GIVE ME A "W"—

'W' has been constructed as part of the school landscaping project currently underway. The concrete st built by Blas Lugo, shown here, is located on the lawn south of the cafeteria and is comprised of a 16' x 16' square surrounding a 12' x 11' "W" that graduates from 2'4" at the back to 8" at the front. Flowers will be planted around the "W".

Enterprise office to close Friday

The Winters Enterprise will be closed Friday, July 3, in observance of the Independence Day holiday.

Although general news and retail advertising are not due in our office until noon on the following Monday, we would sincerely appreciate any early submittals.

The management and staff of The Winters Enterprise hope that you have a safe and enjoyable Fourth of July! If traveling, take extra caution and remain alert at all times.

Be careful with fireworks!

While celebrating America's Independence this weekend, please remember to use extreme caution with all fireworks.

Winters Volunteer Fire Department Chief Jack Davis, Jr., reminds everyone that using fireworks inside the city limits is illegal, and that all fireworks pose a threat of fire if not supervised carefully.

"What little rain we had a few weeks ago was just enough to get the grasses up to a dangerous height and condition," said Davis. "Please be careful if you use fireworks."

Assembly of God to host special Independence Day service honoring all military personnel

Pastor Robert Jones of Winters personnel will be honored. Assembly of God Church invites everyone for a special message of hope and commitment to God and country Sunday, July 5, at 11:00

Hubbard to attend the '98 Future Homemakers of America National Leadership Conference the 300 Texas delegates attending the 1998 Future Homemakers of America National Leadership Conference, July 4-9, 1998, in New Orleans, Louisiana.

Representing more than 27,000 members of the Texas Association, she will be among approximately 4,900 delegates throughout the nation attending the four-day conference.

The youth developed theme, national "Unmask Your Potential," will be carried out as members are encouraged to unmask the talents that lie within each of them by exploring career options, addressing their community needs, and focusing on family relations. Members will be given the opportunity to learn how to unmask the potential within themselves through active involvement in Mandi Hubbard, senior at Win- FHA/HERO programs, especially enty-one (71) students from Texas Connection.

Activities include STAR (Students Taking Action For Recognition) events, inspiring

motivational speakers, updates on national programs, elections of the 1998-'99 officers, of ficer training, and a themed celebration at the conclusion of the meeting. Texas members will develop a plan of action for the state and implement it when returning to school in the fall.

Students will also participate in competitive events during the week, as well as, share success stories from Texas chapters. Sevters High School, will be one of the new national program, Career will participate in the STAR events during the week and others will share success stories from Texas chapters.

> Mandi is the daughter of Kay Sharpes of Winters and Hurby Hubbard of Early. Mandi attended this conference last year as a STAR event participant and received a silver medal. In February of this year, Mandi was elected Region II President of the Texas Association, Future Homemakers of America. She will be presiding over a 53-county area of Texas during the 1998-1999 school year. Mandi's advisor is Lori Smith.

> Future Homemakers of America is the only vocational organization that has the family as its central focus and is an integral part of the home economics curriculum.

Oil Bidness

By Reg Boles ©1998

As if this oil price swoon wasn't weighing heavy enough on our minds, here is something else to consider: Saddam Hussein is benefiting from our tough times. "Clarify yourself!," you're shouting. OK, OK, keep it down. Here's the deal... It seems that the current oil price scenario may be just what the Dr. ordered for Iraq and its infamous leader. There seems to be several positive effects for Hussein, and some are a little less obvious to the casual observer.

Let's review a few things. You may recall that the U.N. allows Iraq to sell some oil to provide "humanitarian aid" for the citizens of their country. It is now plain that any funds making their way into Iraq can be used for any purposes the big S.H. deems necessary. An interesting aspect of the "oil for aid" agreement is that it allows a certain amount of dollars to be raised and provides no limit on volume of oil sold to garner that particular amount. This subtle fact has an unfortunate effect. As oil prices fall, more volume must be sold to generate the allowed net proceeds. This, in of oil is put on the market. Knowing this, then, how does turn, puts more downward pressure on prices as a greater volume

it help Saddam Hussein? Consider that Iraq can now squeeze its neighbors, who depend on oil revenue for most of their national budgets, by dumping oil on the market. This creates significant leverage for a very bad guy to pressure his fellow Arabs to drop U.N. sanctions, including weapons inspections.

