TALL ORDER FOR A LITTLE GUY—The first day of school may seem overwhelming to some kindergartners but 5-year-old Bryce Wilkerson seems ready to jump right in. Winters school began Monday, August 16.

Winters I.S.D. readies for 1993-94 school year Approves budget

The Board of Trustees of Winters Independent School District met in regular session, Tuesday, August 10, to set in motion the coming year's requirements and plans.

The School Board voted to approve the 1993-94 School Budget as presented with projected revenue of $4,822,020 and projected expenditures of $4,734,869.

This budget is an approximate $500,000 decrease from the '92-

'93 budget. Hopefully, this decrease will allow the tax rate to remain approximately the same. The tax rate will be set at the September board meeting.

Also on the agenda was a request to address the board by Roy Rice, but he was not present.

Next, a unanimous vote passed naming T.D. Lancaster, Charles Kidwell, Bill Cathey, Darnell Holden, Terry Wyatt and Barbara Everett as appraisers for the Texas

Teacher Appraisal System, during 1993-94.

It was agreed to set the substitute teacher rate of pay at $45.00 per day for the first four days and $50.00 per day thereafter when continuing in the same assignment.

Extra bus trip pay was authorized and set as follows: 0-50 miles, $20.00; 51 to 100 miles, $25.00; over 100 miles, $30.00; and same day trips, not on school time, set at $6.50 per hour.

Building rental rates set are as follows: auditorium, $15.00, plus janitor; cafeteria, $15.00, plus janitor; gyms and Elementary Activity Center, $35.00, plus janitor; Home Economics, $7.50; football field, $250.00, plus two janitors and ag barn, $35.00.

A motion was made and passed unanimously to adopt the income guidelines for free and reduced meals for the school year 1993-94.

Disaster averted by former Winters family

By JANIS HOUNSEL

Former Winters residents Beth, Terry and Katie Rives recently returned to their home following a short stay in Winters, visiting relatives and friends.

The Rives live in Kirkwood, Missouri, a city with a population of approximately 28,000, on the outskirts of St. Louis. Kirkwood is bounded on three sides by the Mississippi, Missouri and Meramac Rivers.

Beth Rives indicated that their home was never seriously threatened by the flood waters. Their lives, however, were affected in many ways.

Although Beth and Terry were always able to get to and from their workplaces, many of their friends and family were not so fortunate. All bridges north of St. Louis were eventually closed.

Floods are no rarity to the area in question, but one of such proportion does not usually occur during the summer. According to Terry Rives, the major flooding generally occurs during the spring due to the runoff from melting snow. The current flood has been caused by rains.

Because flood insurance is so expensive, many residents do not carry it, but it is available almost up to the last minute. Those living in the flood-prone states of Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and Minnesota had known for about two months that floods were expected, but the severity was greater than anticipated.

Terry also stated that experts are predicting severe floods to the area next spring. The waters from the present floods will not have receded enough by the time of the spring snow melt.

The Rives were impressed by the way people had responded to the disaster. Numerous volunteers were pressed into service in many ways, working long hours at backbreaking tasks such as sandbagging.

It was mentioned, however, that police eventually were forced to ticket sightseers because of the danger they posed.

