Members reconstruct Country Club bridge

Volunteer workers can take pride and credit in the recent work and renovation to the bridge across Bluff Creek, located at Winters Country Club.

Much history and many fond memories trace this bridge back to the original "suspension" bridge that was replaced in 1973.

This needed improvement to the current bridge was made possible by both volunteer workers, which included; Donald McWright, L.C. Hounsel, Cotton Hubbard and James "Pee Wee" Gehrels, as well as the ABC Scrambler and Bill Hall.

If you are at the Winters Country Club, look to your left as you go in the Clubhouse and on the wall is a framed sketch of the original Clubhouse and golf course. It shows how the original site and grounds looked in 1926.

The sketch depicts two "suspension" bridges across Bluff Creek. One was to the right and behind the Clubhouse, the other some 50 to 60 yards to the left, looking out from the front clubhouse porch.

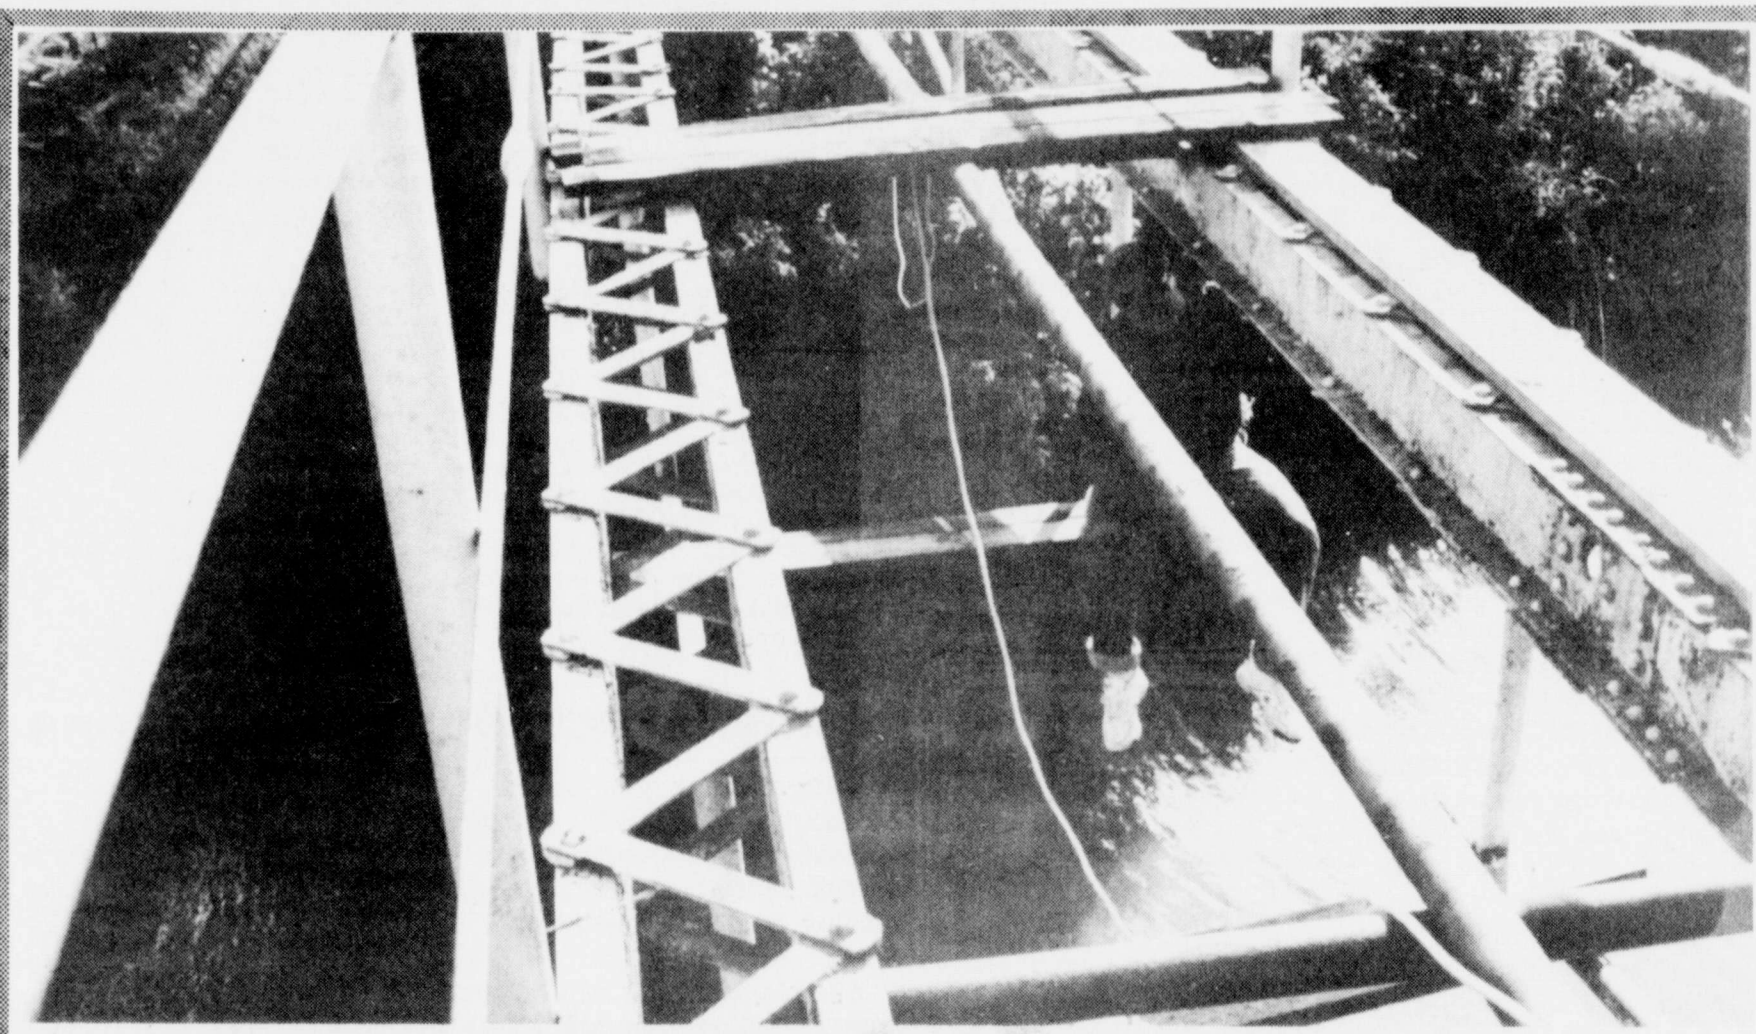

Later, the one closest to the club was replaced with cement.

The other "suspension" bridge was also removed and a newly constructed bridge built of steel and wood. The cross beams were welded together and made from the legs of the old Winters water tower that was torn down around that time and sold to a salvage dealer from San Angelo. His name was Clem Rosmond. Mr. Rosmond sold the legs of the old water tower to the Winters Country Club for one-hundred dollars.

The site of this new bridge was located about thirty to forty yards south of the large suspension bridge.

Some of the companies and people who helped construct this new bridge in 1973 were: Dry Manufacturing Company, Al Scates, John McAdoo, August McWilliams, Louis De La Cruz and Carl Hancock.

A Winters trucker who worked for the former Cox Trucking Company brought his trucks out to the site and placed the heavy steel beams across Bluff Creek after the volunteer workers had welded the former water tower legs to the desired configuration of the new bridge structure.

TEDIOUS WORK—One of several workers who renovated the bridge at Winter's Country Club is Donald McWright who is shown sitting on a cross girder beneath the wooden walk that was attached to the steel bridge frame.

Odessa woman drowns at Oak Creek Lake

A 35-year-old Odessa woman died June 27 at Oak Creek Lake as a result of a drowning incident.

Debra Diane Dufour Maryman of 3203 Winfield, Odessa, was pulled from the water at 2:17 p.m. by diver Rick Griffin of Blackwell.