Further consider that Iraq is the only country in the world that can guarantee some minimum oil revenue regardless of oil price. To make matters worse, the U.N. just doubled the amount of revenue that Iraq will be allowed to raise in late 1998 and 1999. The result is that Iraq will be able to produce at capacity very soon, with or without the lifting of sanctions.

The Oil and Gas Journal first surfaced this idea, and they see Saddam Hussein as laughing at the rest of the world which suffers with lower oil price.

Those of us who can't stomach having someone of his ilk laughing, let alone laughing at us, hope for rationality to return to the oil markets. If someone will only notice the thin line between supply and demand, the price will work back up to where the market indicated it should be as recently as last Christmas.

MEMBER

Pastor Jim Hanson

There are times when I would like to rip my telephone off the wall and trash it. I can't believe that Alexander Graham Bell ever conceived that his invention would be used for tele-marketing. And, these intruders into the sanctity and silence of my home have no sense when it comes to timing. They always call when I'm busy with something, or just sat up to the table for a meal. By the time they are done, I have a belly-full and a bellyache.

But, there are other times...times when I am just so grateful for the telephone. To hear the sound of an old friend. Not too long ago, I had an hour and a half conversation from a college classmate, also a Seminary school mate. We "double-dated" when I first started courting Ramona. He lives in Canada. So good to be touched by the sound of a voice that cares enough to call.

And, I was really surprised the other day. It was just after I had written the column in which I had referred to "Onward Christian Soldiers" as one of my favorite hymns. Well, the phone rang and I picked it up to hear a band playing this very hymn. Like a march. Like John Phillip Sousa would have done it. The one who wrote "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Anyway, about half way through I heard this woman's voice saying—after I had yelled "Hello" into the phone—"Oh phooey, I was hoping you weren't at home and I could put it on your answering machine." After a few pleasant exchanges, it turned out that Opal, Opal Hunt from Bradshaw, had decided to let me know that she was in complete agreement with me and that "Onward Christian Soldiers" was one of her favorite hymns. And so she had hunted up one of her recordings and played it over the phone. It was delightful. So much so that the very next time we drove home from Abilene, Ramona and I stopped in at her store. We formed a circle and all three sang, with gusto, "Onward Christian Soldiers." What fun!

Of course we had to stay a spell. And hear about some of the "going's on" in her life. Drink a bottle of soda pop. And just enjoy Opal. And her store.

She has a gift. She opens her store —not to get you to buy a thing. She just opens her heart to you, and opens up for you a trip back into your childhood. (If you are sixty or more, that is.) Every time I go in there, seeing the stuff on the shelves brings up memories from my well. Our past. World War II stuff, pictures of men in uniform, and stories to go with each picture. I always leave her and her store renewed and refreshed by our journey back into the 30's, 40's, and 50's. And some even before I was born.

But that wasn't all. That same day, after we came home, there was a message on our answering machine. Another hymn. Only this time it wasn't the sound of a marching band. Rather it was the singing voices of our grandson Timmy and his sister Lyndi, ages 3-1/2 and 2. They were singing another favorite of mine..."Jesus Loves Me." With great enthusiasm! It was such fun to hear them. We didn't erase the tape for several days, and ever so often we'd punch the button and hear the children sing. It brought up memories from my childhood. It was the first song I ever learned to sing. And, the heart of the Christian message. Karl Barth, a world famous theologian who brought a strong voice against Nazi Germany by forming a Christian resistance movement in the Churches, was once asked what was the basic message of the Christian Church. His answer "That's simple. Jesus loves me this I know, for the Bible tells me so."

A number of year's back the telephone companies ran an ad. It pictured a dog sitting and listening to the sound coming from a big speaker. The caption read, "The Sound of His Master's Voice." There are many times when the voice I hear on the telephone are not the Master's voice. But this past week there were two times when He communicated a message to me over the phone, one by a 96 year old dear friend and another by a couple of grandbabies ages 2 and 3-1/2. Guess we'll have to keep our telephone. Two of these good messages

The 72-page guide will help you identify 135 different trees found in the eastern and central U.S.

