Blizzards District Champs, face Ranger Friday night at Clyde

It's been seven years since the Blizzard boys basketball team was in the playoffs. With their resounding victory over Hawley last Friday night, they are on the playoff road again. Hawley was the second half winner and the Blizzards tied with Haskell for the first half championship.

In order to be District Champs, the Blizzards had to beat both Haskell and Hawley and did so handily last week. The Blizzards beat Haskell 46-30 and Hawley 50-38. They face District 8-2A second place winner Ranger this Friday night at 7:30 at Clyde.

First year Blizzards basketball head coach Ed Henley says of the Blizzards: "It's teamwork that's made the difference in this ball club. Every member of our team has a job to do, whether they're a starter or on the bench."

Leading scorer for the Haskell game was Willie Belk with 17 points, followed by Craig Slaughter with 10, Greg Tamez, 9, Leo Campos, 6, and Keith Gerhart with 4 points. In the Hawley game, Greg Tamez was leading scorer with 15 points. Adding points for the Blizzards were Craig Slaughter with 13, Willie Belk, 13, Leo Campos, 5, and Keith Gerhart, 4.

Coach Henley says the kids realize they have good support from fans. It was really obvious when the Blizzards faced Hasakell. "Our fans have turned out all season and believe me, the team sure feels the support of the crowd," said Henley.

The Ranger team is not very impressive as far as size and numbers go, but they're a good basketball team according to Henley. They have two really fine guards who are brothers and the coach's sons. They have quick hands and create a lot of steals to make things happen on the court. "And when teams get to the playoffs, anything can happen so we've got to be ready," states Coach Henley.

WISD given "A" bond rating

Bob Davis, financial advisor for Winters Independent School District, notified the administration on February 15 of the bond rating for the new bond issue. Moody Investors Services has rated the bond "A" which is the same as the last bonds issued by the district.

Superintendent Tommy Lancaster said the rating was "super-great." Davis told Lancaster part of the favorable rating could be attributed to the overwhelming majority voting for the issue.

The bonds were to be sold on Wednesday of this week.

Justin Mitchell Wins Winters Elementary Geography Bee

Moves One Step Closer to Winning $25,000 College Scholarship

Sixth grader Justin Mitchell won the Winters Elementary School Geography Bee on Tuesday, February 12, 1991 and a chance at a $25,000 college scholarship. Justin Minzenmayer placed second in the contest. Other students who competed in the final round include Dennis Conner, Heather Daniel, Monica Parramore, Steve Sneed, Wayne Heidenheimer, Chris McCaslin, T.J. Meyer, and Heather Reel. The school-level bee, at which students answered oral questions on geography, was the first step in the third annual National Geography Bee, which is being sponsored by National Geographic WORLD, the Society's magazine for children, Amtrak, and KUDOS® Snack.

The bee was kicked off the week of January 28 in thousands of schools around the United States, District of Columbia, and five U.S. territories. Fourth, fifth, and sixth grade classes in Winters participated in elimination round contests. As the finalist, Justin Mitchell will now take a written test; up to 100 of the top scorers in each state will be eligible to compete in their state bee April 5.

The National Geographic Society with its co-sponsors will provide an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, D.C., for state champions and their teacher escorts to participate in the National Geography Bee finals on May 22 and 23. The first-place national winner will receive a $25,000 college scholarship; the second-place winner, a $15,000 scholarship; and the third-place winner, a $10,000 scholarship.

Alex Trebek, host of "Jeopardy!" will moderate the national finals.

OIL BUSINESS . . .

By Reg Boles

Last week, we talked about career choices, and we had some unfinished business. We left off talking about the oil and gas business and the requirements for a long enjoyable career.

I hinted at the changing "face" of the oil business and how it will affect those that make it their career. Predominantly, having a feeling of "family" in the business has been an enduring tradition, but, with events of the last 10-20 years, a new aspect of the business has emerged. Anyone considering this business should consider these changes and their implications.

Previous to the early 1970's, the oil industry was one of basic stability enforced by the Texas RRC and the "Seven Sister" oil companies owned by the Rockefellers. Except for booms in Texas in the early part of the century and the shortages in World War II, oil prices kept some level a majority of the time.

