Undefeated no more! Blizzards freeze Albany 12-7

The Winters Blizzards put in a week of hard work following the one point defeat by Hamlin and put together a near perfect game against Albany to remove the Lions from the ranks of the undefeated last Friday night. As most of the Blizzards games have been this season, the game was a defensive battle all the way through.

Coming into the contest, the Lions were sporting a perfect 8-0 record and seemed to be destined to go through the season undefeated until coming to Blizzard Field. The Blizzards looked tough from the start on defense and would not allow the Lions near their goal line. The Blizzards took the lead with 2:38 remaining in the first quarter on a 3-yard pass from quarterback Craig Slaughter to Bodie Collins. The attempted point after kick was wide and the Blizzards led 6-0.

The first quarter was controlled by the Blizzards with Albany running only eight plays the entire quarter. In the second quarter, the Lions drove all the way to the Blizzard 16, but on a fourth and seven attempt, came up short and the Blizzards took over on downs. Several times during the game the Blizzard defense rose up to meet the challenge on fourth down and short yardage attempts by Albany.

The Blizzards took the 6-0 lead into the locker room at halftime as they planned their strategy for the second half. Coming out in the third quarter, it looked as if the Blizzards would continue to control the game until Blizzard quarterback Craig Slaughter rolled out for a pass and was hit and fumbled with the Lions recovering on the Blizzard 43. Two plays later, Albany quarterback Clint Chapman threw a 43-yard pass to Sal Martinez for a touchdown. The Albany extra point was good and the Blizzards fell behind 7-6.

Albany and Winters traded punts until late in the fourth quarter when the Blizzards drove to the Lion 28. On the next play Slaughter was blind-sided by an Albany player and fumbled with Albany recovering on their own 40-yard line with 4:01 remaining on the clock. The Lions were unable to move the ball against the Blizzard defense and punted to the Winters 23. A spearing penalty against Albany moved the ball to the Blizzard 38 and they started to work with 2:04 remaining on the clock.

Slaughter connected with Collins again on a 16-yard pass, moving the ball to the Albany 46. On the next play, Slaughter found sophomore David Roman streaking down the left sideline and lofted a perfect pass. Roman gathered in the pass on the 10 and outran defenders into the end zone to give the Blizzards a lead of 12-7. The score remained following the Blizzards attempt at a two-point conversion which failed

Following the touchdown, Albany threw four consecutive incomplete passes with the Blizzards defenders keeping a tight rein on the Lion receivers. The Blizzards took possession of the football with 28 seconds remaining and ran out the clock.

Sophomore Roman was a sparkplug for the Winters offense all night and also played very good defense. He was in the game due to the regular halfback, Timothy Torres, being out because of family illness. Roman was the leading ground gainer for the Blizzards with 129 yards rushing on 22 carries and 79 yards on pass receptions for a total of 217 yards of the Blizzards' 423 yards for the night.

Second in yardage was Craig Slaughter with 112 yards. Leading the defense was Josh Awalt with 11 solo tackles and 4 assists, followed by Albert Bernal with 7 solo and 9 assists.

Head Coach Danny Slaughter says the Blizzards have played good defense all year, but this game was played as well as we can play. "This bunch has played hard all season and they deserved this win," said Coach Slaughter.

The Blizzards are looking forward to traveling to play Stamford this Friday night to settle the tie for third place in the District. Stamford defeated Haskell last week 49-14.

The Bulldogs are strong at the skill positions, have good depth and speed and were picked to win the district at the beginning of the season. They are an experienced team, having returned 12 starters from their 1989 team which went 5-5-1 for the season and 3-1-1 in District. They also have three of last year's all district selections on the 1990 team.

The Blizzards will be looking for a good crowd of supporters to follow them to Stamford this Friday night.

A term that has gotten a lot of usage since oil prices have increased is "hedging." That used to be what out-of-work engineers and geologists did in people's yards after being laid-off during the bust. But, now, we are referring to the technique of using oil "futures" (we talked about these earlier in the year) to cushion the blow of falling oil prices (if it happens).

Hedging involves establishing contracts to buy or sell crude oil at some set price at some specified time in the future. Let's investigate "futures contracts" a little before we get deeper into the hedging technique itself.

Futures contracts are just an agreement between parties to deliver crude oil at some set price at some specified time in the future. The futures exchanges in New York and around the world set the prices of most futures contracts by reflecting the collective world view of the worth of oil in the future. This collective view is just the free market at work, driven by frenzied men and women on the exchange's trading floor. This collective view is subject to change at any given moment that the exchange is open.