Well-known trees are included: oaks, maples, spruces, and pines. Also species such as horsechestnut and mockernut hickory, sassafras and shadbush, persimmon and pawpaw and pagodatree and pecan.

Dozens of drawings illustrate the trees' leaves or needles and their acorns, berries, seed pods, cones, etc. "What Tree Is That?" is organized to make it easy to identify trees in a simple step-bystep fashion.

"Helping people enjoy and appreciate trees is central to the educational mission of the Arbor Day Foundation," John Rosenow, the Foundation's president, said. "Being able to identify trees is important to knowing how to care for them and how to plant the right tree in the right place."

The scene of action

Once when they were doing night flying, touch-and-go landings and an occasional full stop and take off down near the Florida Keys, at a landing strip with no control tower, the pilot called Joe up front to the cockpit.

He said, "The elevator tried to lock down with a lot of force on the flight column and I cann't push it up or down." He made a full stop landing.Joe got out with a flashlight and went to the tail and found a 12x3 lead bar wedged in the right hinge of the elevator. When they got back to Hendrick, Joe turned it over to the line chief. It could have dropped into the hinge or been sabotaged or several other things."

Joe was pre-flighting his plane next to field #12 and the engine caught fire. It was a small fire at first and the engineer shut off #1 and #2 engines and got the onboard fire extinguisher, but it didn't put out the fire. He ran to the edge of the parking ramp and got a large CO² extinguisher on wheels and it was empty. By the time the crash trucks arrived, the fire was out of have had a good time. They hadn't control. When it burned back to the radio room, flares started going up in the air.

Joe retrieved one of the para- co-pilot seat. Joe homed in the chutes from where it landed about 100 yards from the plane, and it was stamped "Made in Japan." He kept it as a souvenir for a long time. The Japanese got a plane back to Hendricks. without firing a shot.

There was a B26 base just a little out of flight pattern that lost and had been assigned as crew 30% of their flying personnel a chief on two old battle scarred Davis airfoil wingtips were modified by adding 3 inches to each wingtip. This cut the accident rate considerably.

The only local man that Joe knew was Ernal Bridwell. He came through as a student. He is a brother of Stella Moore and uncle of Ellis Moore. Ernal stayed in service and retired in Florida, in ill health but among the living.

In the latter part of 1942, Joe cut across-country, destination San Angelo, to deliver parts for a plane down for repairs. "We landed at San Angelo and I had planned on getting to Winters and back before takeoff time the nest morning. Instead, we taxied up in front of the control tower with engines still running and unloaded the (jug) cylinder for the disabled plane and headed for Fort Worth. One of the pilots had a girlfriend there, and there were about four pilots," Joe said.

As they flew across south of Winters, Joe got to see the town anyway. He stayed on the field that night, and the pilots must completely sobered up by takeoff time, and after they got in the air, they asked me to climb in the radio compass on New Orleans and flew to the panhandle of Florida. One of the pilots then took over and everyone made it

In midsummer 1943, Joe had just gotten back from furlough month until Senator Claude Pep- planes from the Pacific and the per grounded the planes and the pilots did not like to fly on them.

As a training field regulation to draw flying pay, they had to get in 20 hours of flying time a month, and the month was almost gone. So Joe went in a later model plane as assistant engineer. A Staff Sergeant went as engineer, and a Private went as student engineer. They got to 5,000 feet when the #1 engine caught fire.

They got the fire put out and it caught fire again. It was put out again, and they feathered the propeller. They headed back to the field for an emergency landing. They were almost at touchdown when the tower radioed for us to go around.

The pilot hit the power and the #2 engine coughed and they hit the grass between the ramp and runway. It took the landing gear off. They were headed toward the tower, but when they hit the ramp and taxi strip along the flight line where the planes were parked, they straightened up and went about 3/4 to a mile on the taxi strip behind the parked planes and slid backward off the end of the ramp beside a sign that said, "Turn tail off the ramp and run up engines." At that point the taxi strip ended and they went out onto the run-

Joe said, "It was a good crash landing because we all walked away from it. I injured my left shoulder on an oxygen outlet, but not seriously. The plane was totaled. The Staff Sergeant and student engineer both quit flying and went to production line maintenance. We all came out real lucky!"