According to Griffin, a member of the Blackwell Volunteer Fire Department, located the body in about 10-12 feet of water in a boat channel a short distance from the bank. The victim's body was under a shallow ledge, he said.

Her husband, Jerald Kenneth Maryman, told officers at the scene his wife could not swim but was wading in knee-deep water when he last saw her. She apparently stepped off into the boat channel a short time later.

Maryman and a friend were cooking in the backyard of a lake cabin about 40 yards away when the family dog attracted their attention. When they looked to see the reason for the dog's behavior, Mrs. Maryman had disappeared.

Following an initial search, the Blackwell Volunteer Fire Department was summoned at approximately 1 p.m. and the search began. Coke County Sheriff's Deputy Rick Styles was in charge of the investigation.

Also at the scene were Blackwell City Marshall Will Linoir, and Texas Parks and Wildlife officers Sparks Burdett of Robert Lee, Robert Wood of Ballinger, Gary Mitchell of Odessa, and Kenneth Eaves of Sterling City.

Justice of the Peace Joan Davis of Robert Lee pronounced the victim dead at the scene at 3:30 p.m. and ruled the death an accidental drowning.

The body was taken to Shaffer

DRESSED TO—the nines in her patriotic attire, "Lady" scarecrow La Jon, poses with the McNeill's daughter, Judy Scott, of Wink who with her husband, Sam, was visiting over the 4th of July holidays.

"Lady" scarecrow joins LaVoy McNeill's garden

Jon and LaVoy McNeill of Wingate have created a new non-person to their surroundings. Jon decided to build a "scarecrow" for LaVoy's lush vegetable garden. He welded an iron shaft for the vertical torso and welded an iron cross-piece for the arms. Jon and LaVoy were then garage sale browsing and picked up a foam "head" and wig.

Jon then used some plaster to mold the facial features on the foam head. He used about three to four inch diameter vinyl-coated flex pipe and that finished off the arms, with cotton stuffed in gloves for the hands and fingers.

The legs appear to be made of short lengths of foam plumbing pipe protectors.

The bodice is made of wire mesh wire adding a trim shape to the "lady." LaVoy shops area garage sales for dresses and changes the attire from time to time.

Brent Mikeska, local and area ginner has named the scarecrow, "La Jon."

The McNeill's have seven children, twenty grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The McNeills are forty-five year residents of Runnels County.

WINNING SQUAD—The Winters High School Varsity Cheerleaders recently attended cheerleader camp at Angelo State University. The squad received several honors including 7 blue superior ribbons, 2 gold superior ribbons and a spirit stick. They also received a trophy for being selected outstanding squad for the week. Left to right: Angela Bryan, Brooke Killough, Jennifer Matthews, Brenna Mikeska, LisAnne Smith and Alisa Presley. Jennifer Matthews is Head Cheerleader.

OIL BUSINESS

By Reg Boles ©1993

Some interesting news about finding costs came out just recently, and it shoots a few holes in the theory that development costs are too high in the U.S.—maybe.

You see, the conventional wisdom (if there is such a thing) lately has said that the reason all of the big boys are going overseas is that finding costs are so much lower outside of the U.S. A recent study shows that finding costs (costs of exploration, development, etc.) related to new reserves from discoveries, extensions, revisions, etc. are quite competitive between North American and the rest of the world.

An oil analyst's report released in late May says that U.S. finding costs were approximately $4.82 per barrel, while costs in the rest of the world were $4.64 per barrel for 1992. The North Sea average was a horrendous $8.05 per barrel.

The significance of this report and its findings are obvious. If everyone has been saying that the reason for going overseas is to lower costs per barrel, then this report would suggest that this might not be a smart thing to accept as a rule. In fact, it might be another case of 'herd mentality' where everyone does something because everyone else is doing it.

I think a study such as this points up the fact that there are some good things that are happening right here at home as far as reserves finding is concerned and not all good things happen 'over there'. In the same breath, I also realize the study may have some flaws.

