Sandhill Cranes Return To National Wildlife Refuge

Nearly 8,000 sandhill cranes are presently at the Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge and are continuing to arrive. All crane use is at Paul's Lake since the other refuge lakes are dry.

The majority of the cranes leave the refuge at daybreak each day often flying several miles to feed in the fields. They begin returning to the refuge throughout the evening until dark.

Although hunting is not allowed on the refuge, sandhill crane hunting permits are again being issued at the refuge office this year.

State hunting licenses are not available at the refuge.

Crane hunters are required to have the federal crane hunting permit in addition to the state hunting license.

Office hours are from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. There is no charge for the permit.

Hunters may also call during office hours at 946-3341 and have the permit mailed to them.

The sandhill crane season for this area, Zone A, is November 14 through February 14. The daily bag limit is three and the possession limit is six.

Sisters
by Stacie Harris

Sisters by birth; friends by choice. This describes the relationship my sister and I shared.

At the young age of two and one half, Kimberly's life was changed forever because of a new arrival; I was the new arrival. All the attention she had received as an only child was now focused on me. She quickly learned how to get some of that attention focused back on her, however. This fierce competition grew as we grew, and it gave us the relationship we have today.

When we were younger, I would do anything my sister asked me to do. Kimberly could do no wrong. She was always there to show me exactly what I wanted to play or what television show I wanted to watch. Growing up, I was always Kimberly's little sister. Although at times she considered me a nuisance, and I considered her overbearing, she always included me. I knew I could always count on her if I needed her.

As we grew older, our interests began to change as did our relationship. Our lives began to take on different directions. All of a sudden, we had outgrown the things we used to do together. It seemed to me that I was watching from the sidelines while she lived life to the fullest. Life was not fair to a little sister.

Kimberly and I shared one year together in high school. It was that year that we started to really get to know each other again. She had just received a new car, and I tried to be in the passenger's seat each time it left home. At school, we even shared (or competed in) a class together. It was then that I realized how hard it would be to follow in her footsteps. She appeared to excel in every course. I convinced her to play tennis that year; and of course, she ended up on Varsity, and I played Junior Varsity. Kimberly always gives one hundred percent. Being named valedictorian of her senior class was one of her biggest achievements. It was great sharing in her excitement. What fun a year I had as a freshman, being her little sister.

As Kimberly prepared to go to college the next fall, I did not believe things would change very much. Little did I realize that things would never be the same again. I could not believe how empty the house became when she left. I missed the little things she did that had annoyed me before. I have now adjusted to the change, and we keep in touch by telephone or short visits. Kimberly has strong family ties, and that will never change.

Through all the ups and downs in our relationship, some things have remained constant. Kimberly has always been the kind of sister anyone would look up to. Her pretty blond hair and friendly smile are usually what first attracts anyone's attention. However, it is the inner beauty that makes her so well liked. Her spiritual strength shows in every aspect of her life. The high standards she has set for herself are an indication of her strong faith. She is the type sister that makes you proud to have shared all those special moments growing up together. We were the best of playmates, the best of competitors, and now, we are the best of friends. The love sisters share is one of a kind.

A Special Sister
by Courtney Williams

I always seemed to look up to her. I thought she knew everything and could do anything. Even though over the years we have grown up, I still have those same feelings today.

Casey was only three years old when I was born, and she thought I was only put on this earth to make her life more complicated. She hated to have to suddenly share her room with some stranger that only knew how to eat, sleep, and cry. As we got older, our sibling rivalries continued. Not all of our time was spent fighting, however, for she also became my ally.

Casey could pick on me all she wanted, but if someone else so much as laid a finger on me, she was all over them. I did not realize how important she was to me until my seventh grade year. This was the year she moved to Roswell to live with my dad. We did not realize how important we were to each other until we were one hundred miles apart. I tried to visit her every time we were out of school; however, this was hard because when I would visit, she was almost always in school. The only time we could spend any time together was right after she got out of school until time for her to go to work.

Finally, when she graduated from high school, she moved to Clovis and lived with my grandparents. She began college at Eastern New Mexico University. The summer before her second year of college, she met Scott Hays. They were married July 20, 1991. I was very honored when my sister asked me to be her maid of honor.

Casey and her husband are living in Clovis and both are going to ENMU. They have recently bought a house and a new pickup, and things are going well for my sister.

Casey and I are closer right now than we have ever been before. She has had more influence on my life than anyone else. She is very important to me, and I love her with all my heart.

Coach Johnny Casaus
by Jenna Glover

When I first heard of the idea, it sounded great. One of my best friends and I had decided to spend our summer playing basketball for a coach we had never met or much less heard of.

The AAU tryouts were held even before school was over. To make the team, we had to prove our talent in drills and one-on-one competition. These were the longest most strenuous hours of my life. When the pace finally slowed down and the whistles stopped blowing, I looked over at Misty with a stare of anxiety in my eyes. Butterflies rushed in and out through my stomach. The coaches called us into a huddle, and the intensity possessed my mind and my body. We were about to find out who had the determination, the desire, and the chance to be on this team.

As we sat down on a stone cold floor, we could all feel, as well as see, the fear overwhelmed each of us. The coaches began to call out names; some I had heard before, but some I had not. A feeling of relief rushed through some, and the intensity of rejection gripped others. Suddenly, "Jenna Glover!" Fortunately, my feeling was of total relief. I looked over at Misty and smiled, since they had already called her name.

The feeling of relief later turned to regret, however, when we started to practice after school and on weekends. I had never had such an obligation to a coach or a team until then. We were expected to work until we almost passed out, or started crying, whichever came first. It was hard and tiring, but everyone of us knew that in the end, it would be worth it. Unity and teamwork were the key principles, and we had both. As the games finally got underway, all of the hard work paid off. We were in great physical shape, and as yet, undefeated.

When I look back, I remember how we all hated that coach. We just knew that he loved to see us in pain and agony; yet, a part of us also loved him. Although he yelled at us with all he had, and drove us mercilessly, we still revered him.