STILL HONEYMOONING after almost 74 years are Clyde and Thelma Gabbert of Ballinger who recently made a return trip to The Rock Hotel for lunch. The Gabberts were married December 22, 1924 in Ballinger and spent their wedding night at The Rock Hotel in Winters.

Couple returns to The Rock Hotel with fond memories

by Jean Boles

Thelma Gabbert returned to the Rock Hotel of Winters.

The Gabberts' recent visit was two-fold: they came to enjoy a delicious fundraising luncheon hosted by directors of the Rock Hotel and Friends of the Museum, and to reminisce about a special night long ago.

Clyde and Thelma were married on December 22, 1924, at the Ballinger Courthouse. They said they were supposed to have been wed at Clyde's aunt's house in Wingate but the pastor didn't

"One of those mix-ups in communication," said Clyde. "But everything worked out just fine."

The new Mr. and Mrs. Gabbert drove all the way back to Winters and decided to spend their wedding night at the impressive Rock

At that time, a room cost about $3.00, according to Clyde. "It was a first-class hotel for that day and

When questioned about details of the hotel, Clyde just grinned

After only 73 years, Clyde and and said, "I was too excited to notice what else was going on.'

Born July 8, 1905 in Hunt County, Thelma met Clyde, who was from Coleman County, when they both attended school at Norton in 1921. Clyde was born November 18, 1906.

"Clyde sat in front of me and was always asking me question about our schoolwork. He should have been asking me out to dinner instead of a page number,' quipped Thelma.

They "courted" about three months before getting married and endured some kidding about Clyde being younger than his

With a sparkle in her eyes Thelma is quick to respond that Clyde married an "older woman" because "we're smarter and prettier - and still are."

The Gabberts have lived in Ballinger for the past fifty years. and say they look forward to coming back to The Rock Hotel which has undergone extensive renovations and remodeling to become a premiere landmark for Winters.

DeWitt recommended that the council pursue other options such Executor is in Winters, Runnels County, Texas, and the post office as allowing the project for local system address is: 12602 State Highway 158, bidding.

> sole bid and will consider other possibilities.

Hassan asked the three TxDOT engineers present about the possibility of building a regional airport in this area. Tommy Robinson and DeWitt both stated that it would be a good idea, and mentioned that San Angelo was already discussing the possibilities. No further action was taken. Scott Hay, project engineer with Hibbs & Todd, spoke about the recent wastewater capital improvements projects. He also stated that the next phase of the wastewater projects will be to replace some of the old sewer lines in town that were outdated and taking in groundwater.

John Voller then reported on his inspection that day of the water towers and that everything is satisfactory.

Tim Glendening elaborated on the $1 million plus grants that Winters has received for numerous infrastructure improvements such as the lake dam project, the water and sewer lines that have been installed, the wastewater ' treatment plant improvements and the planning grant. He then spoke about the current application in the works which is $200,000 for home improvements for the low income elderly.

City Manager Hassan mentioned to the council that three councilmen are presently appointed to the Housing Finance Corporation. Because this constitutes a quorum of the city council, one member must resign from the HFC board. Council members accepted the resignation of Alderman Tommy Russell from the HFC board, and the appointment of Doug Wheat to take his place.

The council voted to set a budget workshop for July 13 at 6:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers.

Council members heard a request from Associated Beef City to lower their contract price due to the fact they were not using the minimum usage of 40,000 gallons per day for a total of 1,200,000 gallons per month as outlined in their contract with the city. This request was denied.

Other items discussed with no action taken were as follows:

•a new utility billing computer

·annexation of various proper-Council members rejected the ties, some on Main street placing the Main Street Program on a back burner for later discussion ·deed approval for the old holding pond east of town.

Pest Management News

By Richard Minzenmayer, Extension Agent-Entomology (PM)

GENERAL SITUATION— Another record HOT, DRY, WINDY week. Area crops are in need of cooler temperatures and RAIN.

Runnels County has been very fortunate over the past several weeks with the rains it has received, but is still in need of rain. Tom Green County crops are really suffering from drought.