For example: I could sign a contract to sell oil at $30.55/bbl in March, 1991, as of yesterday. I, then, am obligated to sell a specified volume (usually in denominations of 1000's of bbls of crude). Likewise, a buyer is obligated to buy my oil at that price we agreed upon-regardless of what the world price of oil is at the time when the contract is actually executed. This is the futures contract at its most elementary level. It gets more complicated.

Some contracts are never actually delivered because a futures contract trader will establish or buy a contract that cancels out his other obligations. But, that is another story altogether and it would wear both of us out if I tried to explain what little I know about it.

Whew, dodged that bullet!! 382, A-256. Let's apply these principles to our discussion of the hedging technique.

establishing futures contracts to BWPD in the Caddo (perfs 6288ture date at some specified price. If oil prices fall, they are protected. If oil prices rise, they the L.A. Bridges #3 in the South don't get to share in any of the Branch Field (10 miles SE of additional wealth, but they do establish some floor for prices. There is always a tradeoff.

This is the most simplified hedging technique. There are several other methods for setting some floor for oil prices. The price can be bracketed, both high and low, by establishing contracts to sell and buy. Again, it is supercomplicated, and we won't delve into the intricacies of the more complex methods. There is also a way to hedge without actually having to establish futures

There are securities called options which are simply the RIGHT to buy or sell futures contracts at some specified time and price. The trader pays a price, set by the market, for the RIGHT to buy (call) or sell (put) a futures contract with a certain expiration date. The upside: the cost is much less than that associated with a contract, so a trader can control a much larger block of oil for the same amount of money. The downside: the trader runs the risk of losing 100% of their investment, as opposed to losing only a portion of it as is the case with a futures contract.

Same animal as the futures contract hedging, just a little more dangerous and a little more attractive because of the upside potential for huge gains.

Anyone who knows how to pay brokerage commissions can participate in these hedging techniques, but beware of the risks and the costs. There is no reward without the risk of losing something (like your shirt), and you're prowling the Wall Street jungle, where there are man-eaters around every corner.

HeadStart Council convenes

The HeadStart Policy Council, Central Texas Opportunities, Inc., held its initial meeting for the 1990-91 school year on Tuesday night, October 30, at the principle office located in Coleman, Texas.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. William Clay, chairperson of the 1989-90 year. Ms. Delia Dela Rosa, director, and Mr. Mike Zuniga, Jr., executive director, welcomed everyone. Invocation was delivered by a very special guest, the Honorable Scott Bailey, Eastland County Judge. Roll was called and a quorum established. Representatives from seven different counties (Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Comanche, Eastland, McCulloch, and Runnels) were in attendance. Winters residents included Ms. Marianne Woffenden, instructor/supervisor, Mr. Joe F. Guajardo, central office staff, Mr. William Evrard, board of directors and policy council board representative, and Ms. Susan Ripple, policy council community representative.

Final meeting minutes of the previous year were read and approved. Ms. Dela Rosa discussed 70.2 Policy Council Training. This included a very detailed explanation of rules and regulations delegating specific responsibilites and powers to a particular governing body, whether it be one person such as the executive director or several persons such as the council members or board of directors.

Other items discussed and approved included a supplemental application for federal funds to cover the newest center's operations in DeLeon and an expansion application whereby Central Texas Opportunities, Inc. will delegate to People for Progress, Inc. in Sweetwater. CTO and People for Progress propose to enroll approximately 160 children in the Nolan, Scurry, Mitchell, and Fisher county areas.

HeadStart personnel dismissals, resignations, and employments (temporary, substitutes, and permanent) for all nine cen-ters were approved upon questions and answers.

Winding down to final business, the congregation concluded with the election of new officers for the present year. Honorable Judge Bailey presided with results as follows: chairperson -Mr. William Clay of Coleman, vice chairperson - Mr. William Evrard, and secretary-treasurer -Ms. Susan Ripple, the latter two both of Winters. Congratulations to each of these three!

Mr. Clay, Ms. Dela Rosa, and Mr. Zuniga expressed sincere appreciation to all for taking such an enormous interest in the program and bid everyone a safe trip home. The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served.

VA announces new number for Insurance Hotline

A change in telephone service has resulted in a new toll-free number for the Department of Veterans Affairs national hotline for veterans seeking information about their government

By calling 1-800-669-8477, insurance holders and beneficiaries can obtain immediate service on address or policy changes, dividend information and general insurance information.

