After some jostling with a Blizzard defender, the Lion receiver ended up with the ball and ran into the end zone untouched. But a flag was on the ground at the point of reception and Ozona was penalized for interference. The ball was brought back and the Lions punted three plays later. Robert Reed received the punt on the Lions' 43 yard line and took it around the right side and then back up the middle for a touchdown. The kick by Reed was good and Winters led 10-0. Four minutes later, Ozona scored in five plays from their own 25. A pass play of 25 yards and one of 37 yards allowed the Lions to run it in from the 9 yard line for a touchdown. The PAT was good and the lead narrowed to 10-7.

Last time, we spoke of a "quiet revolution" in the oil patch. This week, we are going to discuss how the fewer folks left to do the work are getting it done.

As we said, there are less and less people to do the daily work of the oil patch. These employees are left to figure out how to accomplish their appointed tasks in less time at less cost.

This is where the underground or quiet revolution comes in.

Without management realizing it, common everyday people are becoming empowered. Not because they are necessarily so smart or ambitious but because they have to.

By "empowered", I mean they are learning how to use new tools and new methods to re-invent their jobs.

Field hands are learning to use computers to make their jobs easier. Pumpers calculate production from gauge levels using handheld computers that store a whole year's worth of readings for hundreds of tank batteries. Roustabout gangs are learning how to schedule their work to minimize road travel and maximize efficiency.

Secretaries are learning how to use word processors that do calcuations and translate languages. Proration clerks are learning how to send applications to the Railroad Commission by modem.

All of these hard-working people are doing all of this not because they went to a motivational seminar. They are doing it because they realize they need to keep their jobs to feed their families. They are doing it because their security depends very much on the security of the company, which, in turn, depends on the efficiency in which their work is done.

that most managers don't realize The Freeman #1, 6 miles E of Eden, is their underlings are learning how to run the companies without the managers.

more and more in common with the company's, the performance of the workforce improves. So-who needs the manager?

It will be interesting to see all of this play out over the next few years. Maybe the working man and woman will have the advantage for a change.

The Blizzard Athletic Boosters have been making signs and working hard decorating downtown and highways in support of the Blizzard football team.

The Ex-Student Association donated money to the Boosters for a project of their choice. The Boosters voted to have another banner made and elementary classes submitted suggestions for slogans. Naida Barker's fifth grade class had the winning slogan "Blizzards are real ... Feel the Chill!"

The banner was presented at the Blizzard-Ozona pep rally by some of the Booster mothers who have sons on this year's team.

Blizzard fans are urged to attend the pep rally and come out and send the team off to victory Friday as they leave town.

Big Country Quarter Horse Assn. announces futurities

The Big Country Quarter Horse Association held its annual futurities on October 15 and 16 in conjunction with its annual winter shows at the Abilene Expo Horse Barn in Abilene, Texas. Carla Wennberg of Fort Collins, Colorado, and Doyle Meadows of Tennessee judged both the shows and the futurities. My heart is still filled with the afterglow of our 90th anniversary. We had such a good time! Francis Bredemeyer wrote a mini-pageant that was chuck-full of events in the life of the church. Her love of St. John's permeated every page. Everybody in the pageant caught some of her spirit.

Of course it's the people and God who make a church. Churches are a lot more than brick and mortar. Churches are God's house and they are filled with God's people. Their purpose is to be love for God and love for one another. The atmosphere in the building has to be that of love.

It surely was that way on our anniversary weekend at St. John's. Everyone who came had a smile on his face and a gleam of pure love in their eye. There was so much love lighting up the faces of the folks that we could have turned off the lights and the glow of their hearts would have made the church look like a candle-lighting service on Christmas Eve.

Everyone who spoke, spoke of the love that he or she had received from God through the people at St. John's. Very moving speeches deep-from the well. It was almost as if the poem written by Ace Polk for this anniversary had been fulfilled. The poem is called ""The Sowing".

The Sowing

"Ninety years ago, the Lord planted a seed To build a house of worship, for there was a need. It took time and times were hard and money had to be raised But through it all they persevered and built that house of praise. Out of wood and brick they built, A pleasure to his eye So that all could come and worship the one, Who is most high. In 'World War I, they were persecuted, For the native tongue they spoke And they felt the fears of prejudice, Though they were common country folk. But today He's still reaping from that seed that was sown For St. John's was built on blessed soil, where so many souls have grown That when the Kingdom comes back, And we look upon His face He will say "Father, these are from St. John's, Through their Love I dwelled in that place." The last two lines say it. He will say "Father, these are from St. John's, Through their Love I dwelled in that place." I started feeling that love from the time the first car pulled into the parking lot on Saturday evening until the Education Building was shut

November 28, 1925, is the date for the first radio country music broadcast. It will be observed Monday with music and a short history of the Grand Ole Opry. Minnie Pearl will also be represented.

