Commissioners haggle over EMS contract, bid specs

In a sometimes tense Runnels County Commissioners Court meeting on Tuesday, July 16, the commissioners voted to advertise for bids for emergency medical service for the county. The contract period will begin January 1, 1997, when the current contracts with Ballinger Emergency Medical Service and North Runnels EMS will expire.

Commissioners had begun working on a new contract sometime early in the summer to be prepared for the bidding process prior to budgeting for the 1996-97 fiscal year. Bob McDaniel, owner and operator of Ballinger EMS, had met with commissioners on several occasions and had expressed feelings that he thought Commissioner Keith Collom was out "to get me."

Commissioners had removed from the table and discussed a proposed new contract to be offered the successful bidder or bidders for the emergency medical service at their regular meeting on Tuesday, July 9. No action was taken at that meeting and commissioners agreed to a work session on the contract set for Monday, July 15.

At the work session on Monday, Commissioner Skipper Wheelless told the court he thought the contract asked for too much from the services and that the county might not receive any bids for the service under the contract.

Appearing at that meeting, McDaniel expressed his views on several paragraphs of the proposed contract and commented that the financial reporting requirements would probably require the hiring of another person and possibly purchasing different software for his computer to comply with the requirements.

Commissioners, who began working on the contract at the special work session at 9:30 a.m., finally adjourned at 2:30 p.m.

Reconvening at 10:00 a.m. on Tuesday, Commissioner Wheelless began the discussion of the contract by saying he was still opposed to the contract. Commissioner Ricky Strube responded that he thought the problems had been worked out on Monday.

Others interested in bidding on the emergency service contract with the county who were present at Tuesday's meeting were Larry Suit, administrator of North Runnels Hospital, which operates North Runnels EMS, and LeRoy DeAnda, who operates an emergency service in Brownwood and Coleman called MedLife.

Copies of the proposed contract were given to them and after looking it over, Suit said he did not know whether North Runnels could comply with the requirements or not because they do not keep a separate bank account for the EMS division. DeAnda said his service would be able to comply with the financial reporting requirements.

Commissioner Thurman Self made a motion that the contract be approved and the county advertise for bids on the emergency medical service. The motion was seconded by Commissioner Ricky Strube. The vote was 3-1 with Commissioner Skipper Wheelless voting against.

McDaniel, who had asked for a spot on the agenda, then began his presentation by saying he counted Commissioners Self, Wheelless, and Strube as friends. He then addressed County Judge Marilyn Egan, saying he felt the discussion of the contract on Tuesday, July 9, was in violation of the open meetings law because the discussion had not been listed on the agenda.

He then said, "If there was ever a law against plagiarism, then this court may be in jail. The contract just approved by the court is not a workable contract and it was copied from a Brown County contract!" He continued, "All the requirements are an overkill and will cause an increase in subsidy payments which in turn will increase the cost to the taxpayers. Sometimes I feel like I've been to the movies when I leave this court."

McDaniel went on to say that See "Commissioners," pg. 8

Fund helps Raul Rodriguez, Sr. following kidney surgery in Dallas

Raul Rodriguez of Winters continues to improve following kidney transplant surgery in a Dallas hospital. He received the kidney of a three-year-old accident victim on June 20. Raul hopes to return home soon.

The past two weeks Raul and his wife Lupe have stayed in an apartment connected with the hospital. Rent has been $10.00 a day, along with other expenses.

Raul's anticipated homecoming will be made much more comfortable thanks to the generosity and kindness of some caring folks. Neighbors Mary Cortez and Earnest Brown have been taking donations to help the Rodriguez family with medical and living expenses. Generous donations have made it possible for an old evaporative cooler to be replaced and a new storm door to be installed. Other money in the fund will go to the family for expenses.

Donations are still needed and may be sent to Earnest Brown, 207 Roselane, Winters, Texas 79567. For more information call the Browns at 754-5364 or Mary Cortez at 754-5511.

Mr. Rodriguez was custodian for several years at the Methodist and Lutheran churches and is now custodian at the post office. He and Lupe have children, Mary Perez of Brownwood, Raul Jr. of Winters, Johnny of Abilene, and Monica and Javier of the home.