Not only is calling the VA Insurance Center faster than communicating by mail, it also is more personal and allows the policyholder to raise additional questions based on the response to the original inquiry or request.

Established in 1988, the Philadelphia VA Regional Office and Insurance Center hotline answered 1.3 million calls in its first two years. In recent months, some 2,500 calls were answered daily. An overnight message service, which began in May 1990, allows callers to leave messages after 5:30 p.m. (ET) and on weekends. Insurance specialists return those calls within two working days.

Public Hearing in on Sweetwater healthcare

The State and Federal Legislative Committee of the Sweetwater Chamber of Commerce will host a public hearing on Thursday, November 8, 1990, in conjunction with the Center for Rural Health Initiatives to receive comments regarding rural healthcare in Texas. The hearing will be held in the Graphics Auditorium on the TSTI Sweetwater campus beginning at 1:30 p.m.

The Center for Rural Health Initiatives was created as a result of legislation enacted by the 71st Texas Legislature in House Bill 18, the Omnibus Healthcare Rescue Act. The Center is mandated to submit a report to the Texas Legislature by January 1, 1991, with findings and recommendations on rural healthcare

House Bill 18 included mandates to several state agencies regarding rural healthcare concerns. Progress on implementation of these mandates has already been reported to the Center. Public comments received at this hearing, along with their responses and recommendations, will enable the Center to advise the State's lawmakers through this report. Written testimony may also be sumbitted.

The report to the Texas Legislature should answer questions legislators have about rural health issues such as:

- What progress has been made in implementing new state requirements and programs?

- What has been the perceived impact of HB18? - What other external factors or events are affecting rural health service delivery? What are the major remaining issues in rural health service delivery? What next steps should the state take to address these issues?

Further information may be obtained from Ann McCarthy in Sweetwater (915) 235-3623, or Bryan Sperry, Executive Director, the Center for Rural Health Initiatives, at P. O. Drawer 1708, Austin, Texas 78767 or at (512) 458-7776.

A team approach to Estate Planning will be discussed by the speakers who include: Andre G. Beesley, a registered financial planner and estate planner; Grider Hays, attorney-at-law, who grew up in Runnels County; Mark Travis, also from Runnels County, who is a practicing accountant; and Thurston McCutchen, estate planner and registered financial planner.

"During the seminar, we will address your choices and options in estate tax planning, legal planning to keep your business in the family and the use of wills, trusts and family arrangements" says Mr. Mauldin.

FROM A GOLDFISH BOWL

When I was in the second grade we moved from the only place I had ever known as home. Archer City, to Many, Louisiana. It was a culture shock. Like entering a different world.

The first day of school was the most frightening experience I can remember during those years. It was in the middle of the first semester. I didn't know a soul. Had all kinds of apprehensions.

That first encounter never did enable me to get comfortable in Many. I was delighted when Dad's boss informed them that they had drilled their last dry hole (or any other kind) in Louisiana and they were going back to Archer County.

The most recent additon to downtown Winters, and sitting on the lawn in front of the City Hall, is a metal sculpture called "Symbiosis" by Dewey and Eloise Chestnut. This latest contribution to the city is part of Winters' on-going clean-up, paint-up, and spruce up campaign, started by the Beautification Committee last year. With the City Council's approval of the permanent site for the proposed sculpture in metal, the Chestnuts began work on their most challenging project.

They wanted to prepare not only an art piece for the city but also one that would be representative of life in our local area. To do this, Dewey drew from his own large collection of metal artifacts and received donations of equipment from the farmers, ranchers, and businesses in and around Winters. The resulting design can be enjoyed for its symmetry and artistic arrangement of sunflowers, butterflies, and broomweed, as well as, for the origin and former uses of the various metal pieces representing Winters' industries.

The flowers are made from small plow discs, shaker screens, railroad spikes, and planter plates; the leaves are chisel points and sweeps. The stems are from used pump barrels and sucker rods. The base for the flowers is a large plow disc with a drill bit placed in the center and an added touch of broomweed made from drilling cable. Lettering on the base is made from logging chain. All of these materials are old and used pieces that give history to the design. The Chestnuts are believers in recycling and reprocessing, and this idea is incorporated into their metal sculptures.

