Elm Creek Reservoir — a busy place

BUSY WEEKEND AT THE LAKE-Elm Creek Reservior was the scene of several campers, boaters and skiers last weekend. Lakekeeper David Carroll reports an overload of overnight campers. The park presently has four campsites with water and electrical hookups and is in need of additional facilities.

stemmed from appraisal values. Most people attending said they felt that their property was appraised at more than it was worth. Mayor Sandy Griffin suggested that people who think their appraisals are too high should contact the county appraisal office to verify their appraised value.

Mayor Griffin also voiced the opinion of the City Council that the budget of the city was "bare The black bass, weighing 14.5 lbs. and 28" long, was caught bones" and this was the least by Gary Bud at Elm Creek Reservoir on August 19 and is a new amount the city could stand.

The Council tabled action on the sale of portions of Fannin and Poplar streets to the school. Administrator Aref Hassan stated that nothing had been received from the school board concerning the purchase.

The Council adopted the National Fire Protection Agency 101 Life Safety Code, 1991 edition, to enable businesses and residents of Winters to receive the best rate for property insurance coverage. Adoption of this code requires inspection of businesses by the fire marshal. Details of requirements to pass the inspections were not available at press time.

TIPS registration Thursday night

At 7:00 p.m., Thursday, August 27, there will be a meeting in the Elementary Activity Center for all parents interested in enrolling their children in the TIPS after-school care program. Mr. Terry Wyatt, Elementary Principal, will be present to bring the greeting, introduce the staff, and discuss details of enrollment.

TIPS is an acronym which stands for Terrific Intermediate and Primary Students. It is an after-school program which provides a safe environment for children, homework assistance, tutoring, and enrichment activities.

TIPS kids receive a snack every day. After snacks they attend different stations which include an Activity Room (where floor games/ puzzles, and high interest books are available) a Computer Lab, a Homework Lab, and outdoor recreation. All children must be signed out by 5:15 daily, and this year will be picked up at the Elementary Activity Center.

A handbook will be made available to parents at the meeting

August 27. This handbook covers details concerning the program. Mr. Wyatt and the TIPS staff are excited about offering a quality care program to the parents and children of Winters Independent School District. An exciting year is planned and wonderful results are expected!

With only 18 to 20 players on the varsity squad, backup and replacements are almost non-existent. But that doesn't mean the quality is not there.

Freshman John Paul Belew debuted as quarterback for the Blizzards and turned in an impressive performance. John is young to be "under fire" at the varsity level but his size (6'1" and 201 pounds) and attitude are certainly in his favor.

Belew has his offensive line to thank for having time to pass. Seniors Russell Parramore Josh Awalt and Scott Thorpe, junior Wes Hart, and sophomore Otis Merrifield anchor the front line this year.

Our monthly 'Oil Patch Basics' feature will concentrate on the capping of blowouts, a very exciting and glamourous (but dangerous) part of the oil busi-

First, a few definitions.

A blowout is the term used to describe a well that is uncontrollably spewing liquid and/or gas and/or downhole equipment out of the wellbore at the surface.

Capping a blowout refers to the process to gain control of the well in order to shut all flow off. How do blowouts usually oc-

Well, I'm glad you asked that. They can happen for a number of reasons.

For instance, when an unexpected pressurized zone is encountered while drilling, the well can sometimes blowout because there is insufficient mudweight to contain the pressure (mud is the liquid in the hole that is used to remove cuttings and to provide hydraulic control over pressure changes).

A well may be unintentionally swabbed in by moving equipment out of a hole too quickly and creating a vacuum to allow the well to start flowing out of control. This happens occasionally when hydraulic safeguard monitoring becomes lax on the derrick floor.

Still another possibility would be a blowout caused by some failure in downhole tubulars (casing, etc.) after a well is already completed that allows a known, but very high pressure zone to start flowing uncontrollably. This is very, very rare, though.

