Woman finds mother, siblings ending a 30-year search

Three Winters women gave information to help reunite family

by SUSAN RIPPLE

On August 31, 1995, The Winters Enterprise published an advertisement and letter from Betty Weise Bryant, age 66, of Amarillo, in search of her birth mother and siblings.

The letter read as follows: "Anyone having knowledge of a baby girl born August 1, 1929, in Winters and given the birth name of Gracie Mae Jacobs, placed either with a Reverend Nicholas at the West Texas Children's home in Abilene or given to a couple in Menard, Texas, for adoption, please write or call....."

Mrs. Bryant had started this search after her adoptive parents had both passed away and not until she located the county where the adoption had been filed did she have a clue as to where she had been born nor any possibility of a birth name. It was then that she mailed the letter to The Enterprise.

Her letter proved to soon be the end of a 30-year search.

Because of similar last names, Evelyn Jacob of Winters responded to the article. She immediately called Bryant. Bryant later wrote to Jacob, "You can't begin to know how much it meant to me when you called. I would find myself searching faces for any familiarity. There is such an empty feeling when you don't have family."

"I called at least 25 of the town's elderly folks knowing that in a small town everybody knows everybody and the years of age would add to their knowledge," said Evelyn. "Some were very interested in helping, some not," she continued.

Edna England and Olga Meyers were two who joined in the efforts to locate any information related to the search.

As a youngster, England had gone to school with and befriended a Johnny Jacobs. She learned that Meyers had kept a military scrapbook containing newspaper clippings with information about Winters men serving their country during wartime, and England remembered Johnny joining the armed forces.

Clippings were found relating to Johnny Jacobs. Reared north of Winters, Johnny had graduated from Winters High School in 1935. Shortly after graduation, he went to Los Angeles, California and entered college, studying for two years. He joined the U.S. Air Force in March, 1941, and served in the South Pacific wars.

Could Johnny Jacobs, "Jake" as he was called, be of any relation to Gracie Mae Jacobs, renamed Betty Bryant after the adoption?

This clue led Bryant to believe her last name might have been Jacobs, so she placed a long distance call to Johnny Jacobs.

"She called me at my home in Florida last September and asked me if I knew of any other families from that area named Jacobs, but Winters is a small town and I told her I couldn't help her," Johnny said. "There were no other Jacobses that I knew about, and of course I didn't know our mother had had another baby."

However, Jacobs sent Bryant a copy of his family tree so that she could study the family line of the Winters' Jacobses.

Months later, Bryant unearthed a record of her adoption tucked away among the land deed records in the Hood County Courthouse in Grandbury.