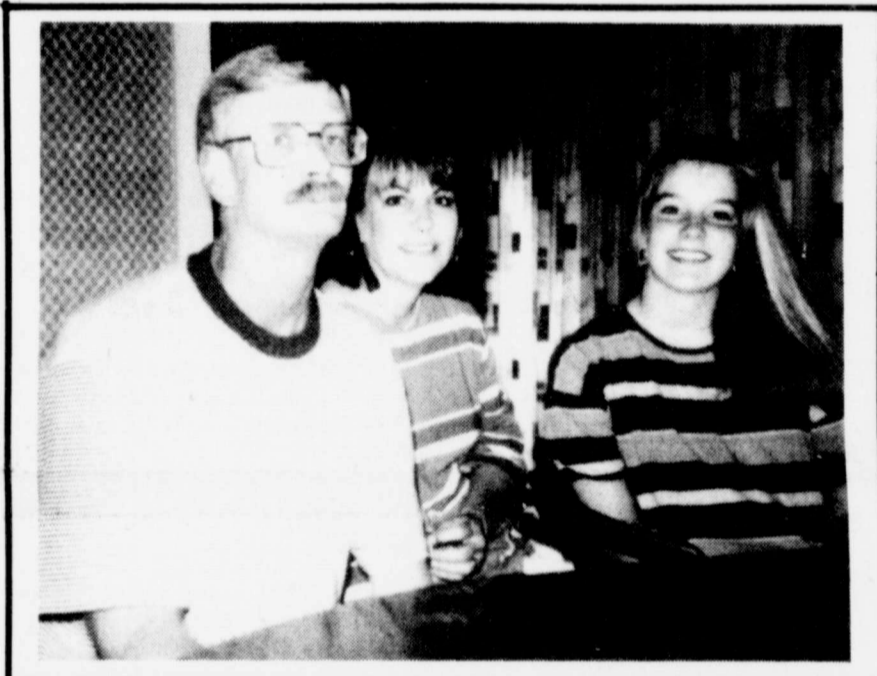

The Rives' son, Chris, graduated from Winters High School in 1989. Katie Rives will be a sophomore in Kirkwood where there are approximately 1800 students in the high school. She played varsity softball as a freshman and was active on the junior varsity basketball team.

In Missouri, as opposed to Texas, there are no sports activities in the schools below high school level but Katie stated that high school teams would be competitive with those in Texas.

The majority of football fields have no lights and most games are played on Saturday. In Texas Friday night football is sacred.

The Rives family lived in Winters for eight and one-half years prior to returning to Beth's home state four years ago.

Terry's father, Dr. C.T. Rives (ret.), and sister, Kay Lynn Strickland, are Winters residents.

Burning prohibited in open rural areas

Winters firefighters assist in Menard County blaze

Runnels County officials recently passed a resolution to temporarily halt open burning or burning of trash in rural areas. This measure is due to the drought conditions that exist at this time.

Runnels County Judge Michael B. Murchison stated, "Many counties around the state are already doing this in order to prevent major wildfires that could be devastating." He also added that the resolution is only temporary.

The resolution, which passed unanimously, prohibits any burning of any type other than in approved enclosures such as trash barrels and charcoal grills.

A violation of this order is a misdemeanor which could result in a fine not to exceed $1,000 and a jail sentence of up to 180 days.

Also taking steps to protect roadsides and adjoining property from wildfires, the Texas Department of Transportation crews are mowing in strips to reduce tall vegetation that could become fuel for wildfires.

Recently TxDOT maintenance crews ferried water to firefighters battling a 14,000-acre blaze in Menard County. Winters firefighters Johnny Merrill, Jerry Mac Jackson, Robert Cook, Kenneth Doty and Steve Grenwelle were among those fighting the fire in Menard County which took over five hours to control.

School zone speed limits to be enforced

Winters motorists need to be aware that school has begun and speed limits in the area of the school have changed. School zone lights and speed limit signs were installed at two locations last week for implementation the first day of school.

On Texas Highway 83-84 (Main Street) the flashing lights will begin at 7:00 a.m. each school morning and deactivate at 8:15 a.m. They will come on again at 2:45 p.m. and go off at 4:00 p.m.

On Farm to Market Highway 1770 (Novice Road) the lights will go on at 7:30 a.m. and go off at 8:15 a.m. These lights will come on again at 2:45 p.m. and go off at 4:15 p.m.

Speed limits at both locations will be strictly enforced by the Winters Police Department.

TIPS students to register

There will be a TIPS parents meeting on Tuesday, August 24 at 7:00 p.m. in the elementary activity center.

This meeting is for the purpose of registering students who will be attending TIPS.

"IF I HAD THE WINGS..."—High school principal and Chamber of Commerce board member Charles Kidwell awaits release after being "arrested" by Julie Traywick, left, of the Abilene office of the Muscular Dystrophy Association and Russell Stewart, guard at the Abilene French Robertson prison unit.

MDA lockup nets big haul

An estimated $1,300 was raised in Winters for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, thanks to the good nature of the community's civic leaders. This total surpasses the amount collected in 1992.

Julie Traywick of the Abilene office of the MDA and Russell Stewart, a prison guard at the French Robertson Unit in Abilene and WHS graduate, managed to "jail" some of Winters' leading citizens. Each of the "jailbirds" had collected pledges from local citizens to bail them out from behind bars.

"Jailbirds" included: Mayor Joe Gerhart, Rene Woffenden, Phillip Esquivel, Bill Ray, Charles Kidwell, Randall Conner, Richard Hamilton and Terry Wyatt.

