Rock Hotel restoration proposal being planned

The Z. I. Hale Museum Foundation Board has begun a special fund raising drive to raise money for restoration work on the Rock Hotel.

The hotel, one of the city's oldest buildings, has had a long and proud history of service to the community. Built in 1909 to coincide with the new rail service to Winters, it has been in continuous service until purchased by the Museum Foundation in 1987. The Board acquired the property with the idea of it becoming a multi-purpose community building.

Billie Alderman, Finance Chairman for the Restoration, says, "this project that we are now undertaking is the most important part of the overall work to be done. Due to improper drainage through the years, the foundation has sunk in the rear of the hotel, allowing the rocks to separate. Water has seeped into the walls in this area. When the new footing is added to the foundation and the rocks replaced, the deterioration will be halted and work on the inside can proceed as it becomes possible."

Further work to be done at this time includes replacing the walls and floors in this area, excavation work for an elevator and plumbing for the bathrooms as well as a new deck and roof.

The public can contribute to this project in several ways. Large donors may want to donate enough to restore a room in the hotel. Others may want to donate a specific amount and have their name, or a name they choose, placed on a plaque in the hotel lobby. Still others may wish to make smaller donations and their name will be added to the SAVE THE ROCK Memorial book. Any donation in the amount of $5.00 and up will place your name there.

Various methods of contributing are shown here.

The plaques, listed below, are the various categories in which donations can be made. By contributing the amount beside the plaque title, your name, or the name you choose will be added in that category.

INITIATORS	$ 250
BUILDERS	500
CORNERSTONE	1,000
CHALLENGERS	2,500
PROMOTERS	5,000

Another way to donate is to "purchase" a room. Various rooms in the hotel may be "bought" by donating the coinciding amount. These become memorials or honorariums.

101 Lobby	$14,322.00
102 Meeting #2	$19,641.60
103 Meeting #3	$29,202.00

OIL BUSINESS . . .

By Reg Boles ©1992

OIL BUSINESS...

Some of you may have inadvertently caught a reference in the news last week concerning "three-dimensional seismology".

If you did, it was no thanks to the newswriters of the stories and by-lines that mentioned it. Instead of discussing this new and widely utilized technique for evaluating seismic data in the oil patch, the authors were discussing the rhetoric of a political speech.

So, what you got was a small sentence in the last paragraph that says something to the effect that 'oh yeah, the speech was about...'

What am I babbling about? Seismology was mentioned in a speech by an U.S. Energy Department official as a "type of enhanced recovery technique."

The problem is not so much that it wasn't discussed more thoroughly. A clue to the real problem is in the reference I just quoted in the previous paragraph.

When an Energy Department official refers to the most revolutionary exploration technique to come along in decades as an 'enhanced recovery technique...', there IS a problem.

Although the case could be made that three-dimensional seismic (better known as 3-D seismic) is actually an ENHANCEMENT of petroleum recovery by assisting the search for new sources, it is a very inaccurate representation taken in the context of oil field vernacular.

An enhanced recovery technique is more typically a method by which a reservoir is swept for additional reserves. By 'swept' I mean something is injected and it pushes left over oil (residual oil) toward producing wells.

3-D seismic is not anything like that.

3-D seismic is a mathematical method of analysis of seismic echoes (that were created by explorationists) to get an idea of what the subsurface looks like. It enables a seismic interpreter to get a better look at structures far underground by utilizing three-dimensional views that could only be created by complex mathematical manipulations.

Those mathematical calculations require powerful computers that have only recently become affordable. As a matter of fact, the newest personal computers have the ability to run 3-D seismic.

The availability of high-speed micro and mini computers have revolutionized seismic interpretation. Old seismic data can even be re-examined to get a better look at the subsurface.

The new methods have allowed better views of bends in rock, traps for petroleum, faults, and even fractures in some cases.

But for all its success, it is still mainly an exploration tool. That is, it is used for finding new sources of petroleum, not for getting more out of already-discovered areas. That is the case for now, but several companies and consultants are working on uses for 3-D seismic for infill drilling, optimum well placement, reservoir limits, etc. The uses are boundless, if the chance for gain is big enough to justify the cost, of course.

So, to get back to our 'problem': when someone who is supposed to be in charge of taking care of our energy security doesn't know beans about something as important as 3-D seismic in the oil patch, it indicates a basic misunderstanding of the petroleum industry as a whole.

Either that or they just don't care about the oil patch. I'm not sure which is worse.

So next time you hear someone refer to 3-D seismic as a 'type of enhanced recovery technique', gently set them straight. Or, just soak in the pleasure of knowing someone else is a little more ignorant than you are on at least this one subject. Those times are few-and-far-between for some of us.

