Heartbreaker! Hamlin 7-Winters 6

With the Blizzard defense fighting valiantly to the end, the Winters team came up on the short end of a 7-6 score last Friday night in Hamlin. Although the offense could never get rolling as it should, the defense did not allow a score until 7 minutes and 10 seconds remained in the third quarter.

The first half of the game was marked by almosts, but the Blizzards could never get across the goal line. On the opening kickoff of the second half, Blizzard David Roman took the ball and ran 95 yards for a touchdown, but alas, it was called back due to a clipping penalty. The Blizzards began to drive from their own end of the field, but lost the ball on a questionable fumble recovery by Hamlin near the 40. Blizzard coaches and fans felt the Hamlin player who recovered the fumble near the sideline had been out of bounds before covering the ball. The referees did not see it that way - the ball was Hamlin's.

Shortly thereafter, Hamlin's Wayland McGee ran 3 yards into the end zone for the first score of the night. The winning point-after was kicked by the Pied Pipers' Stuart Jeffery.

The Blizzards finally got on the scoreboard with 8 minutes and 10 seconds elapsed in the fourth quarter with a quarterback sneak by Craig Slaughter for one yard and a touchdown. The Blizzards elected to go for the win and two points and seemed to have the right play called when Bodie Collins made a leaping catch of Slaughter's pass in the end zone and was knocked out of bounds by Hamlin tacklers. The officials ruled the catch was not made in bounds because Collins' feet did not come down inside the end zone. Blizzard coaches argued that he was knocked out of bounds by the tackle, therefore the catch should have been ruled good. Nevertheless, the ruling was made by the officials and was not to be changed.

The Blizzard defense went back to work and held the Pied Pipers on downs and had one more chance at scoring before time ran out. That chance was ended when the Pied Pipers intercepted a Slaughter pass.

The Blizzards had chances to win the game and seemed to have a tendency to shoot themselves in the foot when things got going. A total of four fumbles were lost and three of six passing attempts were intercepted.

Leading ground gainer for the Blizzards against Hamlin was Jody Guy with a total of 96 yards, 56 rushing and 40 on kickoff returns. Timothy Torres ended the night with 85 total yards, 73 rushing and 12 on pass receptions. The Blizzards gained a total of 181 yards rushing and 22 yards passing to the Pied Pipers' 139 rushing and 45 passing. The Blizzards had 16 first downs compared with Hamlin's 11.

On defense, Timothy Torres led the Blizzards with 11 solo tackles, 9 assists and 1 quarterback sack. Craig Slaughter and Jamie West followed close behind with 9 solo and 8 assists and 7 solo and 4 assists, respectively.

The Blizzards lost a hard fought battle, marked by good defense and not so good offense and a good many non-calls by the referees. Many Blizzard fans booed the officials as they left the field to show their displeasure at the quality of the officiating.

This Friday night will find the Blizzards at home for their last homestand of the season against undefeated and district-leading Albany. The Lions are 8-0 for the season and 5-0 in District 7-2A play. Last week Albany downed the Haskell Indians 47-0.

The Lions were last year's district champions with a 10-2-1 record and returned seven starters from the 1989 squad. Pete Moberley, a 6-2, 210 pound senior tackle was an all-state selection from last year's team. Four other players were 1989 all-district selections. Quarterback Clint Chapman and running back Johnnie Hudman had a hand in all four of Albany's first half touchdowns against Haskell. Hudman ended the night scoring three of the seven touchdowns for Albany.

The Blizzards will have to limit mistakes on offense and keep working the good defense in order to stay in the game with Albany. With some luck on the side of the Blizzards for a change, they could just dethrone the Lions. Come out to Blizzard field at 7:30 Friday night and support the Blizzards!

Blizzard number 33, Jody Guy runs for yardage against the Hamlin Pied Pipers last Friday night. Out front for blocking is number 22 Timothy Torres.

Ladies Golf Association to hold garage sale

A giant garage sale will be held by the Ladies Golf Association on Saturday, November 3 at the Winters Community Center. "Early Bird First Pickers" may come for $1.00 a head at 9 AM; then the building will open for all, free of charge, at 10 AM.