OIL BUSINESS . . .

By Reg Boles ©1993

A change is taking place as a result of the final and full deregulation of the gas industry. The change is subtle, but it could have a major impact on how gas is sold and transported in the U.S.

The key date is November 1, 1993. By this date, according to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), all gas pipelines will submit to FERC order 636 which basically puts pipelines out of the business of buying gas and firmly plants them into the niche of transportation and storage.

The order says that pipelines will compete in the open marketplace against other transportation companies for the rights to transport and store natural gas. The companies will not be allowed to muddy the waters by signing folks to contracts that set the pipelines as the buyer of the gas. The hope is that such a change will reduce transportation costs by putting them on the table alone instead of being bundled with a purchase price, handling charges, etc. By making them more visible, the FERC hopes that competition will be more open in the gas industry than it is now.

Purchasers at one end and buyers at the other, with a transportation company in the middle. What does all of this mean to the average producer of gas?

It means a more competitive environment that will be somewhat similar to the way long distance phone companies work today after deregulation. Even though there may only be one local outlet for their gas, that local line will have to allow them to sell to whomever they please at the other end. And, much like the relationship between the local phone company and the long distance phone company, the producer will have other choices as to who transports or stores their gas down the line until it reaches the desired purchaser.

All of this will have an effect on the way line hookups are negotiated at the wellhead. Right now, a purchaser will come to a producer and negotiate a hookup and a price, and, based on who makes the best offer, the producer will select a purchaser. Ultimately, with the new deregulation of gas markets, a producer will negotiate a hookup with the lowest transportation cost in mind. The ability of that transportation company to deliver that gas to an end-line purchaser will also play a part. But, the matter of price will have to be negotiated with the end-line purchaser—not the pipeline company.

And, the producer will have the option to change end-line purchasers as prices change and as their contracts allow. This will provide more flexibility to the seller of gas to shift their sales to wherever they see the most demand.

Now, before we start believing in the perfect world, let me throw some cold water on things. Deals are going to be made between purchasers and pipeline companies to try to package their transportation services and a sales price.

So, the producer may be able to deal with one entity before a decision is made, but the FERC is going to be keeping an eye on such deals to prevent them from being a manifestation of the current system in disguise.

The ultimate goal is to make it possible for a producer to negotiate with a transportation specialist and an end-line purchaser to get the best deal possible. If that doesn't happen, look for additional prohibitions against packaging of services that bundle price with transportation charges.

For the users of natural gas, it will be a somewhat different story. They ultimately will have a more market-efficient system to deliver gas when and where it is needed the most. This will be accomplished by allowing supply and demand on almost an instantaneous basis to divert gas sales to where the highest price is being paid. But, for the shorter term, there will be some glitches that may cause some supply disruptions and localized price fluctuations that may be reflected on utility bills. This will potentially occur throughout the initial adjustment period to this new system. After all, the gas business is used to operating on a monthly basis with relatively long-term contracts, and the new system will make them operate on a daily basis with constant competitive forces at work.

We can all sit back and watch to see how much really changes and what the real effects are now that we know the forces at work.

The End of a Dynasty

Uncle Rich Coffey didn't spend all of his time hauling salt and dodging Indians. Once he was called for jury service at Brownwood, some 50 miles away. He asked to be excused and the judge inquired as to the reason. He replied that he wanted to be with his wife, when the judge pushed the inquiry further, Uncle Rich replied, "It's the light of the moon and we are expecting an Indian raid. I'd kinda like to be with my wife when the Indians come." The judge granted his request.

Coffey was a member of the first grand jury in Coleman County. The judge gave strict instructions "to bill every gun-toter." Two or three newcomers on the grand jury insisted that the instructions about billing the gun-toters be followed. There was a dead silence, since most of the citizens carried guns at that time.

Finally, Uncle Rich said, "Gentlemen of the jury, I make a move that every man on this jury that has a gun under his coat or in his boot leg come forward and stack it on the table. Here is mine." This brought a hearty laugh and nine guns were stacked on the table. This settled the issue and there were no bills against "gun-toters."