Hospice of Abilene to include Winters

Tuesday, June 16, will be "Hospice of Abilene in Winters Day". A number of people from Winters have been working hard, over a long period of time, to bring Hospice to Winters and to North Runnels County. From The Well by Pastor Jim Hanson

St. John's Lutheran Church

It was late in May in 1946, in a gymnasium in Brookings, South Dakota. 82 of us were graduating from high school. Our class had been bigger, but some had gone into the service. And some had moved. We marched in to the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance", played by our high school orchestra. And midway in the ceremony, our high school choir sang. Our speaker was good, but the only thing I remember was the last word he said, "Godspeed!" I had never heard that before. But, it sounded all right. OK. The kind of word worth remembering.

I don't know what I expected to happen when I would receive my diploma. There had to be some special sign, some "bell ringing" in my ears, something like "fire crackers", some sudden revelation when that piece of paper was placed in my hand. After all, I had worked hard for 12 years to earn that diploma. My parents had worked too, getting me off to school on time and making sure I had prepared my lessons. And surely the teachers had worked hard to get the information into my head.

But, there was no magic in the moment of my graduation. Just the calling of my name, the handing to me of my diploma, and a handshake from the superintendent of schools. And I walked off stage. And took my place in the fifth row from the front. I felt no different. What was going on?

Later on I realized graduation is gradual. It isn't something that explodes. One is always learning, growing, increasing in wisdom, and stature. Or decreasing, shrinking, and losing. You never are finished. Graduation is not a period, a dot at the end of a sentence. It is a comma, in the middle, a pause before continuing, a place to take a breath before going on.

This week there are a lot of graduations in Runnels County. Young people are moving out of high school and moving on. It is an important time, a time for grieving and for growth, a time to celebrate for what has been accomplished, but even more, a time to look ahead. What is my next step forward?

And for those of us who are older, to remember that we haven't really graduated yet, that there is something new for us to learn, something to stimulate us to service and to growth. The only time we are really finished is then He says, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of your Master."

Pioneer Church of God News

by Dixie Leverett

If you love Jesus Christ he can mean many things to you. Here are a few that he means to me perhaps to you to.

He is our Father, he cares for us even as to know the numbers of hairs on our head.

He is our Faith, with him all things are possible.

He is our Fortune with his riches we have no needs.

He is our Focus, when we keep our eyes on him we can only go forward.

He is our Future, he will never leave us.

He is our Fullness, with him, we'll not have that emptiness inside.

He is our Foundation, in him is our strength and stability.

He is our Feast, his word nourished us.

He is the Fire, that burns with in ourselves.

He is the Flood that washes us clean.

He is our Friend, he walks beside us always.

He is the Foundation which we drink deeply of.

He is the Fruit of life. The sweetness of knowing him satisfies us as nothing else can.

He is the Freedom, our bonds are broken when we acknowledge him.

Rev. 1:8 "I am the Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, which is and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty."

Final UMC services held in Norton, May 24th

Buildings close, but churches remain eternal. This message was delivered to some 100 people who gathered for a final worship service inside the Norton United Methodist Church sanctuary Sunday.

White sunlight pushed through open windows and bathed those who had come to lament and celebrate the old church building's demise. Like many small, rural churches; the Norton church was the victim of dwindling membership and diminishing financial resources. The church's active membership had declined to about six people. Norton United Methodist Church was founded in 1907 when the congregation moved from a site near the Norton Cemetery to present white, wooden building that was formally closed during Sunday's service. Songs of praise and words of celebration were raised during the closing ceremony. Pastor Bobby Baggett, who also serves the Ballinger First Methodist Church, noted that Sunday's observance merely marked the closing of a building, not a church.

"We are not closing a church today. The church is eternal. We are closing a building," Baggett stressed.

"The members of this church have been a light to others and offered a blessing through their mission giving," Baggett said.

Two former Norton United Methodist Church pastors - Glenn Bowman and Fred Cox - also attended Sunday's services.

Four other ministers who served the church sent letters that were read during the service.

"I was saddened, but not really surprised, to hear that you have finished your course. As one who knows what a good fight you have fought, and what a great race you have run, I find myself giving thanks to God that I was privileged to be a part of your history," wrote former pastor Roy Bassett.

"You are going to cease having service there in Norton. Well, time does take its toll, but I hope that you will always remember that the Norton United Methodist Church has not ceased to exist. Its ministry continues, literally, throughout the world in the lives and faithfulness of children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and at least one pastor for whom the faith and the witnesses were very real." Bassett said in his letter.