Proceeds are to be used for improvements at the Winters Country Club.

Voting in General Election next Tuesday

Runnels County voters will go to the polls next Tuesday, November 6 to elect a governor and other officials. The governor's race has been the most vocal and has set a record for spending. Candidates Clayton Williams (Republican) and Ann Richards (Democrat) have spent many millions of dollars in the quest for the state's highest office. Williams has run as a political outsider while Richards is considered as a political insider, having served as state treasurer for the past four years and as a Travis County Commissioner before that.

A third candidate in the race, Jeff Daiell, has not garnered much attention running on the Libertarian Party platform.

The Lieutenant Governor's race has become somewhat heated in the last few weeks with candidates Bob Bullock (Democrat) and Rob Mosbacher (Republican) sniping at each other in their ads. The Libertarian Party has candidate Tom Owens running on their ticket.

In the race for United States Senator, Republican incumbent Phil Gramm is competing with Democrat Hugh Parmer and Libertarian Gary Johnson.

Charles Stenholm is unopposed in his re-election bid for United States Representative.

Attorney General candidates are Republican J. E. "Buster" Brown, Democrat Dan Morales and Libertarian Ray E. Dittmar.

Warren G. Harding, Jr. (Republican), John Sharp (Democrat) and William E. "Bill" Grisham (Libertarian) are running for the office of Comptroller of Public Accounts. State Treasurer candidates are Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison, Democrat Nikki Van hightower and Libertarian Karen A. Tegmeyer.

In a race of local interest, Haskell native Rick Perry is trying to unseat Democrat Jim Hightower, running on the Republican ticket, for the office of Commissioner of Agriculture.

Other races to be voted upon include Commissioner of the General Land Office, Railroad Commissioner, Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court, Justices of the Supreme Court, Places 1 and 2, Justice, Court of Criminal Appeals, Place 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5.

The only other race with competition is for Justice, 3rd Court of Appeals with Republican Jim Keahey running against Democrat Mack Kidd.

All county offices are unopposed, having been settled in the primaries.

Runnels County voting will be from 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday, November 6. Voting precincts and polling places are as follows:

- Precinct 1: Ballinger at the Runnels County Courthouse
- Precinct 3: Winters at the Housing Authority Building
- Precinct 4: Winters City Hall
- Precinct 5: Wingate at the Lions Club Building
- Precinct 6: Norton Community Center
- Precinct 7: Ballinger Community Center

Lions' Roar

Sarah Speegle, age 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Speegle, entertained Winters Lions Club with piano playing last week. Sarah has learned to play through the Yamaha® by-ear approach with solfege, the international music language of do, re, mi. Sarah has been enrolled in a class for the past year at Hardin-Simmons University which she attends once each week with a parent. The Yamaha® method requires parent participation with the child and has been very successful in other countries.

Sarah demonstrated her skills by playing one song for the Lions and then playing a second song first in one key, then converting to another key the next time through.

Quilt Show - November 9 and 10

America loves QUILTS! They are soft, comfortable, and warm; and they carry suggestions of home, family, protection, and practicality. QUILTS! The very word evokes a different pleasant sensation for each person - warmth, color, softness, texture, beginnings, safety.

QUILTING! More and more people are learning to appreciate the unique qualities found in quilts. The choice of colors, textures, patterns, quilting designs, the imaginative use of materials at hand, each quilter's level of talent in handling the many choices of material supplies and their ability to carry out the execution of these choices guarantees that no two quilts will be exactly the same.

QUILTS have endured for centuries to take their rightful place as one of the most universally recognized American art forms, an art of the people, an art that speaks of love with every stitch - love of beauty, love of life, love of work, love of family.

Since the early 1970's, America has experienced a renaissance of interest in QUILTING, a gradual realization among the people that this homey domestic work could produce spectacular results. These results outlive their makers, transcend their humble beginnings and have come off the bed and onto museum and corporate walls. They have even spread to foreign lands where people respect and value them as America's national treasures.

QUILTS provide us with a solid bridge to our past, with cultural continuity, with historical documents of the daily lives of people. Each quilt tells its own story in stitches, not in words, but the tale is no less compelling. QUILTS have told of Indian attacks, have declared political messages, have shown patriotism during each war that America has fought; they have carried stories of unrequited love, and have carried carefully stitched prayers and hopes for children.