Ever since Dewey can remember he has been collecting things. In the early days, he collected arrowheads and later became interested in metal detecting. This led to many hours of hunting and looking around old farmhouses. In the past nine years he has searched for artifacts at Fort Chadbourne and has made many interesting finds of nails, buckles, horseshoes, military buttons, and musket balls of seven different caliber that reflect the pre-Civil war days of the Fort. A portion of this collection has been given to the Z. I. Hale Museum.

The Chestnuts have lived in Winters for 18 years. They transferred here from Seminole with the Exxon Company in the summer of 1972. They both claim to be native Texans, although Dewey was actually born in Oklahoma. Shortly after he was born, however, he and his family moved to the Ranger, Texas area. Eloise spent her early years in Gorman and later moved to Odessa, where she met and married Dewey. They have two children and six grandchildren.

Dewey and Eloise's home reflects a lifetime interest in art and artifacts, a happy combination enhanced through the years by their separate contributions. Eloise, an artist in her own right, has contributed the oil and watercolor paintings in their home, and Dewey has provided the lamps, tables, and some of their chairs. When the Chestnuts moved to Winters, they placed their mobile home on a rock foundation of Dewey's design and then added a rock arch entrance to the patio to please Eloise. When they decided to partially enclose the patio, they used wagon wheels cut in halves to continue the arch theme. All of the tools and knives Dewey saved through the years are welded together making a front gate, and many of their early metal sculptures can be seen in the yard.

Dewey said his interest in metal work comes from the old habit of hoarding or saving for a rainy day. He feels like he is just a "plain ol' pack rat" or "junkie." After collecting all sorts of metal pieces, they were running out of space, so Eloise suggested they try to find designs for Dewey to follow.

The title they have given this piece, "Symbiosis," meaning interdependence, best expresses their feelings about this work. As Eloise notes, "The materials used in the sculpture are the tools used by the people of this area. The metal had to be strong to endure the stress of daily use, as well as adaptive to the changing needs of time and locale. Just as the people were dependent on their tools, so were the tools dependent on man. They were created out of man's ideas, hopes, dreams, and spirit, with the result being the other."

The Chestnuts have taken the inanimate metal tools and arranged them to represent living, growing flowers and butterflies, one part representing the business interests and the other representing the symbol of life thus weaving together the intricate pattern of "symbiosis."

Dewey and Eloise want to give a special thanks to Dolly Airhart for her many hours spent in consultation on this project and to the following people for contributing the materials: Edna and Bede England, Troy McKnight, Winters Oilfield Supply, Alderman-Cave, and Garland Richards of the Fort Chadbourne Ranch.

It is hoped that everyone will have time to visit or drive by the new art piece at the City Hall. It was created for individuals of all ages in the community to see, touch, and enjoy.

Dewey and Eloise wish to express their thanks to Billie "for putting our thoughts and feelings in words."

Dedication of the lawn sculpture will be Thursday, November 8, 1990 at 10:00 AM in front of City Hall. Mayor Randy M. Springer will make a presentation and refreshments will follow. The public is invited to attend.

Seventh Grade Breezes, 7-0

The seventh grade Blizzards raised their record to 7-0 Thursday defeating Albany 32 to 6.

Mark Deike scored first on a 12 yard run and John Paul Belew added the two-point conversion. The next score came when Jerry Esquivel tackled the Albany punter in the end zone for a safety. Joe Reyna scampered 12 yards for the next touchdown and Belew again added the two points.

After Reyna intercepted an Albany pass, Esquivel went 30 yards for another touchdown. Deike added the two-point conversion. The final score came on a 28 yard run by Reyna, which was set up by an interception and a 20 yard return by Belew.

The linemen blocked well and the defense played hard. Jessie Ortiz also did a great job blocking. Coach Lipsey stated,"It's been a great season and a pleasure to coach these kids. It will be a good way to end the season Thursday with a victory over Stamford."

Eighth Grade Breezes outmaneuvered the Albany Cubs

The Winters 8th grade Breezes traveled to Albany to face the Cubs. The Cubs proved to be very tricky, using all kinds of gadget plays. The Breezes proved to be up to the test, beating the Cubs 21-6.

The Breezes opened the scoring after receiving the opening kickoff with Lupe Roman going from the ten yard line. This touchdown was set up on a fine 60 yard run by Robert Silva. Lupe Roman kicked the extra point. The Cubs came right back with a touchdown of their own on a halfback pass, but missed the extra point for a 7-6 score at the end of the first quarter. The Breezes started a drive late in the first quarter and it carried on into the second quarter. The drive, with some good blocking by the offensive line, was capped by Anthony Earl Thomas on a 15 yard run for the touchdown. Lupe Roman kicked the extra point for the 14-6 halftime score.

