only of his own congregation, but of all the people in Ballinger, irrespective of church affiliations, and of all this part of West Texas as well. Jno. Q. McAdams Writes Editor a Birthday Letter

Jno. Q. McAdams, president of the Winters State Bank, "has a way" of making his friends appreciate him, not simply as a banker, but in the higher social relations of life.

For some years it has been Mr. McAdams' habit to write this editor a "friendship letter" on our birthday. The editor is not like it is sometimes said of women, that a woman never has a birthday after she is thirty. To us birthdays continue to come with increasing regularity. Last week we had such an annual occasion. Letters and cards came from many of our friends here and there, which we appreciate more than words can express.

But especially do we appreciate this annual message from our good friend, Mr. McAdams, and his bank associates. They are a "royal group," and we always enjoy this letter from them. Really, if we can remain "sound in mind and members" we are willing to continue to receive them indefinitely. The

GOOD HAND FOR BIG JOB

It is quite appropriate that L. T. Youngblood, Coke County banker, should be the head of the Upper Colorado River Authority.

The big work of this group is established in the authorization for a dam on the North Concho River and federal approval of a still greater project in Coke and Runnels Counties. Mr. Youngblood has been with the Authority from the first, is in sympathy with the purposes of flood control and irrigation, and has been a consistent developer of the resources of this section. A farmer himself over many years past, he is the sort who knows the needs and limits of West Texas agriculture.

He takes charge of one of the major postwar plans for this section. He has the confidence not only of his own county but outside its contiguous neighbors.

The men who have given of their time, efforts and own expenses—the directors never have charged per diem despite authorization to do so—deserve the commendation of the people of this section for their contributions and the spirit in which they have worked.

Much credit, too, goes to the Board of City Development here, to Sen. Penrose B. Metcalfe who kept the tax remission status when other such state grants were being refused on newer projects, and to the individuals not directly concerned who recognize that "As goes West Texas water, so goes West Texas."

letter follows:

Mr. D. M. West,
Bronte, Texas.
Dear Mr. West:

It's your birthday. This is our greeting, an attempt to give expression to our appreciation for your friendship and for your wholesome influence toward the betterment of the community in which you live.

Time was, "in the good old days," when men and women had leisure to visit with friends.

SIXTH GRADERS WRITE SOME VERSES

Mrs. Permelia Reed, teacher of the Sixth Grade in the Bronte schools, had some of her pupils to write some verses just before school closed. Two of the youngsters' verses were submitted for publication and they appear below. A good effort indeed for children their age.

Summer Time

Summer time will soon be here,
The happiest time of all the year.
And now since school is almost out,
I'm so happy I could shout.

At school we'll soon be through with test.
And then there will be some time to rest.
Then we can enjoy the summer in peace.
When from school we get that release.

In summer when the flowers are blooming
and the grass is green,
You can ignore detention and be a little mean.
Of course you don't need to do this,
You can be nice and still not a thing you'd miss.

Doyle Adair

He Is In The Navy Now

He is in the Navy air force.
But he is taking a gunner's course.
He may go over the ocean in a plane,
But may come walking back with a cane.

If he has his leg shot off,
He may get to take it soft.
But I really hope to say,
I wish we did not have a war.
So he would not have a scar.

Mrs. John Hood Is Laid to Rest at Wilmeth Thursday

Funeral services for Mrs. John J. Hood were held last Thursday afternoon at five o'clock at the Wilmeth Baptist church with the Rev. C. R. Blake of Bronte officiating assisted by Elder Smith Byrd also of Bronte. Burial was in the Wilmeth cemetery.

Mrs. Hood was born on November 8, 1881 in Limestone county and passed away last Wednesday afternoon at five thirty o'clock in a San Angelo hospital to which she had been admitted some hours earlier. She had been in failing health for the past year. Even though her health had been somewhat impaired for a longer period of time, no alarm had been felt over her condition until a few months ago. A long time resident of the Wilmeth community, she had been making her home with a daughter, Mrs. W. S. Proctor near Bronte for some time. It was on March 29, 1943 that her husband passed away. He was an active land owner and stock farmer of the Wilmeth community and this esteemed couple with their family held a long time active participation in the religious and community affairs of this section. The family came to Runnels county from Limestone county in 1906. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hood were active members of the Missionary Baptist church and held membership with the Wilmeth church body.

Survivors include one daughter, Mrs. W. S. Proctor and a son, A. J. Hood of Portland, Oregon; a sister, Mrs. Sid Oliver of Big Spring and an only brother, Frank Berryman of Wilmeth; four grandsons, Merle Proctor of Bronte, Sgt. Gerald Proctor stationed at the San Angelo Army Air Field, Johnny and Fred Allen Hood, both serving overseas; two granddaughters, Rita Mae and Jenell Hood both of Winters.

Pallbearers were Elmer Bryan, Ralph Burns, Carl Harkins, Jim Campbell, Chester Busher and L. B. Hensley.

"That Grass is our Living, Son!"

WHAT THIS RANCHER SAYS to his son is very true. Grass does provide their living... and a good part of the living for all of us here in America. More than half a billion acres of the United States—roughly, 50% of all our farm and ranch lands—is in grass. "Should its harvest fail for a single year," said John James Ingalls, "famine would depopulate the world."

Grass is the preserver of much of our agricultural wealth and the basic raw material of many of our necessities. It is a major crop. And more than that, it's nature's way of transferring health-building materials... vitamins, minerals, and other essential elements... from the soil into the foods that nourish the nation. Grass must pass through livestock to be converted into products useful to man.