I learned a great deal that summer, not only about basketball, but about respect, discipline, and teamwork. It is really amazing how much one person, a coach, can influence someone. That coach led us to state championship title, and then on to the national championship tournament in West Virginia.

Coach had always said, "I love you guys." None of us really ever paid attention to him, but now all of us know he really did. I have never known a person, especially a coach, who had such a great impact on my life. He taught me how to try my hardest, no matter how bad it hurts. I will always remember this man, not only as a coach, but as a friend.

TxDot Issuing New Disabled Parking Placards

New parking permits for the 250,000 Texas drivers with disabilities are now available at local county tax office.

A new state law requires people who park in spaces reserved for the disabled to display either a disabled person's license plate or the hard-plastic mirror placard by Dec. 31. After that, all old forms of identification--cards and special license-plate validation stickers--will be invalid.

As before, there are permits for drivers with permanent disabilities and for those with temporary disabilities.

Drivers with permanent disabilities will receive blue placards, which are good for five years. They replace the red identification card which should be exchanged for the new placard at the local county tax office. Exchanging as many as two cards is free.

Red placards, for those with temporary disabilities, are valid for six months. Drivers with temporary disabilities need not exchange their white identification card.

Placards will cost $5 each if no ID card is exchanged. Drivers may request no more than one set of disabled-person license plates and one placard, or no plates and two placards.

The Texas Legislature made the changes to comply with federal rules making vehicle registration uniform for people with disabilities.

Future Of Our Children

"The 1992 Presidential election is not only about the future of our nation, but the FUTURE OF OUR CHILDREN. The rapid unraveling of America's social fabric has put our children at unprecedented risk physically, morally and academically. In light of this erosive societal crisis, the attributes of character, moral integrity and a commitment to right action has never been more critical to the office of the Presidency of the United States.

We oppose Governor Bill Clinton's election to the highest office of our land specifically due to his positions on the following issues as well as the questions of character with regards to his commitments to the institutions of marriage and country. Today, we call upon all parents of America's children to consider the following positions of Governor Clinton and to stand with us as parents against his election to the Presidency of the United States.

Issue #1. Government funding of the NEA.
 --"We believe in public support for the arts, including a National Endowment for the Arts that is free from political manipulation and firmly rooted in the First Amendment's freedom of expression guarantee." 1992 Democratic Party Platform p. 11
 Note: In recent years the NEA has funded hundreds of thousands of tax payers dollars into grossly offensive projects of "Art" dealing with pornographic, intimate homosexual, excretory and religiously discriminating themes.

Issue #2. True School Choice
 --Bill Clinton OPPOSES private and religious school choice. --"We oppose the Bush administration's efforts to bankrupt the public school system-the bedrock of democracy-through private school vouchers..." 1992 Democratic Party Platform p. 5

Issue #3. Parental Consent for Abortions and Tax funded Abortions
 --"I'm opposed to parental consent, by the way, and I oppose a bill that would do that." Bill Clinton quoted in National Right to Life Chapter Newsletter, August 12, 1992, p. 1

Issue #4. Condom Distribution in Schools
 --Clinton said he'd support a national gay-rights law and "local efforts to make condoms available in school." Bill Clinton's speech at a homosexual sponsored fund raiser entitled, "I Have a Vision, You're Part of it" USA Today, p. 4A May 20, 1992.

If Bill Clinton is committed to these positions how can he be for our children? If he is committed to the principals of family then who is Jennifer Flowers? If he holds in high esteem the critical role of parenting why is he undermining our moral authority as parents with the distribution of condoms and opposition to parental consent? If he is committed to the ideals of patriotism and self-sacrifice then why did he not serve his country? It is said decency becomes a nation, We wish that were true of this candidate. Into these hands we ought not entrust the leadership of our nation, much less the future of our children."