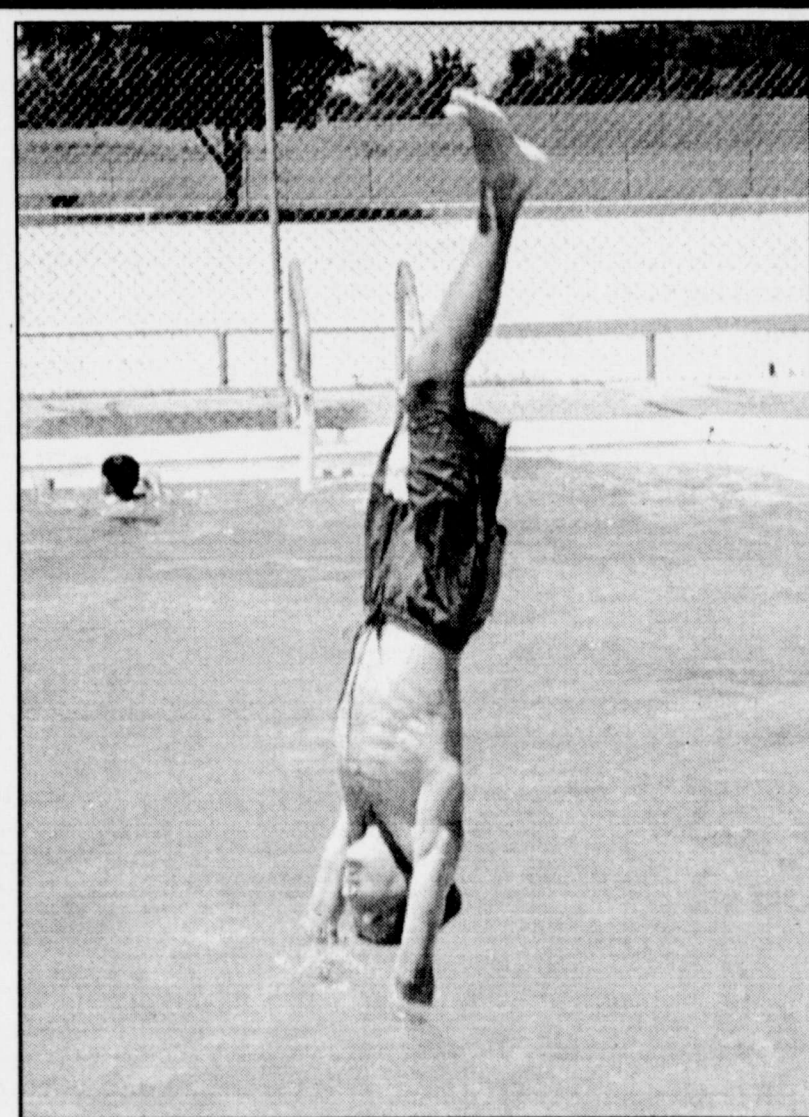

That's when she learned her mother's name had been Eva Bridwell Jacobs, the exact same name of Johnny Jacobs' mother on the family tree.

Upon receiving calls from the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Austin stating that the original birth certificate and adoption papers had been found, there was no doubt.

"...nothing short of a miracle that I found my family at 'our late ages,' especially to find my birth mother alive. It was God's timing...."

Cool down!

JEFFERY OATS, age 12, does a back dive into the City Swimming Pool. With current temperatures reaching the 105° mark, the cool waters are the place to be. Dottie Loudermilk, pool manager, reports as many as 190 individuals in the pool in a day's time trying to beat the heat.

REUNITED ON MOTHER'S DAY WEEKEND were siblings (l to r) Irelene Taylor, 76, of Chickasha, Oklahoma; Jean Johnson, 74, of Garland, Texas; Eva Carpenter, "Mama", 97, of Chickasha, Oklahoma; Johnny Jacobs, 78, of Winter Park, Florida; and Betty Bryant, 66, of Amarillo, Texas.

Commissioners hire law firm to issue '96 jail bond

Runnels County commissioners voted on Tuesday, June 18, to retain the law firm of Bickerstaff, Heath, Smiley, Pollan, Kever and McDaniel, L.L.P. of Austin as bond counsel for the handling of bonds related to the construction of a new county jail. The firm was contracted to handle the issuance of bonds for the failed bond issue in 1994.

County Judge Marilyn Egan told commissioners there would be only out-of-pocket expense paid to the firm should the proposed bond issue due to go to voters on November 5 fail.

The 1994 bond issue was for $2.9 million and a 104-bed jail, whereas, the current proposed jail is a smaller 65-bed facility. County Sheriff Bill Baird told commissioners court that he expected to have preliminary plans from Dallas architect James Wigington the week of June 24. From those plans, the sheriff hopes to have a better idea of the cost of constructing the proposed jail.

Another item on the agenda relating to law enforcement, Ballinger Police Chief Paul Boggess, representing the 9-1-1 Board of Directors, requested an additional $3,958.56 from the county to finish out the fiscal year. The county budgeted $30,000 for their share of the dispatching service for the year, but due to overtime costs, the actual cost for the year will be $33,958.56.

The county currently pays 50 percent of the cost of operating the system, with the cities of Ballinger and Winters paying $15,000 each. Boggess said each government entity will be asked to increase their budget for next year to be able to pay overtime for four dispatchers who work 12-hour shifts. He said the 9-1-1 board will be meeting within the next month to budget for the next fiscal year and will be able to provide commissioners with a figure for budgeting purposes.

In other business, commissioners:

•Okayed the purchase of a $2,200 computer for the use of Department of Public Safety officers in the county. Officers Scott Warren and Geoff Aycock had previously requested the computer in lieu of the purchase of a new radar system which the county normally purchases every two years. The purchase will also include some software which will allow the troopers to complete paperwork in a more timely fashion and, hopefully, spend more
See "Commissioners," pg. 7

City Council approves proposed increase for dispatching services

Speaking on behalf of the Ballinger Police Department, Chief Paul Boggess explained the 9-1-1 budget for fiscal year 1996-1997 to the Winters City Council in their regular meeting Monday, June 24, in Council Chambers.

In accordance to 9-1-1 requirements, an agreement between Runnels County, the City of Ballinger, and the City of Winters was signed February 1, 1993, to centralize the emergency dispatching system. At that time, cost sharing portion for the City of Winters was $13,000.