The QUILT, that most anonymous of women's arts (and men's too), rarely dated or signed, summarizes more than any other form the major themes in a woman's life - its beginnings, endings, and celebrations retold in bits of colored cloth. In bridal quilts, patchwork coverlets for daily use, parlor quilts, album quilts...even in widow's quilts - a woman said everything she knew about art and life.

As a historical and cultural record, QUILTS have the rare capacity to stir people's emotions and memories.

The Z. I. Hale Museum will be sponsoring its annual Quilt Show Friday and Saturday, November 9 and 10, in the Rock Hotel on West Dale Street. All area quilters and collectors are invited to share their quilts, old and new. Please bring your quilts to the Rock Hotel Tuesday and Wednesday, November 6 and 7, between the hours of 1:00 and 4:30 PM. Quilts will be judged in five categories: pieced, embroidered, antique, baby, and appliqued.

For further information please call Estella Bredemeyer, 754-5268 or Jewell Kraatz, 754-5175.

FROM A GOLDFISH BOWL

BY PASTOR STEVE BYRNE

Alvin was a member of my first congregation. He drove a cattle truck and worked hard, day and night. Each and every Sunday he was in church.

And each and every Sunday, about the time the preacher started preaching, a switch went off in Alvin. And by the time the introduction was over, he was asleep. The back of his head resting on the back of the pew, his eyes closed and pointing up to God, he began his version of a day of rest.

Sometimes he would really get into it and begin to snore. At which point, his dutiful wife would give him the old "chicken wing," which is an exceptionally sharp elbow to the rib cage. This would interrupt his rest only momentarily.

This became a part of the Sunday morning liturgy. As important as any part of the service. It wouldn't have seemed like Church if this transaction had not taken place.

Once someone asked me how I put up with it. Didn't it bother me? I had never thought about it. It was a given. When I preached, Alvin went to sleep.

I chose to believe that it had more to do with Alvin's needs than my preaching. But that is probably open for debate to this day.

The truth is, it didn't bother me. He worked hard all week. Long hours. I would imagine that those few moments on Sunday morning was the only time during the week that he could sit down (not in his truck with work to do) and not have anybody hassling him.

If his system saw to it that he slept during that time, I figured it was the work of the Holy Spirit. Seeing that Alvin got what he needed during that holy hour. The church may well have been providing him a great service by giving him 20 minutes of uninterrupted rest - except for the old "chicken wing," of course. Over which the church had no control whatever.

After all is said and done, I would much prefer to watch one of my parishioners sleep in church than not be able to see him sleep because he is doing that at home. Who is to say that this is not the way it is supposed to be?

It might even become a part of the special liturgy that you don't read about in the worship books. Even to this day, sometimes I wish I could hear Alvin's deep guttural snore mid-way through the sermon. Sort of puts things into perspective.

"The Outrageous Price of Gasoline"

From a producing oil well, not counting the cost of completion, the property owner depending on the amount of royalty and how many shares he owns and pays taxes on, to the company that picks up the oil, to the refiner, to the jobber, to the service station, to the consumer, no one makes the margin of profit that the state and federal government makes on a gallon of gasoline. If they did no one could buy gasoline.

As in all manufacturing, etc., the regulations imposed by the different governmental agencies keep a strangle (sic) hold on the companies. It's much easier for big companies or manufacturers to go to a foreign country and ship their products back in to the United States. There is no tariff (sic) on the foreign goods and the elimination of the headache of keeping up with regulations.

In the mean time, there are less jobs in the United States and the need for new taxes grows in proportion to the loss of their jobs. We have gigantic sell out of our industry and technology to foreign countries by our government at the expense of the taxpayer.

Billy J. Emmert

Letter to the Editor

This is in regard to the Blizzards' game with Hamlin, Friday, October 26, 1990.

When are we going to demand the U. I. L. to clean up the Referee Association in this area so the games will be fair to all??

It is heartbreaking to see a bunch of boys play their hearts out, only to have a win they were entitled to, taken away by a group of biased referees. Is this sportsmanship?? I hardly think so!!