By and large, most blowouts occur while drilling operations are underway.

Capping that blowout is stuff of oil patch folklore. It includes a cast of characters of such wellknown names as Red Adair, Boots Hansen, and others. It is full of danger and excitement and, to some extent, mystery. Those who cap blowouts are revered for their bravery, ingenuity, and determination.

There are two kinds of blowouts: those on fire and those not yet on fire.

If there is no fire, a lower profile company may be called in, but if there is a fire, usually one of the Red Adair, Boots & Coots, or Wild Well Control boys is brought niques are similar, but the fire II Field (7 miles SW of Eden) at an initial complicates the matter by increasing danger and decreasing accessibility. If there is a fire, it must be dealt with first before the blowout can be capped.

The fire is usually extinguished by 'blowing' it out. That is done by igniting dynamite or nitroglycerine over the blowout, thus consuming all of the available oxygen and snuffing the fire. (Kind of ironic-fighting fire with fire.)

Now that the fire is out, we can get to capping the well. (If your well is not on fire, skip the above two paragraphs and begin reading now.)

If debris covers the wellhead, it must be removed to get a clear shot at the casing where the flow is escaping. If the casing is damaged itself, it must be cut-off to a point where the casing has enough integrity to allow capping of the well and sealing flow.

After the top of the casing is 'dressed' (cleared), then a new valve system is lowered by crane over the flowing stream onto the top of the casing. A self-threading head is usually used, so it will screw down on the casing and form a seal. This operation requires great skill by the operator and by a person standing near the dangerous flow (I say dangerous because the flow could ignite at any minute, and the speed of the flow is usually enough to cut someone's arm off).

After the seal is formed by the new self-threading valve head, the person on the ground can begin turning the valve handles to shut off the flow. And, just like that, the well is capped and under control. (It sounds a whole lot easier than it really is.)

Sometimes, the well is so out of control, that relief wells must be drilled to take some of the high pressure flow from the blown out wellbore out through another 'under-control' wellbore. This is done by drilling a directional well from some distance away (on the surface) and heading it toward the bottom-hole location of the blown out well. If this is successful, then the capping operations

These are just some of the steps taken to cap blowouts. If I could cover all aspects of blowouts in this short column, guys like Red Adair wouldn't be the revered specialists they are. It takes a lifetime of experience to know all there is to know about blowouts, and even those with that experience learn something new on __ every blowout.

When I was a boy down on Aunt Suzie's farm, I had a swing. Uncle George took a rope, tied it to a strong limb of a solid oak tree. To the bottom, he fastened an old rubber tire so that the swing was about a foot and a half from the ground.

As time went on, I refastened it by taking the tire off and replacing it with a stuffed used gunny sack. That made for a smoother ride; and a little later in my life, that sack became a "tackling dummy." Many a time in my imagination, I would save the home team by racing across the field making a tackle that prevented the other team from scoring.

But now, what I remember more than the swing is the tree. It stood there off to the left of the driveway, just to the left of the path to the house. It was a welcoming tree, the first one you saw as the car came over the rise to the farmstead. It was like a sign saying, "Come on in. You're home now." It was a sturdy oak, and it earned its right to stand there, passing the test of the wind and hail and storms of the Wisconsin hill country.

It was a comforting tree. When it leafed out, it provided shade in the heat of the day. Its gentle motion would form an up-draft, pulling the warm air up into its branches, leaving room for the earth-cooled air to move in. It was God's air conditioning and it didn't affect the ozone one bit. To this day, one of my favorite things to do is to sit in the shade of an old tree, and just breathe the air.

It was a kind of art gallery. The dark brown of the branches and the bright green of the leaves, as you laid on your back and looked up, left openings where bright patches of blue sky would come shining through. That was living color, and no camera can ever quite catch it. The leaves were outlined and high, lighted by the sky. There is no more beautiful picture on earth.