In the '60's, the price of oil was about $3/bbl almost every day for 10 years, and it appeared that this would remain into the '70's. That is, until the Arab Embargo in the early part of the decade. With that event, the industry as a business changed and employees, owners, and investors have felt the effects since that time.

The business became much more cyclical as a result of these events almost 20 years ago. The first result was greater prosperity for those in the business, followed by a depression in the industry for almost four years. Now we see another shorter-lived prosperity (four months) followed by an uneasy calm at a less prosperous (but certainly acceptable) level.

In my view, this is what has changed about the oil industry. If you are going to make it your career, then you better be ready to run the gamut from feast to famine. It is going to be a roller coaster ride with thrills and chills. High rewards for those that survive and a hard fall for those that don't.

The challenge is immense, but some thrive on just such an environment. Just as well, some don't. If the latter is the case, then steer clear, but if a rocky ride sounds like the ticket, then think seriously about the petroleum industry as a career.

There is room for secretaries, engineers, technicians, laborers, geologists, accountants, economists, and many more. It is a high tech industry with a wide array of related jobs.

Well, that's the end of my pep rally. (Sermon starts now.) I hope you have gotten some feel for the engineering profession and the oil business as career choices. I am only one of many voices in the world, and there are other very good jobs, careers, etc. I did not write these two columns to persuade or dissuade anyone from becoming a petroleum engineer. I only attempted to give you a little window of information about one career of many.

I would urge any of you, especially those making career and job decisions, to talk to others in other professions. Go to work with them and learn what they do on a daily basis. Try to get a taste of what a job has to offer you, and what you have to offer the job. Don't drift into a job for no reason. Try to have a vision of where you are headed and how a career carries you there.

O.K., end of sermon. Longer than some preachers, I know, but you were so looking forward to it from last week.

Tune in next week when we continue our once-a-month oil patch basics series. We will talk about the roustabout—a colorful character, to say the least.

Calendar pin-ups viewed at Young Farmers meeting

The Winters Young Farmers met Monday night in the Winters High School vo-ag building. Members viewed a video from DuPont Chemical Company featuring this year's calendar models. The tape "Farm Power From the Past" features classic farm tractors which have been restored to their original condition.

The oldest tractor shown was a 1915 Heider Model C. The latest model was a 1940 H Farmall which was widely popular in this area in the 40's and 50's. Other featured models which would be familiar to area farmers were the 1935 B John Deere, 1939 Minneapolis-Moline R, 1928 Farmall Regular, and 1938 John Deere G.

The most unique tractor in the video was a 1919 Moline Universal Model D. West Texas residents could see one like this at the Antique Tractor Show during Santa Anna Frontier Days held the second weekend in May.

In the video, the owner of each of the 14 tractors explained how he acquired the tractor and some specifics of the restoration project. After seeing the tape, the local members each had to share about their personal experiences with early model tractors.

A report on the recent Young Farmers trip to Stephenville was heard. Future activities were also planned. Special guest at this meeting was David Swaringen, new Farm Bureau agent.

Senate passes oil spill response legislation

Lt. Governor Bob Bullock announced Senate passage of legislation providing for a statewide oil spill prevention and cleanup plan and commended the work of Senator Carl Parker (D-Port Arthur), the bill's sponsor; Senator Bill Sims (D-San Angelo), Chairman of the Senate Committee on Natural Resources; and Senator Carlos Traun (D-Corpus Christi), Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Water.

"When this bill becomes law, we won't just be protecting the environment," Bullock said, "we will be protecting a number of important industries in the state, like fishing and tourism, which are dependant on preserving the natural beauty and heritage of the Gulf Coast."

FROM A GOLDFISH BOWL

BY PASTOR STEVE BYRNE

The other day I went into my bathroom to wash my hands after getting them somewhat dirty. There in the soap dish were two microscopic soap-chips. Remembering that my shower soap was still just a little bit bigger than these tiny reminders of what once was a bar of soap, I reached into the shower soap holder and retrieved an almost equally used up piece.

The larger chunk was hardly big enough for its task. I began to wonder why I insist on using pieces of soap that should have been thrown away because they are not fit for the task for which they were intended. Since it was my bathroom, which I (not my wife) am responsible for, I couldn't even blame it on her!