In 1996, the proposed fiscal year budget, beginning October 1, shows an increase of 51% to $19,685 for dispatching services. The increase comes in hiring an additional dispatcher. Winters will pay twenty-five percent of the cost of salary and benefits.

City Administrator Aref Hassan had previously been directed by council members not to propose a tax increase for the coming year. Since this proposed increase is an operational expense, Hassan held a discussion with the 9-1-1 committee to better understand the 51% increase.

OIL BUSINESS

By Reg Boles ©1996

So far this year, we have covered some of the more visible personnel in the business during our "Oil Patch Basics" sessions.

For the rest of the year, we are going to talk about some of the very important folks who are not quite so visible but do play a vital role in the oil patch.

This time, we are going to pick on the pump truck driver.

For those of you who are not too familiar with the oil business, my selection may not perk up your ears. But, those who depend on them will immediately recognize the title and their importance in getting the job done.

The pump truck driver (PTD) is a term that may encompass several type of drivers, and the term is by no means a standard oil field term. But, my idea of the PTD is the guy or gal who drives the truck that is hauling various liquids to and from oil leases.

In a lot of cases, the PTD's cargo will be water. The truck has a pump on it and a tank of certain capacity, usually between 40 and 140 barrels.

If it is coming TO the lease, it is probably for some well service operation or maybe for a cleanout of some surface vessel. If it is LEAVING the lease, it may contain produced water (usually salt water), sludge, or other fluids that are unwanted on the lease.

Now, don't get a PTD confused with the oil transport hauler (hauls crude off lease for sale) or the hot-oil truck driver (drives vehicle capable of pumping heated oil used for various reasons). Both deserve a column of their own, but they will have to wait.

(I have chosen the PTD because he/she is encountered in so many different situations.)

A PTD has to be a patient person. He/she waits a lot. A PTD driver may be waiting on another service company to finish, on some company man who was a poor planner, the weather, etc.

Like a lot of oil field personnel, a PTD driver must be available at all hours, though the responsibility may not be as heavy as for a company man or tool pusher. The real work starts when everyone is waiting on the PTD to pump that crucial KCI water or gelled water down the tubing during a critical job where everyone is looking for somebody to blame.

A good understanding of math and fluid flow through hoses and pipes will certainly come in handy, as will that certain confidence that the PTD seems to have while he is hooking up his 200 psi hoses into a 800 pound line.

It seems a good PTD is taken for granted until that few-and-far-between shows up and blows the gaskets out of his pump by inadvertently reversing his pump against itself. So, if you work in the oil patch, don't forget to give that pump truck driver a little respect. If you don't work in the field, give a friendly "Hello" to that guy with the grimy, oily rubber boots and stomped-on hat, because he works hard for a living like everybody else.

Next time, we talk about that ever-popular (at least at lunch time) "chemical guy."

June brides should report name change

Too many brides forget to change their names with Social Security resulting in confusion when their earnings are reported for Social Security purposes under their new name.

Social Security authorities note that many brides put it off because they mistakenly think there's a lot of paperwork involved. Actually, you can do most of it with a toll-free phone call. The number is 1-800-772-1213.

When you receive the application in the mail, send it back with proof of your old name and your new name, or you can stop by any Social Security office. It only takes a few minutes.

Winters Blue Sox win District Championship

by GLORIA LUJANO

Winters Blue Sox, ages 14 & 15, who are coached by Lupe Lujano and Rickey Luz, went on a 13 game winstreak, giving them a shot at the American Senior League District Four Championship game at Big Lake Friday, June 14th. The Winters Blue Sox brought home the title by defeating the Big Lake Cardinals 9 to 8.

Both teams played very well. Big Lake Cardinals started with a 3 to 0 lead in the top of the first. When the Blue Sox came up, Jeremy Alvarado hit a double. Next batter was Craig Conner who also hit a double bringing in Alvarado for the first score. Chris Lujano singled to left field. Joe Ortiz then hit a line drive to first base which was caught and ended the first inning.

In the top of the second inning, the Blue Sox defense played well not allowing Big Lake to score. Eddie Rodriguez started off the bottom of the second with a walk. David Hernandez singled to center field which brought in Eddie Rodriguez for the second run.

The Blue Sox infield and outfield played a solid defense and did not allow Big Lake to score in the 3rd, 4th, or 5th innings.