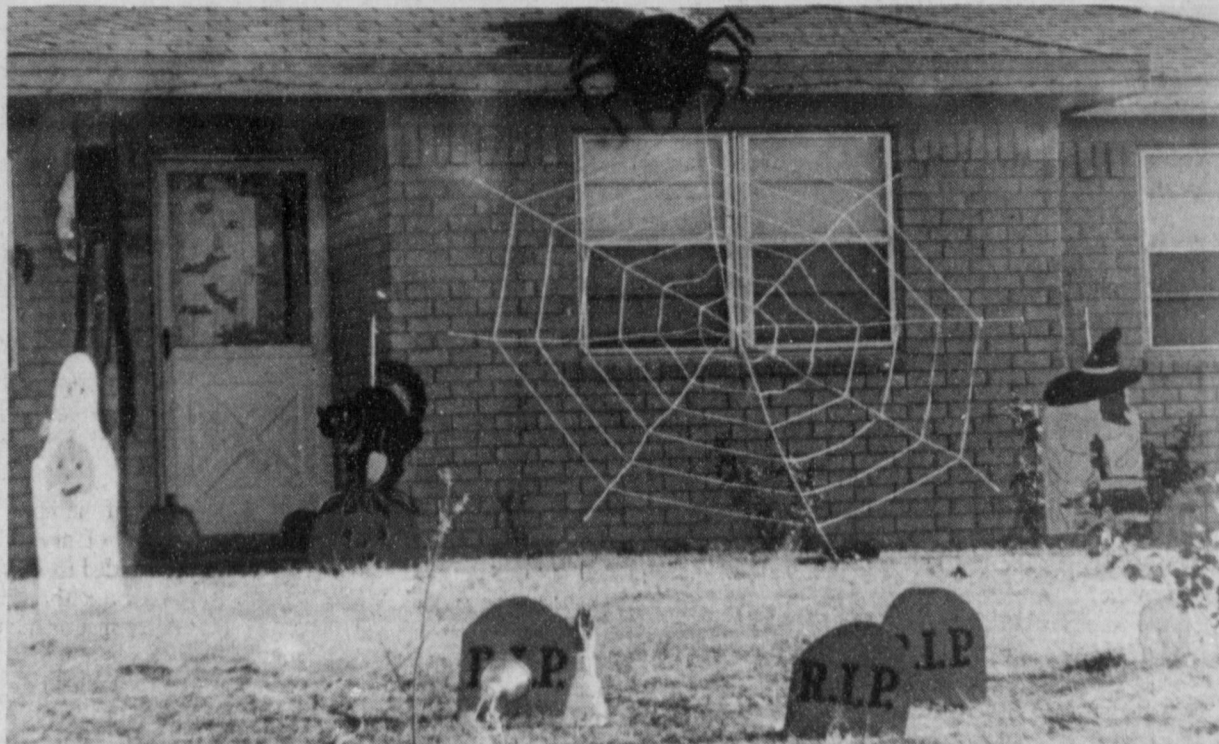

Parents, we ask you to join us in the re-election of President Bush. Regardless of your position on the economy, we must not take away the votes that would be cast for Bush and allow the "de-fault" election of Governor Clinton.

A.A.U.W. Names Girl Of The Month

The American Association of University Women is a national organization devoted to advancing the status of women and girls in our society. A.A.U.W. is dedicated to promoting equity in education and providing informative programs for its members. The local branch of A.A.U.W. meets at 7:00 p.m. the first Monday of each month (during the school year), and welcomes any new member who is a graduate of an accredited University. This organization also offers a scholarship to a deserving young college student each year.

A.A.U.W. in the Muleshoe area began a tradition several years ago of honoring deserving senior girls for their achievements in academia and service. Each month, an outstanding young lady is chosen from the Muleshoe High School Senior Class as "Girl of the Month", and twice a year, a senior girl from the Lazbuddie Senior Class is chosen as either the "Fall" or "Spring" outstanding young girl. These young ladies are chosen for their contributions to school, church, and community as well as for academic excellence. The members of A.A.U.W. are very proud to be able to recognize these wonderful girls and further honor them with a dinner party in the month of May.

The Muleshoe Branch of the American Association of University Women is pleased to announce this year's first Girl of the Month, Miss Stacie Harris.

Stacie is the daughter of Rex and Karen Harris of Muleshoe. Her favorite hobbies are playing tennis, reading, and playing the piano.

Discipline Is Love

There are many proven methods for managing children without using physical pain or humiliation.

Here are some suggestions on how to discipline your child with love from IOF Foresters parenting consultants Dorothy and Robert DeBolt, who have raised twenty biological and adoptive children.

•When your child misbehaves, try to be calm. Take a deep breath and think before you speak or act. Always let your child know that he is good but the behavior at that moment is not good. In other words, condemn the act but not the child. Children need love the most when they deserve it the least.

•Come to an agreement ahead of time with your child. Discuss what behavior is expected, choose rewards for good behavior and consequences for bad behavior.

•Have the child work to pay for destruction or damage. Make sure the punishment fits the crime. This teaches responsibility.

•Remove privileges as a logical consequence of breaking family rules.

•For teenagers who have difficulties coming home on time, try this solution. If the teenager doesn't come home at 10 p.m., as told, the next time he goes out require him to be home by 9:30 p.m., etc.

Dorothy and Robert DeBolt are considered to be America's number one parents. They have raised twenty children and have been married, single, divorced, widowed, adoptive and biological parents. The DeBolts serve as consultants for the IOF Foresters on better parenting.

The IOF Foresters is a not-for-profit fraternal benefit society dedicated to being socially responsible by supporting projects that help strengthen family life. If you would like to receive more free parenting tips, call this toll-free number: 1-800-922-4-IOF.

Enlightening Tips

During the month of October, we have been summoned to be aware of the drug and alcohol problems of our society. I hope someone out there was encouraged to seek help with their problem during this month. Even if just one life was saved, it was a blessing.

So many people aren't really aware of the extent of how bad the problem has become and the depth of the dangers involved. From someone that knows the life threatening situations involved around living with someone that abuses drugs, I want to try to forcefully make you recognize the severeness of the problem around you. You may not even realize a problem is right under your nose until it's too late. If it's totally impossible for you to help someone else, at least seek help for yourself. It may be your own life you are saving, even if you aren't the one directly involved with the participation of drug abuse.

Learn all you can about drugs and their dangers, especially if you are raising children. Sometimes we don't realize what a vicious world it really can be out there, one wrong turn and your child could suffer a life of misery. Figure out some way to get through to your children about the drug abuse problem. Love your children and take CARE of them, and have a happy November!

MICROWAVE TIPS

Is it preferable to cook beef stew in a microwave? Maybe.

A typical round steak stew for microwave ovens requires two hours and eight minutes, and one must stir the stew every twenty minutes.

This might save an hour; if that time is critical, microwave. But if one is to spend over two hours on a stew, many would just as well spend three doing it the conventional way.

1992 Texas Beef Backer Named

A Houston restaurant company that specializes in South American barbecued beef received the 1992 Texas Beef Backer award October 27 in Amarillo. A national panel of food services judges selected Churrasco's South American Restaurants as the premier beef merchandiser in Texas based on its unique concept and its five tons of beef sold per month.

Michael J. Cordua, a native of Nicaragua and a Texas A&M University graduate, burst upon the Houston scene in 1988 with his first Churrasco's. Cordua has since opened another with plans for a third. Annual sales average $5 million with beef accounting for 50 percent of the gross.

The word churrasco is what South Americans call their grilled beef barbecue. Cordua took the basic South American concept and adapted it to tenderloin, the largest and tenderest beef cut. To prepare churrasco, his restaurant butterfies the cut of beef tenderloins, flash grills them over coals, and then brushes them with the traditional South American chimichurri sauce, which is a blend of extra-virgin olive oil, garlic and herbs. The dish is served with plantain chips.

Even though Texas has its own unique method of barbecuing, Cordua's South American version has made plenty of converts in the Houston area because of its quality and flavor.