There was a time earlier in my life when times were much harder and we had to use everything completely up. It was conservation due to poverty. So we used stuff - even when the stuff no longer did the job - until it was completely used up. When I threw away a soap chip, it usually didn't even make a noise when it hit the water in the toilet.

But things are different. For better or for worse, I am no longer forced by economic necessity to do such things. We can afford to throw away a bar of soap after it has done all that one can reasonably expect a bar of soap to do.

What had happened was that my thinking was stuck back in a time when things were different. The situation in life, the context, had changed. But my thinking had not changed to keep pace. So, in this case, an improved situation had not led to the normal benefits associated with that improvement.

Lots of us do the same thing with our Spiritual lives. We have this beautiful gift of Salvation by Grace through Faith in Jesus, and live life ruled by laws and rules and regulations.

We are loved unconditionally and constantly feel like we have to prove ourselves. Or else live as if we weren't loved at all and there was no chance to be loved.

Our old ways of thinking keep us from having the benefits of the life God has offered to us free. St. Paul talks about it in terms of being a child of the slave growing up in the Master's house. Or growing up being the children of the Master of the house. Paul says we are all children (sons) and heirs in the household.

I suppose if we want to think like slaves, that is our business. But we sure do miss a lot of the benefits that have been given us.

I had better close now and go get one of those 3-packs of soap on special at the grocery store. I can do that now, you know.

Letter to the Editor

We are very upset about an incident that happened Feb. 2 at our daughter's wedding dance. Long planning, great effort, and much expense were ruined in a matter of minutes.

Relatives and friends that we have not seen in over twenty years traveled long distances to join us on this happy occasion. The rude behavior of a small group was upsetting not only to our family, but to these people as well.

The people that were involved in this occurrence see each other everyday, so why didn't they settle their differences in their own time and place, instead of fighting during a party in honor of a newly wed couple.

A person's behavior reflects on no one but himself!

Caring Parents

Letter to the Editor

Dear Fellow Citizens,
Monday night I watched a dream die. It was not fast, just a sad end to a long struggle. A plea was put out last week that interest was needed if the citizens of Runnels County wanted to keep the rodeo arena.

Though interest had been expressed during the week that such a recreation area was needed, only the five faithful Rodeo Directors and four more people showed up for the meeting. The problems were discussed once more:

1. Money is needed for an interest payment.
2. Although some money has been offered to help out, what about the next payment? No one felt like asking for donations that would just band-aid the problem.
3. Who will help with projects in the future to make other payments? The same five can not continue to handle this problem alone.

4. There has not been enough participation from the general public to make it profitable to have activities at the arena.

There were no representatives from the city, county, Chamber of Commerce, or 4-H Clubs, although they all had expressed a desire for the association to try to continue. Only one organization was represented. There were no answers to the questions except "no one cares or they don't care enough."

Years ago no one fought harder than I did for the rodeo arena to not be built. I thought it was a great idea, I just didn't want it in my back yard. I still don't like the dust and flies I get sometimes, but that is not as important as the fun I see the children and adults having during their play days and 4-H activities. When I look out the window and see some youngster practice for hours I am glad they have such a nice place to use.

It is very popular to tell our children today to say "No" to drugs but what are we giving them to say yes to. We do not offer them much in entertainment and it seems to get less all the time. It seems to me that it is up to each of us to make sure we at least keep what we have.

One way to assume that we keep this arena is for everyone to help the Rodeo Association pay off the bank note. If we do not help now I doubt if we will ever have another chance to have these facilities. Even if we never have another rodeo, there are so many ways this land and fixtures could be used by the people.

Show your support of this organization by going to the County Cobbler and pledging how much you will contribute to make this property debt free. Surprise Archie and the Rodeo Association.

If your budget is tight, give a little bit every month for the rest of the year. Remember you will be investing in something that will be around for a good while. This is going to take everyone's help, it can not be left up to a few. Let's not let it die.

Thank you,
Mary Kurtz

"The Enterprise"
From the Gulf -

A few months ago I was told by a friend, "Our teenage, Nintendo addicted youth simply cannot measure up to Iraq's battle hardened warriors."

My friend was quite wrong. The war is well under way and the roar is deafening as yet another wave of bomb laden aircraft scream overhead.