We are supposed to train our children that honesty and fairness are the best. Is this the way to do it?? Positively not!!

Here's hoping these next two weeks will be better.

We have played well, and the team has represented our school and town well. We should BE PROUD to be a BLIZZARD from Winters, Texas.

A Blizzard Booster and a Concerned Parent

Linda Mitchell
 4th Grade Teacher

Mrs. Mitchell is originally from Orange, Texas and has been employed by WISD since 1988. She is a graduate of the University of North Texas with bachelors in Art and Interior Design. She has art certification and elementary certification from Angelo State University. Her previous experience was as a self employed Interior Designer.
 Linda is married to Mike Mitchell, who is a self employed farmer. They have two boys ages 11 and 13. Linda enjoys family outings, walking, teaching Sunday School, sewing, crafts, remodeling, and decorating. She hopes to help her students realize that learning can be exciting.

Seventh Grade Breezes undefeated

The 7th grade Breezes moved their record to 6 - 0 Thursday night defeating Hamlin 18 to 8. Jerry Esquivel had a big night, scoring 3 touchdowns and rushing for 200 yards. He had scoring runs of 32, 50, and 80 yards. The other score came on a 35 yard run by Joe Reyna. John Paul Belew scored one two point conversion and passed to J. W. Angel for the other.

The defense responded well after the first drive by Hamlin giving up only one touchdown. Coach Lipsey says, "It was a good game for us and all the kids got a lot of playing time. Everyone is showing improvement each week and that is what is important. This coming week we are looking forward to a tough ball game against Albany."

Eighth Grade Breezes lose close one to Hamlin

The Winters 8th grade Breezes entertained the Pied Pipers from Hamlin last Thursday. The Breezes jumped to 8 - 0 when the defense scored a safety, and on the ensuing kick-off, Nathan Collins returned it for an 80 yard touchdown. The try for the extra point was no good. The Pipers came back with a touchdown and a 2 point conversion for the 8 - 8 halftime score.

The second half started with the huge Piper line taking it's toll on the Breezes. Eventually, the Pipers scored after recovering a Breeze fumble at the Breezes' 35 yard line and driving it in from there. The try for two was good, leaving the score 16 - 8.

The Breezes did not quit. With four minutes left and 60 yards to go, the final drive began. Mixing the pass and run, the Breezes drove down the field, scoring on a pass from Nathan Collins to Anthony Earl Thomas. The Breezes try for two and a tie came up short. Final score 16 - 14 in Hamlin's favor.

"We came out short on the scoreboard, but not because of lack of effort," stated Coach Henley.

The Breezes play again at Albany, November 1.

The Hamlin Pied Pipers defeated the Winters J.V. Blizzards last Thursday, October 25. The final score of the game was 28 - 0.

The Pipers took control of the game early and scored off two long passes. Hamlin's final two touchdowns came on the ground. The score at half time was 28 - 0 in favor of Hamlin.

In the second half, the Winters J. V. held the Pipers in check, not allowing them on the scoreboard. Offensively Lee Reyes had a good game for the Blizzards. Offensive linemen doing a good job were Scott Thorpe, Wes Hart, and Billy Clough. Defensively, Jeffery Waller, Ahmad Griffin, and Scott Thorpe led the charge for the Blizzards.

The next action for the Winters J. V. is this Thursday in Albany.

Twain Talk

by Twyla Twain

Maytags, Mountains & Moms

Is laundry a mystery at your house? Do your dirty clothes seem to multiply overnight?

I believe I spend more time doing laundry than eating, sleeping, and flossing - combined. Silly me, I thought my sofa was to sit on. But I've learned it's sole purpose is as a display for laundry so my kids can locate whatever article of clothing they need at that particular moment.

Yes, I've been doing laundry for at least a hundred years, and still can't understand the system.

During my childhood (back when we all walked barefoot through the snow for two miles to a one-room schoolhouse) nobody in my family had more than four outfits of clothing - one pair of britches for work, one for play, duds for spiffy dress up times, and one optional outfit of questionable size and origin.