Letters were also sent by former pastors Eugene Robertson, Plez Todd and Robert Cavanaugh.

First United Methodist Church Brownwood District Superintendent Rev. Charles McClure noted that the Norton United Methodist Church was founded to serve families who were moving into Runnels County when West Texas was a new frontier.

"Now proceeds from sale of the church property will be used to establish congregations on other new frontiers...the opening of churches in suburban areas where the population is increasing," McClure said.

Spirit Filled Happenings

By Jan Thompson
Guiding Light Spirit Filled Baptist Church

Let us consider some unwanted things, some undesirable things, some situations that were hated at one time, despised and rejected of men.

When we think about God reaching out to mankind, it would seem in the human sense, that God ought to use every pleasing method He could. It would seem practical that God in His wisdom would never make a move that would turn man off when He is trying to reach him. However, that is just how God works. You remember the great flood, Noah's ark? God looked upon the world and found Noah, a righteous, perfect man in his generation. He was a man who found grace in the eyes of God, so God shared a secret with him: "I am going to destroy this world with a mighty flood. Because you have found grace in My eyes, I want you to build an ark for the salvation of your family." Then God gave Noah some plans to go by. Look at them in Gen. 6:14-16.

One of the things God told Noah was, "Pitch it within and without with pitch." Pitch was an ugly substance, it has a smell especially when the sun shone upon it. (Now if you remember the story they did not have to worry about the sun for sometime.) You would have thought that if God is trying to save the world at least He would have had Noah build something attractive and easy to live in. He could have told him to paint it a real smart color like maybe BLUE with white trim. But my friend God was not trying to make the life boat something to please man, He made it to look like this so that if anyone ever went inside, it would be because of the preaching of Noah, not because it was a beautiful boat or a free ride. You see my friend God is not out to make things look right to please man. He made the ark ugly, a reproach; it was an eyesore. Many might have said, "Go in that thing, that big black contraption? Not on your life!" In many cases like today, all God would have had to do is just change the color a little, and He could have gotten a lot of members on board.

There were no believers to go on board outside of the family of Noah, but rest assured after the first few drops of rain there must have been many believers. There is coming a day you will wish you would have been a Christian and in church every chance you had. You may feel unwanted, but no, you are wanted. Welcome to Guiding Light Spirit Filled Baptist Church, 1017 N. Cryer, Winters. Dr. W. Lindsey Thompson, Pastor.

Poe's Corner

by Charlsie Poe

Jim Shelton, Cowboy

While attending the National Cowboy Symposium at Texas Tech last week, I had a book display in the Atrium at the University across the aisle from an old cowboy named Jim Shelton from Glenwood, New Mexico.

Shelton introduced himself and gave me some good advice about displaying books. He said that he attended 30 of these meetings every year in various places. He gave me a book of his poems with permission to use them anyway I liked.

Jim was born to a con outfit in 1925. He worked for his dad until he was 12, when he went to work on other outfits. He's done time in the armed forces, and graduated from Western New Mexico University in 1924.

Shelton has written poems and songs right through it all, and put icing on the cake with a few novels. He's turned a hand to drilling wells, windmilling, breaking horses, and predator control, as well as writing. But through his poems you'll hear the heart of a cowboy ringing true.

"The Old Cowboy Poet"

I don't know a helluva lot ain't a whole lot I can do
But I can tell a few old stories and some of them are true.

I can tell about some wild old cows, about good horses, and some men
I can tell about some things in older days

That will never come again
I've seen some harsh old winter storms and some springtime rippin' flood
I have watched some strange animal fights That ended up in blood.

I have had some wild old chases
When I was sittin' in the driver's seat Jus' steerin' some ole steel-shod horse.
Some cow jus' thought she could beat.

There's been some crashes, an'
some bruises and I've had some horses fall
There's some oak-brush scars on my skin-bones an' not all of them are small.

I've had some things happen to me That if I had my way about it I might change some of them
But, some-how, I kinda doubt it.

I've spent some time alone
'Neath the stars, an' moon-lit nights an' I've hunkered in my wet slicker' when the lightnin' made queer sights.

Why do I tell these old stories
Well, to entertain the folks, I guess But mainly to keep from losin' The old "Spirit of the West."

Somehow it seems the
"cowboy" Thinks he had the best of all and I guess, its the opinion that I'll hold "Til I hear my Master's call.

Then I hope I get that heaven-
top Its the outfit of my a choice
A place of pretty calves and horses and not a lot of noise.