So let's give our pastures, meadows and range lands the care they deserve. Grass on your steeper slopes should never be broken. In the long run, it is your most profitable crop on hillsides because it controls erosion by tying down your top soil and reduces evaporation of essential moisture. Your State Agricultural Experiment Station will tell you of new and improved varieties of grass you might try to your profit, and they will also advise you about reseeding, lime, and fertilizer. And never overlook this important rule of grass care—don't overgraze!

We at Swift & Company are marketing the products of your grass, and so we say with you, "Grass is our living, too!"

The uses for black wool are limited so care must be exercised to keep it properly sorted in the wool clip. However, manufacturers do weave it into broadcloth. And—believe it or not—the wool from the black sheep in the flock becomes clothing for the clergy.

IT'S 2,049 MILES FROM HEREFORD, TEXAS, TO HARTFORD, CONN.

To the west of the Mississippi is produced two-thirds of the nation's meat. To the east live more than two-thirds of all Americans.

Under these conditions either livestock or fresh meat must be transported from the West to the East, and as we know, it has been found to be more economical to slaughter the animals in central plants in surplus producing sections, save the by-products, then transport the meat in refrigerator cars to the consuming sections, than to ship the live animals.

To have a market for livestock, we must find a market for meat. The job of nation-wide meat packers is to bridge the gap, an average of more than a thousand miles, made up in part from such trips as Boise, Idaho, to Boston; from Denver to Detroit; from Paducah to Pittsburgh; and from Hereford, Texas, to Hartford, Connecticut. It is necessary to have a large organization with proper facilities to handle efficiently nation-wide distribution to the thousands of consuming centers of America.

This is the last page of information that we will issue until September. But please don't let the recess keep you from writing us when we can be of help to you. Better still, come and see us in Swift & Company's office building at the Union Stock Yards, in Chicago.

Meet Bill Reneker, Swift's Head Hog Buyer

If you have marketed hogs since 1907, chances are that Bill Reneker bought some of them for he has bought more than 30 million for Swift's... some of them in Western Canada where he was buyer from 1916 to 1923, and the rest in the U. S. A. He became head hog buyer for Swift & Company in 1932.

When not buying hogs, Bill Reneker likes to judge them in the show ring. Right now he's booked until next September to judge at several shows and hog meetings.

An interest in hogs comes to Bill naturally. His father was a livestock salesman and his grandfather conducted a commission business in Pittsburgh as far back as 1836. His hobby is sharing his vast knowledge of hogs with farm boys and girls.

If you should see this big, friendly man in a show ring, don't hesitate to get acquainted with him.

A MESSAGE TO MOTHER

(Mrs. Mae Brock of San Angelo, mother of Howard Brock who is in the service, sent the lines below for last week's issue, but the letter came too late.)

Back in the year of 1896 God opened the Portals of Heaven
And as His eyes did take in the view
He saw a flower spring forth anew
And mature into a lovely creature that was you.

Years ago sometime
God gave you life from which came mine
But as God had planned, we aged with time
But to me you're just as dear, O Mother of mine.

As from the adolescent age I grew
I learned of things from which wars do brew
And then to the tropics I came anew
To fight for you, Mother, just for you.

But as we live we learn of things
That may tomorrow sorrow bring
Although the gunfire in my ears may ring
To memories of you, I will ever cling.

Aa I gaze back into days of old
I dream of joy, the like never told
So buck up, Mother be brave and bold
You're just dreaming, you're not old.

Just as God did make me thine
There's peace everlasting at the end of time
So keep on waiting, O Mother of mine
For wars take time, plenty of time.

IT'S ALL IN THE WAY YOU LOOK AT IT!

(The lines above may look like a mystic maze. But if you close one eye and tilt this page to the position shown, you can easily read four familiar words.)

MAYBE you won't thank us for reminding you of the H C of L. But it doesn't seem nearly so high when you look at it in the light of your electric bills!

Almost alone among household necessities, the price of electricity has not spiraled upward with war. In fact, official government figures* show that the average price of electricity has actually dropped 3.2% since 1939!

That's especially good news now, but it continues a long-time trend. Electric prices have been coming down so steadily that the average American family gets about twice as much electricity for its money today as it did 15 years ago.

If your bill is no smaller, it's because you're using more electricity to do more jobs than you did then. But the saving is there.

It has been accomplished by America's light and power companies in spite of rising costs and taxes—on top of huge war demands for service that were met without delay, shortage or rationing.

It was done by efficiency and experience and sound business management—by the same American enterprise which built our nation and on which its future depends.

BIRTHDAY LETTER—

In the "horse and buggy days," often they lived thirty miles apart, a day's journey by the methods of travel of that day. Remember the fried chicken, the cream gravy, the custard pie and the black coffee, the wash basin on the back porch, the sardine can used for a soap dish and the endless towel on the roller. Those were the days of staunch friends and good times; however, the present day's methods are not without reward, even if we must always appear to be in a hurry. We now have conveniences galore, power farming, washing machines, radios, daily papers, fast transportation and many other labor-saving gadgets, and we are promised more conveniences in the post war period. Our energies are being taxed by the demands of modern civilization, yet through whose loyalty, friendship and expressions of good will have been a sustaining inspiration to all of us.

May your life be long and happy, and may we be allowed to contribute to your continued prosperity. Many more birthdays to you is the wish of your friends in this bank.

Yours very truly,
 John Q. McAdams