In the bottom of the fifth, Blue Sox' Jeremy Alvarado started with a base on balls. Craig Conner then took a walk to first. Chris Lujano doubled to right field bringing in his teammates to take the lead 4 to 3.

In the 6th inning, Big Lake scored a run. The ball game remained tied and went into an extra inning.

During the 8th inning, the Cardinals seemed to take the game from the Blue Sox. The Cardinals scored four runs making the score 8 to 4. But in the bottom of the eighth inning, the Blue Sox gathered in a huddle and then came onto the field with a "never quit" attitude.

Chris Lujano led off the 9th inning with a walk. Joe Ortiz singled between second and first advancing Lujano to second. Eddie Rodriguez then singled between short stop and third. Oscar Luz took a base on balls bringing in the 5th run. Still behind 3 runs, Ronald Rodriguez, took a walk to first and brought in the sixth run. David Hernandez, took a base on balls to bring in the 7th run. Craig Conner walked to first and brought in the tying run. Chris Lujano came up to bat. The Cardinals pitcher was trying to do his best but failed and walked Lujano, thus bringing in the winning run.

Final score was Winters 9, Big Lake 8.

These boys did an excellent job throughout the regular season.

All-Stars will begin July 5 in Winters against Sonora. Come out and support the Winters Blue Sox.

"Woman finds mother," con't

Bryant called Jacobs back on April 8, 1996, and said: "This is your baby sister."

The family waited from April 8 until Mother's Day weekend for a reunion so that everyone could easily attend. Bryant met her 97-year-old mother, Eva Jacobs, for the very first time Friday, May 10, 1996, in a tear-filled family get-together at Love Field in Dallas. "It was a dream come true," said Bryant. "What a special Mother's Day!"

Also present at the reunion were Bryant's 78-year-old brother, Johnny, and two sisters, Irelene, 76, and Jean, 74 — all of whom she had never met.

"It was just a gut feeling that I had, but I always felt that I had siblings," she said.

"I was the baby of the family, and all these years my mother kept me a secret from the other three kids," Bryant said. "I was taken away at birth and mother never even saw me."

All four children were split up. The girls were put up for adoption because the Great Depression made it impossible for their parents to care for them, Bryant said.

As an adult, Johnny Jacobs, who grew up with various aunts and uncles, was able to locate Jean, Irelene, and their mother, Eva. That was about 1960, but Eva never told her reunited offspring about the baby she had in 1929.

From The Well

Pastor Jim Hanson

"Slow Me Down, Lord" is the title of a poem. But the poem is really a prayer. It's a longer version of a prayer that I have learned to pray myself these past few months. My prayer goes something like this, "Dear Lord, please take the hurry-up out of my mind." When I pray it, He does. And it makes all the difference in the world.

Carl Jung was a great psychiatrist. He really had a grasp on the soul, and the spirit of humans. He once said, "Hurry is not of the devil. It is the devil." And we live in the age of "fast" — fast food, fast cars, and the fast lane. And it is killing our souls and drying up our wells.

Jesus never ran. At least, if He did, it's not recorded. And He had the most important and most necessary task in all of history. He walked. He sat down. He had all the time in the world. He took time. He listened to ordinary people. With the most important mission, he had a goal. And most of his public ministry were events occasioned by interruptions! But, He always had time for the inter-rupters!

The Psalmist says, "Be still, and know that I am God." What does that mean? Stop wiggling. Stop pacing the floor. Stop wringing your hands or shaking your feet. Be still. The opposite of hurry.

It's hard for me to think straight when I'm in a hurry. And when I am, I can't stand interruptions. For sure, when I'm in a rush, I don't pray well. My mind is running ahead of me, and I'm no longer present to the present time. And I forfeit the "here and now" for the "there and then."

That's really what Sabbath is all about. Rest. A change of pace. Slow down. God did it. It says in Genesis "And on the seventh day God finished his work which he had done, and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had done." And "God blessed the seventh day and hallowed it, because on it God rested from all his work which he had done." Sabbath is a holy day.

Do you remember Sundays — when we still had "blue laws?" When there were no stores open, and no malls to go to. Whatever did we do with our time? I remember. Sunday was the very best day of the week. We all took our baths on Saturday night. When we got up on Sunday morning, we did our little chores, and then we dressed up for church. We wore our Sunday go-to-meeting clothes. After church — where we worshipped God and fellowshiped with people, we had Sunday dinner. It was always special. A full meal. Sunday afternoon was for "visiting," for seeing folks and playing games. A day — so different. A day of recreation. Not wreck-reaction.