Your contributions are sincerely appreciated.

OIL BUSINESS . . .

By Reg Boles ©1996

It is time for Oil Patch Basics, again, and this time we are going to talk about the Chemical Man. You've heard of Spider Man, Superman, and even Rubberman, but the Chemical Man?

(My apologies to the ladies—I am not trying to be chauvinistic, it's just that Chemical MAN is the term of choice regardless of gender. Personal note: These disclaimers my wife makes me put in sure ruin the flow of everything—don't you think?)

Back to work... Yes, the Chemical Man is not a man made of chemical...uh, I guess on second thought he is, but...you know what I mean. Anyway, he is the person who represents the chemical companies in the oil field.

What are chemical companies doing in the oil patch, anyway? Well, it seems that the oil, gas, and water produced from wells sometimes has some nasty by-products that create problems.

An example might be scale. Scale is stuff formed in wells and tubulars and lines and vessels that stops up the flow of things. The application of the right chemical(s) can remove the problem and possibly prevent its recurrence.

Paraffin is another example. It is kind of like oil residue or hardened hydrocarbon. It stops up wells and lines, too. It can be treated with a combination of hot water and chemicals.

So, you can see that it would be handy to have someone around to let you know what kinds of chemical treatments are available. That someone is the Chemical Man.

In most cases, he represents one main chemical company that has a wide array of products. His expertise may be limited to knowing how to deliver drums of chemical, or he may be, at the other end of the spectrum, very knowledgeable of testing and treatment design.

His help is often free, including testing and design recommendations, but, in reference to that "no free lunch" thing, it's all included in the cost of the chemical somehow. And, don't forget he represents ONE chemical company. So, he can't really recommend anything but his company's products.

A good Chemical Man is a good salesman. That often includes taking a lot of people to lunch, which can be hazardous to a Chemical Man's waistline! But, he also must be friendly and always ready to provide information and assistance at a moment's notice.

The Chemical Man doesn't have quite as demanding a schedule as some of the other oil patch folks we have discussed. But, he is often a slave to his customers. This means that, although most chemical delivery and testing can be done during daylight working hours, there is an occasional late-night call out.

The Chemical Man must be able to get along with folks even if it means going out to test some produced water "just to be sure" on a rainy Sunday afternoon during a Cowboy game. Add in some good math and record-keeping skills and you have a super Chemical Man.

Oh yeah, and there is that talent for explaining to your customer (and your boss) how you left with 6 barrels of chemical but only arrived with 5...

Hard work, dedication of pecan farmers lead to state awards

Allen Ripple of Winters and Robert Ferguson of Ballinger, employees of Woodward Farm, attended the 75th annual Texas Pecan Growers Association convention July 14-17, 1996, receiving state pecan awards. The convention was held in Seguin, pecan capital of Texas and home of the largest pecan.

In the commercial division, Woodward Farm placed second for their Western variety and third for Shoshoni. The pecans had previously won awards in the county and district shows advancing to the state competition.

Registration began Sunday, July 14, at the Guadalupe County Coliseum and was followed by the opening of a trade show and announcement of state pecan winners.

Classroom instruction kicked off Monday morning with attendees touring "Sunshine Country," a nut shelling plant in Selma, during the afternoon. Also visited was Pape Pecan House in Seguin where a collection of over 2,000 nutcrackers was viewed. A barbecue meal was held in Starcke Park later that evening.

Tuesday's agenda included a full day of instruction. An auction benefiting pecan research and a prime rib supper was enjoyed at Nolte Island.

The program concluded at noon Wednesday with Ripple and Ferguson each earning five (5) Continuing Education Units (CEUs) to be applied towards the renewal of their private applicator's license.

Woodward Farm is owned by Lewis O. Woodward Jr. of Odessa and is located near the Colorado River in Ballinger with approximately 2,000 trees planted on 70 acres of land.

Crews News by Hilda Kurtz

People, like pins, are useless when they lose their heads.

Winnie Fred Worthington of California died Friday. She was born in the Crews community and lived there before moving to California. She was buried Tuesday in California. She is survived by a brother, Olred Fuller, of Coleman. Our sympathy to the Fuller and Worthington families.