Now Is The Time For Flu Shots

Influenza better known as the flu, is a viral infection of the respiratory system which can be serious or even life-threatening.

Each year flu causes about 20,000 deaths in the United States. The majority of people who die are 65 or older.

For the best protection against influenza, Lowell Johnson, M.D. a family practitioner on Methodist Hospital's medical staff, advises people to get a flu shot between mid-October and mid-November. "A vaccination at this time means your immunity peaks during flu season, which runs from late December to early March," said Dr. Johnson.

Those at increased risk for flu and its complications include persons 65 and older, residents of nursing homes and other chronic-care facilities, adults, and children with chronic heart and lung disorders or immune problems. Other high-risk individuals are children between 6 months and 18 years old who regularly take aspirin for another condition and who are therefore at risk of developing Reyes Syndrome after a bout with the flu.

Flu shots contain egg-grown non-infectious (inactivated) flu viruses that activate the immune system but don't cause infection. Those who are allergic to eggs should not receive a flu shot. Anyone who has ever had hives, swelling of the tongue or difficulty breathing after eating eggs falls into this category.

Despite some rumors, medical experts agree that flu shots are safe. Their most common side effect is soreness at the site of injection. Fever, malaise and muscle aches may also occur in some people for a few days after a flu shot.

For more information about flu shots, contact your physician. If you are in need of a physician, contact Methodist Hospital's Physician Referral Service at (806) 793-4171.

Special Education Mediation

The Texas Education Agency (TEA) has contracted with the Dispute Resolution Center (DRC)-South Plains Association of governments, to mediate special education disputes. The Center will be responsible for serving Regions 9 (Wichita Falls), 14 (Abilene), 16 (Amarillo), and 17 (Lubbock). The DRC is one of two dispute resolution centers in Texas selected to provide the service. Mediators will focus on disputes related to federal laws covering children with disabilities. School systems or parents must contact TEA-Complaints Division, 1-800-252-9668 to request mediation. Within three working days after a request is made to TEA, the DRC will assign a mediator. Mediators assigned to special education cases are required to have two years of mediation experience and 56 hours of training.

For more information, contact TEA or the Dispute Resolution Center.

"We make our reputation on our churrasco's," Cordua, who is also the restaurant's executive chef, said. "In a profession where very little is truly new, Churrasco's churrasco is unique to the Houston market, and possibly the country. No one that we know serves only the center cut tenderloin of beef cut in our unique way."

In this 500th year Christopher Columbus reached the New World, Cordua says it is appropriate that his concept celebrates both pre- and post-discovery America.

"We try to stay with native products that were the indigenous foods before Columbus along with beef that came to America after his arrival," Cordua says. "The result is a concept that blends New World ingredients with Old World techniques."

Cordua provides the churrasco in a number of ways to his patrons. Serving sizes range from the 16 ounce Gaucho to the 6 ounce Churrasco Chico. The dishes are available for lunch and dinner at an average per person cost of about $23.

Churrasco's was nominated for the Texas Beef Backer of the Year Award by the Texas Coastal Chapter of Texas Cattle Women and the Texas Beef Industry Council (BIC). The restaurant received its award October 27 in Amarillo from JoAnn Parish, president of Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

"The Texas beef industry applauds Churrasco's and Michael Cordua for a unique marketing concept," says Robin Richards, program coordinator for the Texas BIC. "Because of the company's growth in a short period of time with a menu based on beef, Churrasco's certainly deserves this year's honor as Texas' Beef Backer."

IRS focuses On Non-Fileers

As part of a nationwide effort, the Dallas District of the Internal Revenue Service is increasing its focus on taxpayers who have failed to file tax returns. If you are one of the majority of taxpayers who file and pay every year, this is good news. If you are one of those who has not yet filed, don't wait any longer.

IRS is assigning 2,000 revenue agents and examiners nationwide to find delinquent taxpayers and secure their returns and unpaid taxes. Additional personnel are also being assigned at IRS processing centers to investigate records and information documents that indicate a tax return should be filed.

Dallas District recently completed an outreach campaign to bring people back into the system. According to Gary O. Booth, IRS Director for the Dallas District, "We are convinced, from the numbers of taxpayers who took advantage of our outreach assistance, that most taxpayers are willing to comply with the tax laws if they have the information and help they need to do so."

Booth urged those who did not take advantage of the special assistance offered earlier to file their returns now. IRS will work with people who owe tax to help them meet their tax obligation.

"It is only fair to taxpayers who are filing and paying their tax on time for IRS to ensure that all others do, too," Booth remarked. "And since penalties and interest continue to increase your debt, you are helping yourself if you file now."

IRS offices in the following locations will be staffed each Thursday morning beginning at 8 am to help taxpayers who need help to file prior year returns:

Dallas: 1100 Commerce Street, Room 1A02, 4050 Alpha Road, First Floor

Abilene: 314 Pine Street, Room 2305

Clinton has made support for the Freedom of Choice act a key part of his campaign. He boasts of fighting against parental consent laws in Arkansas and opposes any bill to that effect. He would repeal the Hyde Amendment and abortion on demand would be paid for under his national health program.

HOMOSEXUALITY

Clinton supports providing civil rights protection for gay men and lesbians and an end to Defense Department discrimination. "Together, Bill Clinton and Al Gore represent the most pro-lesbian and pro-gay ticket in history," says Tom McFeeley, executive director of the Human Rights Campaign Fund, a gay and lesbian political organization. ABORTION

President Bush vowed to veto the Freedom of Choice Act which goes beyond even Roe vs. Wade and forbids any significant limits on abortion. Fights proposals to allow minor girls to obtain abortions without parental consent. He has banned promotion of abortion as a method of birth control in federally funded clinics and defends the Hyde Amendment which prohibits the use of federal dollars to pay for abortions, except to the mother's life.