A really good corrective to our current "hurry up" hang-up is the "Slow me down prayer." I pass it on to you. It's worth keeping. Put it on the mirror in the bathroom. Try it. You'll like it.

*"Slow me down, Lord! Slow me down!
Ease the pounding of my heart by the quieting of my mind. Steady my hurried pace with a vision of the eternal reaches of time.*

*Slow me down, Lord!
Give me, midst the confusion of my day, the calmness of the everlasting hills. Break the tension of my nerves and muscles with the soothing music of the singing streams that live in my memory.*

*Slow me down, Lord!
Help me to know the magic restoring power of sleep and faith in God. Teach me the art of taking minute vacations, of slowing down to look at a flower, to chat with a friend, to pat a dog, to read a few lines of the Good Book.*

*Slow me down, Lord!
Remind me each day of the fable of the hare and the tortoise that I may know that the race is not always to the swift; that there is more to life than increasing its speed.*

*Slow me down, Lord!
Let me look upward into the branches of the towering oak and know that it grew because it grew slowly and well.*

*Slow me down, Lord!
And inspire me to send my roots deep into the soil of life's enduring values that I may grow toward the stars of a greater destiny.*

Slow me down, Lord!"

Searching for former Girl Scouts

Dear Editor,
Many accomplished American women have been Girl Scouts and believe their Girl Scout experience had a tremendous effect on their lives.

March 12, 1997, marks the 85th anniversary of Girl Scouting in the U.S.A. The Heart of Texas Girl Scout Council is now on a search for women living in our area who were Girl Scouts. We are planning a reunion for former Girl Scouts of all ages. We will celebrate this special 85th anniversary and, more importantly, demonstrate our concern for tomorrow's leaders by being advocates for today's generation of young girls.

Girl scouting has provided millions of girls with confidence, leadership skills, fun and lifetime friendships since 1912. The upcoming reunion will be an opportunity to network, build new contacts, and rekindle old acquaintances. Each of us has the chance to embrace the values, the spirit, and the unity of Girl Scouting in our lives once again.

The changing demographics and the restructuring of the family are critical challenges facing Girl Scouts today. For contemporary Girl Scouts, the opportunity to reconnect with former Girl Scouts and learn from their experiences will create a link that will ensure the continuing positive evolution of the Girl Scout movement.

Former Girl Scout include women such as journalist Barbara Walters, champion skater Kristy Yamaguchi, champion golfer Nancy Lopez, opera diva, Jessye Norman, and First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton. The Heart of Texas Girl Scout Council is developing a list of former Girl Scouts in our area. We ask that all former Girl Scouts please call the council office at 800-346-3215.

Senator Gramm in Ballinger to introduce sexual predator bill

"We need a federal law to track sexual predators from state to state, much as they can be tracked within the State of Texas," U.S. Senator Phil Gramm (R-Tx) told those gathered at Bruce Field Airport on Saturday. Gramm came to Ballinger to confer with Chief of Police Paul Boggess and Runnels County Sheriff Bill Baird and to announce his introduction of the Sexual Predator Identification and Notification Act of 1996.

The purpose of the bill is to provide for the nationwide tracking of convicted sexual predators. The Gramm proposal would provide mandatory registration with the FBI when the convicted sex offender crosses state lines and the FBI would notify local officials of the presence of a sexual predator. The bill also provides for a $100,000 fine for felons with one prior predator conviction who fail to register, or not less than one year in prison and $100,000 fine for predators with more than one prior conviction.

Arriving by private plane, Gramm was greeted and introduced by Chief Boggess and Sheriff Baird. In his remarks, Boggess said, "a child who is sexually molested is not the only victim. We are all victimized by sexual predators." Baird told those in attendance Runnels County has been second in the state in child sexual crimes in the past. Approximately 20% of the inmates in the Runnels County jail are in jail for sexual crimes and at times the percentage has been as high as 50%.

Gramm, in his remarks, related the Ashley Estell story—a child from Plano who was kidnapped from a park and killed by a sexual predator who had previously been convicted. "The FBI was able to identify the man convicted of the crime from a number of still photos taken in the park on that day."

"The probability of a sexual molester to repeat his crime is ten times as high as other crimes," said Gramm. He said the only opposition to the bill so far has come from the American Civil Liberties Union which says the tracking bill is an infringement on the rights of the individual. "My response to that is, if you don't want to be named, don't do the crime," Gramm said. "I believe our government owes us personal security, not a living, and this bill will help give us personal security," he went on to say.

