to view the different areas and types of farming not seen in our part of Texas.

These trips are open to all ages who are interested in, or have been engaged in farming. When a guide looks askance at some of us, Mary M. Leathers says, "I own farmland," and "I raised a farmer."

Some in the older group continue living on their farms, like R. Q. and Doxie Lou Marks; Red and Omega Priddy. Wes and June Hays moved to a farm after he retired. He plows everyday and just loves it. He plans to keep farming as long as his money lasts.

As a veteran of the first Young Farmers trip to the Rio Grande Valley in 1986 and to the Lubbock area in 1988, I feel qualified to speak out on some observations I've made.

On the Lubbock tour there was a rumble from a certain section that began to grow louder and louder, and finally became an uproar. It ended in a demand for equal time from the Texas A&M group on the bus.

Thus it was that the 1990 tour was made to Bryan and College Station March 8-10. The sheet of instructions reminded the Aggies on board to be sure and take their crayolas, there was a new coloring book in the A&M library.

Twenty-six people boarded a beautiful bus Thursday morning, arranged by Magic Travel of Ballinger, and headed out for a new adventure. Our bus driver, Ray Rose, was not only a good driver, he was good looking. We were pleased to have Gary Ender, State President of Young Farmers, and his wife Judy from Stamford, with us.

Dale Duggan was our director and explained that we were going into a strange country and there might be all kinds of diseases. We couldn't take any chances and he was going to give us a vaccine. It would be an oral one and wouldn't hurt us, but we might have to take it more than once a day. We dutifully swallowed our pills, which tasted much like M&M's.

On our DQ coffee break at Goldthwaite, I was delighted to find they had a give-away coloring sheet and crayolas, now I could color with the big boys.

North of Round Rock, we headed the wrong way on a road under construction and had to do some backing on a slightly slippery road, but thanks to our driver's expertise we came out with flying colors. We reached Round rock on time for lunch at Luby's.

Joni Dobbins wins in Denver City

During the 4th Annual Denver City Chamber of Commerce Track Meet held Saturday, March 4, the Denver City Fillie relay team donated the meet with freshman Joni Dobbins contributing greatly. Miss Dobbins won the 100 meter hurdles, the 300 meter hurdles and anchored the 1600 meter relay team to a 1st place finish in the final race of the day.

Her coach said it was quite a day for someone who could hardly see over the hurdles she so easily conquers.

Joni is the daughter of Mrs. Joanna Fears of Denver City and Wayne Dobbins of Sundown. She is the granddaughter of M. L. and Odessa Dobbins of Winters.

Thank You!

On behalf of the First Baptist Church, I want to say "thank you" to the Winters Water Department.

This past Sunday morning as our church centennial celebration was about to begin, the old water line that frequently ruptures under West Truit, did it again. For a little while we had our own "Red Sea" for all our guest to cross. But thanks to Jack Davis, Jr., Jim Ventress, and Tony Torres, who very quickly stopped the leak, we did not have the huge mess that we could have had. Thank you men for your very quick help!

Sincerely,
Glenn Shoemake

Thank You

I would like to thank everyone for the cards, visits, phone calls and Prayer Grams, while I was in the hospital and since I have been home.

Thank You

Wind blown grass fire on CRP land

Volunteer fire departments from Winters, Lawn, Tuscola and Novice fought and controlled a large wind-blown grass fire 4 miles northeast of Winters on Sunday night. The alarm was turned in at 9:45 p.m. and was finally brought under control about midnight. Approximately 150 to 175 acres of conservation reserve program land was burned. Firefighters had to contend with high winds up to 50 mph and were assisted by the County and Rodney Kruse with transports of water. Also Cal-cote and Sons furnished maintain-ers to assist in fighting the fires. The fires were on property owned by Weldon Mills and Walter Adami.

Fire officials are investigat-ing the possibility of the fires being intentionally set. Deputy sheriff Keith Collom is heading up the investigation. These fires were in the same area as others in the past 30 days.

Fire Chief Johnny Merrill cautions farmers and others to use extreme care during the dry season by keeping CRP fields trimmed to decrease the danger of fire.

West Texas Utilities employees proudly support and participate in the Gatekeeper Program for senior citizens.