For instance, acquisitions are included in the calculations, and this might skew the domestic finding costs to the low end because many properties have been on the market here and some low prices have been set. Also, many of the largest international reserve additions will come later as some really big fields start to be worked on by American companies.

With that said, it is still very important to understand that the major cost reduction efforts that have been going on domestically are bearing fruit. They are the reason that the calculated costs are getting even close to competitive. Companies, especially independents are poised to take advantage of the decreasing competition in the American market.

This will mean some major money and some major reserves will be found by those willing to go after it. Let's see who gets there first.

Forever Young

Nancy Hart has assisted in writing her family's history included in the book, "The Richard Young Family of Texas."

Nancy says, "Our family begins with grandfather Christopher Frederick II, called Chris, one of the twins born to Christopher F. "Kit" Young and Frances Ann Donoho, on July 14, 1862, in Johnson County. It is doubtful if the twins' father could leave the Civil War to see them.

The twins' mother did not have enough milk to nurse both children. Their grandfather, Richard Young, provided a Negro "nannie" to help care for them. She nursed Chris while Frances Ann nursed Fanny.

Chris told his children stories about his German grandmother who couldn't speak English. She made the children tea-cakes.

Chris married Nancy Ann Thurman on October 23, 1895, at Harper in Kimble County. His wife said that Chris had "hair as black as a crow and eyes as blue as the sky."

He was of slight build and his shoe was a mere size six. He was quiet and hated arguments. When his step-father and his father-in-law, Jack Thurman, were present, there was often a heated discussion, usually about some passage of scripture. When Chris's father did not return from the Civil War his mother married I.G. Young, his father's brother.

Nancy Hart recalls a story about

Chris and his twin sister, Fanny. The preacher was an honored guest at the Young's for a Sunday dinner. Chris whispered to Fanny that the preacher was eating so much, he hoped that he choked because all of the good pieces would be gone before the children were served. Sure enough, the preacher choked. The twins were frightened thinking they had caused the incident to happen.

Due to a lack of educational opportunities in growing up, Chris was unable to read. He and Nancy had few books until they found a Bible that had fallen from a traveling salesman's wagon. Afterwards, they often sat around the table with a coal-oil lamp while she read to him. Nancy taught her husband how to write his name.

Before there was a road between London and Harper in Kimble County, Chris helped a covered wagon across the Blue Mountains. At one point it was necessary to let the wagon down by a rope secured to a saddle horn. Once he made a spinning wheel for his mother. Their story is in the book Here's Harper, a project of the Harper Centennial Committee in 1963.

Chris died in 1932 and is buried near Round Rock. His wife, Nancy, died in 1961 at Winters. They had ten children. Only two are living. Jake lives at Harper. His wife, Ruby, was a sister to Fred's wife, Gertrude. Jake is a musician and performs on the fiddle at many functions.

Their tenth child, Linda Morrison, lives in Winters. She has recently undergone intensive treatment for breast cancer. Linda received a certificate of accomplishment from Hendrick Medical Center for completing a course of radiation treatment. "Congratulations from the staff of Radiation Therapy."

Linda is happy to be at home and resumed her volunteer service at the nursing home.

Christopher Frederick III "Fred C.," the fifth child of Chris and Nancy, was the father of Nancy Hart, Joe Edward, Carl Franklin, Glenn Dell, Clarence Jake and Marilyn Kay Rose. All of them live in Winters except Glenn who lives in Stephenville and Clarence who lives in Fredericksburg.

Nancy Hart shares her memory of a hot summer she spent on the James River Ranch when she was eight. Her uncle had a job cutting cedar and building fence. "His crew was made up of my dad, his three brothers and three other men. My aunt, grandmother, mother, my four little brothers and I lived in tents. We fished and played while the adults worked. The women washed clothes on a rub board near a spring."

That summer, the children's Aunt Myrtle told them stories about the Youngs and the Thurmans, instilling in them the love of family.

Control white grubs in lawns

Timing of treatment for white grubs in lawns is approaching in the Concho Valley. The white grub is the larval form of an insect commonly known as the May or June beetle.