Coffey was giving his corn the last plowing of the year when the mule he was driving caught the smell of Indians and ran away. His wife saw the Indians while the mule and Uncle Rich were making a dead run for the house. As Aunt Sallie watched the race between the Indians, the mule and her husband, she shouted, "Run, Rich, run!" With a final burst of speed, he fell in the door and when he had regained his breath said, "Sweet, you didn't think I would lay down on a race like that, did you?"

Rich Coffey loved a good joke and when a Texas newcomer said that it looked like rain as it had been cloudy for two or three days, Rich drily replied, "That doesn't mean a thing. I've seen it cloudy for six months and it didn't rain."

In the early 1890's interest in oil was aroused in connection with the oil discoveries at Brownwood. An oil promoter met with a group of Coffey's neighbors at a school house, proposing that they group together and finance a test well. Uncle Rich was not satisfied and motioned for his friend to follow him outside. After several questions, he asked his friend, "How deep does that feller plan to go?"

"Oh, possibly as much as five or six hundred feet," was the answer.

"Shucks!" said Rich. "He won't find no oil, I've seen cracks in the ground deeper than that in dry weather!"

Rich Coffey was one of the first county commissioners of Coleman County and for many years paid taxes in that county, only to discover that he actually resided in Concho County. A small corner of Concho County crosses the Colorado River and takes in a small triangle of land. He actually lived about a hundred yards west of the Coleman County line and about a mile south of the Runnels County line.

Coffey was 50 years of age when he petitioned the Brownwood Lodge for the Masonic Degree. He received his first degree on his 51st birthday. In 1878 he, along with seven other Master Masons of Brownwood Lodge became charter members of the Coleman Lodge. When the Paint Rock Masonic Lodge was organized in 1885, he became a charter member. He was a faithful member and was given a Masonic burial by that Lodge when he died February 7, 1897. After burial in the Paint Rock Cemetery he and his wife, who died in 1910, lay in unmarked graves until the Masonic Lodge erected a marker above his grave on May 26, 1973.

The Coffey family consisted of three daughters and three sons. Penola, born in 1850, was married to Nat Guest. Helen was born in 1852 and Belle, the fifth child, in 1860.

The three sons were large men and expert cowmen. John was born in 1856; Bill, 1858, and Richard "Fogg," in 1863. The youngest was known for his clowning and rough humor.

Fogg lived most of his life on the ranch, raising cattle and horses and, in his late years, raising sheep. The ranch had been quite extensive, but by the time of Fogg's death, all had been sold but a small building in Concho County. Fogg died there at his home July 19, 1939, and was buried in Concho County.

The monthly Resident Council meeting was held August 11. There was a pretty good turnout for this informative meeting. We would like to encourage more family members to attend these meetings whenever possible.

Tweety Warren and Ann Patterson will be here on Tuesday afternoons, hereafter, instead of Monday. The residents thoroughly enjoy singing along with them.

Kay Russell was on hand Tuesday afternoon to assist the residents in decorating grapevine wreaths. Everyone really had a good time. The wreaths turned out well. They will be hung on doors and walls. We thank Kay for her efforts and the time she takes from her busy schedule for this activity.

The birthday party for August will be on Thursday the 19th at 3 p.m. We have several birthday residents this month: Hattie Reed (14th), James Gary (18th), Louisa Ormalez (19th), Una Mae Haverland (23rd), John Gottschalk (12th) and Mitchell Fenwick (26th). Hattie Reed celebrated her 100th birthday last Saturday. Her family gave her a special birthday party at the Methodist Church. We wish everyone a "happy birthday."

The 9th Street Church of Christ will be here on Wednesday evening the 18th at 7:15 p.m. to sing for the residents. Your visits are always welcome and we appreciate all you do.

As always, volunteers are needed and appreciated. Please contact Margie Clough at 365-2538 if you are interested in volunteering.

It's hot. It's dry. It's too hot. It's too dry! The weather reminds me of our first days in the ministry. Ramona and I were called to serve a small congregation in Southeastern Montana. Hardin, Montana. It's located about 40 miles east of Billings, right next to the Crow Indian Reservation.

Our congregation was mostly farmers and ranchers of Norwegian descent. They were good, hard working people. And when we came, it was in the midst of what they called a "seven year dry cycle." Wheat was their main crop. At that time they were lucky to get 15 bushels to the acre and that's with the land lying fallow every other year. It was so dry that when you walked across a field, the earth squeaked, like it needed oil. You felt the dryness creep up from the earth through the soles of your feet into your very being, into the dryness of your soul. You ached for rain.