We will do our best to assist them by being on the lookout for signs of potential problems that can quickly develop.

With your continued help and concern for our senior citizens, the Gatekeeper Program will be a helping hand to our communities — a public service message from WTU and its employees.

Letter to the Editor

Winters is unique for a small town in that it has two newspapers. The Latin is uno for one and equis is for horse. You might say that it's not a one-horse town, for there are several horses.

The San Angelo Standard Times and The Abilene Reporter News have a greater number of people and much larger scope and circulation. NBC, CBS, KRBC and KRUN fail to get a scoop on our local news (that which extends thirty or forty miles around Winters). World, National and State News are 'old hat' by the time our weekly newspapers are printed, but we get folksy and interesting news about the people we know and local events.

When we criticize our town it is good, if the criticism is constructive and not destructive. The big towns are appealing to go and do some trading and for entertaining. We buy a little more and pay a little less and forget the cost of transportation and time. But our town is a nice one to raise our children and to retire in.

The crime rate is low, the town is friendly and we have much less traffic. We do have problems, but having town meetings (so as to have input) could resolve a lot of things and make it an even better place to live.

We cannot afford the taxes and services as high as large towns because we do not derive as large an income from our businesses, jobs, and farms. Government loans, grants and matching funds come to us with strings attached. The 'strings' are what make them hard.

We also want to thank Mahafey's Market and Lawrence Brothers for providing the fresh veggies for the hospitality table. It was really a favorite spot for the 500 or more people who attended Runnels County Ag Day. We want to express our gratitude to the new businesses in Winters; it is so good to see some of the vacant buildings being occupied. We are hoping that all businesses will benefit from the Centennial Celebration and the businesses will be good for the celebration.

We are excited about the Tuesday night meeting of fun to form chapters of the Brothers of the Brush and the Centennial Belles. If you are unable to attend, call Steve Byrne or Cheryl Bryan, as this will be a fun time to get involved in the Centennial Celebration.

The beautiful lone star quilt made by the Good Neighbor Club is on display at the Chamber office. This is their contribution to the Centennial Celebration.

Mac Sayles, Mary Esquivel and children rode in the Winters' yellow Centennial Wagon in Abilene St. Patrick's Day Parade on Saturday to promote the Centennial and to extend invitations to participants to come to Winters' parade on June 30.

Fundraising efforts begin for Children's Miracle Network Telethon

Workers and volunteers for the 1990 Children's Miracle Network Telethon began fundraising efforts at a kick-off luncheon in March at Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene. Highlighting the event was a check presentation for $15,500 from Don Thornton of United Cable of Abilene for the 1990 Telethon.

The Telethon, a project of the Hendrick Medical Center Foundation and KTAB Television, enjoyed a successful $150,000 event in 1989 and is looking forward with great optimism to the 1990 telethon, scheduled June 2-3. All proceeds from the Telethon benefit the Meek Children's Hospital and other children's services at Hendrick Medical Center. The show will be broadcast on KTAB, Channel 32. The Meek Children's Hospital serves children from more than 25 West Texas counties. Approximately 900 children from outside Taylor County were admitted in 1989.

"When we began last year to raise public awareness and money for the Telethon, we were surprised at the overwhelming interest and support we received," said Winston C. Beard, Ph.D., president of the Hendrick Medical Center Foundation. "West Texans are such generous people and they responded immediately with their time and money to make the Telethon a success. As we prepare for the 1990 Telethon, I am confident that our level of support will be even greater as more people get involved with helping take care of our children's healthcare needs."

Children receiving treatment in the Meek Children's Hospital are already using purchases made from last year's Telethon. Those purchases include Zaddi teaching dolls, digital nursery scales, phototherapy lights for newborns, chairbeds for pediatric parents, cardiac monitors, rocking chairs, new play room furniture, a grant for children's hearing aids and more.

Karen Kemper, M.D., local pediatrician, is the 1990 honorary Telethon chairman. "As a physician, I cannot say enough good things about this Telethon," she said.

Produce prices and supplies will be at near normal levels in March

Consumers can expect produce supplies and prices to approach "near normal" levels in March for the first time since the devastating December freeze.