If I can jus' make that heaven's roster Then these stories told by Jim I'll just leave them here with you folks and these scars dropped off my shins.

Adult Literacy Council met May 28th at library

The Adult Literacy Council of Winters met Thursday, May 28th, at the Winters Public Library. This is a group that has been formed to raise the public awareness of the problems of adult illiteracy, and to support the tutors who are now working with several local adults. The tutors provide individualized instruction for adults in basic reading and teaching English as a second language. The tutors have completed a training course, teaching them how to use the materials and how to motivate the students. The council would like to publicly thank several local organizations who, by their donations, have made it possible to order more materials. Those groups are the Womens' Service League, The Womens' Club, The Lions Club and the Literary and Service Club.

A program of this kind has many benefits to both the students and the community in which they live. Several studies have shown that students can improve a little more than one grade level with only 35 hours of one-to-one tutoring. This is about twice the expectation of children in the classroom. Studies have also shown that a parent's learning to read can have a dramatic impact on their child's progress in school. The ability to read can give these adults both the skills and the self confidence needed to advance in the workplace and to deal more effectively with the problems of everyday living. There are many people in this community who are unable to read to their children, fill out a job application, or read the directions on medicine labels.

If you are interested in being a member of the council or a tutor, contact Margaret Anderson at 754-4589. If you or someone you know would like to become a student, please contact Sue Spill at 754-4847 or 754-4513.

Eighth Graders celebrate promotion

On Friday, May 29, an eighth grade celebration was held to mark the occasion of their completion of Jr. High and their progress into Winters High School. Thirty-four students met at the cafeteria to play volleyball and compete in relay races. They were joined by twenty-five parents who watched and assisted in the games. Hamburgers, cookies and cake were served to all in the cafeteria, which was decorated with balloons, banners and color-your-own place-mats. After the meal, Rachel Edwards and Marcy Pritchard presented awards to their classmates and read their predictions of what everyone would be doing at their thirty-year class reunion. After the meal and awards, the group returned to the volleyball courts for more friendly competition.

Winters Police Beat

The Winters Police Department is currently investigating an aggravated assault with a deadly weapon case, which happened in the early morning hours of May 27. The offense happened in the 500 block of West Parsonage. Officers and an ambulance were requested shortly after 3 a.m. The victim of the assault was Humberto Santillan, 31, of Winters.

Arrested for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon were: Rigoberto Nava, 24, of Winters and Yvette Nava, 19, also of Winters. Both of the suspects were taken before Justice of Peace Joyce Weems and bond was set at $50,000 each. Both were placed in the Runnels County Jail.

The victim, Humberto Santillan, is currently in the critical care unit of Hendricks Hospital in Abilene.

A few minutes should be set aside each day for the family to do nothing but read.

More than $700,000 to be awarded at 1992 4-H roundup

More than $700,000 in scholarships will be awarded to outstanding young people at the 1992 Texas 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University June 8-11.

Roundup is the state's biggest annual 4-H event. More than 2,500 young people will gather this year to practice leadership and demonstrate skills and knowledge gained through work in 4-H projects, said Gayle W. Laine, 4-H youth development specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The 4-H scholarship selection is one of the main events of Roundup," Laine said. "This year, $722,000 in scholarships sponsored by the Texas 4-H Foundation will be awarded."

"In terms of total awards given, the Texas 4-H scholarship program is the largest one in the nation," said Dr. Lance Bullard, executive director of the Texas 4-H Foundation. "The program continues to grow with tremendous support from the private sector."

Scholarships are contributed by individuals, businesses and organizations interested in helping young people receive a college education, Bullard said. Recipients are selected on the basis of scholastic ability, need, 4-H participation, leadership and character.

This year 116 outstanding 4-H members will receive scholarships ranging from $500 to $12,000, Bullard said. There are more than 400 4-H scholars attending 34 Texas colleges and universities.

A favorite part of Roundup is the 4-H Food Show. Contestants enter their favorite recipes in one of four categories—nutritious snacks and desserts, fruits and vegetables, breads and cereals and main dish. Each first-place winner receives a $750 scholarship from the Morrison Milling Company. Young people take part in 40 contests ranging from consumer education to veterinary science, Laine said. The photography contest and exhibit and the 4-H fashion design competition are two of the highlights.

In the photography contest, the top four winners' pictures in the photography contest are displayed in the National 4-H Photography Exhibit.

In the fashion competition, sponsored by Wrangler, senior 4-H members compete in three design categories—accessory, apparel and textile. Participants conduct their own design research to develop finished products.