They live in the soil and feed on grass roots. Their feeding causes the grass to die in irregular-shaped areas and the grass can be rolled back like a carpet.

There are several ways to determine if your lawn has white grubs. You could wait until the irregular-shaped brown areas show up and you roll the sod back like a carpet, but this may be too late. The best way is to take a shovel or knife and cut a flap (one square foot of grass) on 3 sides in the grass and roll the flap back. Examine the roots in the upper 4 inches of soil for white grubs. Make this test in several different places in the lawn during early-mid July. If you find more than 2-3 grubs per square foot of sod, an insecticide treatment is needed.

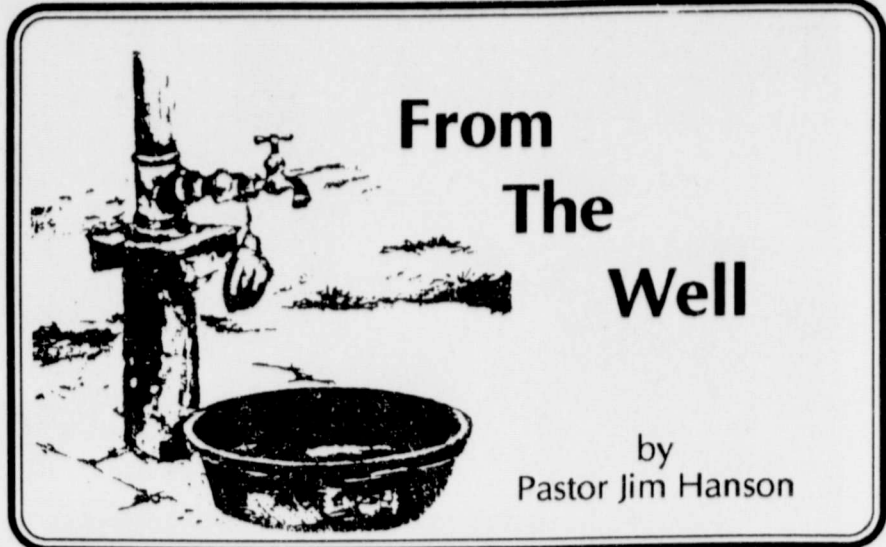

The best time to treat for white grubs are when the grub worms are less than 1/2 inch long and located within the top one inch of soil. This should be around July 5 to July 20. A second treatment around August 25 may be needed if small grubs (less than 1/2 inch in body length) are present in the top one inch of soil.

Some suggested insecticides for white grub control include: Triumph®, diazotol, Oftanol®, or Dursban®. Triumph® is only available to commercial applicators.

Caution should always be exercised when applying insecticide. Practice pesticide safety and read the label instructions before applying any pesticide.

What could be more fun on a hot early summer afternoon than to drive north to Albany, Texas and take in the "Fandangle"? In case you are wondering what a "Fandangle" is, don't look it up in the dictionary. I did, and it said "a Spanish dance or a foolish act." What you do to discover what it means is to go to one and experience it for yourself. We did, Aref, our city manager, Ramona and I. And it was neither a Spanish dance or a foolish act. It was a great experience.

The Fort Griffin Fandangle is the name for a whole town production of a musical "documentary" in which they celebrate a piece of their own history. It takes place in an open air playhouse with the stars and the moon for roof and the stage is an acre or more of grass. You can see and hear everything. The actors and actresses are locals and one of the most exciting scenes is when a big bunch of longhorn steers are moved onto the stage, rounded-up, and moved out while a cowboy sings his cattle song.

Of course, the Fandangle had a good beginning. The first script was written by a home town boy who made good. Robert E. Nail went east for his education and came up a good writer and producer of plays, on or near Broadway. But, after a couple of years in the big city, and making a name for himself, he decided to come back to Albany where he dedicated the rest of his life to his mother and to his home town. It was he who put it all together, using home town talent, and first class writing and directing and producing. He died in 1968, and this is what is said of him, "In this 20th century, it is not rare to find some man or some woman who has given something of his or her talents for the benefits of others. It is rare, however, to find a person who has dedicated all of his life, his energies, his intellect, his vision, his funds, and his accomplishments to the betterment of his community and its citizenry." No wonder the Fandangle continues, its good beginning sank roots deep into the minds of the whole town.