In response to questions from the audience, one regarding how hard it will be to get Bob Dole elected president, Gramm said, "he will do a good, competent job when elected, but he won't make the election easy because he won't say things just because they sound good to the electorate." On the other hand, "you can't believe a word the present President says."

"The Perils of Pauline"

Last week reminded me of my childhood when my sister, Gladys, and I went to the picture show every Saturday afternoon to see "The Perils of Pauline," a serial movie that always left the heroine in great danger or perhaps dead.

We couldn't wait until next week to see if she had survived the wreck, kidnapping, or whatever. We took time to stop on the way and buy some divinity from the confectionary. By some miracle our heroine always survived.

My week began quietly enough but the ABS button on the dash board of my car kept staying red, no way could I make it stop. Afraid of what could happen, I rushed to the Buick repair shop in Ballinger on Wednesday.

After examination, I was told it needed another button and one could be brought on the truck Friday. I could bring it in by 9:00 a.m. and they would have it out in no time.

This was close as I had a beauty appointment at 10:30 a.m. and was to take some women to play bridge at Beckie Brown's at 1:30 p.m., but being an optimistic soul I agreed.

At 9:00 a.m. I arrived Johnny-on-the-spot. The truck was thirty minutes late, but I was assured it would take only a few minutes. I waited. By 10:00 a.m. more trouble had been formed. It was taking longer that they thought.

A quick call to my beauty operator brought news that her shop's air conditioner was on the blink and she had moved her clients to another shop. She seemed relieved I wouldn't be there. Idell Smith was willing to take us to the bridge party but how could I get home? It would be several days before my car was ready. "We'll loan you a car to go home in," I was assured. Because we will have to order a part from the factory, and it will be sometime next week before it arrives."

My trip home in a Buick Skylark would have thrilled any teenager, but I felt a little out of place. Thinking of my trip to Abilene on Monday to the doctor, I believed I would be more out of place. News about my car assured me it was safe to drive, so I went after it.

I discovered that an old friend lived in Ballinger and I took this opportunity to visit her while I was running up and down the road. She is Mrs. Bill Munson, known as Emma Mae Smith when she taught science at Winters High School in 1945-1946. The year that Jeannie finished high school, and my brother, Robert, was a senior. He became interested in science and wanted to make his own experiment, Emma told me.

Emma Mae had two brothers, both deceased. Luther's wife, Vivian, lives in Winters, and her oldest brother's wife is Jewel Hamner Smith of Ballinger. There are a number of nieces and nephews.

Miss Smith received her Bachelor of Arts diploma from Hardin-Simmons University on August 18, 1932. Science was her minor, but she always taught science. After leaving Winters, she taught in Tuscola, Rule and Lamesa.

Always a faithful church worker, Emma volunteered to work for the Baptist Home Mission Board. They sent her to Kansas City, Missouri, and then to Ventura, California, where she met Bill Munson, a realtor. They were married June 7, 1950, and lived in Ventura until his death 15 years later.

After six months, Emma returned to an Abilene apartment for 15 years before moving to Ballinger to be near relatives. On Christmas day, she will have lived in Ballinger Gatewood Apartments for 23 years.

A real pioneer, Emma moved with her parents from Brownwood to a farm in the Norton area, October 24, 1903. Her father wanted to live in Winters where he operated the Blair Furniture Store, but no land nor housing was available. He bought 729 acres from the Crockett school and later moved to Norton. Emma went to school at both places and also taught there. She is a real pioneer.

The present system is a System 36 which is very much out of date and does not contain enough memory, nor is it modern enough to be upgraded, she reported.

HANDCRAFTED WITH PATIENCE AND LOTS OF LOVE by John Wilkerson Jr. (left) of Winters, this horse carousel was given to his aunt, Julie Wilkerson, also of Winters. The carousel took approximately 45 hours to complete and was a school project for Building Trades at CAPS.

Because she likes carousels

by SUSAN RIPPLE

Gifts come in many sizes, shapes, and colors, but none are more special than those made and given out of love. Julie Wilkerson of Winters was the recipient of such a gift.

John Wilkerson Jr., who celebrated his 15th birthday this past Monday, handcrafted a wooden horse carousel in Building Trades at CAPS High School. According to John Jr., the carousel was made and given to his favorite aunt (Julie) because she likes carousels and "he wanted to get Brownie points with her." She helped finance the school project and picked the patterns.