"Roundup is a time for recognizing outstanding young people as well as adult leaders, alumni and sponsors," Laine said. "It's an excellent learning opportunity for thousands of youth in our state."

TERMITE CONTROL SERVICES

Termites are commonly found in most areas of Texas and account for many millions of dollars of damage annually. Subterranean termites live in the soil and are found throughout the state. The probability that wooden structures will be attacked by termites within 10 to 20 years is greater than 70 percent in Texas. Termite attack may even begin within a year after construction. Proper treatment of the soil with termiticidal chemicals before construction (called pre-treatment) will eliminate the threat of subterranean termites. Few areas in Texas have pre-treatment ordinances, so few homeowners enjoy such security from termite problems.

If you know or suspect that your home is infested by termites, retain the services of a competent, professional termite control service, because termite control requires specialized equipment and knowledge. This article reviews steps which will help you to select a termite control service.

Do not panic. There is no need to become unduly alarmed if you learn that termites are, or may be, attacking your home. Termites work slowly, so your house will not be ruined or collapse overnight.

Take your time. Do not permit anyone to rush you into purchasing termite control services. There is always time to purchase this service wisely at our convenience.

If you are not certain that your home is being attacked by termites, locate reliable pest control firms and discuss their termite control services. Arrange a thorough termite inspection, with the knowledge that prices for inspection, estimates and terms can vary significantly between companies. A proper inspection should include a written report which notes the location of areas damaged by either active or inactive termite infestations. An estimated cost for chemical control also should be included. Determine whether the estimate is a firm price and be cautious if it is not. As the consumer you are free to shop, but treat the companies with the same courtesy and respect you hope they will return as pest control professionals.

Purchase services from a reliable firm. Buy termite control services with the same care and discrimination you would use in purchasing any other service for your property. Here are some of the ways that you can investigate before you invest.

Texas has a pesticide use and applicator law under which all commercial pest control firms must operate. Each firm and each individual will have identification issued by this state agency indicating their certification. Contracts and certain other documents must have the following stamp or printed on them: Structural Pest Control Board, 1300 E. Anderson Lane Bldg. C, Suite 205, Austin, TX, 78752, 512/835-4066.

If a firm offers references of previous work, take time to check them carefully. Beware of firms that:

Quote a price based on the gallonage of material used.
Profess to have a secret formula or ingredient for termite control.

Have no listed phone number.
Show up unexpectedly and use evidence of termites in trees, etc. as an excuse to inspect the house.

Also want to trim trees and do general foundation repair work as part of the "deal."

Cater to elderly or infirm people who live alone.

Claim to be endorsed by Texas A&M University.

Claim to have excess chemical left over from another job and offer a reduced price if they can do the treatment immediately.

Association membership. Membership in the Texas Pest Control Association is evidence that a firm has an established place of business, subscribes to a code of ethics and has access to technical literature for training and consultation.

Know the terms of the contract. Ask your termite control specialist to provide a written statement of the work he proposes to do and an estimate of its cost he will give you to consider his estimate. It is customary to guarantee termite control work, either on a year to year basis, or for a more extended period. Make sure you know exactly what guarantee the firm offers.

Remember that a guarantee is no better than the person or firm who gives it to you. A guarantee is not evidence that a firm is reliable. Most fraudulent operators use a showy contract and a guarantee as part of their sales promotion.

Governor proclaims Safe Boating June 7 - 13

Praising the state's vast recreational water resources, Governor Ann Richards has called for Texans to "Boat Smart" in proclaiming June 7-13 "Texas Safe Boating Week."

Joining the Governor in calling for an increased awareness of the state's many voluntary boater education programs was Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission Chairman Ygnacio Garza of Brownsville. At a recent Commission meeting, Commissioner Garza praised representatives of diverse groups involved in water recreation and called attention to the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department's toll free boater education hotline. Boaters can call 1-800-253-4536 to learn about courses and instructors in their area. Volunteer instructors across the state, including scores of members of the U.S. Power Squadrons and the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, are being urged to redouble their efforts to provide classes during Safe Boating Week and throughout the summer.

"We are making great progress in getting the word out to our state's boat owners, their families and friends about the need to take a course to learn how to 'Boat Smart,'" said Mike Asbill, president of the Boating Trades Association of Texas (BTAT). "Boating opens a door to a wide variety of opportunities, such as fishing, skiing, sailing and cruising. It is becoming increasingly popular due largely to the efforts to make boating a safe, enjoyable family activity."

Besides BTAT, groups represented at the Texas Parks & Wildlife Commission meeting the American Red Cross, Lower Colorado River Authority, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and the U.S. Power Squadrons.