But even during this "deprived" stage, I still remember doing mountains and mountains of laundry. I'm still not convinced that three-fourths of all that washing didn't belong to six other families with spoiled kids who never new the excitement of using a wringer washer (or a scrub board at grandma's) and actually hanging clothes outside on a clothesline.

I remember being so impressed with one of my "city" friends cause she had an indoor clothesline in her garage. She didn't have to wade through the grassburrs, swat flies and mosquitoes, or get severe neck and back strain from reaching for three hours while clipping on clothes pins that a certain creepy brother had tried to destroy with his BB gun.

Anyway, I'm certain I gathered in laundry for at least half a day. Then I spent hour after hour folding, starching, ironing, sorting and distributing clothes that I'd see dirty again in only three days.

Who in the world was wearing all those things? We hadn't been anywhere or done anything exciting. We hadn't even adopted anybody.

Nope, I didn't understand then and I don't understand now. All I know is that the same mysterious clothes mountains are just bigger and more complicated now.

These days we mothers really need a degree from PLU - Proper Laundry University - before tackling the heaps of dirty clothes. This can be done with no less than seventeen piles of sorted items of apparel.

You know - the cold stuff, the hot stuff, the delicates, the jeans, the picky things that demand "wash seperately," the stuff that makes everything turn pink, and the bathmat that somebody dried with your black skirt and now makes you look like you shaved the cat and decided to keep the fur.

Then three days later when you emerge from the laundry room and think of being crowned "Queen Laundry", you hear this whiney, nasal voice say, "Mom, could you wash my sequined ballet suit and my basketball shoes real quick-like? I need them in an hour."

Guess I really shouldn't complain. All this laundry challenge gives me a real purpose in life. What more could a mother want than to know that she sends her family out each day all lemon freshed, stain removed, with the whitest of whites, and all with great odor protection.

Yup, all this laundry just makes a mother want to stand proudly and sing, "Climb Every Mountain."

Head Lice: Fall is the Peak Season

According to the National Pediculosis Association, the peak season for headlice is the fall. Head lice is a condition in which the parasite pediculus humanus capitis lives in and on the hair of the human host. Children are affected more often than adults. Typically, the parasite is picked up at school, brought home, and transmitted to other members of the family.

Parents should consider these preventative measures: Do not let children share beds at night. Each child should have his or her own hair brush, comb, hat, and headphones. Encourage children to not wear other children's clothes at home or at school.

According to a recent article in American Pharmacy, parents should check their children at least weekly during the fall months for lice. Look for lice and their small eggs on the child's hair and skin. Examine behind the ears, at the crown of the head, and at the nape of the neck. Check towels after children bathe. Wash bedclothes, blankets, towels, and pillow cases in very hot water and dry these items at the highest dryer temperature setting. Clean combs and brushes in hot water.

Nonprescription shampoos for head lice are available as gels, liquids and foams. Your pharmacist can help you select a good product.

Runnels Soil Conservation News and Notes

SCS services available Don Haley

Most everyone has heard of the Soil Conservation Service (SCS), but you may not be fully aware of the many types of assistance the Soil Conservation Service provides. Whether you own or operate farm or ranch land, you can benefit from what the SCS has to offer.

There are four areas of responsibility in an SCS Field Office. The District Conservationist (D.C.) is the man or woman in charge. The D. C. compiles information from the daily work load and handles all aspects of SCS and RSWCD business and is responsible for the day to day operation of a busy conservation field office. Any problems or areas of expertise that cannot be addressed by the field staff are directed to the D. C.

The Range Conservationist (R. C.) specializes in identifying range conditions, grasses, forbes, brush, etc. The Range Conservationist is trained in the planning of grazing systems and assisting ranchers in making resource management decisions based on the individual rancher's type of operation, climate, type of livestock, soil type, and the many other factors that enter into sound range management operation.

The Soil Conservationist (S. C.) specializes in assisting farmers in cropping practices which reduce soil erosion. Conservation tillage, crop residue use, contour farming, and assistance with conservation compliance planning are just a few of the many practices in which the Soil Conservationist is available to assist farmers and ranchers in conservation management. The Soil Conservationist works with producers to maintain productivity in cropland fields and recommends practice designed to reduce and control soil erosion. The Soil Conservationist is knowledgeable about construction practices such as terrace systems, diversions, waterways, etc. that can aid the producer in sustaining a high degree of production and stewardship of natural resources within that farmers control.