Many producers have plowed up their drought-out grain sorghum and have planted cotton behind it.

Cotton ranges in growth stages from cotyledons to matchhead square stage. The majority of the cotton will begin squaring around June 26.

GRAIN SORGHUM—Believe it or not, there is a few grain sorghum fields in Runnels County which have some potential for near average yields (if it gets one more rain).

In checking some of these fields, I found some to have economic infestations of headworms.

With current prices at around $4.10 per hundred weight and yields generally well below average, it's going to be difficult to economically justify spraying headworm infestations until the infestation has reached an average of 3 to 4 one-half inch or large headworms per head and moisture conditions improve significantly.

Another problem in this scenario is the fact that many fields are not uniform in maturity. You have grain sorghum plants in the 3 leaf stage, boot stage, blooming stage, and making grain all in the same field. Headworms are easily found in these heads making grain, but these heads are only contributing a portion of total yield potential.

In my opinion, to justify an insectide treatment for headworms at this time, you need to (1) average 3 to 4 [1/2 or larger] headworms/head, (2) have a field which is uniform in maturity, and (3) be one of the lucky ones who received 4 to 5 inches of rain a week or so ago and is expecting another good rain within the next week or so.

Insecticides labeled for headworm control are Baythroid®, Asana XL®, Karate®, Sevin XLR®, and Lannate®.

COTTON—Cotton is progressing rapidly and many producers were spraying Round Up Ready cotton around June 19. Remember you have a very narrow window of opportunity to spray it with Round Up without affecting your yield. Drought is going to affect it without any

We continue to get questions concerning seedling emergence over an extended period of time.

Due to confounding of many factors, it is hard to determine whether seed quality is an issue or whether the drought conditions and irrigation amounts are not to blame. Some fields will have largely up to 5- to 6-leaf cotton, with smaller plants that in the the cotyledon stage continuing to

Under the temperature conditions we have been experiencing, we should see cotton to a full stand in at least 7 days. Seedlings with poor vigor cannot get the primary root through the yellow herbicide layer and eventually get infected by seedling disease. Disease ultimately girdles the taproot, cutting the water supply to the plant completely off, and the seedling then desiccates from the 100 plus degree heat. The reason for the lack of vigor in such a large percent of the seedlings is unclear.

Boll weevil numbers remain very low and to date only approximately 200 acres have been sprayed early season for overwintered boll weevils. This is wonderful. BWE personnel are working hard to get all the traps up and functioning. These traps will help to finish off the boll weevil in Concho Valley once and for good.

Beet armyworm infestations remain very spotty and populations remain very low at this time. Larval mortality has remained driving while license suspended high and damage has been minimal. As the plant canopy increases in size, this could change so producers are encouraged to scout regularly.

Cotton fleahoppers can be found in some fields but populations remain low. Square sets are in the 85% to 95% range right now, and cotton is progessing

Cotton aphids are generally low in most fields. There are a few fields in the Wall community where infestations are increasing and should be monitored closely. Natural enemies are moving in and may very well reduce aphid numbers to low levels.

The information below is taken from reports on file with the Winters Police Department. Some of the information is provided to police by citizens, and in some cases, police have not finished investigating the reports. These reports make up a small percentage of the total calls the Department receives and responds to each week. Winters Police Department reports received and/or investigated from Sunday, June 21, 1998, through Saturday, June 27, 1998. Winters Police Officers: • arrested Henry Torres Jr., 36, of Austin, after a traffic stop, for a felony warrant out of Lubbock County. • issued a citation to Shannon Oswalt, 29, of Winters, for animals at large.

• issued a citation to John Sanford Thralls, 30, of Winters, for animals at large.

• received a report of criminal mischief in the 700 block of State. The Winters Police Department would like to remind anyone interested in attending the Winters Citizens Police Academy that they have until July 17 to apply. Applications may be picked up at City Hall or the Winters Police Department. There is no charge to anyone attending. Runnels County Crimestoppers offers a cash reward for information which leads to the grand jury indictment or conviction of offenders and the caller does not have to give his or her name. To give a Crimestopper's tip, call your local law