HOMOSEXUALITY

President Bush opposes sexual preference as a protected minority receiving preferential status under civil rights statutes at the federal, state and local level. Opposes any legislation or law which legally recognizes same-sex marriages and allows such couples to adopt children or provide foster care. Supports the continued exclusion of homosexuals from the military as a matter of good order and discipline.

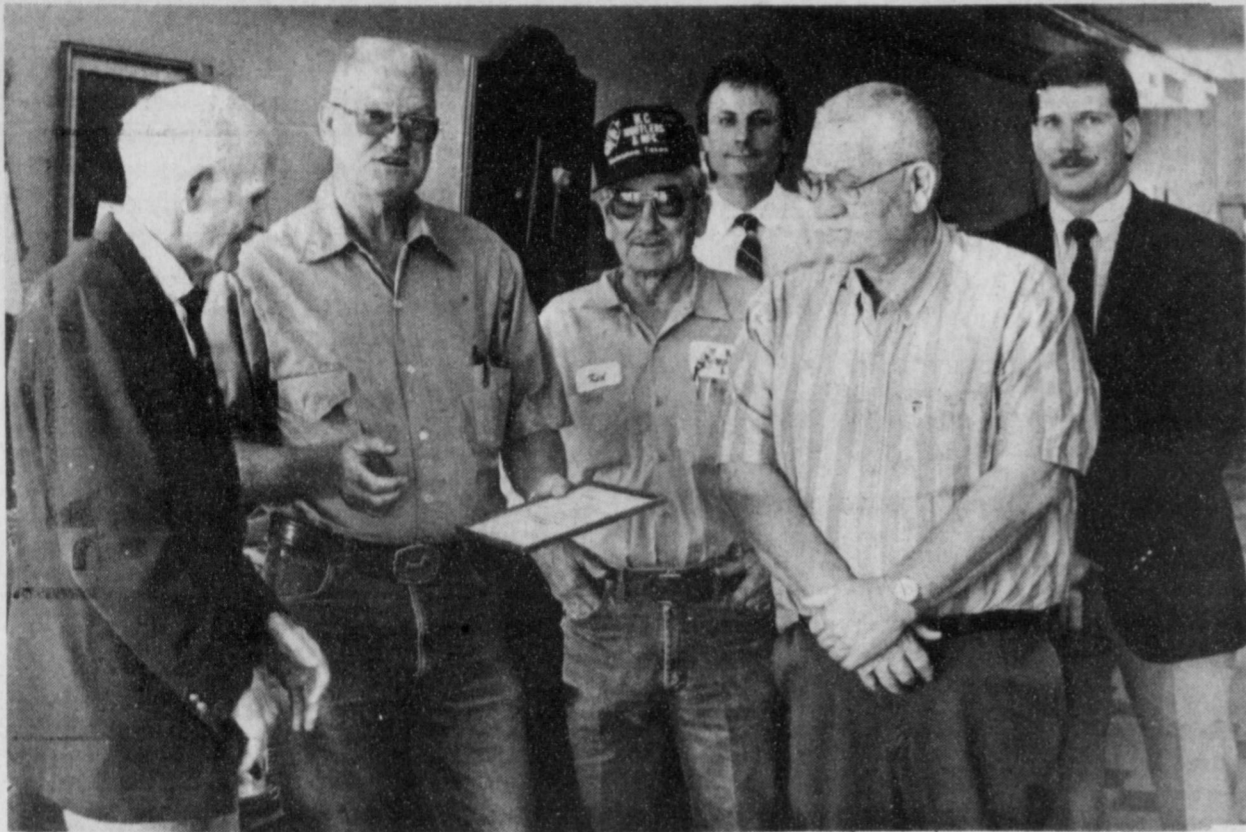

NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE ARTS

The Republican platform calls for a national crusade against pornography and condemns the use of public funds to subsidize obscenity and blasphemy masquerading as art.

Drop In Legal Services Fund Places New Emphasis On State Bar Pro Bono Goals

More than 60 legal service providers in Texas will lose up to $3 million a year in funding due to declining interest rates. For several years, Texas' 3.9 million indigents have benefitted from a program that channels Interest On Lawyers Trust Accounts into a fund (the IOLTA fund) that provides grants to serve poor Texans. This year, for the first time since the program began, there will be a decrease in the amount of money available.

"The State Bar has supported this program as well as others designed to serve the legal needs of indigents," said Dallas attorney Harriet Miers, president of the State Bar. "The drop in revenue to IOLTA will cause a temporary setback in addressing these needs, but it places a greater emphasis on the importance of our pro bono goals."

Since 1982, the State Bar has had a formal program to address legal needs of indigents in Texas. Texas lawyers coordinate with the legal service providers in the state to serve poor Texans. In 1985, with the Bar's support, the Supreme Court of Texas created the Texas Equal Access to Justice Foundation to manage the fund. Since then, IOLTA has garnered millions each year that is channeled back to serve poor Texans through grants to legal services providers.

"We anticipate a 30 percent drop in funds available for next year's programs," said Miers. "The IOLTA staff is working closely with the state's legal service providers to help them prepare for the change in grant funding." Last year, 61 legal service operations in Texas received grants from the $9.7 million collected through IOLTA.

Texas is one of 21 states that requires lawyers to participate, of the 49 states that have similar programs. In Texas, IOLTA began as a voluntary program. By 1987, $500,000 was available for grants. In mid-1989 the program became mandatory, generating a 10-fold leap in revenue by 1990.

"These are dollars that were not available prior to IOLTA," said Miers. "With IOLTA, we can get millions of dollars by combining the interest from thousands of small trust amounts that generate only pennies. Traditionally, attorneys put small amounts of trust money into one pooled account which, prior to IOLTA, did not earn interest. Attorneys are not permitted to personally collect interest on their client trust accounts, and it isn't feasible for lawyers to do the paperwork it would take to process interest on small client trust accounts. Of course, if the individual trust amount is large enough to generate interest on its own, that money is held in a separate account for the benefit of the client."