The carousel measures 16 inches in diameter and 16 inches from its bottom floor to the top crown. It features eight identical white horses set at different heights, complete with mirrors and stained background. Painted in colors of colonial rose, pastel blue, and white with black accents, the carousel actually rotates as it sits atop a three-legged stained wood tripod towering an overall height of 3 feet.

John Jr. said that 103 pieces of wood were used in making the carousel. Cutting the wood, putting it together, and detailed painting with the various colors took about 45 hours. "It actually ended up being much larger than expected," said John Jr. He noted that he had gained experience in using scroll, miter, and table saws when working on these most detailed and small patterns.

John Jr. has also made other woodworks for Julie and various individuals. Under the guidance of teachers Bob Lindsey and Johnny DelaRosa, John Jr. and approximately 19 of his fellow classmates made over 1,000 bird feeders by special order.

John Jr. would like to become a law enforcement officer after finishing school and plans to continue his woodworking upon retirement.

Julie says she is very proud of John Jr. and hopes that he does pursue woodworking. For now, "he is almost out of Brownie points and must do something to score up some more," said Julie.

John Jr. is the son of John Sr. and Betty Wilkerson of Winters.

Sharla Thornhill, granddaughter of local residents, "blossoms" at college

When Sharla Thornhill, 20, granddaughter of L.C. and Janis Hounsel of Winters, placed second in the 1996 FTD Floral Design Contest in March, it marked the triumphant close of an academically successful year for her at Dallas' Richland College.

Miss Thornhill, Ballinger native, had always loved to work with flowers. At age 16, Carol Stokes hired Thornhill at Ballinger Florist, helping her gain experience in the field of floral design. She worked with Stokes for three years.

"I've always been pretty creative with crafts and things like that," Thornhill said. "So when I got the job, it was easy for me to design arrangements, except the materials I was using were living instead of plastic."

Thornhill also used her people skills to best serve the shop's patrons. "I always tried to be helpful to the customers," she said. "When someone comes in a flower shop, you don't know if they're there to order a flower arrangement for a wedding or a funeral."

Thornhill knows what it is like to order flowers for a funeral, she said. On June 2, 1994, shortly after Thornhill's high school graduation, her brother, a 21-year-old airman in the U.S. Air Force, was killed in a car accident. The crash left a fellow passenger dead as well. The sudden loss of someone she thought of as a "father figure," since her parents were divorced, was difficult, Thornhill said.

Even with her interest in floral design, Thornhill majored in fashion design when she started college, then she planned to transfer to the Fashion Design School in Denton. This decision was short-lived, however, when a disappointing semester pushed her into her current direction.

Joe Paul Shirley of Shirley's Floral in San Angelo put Thornhill in touch with Jane Gloyd, horticulture professor and advisor to the student chapter to the American Institute of Floral Designers at Richland College in Dallas. "Richland's Horticulture Department came highly recommended," Thornhill said.

So in January 1995, Thornhill packed her bags and headed north. The move paid off.

Prior to the victory in the nationwide competition, Thornhill was chosen by her fellow students to become the president of the Richland Student AIFD Chapter, one of the prestigious eight national student chapters. Thornhill's friends and instructors agree that her talent, mature attitude, and friendly nature will take her places.

Classmate Dana Girard recommended Thornhill in a letter to the Texas State Florists' Association for an educational scholarship as "goal driven, turns obstacles into opportunities and personifies a positive and caring attitude."

Part-time horticulture instructor John Briscoe, one of Thornhill's teachers, praised her friendly personality and energetic nature.

Thornhill is undecided about where she wants to transfer when she finishes her associate degree in floriculture. She wants to eventually own her own flower shop and would like to make money doing what she loves.

If mailed, such notice shall be deemed to be delivered when deposited in the United States mail, addressed to the member at his address as it appears on the records of the Cooperative, with postage thereon prepaid. The failure of any member to receive notice of an annual or special meeting of the members shall not invalidate any action which may be taken by the members at any such meeting.

In case the total number of members shall exceed one thousand (1,000) then at least one hundred fifty (150) of the members present shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business at all meetings of the members. If less than a quorum is present at any meeting, a majority of those present in person may adjourn the meeting from time to time without further notice.

Section 5. Voting. Each member shall be entitled to one (1) vote and no more upon each matter submitted to a vote at a meeting of the members. At all meetings of the members at which a quorum is present all questions shall be decided by a vote of a majority of the members voting thereon in person or by mail, except as otherwise provided by law, the articles of incorporation of the Cooperative or by these bylaws. If a husband and wife hold a joint membership they shall jointly be entitled to one (1) vote and no more upon each matter submitted to a vote at a meeting of the members.