The third quarter was a defensive battle, with neither team scoring. The Breezes started a drive on their own 20 yard line after stopping a serious Cub threat. The drive again was highlighted by some fine blocking by the offensive line. The drive was culminated by a fine catch and run by Jason Garcia; the pass from Nathan Collins, Lupe Roman kicked the extra point for the final 21-6 score.

This was a fine combined effort by the offensive and defensive teams" stated Coach Henley. "Each team member can be proud of his contribution."

The Breezes will play their last game here, November 8, against Stamford

Winters J. V. played tough against Albany

The Winters J. V. lost to Albany last Thursday with a final score of 26-13.

The Blizzards took the football and marched 60 yards on their first possession and scored on a 10 yard run by Lee Reyes. Ahmad Griffin's extra point was good, and Winters took a 7-0 lead.

The drive was highlighted by several good runs by Reyes and Billy Wayne Thomas. The longest play in the drive was a 20 yard run by quarterback Ron Jones. Offensive linemen Ben Barker, Scott Thorpe, Wes Hart, Gabriel J. Ortiz, and Billy Clough provided good blocking for the Blizzards.

The Lions came back and scored on a 45 yard drive. The extra point failed, and the Blizzards held a 7-6 lead at the end of the first quarter. Albany scored on two more long runs to take a 20-7 lead at halftime. An early fumble in the third quarter allowed the Lions to score again to take a 26-7 lead.

In the fourth quarter, the Blizzards again began to move the ball; this time to the Lions 10 yard line. Jones then hit John Wayne Liggins on a 10 yard touchdown pass. The extra point was no good. The final score was Albany 26 and Winters 13.

"This was by far the best offensive game we have had all year," stated Winters Coach Chuck Cathey. "We moved the ball for most of the night. We just missed opportunities to score. Defensively it is the same old story - we just gave up too many big plays."

The Winters J. V. will conclude its season this Thursday against Stamford.

Vitamin Deficiency or Anemia?

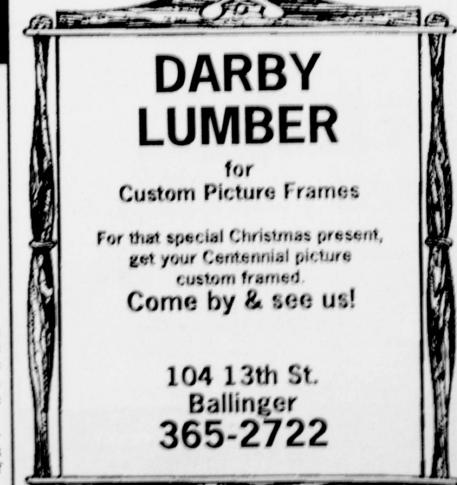

Is anemia the same as a vitamin defciency?

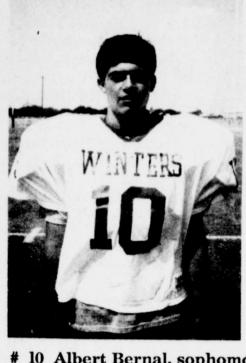

No - anemia is not the same as a vitamin deficiency. However, anemia can be caused by a deficiency of certain vitamins.

Anemia is a condition in which there is a deficiency in the size or number of red blood cells or in the amount of hemoglobin present in red blood cells. Blood transports nutrients, oxygen, hormones, minerals, and waste products to and from cells of the body. And when anemia is present, a variety of signs and symptoms occur due to decreased ability to transport these materials.

The most common causes of anemia are deficiencies of vitamin B-12, folic acid, or the mineral iron. Less common causes include deficiencies of protein, copper, or vitamins B-6 or C. Deficiencies can occur because of inadequate amounts of these nutrients in the diet or defective absorption from the stomach and intestines. One type of anemia (sickle cell) is an inherited condition

Iron deficiency anemia is thought to be the most common deficiency state in humans and affects as much as 20% of the world's population. Persons at highest risk are infants under two years of age, teenage girls, pregnant women, and the elderly.

CAP Counselor attends Drug Prevention Conference

Athena Bean, counselor at CAP High School, attended the Texans' War on Drugs leadership conference held September 30 -October 3,1990, at the Mariott at the Capitol, Austin, Texas, along with 350 other community leaders. The focus of this year's conference was on strategies for action which could be replicated in local communities throughout Texas in a united effort to prevent the use of drugs.