By the end of 1991, at 4 to 5 percent interest, the funds collected through the program totaled nearly $10 million. But when interest rates dropped to 2 to 3 percent in 1992, IOLTA's board of directors began realizing hard times were ahead.

"The drop in funds hits Texas at a particularly bad time," said W. Frank Newton of Lubbock, who chairs the foundation. "The 1990 census figures show that Texas' poverty population increased three times more (47 percent) than the national average (16 percent) since 1990. Now we're forced to tell our legal service providers that we will have only 70 percent of the money we had last year available for the grants."

Newton said the foundation receives about two requests for money each year for every grant IOLTA issues. The money goes to fund legal assistance programs that serve poor Texans who need help with consumer problems, divorce or child support cases, or landlord/tenant problems, among others.

Earlier this year Newton and the IOLTA staff began alerting legal service providers around the state that grant funds were declining. On October 22, representatives from 61 legal service programs in Texas met in Dallas to discuss funding in coming years. At the meeting, foundation representatives addressed how the grants will be handled in view of the drop in interest rates and the rise in poverty numbers. An expert in financial planning was on hand to offer advice to grant recipients on how to survive the lean years ahead.

"Many of our programs have a multiple challenge ahead and will need to plan their budgets carefully," said Newton. "In some areas, the poverty population increased significantly more than the national average." In the 16-county area surrounding Houston, the poverty population jumped a whopping 70 percent in the 1980's.

"The news is even worse for areas where the poverty population grew less than the state average," said Newton. "Our grant formula is based on comparative poverty population figures in the state. Some areas may lose more than 30 percent we anticipate due to falling interest rates simply because their poverty population didn't grow as dramatically as the rest of the state's."

The Heart of Texas Area, which serves Waco, McLennan County, and the surrounding six counties, may lose more than 40 percent of its IOLTA grant funds despite a 28.6 jump in poverty population. That means, said Newton, that legal service providers in that area will serve 13,857 more people (at

Dow Theory Forecasts

The phrase "insider buying" conjures up images of trading scandals. However, corporate executives and board members may buy and sell their companies' shares legally, so long as trades are reported to the SEC.

Since this is public information, tracking corporate insiders is easy. The Wall Street Journal reports on insider trading, usually once a week; Barron's has a regular feature on it.

Insider buying and selling is not always accurate in predicting future stock performance. Because an insider sells doesn't necessarily mean the stock is headed for bad times.

Insiders sell for a number of reasons--college tuitions, Christmas gifts, estate planning, portfolio diversification, etc.

Insider buying can often be a stronger signal.

Time is not so scarce. What is rare is the proper and intelligent use of time.

100 percent of the poverty level) with up to $24,817 less than was granted in 1992.

"Bar leaders from all around the state are working to help address providing legal services to the poor," said Miers. "We're very grateful that we took our first important step earlier this year when we developed our policy on pro bono (voluntary) legal work."

In May, the State Bar's board of directors approved a goal of 50 hours pro bono work per year for each attorney in Texas. The policy came after months of studying the legal needs of indigents in Texas and will be part of a report on the feasibility of mandatory pro bono, due to the Legislature in January.

"Our goal, once implemented, can result in 2.7 million hours of legal services donated to the poor in Texas," said Miers. "We've got the groundwork in place for a good solid program of pro bono work. The Bar has taken the position that additional funding is needed for legal services to the poor in Texas. We're studying what can be done to augment the very important dollars collected through IOLTA each year, and we'll be working hard to involve the state's 54,298 attorneys in meeting the Bar's pro bono goals."

Where Do The Candidates Stand On Abortion?

George Bush

Bill Clinton

Roe vs. Wade

GEORGE BUSH has steadfastly called for the reversal of Roe v. Wade. As he told a rally of pro-lifers in Washington, D.C., "The Supreme Court's decision in Roe v. Wade was wrong and should be overturned." Bush appointee Attorney General William Barr said the Justice Department would continue to urge the Court to reverse Roe in future cases.

BILL CLINTON says he has "always been pro-choice" and has "never wavered" in his "support of Roe v. Wade." "I have believed in the rule of Roe v. Wade for 20 years since I used to teach it in law school!" (Roe v. Wade allows abortion for any reason, even as a method of birth control, even in the late stages of pregnancy.)

Appointment of Judges

GEORGE BUSH has sought to appoint judicial conservatives, such as Clarence Thomas, to the courts. Thomas joined three other justices in dissenting from the Court's Casey decision upholding Roe. During the Bush/Reagan years, the pro-abortion majority on the Court has shrunk from 7-2 to 5-4.

BILL CLINTON says that support for Roe v. Wade would be a litmus test for his nominees to the Supreme Court. Referring to the one-vote margin by which the Court recently upheld Roe v. Wade, Clinton said, "As president, I won't make you worry about the 'one justice away' on the Supreme Court!"

Unlimited Abortion

GEORGE BUSH has vowed he will veto the "Freedom of Choice Act" (FOCA). FOCA goes well beyond even Roe versus Wade and forbids any significant limits on abortion. The President pledged, "It will not become law as long as I am President of the United States."

BILL CLINTON has made support for FOCA a key part of his campaign. "I would support a federal Freedom of Choice Act to protect a woman's right to choose."

Abortion Without Parental Consent

GEORGE BUSH will fight proposals to allow minor girls to obtain abortions without parental consent. The President said, "This idea is crazy."

BILL CLINTON boasts that he has "fought against" parental consent laws in Arkansas, and says, "I'm opposed to parental consent, by the way, and I oppose a bill that would do that."

Harvesting Tissues of Babies Killed by Abortion

GEORGE BUSH has consistently refused to use tax dollars to pay for research that involves transplanting tissue taken from aborted unborn babies into other persons.

BILL CLINTON sharply criticizes the President for defending this pro-life policy, which Clinton called "an ugly bow to the far right."

Abortion as Birth Control

GEORGE BUSH has banned promotion of abortion as a method of birth control in federally funded clinics.

BILL CLINTON has said he would issue an Executive Order repealing this pro-life policy on his first day in office.