What a production it was, beginning just at dark! An older couple, who narrated the script, rode in on a horse drawn wagon, and the lady, Connie Parker, read from the poem, "Cattle", written by Berta Hart Nance, a native of Albany.

"Other states were carved or born
Texas grew from hide and horn.
Other states are long and wide,
Texas is a shaggy hide."

The poem is longer, but I included these to give you the feel for the night. Horses and riders, cowboys and Indians, soldiers and settlers, Indian villages and army camps, courthouses, churches, and saloons. The city manager of Albany said, "You won't find anybody at home in Albany these nights. Everybody is in the production."

Who knows if Albany would even be here today if it were not for the Fandangle. It produced a lot of good fruit, good community spirit, good schools, good stores, a first class museum. When you go deep into the well of every person, you find something beautiful. And when you give everyone a part in the production, it has got to be good!

Two day cow-calf workshop in Coleman

If you are operating a cow-calf enterprise, mark your calendar for Monday and Tuesday, July 12 and 13, 1993. An IRM-SPA, "Integrated Resource Management-Standardized Performance Analysis" shortcourse is open to all cow-calf producers.

Instructors for this two-day shortcourse are Dr. Steve Hammack, Extension Beef Cattle Specialist and Dr. Stan Beavers, Extension Economist.

The morning session on July 12 in Coleman is open to all cow-calf producers - while the afternoon session is limited to those who pre-register for the SPA computer session (which will continue on Tuesday, July 13). The July 12 session only requires pre-registration while the computer sessions on July 12 and 13 requires a $70 registration fee.

What is SPA? SPA is a standardized cow-calf enterprise production and financial performance analysis system developed by Texas A&M in cooperation with the National Cattleman's Association.

SPA helps cow-calf producers of any size who are willing to spend time assembling the necessary data to do the SPA analysis to monitor performance.

SPA helps producers, consultants, lenders and advisors to effectively analyze the cow-calf enterprise to identify opportunities for profitable change and to monitor progress over time.

The morning session on Monday, July 12 is free and open to the public. Beginning with the afternoon session on the 12th and continuing through the 13th, the program will instruct participants in gathering data, entering this information into the computer program, and evaluating the results.

The cost of this session will be $70, which includes the computer software and printed materials.

The workshop will be held in the Mrs. J.A.B. Miller Library Building on the courthouse square beginning at 8:30 a.m. on Monday, July 12 in Coleman.

Pre-registration is required since space is limited. Registration deadline is Friday, July 9.

For further information and pre-registration forms call Mike Mauldin, County Extension Agent - Agriculture at (915) 365-2219 or come by the Runnels County Extension Office, 3rd floor, County Courthouse, Ballinger.

Relief Fund gives aid

The Winters Relief Fund helped eleven people during the month of June.

July is immunization awareness month

July has been proclaimed Immunization Awareness Month in Texas. Throughout this month, the Texas Department of Health and local health agencies will sponsor a variety of events to help educate communities about free or low-cost immunizations for children.

Texas Department of Health is an important provider of immunizations for Winters/Runnels County and will observe Immunization Awareness Month locally. Activities include an immunization clinic to be held at 110 South Main, Suite 100, on Monday, July 19 from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.

Dr. David R. Smith, Texas Commissioner of Health, said, "We have tried to make it impossible for any Texas parent to plead ignorance as the reason his or her child is unimmunized. But ignorance is only one of the problems.

Logistics--the geographic availability of vaccinations at sensible hours for working families--are still a problem."

By age two, only 30 percent of Texas children are fully immunized, half of the national average. Vaccinations are expected to cost about $57 million, a fraction of the expense of treating the diseases.