Governor William P. Clements, Jr., initiator, strong supporter, and front runner in the fight against drugs in Texas, welcomed the participants on Monday morning at 8:30. The drug prevention strategy of Governor Clements has been jam? I recently read about one doozy of a highway stall and began to wonder how I'd behave.

Founder of Doctors Ought to Care (DOC), Alan Blum, M.D., spoke on "Laughing the Pushers Out of Town."

Ending the conference with an up-beat approach, Dean T. Richard Cheatham, Ph.D., from Southwest Texas State University, challenged conference participants to develop their capacities and win the war on drugs.

Auto Bahn - that wild highway speed limit (my kind of place). Seems that everybody's on their own when it comes to driving there and it just so happened that somebody at the front of the line had a flat tire or had to stop and threaten their screaming kids. Anyway, what followed was a 120-mile traffic jam.

Whew! That could really be scarey, don't you think?

This made me wonder how I would cope with that sort of crisis. Being stuck in a car for fourteen-plus hours in one spot could really be a test of sanity. (And for those of us who stay on the edge, it could really be an experience!)

I decided it would depend on a lot of different things. If I was with three small, crying, needto-potty kids - I'd never make it. If I was with even one moody, starving, rock-music-blaring teenager - there would likely be a murder. If I was with my husband (who I'd probably blame the whole thing on cause he didn't get in the right lane when I told him to), there'd be deafening silence... eventually.

Part of me worried about my physical well-being while stuck for such a long time. But a quick survey of my car left me with all the assurance in the world that I at heart. At least that's what they could survive for a month with keep telling me. no problems.

In the trunk of my car I found in Germany that doesn't have a at least three articles of clothing for every season in the year, so I've got twelve outfits to count on. Of course, wearing coordinating shoes is always important to us girls but I could only find three shoes and none of them had mates.

> Under the seat I found enough reading material to start my own library-five comic books, thirtynine baseball cards, a 1987 Reader's Digest, one fold of a worn road map, a long- overdue bill that I'd hidden from my husband, and instructions to my garbage disposal.

And if I get bored reading, I've got golf balls, tennis balls, a broken Rubik's cube (I could never work those things anyway), three prizes out of cereal boxes, and two Nintendo tapes that I'd be forced to use for barter.

I even felt secure in battling the elements with my mosquito repellent, de-icer, windshield scraper/mitt, a leaking bottle of suntan lotion, and an umbrella that won't stay open.

So after taking stock of my "survival kit" I decided I might owe my family an apology. All this time I thought they were just being lazy, messy, insensitive slobs. Little did I realize that they really have my best interest

Peace With Honor THE MEANING OF VETERANS DAY

The day is, of course, a solemn one. It is observed in memory of events that are past and men who have departed. But it is not a day for brooding melancholy. It is, instead, a day for commemoration. And the only commemoration that is worthy of the events and the men is rededication to the ideals and the principles which have made

This day and this hour were originally set aside in memory of a moment of peace – a moment when the guns were suddenly stilled and a hush settled over the battlefields of one of the greatest (great in the sense of horrible) wars of history. Up to that point, we had engaged in no conflict of such vast dimensions beyond our shore. In our innocence, for we were still very young, we thought there could never again be such a conflict. And we called this Armistice Day – the day that ended the World War.

We can do nothing about our past mistakes other than regret them and learn from them. But it is certain that if we do not learn from them, we are destined to repeat them. And then the sacrifices of the men we honor today would have been in vain.

The greatest tribute we are paying today to those men is that we have learned. We understand that it is necessary for free men to be firm – and because of that understanding, there is hope in the world

We know that armed strength alone does not assure peace and freedom. But we also know that as long as aggression exists in the world, weakness invites war and domination. And we do not intend to be dominated.

The real tribute is our resolve – resolve translated into deeds – to preserve what they have won. And if we can match their determination and their resolution, the day will come, as surely as the sun will rise, when peace and freedom (and we do not separate those objectives) will prevail.

Choir Notes

by Maria Henry

On Monday, October 29, the volunteer choir comprised of Winters High School students had its first meeting. We all had a great time making music together. For some, it was their first experience in singing.

Experience is not necessary to join. Just willingness to participate and work hard, since the choir is preparing a Christmas Concert.

We will be performing on the program with the band and intend to go caroling soon after. We may even participate in the Christmas parade on December

The choir is directed by Maria Henry who holds a bachelor's degree from Baylor University in vocal performance and is currently working on a teaching certificate in music education at Angelo State University, which she will complete in May.