Air battles are being fought at supersonic speeds, beginning and ending quicker than the eye can follow. Laser guided bombs land within ten feet of the targets. The sky is filled with smaller craft fearlessly hauling munitions and supplies to the front.

The desert swarms with computerized tanks, artillery, and armor.

In frustration, Iraq launches yet another "SCUD" missile only to have it battered to the ground by the ever watchful "Patriots".

Iraqi artillery opens fire on allied positions only to be quickly answered in kind and forever silenced by attack helicopters.

Cruise missiles launched by sailors hundreds of miles away strike with deadly accuracy.

Complex military operations are being conducted with amazing speed and precision.

When I return home, I think I will take up Nintendo playing.

The Rev. Leonard Pringle would like to announce that the Pioneer Church of God was set in order on February 13, 1991 with the Rev. Bill Williams of Weatherford, Texas, the State overseer, officiating the meeting.

There were 32 members that signed the membership roster and are very excited about being a part of a solid, fundamental organization.

Spirit Filled Happenings

by Dixie Leverett
Church Editor,
Guiding Light Spirit Filled Baptist Church

A fifteen year old girl sits in a detention center and does not know what the future will bring. The uncertainty of her life overwhelms her. She can only sob for she knows not where to turn nor whom to turn to.

She began to drink when she was twelve. It seemed to help her escape the way things were at home. Her daddy is a truck driver and always on the road, and momma is always somewhere, but never there, she's always left alone. Hersiblings have their own problems: drugs, depression, confusion, unhappiness, failures; not much for them to look forward to.

The drinking only helped temporarily; the pain always returned; now she is locked up, alone and afraid.

There was a time several years ago when she wanted to go to Sunday school and church to learn about Jesus, but her mother discouraged her. She didn't like the beliefs of the church, the pastor, or the church members. The family's living situation made it impossible for the little girl to get to know Jesus. Surely to stop a child from finding happiness in something that the parents have never found or have never shown, is a sin.

Sunday, February 24, from 9:45 to 11:00 a.m. is Parents Day during Sunday School. Please make plans to come and share the love of God with your child(ren) and support them in their search for greater happiness, love, and fulfilling rewards on the special day.

VETERINARY UPDATE

by Jimmy Smith, DVM

This newborn calf, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Howard shows damage done by coyotes just shortly after being born. She survived the attack south of Lawn on January 31, but had teeth and claw marks on her neck, along with the severe damage to her shoulder.

Predators and Predator Control

The heifer had been off to herself for a couple of hours. Her tail was raised and the water bag was beginning to show. It wouldn't be long before she was down in heavy labor. As the labor pains became closer together, she nervously laid down flat on her side.

Soon the straining produced two small white-tipped feet and a shiny pink nose. As the birthing progressed, a small head followed the nose through the birth canal. With every expulsive effort, more and more of the baby calf appeared behind the heifer.

All of a sudden, without any warning, from the brush rushed a large female coyote followed by two clumsy pups whelped last spring. The baby calf fought as best it could but it was no match for the three hungry coyotes. The heifer was helpless. Frightened and paralyzed by the pain of the labor, she lay helplessly on the ground, unable to help her newborn calf. With a final explosive effort, the dying calf was pushed from the birth canal.

As the hungry coyotes continued their work on the calf, the heifer staggered to her feet and wheeled to face her tormentors, but it was too late. The coyotes only retreated a few feet, then advanced, growling and daring the heifer to come to the defense of her newborn. Confused and in pain, she turned and ran, trying to find the main herd where she would be safe.

Sounds a little far fetched to you, does it? Don't be so sure. I've never witnessed one of these attacks, but I think it would be naive to completely dismiss this as a scenario that could not happen.

Coyotes as well as packs of wild domestic dogs have been incriminated in acts of predation in sheep and goats as well as cattle. Seems a shame to be out the expense of maintaining a cow, ewe, or nanny for a year and have all of your work and money go down the tubes in a few minutes.

I'm not saying that we should all go out and declare all out war on all of the unwanted canines running loose in the country, but lets be realistic. Predators have put many livestock producers out of the sheep and goat business, and now we are seeing evidence of attacks on cattle, as you can see by the picture of the baby calf in the paper today.