I'm starting to ache for rain. The Crow Indians had a practice. They were into nature, a lot like the people who wrote the Psalms in the Bible. Psalm 23 talks about a Shepherd who lead us to still waters and green pastures. Indians related to that. A closeness to God in nature. A working together with God in nature. They exposed their religion and their depending on God with fasting and meditation and communally, with dance. They had "sun dances." And they had "rain dances." They had dances for good hunts. And when they were warring, they had "war dances." It was their way of preparing themselves and participating with God, in seeking His help and direction.

It really hit me hard one day as I was cursing the heat and the dryness. The Indians were much more in tune with God than I was. They weren't cursing the heat and the dryness of the earth. They were interceding for the earth, they were praying "Indian style" for rain.

I don't recall how successful they were in their efforts. I don't believe that I ever recall their dances ending up in a great down pour of rain. But I do remember their efforts and their willingness to put themselves all out in behalf of the dry parched earth.

And I wonder if maybe they weren't closer to truth and reality than I was. I think they were. The apostle James said, "You have not because you ask not." And in his remarks about healing reminded us that Elijah the prophet, "a man of like nature with ourselves and he prayed fervently that it might not rain and for three years and six months it did not rain on the earth. Then he prayed again and the heaven gave rain and the earth brought forth its fruit." (James 5:17,18)

It's hot. It's dry. It's too hot. It's too dry. It's time to pray. With the enthusiasm of the Indians and the fervency of Elijah. For rain.

Senior Citizens Nursing Home News

by Billie Ruth Bishop

Gladys Miller continues to be a patient in North Runnels Hospital at this time.

We are looking forward to a good time this week. Today (Monday) we are celebrating going back to school with a party. Some of our residents have been talking and remembering their school days when they were children. Their stories are interesting. They remind us of the changes that have been made and how different it is today.

We have two ex-school teachers in our nursing home, Pearl Jackson and Bea Schroeder.

This is the week for our monthly Birthday Party. The Renewal Sunday School Class of First United Methodist Church will be hosting the party. Our honorees are Laura Pace and Morris Williams.

ENTERING A WHOLE NEW WORLD—Aaron Colburn, age 5, takes a strong last look back at his mother as he steps into his first day of kindergarten on Monday.

County commissioners discuss ADA compliance and budget

Members of the Runnels County Commissioners met in regular session on August 10, in Ballinger and heard Ken Barry, a consultant who conducts studies concerning the American Disabilities Act (ADA).

Barry distributed information and fielded questions on meeting ADA standards required by counties, cities or other public entities.

The ADA law went into effect in 1992. Most requirements had to be met by January 1, 1993. However, all public or government buildings must comply by July 1995 to avoid strict penalties and possible law suits, according to Barry.

The study, if conducted in Runnels County, would cover many departments. A job analysis would be done on every department to meet disability standards. Then a complete study would be done on buildings owned, leased or used by the county to see if they meet ADA requirements.

Finally all supervisors and county officials would participate in a four-hour seminar.

After a lengthy discussion with Barry, county officials agreed that a study should be done. However, nothing could be worked on until a firm contract and price could be presented by Barry to the county.

Barry estimated that such a study would cost the county around $6,500. An actual price could not be determined until all information about the various departments and county properties could be examined.

Barry was also scheduled to meet with members of the Ballinger City Council later that same day. He has already contracted out his services with the City of Winters.

Officials also ratified a motion for purchase of a motor for the Ballinger Volunteer Fire Department.

Commissioners then heard several reports from Robin Burgess, Runnels County Tax Assessor-Collector.

Officials looked at the appraisal rolls, the tax report on delinquent taxes, errors and supplementals. After a brief one-on-one explanation with commissioners, all items were passed unanimously.

Burgess noted to commissioners that 94.72 percent of all taxes throughout the county were collected making 1992 a good year.

Officials were presented a copy of the new contract agreement with Ballinger Memorial Hospital for collecting taxes. It too was passed unanimously.

County commissioners set a budget hearing date for September 14 at 11 a.m., which will follow their regularly scheduled meeting.

Approval was granted to Texzona Oil and Gas for leasing of 8.27 acres for oil and gas exploration. The bid received from the company was for $100.