It was a calming place. The gentle wind breezing through the branches sang lullabies to my soul, and more often than not I fell

No wonder Joyce Kilmer was inspired to write:

"I think that I shall never see A poem lovely as a tree. A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed Against the earth's sweet flowing breast; A tree that looks at God all day, And lifts her leafy arms to pray; A tree that may in summer wear A nest of robins in her hair, Upon whose bosom snow has lain, Who intimately lives with rain. Poems are made by fools like me, But only God can make a tree."

Canterbury Villa News by Ruth Keesee

BALLINGER—The community showed great support for the rummage sale. It was really a success. Special thanks should go to Dorothy and Gerald Parks for assisting with setup and cleanup. The following people donated items to be sold: Margaret Rodriquez, Maurine Earnshaw, Lulabell Leeman, Minnie Hansbrough, Angie Olsak, Pat Kvapil, Faye Eubanks, Rachel Petty, Irene Modry, Sheila Hilliard, and Elizabeth Gemgross.

The birthday gathering was held on August 20. Thanks to the Stitch 'n' Time Club for the donation of gifts and to St. Mary's Altar Society for the homemade cakes. Residents Emma Henniger and Hattie Reed shared memories of coming to Texas in covered wagons with those present.

Runnels County Crimestoppers

Reward offered by Crimestoppers

During the nightime hours of August 16, 1992, persons unknown entered the Northview Cemetery, located in the 800 block of North Main Street in Winters, and subsequently vandalized 80 tombstone monuments. When a tombstone monument is vandalized, under Texas law, it is desecration of venerated object. Desecration of venerated object is a third degree felony. Of the 80 vandalized tombstone monuments, some were broken, some were knocked over, and some were loosened when the individuals were attempting to push them over.

Runnels County Crimestoppers will pay a reward of up to $1,000 for nformation that leads to the arrest and grand jury indictment of those individuals responsible for the vandalism at the Winters Northview Cemetery.

If you have information about the vandalism, call Runnels County Crimestoppers at (915)365-3591 or any local law enforcement agency. This crime is being investigated by the Winters Police Department (915)754-4121.

Chamber of Commerce recognizes outstanding business

In an effort to recognize the many fine folks of Winters in both the city and rural areas, the Chamber of Commerce will salute a local farmer, rancher, business or individual.

Bahlman Jewelers of Winters has been chosen the Business of the Week.

Bahlman Jewelers was begun in November of 1955 by J.W. and Joyce Bahlman. After the death of J.W. in 1986 the business was sold by Joyce Bahlman to their son Lanny.

Bahlmans has a complete line of fine jewelry, watches and gift items. They have one part-time employee and three full-time employees. Their business hours are 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Lanny Bahlman and his wife Brenda have three children, Josh, John, and Jena all attending Winters school. Brenda teaches first grade for Winters ISD.

Lanny's hobbies are hunting, fishing, golf, snow skiing, and water skiing.

When asked what do you feel would make your community a better place to live, Lanny replied, "people being more supportive of local businesses and organizations."

When asked how this can be accomplished he said, "by shopping Winters first!"

Lanny states that the most influential people in his life have been his parents.

Chamber Memo

by CECLIA KNIFFEN

Main Street is the first impression visitors have of our town. In some cases of people traveling through, the only impression. Many of us have lived in Winters many years, perhaps most or all of our lives and we become so accustomed to our surroundings we don't really see them. The next time you drive into Winters from out of town, ask yourself, "What would a stranger see driving through for the first time?" Then look at our town as a stranger would. You might be surprised at what you see.