There are no easy solutions. Some producers have resorted to the use of guard dogs, donkeys, and llamas to seek out and defend against predator attacks.

We are fortunate to have a county trapper who can and will help county producers who have had predator problems. This program is partially funded by the state, but producers in the county need to be aware that they also need to help defray part of the expenses. Information as to whom your contributions should be made to can be obtained at the county extension agent's office.

Problems, problems, everywhere

Sometimes we think we have many trials and problems at home in the United States, but they are nothing to compare with what our people face in other hands, especially those who are soldiers or missionaries.

Two letters have been received from missionaries Dale and Sue (Worthington) Carter since they returned to Corrente, Brazil from their furlough spent here last year.

Their first letter said they arrived in Brazil on March 9th, right in the middle of the inauguration of a new president and a financial package that was labeled the "new financial shock." And believe you me, it was a shock. All saving accounts and overnight accounts above $600 were frozen for 18 months. All bank accounts were frozen above this amount, but no one had money in regular checking accounts because of the terrible inflation.

The Carters spent about a week in Sao Paulo with their children, Tim and wife, Ivonete, and Jonathan. All banks were closed with no warning from Wednesday to Monday. There literally was no money to be had. We had arrived with dollars, but the dollar went to a new law, and no one had money to buy the dollars.

Dale was able to get a plane ticket out to Mato Grosso to visit with son Joel who is on a ranch, doing embryo transfers. "Thank the Lord for credit cards," said Sue. "Brazilians had quit accepting them because of the inflation, but began accepting them. When all of a sudden the inflation stopped."

Dale flew back to Sao Paulo Saturday, and on Sunday, he and Sue flew to Recife and attended mission committee meetings, picked up a second-hand truck from Missionary Bruce Oliver and drove home to Corrente.

Dale drove 15 hours the first day and nine hours the next day. As he said, "Only 1200 kilometers of the 1800 were bad roads." Actually, we have never seen such terrible roads since they were built. These were once paved roads, but now full of holes. But we made it home! Wonderful Brazilian friends had sent in supper for us, and then came by to visit.

"We have both been busy trying to get back into the swing of things --- Dale at the school and on the farms, and I in the house trying to put everything in order. I begin my radio program tomorrow. While we were gone, a former student of ours, was taking care of it and will continue to do so when I need him.

The second letter was written at Thanksgiving, but it isn't a holiday there. "We are hoping for rain today. It is hot and dry here, and very bad for those who live on what they plant. Many are hungry. The rains are late in coming."

Dale and Sue are working on the question of turning over the Corrente Baptist Institute to some Brazilian entity. The Foreign Mission Board would like to see this done, since we are trying to transfer our schools and other institutions to the Brazilian Baptists. The Carters will be coming back to the U. S. for a last furlough and retirement in 1993, and would like to see this happen before they leave.

The Transformed Valley Project continues to be a blessing in that needy area. This year they planted irrigated rice, so these people are better off than many others. Dale spends a lot of time with the project, counseling and helping to solve problems of those who live and work there.

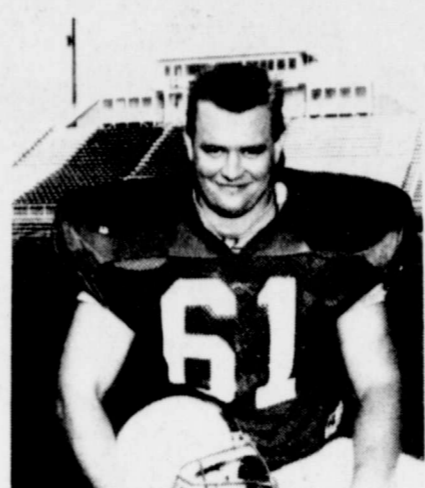

The economic situation in Brazil has made it very hard for schools such as ours to get by. This has been a heavy load for Dale to carry.

Sue's radio program has had some interesting results. She has been asked to hold some funerals for families who don't have a church. The first was for a young man who had been a student of their school, but had to be expelled because of violence. His death was accidental. The family wanted Sue to speak at his funeral service which was in the home. She stood at the foot of the coffin and was very nervous before the service.