The Soil Conservation Technician handles the technical aspect of installing conservation practices. The Technician designs detailed lay-outs of the various conservation measures such as terraces, farm ponds, waterways, etc. and is responsible for the final check on constructed conservation practices to assure that the practice has been built to design specifications. For example, when a producer has a problem from excess water, the Technician will make an on-site inspection of the area. Recommendations will be made as to corrective conservation measures to alleviate the problem. The Technician is available to design a system that will meet the conservation objectives of the situation. Following construction, the Technician is available to inspect and certify the practice.

Although each position in the field office specializes in a certain area, each person has cross-training in all fields. The SCS has ongoing training programs to keep employees abreast of the latest conservation management information.

The Ballinger field office staff consists of District Conservationist Ronnie Vanicek, Soil Conservationists Melinda Hudson and Kathy Pappas, Soil Conservation Technician Charles Fre- rich, and Runnels Soil and Water District Technician Don Haley.

If you have any questions concerning resource conservation management, the SCS staff is available to assist you. You are invited to stop by the SCS office at 610 Strong Avenue in Ballinger or call 365-3415.

VETERINARY UPDATE

by Jimmy Smith, DVM

Twinning in cattle — an unusual event

Twinning in cattle is an event that is not a common occurrence. This week I'm going to deviate a little from my usual problem oriented column, not that there are not a few problems associated with having twin calves.

Twins may result from one of two situations. The first situation that results in twins is the simultaneous ovulation of two oocytes or eggs with the resultant fertilization of both. This is called fraternal twins. The second type of twin birth is referred to as identical twins. This is the result of a single embryo splitting during early stages of pregnancy, resulting in two individual embryos that are identical in all ways. Hopefully you will be able to note the remarkable resemblance of the two calves in the picture. Note that their color pattern is exactly the same but the size of the color pattern may vary slightly. The color pattern location is determined by the genes, however the spread of pigment is not controlled, so there is a slight difference. These calves were delivered last Thursday afternoon, from a first calf heifer, for the Lange Brothers of Norton.

As I said earlier, twins are not normally a common occurrence. Most twins will be born in the late summer and early fall. It is very unusual for a first calf heifer to have twins, as most twins are born to cows from six to nine years old. There are some breeds of cattle, such as the Holstein, that have a higher than usual percentage of twins. In fact, the Holstein breed ranks first as the breed having the most per 100 births. Simmentals, a beef breed, ranks a close second. Also, there are certain cow families and daughters of some sires that are prone to have a higher incidence of twins.

I mentioned that there are also problems with having twins. Some cows do not give enough milk to support two calves. This is probably the most common of the ten heard complaints from owners of twin calves. Too, there can be the possibility of difficult birth with twins - usually it's because they both decide to be born at one time. So, I see the head of one calf and the feet of the other. Cows delivering twins often suffer from a retained placenta or afterbirth. Cows delivering twins are usually slower to rebreed than cows giving birth to single calves. Last but not least, is a condition we see with twins whereby a bull calf is born twin to a heifer calf. This condition is called freemartinism. In this case, the female reproductive tract does not develop normally, and usually this heifer calf will be infertile.

This just about wraps it up for this week. I hope that it has been informative for you. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact The Enterprise or myself and I'll be happy to print you a reply or consult with you on the matter.

Halloween thieves about

Some wily thieves stole the pumpkins decorating City Hall on Sunday night. Several people reported seeing the display intact around 9 p.m. Sunday night, but when City employees came to work on Monday morning, no pumpkins were left on the display.

The display had been arranged by Donna Donica, Shelia Paschal, and Dottie Loudemilk and entered in the Chamber of Commerce contest for best decorated business. The disappointed City employees have secured new pumpkins and painted them, but are taking them in every night for fear of a recurrence of thievery.

The same night as the pumpkins were stolen, someone, possibly the same person or persons, also knocked over the large pot plants in front of the Z. I. Hale Museum and broke the pots.

Police are investigating the two acts of vandalism.