Mrs. Frances Kidwell has volunteered her time and talents to the choir as the accompanist. She will also coach the alto section separately. Her experience and charisma is extremely effective with everyone involved.

Many exciting experiences are being provided through this voluntary choir. We welcome any student who would like to join us. The choir will meet on Monday evenings from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Band Notes

by Stephen Henry

As the band winds up this last week of the marching band season, I feel it is important to reflect on the goals that we have set, and see if we are on track on accomplishing these goals.

We set several goals this year. We suffered the loss of a great percentage of our students over the summer, so we decided to overcome it and put out a good powerful sound at each performance, in spite of the reduced numbers. That is one goal we definitely reached this semester.

Another goal was to march with accuracy and precision throughout the year. Even the contest judges commented on how well the band marched its fundamentals. Their attention to detail is commendable.

To come together at each rehearsal on time without excuses. To give 110% at every rehearsal and demand that everyone do their own part. This was most definitely achieved.

We have to admit that not all of these students have a history of being quite this committed to anything. I have received comments that the individuals involved in the program have been consistantly doing better in their other activities. Not one of the 53 students in band failed in the first six weeks.

Now our goals are set on different areas. We now are going to strive to improve our playing in terms of balance within the band and with the sound of the band. We are going to set the goal to be the best 2A Concert band in West Texas.

To reach your goals you must remember to take things one step at a time and never lose sight of what is really important.

This week's spirit stick goes to Homero Hernandez and Christy Traylor.

Runnels Soil Conservation News and Notes

Studies have shown that it is only after the nutritional aspects of range environment are satisfied that improvements can be made with genetic selection based on spike culling.

Are Spikes Inferior? by Don Haley

You are easing quietly along the upper edge of a heavily brushed draw on a frosty morning at daybreak, stopping to kneel for a moment behind an upturned log overlooking the small meadow below. Somewhere among the tangled mesquite and blue-thorn, the heavy-horned monster buck of your dreams is tesing the wind, but the cold fingers of a fresh northern blows square in your face and down your collar.

Suddenly, a spike buck breaks into your opening, trots to the edge of the brushline, turns broadside, and stops! What would you do? You have heard that spikes are inferior, so you really ought to do yourself and the deer a favor by culling him. Or maybe you should let him go. Perhaps all that inferior and superior gene stuff is just a bunch of talk. You remember hearing something about nutrition having something to do with spikes, so maybe he will grow up to be the trophy you will someday stalk up and down these brushy draws following a wetter spring and summer. Or maybe he will never be much more than he is now and never amount to anything

The debate has gone on for years about what to do in that situation. Are spikes genetically deprived bucks or just blameless victims of their environment? I think Dr. Dale Rollins, Wildlife Expert with the Texas A & M experiment Station said it best. Dr. Rollins stated that if you put three hunters around a campfire, the topic of spikes will sooner or later come up. One will be for shooting them all, and the other will be too confused to know what to do.

Are spikes really genetically inferior? What makes a spike a spike? Should they be harvested? Will a spike grow into a good buck. These are interesting and difficult questions that come up year after year by landowners, hunters, biologists and others who are interested in the life and times of whitetail deer.

Some excellent research has been done in this area at the Kerr Wildlife Management Area near Hunt, Texas. In the Kerr studies, which began in 1973, it has been proven that when deer received a nutritionally complete diet, bucks that were spikes as yearlings never caught up to their coharts that were fork-antlered. Spikes were inferior in all antler characteristics and body weight compared to bucks that were fork antlered as yearlings. The fork antlered yearlings produced more points, longer main beams, greater antler mass, wider spreads, and greater body weights than spikes.

These differences in quality were retained through each age class to maturity. Thus, the genetic potential of fork antlered deer over spikes on an optimal plane of nutrition can be readily

Another interesting phase of this study showed that, under a year-long high plane of nutrition, the offspring of spike bucks had a high percentage of spikes, while the offspring of forkedantlered bucks produced a much lower percentage of spikes. This would seem to demonstrate the fact that, not only were properly nourished spike deer inferior genetically as individual deer, but that this inferiority could be passed to future generations.

Aha! After all, we reason, if spike deer are inferior, if they have genetically "missed the boat" and will never be as good as their fork antlered mates, and if their male offspring also lean toward spikes, then "let's shoot 'em all."