Government Funding of Abortion

GEORGE BUSH has strongly defended the Hyde Amendment, which prohibits the use of federal dollars to pay for abortions, except to save the mother's life.

BILL CLINTON would repeal the Hyde Amendment. Moreover, abortion on demand would be paid for under his national health program.

COTTON NEWS
FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

LUBBOCK, Friday, October 23, 1992

By Shawn Wade

Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG) has submitted a Section 18 Specific Emergency Exemption request to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in an effort to get approval for the use of Baytan® 30 Flowable Fungicide on cottonseed in 1993.

Baytan is a seed treatment that has proven effective against Thielaviopsis basicola, or Black Root Rot as it is commonly known. This type of seedling disease has been identified as an increasing problem in many High Plains and Trans-Pecos cotton fields.

Black Root Rot can affect a cotton producer's bottom line in a couple of different ways. If the stand survives an attack of the seedling disease there can be a severe reduction in yield potential per plant. If it doesn't survive the grower can be forced to replant or even give up on his crop.

It has been demonstrated that other treatments are not effective in field use. There is no other economically or environmentally feasible alternative practice that can adequately address the situation but Baytan® 30 FL has been shown to be effective against the disease.

This PCG Section 18 request is the second such request made in an effort to allow the use of Baytan on the High Plains.

The first request was granted a crisis exemption by the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) allowing producers limited use of the product in 1992. That exemption was revoked by EPA in June. The new request will go from TDA directly to the EPA for approval.

"The new request for a section 18 exemption was submitted late last week," notes Roger Haldenby, PCG Executive Assistant. "The new request contains additional research data and hopefully will answer some of the questions that prompted the revoking of our previous exemption. The hard part of getting an application like this approved is showing a significant yield increase as a result of the product's use. There are so many other factors affecting yield between planting and harvest that mask the effects of a seed treatment."

He adds that with a seed treatment like Baytan the biggest benefit a producer receives is maintaining healthy initial stands of cotton and avoiding the cost of replanting all or part of the crop.

An application for full labeling of Baytan on cotton is also under consideration by EPA but is unlikely to be granted until well after the 1993 planting season.

Members of the Texas Cotton Association met in Lubbock Thursday for the 1992 West Texas Flow Marketing Meeting according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG).

The meeting featured an update of cotton's current situation and outlook for the future from Mark Lange, Director of Economic Services with the National Cotton Council. Approximately 250 merchants, shippers, growers and other interested parties attended the meeting.

The release of a survey conducted by the Texas Cotton Association indicated that shipping commitments for the West Texas/Oklahoma region total near 1.27 million bales for the 1992 crop. A breakdown of the survey results show commitments of 928,127 bales to the domestic market and 358,324 bales to the Far East and Europe.

Editor's Note: Texas State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison addresses various issues related to personal finance and state government. However, these views are not intended to replace the advice of reputable financial advisers or other professional counselors.

Q. I am a small business owner and am wrestling with a number of questions regarding the management of my operation and compliance with government mandates. I don't have money to hire a professional consultant. Do you have any suggestions?

A. You are not alone in your predicament. Many small business owners need assistance navigating the confusing web of government and IRS rules and regulations.

There are groups to which you can turn for this type of help. One organization in particular stands out in my mind; SCORE.

The Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) is a non-profit group made up of retired persons who volunteer their knowledge and expertise to small business owners. Volunteers represent a wide spectrum of professions from accountants to marketing executives to tax attorneys.

Volunteers are paired with small business owners who are in need of their specific talent and advice. For example, if you are confused by the myriad of rules governing worker's compensation you would be matched with a volunteer who is well versed in that area.

In addition to free counseling services, SCORE provides training and sponsors workshops and seminars covering a variety of business-related issues. If you are interested in learning more about SCORE and the location of the chapter closest to you call the national office at 202-205-6762 or write: SCORE, 409 Third St. Suite 5900, Washington, DC 20024.

November Is National Diabetes Month

Diabetic women who want children may reduce some of their pregnancy risks by consulting a doctor familiar with their special needs before they conceive.

According to Dr. Karolina Adam, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, a diabetic needs to be sure of her own health and in "good control" of her sugar level before she gets pregnant.

"If her sugar is too high or fluctuates too much, her baby could be harmed even before she knows she is pregnant. She is also risking a miscarriage," Adam said.

A diabetic must also be in good health overall so she can tolerate a pregnancy physically, said Adam, a Baylor specialist in maternal/fetal medicine and high-risk pregnancies. "She needs to be able to withstand the demands of providing nine months of life support to her developing child without jeopardizing her own health," Adam said. "We want her healthy after she delivers so she can enjoy being a mother."

Before conceiving, a diabetic should make sure her kidney function is good and that she does not have high blood pressure or heart disease--conditions diabetics are at higher risk for. Problems like these should be treated before a pregnancy begins, Adam said.

Adam also has patients checked for diabetic proliferative retinopathy, a condition affecting the retina of the eye that can cause permanent damage or blindness if left untreated. Pregnancy can increase that risk, Adam said.

Once she has conceived, a diabetic will be monitored throughout her pregnancy, Adam said. The obstetrician will keep a close watch on the baby's growth and development and on the mother's blood pressure and blood sugar.

"We want to keep her sugar levels steady in the normal range to keep her baby from growing too large," Adam said. "In addition to causing a woman problems during labor and delivery, a baby that is too big can be injured during birth and suffer from low blood sugar after birth."

Adam recommends that pregnant diabetics eat three meals and three snacks daily. Each meal should contain 25 percent of the day's total calories. Snack calories should be divided into 5 percent at mid-morning and at mid-afternoon and 15 percent at bedtime.

"Although some diabetics would be advised not to attempt a pregnancy, many can have healthy pregnancies and healthy babies if they take care of themselves properly," Adam said.

Law Enforcement Class Set

A law enforcement class on warrant requirements for arrest, search and seizure is scheduled Nov. 9-19 at South Plains College.