Dr. Dick Edwards, economist in marketing and food distribution with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said consumers should find plentiful supplies of cabbage, spinach, lettuce and greens such as kale, collard and turnips, broccoli and brussels sprouts.

"From Mexico will come ample supplies of strawberries, bell peppers, cucumbers and cantaloupes," he said. "The Chilean fruit supply will dwindle toward the end of March, but there should be plentiful early month supplies of peaches, plums, nectarines and grapes."

In late March, snap beans, sweet corn and squash from Florida will be coming to market. The fresh asparagus season also opens this month, with some special supermarket sales announcing its arrival.

Good buys also will be available on all varieties of apples and pears, white potatoes and sweet potatoes, Edwards said.

The crop of grapefruit from Arizona and California, which was not affected by freezes, is being harvested, and some will find its way into Texas supermarkets this month.

"Look for specials on some oranges and grapefruit as these supplies become ample," Edwards said.

With the Lenten season at hand, discounts will be found on seafood. Ash Wednesday is the last day of February, and food retailers will feature seafood in many forms during the six weeks before Easter, Edwards said.

"Look for specials on fresh white fish fillets, ocean perch, cod, hoki and oreo dory. Farm-raised catfish and salmon also will be featured. In frozen foods, fish fillets, fish sticks and entrees with fish, shrimp or scallops will be advertised," he said. Besides seafood, poultry products will be price leaders in the meats section.

"Whole birds will be priced at 49 cents a pound, with leg-thigh cuts at 29 cents a pound. Bone-in chicken breasts will sell at $1.29 a pound. Turkeys also will be good buys at 89 cents a pound."

Traditional cuts of beef and pork also will be on special.

"Beef round steak, chuck steak, chuck roast and ground meat will be featured. Pork specials will include pork chops, pork steaks and sausage," the economist said.

Geared to St. Patrick's Day observances on March 17 will be sales of an additional cut of beef—corned beef brisket—and such companion items as rye bread, canned sauerkraut and fresh cabbage. Many supermarkets will feature Irish stew and other foods associated with Ireland to help celebrate this day.

March also is National Frozen Food Month, and special promotions will direct consumers to frozen products. Featured will be ice cream and other frozen dessert items, as well as frozen microwave meals and vegetables.

"Special attention should be paid to coupons on frozen food products," Edwards said. "Many items discounted at supermarkets also will be promoted by coupons, making savings even greater."

Spring officially arrives with the March equinox, so many retailers will discount lawn and garden equipment to encourage consumer purchases. Look for vegetable seeds, rakes, shovels and fertilizers to be discounted.

"Diet aids will be another featured category as consumers strive to shed a few pounds and get in shape for spring. Dietary desserts, yogurt, low calorie entrees and powdered dietary aids will be available

Weed control important in CRP grassland acres

According to Kathy Pappas, Soil Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, weed control is important in establishing grasses on your conservation reserve program acres. If it is evident that weeds are overtaking or damaging your seeded grass, it's time to take action.

There are two types of weed control—chemical and mechanical. The goal is to kill or suppress weeds so that the desirable seeded grasses may become established. Several factors must be evaluated before action can be taken in controlling the weeds. A person must know: how dense the weeds are (are they shading out the seeded grasses and stealing vital moisture); how mature are the undesirable plants; what kind of weeds are most prominent and what stage of growth are the desirable grasses (is there any grass).

Chemical Control

If your CRP acres are located in the northwest corner of Runnels County (north of Colorado River and west of Hwy. 83), during the time between May 26 and Oct. 1, hormonal herbicides cannot be used. So a person may want to use a mechanical method of weed control, rope wicking, or apply herbicides before May 26, if the CRP acres are in this location.

When using herbicides to control weeds use a selective chemical that will kill the most prominent weeds without damage to the desirable grasses. Keep in mind that the seeded grass must be past the four to five leaf stage or any chemical will damage or kill the grass and the seed production of the grasses may be affected if sprayed in the early boot or heading stage. Herbicides are usually most effective between 70° and 80° F., satisfactory between 64° and 85° F., and can damage your grasses if sprayed above 90° F. Caution should be used when spraying on windy days. If velocity exceeds 10 mph, don't spray.