On the surface, this certainly sounds reasonable. To most of us as hunters, managers, and landowners, the knowledge brought to light by the Kerr Studies was the hidden, magical ingredient we needed to make gigantic improvements in our deer heards.

According to Steve Nelle, Soil Conservation Service (SCS) Wildlife Biologist from San Angelo, the problem with deer management efforts based primarily on attempted wholesale spike eradication is that, in most cases, it ignores the primary element of any deer management program. That element is NU-TRITION.

Nelle states that the mis-application of the Kerr research has led landowners, managers, hunters, and even some biologists to attempt to make genetic improvements with nutritionally inferior deer. According to Nelle, efforts at genetic improvements are largely wasted unless the nurtitional aspect is first satisfied.

Bill Armstrong and Donnie Harmel, who headed the Kerr Studies on spike deer, have always advocated deer management with the emphasis on nutrition and state that only with adequate nutrition can any gains be made by genetic selection.

The sad but true fact is that the majority of deer in the Edwards Plateau region are eating nutritionally inadequate diets. Thus, the experts agree that the spike problem can primarily be looked upon foremost as a nurtitional problem rather than a genetic one. As Steve Nelle states, it is only after the nutritional aspects of the range environment are satisfied that improvements can be made with genetic selection based on spike culling.

The bottom line, according to Nelle and backed up by current research, is that antler development is an interaction between both genetics and environment, requiring a total management program in order to see significant progress in antler develop-

Next issue: More enlightening research on spike bucks and the role of nutrition in spike production.

Texas Monthly to feature Bronte landmark

A Bronte landmark received statewide attention this month. The historic "Texas Theatre" was chosen to be featured on the cover of the November issue of Texas Monthly magazine.

The photographer, Harry DeZitter of London, England, arrived in Bronte during August for the shooting session. The local theatre was chosen from a field of many other theatres, and Mr. DeZitter and staff worked for several hours both at sunset and again at sunrise to get a variety of pictures.

Local residents were contacted by DeZitter last week with the surprising news that the magazine's editorial staff had selected the Bronte photo for the cover as well as the inside story, "Vanishing Texas."

Currently owned by Luis Charles, the building was designed and built in the late 1940's by the Wojtek brothers, who operated theatres in Bronte and Robert Lee for many years. Most local residents have special memories of Saturday afternoon matinees and weekend dates at the picture show.

Four of the photos from the magazine were also chosen for a limited edition poster series, which includes the local theatre. Copies of the poster and issues of Texas Monthly are available at Cumbie and Arrott Mercantile for a limited time.

The third week in November is "National Children's Book Week." Books and reading have been celebrated at this time since 1919. We will be making buttons for each student to wear during that week. We will be discussing the importance of reading, as well as the pleasure of reading.

We are glad to have Brian Pritchard back in class after he broke his arm.

Ms. Emry's Kindergarten class had a great time carving their pumpkin this week. They discovered what was inside a pumpkin and that the seeds were good for eating as well as for planting.

Mrs. Sneed's 3rd and 4th grades made relief maps of Texas and posters showing the types of land such as tundra, grassland, desert, and forest. They have also decorated the hall with their leaf etchings.

In the "Book It" program for October, Mrs. Sneed's class had 100% participation. Keep up the good work!

"Book It" participants who have already met their goal for November are Kelly Bearden, Trint Bearden, and Stacey Sneed.

Social Security Bulletin

If you're planning to retire around the first of the year, here's some advice from Social Security. Don't wait until you retire to contact Social Security. It's a good idea to apply about 3 months before you stop work.

Applying ahead of time will give you time to resolve any problems that crop up. Such problems may range from a discrepancy in the available proofs of age to inability to establish the relationship of your spouse or

When you apply, you'll have to establish that you will be at least 62 years old when benefits are to start. If your spouse and children are also involved, you'll need a marriage certificate and birth certificates to establish the relationships. Other proofs may be needed if there have been previous marriages, or if there are minor children outside the present marriage.

The preferred proof of age is an official birth certificate issued before age 5. If this is not available, other evidence such as a baptismal cerificate issued early in life or a combination of other documents may be acceptable. The Social Securtiy office will help you find any necessary proofs not immediately avail-

You can apply for retirement benefits at any Social Security toll-free telephone number to start the process or to make an appointment. The number is 1-800-2345-SSA (1-800-234-Sheep superintendents are 5772). You can speak to a representative 7:00 a. m. to 7:00 p. m. weekdays.