Deadline to register is noon Nov. 6.

The class will meet 6-11 p.m. Monday through Thursdays in the SPC Law Enforcement Building, room 115. Cost is $40 a person.

The course will cover exceptions to search warrant requirements, warrantless searches of vehicles, habitations and persons and will present developmental ideas of the concept of probable cause to search, seize and arrest. "The student will learn when to arrest and when a search can be conducted in relationship to the arrest," says George Lawless, coordinator and associate professor of SPC's law enforcement program.

Formal registration will be completed at the first class session. Either payment in full or a purchase order number is required.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as the result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate.

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Guidelines For Screening Mammography Established by the American Cancer Society.

- 35-40 years of age - One baseline mammogram.
- 40-50 years of age - A mammogram every 1-2 years depending on breast type and risk factor.
- 50 years of age and over - An annual physical examination and annual mammogram.
- Asymptomatic women under 50 years of age with significant high risk factors should be examined at appropriate intervals. These risk factors include previous breast cancer and family history of cancer.

V. A symptomatic woman should have a mammogram at any age when she experiences a mass, nipple discharge, skin changes or unexplained breast pain.

A screening mammogram is an x-ray of the breast using extremely low dosages of radiation (usually comparable to dental x-rays) and is designed to find very early cancers.

A female technologist who is highly trained in mammography will perform the examination.

The charge for the screening mammogram is $70.00. The Unit accepts cash, check, Visa, Mastercard and American Express.

Nursing Home News

by Joy Stancell

We were so pleased to have Sally Messenger bring a group of young people from the Methodist Church to visit and carol Wednesday evening. Their voices brightened up our "home" as they sang strolling up and down the corridors. Christmas is not the only time for caroling. It is delightful in October.

Dan and Linda, Van and Betty, Tennie are among family members that came to visit Leonard McCormick recently.

Gladys Pierce visited the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Johnny and Cherry Estep Wednesday.

Happy November birthday to Beryl Hollis, 11-01-06, Birdie Warren, 11-21-03, Johnnie Chappell, 11-27-15, Mamie Askew, 11-30-1900, and L.C. Blalock, 11-30-12.

The Family Support Group will meet Monday, November 9 at 7:00 p.m. in the conference room. Tony Leiker CSW-ACP: social worker, will be meeting with the group.

Buster Kittrell hosted the men's coffee time Wednesday morning. He also brought us a sack of home grown freshly roasted peanuts. Thanks Buster.

Letter To The Editor

Mr. Larry Hall, Mrs. Evelyn Harris Muleshoe Publishing Co. Muleshoe, Tex.

Dear Larry & Evelyn
I would like to endorse the Democratic ticket of Bill Clinton and Al Gore. I want to encourage your readers to do the same. The Democratic ticket has a platform which encourages sound and equitable economic growth for our nation.

The record of the present administration has been one favoritism to the rich, preferential to big business (which by the way, have used that preferential treatment to ship jobs across the border), and watering down positive environmental and social legislation. Much of the gridlock in our legislative process can be traced to the administration's unwillingness to negotiate and compromise on key legislation.

The Clinton/Gore ticket offers the people of the United States a positive means of improvement and change. This ticket's programs will produce fair and equitable improvements for all Americans.

At this point, the voter must look at each ticket's proposals. To cover and discuss all the proposals from all three tickets, would take the entire edition of this paper. I ask you to consider each carefully. I honestly feel that the Clinton/Gore ticket offers the best program for the people of America. I encourage your readers to vote for Clinton/Gore and the Democratic ticket. Above all, I encourage your readers to exercise your right to vote. Thank you for your newspaper's Service to the community.

Sincerely,
Chuck Smith

Pointing the way

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Early churches used steeples to make the building higher than all others in the city. People could see God's House from any direction, and could easily find their way to a place of worship. Today, with many office buildings towering into the sky, churches are not always the tallest buildings. However, churches still point the way to God, and provide a place of worship.

Research Study Finds Help For Sufferers Of Osteoporosis

A newly published study reports an additional way that bone resorption is stopped by the body and provides new insight into how systematic bone loss, a feature of osteoporosis, or local bone loss, a feature of osteoarthritis, might be controlled, according to the Arthritis Foundation.
 Giant cells called osteoclasts, located on the surface of bone, slowly break down. When properly regulated, this process helps bone growth, repair and turnover, helping to replace 20-30-percent of the skeleton each year. However, when unregulated, the process leads to bone loss and weakening of the skeleton.

A naturally occurring hormone called calcitonin is known to regulate and stop the process. Scientists funded by the Arthritis Foundation looked at the mechanism behind calcitonin's regulating influence and discovered that the protein kinase pathway, previously not known to be a part of the process, is instrumental in shrinking the giant cells to stop bone breakdown. Consequently, investigators searching for a synthetic way to stop bone density loss now know they must take a broader approach and address the protein kinase pathway to successfully stop the process in diseases such as osteoporosis or osteoarthritis.
 This finding improves our understanding of the way bone is dissolved and provides hope that we can stop bone density loss in the future," said Naga Bushan, M.D. Chapter Medical Spokesperson of the Arthritis Foundation. High Plains Branch, Northwest Texas Chapter. The Arthritis Foundation estimates that 24 million Americans are affected by osteoporosis, a disease in which bones become weak and brittle as bone density is lost. An additional 15.8 million Americans have osteoarthritis, a disease in which the cartilage breaks down causing bone to rub against bone.
 The study was published in the September issue of the medical journal Endocrinology and conducted by Munnum Chakraborty, Ph. D., and colleagues at the Yale University School of Medicine with funds from the Arthritis Foundation.
 For more information about arthritis, contact the Arthritis Foundation, High Plains Branch, Northwest Texas Chapter, at (806) 795-0951. The Arthritis Foundation is the source of help and hope for the one in seven Americans with arthritis. The foundation supports research to find ways to cure and prevent arthritis and seeks to improve the quality of life for those affected by arthritis.