SCOTT & WHITE
OPTIONS FOR HEALTH

Cavity Prevention Starts Early

Stephen K. Brandt, D.D.S.
Department Of Surgery at Scott & White Hospital and Clinic and Assistant Professor of Surgery at Texas A&M University College of Medicine

Q: I had a lot of cavities as a child and I want to make sure that my children don't get them. How can I make it easier for them to care for and protect their teeth?

A: The key to cavity prevention is good dental hygiene. Many parents do not realize that good dental hygiene can begin while their children are babies.

To prevent tooth decay we recommend a program which includes: cleaning of gums and teeth from babyhood; a balanced diet low in sugar; fluoridated water and tooth paste; and sealants applied to permanent teeth. All of these will help contribute to a cavity-free child.

It is important that a baby's gums be cleaned with a soft wash cloth to get him used to routine dental hygiene. A soft toothbrush should be used when six to eight teeth have come in, and the child should have his first check-up at the age of two, unless a problem is noticed at a younger age. Early check-ups will allow the child to become familiar with going to the dentist under stress-free circumstances, before any treatment is necessary.

Common sense says that a good balanced diet goes into making a healthy child. Sugar intake should be controlled and monitored. Sending a baby to bed with a bottle of milk or juice can lead to cavities, as well as allowing your child to sip sweetened tea, soft drinks or even apple juice between meals.

Encourage your child to drink water, especially if it is fluoridated. Fluoridated water not only bathes the teeth with fluoride but it goes into the system and is absorbed in developing bones and teeth. This along with toothpaste helps to protect the teeth from decay.

Finally, sealants and certain corrective devices can save children from treatment and parents from spending a lot of money in the future. Sealants, in combination with fluoridated water, routine dental check-ups, cleanings, and office applied fluoride treatments, can reduce tooth decay by two-thirds. A sealant is a plastic coating placed on the biting surface of permanent teeth. The cost of placing a sealant on a tooth is less than half the cost of the least expensive kind of filling. In addition, a retainer used to correct a crowding problem or a device installed to discourage thumb sucking in a five-year-old may eliminate the need for costly braces when the child reaches his teens.

"Better late than never" also applies to starting a good dental hygiene program. Even if problems in progress are discovered, proper cleaning and diet can often reverse certain kinds of dental disease.

Mrs. Corey Don Waller

Tracey Grantham—Corey Waller exchange vows on August 7

Tracey Kay Randolph of Robert Lee, friend of the bride, was flower girl.

The groom's father served as his son's best man. Groomsmen were Greg F. Clark of Waco, Andy R. Rhodes of Clifton and David K. Lawson of Lubbock.

Aaron Stowe of Red Oak, cousin of the groom, was ring bearer. Eric P. Green of San Angelo, cousin of the bride, and Michael Slevin of Lubbock, friend of the bride and groom, were ushers.

Music was provided by Mrs. Rhea Parramore of Winters, organist; Mrs. Connie Lawson of Lubbock, vocalist and Mr. Gary D. Waller of Clifton, vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and her brother, Todd Grantham.

The bride wore an elegant gown of white silk taffeta and Alencon lace designed by Mori Lee. The bodice, encrusted with pearls and sequins, featured an off-the-shoulder scalloped neckline, short cap sleeves, drop waist and was accented at the back waist with a candy box bow. The full ball gown skirt was adorned with a scalloped Alencon hemline which flowed to a cathedral train. To complete her attire, the bride chose a tiara accented with satin rosettes, pearl sprays and a double silk illusion pouf veil flowing to fingertip length.

Mrs. Connie L. Lawson of Lubbock, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Melanie D. Smith of San Angelo, Miss Landa M. England of Lubbock and Mrs. Nancy Randolph of Robert Lee.

About 8,500 people die from skin cancer every year, too high a price to pay for a tan. Spending too much time in the sun—working, playing, or tanning—can cause skin cancer. Avoid the sun when you can. 1-800-ACS-2345

If you're in the sun often, watch out for:

- Moles that change in size or color.
- Scaliness, bleeding, or a change in appearance of a bump or nodule.
- An irregular pigmentation border.
- Itchiness, tenderness, or pain.

Most skin cancer cases are highly curable if you see your doctor early. 1-800-ACS-2345

4-H members enjoy successful bi-county wildlife camp

Twenty-nine 4-H members from Coleman and Runnels Counties were in attendance at the Bi-County Wildlife Camp on August 6 and 7. Twenty were from Runnels County.