From The Well

by Pastor Jim Hanson

This past week St. John's was crawling (I should say — running) with kids. All sizes, shapes, and colors. Every morning they came at 8:30 a.m. We met at the flag pole, where we pledged allegiance to the flag, sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee," and prayed for our country, our community, and our church.

Then, off to the sanctuary for opening exercises. Announcements. Puppets to illustrate the lesson. The reading of the lesson. And singing songs. Praise songs. Fun songs like "All God's Critters Got a Place In The Choir," often led by some of the children. Action songs, with hand and arm motions. Prayers. Offerings. And then off to the stations — Bible story time, crafts, singing, and refreshments. Especially refreshments. Cookies, crackers, sandwiches, Kool-Aid. No "leftovers" for sure. And then closing — review of the day, more songs, prayer, and dismissal.

I don't know how long the churches have been doing Vacation Bible School. I know for sure it has been going on all my life. I can remember myself as a puny little kid sitting in a church on a weekday morning, even before I could read, clutching my Bible and listening to someone much bigger tell me stories from it. I can remember, as I grew older, the importance of having at least one friend in my class. I remember the refreshments, only in those days it was nectar and not Kool-Aid, and there were no "store-bought" cookies — just homemade. We didn't have classrooms. Each of us were gathered into our classes and distributed throughout the sanctuary. Crafts were mostly coloring, cut-out, and paste, of the scenes from the story. Almost like doing paper dolls. Only the characters were Bible heroes and heroines.

I remember one summer, when at age nineteen, I was to teach a Vacation Bible School in a one-room school house out in the open country of rural southern Minnesota. There was no running water, just a pump and a well. Toilet facilities were an outhouse with path. It was mid-June, and the mosquitoes were in full bloom.

My class consisted of nineteen students. The youngest was 3 and not yet toilet-trained. The oldest was 16 and could not read a word. I had no car. I was staying with a farm family and I walked the mile to the school house. When, on that first day, the last parent to come dropped off her young 'uns, I felt completely abandoned. My brother Paul, seven years older, had talked me into this, and I felt trapped.

The school ran from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. We each brought our own lunch. I had no help — no one to lift part of the load anytime. By the end of the first day I had exhausted all of my material for the whole week! The kids were "bored." I was pooped. If I would have had a car, I would have been long gone. "So long it's been good to know ya" would have been my song. I was discouraged, depleted, and depressed.

After the kids had all gone home, and I was sitting in that room alone — no air conditioning and little ventilation, I laid my head down on the table and just "gave up." I prayed, "God, I've had it. I can't do it. I don't know what to do. What can I do?" After about twenty minutes of that, I started to sing. All by myself. Hymns and songs to God. And, the miracle of faith happened. The power of the Spirit came. And from that time on, the Vacation Bible School took off and me with it. It was a great week — I can still remember it.

Since that time I have discovered that "first days of Bible School" are almost all like that. And, it's after we've bottomed out and don't know what to do — and then pray out of our emptiness that God comes in. Takes over. And we learn again, "Lo I am with you always," the great promise of the Lord. Especially when we "let the children come unto me, for to such belongs the Kingdom of God." Amen.

To keep the heart unwrinkled, to be hopeful, kindly, cheerful, reverent—that is to triumph over old age.

—Thomas Bailey Aldrich

Academy of Freedom

Members of the Runnels County Historical Commission met Saturday, July 20, at Underwood's Cafeteria in Brownwood for lunch and a short business meeting, followed by a tour of the Douglas MacArthur Academy of Freedom.

There is no admission fee for regularly scheduled tours, which require about an hour, but the complexity of the academy's message requires that visitors be escorted by trained guides who are on the staff or who are advanced students in the Academy of Freedom program.

The inception of the Douglas MacArthur Academy of Freedom came from the mind and heart of Dr. Guy Newman, who was then president of the university. From his youth he had desired to make some contribution to the greatest republic the world has ever known, and one that had given him the opportunity, as well as other young people, to achieve something worthy of mention.

The academy, dedicated in 1969, rapidly gained the hearts of freedom loving Americans and people from around the world. Each year, it draws many visitors who are seeking to relive the story of man's quest for freedom.