Governor Ann Richards in April signed into law a childhood immunization bill that requires all Texas children, except those with a religious conflict or medical contraindication, to be immunized against contagious diseases such as measles, mumps and diphtheria. Doctors and hospitals will now be required to review children's immunization records. Families will be asked to pay for the administration of the vaccine. If the family is unable to pay the administrative fee, vaccines will be administered free of charge. State law already requires children to be immunized against diseases like measles, mumps, diphtheria, whooping cough and polio as soon as they enter school.

But many children under age six have not been vaccinated.

"As a pediatrician, I have seen too much of the senseless tragedy associated with failure to vaccinate children against thoroughly preventable diseases," Dr. Smith said. "It is long past time for us to have all but wiped out such devastating disease as measles, yet within the past five years, more than 4,400 Texas children under five years of age have had the disease--including 14 who died from complications of measles."

"Let's hope that the added momentum of Immunization Awareness Month will renew this state's determination to finally defeat the diseases against which we have had vaccines for decades," the commissioner said.

broadcast application or 3 nozzle per row. Cone nozzles are great if you are using drops and 3 nozzles per row. If you are using the broadcast boom, it is recommended to use a flat fan nozzle. This reduces drift because of the larger droplet size.

Cotton aphids can be found in some fields, but at very low levels. We want a few out there anyway to feed our beneficial population. Please don't get excited about the aphids right now. Remember, if conditions are conducive to rapid aphid build up it is usually around the end of July to mid-August. We will continue to monitor aphid population closely and I don't feel like they will increase rapidly right now.

FMC has been given a 24(c) labeling for the use of Furadan*4F for cotton aphid control. The rate is 1/2 pint (.25 lb.) per acre. A maximum of two applications per season may be made. Use a minimum of 2 gallons of finished spray/acre by air or 10 gallons of finished spray/acre by ground application. Restrictions will be discussed next week.

BOLLWORMS/BUDWORMS

Normally we get our first flurry of bollworms around the first week in July. Scouts are picking up a few bollworm eggs in the field now, but nothing to be alarmed about yet. Remember, there is a lot of mortality of small worms prior to bloom because of poor plant canopy and other factors. With the weather conditions as they are now, worms will have a difficult time of surviving in pre-blooming cotton.

If you are in a situation where you are treating for weevils and have a significant number of bollworm eggs present, you may consider using an ovicide such as OVASYN at 1/8 lb./acre. Egg counts should be very high to economically justify this treatment though, and cotton should be in the blooming stage.

GENERAL SITUATION

Hot and Windy. Winds have been terrible all week and have really hampered producers spraying overwintered boll weevils. Weevils can still easily be found in cotton fields which are adjacent to pastures. Grain sorghum looks good with very little insect problems, but with the weather conditions the way they are, a rain would be a welcome sight for many area sorghum fields.

COTTON

Overwintered boll weevils
Most fields planted on or near the planting date have received their first weevil treatment and are getting ready for their second shot. The big questions are: How many days between applications? Answer: Four days normally and no more than 5 days apart.

How many applications will be necessary? Answer: Who knows for sure. I feel if you are in an area somewhat distant from overwintering habitat probably two applications 4 days apart will be sufficient. If your field is adjacent to prime overwintering habitat (creek bottoms, northern Runnels County) two applications may be necessary if scouts continue to find live overwintered weevils in the field and/or fresh feeding damage.

Is a band application still recommended? Answer: Yes, if the wind is not blowing; but with the current windy conditions band applications are not recommended. It is advisable to go to a

FLEAHOPPERS

Fleahoppers numbers remain low for the most part. Cotton is loading up well and we certainly want it to continue. Watch square sets closely now, we would like to keep square sets in the mid to upper 80 percentile during the first two weeks of squaring. If square sets drop below 75% during the first 3 weeks of squaring something is wrong somewhere.

Dimethoate, Orthene MSR, and others are quite effective against fleahoppers.

The economic threshold is 15 to 20 fleahoppers in combination with a 75% square set or less.

COTTON APHIDS

SCOUT SAFETY

The safety of our field scouts is extremely important. If you spray a field which is in the scouting program, please let them know beforehand so they will not be exposed to the pesticides. Read all labels or the cotton guide for reentry intervals.