The campsite was provided by The Colorado River Municipal Water District (Ivie Reservoir), downstream from the Freese Dam within the former Stevens Ranch.

A group of the older campers were led in a survey by Okla W. Thornton, Jr., the Water District's staff biologist. J.R. Smith, C.R.M.W.D. field biologist, provided programs for all 4-Hers and adult leaders on Indian lore and natural history and conducted a tour of the District's wildlife lab.

Activities at the camp included swimming, fishing, nature walks, campfire Indian and wildlife programs, sleeping under the stars, wildlife lab tour, skeet shooting, Carmelita hunt and deer ecology. The purpose of the wildlife camp was to encourage our young people to learn the importance of wildlife to the environment as well as to themselves.

To further instill this knowledge, members competed in various events such as fishing, skeet shooting and wildlife lectures, earning certificates and ribbons.

Winters 4-Her Brent Jacob received an Outstanding Wildlife Certificate. Craig Jacob was awarded an Outstanding Wildlife Observation Certificate.

This camp was made possible by the planning and dedication of several 4-H adult leaders: Mike Mauldin, Runnels Agricultural Extension Agent; Marty Gibbs, Coleman Agricultural Extension Agent; Nancy Thornton, Camp/Activities coordinator; Dinell Jacob and Nancy Schwertner, camp planners. Special thanks go to Don Davis, Winters, of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for the loan of his mammal skull collection and to Richard Halfmann, Recreation Superintendent of Ivie Reservoir for preparing the campsite. Thanks, also, to the three senior 4-Hers who assisted at the camp: Anne Thornton, Becky Schwertner and Brent Jacob.

Other adults from Runnels County helping to make the camp a success: Connie Mauldin, Gary Jacob, Denise Latzel, John Frerich and Paula Frerich.

Thanks to C.R.M.W.D. and staff, adult leaders, moms who sent cookies, those who loaned shotguns and the 4-H members for a great camp!

Perry warns consumers to beware of illegal roach and ant pesticide chalk Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry today warned consumers against buying or using an illegal and potentially dangerous pesticide being sold under the name "Miraculous Insecticide Chalk" as a roach and ant control.

The insecticide is not registered with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency or the Texas Department of Agriculture as is required for any pesticide to be legally sold in the state.

The product, which also is commonly called "Cockroach Wipeout Chalk," contains the active ingredient, deltamethrin, which is not registered for use with EPA. The chalk can be ingested or absorbed through the skin. According to the EPA, no known antidote exists for deltamethrin, but the federal agency reports that a small amount, such as one piece, probably would not require medical treatment. However, because of the health threat, the insecticide should be avoided.

"Because it resembles chalk used on blackboards, the pesticide is dangerous to young children who might find it, play with it and chew on it," Perry said. The product has been found at some flea markets and other retail outlets. The chalk is manufactured in China and its importation to the United States is not illegal, but its distribution is, according to EPA.

The pesticide is sold as individual pieces of chalk or in boxes containing several sticks. No directions, disposal or precautionary information accompanies the chalk.

To safely dispose of the insecticide, contact your local city officials or the Texas Water Commission to find out when the next household hazardous waste collection is scheduled for your community.

Consumers who have seen the chalk for sale are urged not to buy it and to call the nearest TDA regional or Austin office. TDA's regional offices are Lubbock - (806) 799-8555; Dallas - (214) 631-0265; Houston (713) 666-8491; San Antonio - (210) 820-0288 and San Juan - (512) 787-8866. South Carolina needs Texas hay

Answering a call from drought-stricken farmers in South Carolina, Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry has asked Texas farmers with extra hay to consider selling to those in South Carolina.

That state has lost nearly $2 million worth of crops to the drought, and the South Carolina Department of Agriculture has established a hay and feed hotline to connect farmers with hay to sell with those that need it. That number is 1-800-896-3694.

Perry stated, "We realize some farmers in Texas are having problems. But no one understands how weather can wreck a crop and threaten a livelihood like another farmer. We wanted to let Texas farmers know about South Carolina's need so those who have hay can sell to farmers in trouble."

Perry noted that some areas of Texas are not allowed to ship hay out of state because of a fire ant quarantine. He said farmers should call their local Agricultural Extension Office to find out if their county is included in the quarantine.