Following an interview with General MacArthur on April 12, 1962, Dr. Newman told the general of the plans to use Old Main on the Daniel Baker campus, a former Presbyterian college, united with Howard Payne in 1952 by action of the boards of both colleges.

Visitors enter the beautifully renovated building from the front, where stands a statue of General MacArthur. We assembled as a tour group in the three-story Hall of Christian Civilization, where the walls are ablaze from the Wall of Light with the largest mural in Texas, a pictorial representation of man's relationship with God. It begins with the creation of man and shows his progress through the ages.

It is said that 1,100 pounds of paint was used by the artist in creating the story of mankind. Next we entered the Mediterranean Hall, replete with Egyptian statuary. These statues were covered with glue and then sandblasted to achieve the look of ancient figures. A facsimile of the famed Rosetta Stone, and a scale replica of the Parthenon also represented this first great civilization.

The Magna Carta Hall was next, a re-creation of a medieval European castle great hall with 17th century weapons, armor and furnishings dominated with a portrayal of the signing of the Magna Carta.

Independence Hall followed, a copy of the Philadelphia original with its peg floor, and twin marble fireplaces. We sat in the Windsor chairs at small tables covered with heavy green cloths that hung to the floor. Long table cloths were used to keep the men's legs from getting cold as they wore silk stockings and short breeches buckled below the knee. In the summer they were protection from the flies and mosquitoes.

Appointments on the table were pewter ink wells and quill writing pens.

Floor-to-ceiling maps of the Pacific Theatre of War in Constitution Hall traced the activity of our troops in that area. We also heard the story narrated. In the MacArthur Room, we examined the original memorabilia of the great soldier-statesman. Many of these keepsakes had been contributed by his wife and included a number of his caps, books, and pipes.

The theme of the Freedom Academy program is built around MacArthur's address to the young men at West Point. "Duty, honor, country...these three hallowed words reverently dictate what you ought to be, what you can be, and what you will be." Those making the tour were Nina Hale, Nancy Thompson, Mary M. Leathers, Charlsie Poe, Neuman Smith, Alton O'Neal, John Hancock, and Anthony Lange.

CJB PAT E PCA, EXHIBITED BY BRANDON PRITCHARD (far right), wins Reserve Grand Champion Chiangus Female in Division 2 of the 1996 AJCA National Junior Heifer Show in Lawton, Oklahoma. The Chiangus was also a Division IV Chapter and Class 26 Winner.

Brandon Pritchard exhibits Junior National Champ

American Junior Chianina Association (AJCA) members from across the nation gathered in Lawton, Oklahoma, at the Great Plains Fairgrounds for the 19th AJCA National Junior Heifer Show, June 24-29.

The annual summer event is much more than a Chi heifer show. AJCA members from 16 states competed in several contests, including judging, obstacle course, salesmanship, showmanship, and public speaking. Team events included a quiz bowl and a fitting contest. One hundred and four exhibitors were aiming for the top award — the All-Around Champion.

The All-Around Champion is named each year after tabulating points from contests and the show ring. Jamie Walker of Newcastle, Oklahoma, was named the 1996 All-Around Champion. Walker received a Chiangus heifer calf donated by MGM Ranch, Ardmore, Oklahoma, as a result of capturing the most points throughout the week.

The National Junior Heifer Show was the culmination of this week-long learning experience. Steve Reimer of Chamberlain, South Dakota, evaluated 146 entries in the Junior National Heifer Show, June 29. Junior exhibitors competed for the championship titles in the two division show: Division 1 - Chianina, Chimaine, Chiford, and Chiangus-cross and Division 2 - Chiangus.

Brandon Pritchard of Crawford, Texas, made his rookie appearance at this AJCA Junior National Show memorable by leading out the reserve grand champion Chiangus female. His purebred Chiangus heifer, CJB Pat E PCA, was sired by CJB Flash PCA and is out of CJB Arlena PCA. The February 1995 female came from division IV.

Brandon is the son of Larry and Katherine Pritchard. His grandparents are Jack and Lucille Pritchard of Winters, Texas, and Otto Clements of Belleville, Illinois.