Cooke, Jackson win at District 7 4-H Horse Show

The District 7 4-H Horse Show was held on June 17 at the Nolan County Coliseum in Sweetwater. Runnels County 4-H'ers Jennifer Cooke and Jana Jackson participated in the event.

Jennifer Cooke and her horse, Tiger Mac Moore, place 5th in the Registered Gelding 5 and over class, 3rd in Western Pleasure, 3rd in Hunter Under Saddle, 8th in Hunter Horsemanship, and 3rd in Hunter Hack. Cooke acquired enough points at the district level to qualify her for competition at the State 4-H Horse Show to be held in Abilene later this summer.

Jana Jackson of Winters and her horse, Swingin' Decision, took 10th place in the Registered Gelding 5 and over class.

The District Horse Show provides 4-H'ers the opportunity to exhibit their horsemanship skills and to mingle with other 4-H'ers around the area.

Both Cooke and Jackson are to be congratulated for their hard work and success.

Club lambs sold to benefit WTRC

The sixth annual Club Lamb Sale raised $16,350 to benefit West Texas Rehabilitation Center. Breeders from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Colorado donated 129 lambs and 39 meat goats for the sale June 15 at the Wylie FFA Show Barn. The Meat Goat division was added to the annual sale this year.

The top selling club lamb was donated by Joe Harrell of Indianola, Oklahoma, and fetched $1,000, an all-time high price for a lamb at the Rehab's annual sale. The lamb was purchased by Callie Price of Roscoe. Price also purchased three other lambs during the sale.

Danny Isbell, WTRC coordinator for the event, gave credit for the success of the sale to Club Lamb chairmen John Kearney and Russell Kott, both of Sterling City, and to Joe Raff of Colorado City, Meat Goat chairman. Isbell also expressed his appreciation for the help provided by area FFA and 4-H students who assisted with the washing and shearing of the animals for the sale. Isbell added, "As always we want to thank the Wylie High School FFA for allowing us to use their excellent facility for the sale."

John Addison of Lipan and Dale Sheets of Colorado City donated their services as auctioneers for the sale.

Club lambs purchased during the sale are eligible for the WTRC Jackpot Show on December 14, 1996.

Pest Management News

by Richard Minzenmayer
Extension Agent-Ento. Runnels-Tom Green Counties

General Situation—Area crops are progressing nicely. Much of the sorghum is beginning to bloom and cotton has really responded to the cultivation and hot temperatures. Bollworm moth trap catches increased significantly this week.

Cotton—Cotton is progressing rapidly and much of it is beginning to square. Once cotton begins to square, producers should begin to monitor these fields for cotton fleahoppers. Cotton fleahoppers tend to move into cotton from weed hosts when cotton begins to square. They feed on the tender portion of the plant, including small squares. Pinhead size and smaller squares are most susceptible to damage.

Scouts are finding fleahoppers in most fields but numbers have been low. Producers are encouraged to watch closely for both fleahopper numbers and keep track of % square sets. The economic threshold for fleahoppers during the first three weeks of squaring is 20-25 fleahoppers per 100 terminals combined with less than 75 % square set.

Cutworms were found damaging plant stands this week in a few isolated areas. Cutworms will clip small seedling cotton plants off at near ground level. They are very difficult to control because they spend most of their time under the soil surface. Usually its best just to replant. I think as we see more and more minimum till farming practices these types of problems could increase because of the high crop residue on the soil surface.

Grain Sorghum—Sorghum has certainly responded well to the good moisture conditions in most areas. Greenbug infestations have remained very low but this week we have seen a slight increase in numbers. Beneficial insect numbers are very high in all sorghum fields and should keep greenbug numbers below threshold levels right now. Bollworm moth trap catches increased significantly this week and therefore, producers with blooming sorghum should monitor their sorghum weekly for headworm infestations. Bollworms are attracted to blooming sorghum.

Economic threshold for headworms in sorghum is based on the cost of control and the crop value per acre. General rule of thumb threshold based on current prices for sorghum is when a field averages 1-1.5 medium sized larvae per head.

Be sure and not trigger a field based on small larvae because the mortality of larvae in sorghum heads is very high. An unnecessary insecticide treatment would eliminate a lot of natural enemies which will potentially help later on in the season and not be cost effective.

Work is much more fun than fun.