Country music can always be distinguished by the sound of the guitar or stringed instruments.

Vernon Dalhart, a former light opera tenor, brought country music to national attention in 1925 with "The Prisoner's Song". It sold several million copies. At the same time, WLS and WSM began to feature country music on the national Barn Dance and the Grand Ole Opry.

The 1940's saw the rise of the individual singing star as Eddie Arnold, Kitty Wells, Red Foley, Hank Williams, and others. But the star system was disrupted in the 1950's by the arrival of rockabilly. It was composed of hard-edged country music, rhythm and blues. Its greatest proponents were Carl Perkins, Jerry Lee Lewis, Johnny Cash, and of course, Elvis Presley who is called The King.

Area corporation gains exclusive distribution rights for Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Runnels, and southern Taylor counties first high-power direct broadcast satellite (DBS) was successfully launched into orbit and now, after months of anticipation, Coleman Broadcasting Systems is ushering in a new era in television for areas in Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Runnels, and Taylor counties with the introduction of DIRECTV.

"This is the service that everyone has been talking about and waiting for," says Jerry Ellis, manager of Coleman County Broadcasting Systems. "We've got it and I can tellyou that it really is amazing. DIRECTV is going to give local residents something they have never had before when it comes to television and information technology - a choice."

DIRECTV is a new, all-digital satellite television service which offers consumes approximately 150 channels of programming, with laser disc-quality video and CD-quality audio, using an 18-

Last December, the nation's services is that the dish is only 18- as well as access to private-label inches across. Plus, unlike cable, receiving equipment and special you don't need the cable company to run a wire into your house to receive it."

> What makes Coleman County Broadcasting Systems different from other area compainess who are selling DIRECTV, according to Ellis is his company will be providing all service - from sales and installation, to service and billing - at the local level.

"In essence we are DIRECTV in our local area," says Ellis. "We're your one-stop shop. When customers get their bill it will come from us and they will know that they have a full-service local provider to answer any questions or solve any problems they may have."

This is made possible through CCBS's association with the NRTC, a service cooperative comprised of more than 800 rural electric and telephone utilities and programming packages which will not be available through other distribution channels.

CCBS was formed in 1989 and provides wireless and DBS television and cellular telephone through Mid-Tex Cellular. CCBS is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Coleman County Telephone Coop.

Consumers receive DIRECTV by purchasing a Digital Satellite System (DSS) which consits of an 18-inch satellite dish antenna, remote control and set-top receiver about the size of a VCR. Thomson Consumer Electronics is manufacturing a basic ($699) unit and a step-up($899) unit under the RCA brand name. In addition, Thomson is producing these same units, plus a mid-line ($799) unit, as privatelabel products exclusively for NRTC members, like CCBS.

The Winters High School Class was a part. Many of the class of 1944 had their 50th reunion on October 14 and 15. The reunion began on Friday night at the gym following the football game. The Reunion Class met for lunch and visitation Saturday at the Country Club. Lunch was provided by local class members. Later in the evening dinner was catered by The Shed. During the evening the group was entertained with singing by "The Methodist Mamas". John Paul Strother did an excellent job as Master of Ceremonies. Members reminisced about "happenings" during those "war years" of which this class

ers, Floy Hood Hodge, entertained the group with a humorous story. Closing the celebratioin, classmate Lester Vinson, a Baptist minister from New Mexico, gave a moving tribute to those members who are deceased. The group dismissed with the song "Blessed Be The Ties That Bind" — with the thought of getting together again in the future.

Members and guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hodge, Clara Baker, Betty Jo Brown, Terrell Woodrow, Frances and Curtis Crenshaw, Andy Chisum, Harlan Dorsett, Durwood and Lou Hamilton, Vernon and Dorothy McCartney, Mamie Gene and Calvin Hoppe, Loretta and Johhny Pierce, Christen Davis, Loleta and Ed Vinson, Mosetta Mills, Sudell and Eldon Jeffreys, Clara Thornton, Susie McDaniel, Lester Vinson, Mary and Joe Mac Lindley, Arline and John Paul Strother, Dewitt Bryan, Peggy and Weldon Holbrook, Bonnie Lee, Marshall Simons, Janee and Joe Strother, Betty John Byrns, G.W.