The Chamber is working to improve this impression and make it a positive one. We do, however, need volunteers. If you are willing to give an hour or two of your time please call the Chamber office (754-5210) and we will let you know as soon as the work day has been set. The Chamber is also planning to set up a program of family teams to be responsible for certain areas. This won't be a one time clean-up campaign as we plan to keep an eye on Main Street to keep it clean and weed

The property owners have been most cooperative and enthusiastic about giving their permission or by cutting down weeds or arranging to have it done. Dr. Tommy Russell, Lawrence Brothers of Sweetwater, Skinny's of Abilene, and Hattie Belle Bishop have been very generous by responding with a donation to the Chamber of Commerce. Randall Conner of Farmers Seed and Supply is providing Roundup® for spraying weeds.

There is a great opportunity here as highway 83 is one of the main routes from Mexico to Canada and is used by "Snowbirds" on their annual journey from their homes in the northern states to warmer climates in the South. Why could we not make Winters so attractive they would want to stop and spend some time (and money) with us? Maybe next year this would be their destination and they might be enticed to spend the winter in Winters.

The Chamber of Commerce would also like to commend the merchants and homeowners who do such a good job of keeping their homes and places of business clean, neat and weed free.

THANK YOU WINTERS FOR ALL YOUR HELP!!

Farmers attend Grain Sorghum Field Day & Information Program

Grain Sorghum Field Day and Information Program was held Tuesday, August 11, at the Gary Jacob Farm. Approximately 85 area farmers, seed representatives. Extension Service personnel, and news media gathered at the test plot.

This informative tour was the joint effort of the Runnels County Extension Service, Runnels County Crops Committee, Winters Young Farmers, and twelve seed companies.

A program was presented by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and followed by comments from each of the sponsoring seed companies.

From Across The Mayor's Desk

Vandalism, according to the dictionary, is: "Malicious or ignorant destruction of works of art, public property, etc." Recently a Winters cemetery experienced the lowest form of vandalism when 75 or more headstones were overturned and damaged. Because we live in a small community this sort of uncaring behavior is hard to accept. Disappointment, hurt and anger are the emotions that these acts of vandalism have aroused.

Addressing the results of a vandal's indifference is difficult. Should a reward for information be offered? If the information is fruitful, what about the punishment? Restoration -- who takes the responsibility for righting the wrong? Food for thought, isn't it?

Public dismay regarding this senseless crime has brought forth many offers. Police Sergeant Keith Collom has contacted the provided by Winters' ladies serv-Runnels County Crimestoppers. ice organizations. Crimestoppers is offering a rement of these offenders. Collom being reported.

reports these acts are 3rd degree felonies.

Offers of money and labor have ignited support for a work day at the cemetery. The work day is scheduled for Sunday, August 30, at 1:30 p.m. Anyone interested in lending a hand should report to the cemetery wearing work clothes. Bring work gloves if you feel they are necessary. Jim Jones of Ballinger Memorial Company is taking charge of the headstone repair and will do his work for expenses. Cash to offset these expenses can be sent to the Winters Funeral Home, Box 395, Winters. Please note your donation to indicate cemetery repair. Former resident's collection preserved

Following is an exerpt from a news release from Hardin-Simmons

"Approximately 6,000 photo negatives taken by the late Charles C. Cockerell of Abilene's building progress and construction, special events and people, primarily in the 1950s and 1960s, have been given to the Abilene Historic Photograph Collection housed in the Hardin-Simmons University Richardson Research Center. ..." by Mr. Cockerell's widow, Ann.

Further information received from Mrs. Cockerell revealed that Charles C. Cockerell was the son of Mr. & Mrs. Sam Cockerell, who are buried in Winters' Fairview Cemetery.

The Cockerell family were neighbors to Mamie Little's family and Charles had memories of Monroe Boles, B.D. Jobe, Marvin Bedford, Floyd Sims and Homer Hodge; whose father, Homer Hodge, Sr. taught Charles to operate a motion picture camera. Also, according to Mrs. Cockerell, Lura Lee Garrett's father, Dr. Tinkle, performed corrective surgery on Charles' hands.

Mr. Cockerell's photo and negative collection is described as being ...a tremendously valuable collection" by Hardin-Simmons officials.