"Our children are as usual 'scattered about,'" said Sue. Tim and Ivonete are still in Sao Paulo and expecting their first child. Becky and Walter are in Austin and expecting their second child. Joel is on the border between two large states, Goias and Mato Grosso, working with embryo transfers in cattle. Jonathan works for the same company, but in the U. S. at Blessing, Texas.

They haven't said, but no doubt the Carters are looking forward to retirement.

Twain Talk

by Taryla Twain

Purple hearts for Valentine's?

Did you have a nice Valentine's Day? Guess you might still be smelling the roses that hubby sent. Right?

Now don't tell me that your sweetheart, the love of your life, didn't get you something really grand. Surely not!

But I can understand how a fellow can justify the absence of a little gift. He's probably been too busy. Or he didn't get anything cause he couldn't decide exactly what you'd like.

For Pete's sake, give the poor guy a break. After all, he's only had 364 days to think about it, make a decision, and come up with something for the most special person in his life!

I guess I must admit that some of us ladies are a bit hard to please. I'm sure my friend Sally will eventually learn to love her service for seven of Elvis Presley dishes.

And Betty might decide she just can't put down her new book on How to Talk to Your Cat (who would have ever thought you couldn't get by with saying, "Here, kitty, kitty").

Mary will probably adore the "quality" time spent watching her beloved snore in the recliner throughout the movie he rented for them to watch together.

Yes, I realize that the men in our lives contend with a lot of pressure. Card shops and florists probably make them nervous and are too time-consuming (at least ten minutes might be required at either place).

Gift shops can get really crowded and the fellas might catch a cold from someone. Besides, these stores are never located near fishing/hunting/golfing stores.

And if our sweethearts tried to use the phone and order something special for us, they might accidentally dial 911. Then they'd be embarrassed or else be forced to set the house on fire in order to save face.

So girls, let's not wear our wounded feelings on our old, frayed sleeves. Be realistic. Expecting the man of your dreams to come up with a fun, romantic, personal gift on Valentine's Day is just outrageous.

Just because you wait on him hand and foot, cook his meals, sort his dirty socks and underwear, bear his children, run a household on a shoestring budget, work two jobs, and brush your teeth every day certainly does not entitle you to anything so frivolous as perfume, candy, a special card, flowers, clothes, or a night on the town.

Besides, he's told you he loves you. Remember? It was two years ago when he wanted to go on that week-long fishing trip with his buddies and you got to stay home with three kids with the chickenpox.

No, I guess Valentine's Day is just silly - what with all those hearts and stuff.

Or maybe instead of red hearts, we might deserve Purple Hearts. Aren't those given for being wounded in action? Or don't feelings count?

TEXAS TRAILS

LONE STAR STATE HISTORY by DAN BROWN

SURVEYOR...

Survival on the Texas frontier in the 1840's was risky at best; but for surveyor George B. Erath, it was twice as hazardous. He had to keep one eye out for Indians while the other eye sighted the line. Erath immigrated to Texas from Germany in 1833 to avoid compulsory military service. He laid out the towns of Waco, Caldwell, and Stephenville. Erath County is named for him.

Only two more weeks in the fourth six weeks period. The teachers and students will soon be getting ready for six weeks tests. How the year is flying!

Kellie Walker has lived up the building with greenery this week. Plants were received from the Living Science Center so Kellie repotted them and placed them on the window ledges at the ends of the hall so all can enjoy watching them grow and change.

On February 14, the whole school was filled with pleasant aromas and big smiles as students enjoyed their Valentine's Day parties. Each class exchanged cards and had refreshments.

Ms. Emry has two new additions to her kindergarten class, Ebony and Ivory stay in the classroom fulltime. They are gerbils that will be used for observation in Science class. They are being cared for by the students and they are doing very well in their new surroundings.

Kindergarten students are also studying nutrition. They made fruit yogurt from plain yogurt. They had to copy a recipe and follow directions to make their own fruit and cinnamon yogurt.

The third through sixth graders received Valentine gifts and cards from their pen pals in Wisconsin. The gifts were pins made from dog bones and decorated with hearts and eyes to resemble dogs. They were glued to a larger heart and a pin was glued on the back so they could be worn. It was a very cute idea and the students enjoyed wearing them.