Ropewicking can be used in the regulated spray zone and/or to selectively kill Johnson grass and seeded grasses. Ropewicking selectively wipes the chemical (Roundup) on taller plants, allowing only shorter plants that are not wiped to survive. This method should only be used when the seeded or desirable grasses are six inches below the undesirable weeds. If ragweed is a problem the use of 2,4-D and picloram have been effective in controlling it. The time to control ragweed is in the middle of April.

Mechanical Control

Another alternative used to control weeds is shredding or mowing. The shredder should be set one inch above the average height of the seeded grass. This method suppresses the weeds allowing the desirable grasses to overtake the undesirable plants in the CRP acres. Broadleaf plants should be shredded before the budding or blooming stage to control seed production.

Farm Family of the Year named

This year's 1990 Farm Family of the year is the Larry Schwertner family from Rowena. They are a close knit family that is actively involved in their community, church and 4-H. They are members of St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Rowena and farm in the Rowena-Ballinger area where they raise cattle along with growing cotton, milo and wheat.

Larry Schwertner graduated from Ballinger High School, having farmed ever since. He is President of The Southern Rolling Plains Cotton Producers Board, a member of the Board of Directors of Ballinger Co-op Gin and a Ballinger Young Farmers member.

Patsy Schwertner grew up in Wall. She is a full time homemaker, mom, chauffeur and is willing to help with any farm chores, being most notably known for her bug scouting. She is a member of Ballinger Young Extension Homemakers and a 4-H leader.

They have three children, Heather, Tamra and Lance.

The Schwertner family was presented with a plaque and given a cordless telephone.

Agribusinessman of the Year named

This year's agribusinessman of the year started his business in the late 50's. He and his brother, Norbert, bought a sprayer to spray their own cotton. Soon he began custom spraying.

Then because it was always hard to find the farmer to get the chemical to spray he began providing the chemical.

This led to his selling other farm chemicals that the farmers applied themselves.

This business was operated in a tile building on his farm at Olfen. Much of the time the farmer came while he wasn't there so they picked up the chemical and left the money in a desk self-service style.

The business grew, so in the late 1970's they moved the business, Western Chemical, to a more centralized location in Rowena.

This year's Agribusinessman of the Year is Arnold Mattheisen.

Arnold and his wife Charlene had three children, James, Diane and the late Randy. James and his wife Starla live and farm in Olfen; Diane and her husband, Billy Eggemeyer, live and farm in Midkiff. Arnold and Charlene have seven grandchildren, soon to be eight.

Arnold serves on the St. Boniface Parish Council. He is a member of the St. Boniface Knights of Columbus, he has served on the Olfen School Board and on the Millersview Doole Rural Water Board.

Environmental issues facing agriculture will be outlined by Katherine Reichelderfer of Washington, D.C., a member of "Resources for the Future," a policy and planning group.

The ability of technology to replace chemicals in production agriculture will be addressed by Dr. John R. Abernathy, resident director of research at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock.

The director of economic analysis for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Keith Collins, will explore the alternatives and consequences of environmental policy.

The economic impacts of reduced chemical use will be examined by Dr. Ronald Knutson. He is an Extension Service economist and director of the Agricultural and Food Policy Center, Texas A&M University, College Station.

The Texas High Plains perspective will be presented by Dr. Kary Mathis, professor of agricultural economics at Texas Tech University.

Whether USDA or the Environmental Protection Agency will control agricultural chemical policy will be discussed by Mack Gray. He is assistant to the chief of the Soil Conservation Service, USDA, Washington.

The role of research and the Extension Service will be reviewed by Dr. Milo Shult, associate director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, College Station.

Twain Talk

by Linda Twain

Are you enjoying our windy days? Sure seems like we've had our share of wind in this neck of the woods lately. I think that a really stiff wind brings out strange emotions in folks. Maybe it allows their true nature to be "exposed." Watching people trying to maneuver in the wind can sure bring a laugh or two—especially if you're inside and they're outside. You've probably watched someone try to get out of their car in a strong wind.

Because they must have forgotten what the howling noise was, they think they can just nonchalantly fling open the door. Wrong. First, they sort of put their shoulder into the door and get the momentum going. Then they resort to thrusting a leg against the door (a tricky feat if wearing a dress), and scoot out sideways. Then watch them jump back quickly as the door slams shut with enough force to fire a cannon. All this is much more exciting if two people try to get out of the car at the same time - opening both doors and clearing out everything that wasn't bolted down inside the car. When this happens, you get an extra treat of watching them frantically try to catch all those important papers that have been "fired" in the seat, floorboard and dash for six months. Folks will run in the craziest fashion trying to catch and step on these papers. Normally, a person will run with one foot in front of the other - you know, right, left, right, left. But when a person tries to step on a piece of paper bobbing along the ground, they just stomp along as though they are stomping out a grassfire and have only one boot. OR, the second method of capturing runaway papers is to run along in abnormally large steps while bent over, never raising up, although there's at least twenty feet between the person and paper on the ground. Why do we do these things?

And, if having all your valuables strewn across two counties isn't humiliating enough, just watch a woman wearing a full dress try to contain her dignity on a windy day. And if she has a super-bouffant hairdo, she's in for a real workout. She can't decide whether to save the spiffy hair or corral the ten yards of fabric that has caught a serious updraft and is now billowing around her neck and face. Double disaster. This skirt could fly up high enough to damage precious hairdo. So we girls usually try to gather as much of the skirt as we can with one hand and "gracefully" tuck it between our knees and hold that position until the first day of summer when the wind finally quits. And usually, no matter how hard we've tried, that blasted hairdo has been turned in every direction possible. Sometimes, we can sorta smooth it back down, except for those little batches on top that insist on sticking straight up (but nobody tells you this until you've been at the office/store/party for two hours). Thanks loads.

At least we don't have the added task of wrestling hats these windy days. I remember a true story about a nice lady who was walking down the street on a very windy day, keeping her head down so as not to lose her hat. She approached her husband, took him by the arm and said, "Let's go honey." Not really a big deal except for the fact that that man wasn't her husband - he just had the same color of shoes as her husband and that's all she could see. Oh well, she got the wrong guy but I bet she kept her hat in place. Now that's throwing caution to the wind.

Childbirth education classes being conducted at NRH

Childbirth education continues at North Runnels Hospital with an open house held for Dr. Albert's prenatal classes Wednesday, March 14. Ten couples are registered for the classes.

Mitzi Deike, RN, gave the welcome and led the program during which information, questions and answers were all handled concerning the labor, delivery and care of all newborn infants. A tour of the facilities was given with the assistance of Billie Brown, Director of Nurses, and Archie Lancaster, EMS.

The prenatal classes are designed for expectant parents to prepare for their baby's "birth-day" and the days following this blessed event.

NRH is actively engaged in family oriented maternity care and weekly in-service training is provided for nurses in neonatal resuscitation, said Deike.

"Our goal is to provide quality healthcare to all concerned," she said. "We specialize and created the phrase 'team work,' so that all of us are consciously working together toward the same goals: healthy baby and healthy mom."

North Runnels Hospital offers maternity tours at specific times to acquaint expectant parents with various birth options and latest equipment and facilities as well as the nursing team that will be present to assist parents and their families at the time of childbirth.

With the encouragement and recommendations of physicians, NRH offers expectant mothers the option of choosing the method of delivery. "We have the traditional delivery facilities as well as sophisticated operating rooms for Cesarean births," said Bob Prewit, hospital administrator. "These options must be discussed with the physician first," he added.

Once the delivery method has been chosen, NRH provides continuous personalized care and support throughout labor, delivery and recovery. An OB anesthesiologist is available 24 hours a day, should any expectant mother require this service. The NRH staff is trained to handle unexpected emergencies and has available a special maternal-neonatal emergency transport team for high-risk emergencies as well as unexpected problems that occasionally arise.

"At North Runnels, we strive to make families as comfortable as possible," said Prewit. "We offer Rooming-in, if so desired, which means that baby stays with Mom and is returned to the nursery for perhaps the doctor's visit, or when the mom has visitors, or just requests it.

"Our specialized nursing staff will be happy to answer any questions expectant parents may have about the baby and/or Mom's care," concluded Prewit.
